Rockingham — First Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; sixth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; eleventh Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; fourth Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; eighth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, each of the above terms to be for the trial of criminal cases only.

First Monday in March to continue one week; sixth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; ninth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; fourteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; seventh Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week; twelfth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks, each of the above terms to be for the trial of civil cases only. Provided, that at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court to be held for Rockingham County, all motions in any civil actions pending before said court, and all uncontested divorce cases pending before said court, may be heard and tried by the court, and provided further, that all other civil actions and civil matters may, with the consent of the parties and the approval of the court, be heard and tried at any criminal term, either regular or special, of the superior court of Rockingham County. However, no contested civil cases shall be tried until after the criminal docket for the term has been disposed of. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 49; 1917, c. 107; 1933, cc. 45, 264; 1935, c. 246; 1937, cc. 156, 413, s. 5; 1939, c. 156; 1941, c. 58; C. S. 1443.)

Stokes—Fourth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only; fifth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of civil cases only; sixteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only; second Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for one week for trial of both criminal and civil cases; fifth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week for the trial of criminal cases only; sixth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, for the trial of civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 1; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 169; 1929, c. 158; 1937, c. 413, s. 5; C. S. 1443.)

There is hereby established a term of court to continue for one week in Stokes county, beginning the first Monday in January of each year for the trial of criminal causes only. There shall be jurors, including a grand jury, provided for said January term of court. (1939, c. 342.)

Surry—Eighth Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; third Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; seventh Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; second Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week; fifteenth Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for one week, for the trial of criminal cases only.

Seventh Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for one week; second Monday before the first Monday in March to continue for two weeks; eighth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue one week; thirteenth Monday after the first Monday in March to continue for one week; eighth Monday before the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks; third Monday after the first Monday in September to continue for two weeks, for the trial of civil cases only. (1913, c. 196; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 34; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 9; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 417; 1931, c. 251; 1933, cc. 180, 413; 1935, c. 246; 1937, c. 210, 413, s. 5; C. S. 1443.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1931, c. 240, as amended by c. 456, added a new term for Cleveland County. This new term conflicts with a term of Watauga County, which was transferred to the Sixteenth Judicial District by Public Laws 1931, c. 424.

One 1937 amendment added the proviso to the first paragraph of this section. Another created the twenty-first judicial district composed of the counties of Caswell, Rockingham, Surry (formerly in the eleventh judicial district) and Stokes (formerly in the twelfth judicial district, now composed of the counties of Guilford and Davidson).

The 1939 amendments have been cited at the end of the paragraphs affected thereby.

The 1941 amendments have been cited at the end of the paragraphs affected thereby.

For comment on Public Laws 1941, c. 367, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 475.

The 1943 amendments made changes in the paragraphs relating to the following counties: Avery, Camden, Cleveland, Columbus, Davidson, Franklin, Guilford, McDowell, Moore, Nash, Onslow, Union, Wake.

Session Laws 1943, c. 121, provided for holding terms of the superior court in each city in the state, which is not a county seat, having as many as thirty-five thousand inhabitants according to the last federal census.

When Term Ends.—The term of court ends when the business is disposed of and the judge leaves the bench, and does not necessarily extend to the end of the period prescribed. May v. National etc. Co., 172 N. C. 795, 90 S. E. 890.

When the Term Embraces Sunday.—When a term of court is set by statute to begin on a certain Monday, and to last for "one week," (or two or three weeks, as the case may be), it embraces the Sunday of each week (unless sooner adjourned), and the term expires by limitation at midnight of that day. Taylor v. Ervin, 119 N. C. 274, 25 S. E. 875. A verdict entered on Sunday of a week set for the duration of a court, in the absence of an earlier adjournment, is legally entered. Id.

Session at Scene of Crime.—Where at the requests of defendants, a view of the scene of a crime is granted and a short session of the court held there, no prejudicial error is committed under this section. State v. Stewart, 189 N. C. 340, 127 S. E. 260.

Applied in State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 510, 174 S. E. 422, with reference to Henderson County.

§ 7-71. Governor to assign judges to hold terms of court when regular judges are not available.—If the regular judge holding the courts for any district is not available for any cause set out in Article four, Section eleven, of the Constitution to hold any of the terms of court provided for in Chapter 367 of the Public Laws of 1941, amending § 7-70, the Governor shall assign a judge to hold such term or terms from among the regular, special or emergency judges. (1941, c. 367, s. 2.)

§ 7-71.1. Governor authorized to cancel terms of court; judges available for assignment elsewhere.—The governor is authorized and empowered, upon a finding by him that any term of superior court for any of the counties of the state are not necessary due to the lack of sufficient official business to be transacted, to cancel any term of superior court scheduled to be held in any of the counties of the state: Provided, that any term of superior court canceled hereunder shall be canceled at least ten days prior to the time for the convening of said court.

Upon the cancellation of any term of superior court the judge scheduled to hold said term of court shall be available for assignment by the governor to hold superior court in any other county in the state. (1943, c. 348, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 7-71.2. Cancellation not to affect subsequent terms.—The cancellation of any term of court by the Governor, as provided in § 7-71.1 shall dispense with the holding of the term of court during the year for which it is canceled, but it shall not affect the terms of court provided by law for the county during succeeding years. (1943, c. 348, s. 3.)

§ 7-72. Civil cases at criminal terms.—At criminal terms of court, motions in civil actions may be heard upon due notice, and trials in civil actions may be heard by consent of parties. Also motions for confirmation or rejection of referees' reports may be heard upon ten days notice and judgment entered on said reports. (Rev., s. 1507; 1901, c. 28; 1913, c. 196, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 23; 1915, cc. 68, 240; 1917, c. 13; 1931, c. 394; C. S. 1444.)

Local Modification.—Anson, Bladen, Cumberland, Durham, Gaston, Robeson: C. S. 1444.

Failure to Give Notice.—It is required by the provisions of this section that due notice be given of motions in civil action to be heard at a criminal term of court, and where the movant has failed to give the statutory notice of his motion, and the superior court has ordered a dismissal of the action, the judgment will be reversed on appeal. Dawkins v. Phillips, 185 N. C. 608, 116 S. E. 723.

The superior court has authority to hear motions in civil actions at criminal terms only after due notice to the adverse party, and therefore when it does not affirmatively appear that due notice was given of plaintiff's motion to be allowed to amend, the granting of the motion at a term of court for criminal cases only will be held for error as being presumptively outside the authority of the court. Beck

v. Lexington Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 216 N. C. 579, 5 S. E. (2d) 855.

§ 7-73. No criminal business at civil terms.—No grand juries shall be drawn for the terms of court designated by law as being for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and the solicitors shall not be required to attend upon any exclusively civil terms, unless there are cases on the civil docket in which they officially appear, and no criminal process shall be returnable to any term designated for the trial of civil actions alone. (Rev., s. 1508; 1901, c. 28, ss. 3, 7; 1913, c. 196; C. S. 1445.)

§ 7-74. Rotation of judges.—The judges of the superior court shall hold the courts of the several judicial districts successively, according to the following order and system: The judges resident in the Eastern Judicial Division shall hold the courts for the spring term, one thousand nine hundred and forty-four, as follows: The judge of the first district shall hold the courts of the second district; the judge of the second, the courts of the third; the judge of the third, the courts of the fourth; the judge of the fourth, the courts of the fifth; the judge of the fifth, the courts of the sixth; the judge of the sixth, the courts of the seventh; the judge of the seventh, the courts of the eighth; the judge of the eighth, the courts of the ninth; the judge of the ninth, the courts of the tenth; the judge of the tenth, the courts of the first; and the judges of the Eastern Judicial Division shall thereafter successively hold the courts of this division, subject to such exchanges of courts as are now provided by law.

The judges resident in the Western Judicial Division shall hold the courts for the spring term, one thousand nine hundred and forty-four, as follows: The judge of the eleventh district shall hold the courts of the twenty-first district; the judge of the twelfth, the courts of the eleventh; the judge of the thirteenth, the courts of the twelfth; the judge of the fourteenth, the courts of the fourteenth; the judge of the fifteenth, the courts of the fifteenth; the judge of the sixteenth, the courts of the sixteenth; the judge of the seventeenth, the courts of the seventeenth; the judge of the eighteenth, the courts of the eighteenth; the judge of the nineteenth, the courts of the nineteenth; the judge of the twentieth, the courts of the twentieth; the judge of the twenty-first, the courts of the thirteenth; and the judges resident in the Western Judicial Division shall thereafter successively hold the courts of this division, subject to such exchanges of courts as are now provided by law.

The judge riding any spring circuit shall hold all the courts which fall between January and June, both inclusive, and the judge riding any fall circuit shall hold all the courts which fall between July and December, both inclusive. (Rev., s. 1509; Code, s. 911; 1913, c. 196, ss. 4, 5, 6, 9; 1915, c. 15, ss. 3, 4; 1901, c. 28, ss. 4, 9; R. C., c. 31, s. 20; 1876-7, c. 27; 1879, c. 11; 1885, c. 180; 1937, c. 413, s. 1; Const. Art. 4, s. 11; C. S. 1446.)

Cross Reference.—As to residence and rotation of judges, see § 7-46.

Constitutional Provisions.—Sec. 22 of Art. IV of the Constitution, requiring the courts to be always open, must be construed in connection with sec. 11 of the same article, and does not apply to the terms of court and matters connected therewith. Delafield v. Mercer Construction Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

A Judge Is Essential.—There can be no session of a court without a judge; hence, when the judge leaves the bench for the term, although no notice is given of the final adjournment, or it is ordered to expire by limitation, the term ends and the judge cannot hear any matters out of the courthouse, except by consent, unless it is "chambers" business. Delafield v. Mercer Construction Co., 115 N. C. 21, 20 S. E. 167.

Injunction—Failure of Judge to Hear Order.—If the judge before whom the order is made returnable fails to hear it, any judge resident in or assigned to or holding by exchange the courts of some adjoining district may hear it upon giving ten days notice to the parties interested. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 591, 17 S. E. 519.

A judge assigned to a district is the judge thereof for six months, beginning either January or July first, and where a restraining order was made returnable before such judge at a place outside of the district, and after the courts were over, but before the end of the term of assignment to the district, such judge had jurisdiction to hear the application and grant the injunction until the hearing. Hamilton v. Icard, 112 N. C. 589, 17 S. E. 519.

Term Beginning in June.—When a term of court begins the last part of June, the judge of the superior court assigned to that district for the spring circuit has authority throughout the term of court, even though the term runs over into July, and the second week thereof starts during the month of July, since any term which begins in June "falls" between January and June within the meaning of the statute. West v. Woolworth Co., 214 N. C. 214, 198 S. E. 659.

§ 7-75. Exchange of courts.—By consent of the governor the judges may exchange the courts of a particular county or counties; and the judges resident in the western division and the judges resident in the eastern division may exchange courts or circuits with the consent of the governor; but no judge shall hold all the courts in one district oftener than once every four years. When a judge shall die or resign, his successor shall hold the courts of the district allotted to his predecessor. (Rev., s. 1511; Code, s. 913; R. C., c. 31, s. 20; 1879, c. 11; 1915, c. 15, s. 4; Const., Art. 4, s. 11; C. S. 1447.)

Under Prior Law.—Before the Act of 1879, assigning the judges to the different districts, an exchange of circuits with the consent of the Governor under the Act of 1877 was not in violation of section 11, Art. IV, of the amended Constitution. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

A partial exchange of circuits between two of the judges of the superior court, with the approval of the Governor, is legal. State v. Graham, 75 N. C. 256.

Power of Legislature.—Neither does this prohibitory clause restrict the Legislature from creating an extra term of the superior court of a county and designating the resident judge to hold the same. State v. Monroe, 80 N. C. 373, 374.

Governor's Power.—When the Constitution (and this section) has clothed the Governor with the power to require a judge to hold a court in a district other than that to which he is assigned by the general law, upon certain conditions as to the fulfillment, of which the Governor must of necessity be the judge, and the Governor issues a commission, the Supreme Court will assume that, in fact, the emergency had arisen which would sanction the issuing of the commission, and the same will be recognized as valid if the Governor could, for any reason, have lawfully issued it. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Governor's Authority a Command.—The Governor can require a judge of the superior court to hold a term of the court in a county not within his own district. And when the Governor so authorizes and empowers a judge to hold such court, expressing in the commission that it is done with his consent, and under that authority, the judge holds the court, as between the judge and the suitors in the court, the consent and authority granted by the Governor is equivalent to a command. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136.

De Facto Judge.—Where the Governor issues a commission to one of the judges of the superior courts, authorizing him to hold certain terms of the superior courts, and the judge undertakes to discharge the duties required of him, he is, so far as the public and third persons are concerned a de facto judge so long as he assumes to act in that capacity, and this is so although the commission was issued without authority of law. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Upon Death of Judge.—Upon the death of one of the judges of the superior courts, the Governor has the authority under this section to require one of the other judges to hold one or more specified terms of the courts in the district assigned to the deceased judge. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Prohibitory Clause Considered.—The inhibition contained in this section applies neither to the holding by any judge of the superior court of one or more regular terms of said court by exchange with some other judge, and with the sanction of the Governor, nor to the holding of special terms under section 7-78. State v. Turner, 119 N. C. 841, 25 S. E. 810.

Same—Applies to Series of Courts.—The provision that “no judge (of the superior courts) shall hold the courts in the same district oftener than once in four years,” is held to apply only to the series of courts forming a district over which a judge, in his riding, is to preside, and has no reference to the courts separately considered. State v. Speaks, 95 N. C. 689.

§ 7-76. Court adjourned by sheriff when judge not present.—If the judge of a superior court shall not be present to hold any term of a court at the time fixed therefor, he may order the sheriff to adjourn the court to any day certain during the term, and on failure to hear from the judge it shall be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term inclusive, unless he shall be sooner informed that the judge from any cause can not hold the term. If by sunset on the fourth day the judge shall not appear to hold the term, or if the sheriff shall be sooner advised that the judge cannot hold the term, it shall then be the duty of the sheriff to adjourn the court until the next term. (Rev., s. 1510; Code, s. 926; 1901, c. 269; 1887, c. 13; C. S. 1448.)

Presumption of Adjournment.—Where the record recited that a regular term of a superior court was opened and held Wednesday, instead of on Monday, of the week fixed by the statutes, it will be presumed that the sheriff had duly opened the court and adjourned it from day to day as provided in this section. State v. Weaver, 104 N. C. 758, 10 S. E. 486.

Duty of Defendant to Attend Special Term.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the superior court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the judge, is required to attend an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Implied Power of Judge to Order Adjournment.—The provision in this section that the sheriff should adjourn the court from day to day until the fourth day of the term, and then for the term, in the absence of the judge who was to have held it, under the law, is subject to the provision that this shall be done “unless the sheriff shall be sooner informed that the judge, from any cause cannot hold the term,” which implies the power of the judge to order an adjournment to a later day in the term. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 95 S. E. 1050.

Failure of Sheriff to Adjourn Court.—The provision in this section that where the judge fails to appear at any term until the fourth day thereof, inclusive, the sheriff shall adjourn the court until the next term, does not avoid the acts of any term where, upon the non-appearance of the judge, the sheriff did not in fact adjourn the court, and the judge afterwards actually appeared and held court. Norwood v. Thorp, 64 N. C. 682.

Where the sheriff has not continued a term of the superior court for the absence of the judge to hold the same, the judge may appear at any day within the term, and the proceedings thereafter will be valid. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 95 S. E. 1050.

All Matters Carried Over.—This section by operation of law carries all matters over to the next term, in the same plight and condition. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Newly Elected Judge.—Where a newly elected judge, as successor to one who was to have held the term of a court commencing on the 30th of December, continuing for several weeks, and designated by the statute as a Spring Term, has ordered the sheriff to adjourn the court from day to day, not exceeding four days, to enable him to take the oath of office and preside, and accordingly he qualifies and holds the court, those of his acts are valid, as an officer de jure. And if not, they are valid as those of an officer de facto, and an exception to the validity of a trial of an action on that ground is untenable. State v. Harden, 177 N. C. 580, 98 S. E. 782.

Adjournment from Day to Day.—Stated in State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

Art. 10. Special Terms of Court.

§ 7-77. Governor may designate judge.—The governor has the power to appoint any judge to hold special terms of the superior court in any county. (Rev., s. 1511; Code, s. 913; 1879, c. 11; Const., Art. 4, s. 11; C. S. 1449.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-71, 7-75, 7-78.

§ 7-78. Governor may order special terms.—Whenever it shall appear to the governor by the certificate of any judge, a majority of the board of county commissioners, or otherwise, that there is such an accumulation of criminal or civil actions in the superior court of any county as to require the holding of a special term for its dispatch, he shall issue an order to the judge of the judicial district in which such county is, or to any other judge of the superior court, requiring him to hold a special term of the superior court for such county, to begin on a certain Monday, not to interfere with any of the regular terms of the courts of his district, and hold for such time as he may designate, unless the business be earlier disposed of. If the dispatch of business requires it, the Governor may order a special term of court to be held by a regular, special, or emergency judge of the superior court in any county or district during the holding of a regular term in such county or district. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 100; C. S. 1450.)

Editor's Note.—The last sentence in this section was added by the 1924 amendment.

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Particular Class of Cases.—In appointing special terms the Governor is not bound by the certificate of the judge, so far as to confine such terms to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Regular Order Presumed.—When it appears from the record that a cause was tried at a special term of a superior court, it is presumed prima facie that an order for holding it was duly made, and that it was duly held. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 168.

The power of the governor to order special terms is not restricted to instances where there is accumulation of business, nor when such fact is recited or a reason in the commission is the power of the judge restricted to the trial of indictments found before that term. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21. See also note of State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247, under section 7-75.

No reason need be assigned by the Governor for calling special terms. State v. Watson, 75 N. C. 136, 139. He is the sole judge of the evidence necessitating such action. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

Must Appoint Judge.—When the governor has ordered such term as provided in this section to be held in any county of this State, it is the duty of the Governor to appoint one of the judges of the Superior Court to hold such term, and to issue to the judge appointed by him a commission authorizing him to hold such court. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450.

Plea Denying Existence of Court.—A plea of the defendant that the court was unlawfully called because the Governor was absent from the State when he attempted to order the holding of the court is properly overruled. State v. Hall, 142 N. C. 710, 55 S. E. 806.

Arraignment at Former Term.—It is not necessary that a prisoner should be arraigned and plead at a preceding regular term to the special term at which he is tried. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Applied in State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-79. Compensation of judge.—Any regular judge appointed to hold a special term of court shall attend and hold such court, and shall be paid as compensation therefor at the rate of one hundred dollars per week and his actual expenses incurred in attending such special term by the county in which the special term is held. But any such judge who is in a district having fewer than twenty regular weeks of court for the six months shall hold without extra compensation, if directed by the governor, enough extra weeks of court to make out twenty weeks for the six months. (Rev., s. 1512; Code, s. 914; 1913, c. 63; 1901, c. 167; R. C., c. 31, s. 22; 1868-9, c. 273; 1876-7, c. 44; 1909, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1451.)

Reduction of Salary.—The Constitution provides that the salaries of the judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office. The additional compensation of one hundred dollars given to a superior court judge, by this section, for services in holding a special term, is a part of his salary, hence, any statutory provision providing for a reduction thereof is void as being unconstitutional. Buxton v. Comm., 82 N. C. 92.

§ 7-80. Notice of special terms.—Whenever the governor shall call a special term of the superior court for any county, he shall notify the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county of such call, and such chairman shall take immediate steps to cause competent persons to be drawn and summoned as jurors for said term; and also to advertise the term at the courthouse and at one public place in every township of his county, or by publication of at least two weeks in some newspaper published in his county in lieu of such township advertisement. (Rev., s. 1513; Code, s. 915; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1452.)

Neither the certificate forwarded to the executive office nor the notice sent down to the county commissioners constitutes an essential part of the record of the term. State v. Lewis, 107 N. C. 967, 975, 12 S. E. 457, 13 S. E. 247.

The notice is directory and not mandatory under this section. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 413, 191 S. E. 18.

And Is for the Benefit of the Public.—The notice which is required to be published under this section is designed not for the purpose of warning the jury of the coming term. These persons receive separate notices or summons. Rather, it serves the purpose of notifying the public. It follows, then, that the failure to comply with this section goes to the set-up or organization of the court itself rather than of the jury. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 413, 191 S. E. 18.

Cited in State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 92, 179 S. E. 450.

§ 7-81. Certificate of attendance.—The clerk shall give the judge a certificate of attendance for the number of days occupied by the court, and the judge shall thereupon be entitled to receive from the commissioners of the county in which the court is held the compensation provided by law. (Rev., s. 1514; Code, s. 918; 1901, c. 167; 1868-9, c. 273; 1909, c. 85, s. 1; 1913, c. 63; C. S. 1453.)

§ 7-82. Grand juries at special terms.—There shall be no grand jury at any special term, unless the same shall be ordered by the governor. (Rev., s. 1515; Code, s. 921; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1454.)

In the absence of any order of the Governor that a grand jury be drawn at a special term, as provided by this section the indictment returned at said time is void. State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 94, 179 S. E. 450.

§ 7-83. Jurisdiction.—The special terms of the superior court held in pursuance of this chapter shall have all the jurisdiction and powers that regular terms of the superior court have. (Rev., s. 1516; Code, s. 916; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1455.)

Governor Not Bound to Confine Term to Particular Class of Cases.—In appointing a special term the governor is not bound by the certificate of the judge, so far as to confine such term to the trial of a particular class of cases. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Jurisdiction Not Dependent upon Arraignment at Former Term.—It is not necessary that a prisoner should be arraigned and plead at a preceding regular term to the special term at which he is tried. State v. Ketchey, 70 N. C. 621.

Removal of Cause.—A superior court at a special term has the same power to remove a cause to another county that it has at a regular term. Sparkman v. Daughtry, 35 N. C. 168.

Judgment by Default.—Whether at a regular or special term of the court, notice to the adverse party of a motion in term for judgment by default for want of an answer is not necessary. Reynolds v. Greensboro, etc., Co., 153 N. C. 342, 69 S. E. 248.

Court Held outside Judge's District.—A judge specially commissioned to hold court in a certain county outside his district has the same jurisdiction of matters transferred to that court, by consent, from another county, as the judge of the district comprising both counties. Henry v. Hilliard, 120 N. C. 479, 27 S. E. 130.

§ 7-84. Attendance and process at special terms.—All persons and witnesses summoned at the regular or special term, and officers or others who may be bound to attend the next regular term of the court, shall attend the special term, under the same rules, forfeitures and penalties as if the term were a regular term. (Rev., s. 1517; Code, s. 919; R. C., c. 31, s. 23; 1844, c. 10; 1848, c. 29; C. S. 1456.)

Duty of Defendant to Appear.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the superior court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the judge, is required to attend an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Applied in State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-85. Subpœnas returnable.—Subpœnas may issue returnable on any day of any special term. (Rev., s. 1518; Code, s. 920; 1868-9, c. 273; C. S. 1457.)

Art. 11. Special Regulations.

§ 7-86. Reading the minutes.—Every morning during the term the judge presiding shall order the reading of the minutes of the court for the day preceding, and the minutes of the last day shall be read immediately preceding the final adjournment of the term. (Rev., s. 1519, Code, s. 925; 1861, c. 3; C. S. 1458.)

§ 7-87. Officer attending juries sworn.—When any officer (except such as are appointed to attend the grand jury) shall be appointed or summoned to attend any superior court the clerk, at the time of the first going out of a jury on the trial of any civil or criminal action, shall administer an oath to such officer, faithfully to attend the several juries that may be put under his care during that term, that shall be charged in the trial of any civil or criminal action; and after such officer shall be once so sworn, he shall be considered to all intents and purposes as acting upon the same oath while attending every jury that he may be called to attend during that term. (Rev., s. 1527; Code, s. 927; R. C., c. 31, s. 36; 1801, c. 592; C. S. 1459.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of oath, see § 11-11.

§ 7-88. Quakers may wear hats in court.—The people called Quakers may wear their hats in courts of judicature, as elsewhere, according to the custom of their sect. (Rev., s. 1528; Code, s. 943; R. C., c. 31, s. 131; 1784, c. 209; C. S. 1460.)

§ 7-89. Court reporters.—Upon the request of a judge holding a superior court in any county in the state, the board of county commissioners in such county shall employ a competent stenographer to take down the proceedings of the court, at a compensation not to exceed five dollars per day and actual expenses, to be paid by the county in which the court is held: Provided, that the compensation of said stenographers in counties composing the sixteenth judicial district shall not exceed ten dollars per day.

The judge is authorized to tax a reasonable fee against the losing party in every action, civil and criminal, to be turned into the county treasury towards reimbursing the county, but no fee shall be taxed against a losing party suing in forma pauperis.

Every stenographer so employed shall make three copies of the proceedings in every case appealed to the supreme court, without extra charge, and shall furnish one copy to the attorneys on each side and file one copy with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which any such case is tried, and shall obey all orders of the judge relative to the time in which any such work shall be done: Provided, that the restrictions herein against an extra charge for making copies of the proceedings in cases appealed to the supreme court shall not apply to counties composing the sixteenth judicial district.

Every stenographer so employed shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, be duly sworn to well, truly, and correctly take down and transcribe the proceedings of the court, except the argument of counsel, and the charge of the court thus taken down and transcribed shall be held to be a compliance with the law requiring the judge to put his instructions to the jury in writing.

This section shall not apply to any county which has a court stenographer authorized by law: Provided, that the board of county commissioners of Mecklenburg county may, by resolution approving this section, bring said county within the provisions of the same: Provided further, that this section shall not apply to the following counties: Alleghany, Brunswick, Caldwell, Camden, Carteret, Caswell, Chatham, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Forsyth, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Hoke, New Hanover, Orange, Pender, Person, Transylvania, Union, Watauga. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 69; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 57; 1927, c. 268; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 49; 1933, c. 75, s. 2; C. S. 1461.)

Local Modification.—Alamance: Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 2; 1935, c. 474; Burke, Lincoln, Catawba: 1929, cc. 53, 260; Halifax: 1929, c. 45, s. 5; Johnston: 1943, c. 689; McDowell: 1933, c. 85; Northampton: 1931, c. 11, s. 5; Robeson: 1935, c. 9; Surry: 1927, c. 268, s. 2; Wayne: 1927, c. 156.

§ 7-90. Official court reporter for second judicial district.—The resident judge of the second judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for one or more or all of the counties in said district who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated by thirty days' written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof, shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I,, do solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the county of in the second judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties in which said reporter is to officiate, and recorded and indexed on the minute dockets of said courts.

If on account of sickness, or for other cause, said reporter is unable to attend upon any of the regular courts of said district, and for conflict and special terms, the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for each of said courts, the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period whose duty it shall be to report any and all courts in the county or counties designated in the appointment, which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by such reporter and such reporter pro tem: Provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said court reporter pro tem, as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this state as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rule governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1933, c. 335.)

§ 7-91. Official court reporter for fifth judicial district.—The resident judge of the fifth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for all of the counties in said district, who shall serve at the will of the resident judge, and whose appointment may be terminated at thirty days written notice thereof.

The appointment of such reporter shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I, do solemnly swear that I will to the best of my ability discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the counties of the fifth judicial district and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me, God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of each of the clerks of the superior courts of the counties of said district and recorded and indexed on the minute dockets of said courts.

If on account of sickness or for other cause said reporter is unable to attend upon any regular courts of said district, and for conflict of special terms the resident judge may appoint a reporter pro tem for said court or courts and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk. In lieu of appointing a reporter pro tem for said district the resident judge may, in his discretion, appoint a reporter pro tem for a stated period, whose duty it shall be to report any and all of the courts designated in the appointment which the regular court reporter is for any cause unable to report.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received by said reporter and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter or said reporter pro tem as the case may be, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any civil action in any of the courts in this state as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed in the same manner and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions: Provided, however, that such transcript of testimony shall be admissible in evidence only in the cause in which same was taken. (1935, c. 128.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1941, c. 137; Greene: 1943, c. 284.

§ 7-92. Official court reporter for sixth judicial district. — The resident judge of the sixth judicial district is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint an official court reporter for one or more, or all of the counties in said district, whose term of office shall be for a period of five years from and after qualification: Provided, however, that said judge shall have the right to remove said reporter for cause at any time.

The appointment of such reporter or reporters shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county in said district in which said reporter is to officiate, and the same, or a certified copy thereof shall be recorded by said clerk on the minute docket of his court.

Before entering upon the discharge of the duties of said office, said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath provided by law for public officers, and shall in addition thereto take and subscribe an oath in words substantially as follows: "I,, do furthermore solemnly swear that I will, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of the office of court reporter in and for the sixth judicial district, and will faithfully transcribe the testimony offered in said courts as the presiding judge may direct, or as I may be required to do under the law, so help me God." Said oath shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said reporter resides, and recorded and indexed by him on the minute docket of said court.

In case of sickness, or for other cause, if said reporter fails to attend upon any of the courts of said district, the presiding judge may appoint a reporter pro tem, for said court, and said appointment shall appear upon the minutes of said term, and said reporter shall take and subscribe the oath referred to above, which oath shall be filed with the clerk.

The resident judge shall likewise fix the compensation to be received, by said reporter, and said reporter pro tem, provided, however, such compensation shall not exceed ten dollars per day and actual expenses upon a weekly basis.

Said court reporter or reporter pro tem must, upon request of counsel when the presiding judge shall find as a fact that same is necessary and so order, deliver to the clerk of the superior court in which said cause is pending a transcript of the evidence in that cause within fifteen days from the adjournment of the term of court in which such evidence was taken.

The testimony taken and transcribed by said court reporter, and duly certified, either by said reporter or the presiding judge at the trial of the cause, may be offered in evidence in any of the courts of this State as the deposition of the witness whose testimony is so taken and transcribed, in the same manner, and under the same rules governing the introduction of depositions in civil actions. (1931, c. 154, s. 5; 1935, c. 420.)

SUBCHAPTER III. COMMISSION FOR IMPROVEMENT OF LAWS.

Art. 12. Commission for Improvement of Laws.

§ 7-93: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 746.

Editor's Note.—The duties of the commission created by the repealed section were similar to those theretofore conferred on the Judicial Conference by c. 244 of the Public Laws 1925, which was repealed by Public Laws 1931, c. 451. The Act of 1925 was amended by Public Laws 1927, c. 39.

The repealed sections of this article were codified from Public Laws 1931, c. 98.

§ 7-94: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 746.

Editor's Note.—The repealed section related to the members of the former commission. These consisted of the attorney-general, the chairman of each of the committees on judiciary of the senate and the house of representatives of the general assembly, two members appointed from the justices of the supreme court and the judges of the superior courts, two members who were active practitioners in the trial and appellate courts, three members who were appointed from the faculties of law in the various universities in the state, and two members, not attorneys at law, who were men of proven ability in other occupations.

§§ 7-95 to 7-100: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 746.

SUBCHAPTER IV. DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURTS.

Art. 13. In Counties with a City of at Least Twenty-five Thousand Inhabitants.

§ 7-101. Established by county or city or both.—The Board of County Commissioners in the various counties having a county seat with twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants of the State, or the governing authorities in cities of twenty-five thousand or more inhabitants shall have authority to establish a "Domestic Relations Court," which court may be a joint county and city court, as provided in section 7-102 or a court for the county or city as may be determined by the governing authorities. (1929, c. 343, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Durham, Edgecombe, Gaston, Guilford, Nash, New Hanover, Pitt, Wayne: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; Buncombe: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; 1941, c. 208, s. 2; Forsyth: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; 1931, c. 221, s. 2; Wake: 1929, c. 343, s. 10; Pub. Loc. 1941, c. 339.

Cross Reference.—As to establishment and jurisdiction of juvenile court, see § 110-21 et seq.

§ 7-102. Vote on establishment of court; any other city in county with required population may have such court.—In case the Board of County Commissioners and governing authorities of a particular city decide to establish a joint city and county Domestic Relations Court, they, voting as separate bodies, shall determine whether or not such Domestic Relations Court shall be established. If both bodies, shall vote for its establishment, each of them shall record the resolutions in their minutes and upon such consent by both boards, the court shall be established. In counties in which the said joint court is thus established by the Board of County Commissioners and the governing authorities of the county and city such establishment of the court shall not prevent any other city within the territorial limits of the county and having more than twenty-five thousand inhabitants, establishing its own court under section 7-101. (1929, c. 343, s. 2.)

§ 7-103. Jurisdiction.—Said Domestic Relations Court shall have, and is hereby vested with all the power, authority, and jurisdiction heretofore vested by law in the juvenile courts of North Carolina, and said power, authority, and jurisdiction being as fully vested in the Domestic Relations Court as if herein particularly set forth in detail; and in addition thereto the said Domestic Relations Court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction over the following classes of cases:

(a) All cases where any adult is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of any minor child, or where either spouse is charged with abandonment, non-support, or desertion of the other.

(b) All cases involving voluntary desertion of any juvenile by its mother.

(c) All cases involving the custody of juveniles, except where the case is tried in Superior Court as a part of any divorce proceeding.

(d) All cases where assault, or assault and battery, on a juvenile is charged against an adult, or where husband or wife is charged with assault, or assault and battery, upon the other.

(e) All cases in which an adult is charged with causing or being responsible for delinquency, dependency, or neglect of a juvenile.

(f) All bastardy cases within said county.

(g) All cases wherein any person is charged with receiving stolen goods from any juvenile, knowing them to be stolen.

(h) All cases involving violation of the North Carolina School Attendance Law as set forth in Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, chapter one hundred, and Public Laws of North Carolina, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, chapter one hundred and thirty-six; and in §§ 115-302 to 115-312, inclusive; and such other laws relative to school attendance as may hereafter be enacted.

(i) In either case where either parent institutes a divorce action when there is a minor child or children, it shall be the duty of the Clerk of the Superior Court to refer the case for investigation as to the child, or children, to the Domestic Relations Court, and the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court shall make his recommendations to the Judge of the Superior Court as to the disposition of the child, or children, for the consideration of the Judge of the Superior Court in disposing of the custody of the said child or children. (1929, c. 343, s. 3; 1941, c. 308; 1943, c. 470, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to establishment and jurisdiction of juvenile court, see § 110-21 et seq. For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out former subsection (g), relating to the adoption of juveniles, and relettered the subsequent subsections in alphabetical order.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 453.

The 1943 amendment substituted "minor child" for "juvenile" in line three of subsection (a).

Issuance of Process and Hearing Complaints.—There is no statutory provision referring specifically to issuance of process, but the statute indicates that the same persons who would issue process in other courts having jurisdiction of the offenses of which the domestic relations court is given jurisdiction, would be authorized to issue process for the domestic relations court, and hence hear complaints. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 113.

§ 7-104. Election of judge and term of office; vacancy appointments; judge to select clerk; juvenile Court officers may be declared officers of new Court.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Commissioners of any county and the governing board of any city, in which a joint Court of Domestic Relations is established, as provided in this article, or of the governing authorities of any city or county in which an independent Domestic Relations Court shall be established, as provided in this article, acting jointly, in the first instance, or independently, in the second instance, to elect a Judge of the Domestic Relations Court and to fix his salary and provide for the payment of same, his term of office to run from the time of his election to the second Monday in July in each odd numbered year and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. The regular term of office shall be for a term of two years and until his successor is elected and qualified. If any vacancy should occur in said office during the two years' term, for any cause, it shall be filled for the unexpired term in the same manner and by the same bodies as provided for the election of said Judge.

It shall be the duty of the Judge of the Domestic Relations Court to appoint a Clerk for said court, the salary of said Clerk to be fixed, provided for, and paid by the Board of County Commissioners of any of such counties and the governing board of any of such cities, acting jointly, or independently when a joint county and city court is not established.

And the officers of the Juvenile Court of any of such cities and of any of such counties, as now constituted by law may be declared to be officers of the Domestic Relations Court.

The probation officers of Domestic Relations Court and their method of appointment shall be the same as now provided for in § 110-31, for probation officers of the Juvenile Court. The salaries of said probation officers, and the necessary equipment for the proper maintenance and functioning of said court, shall be a charge upon such county and such city jointly, or upon the county or city, if it is an independent court.

Wherever a domestic relations court is established a substitute judge of said court may be appointed in the same manner as the regular judge of said court. Such substitute judge shall serve during the absence, illness or other temporary disability of the regular judge, and while serving shall have the same power and authority as the regular judge. Such substitute judge shall receive such compensation, on a per diem basis, as shall be determined and provided by the governing body or bodies appointing him. (1929, c. 343, s. 4; 1931, c. 221, s. 1; 1943, c. 470, s. 2.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: 1931, c. 221, s. 2; Mecklenburg: 1937, c. 268.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last paragraph of this section.

§ 7-105. Co-operation of all peace officers.—It shall be the duty of all officers of the counties and of the cities to assist the Domestic Relations Court in any and all ways in the line of their official duty as fully and to the same extent and in the same manner as they heretofore have been authorized and required to do in the case of all other courts. (1929, c. 343, s. 5.)

§ 7-106. Procedure, practice and punishments.—The procedure, practice, and punishments imposed in the Domestic Relations Court as established in this article shall be the same as now provided by law in courts now having original jurisdiction of the various offenses or causes enumerated in this article, and the Judge of the said Domestic Relations Court is hereby granted the power to prescribe such rules and fix such modes of procedure, as, in his discretion, will best effect the purposes for which said court is created.

Such court, when established, shall adopt an official seal, shall keep and preserve adequate dockets and other records of its proceedings, and shall be a court of record. The judge and clerk of said court shall have power to administer oaths and to issue warrants and other process in said court. (1929, c. 343, s. 6; 1943, c. 470, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second paragraph of this section.

§ 7-107. Right of appeal to Superior Court; trial de novo.—Wherever in this article criminal jurisdiction is conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court there shall be the same right of appeal from this court as from Recorders' Courts or other inferior criminal courts to the Superior Court, and the same rules and regulations of such appeals from inferior courts shall apply to appeals from this court, and in the Superior Court the trial shall be de novo. This provision shall apply also to the trials in bastardy cases, and cases involving the custody of juveniles. (1929, c. 343, s. 7; 1943, c. 470, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment made this section applicable to cases involving the custody of juveniles.

§ 7-108. Offenses before Court to be petty misdemeanors; demand for jury trial; appearance bonds.—All the offenses for the trial of which the Domestic Relations Court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors punishable as now prescribed by law. On the trial before such Domestic Relations Court, if a jury trial is demanded, the cause shall be therewith transferred for trial to some criminal term of the Superior Court of the counties in which the Domestic Relations Court is situated. The defendant or defendants shall be held under an adequate bond to secure his or their attendance at the criminal term of the Superior Court to which the record is transferred. If in the exercise of the jurisdiction hereinbefore conferred upon the Domestic Relations Court, it should appear that a felony has been committed, said court shall have jurisdiction and authority upon proper investigation to bind over the alleged felon in all cases in which probable cause is found, to the Superior Court of the county, under proper bond and recognizances. (1929, c. 343, s. 8.)

§ 7-109. Pending cases in Juvenile Court transferred to new Court.—All causes pending in the Juvenile Court of the county or city at the time of the organization of any Domestic Relations Court within said county or city, shall be transferred to the Domestic Relations Court for final adjudication. (1929, c. 343, s. 9.)

§ 7-110. Cases transferred from Superior Court.—Upon the establishment of a domestic relations court as authorized in this article, the clerk of the superior court shall immediately transfer from the superior court to such domestic relations court all actions pending in the superior court of which the domestic relations court has jurisdiction as in this article conferred, whether such actions are untried or tried and retained for judgment, sentence or further orders, and the domestic relations court shall immediately have jurisdiction of such actions and shall thereafter try, enter further orders or dispose of such actions in the same manner and to the same extent as if said actions had been initiated in said domestic relations court. (1941, c. 208, s. 1.)

§ 7-111. Discontinuance of Court.—After the establishment of any domestic relations court by any county commissioners or by the governing authorities of a particular city, or the establishment of a joint county-city court of domestic relations, such board, governing authorities, or both, may, by resolution or resolutions, discontinue any such court. (1941, c. 208, s. 2½.)

SUBCHAPTER V. JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

Art. 14. Election and Qualification.

§ 7-112. Constitution, article seven, abrogated; exceptions.—All the provisions of article seven of the constitution inconsistent with this chapter, except those contained in sections seven and twelve are hereby abrogated, and the provisions of this article substituted in their place; subject, however, to the power of the general assembly to alter, amend or abrogate the provisions of this article, and to substitute others in their stead, as provided in section thirteen of article seven of the constitution. (Rev., s. 1408; Code, s. 818; 1876-7, c. 141, s. 7; C. S. 1462.)

§ 7-113. Election and number of justices.—At every general election held for members of the general assembly there shall be elected in each township three justices of the peace, and for each township in which any city or incorporated town is situated, one justice of the peace for every one thousand inhabitants in such city or town, who shall hold office for a term of two years from and after the first Monday in December next after their election. (Rev., s. 1409; Code, s. 819; 1876-7, c. 141; 1895, c. 157; 1905, cc. 35, 44, 148; 1907, c. 225; 1909, cc. 177, 716; C. S. 1463.)

Local Modification.—Bertie, Caswell, Chowan, Franklin: C. S. 1464; Gaston: 1931, c. 256; Granville: C. S. 1464; New Hanover (City of Wilmington): C. S. 1464; Vance: C. S. 1466; Wake: 1937, c. 113; Warren: C. S. 1465.

Number Elected.—Under the legislation of 1895, since continued, each township is entitled to elect three justices of the peace on one ballot, and no more, unless the township shall contain a city or incorporated town with as much as 1,000 inhabitants, in that case one additional justice for every 1,000 inhabitants. Mitchell v. Alley, 126 N. C. 84, 35 S. E. 231. A ticket containing more names than the elector has a right to vote for, is to be void, and not counted. Id.

§ 7-114. Oath of office; vacancies filled.—Every person elected or appointed a justice of the peace, before his term of office begins or within thirty days thereafter, shall take and subscribe the prescribed oaths of office before the clerk of the superior court, who shall file the same. All elections of justices of the peace by the general assembly or by the people shall be void unless the persons so elected shall qualify as herein directed. All original vacancies in the offices of justice of the peace occurring before qualification as provided in this section shall be filled for the term by the governor. All other vacancies shall be filled by the clerk of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1411; Code, s. 821; 1901, c. 37; C. S. 1467.)

Cross Reference.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

Section Constitutional.—This section is not unconstitutional. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Duty of Clerk.—It is the duty of the clerk to administer the oath to the justices elected or appointed. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Appointed by Clerk.—The authority of the clerks of the superior courts to appoint justices of the peace is confined to vacancies caused by death, resignation or other causes during the term. Gilmer v. Holton, 98 N. C. 26, 3 S. E. 812.

Misbehavior in Office.—If one elected to an office takes possession of the same and engages in the exercise of its duties and misbehaves by taking unlawful and extortionate fees, he will be liable for such misbehavior, and may be indicted therefor, notwithstanding the fact he had failed to take the oath of office. State v. Cansler, 75 N. C. 442.

§ 7-115. Governor may appoint justices.—The governor may, from time to time, at his discretion, appoint one or more fit persons in every county to act as justices of the peace, who shall hold their office for four years from and after the date of their appointment; and, on exhibiting their commission to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which they are to act, shall be duly qualified by taking before said clerk an oath of office and the oaths prescribed for other officers. The governor shall issue to each justice of the peace so appointed a commission, a certificate of which shall be deposited with the clerk of the court and filed among the records, and he shall note on his minutes the qualifications of the justice of the peace.

Any commission so issued by the Governor or his predecessor shall be revokable by him in his discretion upon complaint being made against such justice of the peace and when he shall be satisfied that the interest of the public will be best served by the revocation of said commission.

Whenever the Governor shall have revoked the commission of any justice of the peace appointed by him, or his predecessor in office, it shall be his duty to file with the clerk of the court in the county of such justice of the peace a copy of said order and mail a copy of same to said justice of the peace.

Any person holding himself out to the public as a justice of the peace, or any person attempting to act in such capacity after his commission shall have been revoked by the Governor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors. (1917, c. 40; 1927, c. 116; C. S. 1468.)

§ 7-116. Forfeiture of office.—When any justice of the peace removes out of his township and does not return therein for the space of six months, he thereby forfeits and loses his office; and any such justice presuming to act thereafter, contrary to this section, unless reelected or reappointed, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 1412, 3589; Code, s. 822; C. S. 1469.)

§ 7-117. Resignation.—Justices of the peace wishing to resign must deliver their letters of resignation to the clerk of the superior court, who shall file the same. (Rev., s. 1413; Code, s. 823; C. S. 1470.)

§ 7-118. Removal and disqualification for crime.—Upon the conviction of any justice of the peace of an infamous crime, or of corruption and malpractice in office, he shall be removed from office, and he shall be disqualified from holding or enjoying any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 1414; Code, s. 826; C. S. 1471.)

Criminal Liability.—The functions of a justice of the peace are ministerial, in preserving the peace, hearing charges against offenders and issuing warrants thereon, examining the parties and bailing or committing them for trial, and in the exercise of such functions, if he act corruptly, oppressively or from any other bad motive, he is liable to indictment. State v. Sneed, 84 N. C. 817.

§ 7-119. Justice may hold other office.—Any justice of the peace may accept a civil office or appointment of trust or profit, under the authority of the United States, the duties of which confine him to the county where he is resident. (Rev., s. 1415; Code, s. 825; Const., Art. 14, s. 7; C. S. 1472.)

Cross Reference.—See § 128-1; Const., Art. XIV, s. 7, and annotations thereto.

Justice of Peace May Also Be Recorder of City Court.—Under Const. Art. 14, sec. 7, excepting a justice of the peace from the inhibition against one holding two offices of trust or profit, one may be both a justice of the peace and the recorder of a city recorder's court. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 656.

§ 7-120. Validation of official acts of certain justices of the peace.—Each and all of the official acts of justices of the peace appointed by chapter three hundred twenty-one, Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred thirty-one, performed after the expiration of their terms on April first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven, and before March twenty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, including all judgments rendered, probates taken, marriages performed, and any and all other acts whatsoever, are hereby in all respects validated, ratified and confirmed. (1939, c. 268.)

Art. 15. Jurisdiction.

§ 7-121. Jurisdiction in actions on contract.—Justices of the peace shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all civil actions founded on contract, except—

1. Wherein the sum demanded, exclusive of interest, exceeds two hundred dollars.

2. Wherein the title to real estate is in controversy. (Rev., s. 1419; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 834; C. S. 1473.)

See §§ 7-63, 7-124 and notes. As to petition of insolvent debtor before justice of peace for discharge from imprisonment, see §§ 23-25 to 23-27.

I. ACTIONS EX CONTRACTU.

In General.—Every action to recover a sum of money due by contract, not in excess of two hundred dollars, etc., is required by this section to be originally brought in the court of a justice of the peace, unless contrary to some other legislative enactment. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Test of jurisdiction, see notes to section 7-63, analysis line "Essentials" II, B.

Distribution of Jurisdiction Question of Procedure.—The interpretation of the Constitution and statutes as to the distribution of jurisdiction among the superior and inferior courts, and courts of the justices of the peace, involves no rule of property, but only of procedure. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—Although by this section justices of the peace are given "exclusive" original jurisdiction in certain civil actions, other inferior courts are, by statute, given jurisdiction in civil actions concurrent with that of the justices of peace. For example, see Article 28 of this Chapter and §§ 7-279, 7-344, and 7-372.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court.—The superior court has no original jurisdiction of a legal cause of action, founded on contract, when in no event can the plaintiff recover as much as $200, proper jurisdiction being in the court of a justice of the peace. Howard v. Mutual, etc., Life Ins. Ass'n, 125 N. C. 49, 34 S. E. 199; Sloan v. Carolina Cent. R. Co., 126 N. C. 487, 36 S. E. 21. See § 7-63 and notes.

Allegations of a complaint are construed liberally in the pleader's favor with a view to substantial justice between the parties, and where the question of jurisdiction between the superior court and that of a justice of the peace arises, depending upon the amount involved, and whether the action is ex contractu or ex delicto, the courts are disposed to construe the complaint in favor of the jurisdiction chosen. Mitchem v. Pasour, 173 N. C. 487, 92 S. E. 322.

Judgment a Contract.—A judgment is a contract within the meaning of this section. Moore v. Nowell, 94 N. C. 268.

Whether Action in Tort or on Contract.—To determine whether an action is brought in tort or on contract the complaint alone will be considered, and where the complaint alleges the wrongful demand of one hundred dollars by the defendant of the plaintiff's wife, as money due to the defendant under a mistake in the payment of a check, and alleges that the money was paid the defendant by plaintiff's wife upon insistent demand, the complaint alleges an action in tort within the original jurisdiction of the superior court under const. art. 4, § 27, and sections 7-121 and 7-122, and not an action on contract within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace under this section. Roebuck v. Short, 196 N. C. 61, 144 S. E. 515.

Counterclaims in excess of the jurisdictional amount of a justice's court may not be recovered in that court, and are allowed to be pleaded only for the purposes of set-off and recoupment as a bar to the plaintiff's demand. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

In an action before a justice of the peace for a sum due by note and within his jurisdiction, it was held, that a counterclaim consisting of an alleged indebtedness arising out of unadjusted partnership dealings between the parties, could not be allowed; the jurisdiction to settle such matters being in a court of equity. Love v. Rhyne, 86 N. C. 576.

Misjoinder of Causes.—Where two causes are set out and jurisdiction can be attached on only one, the justice of the peace may try that one, rejecting the other. Railroad v. Hardware Co., 135 N. C. 73, 47 S. E. 234.

Breach of Warranty.—The complaint alleged in substance that plaintiff purchased a mare from defendant, that the defendant warranted the mare to be sound, that in fact the mare had defective eyesight, which was known to defendant, that plaintiff relied upon the representation that the mare was sound, and that plaintiff was damaged in the sum of $125.00, and, as a second cause of action, alleged that as a result of the said wrongful act of defendant, plaintiff had been obliged to feed a worthless mare to his damage in the sum of $100.00. The complaint fails to state a cause of action for fraud in that it fails to allege scienter, but states a cause of action for breach of warranty in the sum of $125.00, which is within the exclusive original jurisdiction of a justice of the peace, the sum claimed for feeding the mare not being within the rule for the determination of the jurisdictional amount, and therefore defendant's demurrer to the action instituted in the superior court was properly sustained. Hill v. Snider, 217 N. C. 437, 8 S. E. (2d) 202.

Waiver of Tort.—Where property is tortiously taken and sold, the owner may waive the tort and maintain an action to recover the proceeds. Brittain v. Payne, 118 N. C. 989, 24 S. E. 711, and cases cited. See also note to section 7-63. See note of Winslow v. Weiss, 66 N. C. 432, under section 7-63, analysis line "In General," II, B, 1, (a).

Same—Construction.—When the plaintiff can bring his action either in tort or upon contract, the courts, in favor of jurisdiction, will sustain the election of the plaintiff. White v. Eley, 145 N. C. 36, 58 S. E. 437.

To sustain jurisdiction over the subject-matter of an action, the court will liberally construe the pleadings in the pleader's favor, and where the question is whether a justice of the peace had jurisdiction in contract, and the movent contends the case was ex delicto, and that it was beyond the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, the court will sustain its jurisdiction if it reasonably appears from the pleadings that it was tried as ex contractu in the justice's court. Furniture Co. v. Clark, 191 N. C. 369, 131 S. E. 731.

Indivisible Cause.—An indivisible cause of action can not be split in order that separate suits may be brought for the various parts before a justice of the peace. Norvell v. Mecke, 127 N. C. 401, 37 S. E. 452.

Where a single contract is made for furnishing certain specified articles, at prices fixed for each, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to "split up" the account and recover upon each item. Jarrett v. Self, 90 N. C. 478.

Same—Different Contracts.—Where the items of an account are incurred under different contracts an action may be brought on each item before a justice of the peace, the separate items being less than $200. Copeland v. Wire-less Tel. Co., 136 N. C. 11, 48 S. E. 501.

A creditor whose account consists of several items, either for goods sold or labor done at different times, each of which is for less than $200, although the aggregate of the account exceeds $200, may sue before a justice for any number of such items not exceeding $200. Boyle v. Robbins, 71 N. C. 130.

Want of Jurisdiction.—The court will ex mero motu take notice of the want of jurisdiction. Hannah v. Richmond, etc., R. R., 87 N. C. 351.

Objection on Appeal.—When the pleadings before a justice of the peace, in an action on contract, did not show a want of jurisdiction and no objection was made thereto, such objection cannot be made on appeal to the superior court. Cromer Bros. v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Amount Demanded Controlling.—The justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action upon contract where the summons used as a complaint demands, in good faith, a recovery of $200 or less, though a greater sum could have been demanded. Shoe Co. v. Wiseman, 174 N. C. 716, 94 S. E. 452; Knight v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 84, 42 S. E. 537. The aggregate sum demanded in good faith is the test of the jurisdiction of the court, though this aggregate is made up of several causes of action. Martin v. Goode, 111 N. C. 288, 16 S. E. 232. For treatment of the amount as fixing jurisdiction and the good faith, etc., required, see notes under section 7-63, analysis line, "Essentials," II, B.

In an action on contract it is the sum demanded in the summons or complaint that fixes the jurisdiction. Cromer Bros. v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Principal and Interest.—The Constitution and this section limit the jurisdiction of justices of the peace in actions upon contract, to where the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, exclusive of interest; and a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction in an action to recover the balance of the principal due upon a note and interest on the original amount of the note when the original amount thereof exceeded the sum named. Riddle v. Bridgewater Milling Co., 150 N. C. 689, 64 S. E. 782.

Equitable Causes.—A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to administer or enforce an equitable cause of action. Wilson v. Life Ins. Co., 155 N. C. 173, 71 S. E. 79.

A court of a justice of the peace cannot affirmatively administer an equity, and may only pass thereon as a matter of defense. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 14.

Same—Appeal.—When the plaintiff seeks only equitable relief in a court of a justice of the peace, no jurisdiction can be acquired over the subject matter by the superior court on appeal, the proceedings being void ab initio. Wilson v. Life Ins. Co., 155 N. C. 173, 71 S. E. 79.

Applied in Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 31, 169 S. E. 828.

II. TITLE TO LAND IN CONTROVERSY.

See section 7-124 and sections following and notes thereto.

Jurisdiction.—Justices of the peace can take no jurisdiction over a cause in which title to land is in controversy. Brown v. Southerland, 142 N. C. 225, 55 S. E. 108. They are prohibited by the Constitution as well as impliedly by this section. Forsythe v. Bullock, 74 N. C. 135, 137.

Merely allegation of the defendant that title is in controversy will not oust justices' jurisdiction. The matter must appear from the evidence or admission of the parties. Jerome v. Setzer, 175 N. C. 391, 95 S. E. 616.

Title Must Be between Parties to Action.—The question of title, which arrests further proceedings before the justice must be one between the original parties to the action; and jurisdiction once acquired can not be divested by the intervention of a stranger to the suit, asserting a paramount title in himself. Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

Action Dismissed Judgment for Costs.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 260, 43 S. E. 799; Edwards v. Cowper, 99 N. C. 421, 6 S. E. 792, 793.

Notes Given for Purchase Price of Land.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action to recover a balance due on a note given for the purchase money of land. McPeters v. English, 141 N. C. 491, 54 S. E. 417.

Notes on Contract to Convey Land.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action on a note given for a contract to convey land, the only defense being payment. Patterson v. Freeman, 132 N. C. 357, 43 S. E. 904.

Recovery of Portion Crop as Rent.—In an action to recover one-third of the crops due as rent under an alleged contract of lease, which the jury found to exist, a justice of the peace had jurisdiction, as the title to land was not involved. Durant v. Taylor, 89 N. C. 351.

Where, under a will devising all of testator's land to his wife, remainder to his nephew (the plaintiff) in fee, except fifty acres in some suitable place and on certain conditions to defendant, and defendant had settled on fifty acres, claiming title thereto as being in a suitable place and conditions having been performed, an action by plaintiff for possession involves the title to land and is not within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. Wright v. Harris, 116 N. C. 460, 21 S. E. 693.

Action between Mortgagor and Mortgagee.—In an action to to recover land the jurisdiction of the justice is excluded where the relation is that of mortgagor and mortgagee or vendor and vendee. Hughes v. Mason, 84 N. C. 473.

Foreclosure of Mortgage.—Because of the equity growing out of the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee when the former seeks to have the mortgaged premises foreclosed for the nonpayment of the debt, the superior court has jurisdiction, when the amount secured is for a less sum than two hundred dollars. Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Burger, 181 N. C. 241, 107 S. E. 141.

Landlord and Tenant Act.—A court of a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction under the landlord and tenant act to try title to land. And where it appears that title is involved or that there are equities involved as to the land a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction. Parker v. Allen, 84 N. C. 466.

That the vendee, in a contract for the sale of land, remained silent, when the contract was mutilated under the direction of the vendor, is not sufficient evidence of a change of the relations from vendor and vendee to landlord and tenant, to give a justice of the peace jurisdiction of an action to summarily eject the defendant vendee. Boone v. Drake, 109 N. C. 79, 13 S. E. 724.

In an action by a purchaser of land with warranty to recover a sum of money paid by him to free the land from a lien, the deed will be introduced to prove the covenants, the title to realty will be involved, and a justice would not have jurisdiction. Hann v. Fletcher, 189 N. C. 729, 128 S. E. 328.

Rule of Estoppel Gives Justice Jurisdiction.—The rule which estops a tenant to deny his landlord's title precludes all controversy as to the title in summary proceedings by the landlord, and thus gives a justice of the peace jurisdiction. Credle v. Gibbs, 65 N. C. 192; Davis v. Davis, 83 N. C. 71.

In a proceeding before a justice of the peace under the Landlord and Tenant Act, a defendant who does not deny having entered as the tenant of the plaintiff is estopped from setting up a superior title existing at the date of the lease or subsequently acquired from a third person. Heyer v. Beatty, 76 N. C. 28.

Penalty.—The title to land is not in controversy in a proceeding to recover a penalty prescribed by a town charter for obstructing a street. Henderson v. Davis, 106 N. C. 88, 11 S. E. 573.

§ 7-122. Jurisdiction in actions not on contract.

—Justices of the peace shall have concurrent jurisdiction of civil actions not founded on contract, wherein the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. (Rev., s. 1420; Const., Art. 4, s. 27; Code, s. 887; C. S. 1474.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-63, 7-121 and notes.

Editor's Note.—Section 7-63 sets out the limits wherein the superior court exercises its original jurisdiction. This section gives the justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction over certain classes of cases. These cases are also cognizable in the superior court since the jurisdiction herein given to the justices of the peace is not exclusive, and hence they fall within what may be termed the residuary clause contained in section 7-63.

Generally.—In actions ex contractu justices of the peace have jurisdiction, when the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, but in actions ex delicto, their jurisdiction is limited to cases wherein the value of the property does not exceed fifty dollars. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Justices of the peace have concurrent jurisdiction with the superior courts of actions for torts where the value of the property in controversy does not exceed fifty dollars. Harvey v. Hambright, 98 N. C. 446, 4 S. E. 187.

It is said in Duckworth v. Mull, 143 N. C. 461, 55 S. E. 850, "We think that the decisions of this court, already made, lead necessarily to the conclusion that the clause of this section comprehends, and was intended to comprehend, all actions ex delicto; that the term, 'property in controversy,' here used as determinative of jurisdiction, by correct interpretation, means the value of the injury complained of and involved in the litigation; and where a plaintiff, in good faith, states or limits his demand in actions of this character at fifty dollars or less, the justice, as provided by the statute, has jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court to hear and determine the matter."

Damages.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action for damages not exceeding fifty dollars, and for injury to personal property, though such property be of greater value than fifty dollars. Malloy v. City, 122 N. C. 480, 29 S. E. 880.

Jurisdiction Essential.—A judgment rendered by a justice of the peace in an action in which he has no jurisdiction is void. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43.

Remittance of Excess Will Not Give Jurisdiction.—Where, in an action of claim and delivery, it appears that the value of the property exceeds fifty dollars, it at least ousts the jurisdiction of the justice, and the plaintiff cannot confer jurisdiction by a remitter. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43. See section 7-63, analysis line II, B, 1, b.

Priority of Proceedings as Determining Jurisdiction.—Where two or more courts have equal and concurrent jurisdiction of a case, that court in which suit is first brought acquires jurisdiction of it, which excludes the jurisdiction of the other courts. Childs v. Martin, 69 N. C. 126.

Irregular Proceedings.—Where jurisdiction is concurrent, and a case is carried by appeal to the superior court, and the appellant files an answer under leave of the court and goes to trial without objection, the court will have cognizance of the matter by virtue of its original jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action, and by the consent the parties thus manifested, however irregular the proceedings may have been in the justice's court. Boing v. Raleigh & Gaston R. Co., 87 N. C. 360.

Waiver of Court on Appeal.—Plaintiff brought suit in the court of a justice of the peace claiming a debt of fifty dollars, and also possession of a horse and wagon, under a certain mortgage. On appeal from the justice's judgment to the superior court plaintiff offered to remit his claim for the personal property and declare only for the debt. It was held, that he had a right to take such a course in his discretion, and that his honor erred in denying him that privilege. Jones v. Palmer, 83 N. C. 303.

Affidavit of Justice Not Conclusive.—Where the record of the justice of the peace has been lost, and only the judgment showing a recovery of the jurisdictional amount ex contractu appears in the trial on appeal, upon defendant's motion to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, an affidavit of the justice to the effect that the action was in tort is not conclusive. Furniture Co. v. Clark, 191 N. C. 369, 131 S. E. 731.

Excess Remitted.—Where the amount recovered exceeds $200, the justice has jurisdiction if the plaintiff remits the excess. Cromer v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836. Brook v. Scott, 159 N. C. 513, 75 S. E. 724.

It is only when the principal sum demanded exceeds $200, that the plaintiff is required to remit the excess above that amount in order to give the justice jurisdiction. Brantley v. Finch, 97 N. C. 91, 1 S. E. 535.

Effect of Remittitur Where Jurisdiction Entirely Derivative.—Where a counterclaim, filed to an action brought before a justice, amounted to more than $200.00, the want of jurisdiction as provided by this section could not be cured by entering a remittitur for the excess in the Superior Court, as the jurisdiction of the Superior Court in appeals from justices of the peace is entirely derivative, and if the justice had no jurisdiction in the action, as it was before him, the Superior Court can derive none by amendment. Perry v. Pulley, 206 N. C. 701, 175 S. E. 89.

Failure to Use Statutory Formula.—Objection to a failure to use the formula provided in this section should be made in the justice's court. Cromer v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836.

Waiver.—The plaintiff having remitted the amount of damages arising on contract in excess of $200, so as to confer jurisdiction on the court of a justice of the peace, and having taken a voluntary nonsuit in the superior court on defendant's appeal, is deemed to have waived the excess so remitted in his action on the same contract brought in the superior court, and his recovery is limited to the amount sued for in the justice's court. Brook v. Scott, 159 N. C. 513, 75 S. E. 724.

Remittance of Counterclaim on Appeal.—The jurisdiction of the superior court in appeals from justices of the peace is entirely derivative, and if the justice had no jurisdiction in the action, as it was before him, the superior court can derive none by amendment. So, where a counterclaim, filed to an action brought before a justice, amounted to more than $200, the want of jurisdiction could not be cured by entering a remittitur for the excess in the superior court. Ijames v. McClamroch, 92 N. C. 362.

Justice Has Jurisdiction to Recover Salary Which Failed to Equal Amount Stipulated in the "President's Re-employment Agreement."—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action on contract to recover the amount by which the salary paid plaintiff failed to equal the amount stipulated in the "President's Re-employment Agreement," voluntarily signed by defendant employer, when the amount demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars. James v. Sartin Dry Cleaning Co., 208 N. C. 412, 181 S. E. 341.

§ 7-124. Title to real estate in controversy as a defense.—In every action brought in a court of a justice of the peace, where the title to real estate comes in controversy, the defendant may, either with or without other matter of defense, set forth, in his answer, any matter showing that such title will come in question. Such answer shall be in writing, signed by the defendant or his attorney, and delivered to the justice. (Rev., s. 1422; Code, s. 836; C. S. 1476.)

Cross Reference.—See § 7-121 and notes.

Answer in Writing Necessary.—The title to real estate cannot be drawn into controversy by the defendant on a trial in a justice's court except by delivering to the justice an answer in writing that such title will come in question. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87.

The evidence at the trial must tend to show that the title is in issue. Pasterfield v. Sawyer, 132 N. C. 258, 43 S. E. 799. And the trial will proceed until it is apparent that this is true. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Mere allegation of defendant: that title is in controversy, see note of Jerome v. Setzer, 175 N. C. 391, 95 S. E. 616, under section 7-121 analysis line II.

Judgment in Action in Which Defenses Should Have Been Set Up as Bar to Subsequent Action Thereon.—A possessory action in ejectment in the court of a justice of the peace terminates in that court upon an issue of title to lands or of equitable rights therein being raised by the defendant, and in the Superior Court the defendant is required to set up his equities, if any he have, and where he fails to do so an independent action by him thereon is barred by the prior judgment, it being assumed that the court rendering the judgment had jurisdiction of the parties and the subject-matter of the action. Ogburn v. Booker, 197 N. C. 687, 150 S. E. 330.

§ 7-125. Title to real estate in controversy, action dismissed.—If it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, the justice shall dismiss the action and render judgment against the plaintiff for costs. (Rev., s. 1423; Code, s. 837; C. S. 1477.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-121, 7-124 and notes.

"Real Estate" Defined.—The words "real estate" in this section mean freehold estate. Foster v. Penry, 77 N. C. 160, 162.

Allegation in Writing Not Required.—It is not necessary that an allegation in writing that the title to real estate is in controversy be made. Edwards v. Cowper, 99 N. C. 421, 423, 6 S. E. 792. But the trial will proceed until it is apparent from the evidence that the question of title is involved. McDonald v. Ingram, 124 N. C. 272, 32 S. E. 677.

Duty of Justice to Dismiss Action.—When it appears on the trial that the title to real estate is in controversy, it is the duty of the justice to dismiss the action. Hudson v. Hodge, 139 N. C. 308, 51 S. E. 955.

Stated in Nesbitt v. Turrentine, 83 N. C. 536, 537; Wright v. Harris, 116 N. C. 460, 21 S. E. 693.

§ 7-126. Another action in Superior Court.—When an action, before a justice, is dismissed upon answer, and proof by the defendant, that the title to real estate is in controversy in the case, the plaintiff may prosecute an action for the same cause in the superior court, and the defendant shall not be admitted in that court to deny the jurisdiction by an answer contradicting his answer in the justice's court. (Rev., s. 1424; Code, s. 838; C. S. 1478.)

Purpose of Section.—The last clause of this section was passed to prevent the hardship, which would necessarily arise if a defendant could have an action dismissed by a magistrate on his plea that title to real estate is in question, and then, when suit is brought by the same plaintiff for the same cause of action in the superior court, he should be allowed to plead that title to the land did not come in controversy, and have the cause dismissed there. To prevent such absurdity this statute was passed, so that if, on defendant's motion, it is adjudged in the magistrate's court that title to real estate will come in controversy, such finding shall be conclusive between same parties in the new action. Peck v. Culberson, 104 N. C. 425, 10 S. E. 511.

Dismissal upon Answer Essential.—Recourse may not be had to the provisions of this section where it does not appear that the action before the justice was dismissed upon answer and proof by defendant that the title to real estate was in controversy. Brown v. Southerland, 142 N. C. 225, 55 S. E. 108. See also, note of Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87, under section 7-124.

Where, however, there is a failure to file the written answer with the justice, the defendant is not estopped from filing such answer in the superior court and denying jurisdiction. Evans v. Williamson, 79 N. C. 87.

A justice of the peace may issue a summons or other process anywhere in his county, but he shall not be compelled to try a cause out of the township for which he was elected or appointed. (Rev., s. 1425; Code, s. 824; C. S. 1479.)

Issuance of Process When Justice Out of Township.—A justice may issue process while he is anywhere in his county, provided he hears the matter in his own township. Dictum in Davis v. Sanderlin, 119 N. C. 84, 87, 25 S. E. 815.

§ 7-128. Punishment for contempt in certain cases.—If any person shall profanely swear or curse in the hearing of a justice of the peace, holding court, the justice may commit him for contempt, or fine him not exceeding five dollars. (Rev., s. 1426; Code, s. 848; R. C. c. 115; 1741, c. 30; C. S. 1480.)

Cross References.—As to courts and officers empowered to punish for contempt, see § 5-6. As to acts punishable as for contempt, see § 5-8. As to penalty of witness refusing to testify in action against railroad before a justice of peace, see § 7-146.

§ 7-129. Jurisdiction in criminal actions.—Justices of the peace have exclusive original jurisdiction of all assaults, assaults and batteries, and affrays, where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damage is done, and of all criminal matters arising within their counties, where the punishment prescribed by law does not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days: Provided, that justices of the peace shall have no jurisdiction over assaults with intent to kill, or assaults with intent to commit rape, except as committing magistrates: Provided further, that nothing in this section shall prevent the superior or criminal courts from finally hearing and determining such affrays as shall be committed within one mile of the place where and during the time such court is being held; nor shall this section be construed to prevent said courts from assuming jurisdiction of all offenses whereof exclusive original jurisdiction is given to justices of the peace if some justice of the peace, within twelve months after the commission of the offense, shall not have proceeded to take official cognizance of the same.

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of justice of peace to require defendant to enter recognizance to keep the peace, see § 15-32. For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—This section must be construed in connection with section 7-63 which defines the jurisdiction of the superior court in criminal matters. See State v. Cunningham, 94 N. C. 824, 826; see also note of this case under section 7-63, analysis line, "Criminal Actions," IV.

Generally.—Until the expiration of six months (now twelve) from the commission of the offense justices of the peace have exclusive jurisdiction of all misdemeanors where the punishment cannot exceed a fifty-dollar fine or thirty days imprisonment; after the expiration of the six months (twelve) their jurisdiction is concurrent with that of the superior court. State v. Roberts, 98 N. C. 756, 3 S. E. 682.

Concurrent Jurisdiction.—In criminal actions, as in civil actions, although the justice of the peace has been given "exclusive" original jurisdiction in certain instances, other courts have been granted jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justice of the peace. See, for example, §§ 7-190 and 7-222.

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Legislative Power.—It is not competent for the Legislature to confer jurisdiction upon magistrates of any offense of which the punishment by law may exceed the limit as fixed by this section (and the Constitution). State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 13 S. E. 14.

Where Punishment Unlimited.—Where the punishment under the particular statutes under which the defendant is being tried is unlimited or is not limited to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for thirty days, it is not a case within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Addington, 121 N. C. 538, 27 S. E. 988.

Pleading.—In the case falling within the provisions of this section the pleadings must show affirmatively everything necessary to confer the jurisdiction relied upon. State v. Johnson, 64 N. C. 581.

Same—When Jurisdiction Concurrent.—It is not necessary for a bill of indictment charging assault with a deadly weapon, or with intent to commit rape, to show affirmatively the jurisdiction of the superior court, when that court and a justice's court have concurrent jurisdiction, if the latter court had not "proceeded to take cognizance of the crime within twelve months after its commission" for it is for the defendant to show, as matter of defense, the fact that jurisdiction had been thus taken. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 853.

Variance between indictment and proof as affecting jurisdiction. see note to State v. Fesperman, 108 N. C. 770, 13 S. E. 14, section 7-63, analysis line, "Criminal Action," IV.

"Deadly Weapon."—A deadly weapon is not one that must, kill or that may kill, but it is one which would likely produce death or great bodily harm when used by the defendant in the manner in which it was used. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77.

It is material to show whether or not a deadly weapon was used because it is a determining factor in deciding which court has jurisdiction. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Same—Where Question of Law or Fact.—Whether the weapon used is a deadly weapon is a question of law, where there is no dispute about the facts. State v. Sinclair, 120 N. C. 603, 27 S. E. 77. But where the deadly character of the weapon is to be determined by the relative size and condition of the parties and the manner in which it was used, it is proper and necessary, to submit the matter to the jury with proper instructions. State v. Archbell, 139 N. C. 537, 51 S. E. 801.

"Serious Damage."—The serious injury as used in this section must be such physical injury as gives rise to great bodily pain; mental anguish alone is not serious injury within the meaning of this provision. State v. Nash, 109 N. C. 824, 13 S. E. 874.

Where it was shown that the defendant assaulted the prosecuting witness with his fist, knocked him down, jumped on him and beat him in a cruel manner, stunning him and badly injuring his eyes, but it did not appear that the injuries were permanent, it was held, that this was "serious damage," and a justice of the peace had no jurisdiction of the offense. State v. Shelly, 98 N. C. 673, 4 S. E. 530.

Same—Manner of Excepting.—Exception to the jurisdiction of the superior court, or that no serious damage was done, or no deadly weapon was used, and six months (now twelve) had not elapsed, should be made, not by a motion to quash or in arrest of judgment, but by a prayer for instruction to the jury to acquit. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495. And it may be also taken advantage of under a plea of not guilty. State v. Reaves, 85 N. C. 553; State v. Berry, 83 N. C. 60.

Simple Assault.—In a case of simple assault where no deadly weapon is used and no serious damages inflicted, a justice of the peace has jurisdiction. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 863.

Upon the trial of an indictment for simple assault, the superior court prima facie has jurisdiction, but it is open to the defendant to show that the offense was committed within six months (now twelve) of the finding of the bill. State v. Earnest, 98 N. C. 740, 4 S. E. 495.

Same — Former Conviction and Acquittal. — A plea of former conviction or acquittal before a justice of the peace for a simple assault is a complete defense on a trial for the same offense in the superior court, unless it should appear in the latter that the defendant making the plea had, in fact, used a deadly weapon or inflicted serious injury, in which case, the justice not having jurisdiction, the proceedings before him would be a nullity. State v. Robertson, 113 N. C. 633, 18 S. E. 321.

Under this section a magistrate has original jurisdiction of simple assault and on appeal from an acquittal a plea of former jeopardy is good. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 803.

Cited in State v. Hefner, 199 N. C. 778, 281, 155 S. E. 879.

Art. 16. Dockets.

§ 7-130. Justice shall keep docket.—A civil and a criminal docket shall be furnished each justice, at the expense of the county, by the board of county commissioners, in which shall be entered a minute of every proceeding had in any action before such justice. (Rev., s. 1416; Code, s. 831; C. S. 1482.)

Not a Court of Record.—A justice's court is not a court of record. Smith Building, etc., Co. v. Pender, 173 N. C. 55, 91 S. E. 524; Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 16 S. E. 176.

This has been the ruling in a great number of cases but in Harris v. Singletary, 193 N. C. 583, 587, 137 S. E. 724, it is intimated that under the requirements of this section, a justice's court is partly one of record.—Ed. Note.

While the court of a justice of the peace is not a court of record, nevertheless, its judgments are conclusive until reversed, modified or vacated in some proceeding instituted for that purpose; and such court has the same jurisdiction to hear applications to vacate judgments rendered by it as superior courts possess over judgments rendered by them. Whitehurst v. Transportation Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

While the courts of justices of the peace are not, strictly speaking, courts of record, they possess and may exercise many of the powers of such tribunals. Bailey v. Hester, 101 N. C. 538, 540, 8 S. E. 164.

§ 7-131. Entries to be made.—The justice shall enter all his proceedings in a cause tried before him in his docket. No part of such proceedings must be entered on the summons, on the pleadings, or on any other paper in the cause. (Rev., s. 1470, Rule 14; Code, s. 840, Rule 13; C. S. 1483.)

Time of Docketing. — A judgment of a justice of the peace, not docketed within a year from the date of its rendition, is dormant and its lost validity can not be restored by docketing the same in the superior court, but only by a new action upon it. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 559, 19 S. E. 645.

§ 7-132. Dockets filed with clerk.—Each justice of the peace, as often as he has filled his docket, shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court for his county. (Rev., s. 1417; Code, s. 827; C. S. 1484.)

§ 7-133. Dockets, papers, and books delivered to successor.—When a vacancy exists, from any cause, in the office of a justice of the peace, whose docket is not filled, or when such justice goes out of office by expiration of his term, such former justice, if living, and his personal representative, if dead, shall deliver such docket, all law and other books furnished him as a justice of the peace, and all official papers, to the clerk of the superior court for his successor, who is authorized to hear and determine any unfinished action on said docket, in the same manner as if such action had been originally brought before such successor. (Rev., s. 1418; Code, s. 828; 1885, c. 372; C. S. 1485.)

Art. 17. Fees.

§ 7-134. Fees of justices of the peace.—Justices of the peace shall receive the following fees, and none other: For attachment with one defendant, twenty-five cents, and if more than one defendant, ten cents for each additional defendant; transcript of judgment, ten cents; summons, twenty cents, if more than one defendant in the same case, for each additional defendant, ten cents; subpoena for each witness, ten cents; trial when issues are joined, seventy-five cents, and if no issues are joined, then a fee of forty cents for trial and judgment; taking an affidavit, bond or undertaking, or for an order of publication, or an order to seize property, twenty-five cents; for jury trial and entering verdict, seventy-five cents; execution, twenty-five cents; renewal of execution, ten cents; return to an appeal, thirty cents; order of arrest in civil actions, twenty-five cents; warrant of arrest in criminal and bastardy cases, including affidavit or complaint, fifty cents; warrant of commitment, twenty-five cents; taking depositions on order or commission, per one hundred words, ten cents; garnishment for taxes, and making necessary return and certificate of same, twenty-five cents; for hearing petition for widow's year's allowance, issuing notice to commissioners and allotting the same, one dollar; for filing and docketing laborers' liens, fifty cents; probate of a deed or other writing proved by a witness, including the certificate, twenty-five cents; probate of a deed or other writing executed by a married woman, proper acknowledgment and private examination, with the certificate thereof, twenty-five cents; probate of a deed or other writing acknowledged by the signers or makers, including all except married women who acknowledge at the same time, with the certificate thereof, twenty-five cents; probating chattel mortgage, including the certificate, ten cents; for issuing all papers and copies thereof in an action for claim and delivery, and the trial of the same, if issues are joined, when there is one defendant, one dollar and fifty cents, and if more than one defendant in action, fifty cents for each additional defendant, and ten cents for each subpoena issued in said cause, and twenty-five cents for taking the replevy bond, when one is given: Provided, that when the trial of such a cause shall have been removed from before the justice of the peace issuing the said papers, the justice of the peace sitting in trial of such cause shall receive fifty cents of the above costs for such trial and judgment.

Justices of the peace in the counties of Montgomery, Onslow, Macon, Swain, Greene, Hyde, Cherokee, Rowan, Anson, Bertie, Nash, Chowan, Alamance, Wake, Transylvania, Watauga,

Pender, Lee, Lenoir, Perquimans, Rockingham, Stokes, Johnston, Halifax, Duplin, Chatham, Forsyth, Wilkes, Gates, Tyrrell, Brunswick, Stanly, Columbus, Edgecombe, Franklin, Vance, Mitchell, Orange, Buncombe, Jackson, Alexander, McDowell, Clay, Hertford, Davidson, Northampton, Wayne, Jones, Cabarrus, Robeson, Richmond, Randolph, Polk, Henderson, Harnett, Bladen, Burke, Granville, Person, Haywood, Caldwell, Cumberland, and Madison shall receive the following fees, and none other: For attachment with one defendant, thirty-five cents, and if more than one defendant, fifteen cents for each additional defendant; transcript of judgment, fifteen cents; summons, thirty cents; if more than one defendant in the same case, for each additional defendant, fifteen cents; subpoena for each witness, fifteen cents; trial when issues are joined, one dollar; and if no issues are joined, then a fee of fifty cents for trial and judgment; taking an affidavit, bond, or undertaking, or for an order of publication, or an order to seize property, thirty-five cents; for jury trial and entering verdict, one dollar; execution, thirty-five cents; renewal of execution, fifteen cents; return to an appeal, forty cents; order of arrest in civil actions, thirty cents; warrant of arrest in criminal and bastardy cases, including affidavit or complaint, seventy-five cents; warrant of commitment, fifty cents; taking depositions on order of commission, per one hundred words, fifteen cents; garnishment for taxes and making necessary return and certificate of same, thirty-five cents. (Rev., s. 2788; Code, ss. 2135, 3748; 1870-1, c. 130, s. 9; 1883, c. 368, 1885, c. 86; 1903, c. 225; 1907, c. 967; 1917, c. 260; 1921, c. 113; Ex. Sess. 1921, cc. 38, 64, 67; 1923, cc. 28, 114, 238; 1929, cc. 13, 59; 1931, cc. 51, 303; C. S. 3923.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: 1941, c. 324; Jones: 1943, c. 313, s. 2; Orange: 1935, c. 358; Wake: 1937, c. 136; 1941, c. 165; Warren: 1937, c. 187.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1929 added Caldwell and Onslow Counties. The Acts of 1931 added Cumberland and Madison Counties.

The fee of the recorder of a city who is ex officio justice of the peace for the trial of an offense should, in proper instances, be taxed against the defendant as a part of the costs, upon the trial in the superior court, upon appeal. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 656.

Art. 18. Process.

§ 7-135. Action begun by summons.—Civil actions in these courts shall be commenced by the issuing of a summons. (Rev., s. 1444; Code, s. 830; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 9; C. S. 1486.)

Cross Reference.—As to summons and process generally, see § 1-88 et seq.

Service by Publication.—In attachment and publication on a nonresident defendant before a justice of the peace, where defendant's property within the jurisdiction of the court has been levied on, a summons is not required. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17. As to service by publication generally, see § 1-98 and the notes thereto.

§ 7-136. Issuance and contents of summons.—The summons shall be issued by the justice and signed by him. It shall run in the name of the state, and be directed to any constable or other lawful officer, commanding him to summon the defendant to appear and answer the complaint of the plaintiff at a place, within the county, to be therein specified, and at a time to be therein named, not exceeding thirty days from the date of the summons. It shall also state the sum demanded by the plaintiff or the value of the property sued for, where specific property is claimed. (Rev., s. 1445; Code, s. 832; 1874-5, c. 234; C. S. 1487.)

To Whom Directed.—The summons in a civil action before a justice of the peace must be directed to "any constable or other lawful officer." McKee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60, 62.

Special Officer.—A special officer may be deputized to serve the summons issued by a justice of the peace, where the sheriff and coroner are interested. Baker v. Brem, 127 N. C. 322, 37 S. E. 454.

Signing.—Where a justice of the peace, because of bad eyesight, requests his secretary to sign his name to the summons, which she does in his presence and under his supervision, the summons is valid, and when the summons is issued in an action in arrest and bail and defendant therein is later arrested upon return of execution against his property unsatisfied, the manner of the issuance of the summons will not support an action for false imprisonment. Johnson v. Chambers, 219 N. C. 769, 14 S. E. (2d) 789.

Amount Must Be Stated.—In an action before a justice of the peace, if on contract, the summons should state the amount demanded, if for a tort, it should state the amount of damages claimed, and if for the recovery of specific property, the value of the property, and such statement in the summons gives the justice prima facie jurisdiction. Noville v. Dew, 94 N. C. 43, 44. A defect in this particular will not be cured by the insertion of the necessary averment in the pleadings or other process. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Omission by Inadvertence.—Where it is made to appear that the court would have jurisdiction if the summons had contained the proper allegation, but it was omitted by mistake or inadvertence, it may, pending the action, permit the necessary amendment. Leathers v. Morris, 101 N. C. 184, 187, 7 S. E. 783.

Same—Conclusiveness as Fixing Jurisdiction.—Where the amount claimed in the summons issued by a justice was $200, and no other complaint was filed, and the amount offered in evidence amounted to $242, but the plaintiff stated that he remitted the excess over $200, it was held that the justice had jurisdiction. Cromer v. Marsh, 122 N. C. 563, 29 S. E. 836. See section 7-63, analysis line, "Previous Remission," II, B, 1, b.

Failure to Serve Summons.—Where a justice issued a summons and warrant of attachment, and publication of the warrant was made, but the summons was not served, a judgment rendered thereon is void for insufficiency of service of summons. Ditmore v. Goins, 128 N. C. 325, 39 S. E. 61.

After Thirty Days.—When personal service of summons in attachment cannot be made for the absence from the court's jurisdiction of a nonresident defendant having property therein, publication of summons is sufficient if made after the expiration of thirty days subsequent to service of attachment—in this case, one day thereafter—computed from the time of granting the attachment. Mills v. Hansel, 168 N. C. 651, 85 S. E. 17.

Presumption as to True Date.—A summons is presumed to bear the true date of its issue, but it is competent to show that it was not in fact then issued. Currie v. Hawkins, 118 N. E. 593, 594, 24 S. E. 476.

§ 7-137. Service and return of summons.—The officer to whom the summons is delivered shall execute the same within five days after its receipt by him or immediately, if required to do so by the plaintiff. Before proceeding to execute it, he is entitled to require of the plaintiff his fees for the service. When executed he shall immediately return the summons, with the date and manner of the service, to the justice who issued the same. (Rev., s. 1446; Code, s. 833; C. S. 1488.)

Cross References.—See §§ 7-136, 7-137 and notes. As to summons and process generally, see § 1-88 et seq. and notes.

In General.—The same requirements as to a proper service of summons in a civil action issuing from the court of a justice of the peace, must be observed by the process officer as from the superior court, section 7-149, Rule 16, and where a copy thereof is not served at the time of its reading to the defendant, the service is invalid, and the action will be dismissed on special appearance and motion, when the defendant has preserved this right by a like motion in the court of the justice of the peace. Pass v. Elias, 192 N. C. 497, 135 S. E. 291.

To Whom Returnable.—A summons issued by one justice of the peace cannot be made returnable before another (except in cases of bastardy). Williams v. Bowling, 111 N. C. 295, 296, 16 S. E. 176.

§ 7-138. Process issued to another county.—No process shall be issued by any justice of the peace to any county other than his own, unless one or more bona fide defendants shall reside in, and also one or more bona fide defendants shall reside outside of, his county; in which case, only, he may issue process to any county in which any such nonresident defendant resides. (Rev., s. 1447; Code, s. 871; 1876-7, c. 287; C. S. 1489.)

In General.—This section being a restricted legislative grant of power when exercised, must be strictly pursued. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411. See also, Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799.

The language of the statute would seem to make the question of jurisdiction, or the right to serve process on a defendant outside the county of the justice, to depend somewhat upon the good faith of the plaintiff in joining the defendants as parties. In certain cases, perhaps, it may be so plain that the plaintiff has no real or bona fide claim against the defendant, who is a resident of the county in which the suit is pending, that the question of misjoinder may be presented as one of law. Marler v. Wadesboro Clothing Co., 150 N. C. 519, 64 S. E. 366.

Amendment as to Resident Defendant.—Where the summons was issued against a resident of a county and a nonresident of the county, and on the trial the summons was amended on striking out the name of the resident defendant, it was held, that the justice should dismiss the action. Wooten v. Maulsby, 69 N. C. 462.

To Whom Addressed.—When a justice of the peace issues process for nonresident defendants, it must be issued (addressed) to the officer of the county where it is to be served. Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 414, 29 S. E. 411.

Section Not Applicable to Foreign Corporations.—The provisions of this section do not apply to foreign corporations. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 58 S. E. 793.

The Municipal Court of the city of Greensboro has no jurisdiction under chapter 126, Private Laws of 1931, to determine a cause upon a contract, involving less than $200.00, when the sole defendant is not a resident of Guilford County and summons is served in Lee county as this section and § 7-139 are applicable. Miles Co. v. Powell, 205 N. C. 30, 169 S. E. 828.

§ 7-139. Civil process in inferior courts.—The process of any recorder's court, county court, or other court inferior to the superior courts of the state, when such court is exercising the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace in civil matters, shall run only as does the process of the court of a justice of the peace for the county in which such court is located. (1915, c. 19; C. S. 1490.)

Cross Reference.—As to uniform practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside county, see §§ 1-92, 1-93.

§ 7-140. Endorsement of process to another county.—In all civil actions in courts of justices of the peace where one or more of the defendants may reside in a county other than that of the plaintiff, it shall be lawful for any justice of the peace within the county where such defendant or defendants may reside, upon proof of the handwriting of the justice of the peace who issued the process, to endorse his name on the same, or a duplicate thereof, and such process so endorsed shall be executed in like manner as if it had been originally issued by the justice endorsing it. (Rev., s. 1449; Code, s. 872; C. S. 1491.)

To Whom Addressed.—See note of Durham, etc., Co. v. Marshburn, 122 N. C. 411, 29 S. E. 411, under section 7-140.

§ 7-141. Certificate of clerk on process for another county.—In all cases referred to in § 7-140 it shall be lawful for the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the action is brought to certify, under the seal of his court, on the process or a duplicate thereof, that the justice of the peace who issued the same is an acting justice of the peace in his county. And in all such cases it shall be the duty of any sheriff or constable to whom it may be directed to make an entry of the date of its reception, and to execute the same as provided for the service of civil process in courts of justices of the peace, and return it by mail to the justice of the peace from whose court it issued. (Rev., s. 1450; Code, s. 873; 1870-1, c. 60, s. 2; C. S. 1492.)

Cross Reference.—See §§ 7-188, 7-190 and notes.

§ 7-142. Judgment against defendant in another county.—No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment under §§ 7-140 and 7-141 against any defendant who may be a nonresident of his county, unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon him at least ten days before the return day of the same. (Rev., s. 1451; Code, s. 874; 1876-7, c. 57; C. S. 1493.)

Section Not Jurisdictional.—The provision of this section, that a justice of the peace shall not enter a judgment against a nonresident defendant unless it shall appear that process was duly served at least ten days before the return day, is not jurisdictional; and where, upon special appearance of defendant for the purpose of dismissing the action, he was given more than ten days thereafter to answer or defend, which he refused to do, the justice's judgment will not be disturbed. Bank v. Carlile, 174 N. C. 624, 94 S. E. 297.

Application.—This section applies only where a justice's summons has been issued against a defendant residing in another county. Williams v. Iron Belt, etc., Association, 131 N. C. 267, 42 S. E. 607.

§ 7-143. Service on foreign corporation.—Whenever any action of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction shall be brought against a foreign corporation, which corporation is required to maintain a process agent in the state, the summons may be issued to the sheriff of the county in which such process agent resides, and when certified under the seal of his office by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the justice issuing such summons resides to be under the hand of such justice, the sheriff of the county to which such summons shall be issued shall serve the same as in other cases and make due return thereof. No justice of the peace shall enter a judgment in such cases against any such foreign corporation unless it shall appear that the process was duly served upon such process agent at least twenty days before the return day of the same. The summons may be made returnable at a time to be therein named, not exceeding forty days from the date of such summons: Provided, this section shall not apply to actions commenced in a county where the defendant has an officer or agent upon whom process may be served: Provided, that when any foreign corporation has no process agent in this state, but has an agent who collects money for it, said agent shall be deemed a process agent within the terms of this section, and that this proviso shall apply to existing claims as well as those arising hereafter. Such service can be made in respect to a foreign corporation only when it has property, or the cause of action arose, or the plaintiff resides in this state, or when it cannot be made personally within the state upon the president, treasurer, or secretary thereof. (Rev., s. 1448; 1907, c. 473; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 28; C. S. 1494.)

Cross References.—As to agents on whom service can be had, see § 1-97. See also §§ 55-38, 58-153 and notes.

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Ex. Sess. of 1920.

Service on Agent Valid.—Under the provision of this section, a summons issued to a foreign corporation in another county where it has a process agent, properly certified under seal of the clerk of the superior court, served on such corporation or the agent more than twenty days before the return day, is valid. Fleming Co. v. Southern R. R., 145 N. C. 37, 40, 58 S. E. 793.

§ 7-144. Attendance of witnesses.—The justice, on application of either party, shall, by a subpoena or by an order in writing, on the process, direct the constable or other officer to summon witnesses to appear and give testimony at the time and place appointed for the trial. Each witness failing to appear shall forfeit and pay eight dollars to the party at whose instance he was summoned, and shall be further liable to such party for all damage sustained by nonattendance. The fine herein imposed may be recovered, on motion, before the justice who tried the action, unless the witness on a notice of five days, by affidavit or other proof, show sufficient excuse for his failure to attend. (Rev., s. 1452; Code, s. 847; C. S. 1495.)

Cross Reference.—As to power to punish for contempt, see §§ 5-6, 5-8.

In General.—The power to punish for contempt is inherent in all courts and is essential to their existence. State v. Aiken, 113 N. C. 651, 653, 18 S. E. 690.

Duty to Attend Court.—The duty of attending court in obedience to a subpoena is incident to citizenship. State v. Massey, 104 N. C. 877, 879, 10 S. E. 608.

No Bond Authorized.—A justice of the peace is not authorized to put a witness under bond to appear at a subsequent trial before the justice. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 7-145. Subpoena issued to another county.—Justices of the peace, in all civil cases, may issue subpoenas to counties other than their own; such subpoenas shall be authenticated in the same manner as provided by law for the authentication of process. When so authenticated the sheriff, constable or other officer to whom the same is directed shall execute and return the same as provided for the return of process: Provided, that where witnesses attend in counties other than their own under such subpoena they shall receive the same per diem and mileage as witnesses who attend the superior courts: Provided further, that before issuing such subpoenas the party wanting such witness shall deposit with the justice before whom the cause is pending one day's per diem and the mileage of the witness to and returning from place of trial, which amount shall be paid to the witness on his attendance and taxed against the party cast in the trial. (Rev., s. 1453; 1893, c. 436; C. S. 1496.)

§ 7-146. Subpoena duces tecum in case against railroad.—When any action is brought against a railroad company before a justice of the peace, the justice before whom such action is made returnable shall have power to issue a subpoena to any county within the limits of the state, commanding the president or any officer, director, agent, or any one in the employment of such company, to appear before him at the time and place of trial and to produce such books, cards and other papers as the justice shall deem proper, and to give evidence in said cause; and each witness summoned as aforesaid failing or refusing to appear and testify and produce the books and papers aforesaid in obedience to such writ shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of court and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 1454; 1885, c. 221, s. 2; C. S. 1497.)

Art. 19. Pleading and Practice.

§ 7-147. Removal of case.—In all proceedings and trials, both criminal and civil, before justices of the peace, the justice before whom the writ or summons is returnable shall, upon written request made by either party to the action before evidence is introduced, move the same to some other justice residing in the same township, or to the justice of some neighboring township if there be no other justice in said township; but no cause shall be more than once removed. (Rev., s. 1455; Code, s. 907; 1880, c. 15; 1883, c. 66; 1917, c. 48; C. S. 1498.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 278.

Cross Reference.—For statutes authorizing removal to inferior court other than that of another justice of the peace, see §§ 7-224, 7-317, 7-374, 7-437.

Duty of Justice.—It is the duty of a justice of the peace, upon affidavit and motion (now a written request) for a removal being filed, to remove the case to another justice residing in the same township, State v. Ivie, 118 N. C. 1227, 24 S. E. 539; and if there be no other justice in the same township he can remove the case to the justice of a neighboring township.

Same—Removal to Improper Justice.—If the case is removed to a justice of a neighboring township when there is another justice in the same township in which the action is commenced, the justice to whom the case is thus removed has no jurisdiction, and his judgment is void. State v. Ivie, 118 N. C. 1227, 24 S. E. 539; State v. Warren, 100 N. C. 489, 490, 492, 5 S. E. 662.

Not Applicable to Mayor's Court.—The provisions of this section apply only to courts of justice of the peace and in a prosecution for violation of a town ordinance before a mayor, the defendant is not entitled to a removal. State v. Joyner, 127 N. C. 541, 37 S. E. 201.

§ 7-148. Removal in case of death or incapacity.—If any justice of the peace dies or becomes incapacitated by removal, resignation or other cause, having any action, civil or criminal, pending before him, which has not been finally determined, such action shall not abate or be discontinued, but the plaintiff in such civil action, or any one on behalf of the state in such criminal action, may remove such action for further and final determination before any other justice of the peace of the same township in which the original action was pending, or before any justice of the peace of the same county when there is no other in the township, by filing the papers in said action with the justice to whom the same is removed and by giving ten days notice to the defendant of such removal; and if the plaintiff in any civil action shall fail to give such notice of removal within ten days from the happening of the death, removal, or resignation, or incapacity of such justice, then the defendant in such action may remove the same by giving like notice to the plaintiff; and if no notice is given by either party to such action within twenty days, then such action shall stand discontinued without prejudice. The justice of the peace before whom such action may be removed shall proceed to try and determine the same, but he shall demand no fees or costs which have theretofore been properly advanced by any party to such action. After such removal either party shall be entitled to all the rights

Cross Reference.—For statutes authorizing removal to inferior court other than that of another justice of the peace, see §§ 7-224, 7-317, 7-374, 7-437.

§ 7-149. Rules of practice:

Rule 1, Pleadings. The pleadings in these courts are—

1. The complaint of the plaintiff.

2. The answer of the defendant. (Rev., s. 1457, Code, s. 840; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 2, Complaint. The complaint must state, in a plain and direct manner, the facts constituting the cause of action. (Rev., s. 1459; Code, s. 840, Rule 3; C. S. 1500.)

Generally.—When the parties come to trial in a justice's court, the justice should require the plaintiff to state in a plain and direct manner the facts constituting the cause of action. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 234.

Where two causes of action were set forth in a warrant before a justice of the peace (treated as a complaint), the judge properly submitted the issue upon the cause of action which was sustained by the evidence. Smith v. Newberry, 140 N. C. 385, 53 S. E. 234.

Rule 3, Answer. The answer may contain a denial of the complaint, or of any part thereof, and also a statement, in a plain and direct manner, of any facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. (Rev., s. 1460; Code, s. 840, Rule 4; C. S. 1500.)

The pendency of another action for the same cause, may be set up in the answer, with other defenses, and any issue arising thereon may be submitted at the same time as the others growing out of the pleadings, with instructions to the jury that, if found for the defendant, the others need not be considered. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 186.

Same—Waiver.—Unless this defense is set up in the answer or in some way insisted on, before the trial on the merits, it will be considered as waived. Blackwell v. Dibrell Bros. & Co., 103 N. C. 270, 9 S. E. 192.

Rule 4, Demurrer. Either party may demur to a pleading of his adversary, or to any part thereof, when it is not sufficiently explicit to enable him to understand it, or contains no cause of action or defense, although it be taken as true. (Rev., s. 1461; Code, s. 840, Rule 11; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 5, Order on demurrer. If the justice deem the objection well founded, he shall order the pleading to be amended on such terms as he may think just; and if the party refuse to amend, the defective pleading shall be disregarded. (Rev., s. 1462; Code, s. 840, Rule 12; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 6, Pleadings, oral or written. The pleadings may be either oral or written; if oral, the substance must be entered by the justice on his docket; if written, they must be filed by the justice, and a reference to them be made on his docket. (Rev., s. 1458; Code, s. 840, Rule 2; C. S. 1500.)

In General.—While we liberally construe pleadings filed in the court of a justice of the peace, they must substantially conform to the statutory requirements, i. e., there shall be a complaint and answer; if oral, the justice may enter the substance on his docket, and, if written, the pleadings may be filed and reference made to them on the docket; the answer may state the facts constituting a defense or counterclaim. Baxter v. Irvine, 158 N. C. 277, 73 S. E. 882.

Written Pleadings.—Where the parties to an action before a justice of the peace have elected to file written pleadings, the pleadings are subject to the rule that material allegations in the complaint not denied by the answer stand admitted. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 904.

Oral Pleadings.—In actions before justices of the peace the pleadings may be oral, but if so, the substance of them must be entered on the docket, and contain, in a plain and distinct manner, the ground of the action; and if the facts relied on as a defense be new matter, notice of that, also, must be given on the docket, in a plain and direct manner. Montague v. Brown, 104 N. C. 161, 10 S. E. 186.

Applied in Home Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Moore, 207 N. C. 515, 177 S. E. 633.

Rule 7, No particular form for pleadings. Pleadings are not required to be in any particular form, but must be such as to enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant. (Rev., s. 1463; Code, s. 840, Rule 5; C. S. 1500.)

Technical Accuracy Not Required.—The pleadings in a justice's court need not be in any particular form or drawn with technical accuracy, but are sufficient if they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant," and they may not "be quashed or set aside for want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein," and ample powers are given the Court to amend either in substance or form, at any time before or after judgment in furtherance of justice. Aman v. Dover, etc., R. Co., 179 N. C. 310, 102 S. E. 392.

Informality or Irregularity.—Pleadings and proceedings in the trial of a cause should be liberally construed so as to prevent a failure of justice because of mere informality or irregularity, especially when the case is tried before a justice of the peace, where this section expressly provides that the pleadings are not required to be in any particular form and are sufficient when they "enable a person of common understanding to know what is meant." Wilson v. Batchelor, 182 N. C. 92, 108 S. E. 355.

Rule 8, No judgment by default. Where a defendant does not appear and answer, the plaintiff must still prove his case before he can recover. (Rev., s. 1464; Code, s. 840, Rule 6; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 9, Action on account or note. In an action or defense, founded on an account, or an instrument for the payment of money only, it is sufficient for a party to deliver the account or instrument to the justice and state that there is due him thereon from the adverse party a specified sum, which he claims to recover or set off. (Rev., s. 1465; Code, s. 840, Rule 7; C. S. 1500.)

Note for Purchase of Land.—Where an action to recover interest due upon a note, according to its terms, is cognizable in the court of a justice of the peace, his jurisdiction is not ousted by reason of the note having been executed for the purchase of land. Parker v. Horton, 176 N. C. 143, 96 S. E. 904.

Rule 10, Account or demand exhibited. The justice may at the joining of issue require either party, at the request of the other, at that or some other specified time to exhibit his account or demand, or state the nature thereof as far as may be in his power; and in case of his default, the justice shall preclude him from giving evidence of such parts thereof as have not been so exhibited or stated. (Rev., s. 1469; Code, s. 840, Rule 10; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 11, Variance. A variance between the evidence on the trial and the allegations in a pleading shall be disregarded as immaterial, unless the court is satisfied that the adverse party has been misled to his prejudice thereby. (Rev., s. 1466; Code, s. 840, Rule 8; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 12, No process quashed for want of form. No process or other proceeding begun before a justice of the peace, whether in a civil or a criminal action, shall be quashed or set aside for the want of form, if the essential matters are set forth therein; and the court in which any such action shall be pending shall have power to amend any warrant, process, pleading or proceeding in such action, either in form or substance, for the furtherance of justice, on such terms as shall be deemed just, at any time either before or after judgment. (Rev., s. 1467; Code, s. 908; R. C., cc. 3, 62, s. 22; 1794, c. 414; C. S. 1500.)

Docket Incomplete.—In bastardy proceedings the justice of the peace before whom the trial is had should take the denial of the defendant under oath, before trying the case, so as to make up the issue, and should regularly note it on his docket and in his return; and if the docket is incomplete in this respect the Superior Court judge on appeal should allow the denial to be entered nunc pro tunc. State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694.

In State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 533, 106 S. E. 677, the court said: "A clear analysis of this section (which was sec. 1-577 of the Code) is made by Justice Ashe in State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, showing that the exercise of the power is discretionary, and that the power itself, by gradual amendment of the statute, is very broad and finally was extended to matters of substance, whereas formerly it related only to matters of form and was confined to civil actions."

Applicable to Final Judgments Only.—Our statutes requiring a motion for a rehearing before a justice of the peace within ten days, etc., this section, rule 12, and § 7-179, allowing fifteen days for appeal from the justice's judgment, etc., apply to final judgments regularly entered, and not to judgments irregularly taken upon defective service, or void for lack of service of summons on the defendant, or other proper process to bring him before the court. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 109 S. E. 29.

Amendments Liberally Allowed.—While amendments to process and pleading, under our procedure, in both civil and criminal causes, are liberally allowed by this and § 1-163, this does not imply that the court has power to change the nature of the offense intended to be charged so as to charge a different offense in substance from that at first intended. State v. Clegg, 214 N. C. 675, 200 S. E. 371.

Rule 13, Pleadings amended. The pleadings may be amended at any time before the trial, or during the trial, or upon appeal, when by such amendment substantial justice will be promoted. If the amendment be made after the joining of the issue, and it appears to the satisfaction of the court, by oath, that an adjournment is necessary to the adverse party, in consequence of such amendment, an adjournment shall be granted. The court may also, in its discretion, require as a condition of an amendment the payment of costs to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1468; Code, s. 840, Rule 9; C. S. 1500.)

Power Not Reviewable.—The discretionary power to amend a complaint conferred upon a justice of the peace is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1262, 1264, 24 S. E. 526.

Nature of Amendment Allowable.—The superior court has the power to amend a justice warrant in a criminal action, in form or substance, but the amendment must not change the nature of the offense intended to be charged. State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532; State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1262, 24 S. E. 526.

Amendment of Indictment.—An indictment before a justice of the peace may be amended by the trial judge upon the trial in the Superior Court on appeal. State v. Holt, 195 N. C. 240, 141 S. E. 585.

The omission of the name of the party in the complaint, against whom a criminal offense is charged, will not of itself invalidate the indictment, when the warrant of arrest thereto attached and referred to contains his name and clearly indicates him as the person charged, the complaint and warrant being read together, and in this way they are sufficient in form to proceed to judgment upon conviction. State v. Poythress, 174 N. C. 809, 93 S. E. 919.

Words Omitted.—Where a warrant was defective due to the omission of certain words, it was held to be within the discretion of the court to permit an amendment inserting the necessary words. Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 631, 57 S. E. 386.

Allegation of Value Omitted.—Where, in an action of claim and delivery of personal property, the allegation as to the value was omitted in the summons, the Justice of the Peace properly allowed a motion to amend by filling in the blank left for such allegation. Cox v. Grisham, 113 N. C. 279, 18 S. E. 212.

Equitable Proceedings.—On the trial of an appeal from a justice of the peace, of an action that sought to recover for a breach of contract, and also to enforce an equity, the trial judge properly allowed an amendment discarding the equitable proceeding. Starke v. Cotton, 115 N. C. 81, 20 S. E. 184.

Rule 14, Tender of judgment. The defendant may, on the return of process and before answering, make an offer in writing to allow judgment to be taken against him for an amount, to be stated in such offer, with costs. The plaintiff shall thereupon, and before any other proceeding be had in the action, determine whether he will accept or reject such offer. If he accept the offer, and give notice thereof in writing, the justice shall file the offer and the acceptance thereof, and render judgment accordingly. If notice of acceptance be not given, and if the plaintiff fail to obtain judgment for a greater amount, exclusive of costs, than has been specified in the offer, he shall not recover costs, but shall pay to the defendant his costs accruing subsequent to the offer. (Rev., s. 1471; Code, s. 840, Rule 16; C. S. 1500.)

In General.—The tender, made under the provision of this section must be a proposition (made before any defence is set up) to pay a specified sum in discharge of the plaintiff's claim, and not a sum in excess of a counterclaim. Rand v. Harris, 83 N. C. 486.

Money Paid into Court.—Money tendered and deposited into court by the defendant with costs accrued, "in full tender of all indebtedness of defendant to plaintiffs, if withdrawn by plaintiffs, pending the litigation, amounts to a satisfaction of their claim, and subjects the plaintiffs to all subsequently accruing costs." Cline v. Rudisill, 126 N. C. 523, 36 S. E. 36.

Rule 15, Continuance. Any justice before whom an action is brought may, on sufficient excuse therefor shown on the affidavit of either party or any person for him, continue such action from time to time for trial; but such continuance shall not exceed thirty days. (Rev., s. 1472; Code, s. 840, Rule 17; C. S. 1500.)

When a justice of the peace continues a criminal action for malicious prosecution upon a request of the prosecuting witness, and more than thirty days has passed without a trial, in which the prosecutor has remained inactive, the criminal proceeding is terminated under rule 15 of this section. Winkler v. Lenoir, etc., Rock Lines, 195 N. C. 673, 143 S. E. 213.

Rule 16, Chapter on civil procedure applicable. The chapter on civil procedure, respecting forms of actions, parties to actions, the times of commencing actions, and the service of process, shall apply to justices' courts. (Rev., s. 1473; Code, s. 840, Rule 15; C. S. 1500.)

Cross Reference.—See § 7-135 and notes.

Appointment of Next Friend.—There being no statutory special method indicated by which a next friend may be appointed to represent an infant in an action properly brought in a Justice's court, the appointment should be made by the Justice of the Peace, using the same care and circumspection in investigating the fitness of the person to be appointed as is required, by the Clerk, in actions properly brought in the Superior Court. Houser v. Bonsal & Co., 149 N. C. 51, 62 S. E. 776.

Rule 17, Attachment proceedings. The chapter on civil procedure is applicable to proceedings by attachment before justices of the peace, in all cases founded on contract wherein the sum demanded does not exceed two hundred dollars, and where the title to real estate is not in controversy. (Rev., s. 1474; Code, s. 853; C. S. 1500.)

Cross Reference.—As to attachments generally, see § 1-440 et seq.

Purpose.—The issuance of a warrant of attachment by a justice of the peace having jurisdiction of the action is only for the purpose of acquiring jurisdiction over a defendant who is a nonresident of the state, and is only incidental to the relief sought in the original action, and the warrant in garnishment may run beyond the limits of the county wherein the action was brought. Mohn v. Cressey, 193 N. C. 568, 137 S. E. 718.

Remedy for Wrongful Issue.—An attachment wrongfully issued from the Justice's Court against a citizen of the State, transiently absent, is remedied by recordari. Merrill v. McHone, 126 N. C. 528, 529, 36 S. E. 35.

Rule 18, Claim and delivery and arrest and bail. The chapter on civil procedure is applicable, except as herein otherwise provided, to proceedings in justices' courts concerning claim and delivery of personal property and arrest and bail, substituting the words, "justice of the peace" for "judge," "clerk" or "clerk of the court," and inserting the words "or constable" after "sheriff," whenever they occur. (Rev., s. 1475; Code, ss. 849, 889; 1876-7, c. 251; C. S. 1500.)

Cross References.—As to arrest and bail, see 1-409 et seq. As to claim and delivery, see § 1-472 et seq.

Rule 19, Actions for damages and for conversion. All actions in a court of a justice of the peace for the recovery of damages to real estate, or for the conversion of personal property, or any injury thereto, shall be commenced and prosecuted to judgment under the same rules of procedure as provided in civil actions in a justice's court. (Rev., s. 1476; Code, s. 888; 1876-7, c. 251; C. S. 1500.)

Damages Limited to Fifty Dollars.—A Justice of the Peace under this section has jurisdiction of an action for damages, not exceeding fifty dollars, for injury to personal property, though such property be of greater value than fifty dollars. Malloy v. Fayetteville, 122 N. C. 480, 29 S. E. 880.

An action for damages for converting a crop of greater value than fifty dollars is not founded on an implied contract, and hence is not within the cognizance of a justice's court. Womble v. Leach, 83 N. C. 84.

Rule 20, Action on former judgment. On the trial of an action founded on a former judgment, the judgment itself shall be evidence of the debt, subject to such payments as have been made. (Rev., s. 1477; Code, s. 844; C. S. 1500.)

Rule 21, Rehearing of case. When a judgment has been rendered by a justice, in the absence of either party, and when such absence was caused by the sickness, excusable mistake or neglect of the party, such absent party, his agent or attorney, may, within ten days after the date of such judgment, apply for relief to the justice who awarded the same, by affidavit, setting forth the facts, which affidavit must be filed by the justice; whereupon the justice, if he deem the affidavit sufficient, shall open the case for reconsideration; and to this end, he shall issue a summons, directed to a constable, or other lawful officer, to cause the adverse party, together with the witnesses on both sides, to appear before him at a place and at a time, not exceeding twenty days, to be specified in the summons, when the complaint shall be reheard, and the same proceedings had as if the case had never been acted on. If execution has been issued on the judgment, the justice shall direct an order to the officer having such execution in his hands, commanding him to forbear all further proceedings thereon, and to return the same to the justice forthwith. (Rev., s. 1478; Code, s. 845; C. S. 1500.)

In General.—A new trial cannot be allowed in a justice's court, but the party dissatisfied with the judgment has his remedy only by appeal. But where the judgment is rendered in the absence of either party and such absence is occasioned by sickness or excusable neglect, relief may be had by filing an affidavit before the justice, setting forth the grounds therefor, within ten days after judgment. Gambill v. Gambill, 89 N. C. 201.

This and the other sections of the Code regulating procedure before justices of the peace, which makes the general provisions of the chapter applicable, do not confer on a nonresident defendant the right to a rehearing, or, which is the same thing, a new trial, in the justice's court after judgment, upon failure of personal service and a good defense shown; and the remedy is appeal, so that the action may be heard de novo in the superior court, where he will be permitted to interpose his defense. Thompson v. Lynchburg Notion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Inexcusable Neglect.—Where the local agent of an incorporated company appeared on the return day of a summons, before a justice of the peace, and procured a continuance for ten days, within which time it had an opportunity to employ counsel to represent it, but it neglected to do so until the day of the trial, when, because of delay in the mail, the counsel was not able to appear until after the trial, it was held to be inexcusable neglect. Finlayson v. American Accident Co., 109 N. C. 196, 13 S. E. 739.

Justices of the peace have power to rehear cases decided by them, when mistake, surprise or excusable neglect is shown, and the application is made in ten days after the date of the judgment. After the lapse of that time, they can not rehear their judgments for such cause. Navassa Guano Co. v. Bridgers, 93 N. C. 439.

Statute of Limitations.—Where a judgment was rendered by a Justice of the Peace and upon a rehearing granted by him a similar judgment was rendered, the Statute of Limitations began to run from the date of the latter, the first judgment having been vacated. Salmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178.

Art. 20. Jury Trial.

§ 7-150. Parties entitled to a jury trial.—When an issue of fact shall be joined before a justice, on demand of either party thereto, he shall cause a jury of six men to be summoned, who shall try the same. (Const., Art. 4, s. 27; C. S. 1501.)

Cross Reference.—As to jury trial in justice of peace court in criminal actions, see §§ 15-156 to 15-158.

§ 7-151. Jury trial waived.—A trial by jury must be demanded at the time of joining the issue of fact, and if neither party demand at such time a jury, they shall be deemed to have waived a trial by jury. (Rev., s. 1431; Code, s. 857; C. S. 1502.)

The "Due Process" Clause.—The requirements of the Federal Constitution that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law does not imply that all trials in the state courts affecting property must be by jury, but it is met if the trial be had according to the settled course of judicial proceedings. Caldwell v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 425, 28 S. E. 554.

Rights Preserved on Appeal.—When a legislative act creates a court of original jurisdiction for the trial of petty misdemeanors and prescribes an appeal to the superior court, the constitutional right of trial by jury is preserved. State v. Shine, 149 N. C. 480, 62 S. E. 1080.

Waiver.—If the defendant, after having been duly summoned, fails to appear and answer before a justice of the peace he thereby waives and loses the right to demand a trial by jury. Durham v. Wilson, 104 N. C. 595, 598, 10 S. E. 683.

§ 7-152. Number constituting the jury.—Six jurors shall constitute a jury in a justice's court, but, by consent of both parties, a less number may constitute it. (Rev., s. 1440; Code, s. 866; C. S. 1503.)

§ 7-153. Jury list furnished.—The clerk of the board of commissioners shall furnish, on demand, to each justice of the peace in the county, a list of the jurors for the township for which such justice is elected or appointed. (Rev., s. 1428; Code, s. 854; C. S. 1504.)

§ 7-154. Names kept in jury box.—Each justice shall keep a jury box, having two divisions marked respectively number one and number two, and having two locks, the key to be kept by the justice. He shall cause the names on his jury list to be written on small scrolls of paper of equal size, and to be placed in the jury box, in division marked number one, until drawn out for the trial of an issue as required by law. (Rev., ss. 1429, 1430; Code, ss. 855, 856; C. S. 1505.)

Cross Reference.—See section 9-2 and notes thereto.

§ 7-155. Fees deposited for jury trial.—Before a party is entitled to a jury he shall deposit with the justice the sum of three dollars for jury fees, and the justice shall pay to all persons who attend, pursuant to the summons, as well to those who do not actually serve as to those who do serve, twenty-five cents each, to be included in the judgment as part of the costs, in case the party demanding the jury recover judgment, but not otherwise. The justice shall refund to the party the fees of all jurors who do not attend. (Rev., s. 1432; Code, s. 869; C. S. 1506.)

§ 7-156. Jury drawn and trial postponed.—When a trial by jury is demanded, the justice shall immediately, in the presence of the parties, proceed to draw the names of twelve jurors from division marked number one of the jury box; and the trial of the cause shall thereupon be postponed to a time and place to be fixed by the justice. (Rev., s. 1433; Code, s. 858; C. S. 1507.)

Constitutional Provisions.—The method by which jurors are to be selected and summoned is not provided for in the constitution, and there is no limitation therein upon the power of the General Assembly to regulate it. State v. Brittain, 143 N. C. 668, 57 S. E. 352.

§ 7-157. Summoning the jury.—A list of the jurors so drawn shall be immediately delivered by the justice to any constable, or other lawful officer, with an order indorsed thereon, directing him to summon the persons named in the list to appear as jurors at the time and place fixed for the trial; and it is the duty of the officer to proceed forthwith to summon such jurors, or so many of them as can be found, according to the order; and he shall make return thereof at the time and place appointed, stating in his return the names of the jurors summoned by him. For performing the aforementioned duties, he shall receive the fee allowed by law for summoning jurors. The preceding sentence shall not apply to the counties of Beaufort, Brunswick, Cabarrus, Edgecombe, Forsyth, Gaston, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Martin, McDowell, Orange, Pasquotank, Rowan, Transylvania, and Wake. (Rev., s. 1434; Code, s. 859; 1935, c. 309; C. S. 1508.)

§ 7-158. Selection of jury.—At the time and place appointed, and on return of the order, if the trial be not further adjourned, and if adjourned, then at the time and place to which the trial shall be adjourned, the justice shall proceed, in the presence of the parties, to draw from the jurors summoned the names of six persons to constitute the jury for the trial of the issue. (Rev., s. 1435; Code, s. 860; C. S. 1509.)

§ 7-160. Names returned to the jury box.—The scrolls containing the names of jurors not summoned, if any, and of those summoned but not drawn, and of those drawn but challenged and set aside, must be returned by the justice to his jury box, in division marked number one: Provided, that the scrolls containing the names of such as are not legally liable or legally qualified to serve as jurors shall be destroyed. (Rev., s. 1437; Code, s. 862; C. S. 1511.)

§ 7-161. Names of jurors serving.—The scrolls containing the names of the jurors who serve on the trial of an issue must be placed in the jury box in division marked number two, until all the scrolls in division marked number one have been drawn out. As often as that may happen, the whole number of scrolls shall be returned to division marked number one, to be drawn out as in the first instance. (Rev., s. 1441; Code, s. 868; C. S. 1512.)

§ 7-162. Tales jurors summoned.—If a competent and indifferent jury is not obtained from the twelve jurors drawn, as before specified, the justice may direct others to be summoned from the bystanders, sufficient to complete the jury. (Rev., s. 1438; Code, s. 863; C. S. 1513.)

§ 7-164. Additional deposit for jury fees on adjournment.—No adjournment shall be granted after the return of the jury, unless the party asking the same shall, in addition to the other conditions imposed on him by law or by the justice, deposit with the justice, to be immediately paid to the jurors attending, the sum of twenty-five cents each, such amount to be in no case included in the judgment as part of the costs. On such adjournment, the jurors shall attend at the time and place appointed, without further summons or notice; and the fees for the jury, deposited with the justice in the beginning, shall remain in his hands until the jury are impaneled on the trial, and shall be then immediately paid to the jurors or to the party entitled thereto. (Rev., s. 1442; Code, s. 870; C. S. 1515.)

§ 7-165. Jury sworn and impaneled; verdict; judgment.—The jury shall be sworn and impaneled by the justice, who shall record their verdict in his docket and enter a judgment in the case according to such verdict. (Rev., s. 1443; Code, s. 864; C. S. 1516.)

Art. 21. Judgment and Execution.

§ 7-166. Justice's judgment docketed; lien and execution.—A justice of the peace, on the demand of a party in whose favor he has rendered a judgment, shall give a transcript thereof which may be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county where the judgment was rendered. And in such case he shall also deliver to the party against whom such judgment was rendered, or his attorney, a transcript of any stay of execution issued, or which may thereafter be issued, by him on such judgment, which may be in like manner filed and docketed in the office of the clerk of such court.

The time of the receipt of the transcript by the clerk shall be noted thereon and entered on the docket; and from that time the judgment shall be a judgment of the superior court in all respects for the purposes of lien and execution. The execution thereon shall be issued by the clerk of the superior court to the sheriff of the county, and shall have the same effect, and be executed in the same manner, as other executions of the superior court; but in case a stay of execution upon such judgment shall be granted, as provided by law, execution shall not be issued thereon by the clerk of the superior court until the expiration of such stay. A certified transcript of such judgment may be filed and docketed in the superior court clerk's office of any other county, and with like effect, in every respect, as in the county where the judgment was rendered, except that it shall be a lien only from the time of filing and docketing such transcript. (Rev., s. 1479; Code, s. 839; C. S. 1517.)

Cross Reference.—As to removing judgment of justice of peace to another county for execution, see § 7-169.

Generally.—A judgment in a justice's court does not create a lien upon the property of the defendant. To have this effect a transcript of the judgment must be filed and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk of the county wherein the judgment is rendered. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379, 380.

Judgment Conclusive.—Where a judgment was obtained before a justice of the peace and docketed in the office of the superior court clerk, the court has no power upon motion to set aside said judgment and enter the cause upon the civil issue docket. Ledbetter v. Osborne, 66 N. C. 379.

Amendments of the judgment before the magistrate, or of the transcript, can be made only before the tribunal which gave it; no court has original power to amend the records of another court. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Presumed Regular.—Though the signature of the justice of the peace is not attached to the judgment, it is presumed from the term of the certificate of authentication that it was entered up regularly and in proper form. Surratt v. Crawford, 87 N. C. 372, 374.

Priorities.—If a number of justice's judgments be docketed in the superior court, they will, under this section, be a lien upon the land of the defendant from the time when they were docketed, and will have a priority over a judgment obtained in court by another person against the same defendant at a subsequent time, and though an execution be issued on the latter and the sheriff levies it on the land and advertises it for sale, yet, if before the sale executions are issued on a part of the justice's docketed judgments, and are placed in the hands of the sheriff, the proceeds of the sale of the land must be first applied to the payment of all the justice's judgments. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.

Same—Fractional Parts of a Day.—The law takes notice of the fractional part of a day when there is a conflict between creditors arising as to the application of money received on justice's judgment filed and docketed on the same day. Bates v. Hinsdale, 65 N. C. 423.

Where Docketed.—A judgment given by a magistrate in one county cannot be docketed in another, unless previously docketed in the former county; and what is allowed to be docketed in the latter county is the transcript of judgment as docketed in the former. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Docketing in different counties, see section 7-169.

Same—Its Nature in Superior Court.—If the judgment has been docketed in the superior court and subsequently vacated by the justice of the peace, the defendant may, upon motion, have the judgment therein set aside; such docketing, however, only operates as a judgment of the superior court for the purposes of lien. Whitehurst v. Merchants, etc., Co., 109 N. C. 342, 13 S. E. 937.

A judgment of a justice of the peace, duly docketed in the superior court, becomes a judgment of the superior court, and may be enforced by execution at any time within ten years from the date of such docketing. McIlhenny v. Wilmington, Sav., etc., Co., 108 N. C. 311, 12 S. E. 100; Essex Inv. Co. v. Pickelsimer, 210 N. C. 541, 187 S. E. 813. See also section 1-234 and notes thereto.

The judgment as actually docketed is the only authority for the execution named; the form of the docketed judgment depends upon that of the transcript actually sent. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

§ 7-167. Effect of judgment on appeal.—In cases of appeal to the superior court from a justice's judgment docketed in such court, when judgment is rendered in the superior court on such appeal, the lien acquired by the docketing of such justice's judgment shall merge into the judgment of the superior court, and continue as a lien from the date of the docketing of such justice's judgment, and be superior to any other judgment docketed subsequent to the date of the justice's judgment, except prior attachment liens and judgment on the same. The clerk of the superior court shall carry forward and tax into the judgment of the superior court all costs incurred in the justice's court, including transcript and docketing, as well as all costs incurred in the superior court, and shall issue execution only on the judgment rendered in the superior court, and not upon the justice's judgment. When the judgment of the superior court is satisfied, it shall be a satisfaction of the justice's judgment, and the clerk shall note such satisfaction on the record of the justice's judgment. (Rev., s. 1479; 1903, c. 179; C. S. 1518.)

Effect of Appeal.—An appeal from a judgment of the justice of the peace does not deprive the plaintiff of the right to have the judgment docketed, nor does it take away the lien of the judgment. Durham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 7-168. Entries made by clerk when judgment is rendered.—Whenever a transcript of a judgment taken before a justice of the peace is docketed on the judgment docket of the superior court and the same is afterwards reversed, modified, or affirmed in the superior court on appeal by a final judgment, the clerk of said court shall within ten days thereafter enter on the judgment docket where the said transcript was first docketed, the word "reversed," "modified," or "affirmed," as the case may be, and further refer to the book and page where can be found the judgment reversing, modifying, or affirming the former judgment. Any clerk failing to perform such duties as are required of him in this section shall pay to any person all such damages as he may have sustained by such failure. (Rev., s. 1479; 1907, c. 880; C. S. 1519.)

§ 7-169. Justice's judgment removed to another county.—Any person who may desire to have a justice's judgment in his favor removed to another county to be enforced against the goods and chattels of the defendant must obtain from the justice who rendered the judgment a transcript thereof, under his hand; and must further procure a certificate from the clerk of the superior court of the county where the judgment was rendered, under the seal of his court, that the justice who gave the judgment was, at the rendition thereof, a justice of the county. On such transcript of the judgment, thus certified, any justice in any other county may award execution for the sum therein expressed. (Rev., s. 1480; Code, s. 846; C. S. 1520.)

Cross Reference.—As to execution issuing on judgment rendered in a justice of the peace court when docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court, see § 7-166.

Docketing in Different Counties.—The fact that a judgment docketed in one county is afterwards docketed in another, does not deprive it of the lien it had on the defendant's land in the first county. Perry v. Morris, 65 N. C. 221.

Docketing in the county where the judgment was rendered is necessary before the same can be docketed in another county. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

Same—The Transcript Docketed.—The transcript is what is allowed, by this section, to be docketed in the county other than that where the judgment was rendered. McAden v. Banister, 63 N. C. 479.

§ 7-170. Issue and return of execution.—Execution may be issued on a judgment, rendered in a justice's court, at any time within one year after the rendition thereof, and shall be returnable sixty days from the date of the same. (Rev., s. 1481; Code, s. 840, Rule 14; C. S. 1521.)

Failure to Docket.—The lost vitality of a judgment not docketed within one year from its rendition cannot be restored by placing it on the docket of the superior court. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 19 S. E. 645; Woodard v. Paxton, 101 N. C. 26, 28, 7 S. E. 469, nor will such docketing in the superior court arrest the running of the statute of limitation. Daniel v. Laughlin, 87 N. C. 433, 434.

Same—Rights of Purchaser.—A purchaser under an execution on a judgment of a justice of the peace docketed after the lapse of one year acquires no title although he be a stranger to the judgment and without notice. Cowen v. Withrow, 114 N. C. 558, 19 S. E. 645.

Execution may be issued by the justice of the peace unless the cause has been removed to the superior court. Bailey v. Hester, 101 N. C. 538, 8 S. E. 164, and he may likewise recall the execution where it is improvidently issued. Id.

Application of Proceeds.—A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to direct the application by a sheriff, of the proceeds of an execution issued by another justice of the peace upon the ground that the latter was null and void. Cary v. Allegood, 121 N. C. 54, 28 S. E. 61.

§ 7-171. Levy and lien of execution.—Executions issued by a justice, which must be directed to any constable or other lawful officer of the county, shall be a lien on the goods and chattels of the defendant named therein, from the levy thereof only, but shall not be levied on or enforced in any manner against real estate; but when a justice's judgment shall be made a judgment of the superior court, as is elsewhere provided, the execution shall be capable of being levied and collected out of any property of the defendant in execution, and it shall be a lien on the real estate of said defendant from the time when it becomes a judgment of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1482; Code, s. 841; 1868-9, c. 159, s. 5; C. S. 1522.)

To Whom Directed.—Execution from a justice's court must be directed to "any constable or other lawful officer of the county," and if it comes into the hands of the sheriff, he must obey it. McGloughan v. Mitchell, 126 N. C. 681, 36 S. E. 164. But a constable cannot serve process addressed to the sheriff, nor can a sheriff serve process addressed to a constable. Id.

Same—Appraisers.—A constable to whom an execution from the court of a justice of the peace has been delivered may summon appraisers and administer to them the prescribed oaths. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 7 S. E. 883.

Personal Property.—It is not necessary, under this section, that the judgment be docketed in the superior court, to entitle the judgment creditor to an execution against personal property. McAuley v. Morris, 101 N. C. 369, 373, 7 S. E. 883.

Real Property.—A judgment of a justice of the peace, when duly docketed in the office of the superior court clerk, becomes a judgment of that court to all intents and purposes, and is a lien upon all of the real estate of the defendant in the county. Dysart v. Brandreth, 118 N. C. 968, 23 S. E. 966.

§ 7-172. Stay of execution.—In all actions founded on contract, whereon judgments are rendered in justices' courts, stay of execution, if prayed for at the trial by the defendant or his attorney, shall be granted by the justices in the following manner: For any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars, one month; for any sum above twenty-five dollars and not exceeding fifty dollars, three months; for any sum above fifty dollars and not exceeding one hundred dollars, four months; for any sum above one hundred dollars, six months. But no stay of execution shall be allowed in any action wherein judgment is rendered on a former judgment taken before a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 1483; Code, s. 842; 1868-9, c. 272; C. S. 1523.)

§ 7-173. Security on stay of execution.—The party praying for a stay of execution shall, within ten days after the trial, give sufficient security, approved by the justice, for payment of the judgment, with interest thereon till paid, and cost; and the acknowledgment of the surety, entered by the justice in his docket and signed by the surety, shall be sufficient to bind such surety. If the judgment be not discharged at the time to which execution has been stayed, the justice who awarded the judgment shall issue execution against the principal, or surety, or both. (Rev., s. 1484; Code, s. 843; C. S. 1524.)

Generally.—An undertaking that the appellant shall pay all costs that may be awarded against him on an appeal from a justice's court, and that if the judgment or any part thereof be affirmed, or the appeal dismissed, the appellant shall pay the amount directed to be paid by the judgment, is in compliance with the statute, and does not restrict the obligation to pay the judgment (if affirmed) as rendered in the justice's court, but the signers are bound to pay such as may be rendered in the superior court against the appellant. It is not necessary, to bind the appellant party to a suit, that he should sign the undertaking. Walker v. Williams, 88 N. C. 7.

Judgment Remains Unimpaired.—Although the execution on the judgment may be stayed on giving it undertaking as herein provided for, the force and effect of the judgment remains unchanged. Dunham v. Andres, 128 N. C. 207, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 7-174. Stay of execution on appeal.—In all cases of appeal from justices' courts, if the appellant desires a stay of execution of the judgment, he may, at any time, apply to the clerk of the appellate court for leave to give the undertaking as provided in a subsequent section; and the clerk, upon the undertaking being given, shall make an order that all proceedings on the judgment be stayed. Instead of before the clerk of the appellate court, the appellant may give the undertaking before the justice who tried the cause, who shall indorse his approval thereon. (Rev., ss. 1485, 1486; Code, ss. 882, 883; 1869-70, c. 187; C. S. 1525.)

Mortgage as Substitute for Undertaking.—There is no statutory provision that allows a mortgage of real or personal property to be given in lieu of the undertaking on appeal from a justice's judgment, required by this section. Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317. Yet, if the defendant give and the plaintiff accept such mortgage, it is valid and can be enforced. The stay of the execution is a valuable and sufficient consideration to support the mortgage. Id.

Judgment Remains Unimpaired.—See note of Dunham v. Andres, 128 N. C. 207, 38 S. E. 832, section 7-173.

Action on Bond.—In an action on a bond given to stay execution on an appeal from a justice's judgment, it is not necessary to allege that the plaintiff has sustained damage on account of the appeal. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 371.

§ 7-175. Nature of undertaking.—The undertaking shall be in writing, executed by one or more sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice or clerk making the order, to the effect that if judgment be rendered against the appellant, the sureties will pay the amount together with all costs awarded against the appellant, and when judgment shall be rendered against the appellant, the appellate court shall give judgment against the said sureties. And in the event that said defendant shall prior to entry of the final judgment be adjudicated a bankrupt, then and in that event, the surety or sureties on said bond shall remain bound as if they were co-debtors with the defendant and the plaintiff may continue the prosecution of the action against said sureties, as if they were co-defendants in the cause. (Rev., s. 1487; Code, s. 884; 1879, c. 68; 1933, c. 251, s. 1; C. S. 1526.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1933, c. 251, was added the sentence, appearing at the end of this section, which provides for liability of sureties in case defendant is adjudicated a bankrupt.

Substantial Compliance Sufficient.—A literal compliance with the provisions of this section is unnecessary—a substantial compliance is sufficient. McMinn v. Patton, 92 N. C. 571.

Surety's Liability Attaches When Final Judgment Rendered against Principal.—The liability of a surety on a bond given in accordance with this section to stay execution of a judgment of the justice of the peace pending appeal, as provided by § 7-174, attaches when or if final judgment is rendered against the principal, and where the principal has been relieved of liability by a discharge in bankruptcy pending the appeal, plaintiff's claim being filed in the schedule in bankruptcy, no final judgment is rendered against the principal, and the surety may not be held liable on the stay bond. Note: this decision was given on the basis that chapter 251, Public Laws of 1933, amending this section, is prospective in effect and does not apply to bonds executed prior to its effect. Sutton v. Davis, 205 N. C. 464, 171 S. E. 738.

Mortgage as substitute for undertaking, see note of Comron v. Standland, 103 N. C. 207, 9 S. E. 317, section 7-174.

Effect of Bankruptcy.—Where a judgment was rendered against the defendant before a justice of the peace, and an undertaking filed as provided for by this section, and pending the appeal be obtained a discharge in bankruptcy, it was held, that the sureties were not liable. Laffoon v. Kerner, 138 N. C. 281, 50 S. E. 654.

The Laffoon case, supra, was decided prior to the 1933 amendment to this section and must be read in the light of the law as it existed prior to the amendment. For a discussion of the Laffoon case and the change effected by the 1933 amendment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 221.

§ 7-176. Execution stayed upon order given.—A delivery of a certified copy of the order, hereinafter mentioned, to the justice of the peace shall stay the issuing of an execution on the judgment; if it has been issued, the service of a certified copy of such order on the officer holding the execution shall stay further proceedings thereon. A certified copy of such order shall also be served on the respondent, or on his agent or attorney, within ten days after the making thereof. (Rev., s. 1488; Code, s. 885; C. S. 1527.)

Art. 22. Appeal.

§ 7-177. No new trial; either party may appeal.—A new trial is not allowed in a justice's court in any case whatever; but either party dissatisfied with the judgment in such court may appeal therefrom to the superior court, as hereinafter prescribed. (Rev., s. 1489; Code, s. 865; C. S. 1528.)

Cross References.—As to appeal from court of justice of peace being first heard in recorder's court, see § 7-243; in county civil court, see § 7-373; in special county court, see § 7-427. As to rehearing when judgment rendered against party absent because of sickness, excusable mistake or neglect, see Rule 21 of § 7-149.

New Trial Not Allowed.—When both parties to an action are present at the trial in a justice court, and the case is heard and judgment rendered, a new trial cannot be allowed. The party dissatisfied must appeal to the superior court. Froneburger v. Lee, 66 N. C. 333.

Strict compliance with the requirements for perfecting the appeal given by this section is required. Green v. Hobgood, 74 N. C. 234.

Time for Taking.—See note of Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 172, section 7-179.

Rehearing.—See note of Salmon v. McLean, 116 N. C. 209, 21 S. E. 178, section 7-149, Rule 21.

Bastardy Proceeding.—A bastardy proceeding, being a civil action, is subject to appeal by either party. State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 736, 742, 47 S. E. 750.

Cited in State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 550, 172 S. E. 407.

§ 7-178. Appeal does not stay execution.—No appeal shall prevent the issuing of an execution on a judgment, or work a stay thereof, except as provided for by giving an undertaking and obtaining an order to stay execution. (Rev., s. 1490; Code, s. 875; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 6; C. S. 1529.)

An appeal from a justice of the peace does not vacate the judgment nor does it suspend its operation. Dunham v. Anders, 128 N. C. 207, 211, 38 S. E. 832.

§ 7-179. Manner of taking appeal.—The appellant shall, within ten days after judgment, serve a notice of appeal, stating the grounds upon which the appeal is founded. If the judgment is rendered upon process not personally served, and the defendant did not appear and answer, he shall have fifteen days, after personal notice of the rendition of the judgment, to serve the notice of appeal herein provided for. (Rev., s. 1491; Code, s. 876; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 7; C. S. 1530.)

This section contemplates and applies to causes of which the court has acquired jurisdiction, and does not affect a case which enables one to obtain relief from a judgment entered against him when the court for lack of service was without jurisdiction to make any orders in any way affecting the rights of person or property. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 332, 109 S. E. 29.

Justice of Peace Included.—The principal both as to the right and procedure for a defendant against whom service of summons has not been made, or the same waived, to have the judgment set aside applies to the courts of justice of the peace as well as to those of more extensive jurisdiction. Graves v. Reidsville Lodge, 182 N. C. 330, 109 S. E. 29.

Duty of Justice.—A justice of the peace who takes a case under advisement and later renders judgment must notify the parties thereof to afford them opportunity to appeal in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Blacker v. Bullard, 196 N. C. 696, 146 S. E. 807.

Time.—An appeal must be taken to the next term of the appellate court. Hahn v. Guilford, 87 N. C. 172.

From the decision of a Justice of the Peace in a bastardy proceeding either the woman or the defendant may appeal to the Superior Court, but the appeal must be taken to the next term. The Superior Court has no right to dispense with this requirement. Helsabeck v. Grubbs, 171 N. C. 377, 88 S. E. 473. The "next term" means any term, civil or criminal, which begins after the expiration of the ten days allowed for serving the notice of appeal. State v. Fleming, 204 N. C. 40, 42, 167 S. E. 483.

The carbon copy of a letter from the secretary of the Industrial Commission to the attorney for the defendant is not notice of appeal as herein contemplated and cannot be construed as a compliance with this section and § 7-180. Higdon v. Nantahala Power, etc., Co., 207 N. C. 39, 41, 175 S. E. 710.

Service of Notice.—Where judgment is given on process not personally served, but served by publication, and the defendant does not appear at the trial, the defendant is entitled to take fifteen days notice of judgment in which to serve notice of his appeal. Thompson v. Lynchburg Notion Co., 160 N. C. 519, 76 S. E. 470.

Same—Discretion.—Although, where an appeal from a justice of the peace is regularly docketed in due time in the superior court, and proper notice of the appeal has not been given, a judge may, in his discretion, permit notice of appeal to be given, yet he has no discretion to revive an appeal lost by delay and to permit the same to be docketed at a subsequent term to the one to which it should have been returned. Davenport v. Grisson, 113 N. C. 38, 39, 18 S. E. 78.

Same—Time of Service.—In an appeal from a justice of the peace to the superior court, notice must be served by an officer (unless service is accepted or the appeal is taken at the trial), and within ten days both upon the justice who tried the case and upon the appellee, and upon failure to give such notice, unless the judge, in his discretion, permits the notice to be given at the trial, the appeal should be dismissed. State v. Johnson, 109 N. C. 852, 13 S. E. 843.

Same—Excusable Neglect.—Where the judgment is rendered in the absence of either party and such absence is occasioned by sickness or excusable neglect, relief may be had by filing an affidavit before the justice, setting forth the grounds therefor, within ten days after judgment. Gambill v. Gambill, 89 N. C. 201. See also, Dunn v. Patrich, 156 N. C. 248, 72 S. E. 220.

Actual Service.—Where the defendant is actually served with summons he is bound to take notice of the rendition of judgment. Spaugh v. Boner, 85 N. C. 208, 209.

Service by Officer.—The notice of an appeal from a justice of the peace, when the notice is not given on the trial, must be served by an officer. Clark v. Deloatch Mills Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 111, 14 S. E. 518.

Appeals under Workmen's Compensation Act shall, in so far as is reasonable and consonant with the language of the act and legislative intent, conform to this section. Summerell v. Chilean Nitrate Sales Corp., 218 N. C. 451, 11 S. E. (2d) 304.

§ 7-180. No written notice of appeal in open court.—Where any party prays an appeal from a judgment rendered in a justice's court, and the adverse party is present in person or by attorney at the time of the prayer, the appellant shall not be compelled to give any written notice of appeal either to the justice or to the adverse party. (Rev., s. 1492; Code, s. 877; 1869-70, c. 187; 1876-7, c. 251, s. 8; C. S. 1531.)

Party Present.—Where the party is present when the appeal is prayed for, no written notice is required. State v. Crouse, 86 N. C. 617, 620.

Applicability of Estoppel.—Where the defendant upon judgment being rendered against him in a justice's court appealed in open court, and afterwards told the justice not to send up the papers, who thereupon delayed in so doing, and thereafter the defendant changed his mind and filed with the clerk of the superior court a bond sufficient to cover the plaintiff's claim and costs: Held, that it was not error in the court below to refuse to dismiss the appeal. Suttle v. Green, 78 N. C. 76.

§ 7-181. Justice's return on appeal.—The justice shall, within ten days after the service of the notice of appeal on him, make a return to the appellate court and file with the clerk thereof the papers, proceedings and judgment in the case, with the notice of appeal served on him. He may be compelled to make such return by attachment. But no justice shall be bound to make such return until the fees, prescribed by law for his service, be paid him. The fee so paid shall be included in the costs, in case the judgment appealed from is reversed. (Rev., s. 1493; Code, s. 878; C. S. 1532.)

Payment of Fees Necessary.—Officers of the court are not compelled to perform their duties until fees prescribed by law are paid or tendered them, but they must be demanded by them before laches can be imputed to litigants. West v. Reynolds, 94 N. C. 333.

Statement of Evidence Not Sent Up.—The requirement of this section that the justice file with the clerk, "the papers, proceedings and judgment in the case," does not include a statement of the evidence, unless there was an exception by one of the parties. London v. Headen, 76 N. C. 72, 74.

Liability of Justice.—The sending up an appeal to the superior court by the justice of the peace upon the payment of the cost is a judicial act, and no action for damages will lie against him for failing to send up the papers in apt time. Simonds v. Carson, 182 N. C. 82, 108 S. E. 353.

Power of Justice Ends upon Transmission of Appeal.—After a justice of the peace has transmitted an appeal from his judgment and all the papers to the superior court, he has no power to grant a motion to set aside his judgment for want of jurisdiction. Forbes v. McGuire, 116 N. C. 449, 21 S. E. 178.

Remedy Where Justice Fails in His Duty.—A motion

in the superior court for a recordari or an attachment under this section is the remedy given an appellant for the failure of the justice to send up an appeal, and it is no legal excuse for the appellant to show that he had paid to the justice his fees and those of the clerk, and that the justice had failed to docket it as required by the statutes. The appellant would thus make the justice his agent and for his neglect he would be responsible. MacKenzie v. Davidson County Develop. Co., 151 N. C. 276, 65 S. E. 1003.

Failure to Sign Return.—The failure of a justice of the peace to sign the return of notice of appeal does not vitiate the proceedings in the superior court, where the appellant had given notice of appeal and paid the justice's fee, and the appellee made no motion for any purpose, but made a general appearance in the superior court at the trial in person and by attorney. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 7-182. Defective return amended.—If the return be defective, the judge or clerk of the appellate court may direct a further or amended return as often as may be necessary, and may compel a compliance with the order by attachment. (Rev., s. 1494; Code, s. 879; C. S. 1533.)

Defective Return.—If the justice's return is defective, the judge may direct a further or amended return. Hawks v. Hall, 139 N. C. 176, 51 S. E. 857.

§ 7-183. Restitution ordered upon reversal of judgment.—If the judgment appealed from, or any part thereof, be paid or collected, and the judgment be afterwards reversed, the appellate court shall order the amount paid or collected to be restored, with interest from the time of such payment or collection. The order may be obtained on proof of the facts made at or after the hearing of the appeal, on a previous notice of six days. If the order be obtained before the judgment of reversal is entered, the amount may be included in the judgment. (Rev., s. 1495; Code, s. 886; C. S. 1534.)

Involuntary Payments.—This section only applies where there has been an involuntary payment of or on the judgment. Cowell v. Gregory, 130 N. C. 80, 40 S. E. 849. See the dissenting opinion, holding that payment of a collectible judgment rendered by a court of competent jurisdiction is involuntary.

Art. 23. Forms.

§ 7-184. Forms to be used in justice's court.—The following forms, or substantially similar ones, shall be sufficient in all cases of proceedings in civil actions, provided for in this article:

Attachment to Enforce Obedience to Above Order

(Title as in No. 1 or No. 5)

State of North Carolina, to any constable or other lawful officer of County —
Greeting:

Whereas, it appears that H. B. was duly served on the day of 19....., with an order issued by G. W. H., Esq., one of our justices of the peace for said county, requiring said H. B. to attend before said justice at his office, in said county, on the day of 19...., and be examined on oath concerning a certain debt owing to the defendant, named in the above action, by the said H. B. (or property held by the said H. B. for the benefit of the defendant, or otherwise, as the case may be);

And whereas, the said H. B., in contempt of said order, has refused or neglected, and doth still refuse or neglect, to appear and be examined on oath, as in said order he is required to do:

Now, therefore, we command you that you forthwith attach the said H. B., so as to have his body before G. W. H., Esq., one of our justices of the peace for your county, on the day of, 19, at his office, in said county, then and there to answer, touching the contempt which he, as is alleged, hath committed against our authority; and further, to perform and abide by such order as our said justice shall make in this behalf. And have you then and there this writ, with a return, under your hand, of your proceedings thereon.

Hereof fail not, at your peril.

Witness, our said justice, this day of 19

G. W. H.....
Justice of the Peace.

Affidavit for Arrest on Debt Fraudulently Contracted

(Title as in No. 1)

A. B., plaintiff above named, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. That the defendant C. D. is indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of dollars on an inland bill of exchange, drawn on the day of, 19.... by defendant on the First National Bank of Charlotte, North Carolina, payable at sight to the order of plaintiff.

2. That on the day of, 19...., the defendant applied to the plaintiff to purchase a bill of goods amounting to dollars, which the plaintiff offered to sell to the defendant for cash; that the defendant, contriving to defraud the plaintiff, represented that he had money on deposit at said National Bank for more than the amount of the proposed purchase, and offered to give plaintiff a sight draft on said bank; that the plaintiff, relying upon the representations of the said defendant, and solely induced thereby, sold and delivered a bill of goods amounting to dollars to the defendant, who thereupon drew the sight order on said bank above referred to; that on the day of, 19...., the plaintiff presented said draft at said bank for acceptance, when the same was not accepted for want of any funds in said bank to the credit of the defendant; that notice of nonacceptance was given to the defendant, who has wholly refused to pay the draft or any part thereof; that the representations made as aforesaid by the defendant were, and each and every of them was, as deponent is informed and believes, untrue; and that the defendant, as deponent is informed and believes, did not have, nor expect to have, any funds on deposit at said bank at the making of the representations above mentioned, but said defendant was then and is now wholly insolvent.

Order of Arrest

(Title as in No. 1)

North Carolina, County, Township.

To any constable or other lawful officer of said county:

For the causes stated in the annexed affidavit, you are required forthwith to arrest C. D., the defendant named above, and hold him to bail in the sum of dollars (the sum should be the amount of the plaintiff's claim), and to return this order before the undersigned at his office in said county, on the day of, 19....; of which return you will give notice to plaintiff or his attorney.

Dated this day, 19....

G. W. H.
Justice of the Peace.

Justification of Bail

(Title as in No. 1)

On this day of, 19, before G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for said county, personally appeared B. B. and D. D. (or R. S. and Y. Y., as the case may be), the bail given by the defendant C. D. in this action, for the purpose of justifying pursuant to notice; and the said B. B., being duly sworn, says:

1. That he is a resident and householder (or freeholder) in this state;

2. That he is worth the sum ofdollars (the amount specified in the order of arrest), exclusive of property exempt from execution.

And the said D. D., being duly sworn, says:

(As with the other bail.)

(And so on with each bail offered.)

(Signatures of bail.)

Subpoena to Testify

State of North Carolina, County.

To S. T., greeting: (the justice may insert any number of necessary names.)

You (and each of you) are commanded to appear personally before G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for said county, at his office in said county, on the day of, 19....., to give evidence in a certain civil action now pending before said justice, and then and there to be tried, between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, on the part of the defendant (or plaintiff).^{*} Herein fail not, under the penalty prescribed by law. Witness our said justice, this day of, 19

G. W. H.....

[No. 27]

N. B.—The justice may, instead of a formal subpoena, indorse on the summons or other process an order for witnesses, substantially as follows:

The officer to whom the within process is directed will summon the following persons as witnesses for the plaintiff:; and the following as witnesses for the defendant:; and will notify all such witnesses to appear and testify at the time and place within named for the return of this process.

Dated this day of, 19

G. W. H.....

Justice of the Peace.

[No. 28]

Subpoena Duces Tecum

If any witness has a paper or document which a party desires as evidence at the trial, the justice will pursue the form No. 26 as far down as the asterisk (*) and then add the following clause:

And you, S. T., are also commanded to bring with you and there produce as evidence a certain bond (describe particularly) which is now in your possession or under your control, together with all papers, documents, writings or instruments in your custody, or under your control. (Conclude as in form No. 26.)

Form of Oath of Witness

You swear that the evidence you will give as to the matters in difference between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. So help you, God.

[No. 30]

Proceedings against Defaulting Witness

When a witness, under subpoena, fails to attend, the justice will note the fact in his docket by some such entry as the following:

R. P., a witness summoned on behalf of the plaintiff, called and failed.

If the party who suffers by default of the witness wishes to move for the penalty against him, he will serve substantially the following notice on the witness:

To R. P.:

Take notice, that on the day of, 19, the plaintiff in the above action will move G. W. H., Esq., the justice before whom the trial of said action was had, on the day of, 19, for judgment against you for the sum of dollars, forfeited by reason of your failure to appear and give evidence on said trial as you were summoned to do.

Dated this day of, 19

A. B., Plaintiff.

The justice will enter the proceedings on the foregoing notice on his docket as follows:

A.	B.	} Justice's Court. Motion for penalty against R. P., defaulting witness.

..... day of, 19, A. B., above named, appears, and according to a notice filed and duly served on R. P., moved for the penalty of dollars forfeited by the said R. P. by reason of his failure to attend and give evidence on the trial of a cause, wherein A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, tried before me at my office on the day of, 19, as appears by entry duly made on my docket; when and where the said R. P., a witness summoned on the part of the plaintiff in that action, was called and did fail.

R. P. appears and assigns for excuse "high water," and offers his own affidavit, which is filed. He also offers as a witness in his behalf S. S., who, being duly sworn, testifies that (state what S. S. says about the condition of the water at the time). R. P., having no other evidence, closed the case on his part. Whereupon A. B. offered M. Y. as a witness, who, being sworn, testifies (state what witness says).

Neither party having any other evidence, and after hearing all the proofs and allegations submitted for and against the motion, it is adjudged, on motion of A. B., that A. B. do recover of R. P. the sum of dollars, penalty forfeited by reason of the premises, and the further sum of dollars, costs of this motion.

Form of a Venire

The justice will make a list of the persons drawn by him as jurors, and indorse thereon substantially as follows:

To O. P. M., constable of County:

You are hereby directed to summon the persons named within to appear as jurors before me at my office in your county, on the, day of, 19, for trial of a civil action now pending between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, then and there to be tried. And have you then and there the names of the jurors you shall summon, with this precept.

Dated this day of, 19.....

G. W. H.....

Justice of the Peace.

[No. 32]

Form of Juror's Oath

You swear well and truly to try the matter in difference between A. B., plaintiff, and C. D., defendant, and a verdict to give thereon according to the evidence in the cause. So help you, God.

Form of Oath to Constable in Charge of the Jury

You swear that you will, to the utmost of your ability, keep the persons sworn as jurors on this trial together in some private and convenient place, without any meat or drink, except such as may be ordered by the court; that you will not suffer any communication, orally or otherwise, to be made to them, and that you will not communicate with them yourself, orally or otherwise, unless by order of the court. So help you, God.

Summons against Defaulting Juror to Show Cause

State of North Carolina, to any constable or other lawful officer of County—
Greeting:

We command you to summon R. S. to appear before G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for your county, at his office in said county, on the day of, 19, to show cause why he, the said R. S., should not be fined according to law for his nonattendance as a juror before our said justice at his office in said county on the day of, 19, in a certain cause then and there pending, in which A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant; and have you then and there this precept, with the date and manner of your service thereof.

Witness, our said justice, this day of, 19

G. W. H.
Justice of the Peace.

[No. 35]

Demurrer to Complaint

(Title as in No. 1.)

The defendant demurs to the complaint in this action, for that the said complaint does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action (or, for that the said complaint is not sufficiently explicit to enable this defendant to understand it.)

(Signature of defendant or defendant's attorney.)

[No. 36]

Demurrer to Answer

(Title as in No. 1 or No. 5)

The plaintiff demurs to the answer of the defendant, for that the facts stated in the answer are not legally sufficient to constitute a defense to this action (or, for that the said answer is not sufficiently explicit to make this plaintiff understand it.)

(Signature of plaintiff or plaintiff's attorney.)

[No. 37]

Judgment upon Demurrer

NOTE.— If the justice thinks the objection raised by the demurrer to the pleadings is well founded, he will make this entry on his docket:

"Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and sustained; and whereupon it is ordered that the said pleading be amended without cost (or upon payment of costs, as the case may be)."

This order to amend the defective pleading is a matter of course, and is the only judgment which the justice can render upon demurrer. He cannot give a final judgment in the cause at this stage, for the party may choose to amend his pleadings and try the case on the facts. If, however, the party refuse to amend the defective pleading, the justice will disregard the same, and proceed to render final judgment, as follows:

"The plaintiff (or defendant) having refused to amend his complaint (or his answer) demurred to, it is adjudged that the defendant go without day and recover of the plaintiff the sum of dollars, costs of this action (or that the plaintiff recover of the defendant the sum of dollars, damages, and the further sum of dollars, costs of this action.)"

If the justice deem the objection, raised by the demurrer, not well founded, he will enter in his docket as follows: "Demurrer to the complaint (or to the answer) filed, heard and overruled," and he will then proceed to the evidence in the cause.

Entry in Docket

NOTE.—The following is offered as a general precedent of the manner in which the justice will make the entries in his docket:

(Title as in No. 1)

....., 19 Summons issued; returnable on the instant at my office.

....., 19 Summons returned, served on defendant by O. P. M., constable, on the instant, both parties appear, the plaintiff in person, the defendant by R. H. R., Esq., attorney.

The plaintiff complains on a promissory note executed by the defendant to him, dated, 19, payable one day after date, for $....., and also for goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and claims damages for $

The defendant answers and denies each and every allegation in the complaint, and claims a setoff of $..... for wood sold and delivered to the plaintiff, and also of $..... for work and labor performed for the plaintiff.

On joining issue of fact as above, the action is, by consent of parties, adjourned to the instant, at my office.

A venire is also issued at the plaintiff's (or defendant's) demand, returnable at the time and place last mentioned.

....., 19, The parties appear and proceed to the trial of the cause. The following jurors are returned as summoned upon the venire by O. P. M., constable. (Insert the names of all jurors summoned.) The following jurors, who are returned as summoned, do not appear. (Insert their names.) The following jurors appear according to the summons. (Insert their names.) The following jurors are sworn to try the action. (Insert their names.)

H. P. and J. M., witnesses for the plaintiff, and W. F., a witness for the defendant, are sworn and testify; J. S., a witness on the part of the defendant, is offered, but objected to by the plaintiff on the ground (state the ground), and rejected.

Having heard the evidence (and the arguments of a counsel, if any), the cause is submitted to the jury, who retire, under charge of O. P. M., a constable duly sworn for that purpose, and afterwards return in open court and publicly deliver their verdict, by which they find in favor of the plaintiff for $..... damages; whereupon, I adjudged that the plaintiff do recover of the defendant—

Damages, - - - - - $.....

Costs, - - - - -

....., 19 Execution issued for above judgment to O. P. M., constable.

....., 19 Notice of appeal served on me by defendant; my fee paid and return to the appeal made by me.

N. B.—If the action is tried by the justice without a jury, all that relates to the venire and the verdict in the above form must be left out, and the judgment will be entered as follows:

After hearing the proofs and allegations of the respective parties, I do adjudge that the plaintiff recover, etc. (as above).

Form of Notice of Appeal to the Superior Court, Where a New Trial of the Whole Matter is to be Had

(Title as in No. 1)

To G. W. H., Esq., a justice of the peace for said county.

Take notice, that the defendant in the above action appeals to the Superior Court from the judgment rendered therein by you on the day of, 19...., in favor of the plaintiff for the sum of sixty-five dollars damages and the further sum of three dollars and seventy-five cents costs, and that this appeal is founded upon the ground that the said judgment is contrary to law and evidence.

Return to Notice of Appeal

A..... B..... } against } County of
C..... D..... }

To the Superior Court of County:

An appeal having been taken in this action by the defendant, I, G. W. H., the justice before whom the same was tried, in pursuance of the notice of appeal hereto annexed, do hereby certify and return that the following proceedings were had by and before me in said action:

On the first of February, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine, at the request of the plaintiff, I issued a summons in his favor and against the defendant, which is herewith sent. Said summons was, on the return day thereof, returned before me at my office; and at the same time and place the parties personally appeared.

The plaintiff complained for goods sold and delivered to defendant to the amount of $75. The defendant denied the right of the plaintiff to recover that amount for the goods, on the ground that he had paid, at or shortly after the purchase of said goods, dollars thereon; and he also claimed to have a setoff against the plaintiff to the amount of $85 for board and lodging furnished to plaintiff and work and labor done for him; and he claimed to be entitled to judgment against the plaintiff for $.....

Both parties introduced evidence upon the claims so made by them, and after hearing their proofs and allegations, I rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, on the tenth of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, for $65 damages, and for the further sum of $3.75, costs of the action.

I also certify that on the eleventh of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, the defendant served the annexed notice of appeal on me, and at the same time paid me my fee of $1 for making my return.

All of which I send, together with the process, pleadings, and other papers in the cause. Dated this 15th day of February, 1904.

G. W. H.....

Justice of the Peace.

N. B.—If the cause was tried by a jury, state the fact and set forth the verdict, with the judgment thereon. It is not necessary to set out in the return a copy of any process, pleading, affidavit or other paper. It is sufficient to refer to such a paper as filed and as herewith sent.

Where the Sum Demanded Exceeds Two Hundred Dollars

It appearing that the sum demanded by the plaintiff in this action exceeds two hundred dollars, it is ordered that the action be dismissed, and judgment is rendered against A. B., plaintiff, for the sum of dollars, costs.

Where the Title to Real Estate is in Question

N. B.—The defendant, if he wishes to make answer to title, must file a written answer to the complaint, setting forth the facts.

Answer of Title

The defendant answers to the complaint:

1. That no allegation thereof is true.

2. That the plaintiff ought not to have or maintain his action against the defendant, because the premises mentioned and described in the complaint, at the time when the rent and render, for which said action is brought, is alleged to be due, was and is now the land and freehold of one J. D., and not that of the plaintiff; nor was the plaintiff then, nor is he now, entitled to the possession thereof; and the defendant further answers that the title to said premises was, at the time aforesaid, and is now, in said J. D., and will come in question on the trial of this action.

N. B.—The justice will state all the proceedings in the action from the issuing of the summons down to the appearance of the parties and the complaint of the plaintiff, and then proceed as follows:

Whereupon, the said defendant, before answering said complaint, made and served an offer, in writing, to allow the plaintiff to take judgment against him for the sum of fifty dollars with costs;* and the said plaintiff thereupon accepted such offer, and gave notice thereof to the defendant in writing; said offer and acceptance thereof being filed;

Now, therefore, judgment is accordingly rendered in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant for the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

If notice of acceptance is not given, the entry will be as follows:

(Follow the foregoing form down to the asterisk (*) and then add):

And the said plaintiff having refused to accept such offer, the defendant answered the complaint by denying, etc. (state the defense of the defendant down to the judgment, which, in case the plaintiff fails to recover more than the sum mentioned in the offer, will be entered thus):

After hearing the proof and allegations of the respective parties, I adjudge that the plaintiff do recover the sum of fifty dollars damages, and the further sum of one dollar, costs.

I further adjudge that the defendant do recover of the plaintiff the sum of two dollars and seventy-five cents, costs accruing in the action subsequent to the offer of the defendant referred to.

Record of Conviction of a Contempt

The justice will make an entry in his docket stating the particular circumstances of the contempt, of which the following is offered as an example:

Whereas, on the.....day of....., 19....., while engaged in the trial of an action (or other judicial act, as the case may be) in which A. B. was plaintiff and C. D. was defendant, at my office in.....County, M. B. did willfully and contemptuously interrupt me, and did then and there conduct himself so disorderly and insolently towards me, and by making a loud noise did disturb the proceedings on said trial (or other judicial act) and impair the respect due to the authority of the law; and on being ordered by me to cease making such noise and disturbance, the said M. B. refused so to do, but on the contrary did publicly declare and with loud voice (state whatever offensive words were used); and whereas, when immediately called upon by me to answer for the said contempt said M. B. did not make any defence thereto, nor excuse himself therefrom; the said M. B. is therefore convicted of the contempt aforesaid, and is adjudged to pay a fine of five dollars and be imprisoned in the county jail for the term of two days, and until he pays such fine or is duly discharged from imprisonment according to law.

SUBCHAPTER VI. RECORDERS' COURTS.

Art. 24. Municipal Recorders' Courts.

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 1.

Cross References.—As to abolishing municipal recorder's court, see § 7-212. See also, note to § 7-278.

Constitutionality.—Where the question of the constitutionality of this section establishing recorders' courts by a general act is the subject of the action, and pending the appeal the Legislature has withdrawn the effect or operation of the statute from a certain county (Caldwell) wherein the establishment of the court was the subject of injunctive relief, the cause of action abates and the appeal will be dismissed at the cost of each party, and the order restraining the establishment of the particular court will continue to be effective. Coffey v. Rader, 182 N. C. 689, 110 S. E. 106.

Cited in Stephens v. Dowell, 208 N. C. 555, 181 S. E. 629; State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-186. Recorder's election and qualification; term of office and salary.—The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and who shall be of good moral character and, at the time of his appointment or election, a qualified elector of the municipality. The first recorder, upon the establishment of such court, shall be elected by the governing body of the municipality, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and he shall hold office until the next municipal election and until his successor is duly elected and qualified. If a vacancy occur in the office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the governing body of the municipality, at the regular or special meeting called for that purpose. After the first elected recorder each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the municipality in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the elective officers of the municipality, and in the general election for such officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office, as is now provided by law for a justice of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the board of the city or town. The salary of the recorder shall be determined and fixed in advance by the governing body of the city or town, and shall not be increased or decreased during the term of his office, and shall be paid out of the funds of the municipality: Provided, that the governing body of such city or town is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 2; 1925, c. 32, s. 2; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1537.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oath required of justice of peace, see § 11-11. As to oaths required of public officials generally, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, Const., Art. VI, s. 7. As to penalty for failure to take oaths, see § 128-5.

Editor's Note.—The act of 1925 added two provisos to the section. The 1943 amendment struck out the second proviso making the recorder eligible to hold the office of mayor.

Mandamus to Compel Appointment.—When it appears on appeal to the Supreme Court from admitted facts that a board of aldermen of an incorporated town are acting in violation of a command of the statute that they elect a recorder in the manner specified therein, a mandamus will issue, in view of the public interests involved. Battle v. Rocky Mount, 156 N. C. 329, 72 S. E. 354.

Constitutional Provisions.—It is held in State v. Bateman, 162 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 768, that a former requirement that the recorder must be "a licensed attorney at law" is unconstitutional, on the ground that it does not lie within the power of the legislature to add to the constitutional disqualifications to hold office.

§ 7-187. Time and place of holding court.—The court shall be opened for the trial of criminal cases at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is legally disposed of. The court shall be held in the city or town hall, or other place provided therefor, and other sessions of the court may be called by the recorder, as necessity may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 3; C. S. 1538.)

§ 7-189. Procedure in the court.—The recorder shall preside over the court and try and determine all criminal actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this article, and the proceedings of the court shall be the same as are now prescribed for courts of justices of the peace and for the superior court so far as the same may reasonably apply. (1919, c. 277, s. 9; C. S. 1540.)

§ 7-190. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have the following jurisdiction within the following named territory:

1. Original, exclusive, and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses committed within the corporate limits of the municipality which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which the mayor or other municipal court now has jurisdiction.

2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace of all offenses committed outside the corporate limits of the municipality and within a radius of five miles thereof, which is now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state.

3. Exclusive, original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed within the corporate limits of such municipality and outside, but within a radius of five miles thereof, which are below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.

4. Concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime committed within the territory above mentioned, of which the recorder's court is not herein given final jurisdiction.

5. All jurisdiction given by the general laws of the state to justices of the peace, or to the superior court, to punish for contempt, to issue writs ad testificandum, and other process to require the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court. (1919, c. 277, s. 4; 1925, c. 32, s. 3; C. S. 1541.)

Cross References.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64; for statutory definition of felony, see § 14-1.

Editor's Note.—In the second and third provisions of this section, the five mile radius is new with the acts of 1925; heretofore the jurisdictional limits herein mentioned was confined to a radius of two miles of the corporate limits of the municipality.

Conflicting Jurisdiction of Magistrate and City Courts.—The legislature may constitutionally grant a city court exclusive jurisdiction of offenses occurring within the city limits and embraced within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Baskerville, 141 N. C. 811, 53 S. E. 742; but such exclusive jurisdiction cannot extend beyond the city limits. State v. Doster, 157 N. C. 634, 73 S. E. 111.

Jurisdiction Given Over Crimes Below Grade of Felony.—In order that recorder's courts might be permitted to take cognizance of crime and try criminals without indictment, all crimes below the degree of felony have been declared to be "petty misdemeanors" by subsection (3) of this section. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 412, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-191. Jurisdiction to recover penalties.—The recorder's court shall also have jurisdiction to try all actions for the recovery of penalties imposed by law, or by any ordinance of the municipi-

ality in which the court is located, for any offense committed within the corporate limits of the municipality or outside thereof within five miles of the corporate limits, and all such penalties shall be recovered in the name of the municipality. (1919, c. 277, s. 10; 1925, c. 32, s. 4; C. S. 1542.)

Editor's Note.—The acts of 1925 extended the radius to five miles of the corporate limits, while under the statute as it formerly stood, the radius was two miles of the corporate limits.

§ 7-192. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction not final.—In all cases heard by the recorder against any person for any offense whereof the court has not final jurisdiction and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a bond or recognizance with sufficient surety to appear at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county for the trial of criminal cases, and in default of such bond or recognizance he shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await trial; but in all capital cases such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county without bail. (1919, c. 5; C. S. 1543.)

§ 7-193. Disposition of cases when jurisdiction final.—All persons pleading guilty or convicted in the court of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction shall be fined or imprisoned, according to law, and any person entering a plea of guilty, or who may be convicted of any such offense, shall also pay the costs of the prosecution. (1919, c. 277, s. 7; C. S. 1544.)

§ 7-194. Sentences to be imposed.—When any person is convicted, or pleads guilty, of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction, the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court is held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county as provided by law; or when such person is a woman or an infant of immature years, the recorder may sentence him or her to the city or county workhouse or state reformatory, or other penal institution provided by law for such purposes. If there is no chain-gang in the county in which the court is held, the recorder may sentence the person to work upon the public roads of any other county provided with a chain-gang for the working of public roads, as authorized by the general laws of the state. (1919, c. 277, s. 8; C. S. 1545.)

Cross References.—As to sentencing prisoners for work under the supervision of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, see §§ 148-30 and 148-32. See also § 7-244.

§ 7-195. Appeal to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the recorder, in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from courts of justices of the peace. Upon such appeal the defendant shall be required to give bond or recognizance with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next term of the superior court; and in default thereof the recorder shall commit him to the county jail of the county until he shall give bond or be otherwise discharged by law. (1919, c. 277, ss. 5, 9; C. S. 1546.)

Local Modification.—Pitt: 1937, c. 134.

§ 7-196. Costs paid to the municipality.—All costs incurred in issuing warrants and serving the same in cases where the recorder has not final jurisdiction, and for the service of process arising in such cases when the process is served by the officer of the municipality, except as hereinafter provided, shall be paid to the municipality; and officers serving process issued from said court shall be allowed the same fees as are now allowed sheriffs in like cases, the same, when collected, to be paid over as herein provided. Where such officer is not an officer of a municipality such costs shall be dealt with as is now provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 6; C. S. 1547.)

§ 7-197. Seal of court.—The recorder's court shall have a seal with the impression, "The Recorder's Court of the City of _____," which seal shall be used in the attestation of writs, warrants, or other process, acts, judgments, or decrees of the court, in the same manner and to the same effect as the seal of other courts in the state; but no process issuing from the court, to be executed within the county in which court is held, shall require attestation by seal. (1919, c. 277, s. 11; C. S. 1548.)

§ 7-198. Issuance and service of process.—The recorder may issue process to the chief of police of the municipality in which the court is held, or to the sheriff, constable, or other lawful officer of the county in which the municipality is located, or to any other county in the state; and such process, when attested by the seal of the court, shall run anywhere in the state, and shall be executed by all public officers authorized to execute process, and be returned by them according to law.

The summons, warrant of arrest, and every other writ, process, or precept issuing from a recorder's court or other court inferior to the superior court, except justices of the peace, may be signed by the recorder, vice recorder, or presiding justice of the court, or by the clerk of the court or deputy clerk, where the court has a clerk or deputy. (1919, cc. 157, 277, s. 12; C. S. 1549.)

Proper Proceeding.—Under the proceedings established in "recorder's courts," the complaint and warrant—which, if necessary, must be construed together—have been established as the proper proceeding, just as has come down from the common law as to crimes the punishment of which is within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 412, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-199. Vice recorder; election and duties.—The governing body of the municipality shall, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided in this article for the election of the first recorder, elect a vice recorder, who shall have the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon the recorder when the recorder shall be prevented from attending to his duties on account of sickness or other temporary disability or by reason of his temporary absence. The vice recorder shall receive the compensation allowed to the recorder for such services for the time that he may render such service, the compensation of the vice recorder to be deducted from the salary of the recorder, and the vice recorder shall be thereafter elected by the governing body of the municipality for the same term as the recorder is elected, and any vacancy occurring in the office of vice recorder shall be filled in the same manner as is provided for the filling of vacancies in the office of recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 13; C. S. 1550.)

§ 7-200. Clerk of court; election and duties; removal; fees.—The clerk of the recorder's court shall be elected by the governing body of the city or town at the same time and for the same term as the vice recorder, and all vacancies in the office of the clerk of the court shall be filled in the manner provided for filling vacancies in the office of vice recorder. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the clerk shall enter into a bond, with sufficient surety, in a sum to be fixed by the governing body of the municipality, not to exceed five thousand dollars, payable to the state, conditioned upon the true and faithful performance of his duties as such clerk and for the faithful accounting for and paying over of all money which may come into his hands by virtue of his office. The bond shall be approved by the governing body and shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The clerk shall make monthly settlements with the county and city treasurers for all money which has come into his hands belonging to either. The clerk of the governing body of the municipality shall ex officio discharge the duties of the clerk of the court, unless the governing body shall elect some other person to discharge the duties. The governing body of the municipality shall have the right to remove the clerk of the court, either for incapacity or for neglect of the duties of his office; and in case of a vacancy for any cause the office shall be filled in the manner hereinbefore provided. Provided, that the governing body of the municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by the clerk of said court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 15, 18; 1925, c. 32, s. 5; C. S. 1551.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Acts of 1925.

§ 7-201. Clerk to keep records.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the court to keep an accurate and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments by the court imposed, and the record shall show the name and residence of the offender, the nature of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, which record shall at all times be open to inspection by any of the city authorities, or other person having business relating to the court. The clerk shall keep a permanent docket for recording all the processes issued by the court, which shall conform to the dockets kept by the clerk of the superior court. He shall also keep in proper files, to be provided by the city, a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in the court and the disposition made thereof. (1919, c. 277, s. 17; C. S. 1552.)

§ 7-202. Clerk to issue process.—The clerk of the court shall have all the power and authority now conferred upon justices of the peace to issue warrants for the arrest of all persons charged with the commission of offenses within the territory fixed in this article which warrants, however, shall be made returnable before the recorder of said court at the next sitting thereof, and shall be issued only upon affidavit made as now required by law to support warrants issued by justices of the peace. The clerk shall also have all power and authority of justices of the peace or clerk of the superior court to issue subpoenas or other process, to run anywhere within the state; and when such subpoenas or other process shall run beyond the county in which the court is located the same shall be attested by the seal of the court, and shall also be signed by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 18; C. S. 1553.)

§ 7-203. Prosecuting attorney; duties and salary.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney in the court, who shall appear for the prosecution in all cases therein and, when specially requested by the governing body of the municipality and the recorder, shall assist in the prosecution of all cases which may be bound over or appealed from the court to the superior court; for his services he shall be paid such amount per annum as may be fixed by the governing body, at the same time and in the same manner as is provided for fixing the salary of the recorder. The prosecuting attorney may, or may not, perform the duties of city attorney, in the discretion of the governing body of the municipality: Provided, that the governing body of any such municipality is hereby authorized to provide a schedule of fees to be charged by said prosecuting attorney. (1919, c. 277, s. 16; 1925, c. 32, s. 6; C. S. 1554.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision of this section is new with the Acts of 1925.

§ 7-204. Jury trial, as in justice's court.—In all trials in the court, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, the recorder shall try the same as is now provided in actions before justices of the peace wherein a jury is demanded, and the same procedure as is now provided by law for jury trials before justices of the peace shall apply: Provided, however, that the compensation allowed jurors in all cases wherein the superior court has heretofore had final jurisdiction shall be the same as is allowed jurors in the superior court of the county in which the recorder's court is established. (1919, c. 277, s. 24; C. S. 1555.)

Local Modification.—Burke: 1931, c. 335; Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408; Pitt: 1937, c. 134.

§ 7-205. Continuances, recognizances, and transcripts.—The recorder's court shall have the same authority to grant continuances, take bonds and recognizances, and render judgments on forfeited bonds and recognizances, as is now vested by law in the superior courts, and the procedure regulating the issuing and service of notices against defendants and their sureties upon bonds and recognizances, and all other proceedings in taking and enforcing judgments in such cases, shall be the same as in the superior court in like cases. Transcripts of any judgments rendered may be docketed in the superior court of the county in which such court is held, in the same manner and with the same effect as judgments of other courts docketed as provided by law. (1919, c. 277, s. 21; C. S. 1556.)

§ 7-206. Officers' fees; fines and penalties paid.—In each case disposed of by the recorder where the defendant is convicted or pleads guilty, there shall, in addition to other lawful costs, be allowed the following fees, to be taxed as a part of the costs against the defendant, viz: For recorder, one dollar in each case involving the breach of a municipal ordinance and any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and a fee of two dollars in all other cases; for the prosecuting attorney, one dollar in all cases of violation of municipal ordinances and of any crime or offense of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction, and in all other cases a fee as now provided by law for solicitors prosecuting in the superior court; and for the clerk of such court the same fees as are now allowed to clerks of the superior court in similar cases; but in all cases of the breach of municipal ordinances and cases of which a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction and in which the defendant pleads guilty, the fee herein allowed a prosecuting attorney may be remitted by the recorder in his discretion. All costs recovered and collected in the court, except as herein otherwise provided, shall belong to the municipality and be paid into the treasury thereof. All fines and penalties collected shall be paid by the clerk of the court to the county treasurer as provided by law, and all fees allowed by law for an arrest or serving other process in a criminal action, when the same shall have been made by the chief of police or other officer who shall be on a salary, shall be paid over to the treasurer of the municipality for the use of the same, and to reimburse it for the expense of maintaining and supporting the court. (1919, c. 277, s. 14; C. S. 1557.)

Local Modification.—Cabarrus: 1937, c. 279; Harnett: 1933, c. 75, s. 1(g).

Cross Reference.—For sections authorizing the governing bodies of municipalities to fix certain fees, see §§ 7-186, 7-200, 7-203.

§ 7-207. County to pay for offenders' work on roads.—Whenever, under any judgment of the court, any defendant is sentenced to work upon the public roads or other public work in the county, or to pay a fine and the costs of the prosecution, or costs only, and the defendant shall in fact work out the sentence or fine and costs, or either, upon the public roads or other public works, as aforesaid, then the county shall be liable for and shall pay to the treasurer of the municipality one-half the amount of the costs taxed in the cause: Provided, the sentence imposed shall be of sufficient length to reimburse the county for one-half of such costs. (1919, c. 277, s. 19; C. S. 1558.)

§ 7-208. Prosecutor may be taxed with costs.—The recorder shall have full power, in any case in which he shall adjudge that the prosecution was not required by the public interests, to tax the prosecutor with the costs of such action; and in the event the recorder shall adjudge that prosecution is frivolous or malicious, he may imprison the prosecutor for the nonpayment of such costs, as provided by law for similar cases in other courts. When the costs are paid, they shall belong to the city. (1919, c. 277, s. 20; C. S. 1559.)

§ 7-209. Justice of the peace to bind defendants to recorder's court; procedure thereon.—In case any justice of the peace residing within the territory above mentioned shall bind any person over for any offense committed within said territory, of which the justice has committing, but not final, jurisdiction, but of which the recorder's court has final jurisdiction, then such justice of the peace, instead of binding the defendant over to the superior court of the county, shall bind him to appear at the recorder's court on the day succeeding the trial before the justice, at ten o'clock a. m. The justice of the peace shall at once turn over the case to the clerk of said court, and the clerk shall, upon receipt of the same, enter the case upon the docket of the court, and the recorder shall try such person either upon the original warrant under which he was bound over or upon a new warrant to be issued by him for such offense. In all cases the recorder shall have the right to amend any warrant issued by him or by the clerk of the court, or sent up by any justice of the peace as hereinbefore provided, in the same manner and to the same extent as justices of the peace are now authorized by law to make amendments to warrants in justices' courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 22; C. S. 1560.)

§ 7-210. Transfer of certain cases to recorder's court.—All cases which shall be pending in any recorder's, police, mayor's, or other municipal court in the counties where the courts provided for in this article shall be established shall, after the election and qualification of the recorder and other officers authorized and required by this article, be transferred to the recorders' courts of the respective municipalities, to be tried in the manner and in accordance with the procedure provided; but no case pending in the superior court of any county at the time this article takes effect shall be transferred to the recorder's court, except by order of the presiding judge thereof. No cause shall be removed from the recorder's court as is now provided for the removal of cases from one justice of the peace to another. (1919, c. 277, s. 23; C. S. 1561.)

§ 7-212. How municipal recorders' courts may be abolished.—The governing body of any municipality shall have the same power, to be exercised in the same manner, subject to the same limitations, to abolish municipal recorders' courts as is given the board of commissioners of any county to discontinue a county recorder's court, under the provisions of § 7-239. (1919, c. 277, s. 35; C. S. 1582.)

§ 7-213. Extension of jurisdiction. — In any city or town within the state of North Carolina, having a population of five thousand inhabitants or more, where there is now maintained a recorder's court under and by virtue of the law, or in which a recorder's court may be hereafter established and maintained, it shall be lawful for the governing body of any such city or town, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which such city or town shall be located, to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to the township in which such city or town is located, in the manner described in the following sections. (1921, c. 216, s. 1; C. S. 1562(a).)

§ 7-214. Meeting of town and county authorities; election.—Whenever the governing body of any city or town, as described in § 7-213, and the board of county commissioners of the county in which the same shall be located, shall desire to extend the jurisdiction of the recorder's court in such city or town to include the whole township, as set forth in § 7-213, the mayor of such city or town and the chairman of such board of county commissioners shall call a joint meeting of the two boards, to be held at any place within such township as they may agree upon, and if a majority of each of such boards, at such meeting, shall by a joint resolution vote in favor of the extension of the jurisdiction of the recorder's court as herein described, then at such joint meeting the governing body of the town or city, and the board of county commissioners of the county, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election, submitting to the voters of the entire township the question of the extension of said municipal court, and that election shall be conducted by the county commissioners in the same manner as is prescribed for the conduct of elections for the establishment of municipal recorders' courts by the governing bodies of cities and towns, in so far as said procedure is applicable; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the town or city; the form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-155, subsec. (e), and if by such election such resolution is adopted it shall have the effect of conferring upon the recorder's court in such city or town the same powers, authority, and jurisdiction as to offenses or crimes committed within the township in which such city or town is located as such court would have had if the same had been committed in such city or town: Provided, however, that the extension of the jurisdiction of such recorder's court as herein described shall not have the effect of in any way extending or affecting in any manner whatsoever any ordinance or other law pertaining exclusively to such city or town. (1921, c. 216, s. 2; C. S. 1562(b).)

§ 7-215. Police powers. — Whenever the jurisdiction of any recorder's court shall have been extended as described in §§ 7-213 to 7-216, such action shall thereupon confer upon the police officers of such city or town the same powers and authority in making arrests for crimes and offenses committed anywhere within the township in which such city or town shall be located, as is now or may hereafter be conferred upon sheriffs or their deputies within their respective counties. (1921, c. 216, s. 3; C. S. 1562(c).)

§ 7-216. Resolution for extension filed with each board as records.—Whenever the governing board of any city or town and the county commissioners of the county shall have adopted the resolution extending the jurisdiction of the recorder's court as described in §§ 7-213 to 7-216, a copy of such resolution duly signed by the mayor and clerk of such city or town, and the chairman and clerk of such board of county commissioners, shall be duly filed with each board, and shall be kept and maintained as a part of their official records. (1921, c. 216, s. 4; C. S. 1562(d).)

§ 7-217. Jurisdiction not to extend to other municipalities.—No court hereafter established by the governing body of any city or town shall have jurisdiction over the territory within the corporate limits of any other incorporated city or town, or outside the county in which the city or town establishing such court is located. (1925, c. 280.)

Local Modification.—Craven, Edgecombe, Nash, Robeson: 1925, c. 280.

Art. 25. County Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-218. Established by county commissioners.—In any county in which a municipal recorder's court may not be established under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which such court has in fact not been established in the county-seat, the board of commissioners may, in their discretion, establish a recorder's court for the entire county, which shall be a court of record and shall be held at the county seat, or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners. (1919, c. 277, s. 25; 1921, c. 110, s. 1; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1563.)

Local Modification.—Caldwell: Pub. Loc. 1931, c. 138; Henderson: 1927, c. 103; 1937, c. 97; 1939, c. 238; Richmond: 1941, c. 60; Swain: Pub. Loc. 1939, c. 499.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added at the end of this section the following words "or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners."

Stated in State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 195, 173 S. E. 14.

§ 7-219. Recorder's election, qualification, and term of office.—The court shall be presided over by a recorder, who shall have the same qualifications as provided for recorders of municipalities. The first recorder shall be elected by the board of commissioners of the county, either at the time of the establishment of the court or within thirty days thereafter, and shall hold the office until the next regular election wherein county officers are elected, and until his successor shall be duly elected and qualified; and should a vacancy occur in said office at any time, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor with the qualifications herein provided, for the unexpired term, by the board of county commissioners at a regular or special meeting called for that purpose. The successor of the first recorder herein provided for and each succeeding recorder shall be nominated and elected in the county in the same manner and at the same time as is now provided by law for the nomination and election of the elective officers of the county and in the general election for such elective officers. Before entering upon the duties of his office the recorder shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county, who shall duly record the same in a book kept for that purpose. The recorder's salary shall be fixed in advance by the board of commissioners, and paid out of the county funds upon vouchers, and shall not be increased or decreased during his term. (1919, c. 277, s. 25; C. S. 1564.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: 1939, c. 238; Mecklenburg: 1937, c. 253; Perquimans: 1943, c. 742; Scotland: 1925, c. 171.

§ 7-220. Time and place for holding court.—The court shall be open for the trial of all criminal causes of which it has jurisdiction at least one day of each week, to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is transacted by trial, continuance, or otherwise. The session of the court shall be held in the county courthouse or other place within the county provided by the board of commissioners for that purpose. Special sessions of the court may be called by the recorder as the necessities may require. (1919, c. 277, s. 26; C. S. 1565.)

§ 7-221. No subsequent change of judgment.—When any case has been finally disposed of by the recorder and judgment pronounced therein, the case shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein changed, modified or stricken out by the recorder after the adjournment of the regular weekly term of court or after the adjournment of any special term of court by the recorder. (1919, c. 277, s. 26; C. S. 1566.)

§ 7-222. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and, in addition to the jurisdiction conferred by this section, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors: Provided, however, that where a special court or recorder's court shall legally exist within such county by virtue of a special act of the legislature passed before the amendments to the constitution in reference thereto, then the county recorder's court, as established in this article, shall not have jurisdiction of criminal cases within the territory of such existing recorder's court, so as to interfere with or conflict with the existing recorder's court, but shall have concurrent jurisdiction where the jurisdiction of the two courts covers the same causes or the same subject-matter. This article and the establishment of any court thereunder shall not be construed to repeal, modify or in anywise affect any existing special court or recorder's court by virtue of such former special acts herein referred to. (1919, c. 277, s. 27; C. S. 1567.)

Local Modification.—Franklin: 1943, c. 350.

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

§ 7-223. Jurisdiction and powers as in municipal court.—The recorders of county courts provided for in this article shall be vested with all the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon recorders of municipal courts, in like manner and to the same extent as if such jurisdiction and authority had been specifically in this section set forth, in so far as such jurisdiction and authority are applicable to such courts, and the provisions of this subchapter relative to municipal recorders' courts shall in all things apply to the county recorders' courts where same are not inconsistent and in so far as same are practically applicable: Provided, this section shall not take away the jurisdiction of a mayor to try breaches of ordinances when such city has no other municipal court. (1919, c. 277, s. 34; C. S. 1568.)

Local Modification.—Bertie: 1943, c. 772; Nash: c. 768.

§ 7-224. Removal of cases from justices' courts.

—When, upon written request made before entering on the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace, it shall appear proper for the cause to be removed for trial to some other justice, as is now provided by law, the cause may be removed for trial to the recorder's court of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 28; 1921, c. 110, s. 3; C. S. 1569.)

Local Modification.—Cleveland, Lenoir: 1933, c. 277; 1939, c. 63; Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 277; 1937, c. 386.

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws of 1921 this section read "upon affidavit, etc.," instead of "upon written request, etc.," as it now stands.

§ 7-225. Defendants bound by justice to recorder's court.—In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the recorder's court as provided in this article, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance or surety to appear at the next succeeding session of the recorder's court of the county, for trial; and in default of such surety such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await a trial: Provided, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the superior court any person accused of a crime within the jurisdiction of the county recorder's court, the clerk of the superior court shall, upon his own motion, transfer all papers in the case to the recorder's court, and the case shall then stand for trial at the next succeeding term of said recorder's court as if the defendant had been bound over to the recorder's court in the first instance: and Provided further, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the recorder's court any person charged with an offense beyond the jurisdiction of said court, the said recorder shall cause the accused person to enter into a new bond with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county, and shall transmit all papers in the case to the said superior court, but this shall be done without additional cost to the accused person. (1919, c. 277, s. 29; 1921, c. 110, s. 4; C. S. 1570.)

Local Modification.—Vance, Warren: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 438.

§ 7-226. Notice to accused of transfer; trial; obligation of bond.—Whenever the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the papers in any case from the superior court to a county recorder's court, he shall at the same time issue a notice to the accused person and his surety, informing them that the cause has been so transferred and requiring the accused person to appear at the next succeeding term of said recorder's court for trial, and, upon the service of said notice upon the accused person and his surety, at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, the case shall stand for trial at said term and the bond given by the accused person for his appearance at the next term of the superior court shall in all respects be valid and binding to compel the appearance of the accused person at the said next succeeding term of said recorder's court, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the recorder's court, then the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the recorder's court. (1921, c. 110, s. 5; C. S. 1570(a).)

§ 7-227. Trials upon warrants; by whom warrants issued.—All trials of criminal causes in said court shall be upon warrant issued by the clerk of the superior court or deputy clerk provided for in this article, or by the recorder or by any justice of the peace of the county. In either event such warrant shall be issued upon affidavit duly made and subscribed, setting forth the complaint against the defendant: Provided, the recorder shall have authority to amend the warrant and to allow amendment of the affidavit at any time before judgment. (1919, c. 277, s. 30; 1921, c. 110, s. 6; C. S. 1571.)

Cited in State v. Turner, 220 N. C. 437, 17 S. E. (2d) 501.

§ 7-228. Jury trial as in municipal court.—In all trials in county recorders' courts, upon demand for a jury by the defendant or the prosecuting attorney representing the state, a jury shall be had in the same manner and under the same provisions as are set forth in this subchapter in reference to municipal courts, so far as the same may be practically applicable to a county court. (1919, c. 277, s. 40; C. S. 1572.)

Local Modification.—Burke: 1931, c. 335; Cabarrus: 1939, c. 347; Craven: 1929, c. 115; Henderson: 1933, c. 316; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408; Pasquotank: 1941, c. 213; Perquimans: 1929, c. 25; Tyrrell: 1943, c. 177.

§ 7-229. Sentence imposed; fines and costs paid.

—Whenever any person shall be convicted or plead guilty of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction the recorder may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court shall be held, and assign him to work on the public roads of the county where provision has been made therefor; but if no provision has been made for working convicts upon the public roads in the county, then the recorder may sentence such person to be worked upon the public roads of any other county within the judicial district or any county within any adjoining judicial district which has made such provision: Provided, that in case the person so convicted or pleading guilty shall be a woman or an infant of immature years, then the recorder may assign him or her to the county workhouse, reformatory, or other penal institution located in the county; or if there be none, any similar institution that may be located outside of the county to which judges of the superior court are authorized to sentence such person under the general laws of the state. All fines imposed by the court shall be collected by the clerk of such court or the deputy clerk thereof in the same manner as the clerk of the superior court collects fines imposed by the superior court; and, where a defendant is convicted and fails to pay the costs of such conviction, the county shall pay such costs as is allowed by law in similar cases before the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 32; 1925, c. 308; C. S. 1573.)

Cross Reference.—As to sentencing prisoners for work under the supervision of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, see §§ 148-30 and 148-32.

§ 7-230. Appeals to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the county recorder has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the courts of justices of the peace; and any person tried before the recorder for any offense of which the court has not final jurisdiction shall, upon the recorder's finding probable cause of guilt, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before justices of the peace. (1919, c. 277, s. 33; C. S. 1574.)

Derivative Jurisdiction.—When the Superior Court sits upon an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace in a criminal action, or a judgment of a recorder's court under this section, it is sometimes said to be acting under the derivative jurisdiction of the court from which appeal is taken; the trial is had upon the warrant issued by the court which had jurisdiction and which is required to be transmitted to the court with the return to the appeal. State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 412, 191 S. E. 18.

Where the case is beyond the jurisdiction of the inferior court, it does not reach the Superior Court under this section by appeal, but by the process of "binding over," and in such case only is an indictment necessary. Id.

§ 7-231. Clerk of superior court ex officio clerk of county recorder's court.—The clerk of the superior court of any county in which a county recorder's court shall be established shall be ex officio clerk of such court. He shall keep separate criminal dockets in his office for such court in the same manner as he keeps criminal dockets in the superior court; he shall otherwise possess all the powers and functions conferred upon, and discharge all the duties required of, clerks of the superior court under the general law; and he shall be liable upon his official bond as clerk of the superior court for all of his official acts and conduct in reference thereto. Whenever the clerk of the Superior Court acts ex-officio as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, any assistant clerk or deputy clerk of the Superior Court in his office shall have power and authority to take affidavits, issue warrants and other process, administer oaths to witnesses and to perform any other duty in connection with said court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court, and for the acts of said assistant or deputy clerk, the clerk of the Superior Court shall be liable on his official bond to the same extent that he would have been liable if he had done the act himself. The preceding sentence shall not apply to recorder's courts in Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Halifax, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1935, c. 345; C. S. 1575.)

Local Modification.—Columbus: 1925, c. 232.

Editor's Note.—The last two sentences in above section were added by Public Laws 1935, chapter 345.

Cited in State v. Boykin, 211 N. C. 407, 191 S. E. 18.

§ 7-232. Deputy clerk may be appointed.—Instead of having the clerk of the Superior Court to act ex-officio as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, the board of commissioners of any county wherein a county Recorder's Court or General County Court may be established may, at the time of the establishment of said court or at the time of fixing the county budget for any succeeding year, call upon the clerk of the Superior Court to appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, and the clerk of the Superior Court shall within sixty days thereafter appoint a special deputy to act as clerk of the Recorder's Court or General County Court, unless the time for good cause shall be extended by the Board of County Commissioners. Said special deputy clerk shall assist the clerk of the Superior Court with the duties of his office and shall have all the power and authority in reference to the county Recorder's Court or General County Court conferred upon the clerk of the Superior Court by the preceding section, and he shall do all things in reference to said Recorder's Court or General County Court under the direction of the clerk of the Superior Court of the county as fully as the clerk of the Superior Court would otherwise be authorized to do. The Board of Commissioners may require and fix the official bond of said special deputy clerk for the faithful performance of his duties and fix his salary, which shall be fixed before he enters upon his duties and shall not be lowered during his term of office. His term of office shall be for the same time as the term of the recorder of said court, unless he shall be sooner removed by the clerk of the Superior Court for cause, and shall cease at any time that the court itself shall cease to exist. This section shall not apply to Bladen, Brunswick, Camden, Gates, Guilford, Halifax, Lee, Martin, Moore, Orange, Perquimans, Forsyth and Vance Counties. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; 1935, c. 346; C. S. 1576.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed this section in such a manner that a comparison is necessary in order to determine its effect.

§ 7-233. Compensation of clerk when no deputy appointed.—When no deputy clerk is appointed or elected by the board of commissioners, they are authorized to pay annually to the clerk of superior court an amount fixed by the board, which shall be in addition to any salary or fees theretofore allowed by law to the clerk of superior court, and which shall be in compensation for the services rendered by him as clerk of the county recorder's court. Such compensation shall be paid to the clerk of superior court so long as he shall perform the duties of clerk ex officio of the county recorder's court. (1919, c. 277, s. 36; C. S. 1577.)

§ 7-234. Deputy clerk to take oath of office.—If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this article he shall take the oath required of deputy clerks under the general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this article, both of which oaths shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and such deputy clerk is further authorized to perform all duties of deputy clerk under the general law in addition to the duties set forth in this article. (1919, c. 277, s. 37; C. S. 1578.)

Cross Reference.—As to oaths required, see §§ 2-13, 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-235. Prosecuting attorney may be elected.—

The board of commissioners of any county availing itself of the provisions of this article may elect, at the same time, in the same manner, and for the same term as herein provided for the election of a deputy clerk, a prosecuting attorney for said court, and fix his compensation in such amount as they may deem suitable for the services to be rendered: Provided, that the board may require the county attorney to discharge the duties of prosecuting attorney in said court, and fix his compensation accordingly. (1919, c. 277, s. 38; C. S. 1579.)

Local Modification.—Montgomery: 1929, c. 112; Washington: 1941, c. 164.

§ 7-236. Fees for issuing and serving process.—

All justices of the peace, constables and sheriffs issuing or serving warrants or other process returnable to the recorder's court shall have the same fees as are now prescribed by law, which fees shall be collected and paid out in the same manner and by the same officers as collect and distribute such fees in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 31; C. S. 1580.)

§ 7-237. Costs and fees taxed as in municipal court.—

Except as provided in § 7-238, there shall be taxed in the county recorder's court the same costs and fees for the benefit of the officers thereof as provided for municipal recorder's court. Such costs and fees shall be collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1919, c. 277, s. 39; C. S. 1581.)

§ 7-238. Fees taxed when county officer on salary; recorder's court fund.—

In cases in which the recorder or judge and the solicitor of the county recorders' courts shall be paid salaries, in lieu of fees for such recorder or judge or solicitor, the clerk of the recorder's court shall tax against the defendant who is convicted, or who confesses his guilt, or upon whom judgment is suspended in said court in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace a tax fee of three dollars in each case, and in all other cases within the jurisdiction of the said recorder's court a tax fee of six dollars, and these several sums when collected shall be paid over by said clerk to the treasurer or financial agent of the county, to be kept by him as a separate and distinct fund to be known as the recorder's court fund. This fund shall be used only in paying the salary of the recorder and prosecuting attorney of said court, and the other expenses of the court. (1921, c. 110, s. 13; C. S. 1598(a).)

§ 7-239. Courts may be discontinued after two years.—

The board of commissioners of any county which has established a county recorder's court under the provisions of this article are authorized, after two years trial of the court, to discontinue the same at any time thereafter if in their judgment the public interest shall require it. If any such court shall be so discontinued, the action or resolution must be taken or adopted at least six months prior to the next general election, and shall not go into effect until the term of office of the recorder shall expire. (1919, c. 277, s. 35; C. S. 1582.)

Art. 26. Municipal-County Courts.

§ 7-240. Established for entire county.—

The governing body of any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, according to the last federal census, in which the county courthouse is located, and the board of commissioners of the county, shall have the power, at a joint meeting of the two bodies, by joint resolution, in the manner hereinafter provided, to establish a recorder's court so as to include the entire county, outside of other municipalities therein possessing a population of two thousand or over. After the adoption of such joint resolution such municipal recorder's court shall possess all the powers and functions and exercise all the territorial jurisdiction in this subchapter conferred upon both municipal and county recorder's court under the procedure herein provided for, and subject to the provisions herein in reference to concurrent jurisdiction where a special or recorder's court exists under prior special acts in any portion of the county. (1919, c. 277, s. 41; C. S. 1583.)

§ 7-241. Election of recorder.—

If the territorial jurisdiction of such municipal recorder's court is extended to the entire county, as set forth in the preceding section, then the first recorder shall be selected for the term and in the manner hereinbefore set forth, by a joint meeting of the governing body of such municipality and the board of commissioners of the county, and such recorder shall be thereafter nominated and elected as is provided for herein for the nomination and election of a county recorder. Such recorder shall be a resident of the municipality, and in all other respects the court shall be conducted under the proceedings herein provided for municipal courts. (1919, c. 277, s. 42; C. S. 1584.)

Local Modification.—Lenoir, Onslow, Sampson: 1925, c. 233; 1927, c. 170.

In case the jurisdiction of the recorder's court of any municipality in any county shall not be extended in the manner authorized in this article, and no county recorder's court shall be established therein, then the mayors of the various cities and towns in such county shall continue to have all the powers and functions and exercise all the jurisdiction now conferred upon such officials by the general law for municipal corporations. (1919, c. 277, s. 43; C. S. 1585.)

Art. 27. Provisions Applicable to All Record-ers' Courts.

§ 7-243. Appeals from justices of the peace.—

In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace, such appeal shall be first heard in the recorder's court, in the manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the recorder's court. (1919, c. 277, s. 54½; C. S. 1597.)

Object.—One of the objects of this and related sections was to relieve the congested dockets of the Superior Court. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645.

Under the general provisions of this section, an appeal from a conviction of simple assault in a justice's court must first be taken to the recorder's court and not the Superior Court in the counties affected by the act. Id.

§ 7-244. Offenders may be sentenced to city chain-gang.—In case any municipality possessing a population of two thousand or over, as provided for herein, in which a recorder's court shall be established pursuant to the provisions of this subchapter, shall now or hereafter establish and maintain a city chain-gang, or workhouse or other penal institutions for the imprisonment and working of city prisoners, any recorder may sentence any person convicted of any offense committed within said municipality and punishable by imprisonment, to be imprisoned and worked on such city chain-gang, or in such workhouse or other penal institutions, for such time as the recorder may in his discretion determine in accordance with the law. (1919, c. 277, s. 44; C. S. 1586.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.

Cross Reference.—See § 7-194 and notes.

§ 7-245. Recorders' courts substituted for other special courts.—Wherever there has been established in any county, city, or town a recorder's court or other special court, which, under the provisions of this subchapter, might have been established hereunder, whether it shall possess exactly the same jurisdiction and functions or not, the board of commissioners of the county or the governing body of such city or town, or the governing body of such city or town and the board of commissioners of the county acting jointly, may abolish such existing court and adopt any one of the courts herein provided for by appropriate resolution of such boards. (1919, c. 277, s. 45; C. S. 1587.)

Art. 28. Civil Jurisdiction of Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-246. Civil jurisdiction may be conferred.—The board of county commissioners of any county in which there is a city or town with a population of not less than ten thousand inhabitants, in which city or town there has been established a municipal recorder's court, under the provisions of this subchapter, or in which there is a municipal recorder's court established by law may confer upon such recorder's court jurisdiction to try and determine civil actions, as hereinafter provided, wherein the party plaintiff or defendant is a resident of such county, or is doing business in the county. Such jurisdiction may be conferred by resolution by the board of county commissioners of any county, entered upon their minutes, and the board of county commissioners of the county may likewise confer civil jurisdiction on the county recorder's court to try and determine civil actions as hereinafter provided wherein one or more of the parties, plaintiff or defendant, is a resident of said county or is doing business therein. (1919, c. 277, s. 47; 1921, c. 110, s. 7; 1933, c. 166; C. S. 1589.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379; Richmond: 1941, c. 60; Surry: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 133, s. 1.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the Amendment of 1933, Public Laws 1933, c. 166, this section applied in cities or towns of not less than 10,000 "nor more than 25,000" inhabitants. The quoted clause was omitted by the amendment.

Constitutionality.—A similar statute authorizing the board of commissioners of a county having a recorder's court to allot stated civil jurisdiction to said court by the adoption of a resolution to that effect was held to be unconstitutional as an unlawful delegation of legislative powers. Durham Provision Co. v. Daves, 190 N. C. 7, 123 S. E. 593.

§ 7-247. Extent of jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of such municipal and county recorders' courts in civil actions shall be as follows: (a) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace within the county; (b) jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract, wherein the amount involved exclusive of interest and costs does not exceed one thousand dollars; (c) jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in actions not founded upon contract wherein the amount involved exclusive of interest and costs does not exceed the sum of five hundred dollars. (1919, c. 277, s. 48; 1921, c. 110, s. 8; C. S. 1590.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379; Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 174.

§ 7-248. Procedure in civil actions.—The rules of practice, issuing and serving process, and filing pleadings shall conform, as near as may be, to the practice in the superior court: Provided, it shall not be necessary to file written pleadings in any action of which justices of the peace now have jurisdiction. The process shall be returnable directly to the court; and no civil process shall be issued by any recorder's court to any county other than that in which the court is located. (1919, c. 277, s. 56; 1921, c. 110, s. 9; C. S. 1591.)

Local Modification.—Carteret: 1933, c. 379.

Cross Reference.—As to uniform practice in inferior courts where summons issued to run outside county, see §§ 1-92, 1-93.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1921, it was necessary to file written pleadings in an action of which the justice of the peace had jurisdiction.

§ 7-249. Trial by jury in civil actions.—In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a trial by jury unless demand for such trial is made before the trial begins. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1919, c. 277, s. 49; 1921, c. 110, s. 10; C. S. 1592.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408.

Editor's Note.—The amendment in 1921 changed the amount of the deposit from three to five dollars.

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408.

§ 7-251. Talesmen and challenges.—The recorder shall have the right to call in bystanders according to the practice in the superior court as nearly as the same is applicable, and each party shall have the same causes of challenge as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 51; C. S. 1594.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408.

§ 7-252. Jury as in superior court.—The jury shall be a jury of twelve, and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 52; C. S. 1595.)

Local Modification.—Craven: 1929, c. 115, s. 1; Hoke: Pub. Loc. 1937, c. 408; Surry: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 133, s. 2.

§ 7-253. Appeals to superior court.—Appeals may be taken from the recorder's court to the superior court of the county in term time, for errors assigned in matters of law, in the same manner as now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the recorder's court, or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court: Provided, that appeals from a county recorder's court to the superior court of the said county shall be tried de novo in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, ss. 53, 54; 1921, c. 110, s. 11; C. S. 1596.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision contained in this section is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-254. Enforcement of judgments.—Orders to stay execution shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the recorder's court may be enforced by executions issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court, as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace; and the judgment, when docketed, shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court as if rendered by such court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to revival of executions: Provided, that a judgment of the recorder's court shall not be a lien upon real estate until docketed in the superior court. (1919, c. 277, s. 55; 1921, c. 110, s. 12; C. S. 1598.)

Editor's Note.—The last provision, herein contained, providing docketing in the superior court before the judgment shall be a lien upon real estate, is new with the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-255. Costs in civil actions.—In all civil actions the clerk shall tax against the losing party the sum of three dollars in cases originally within the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, and the sum of six dollars in all other cases, and all sums so collected shall be disposed of as provided for tax fees in criminal actions in § 7-238. (1921, c. 110, s. 13; C. S. 1598(a).)

Cross Reference.—See also §§ 7-206 and 7-237.

Art. 29. Elections to Establish Recorders' Courts.

§ 7-256. Election required.—The courts provided for in this subchapter shall be established upon elections held as set forth in this article, except county recorders' courts which may be established by the county commissioners of any county without a popular vote. (1919, c. 277, s. 58; 1921, c. 110, s. 14; C. S. 1599.)

Editor's Note.—The excepting clause in this section was placed herein by the Acts of 1921.

§ 7-257. Municipal recorder's court.—The governing body of any city or town which may, under the terms of this subchapter, establish a court, prior to its establishment shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall be not less than thirty days nor more than two years from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the city the question of establishing such court. The form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-155, subsec. (e). (1919, c. 277, s. 58; 1939, c. 201; C. S. 1600.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment substituted "two years" for "sixty days" formerly appearing in the eighth line of this section.

§ 7-258. Notice of election.—Notice of such election shall be given, signed by the clerk of the city or town or the mayor thereof, containing in substance the resolution, the date of the election, and a reference to this subchapter, which notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks prior to said election in some newspaper published in the city or town. (1919, c. 277, s. 59; C. S. 1601.)

§ 7-259. New registration may be ordered.—The governing body of such city or town may in its discretion order a new registration of the voters for any election authorized hereunder. (1919, c. 277, s. 60; C. S. 1602.)

§ 7-260. Manner of holding election.—The election shall be held, reported, and recorded in the city or town, under the laws governing general elections as near as may be applicable to the city or town. The result of the election shall be reported to, canvassed and declared by the governing body of the city or town, and recorded upon the minutes thereof. If the majority of the votes cast is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. (1919, c. 277, s. 61; C. S. 1603.)

Cross Reference.—As to general election laws, see § 163-148 et seq.

§ 7-261. Another election after two years.—If the majority of the votes cast at such election is against the court, another election for the same purpose may thereafter be called, but not within less than two years from the first or any succeeding election in reference thereto. (1919, c. 277, s. 62; C. S. 1604.)

§ 7-262. Municipal courts with jurisdiction over the entire county.—The courts provided for in article twenty-six of this subchapter shall be established in the following manner: The governing body of the city and the board of county commissioners of the county, at a joint meeting, shall pass a joint resolution calling an election submitting to the voters of the entire county the question of the establishment of said court. The election shall be conducted by the county commissioners in the same manner as is prescribed for the conduct of elections for the establishment of municipal recorders' courts by the governing bodies of cities and towns, in so far as said procedure is applicable; the result of the election shall be recorded in the minutes of the county commissioners and certified to and recorded in the minutes of the governing body of the city. The form of the ballot shall be as prescribed in § 163-155, subsec. (e). (1919, c. 277, s. 62; C. S. 1606.)

§ 7-263. Expense of elections paid.—The expense of conducting the elections for "municipal courts" and "municipal-county courts" shall be borne by the city or municipality concerned. (1919, c. 277, s. 63; C. S. 1607.)

§ 7-264. Certain districts and counties not included.—This subchapter shall not apply to the following judicial districts: the tenth, except as to Granville and Orange counties; the eleventh; the seventeenth; the eighteenth, except as to Rutherford and Transylvania counties; the nineteenth; and the twentieth, except as to Cherokee, Jackson, Haywood and Swain counties; nor shall it apply to the counties of Chatham, Columbus, Johnston, New Hanover, and Robeson. (1919, c. 277, s. 64; 1921, c. 110, s. 16; Ex. Sess. 1921, cc. 59, 80; 1923, cc. 19, 40; 1925, c. 162; Pub. Loc. 1927, cc. 214, 545; 1929, cc. 17, 111, 114, 130, 340; 1931, cc. 3, 19; 1933, c. 142; 1935, c. 396; 1939, c. 204; 1941, c. 338; C. S. 1608.)

Local Modification.—Alexander: 1939, c. 204; Halifax: 1931, c. 3; Hyde: 1935, c. 396; 1941, c. 134.

SUBCHAPTER VII. GENERAL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 30. Establishment, Organization and Jurisdiction.

§ 7-265. Establishment authorized; official entitlement; jurisdiction.—In each county of this state, there may be established a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this subchapter and which court shall be called the general county court and shall have jurisdiction over the entire county in which said court may be established. In any county in the state in which there is situated a city which has or may have in the future a population, according to any enumeration by the United States census bureau, of more than twenty thousand inhabitants, the commissioners of such county or counties are authorized hereby to establish general county courts as hereinafter provided without first submitting the question of establishing such court to a vote of the people: Provided, that the said enumeration need not be made at a regular decennial census. In the event that the second sentence of this section is acted upon by the commissioners of any county in establishing a general county court, as is herein provided, the said commissioners may make such provisions for holding such courts in such city. (1923, c. 216, s. 1; 1925, c. 242; 1927, c. 74; C. S. 1608(f).)

Local Modification.—Caswell: 1931, c. 17; 1933, c. 405; 1937, c. 54; Cherokee: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 87; Henderson: 1927, c. 103; Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 1; Transylvania: 1931, c. 1; Wilson: 1931, c. 61; 1935, cc. 29, 149, s. 1.

Editor's Note.—See note to § 7-278.

In General.—Under this section the Legislature may create courts inferior to Superior Court if provision is made for appeal to the Superior Court. Jones v. Standard Oil Co., 202 N. C. 328, 162 S. E. 741.

The establishment of a General County Court by the board of commissioners of a county under the provisions of this and related sections, will not be held invalid as being an unlawful exercise of legislative power, the jurisdiction of such courts being prescribed by the Legislature and the board of commissioners being clothed merely with the power to find the facts in regard to the necessity and expediency of such court, and their acts in establishing such courts having been ratified by the Legislature. State on Relation of Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110.

Enactment of Acts of Commissioners in Creating Courts.—The acts of the county commissioners in the organization of general county courts, heretofore organized, as provided by ch. 216 of the Public Laws of 1923 and ch. 85 of the Public Laws, extra session 1924, and all amendments thereto, were ratified and declared to be the acts of the General Assembly of North Carolina by the Acts 1927, ch. 232, sec. 1.

§ 7-266. Creation by board of commissioners without election.—If in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county, the public interests will be best promoted by so doing, they may establish a general county court under this article, by resolution which shall, in brief, recite the reasons for the establishment thereof, and further recite that, in the opinion of the board of commissioners, it is not necessary that an election be called upon the establishment of such court as herein provided for, and upon the adoption of such resolution the board of commissioners may establish said court without holding such election. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

Local Modification.—Henderson: 1927, c. 103; Person: 1929, c. 246.

Cited in Efird v. Board of Com'rs, 219 N. C. 96, 12 S. E. (2d) 889.

§ 7-267. Abolishing the court.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish said court: Provided, no such court shall be abolished except at the end of the terms of office of the judge and solicitor, unless such judge and solicitor shall voluntarily tender their resignations, setting forth, in brief, that in their opinion the existence of the said court is no longer necessary, in which event the board of commissioners may forthwith abolish the same. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

Cited in Efird v. Board of Com'rs, 219 N. C. 96, 12 S. E. (2d) 889.

§ 7-268. Transfer of criminal cases.—Upon the establishment of the general county court, as in this article authorized, the clerk of the superior court shall immediately transfer from the superior court to such general county court all criminal actions pending in the superior court of which the general county court has jurisdiction, as in this article conferred, and the general county court shall immediately proceed to try and dispose of such criminal actions. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

This and related sections modify § 15-177. See State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 170 S. E. 645.

§ 7-269. Transfer of civil cases.—Transfers may be made in term of any civil action in the superior court to the general county court, and from the general county court to the superior court by the presiding judge of said respective courts, by consent, or upon motion of which due notice has been given, when, in the opinion of the presiding judge of the court from which the transfer is to be made, the ends of justice will be best served and promoted by such transfer. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2; 1933, c. 127.)

Editor's Note.—This section was rewritten by Public Laws 1933, c. 127. Many changes were effected for a determination of which a comparison with the old section is necessary.

Referring to this section, 11 N. C. Law Rev., 216, says the 1933 amendment amends the Act of 1924, ch. 85, which authorized the judge of the Superior Court to transfer civil actions to the General County Court for trial. The amendment allows the judge of either the Superior Court or the General County Court to transfer cases to the other court for trial, either by consent or by motion upon notice.

§ 7-270. Costs.—Cost in both criminal and civil actions shall be taxed and collected as now provided by law. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2.)

§ 7-271. Judge; election, term of office, vacancy in office, qualification, salary, office.—The court shall be presided over by the judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in the county. The first judge of the court upon the establishment of said court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners within thirty days after the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers and until his successor is elected and qualified. If a vacancy occurs in the office of judge of said court, the same shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. After the first elected judge by the board of county commissioners, each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, and shall hold his office for a term of four years beginning January first following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Before entering upon the duties of his office, the judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office, as is now provided by law for justices of the peace, and he shall file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and shall not be decreased during the term of office, and it shall be paid monthly out of the funds of the county. The judge shall reside in the county and shall be provided by the county commissioners with an office at the county-seat. The terms of said court shall be held in the courthouse, except as otherwise provided in § 7-265, but they shall at no time inconvenience or discommode the superior court of the county while the superior court in term is using the courthouse. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such judge, fixing his term of office, in which event the judge so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1608(g).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1943, c. 264; Scotland: 1925, c. 172.

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of justices of peace, see § 11-11. As to oaths required of public officials generally, see §§ 11-6, 11-7; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision fixing the salary at not less than $3600 not to be increased; by striking out the provision denying the judge the power to practice law in other courts, and by adding the last sentence.

Election of Judge by Commissioners Constitutional.—Under the Const., Art. IV, § 30, the legislature may provide for the election of officers of inferior courts, and the word "election" does not necessarily import a popular election and the delegation to the county commissioners of the power to elect judges is not an unlawful delegation of legislative powers. State ex rel. Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 170 S. E. 110.

§ 7-272. Terms of court.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of causes the first Monday of each month and continue until all matters before the court are disposed of. (1923, c. 216, s. 2; C. S. 1608(h).)

§ 7-273. Prosecuting officer; duties, election, salary, etc.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the general county court, to be known officially as prosecutor, who shall appear for the state and prosecute in all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of county commissioners. He shall be elected by the board of county commissioners for the first term as herein provided for the election of the judge, and thereafter by the qualified electors of the county in the same manner as is provided herein for the election of the judge; and vacancies in the office of the prosecutor shall be filled by the board of county commissioners as they are herein authorized to fill vacancies in the office of judge. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecutor shall represent the county in prosecution of criminal appeals from this court in the superior court. The salary of the prosecutor shall be paid monthly out of the county funds. If in the opinion of the board of commissioners the best interests of the county will be promoted thereby, the said board may appoint such solicitor, fixing his term of office, in which event the solicitor so appointed shall hold office pursuant to such appointment, and shall not be elected by a vote as herein provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 3; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; 1925, c. 250, s. 1; C. S. 1608(i).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1943, c. 264; Henderson: 1927, c. 103.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1924 by striking out a provision limiting the salary to a minimum of $1,000. The last sentence was also added by that amendment.

The 1925 amendment struck out the word "judge" in the last sentence and substituted the word "solicitor."

§ 7-274. Superior court clerk as clerk ex officio; salary, bond, etc.—The clerk of the superior court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the general county court, herein provided for, and in addition to the salary and fees paid him as clerk of the superior court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix, to be paid monthly out of the county funds. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the superior court. The Clerk of said Court or any deputy thereof, upon application and the making of proper affidavit, as provided by law, shall have power and authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said Court and make the same returnable before the Judge thereof, at any time or times designated for the trial of criminal cases. The last sentence shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden. (1923, c. 216, s. 4; 1931, c. 233; C. S. 1608(j).)

§ 7-275. Sheriff; duties; additional allowance.—The sheriff of the county or his deputy appointed shall attend upon the terms of this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior courts of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services in addition to his salary and fees fixed by law. (1923, c. 216, s. 5; C. S. 1608(k).)

§ 7-276. Fees of clerk and sheriff.—In those counties in which the clerk of the superior court and sheriff are paid fees, and not salaries, such clerk and sheriff shall receive the same fees for services rendered in the general county court as they would have received had such services been rendered in the superior court. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 5½.)

Local Modification.—Scotland: 1925, c. 172.

§ 7-277. Separate records to be kept by clerk; blanks, books and stationery.—The clerk of the said general county court shall keep separate records, criminal and civil, for the use of said court, to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide all such necessary blanks, forms, books and stationery as may be needed by said court. And the said clerk shall keep the same in his office of clerk of the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 6; C. S. 1608(l).)

§ 7-278. Criminal jurisdiction, extent.—The general county court, herein provided for, shall have the following jurisdiction in criminal actions within the county:

1. Original, exclusive and concurrent jurisdiction, as the case may be, of all offenses within said county which are now or may hereafter be given to justices of the peace under the constitution and general laws of the state, including all offenses of which mayors of towns or other municipal courts now have jurisdiction.

2. Original and concurrent jurisdiction with justices of the peace to hear and bind over to the superior court all persons charged with any crime within the territory of the general county court, and of which said court is not herein given final jurisdiction.

3. To punish for contempt to the same extent in the manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state; to issue writs ad testificandum and other process to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the superior courts of this state.

4. The general county court shall have jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and in addition thereto shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors. In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the general county court, as herein provided for, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance, or surety, to appear at the next first Monday of the month next succeeding before the general county court for trial, and in default of surety such person shall be committed to the county jail to await trial.

5. In counties in which there is a special court or courts for cities and towns, the jurisdiction of the general county court in criminal actions shall be concurrent with the jurisdiction conferred upon such special courts. (1923, c. 216, s. 13; 1924, c. 85, s. 1; C. S. 1608(m).)

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—The fifth paragraph was added by the 1924 amendment.

In General.—This section as enacted was one of many general provisions applicable to the several courts provided by the act. The last clause has reference to the jurisdiction exercised by the statutory courts in all criminal matters arising in the county which are given to justices of the peace. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 175, 170 S. E. 645.

When the amendment of 1924 is construed in pari materia with both § 7-265 et seq., and § 7-185 et seq., it has a prospective purpose and means that when general county courts exist or are created in counties where special courts for cities and towns shall be, or shall have been created, or are in contemporaneous existence, their jurisdiction shall be as defined in the amendment, that is, concurrent with the jurisdiction conferred upon such special courts. In re Barnes, 212 N. C. 735, 738, 194 S. E. 499.

Warrant on Appeal.—Upon conviction in a county court of a misdemeanor within the final jurisdiction of such court, upon a warrant sworn out before a justice of the peace, on appeal the superior court has derivative jurisdiction to try defendant upon the same warrant without a bill of indictment found by the grand jury. State v. Shine, 222 N. C. 237, 22 S. E. (2d) 447.

§ 7-279. Civil jurisdiction, extent.—The jurisdiction of the general county court in civil actions shall be as follows:

1. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;

2. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract;

3. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions not founded upon contract;

4. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof;

5. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions;

6. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court of all actions and proceedings for divorce and alimony, or either;

7. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all matters pending in said court for the appointment of receivers, as provided in §§ 1-501, et seq.;

8. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court to appoint receivers. (1923, c. 216, s. 14; 1935, c. 171; 1937, c. 58; C. S. 1608(n).)

Local Modification.—Bertie: 1935, c. 179.

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment added subsection 6 to this section, and the 1937 amendment added subsections 7 and 8. See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 39.

§ 7-280. Election, requirement of.—The general county court, herein provided for, shall be established upon elections as set forth in this article, except as otherwise provided in §§ 7-265 and 7-266. (1923, c. 216, s. 20; C. S. 1608(o).)

Cross Reference.—As to when court may be established without election, see §§ 7-265 and 7-266.

Cited in State ex rel. Meador v. Thomas, 205 N. C. 142, 145, 170 S. E. 110.

§ 7-281. Resolution by county commissioners; time for election; ballots.—The board of commissioners of the county shall pass a resolution, if in their judgment such court should be established, reciting such fact and calling an election at a date to be fixed, which shall not be less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the passage of the resolution, at which election there shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the county the question of establishing such court. The form of the ballot shall be as provided in § 163-155, subsec. (e). (1923, c. 216, s. 21; C. S. 1608(p).)

§ 7-282. Notice of election; publication.—Notice of such election shall be given at least thirty days prior to the day of election, signed by the chairman of the board of county commissioners and containing in substance the resolution passed by the board, the date of the election and a reference to the act creating the court, and which notice shall be published once a week for four successive weeks prior to said election in some newspaper published in the county and a copy thereof shall be posted at the courthouse door. (1923, c. 216, s. 22; C. S. 1608(q).)

§ 7-283. Law governing elections; election officers; registration.—Any election held under the provisions of this law shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for holding elections for the members of the general assembly, except as herein otherwise stated. The board of county commissioners shall appoint the registrars and judges of election and any other election officers necessary for holding said election, and registration and challenge of voters shall be conducted in the same manner as is now or may hereafter be provided for election of the members of the general assembly, except as herein set forth. The said board of county commissioners may or may not, in their discretion, order a new registration for any election held under this law. In case no new registration is ordered the registration books of each voting precinct shall be kept open for twenty days prior to the election for the purpose of allowing electors to register who have not theretofore registered in the township or voting precinct, of their residence, and who are entitled to register for said election; and the registration books shall close on Saturday next preceding the election and the registrar shall transcribe the names of all persons who have registered for former elections in their township, or voting precincts, and are otherwise qualified electors at said election upon a new registration book. The registrars are authorized and directed to register any person legally qualified and entitled to vote in their respective townships or voting precincts who apply for such purpose, in the same manner and under the same rules and regulations as now or hereafter may be provided for registering electors for the general election in said county. (1923, c. 216, s. 23; C. S. 1608(r).)

Cross Reference.—As to general election laws, see § 163-148 et seq.

§ 7-284. Count and return of votes; canvass of returns; effect; expense.—The vote cast at said election shall be counted at the close of the polls by the election officers and returned to the clerk of the said board of county commissioners of said county by a member of said election officers on the second day next succeeding the day of said election; and the said board of county commissioners, at their next regular meeting, or at a called meeting, shall tabulate and declare the result of the election, all of which shall be recorded in the minutes of said board of county commissioners, and no other recording and declaring of the result of said election shall be necessary. If a majority of the votes cast at said election is declared in favor of such court, it shall be established, and not otherwise. The expenses of said election shall be paid by the county commissioners out of the county fund. (1923, c. 216, s. 24; C. S. 1608(s).)

§ 7-285. Application of article.—This article shall not apply to any county in which there has been established a court, inferior to the superior court, by whatever name called, by a special act, nor shall this article apply to the following counties: Granville, Henderson, Iredell, New Hanover, Pasquotank, Randolph and Wake; nor shall it apply to the counties in the seventeenth (17th) and nineteenth (19th) judicial districts, except Buncombe county. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 2; 1925, c. 9; 1927, c. 103, ss. 1, 2; 1929, c. 159, s. 1; 1931, c. 19; 1937, c. 439.)

Local Modification.—Watauga: 1937, c. 439.

Editor's Note.—The county of Randolph was added to the list of counties to which this article does not apply by the 1925 amendment. The 1927 amendment made an exception in the case of Henderson County. The act of 1931 struck out the exception as to counties in the sixteenth judicial district.

Art. 31. Practice and Procedure.

§ 7-286. Procedure; issuance and return of process.—The rules of procedure, issuing process and filing pleadings shall conform as nearly as may be to the practice in the superior courts. The process shall be returnable directly to the court, and may issue out of the court to any county in the state: Provided, that civil process in cases within the jurisdiction now exercised by justices of the peace shall not run outside of or beyond the county in which such court sits.

Motions for the change of venue or removal of cases from the general county courts to the superior courts of counties other than the one in which the said court sits may be made and acted upon, and the causes for removal shall be the same as prescribed by law for similar motions in the superior courts.

The provisions of the chapters on civil procedure and criminal procedure, and all amendments thereof, shall apply as nearly as may be to the general county courts, and the judges and the clerks of said courts, in all causes pending in said courts, shall have rights, privileges, powers and immunities similar in all respects to those conferred by law on the judges and clerks of the superior courts of the state, and shall be subject to similar duties and liabilities: Provided, that this section shall not extend the jurisdiction of said judges and clerks, nor infringe in any manner upon the jurisdiction of the superior courts, except as provided in articles thirty and thirty-one of this chapter.

All motions and petitions for removal of actions from the general county court to the district court of the United States shall be presented to, be heard and determined by the judge of the general county court, with the right of appeal from any order or ruling of said judge to the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 7; 1925, c. 242, s. 2; 1925, c. 250, s. 2; 1933, c. 128, s. 1; C. S. 1608(t).)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.

Editor's Note.—The first 1925 amendment made several changes in this section and the second 1925 amendment added the proviso at the end of the third paragraph. The 1933 amendment added the last paragraph.

§ 7-287. Trial by jury; waiver; deposit for jury fee.—In all civil actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial unless demand shall be made therefor in the pleadings of the parties to the action when same are filed. The demand shall be in writing and signed by the party making it, or by his attorney, and accompanied by a deposit of three dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. Any defendant in a criminal action may demand a trial by jury, in which event such defendant shall not be required to deposit the sum of three dollars. Such jury shall be drawn as herein otherwise provided for. (1923, c. 216, s. 8; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 85, s. 1; 1937, c. 56; C. S. 1608(u).)

Local Modification.—Duplin: 1937, c. 85.

Editor's Note.—The last two sentences of this section were added by the 1924 amendment.

Prior to the 1937 amendment demand for jury trial was required to be made "before the trial begins."

§ 7-288. Continuance if jury demanded; drawing of jury; list.—If a jury trial is demanded, the judge shall continue the case until a day to be set, and the judge, together with the attorneys for all parties, shall proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of eighteen men, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The judge shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. It shall be the duty of the register of deeds to prepare a list of jurors for this the general county court identical with the list prepared for the superior court, and the jury shall be drawn out of the box containing such list. Provided, that the Judge of said Court may in his discretion, if and when a sufficient number of cases are at issue in which jury trial has been demanded to warrant such action, cause a jury of not less than eighteen, not more than twenty-four men to be drawn for a certain week of a term, setting such cases for trial during such time, and in such cases the juries shall be drawn in the same manner as now provided for the drawing of juries for the superior court. The proviso shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden. (1923, c. 216, s. 9; 1931, c. 233, s. 2; C. S. 1608(v).)

§ 7-289. Talesmen; challenges.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors according to the practice of the superior court as nearly as the same is applicable, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1923, c. 216, s. 10; C. S. 1608(w).)

§ 7-290. Process; authentication; service; return.—All civil summons in actions begun in the general county court shall be served at least ten days before the return day named therein, and shall be returnable on the first Monday of the month next succeeding the issue thereof, unless the same be issued within less than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, in which event it shall be made returnable on the first Monday of the second succeeding month next after the date of the issue thereof; and when the summons shall be issued more than ten days before the first Monday of the month next succeeding its issuing, and shall be executed by the proper officer within less than ten days of the return day named therein, it shall be returned as if executed in proper time, and the case placed on the summons docket and continued to the first Monday of the month next succeeding the return day thereof, at which time it shall be treated in all respects as if that had been the return day named therein. The summons shall run in the name of the state, be signed by the clerk of the court in which the action is brought, and shall be directed to the sheriff or other proper officer of the county. (1923, c. 216, s. 11; C. S. 1608(x).)

§ 7-291. Pleadings; time for filing.—The complaint shall be filed by the return day named in the summons and the answer, demurrer or other pleadings on the part of the defendant shall be filed within twenty (20) days thereafter: Provided, if a copy of the complaint be served on the defendant at the time of the service of the summons, then the defendant shall have only twenty (20) days from the date of such service to file an answer, demurrer or otherwise plead. If the answer contains a counterclaim against the plaintiff or plaintiffs or any of them, such answer shall be served upon the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim is pleaded or against the attorney or attorneys of record of such plaintiff or plaintiffs; the plaintiff or plaintiffs against whom such counterclaim shall be pleaded shall have twenty (20) days after the service thereof within which to answer or reply to such counterclaim. If a counterclaim is pleaded against any of the plaintiffs and no copy of the answer containing such counterclaim shall be served as herein provided for, such counterclaim shall be deemed to be denied as fully as if the plaintiff or plaintiffs had filed an answer or reply denying the same. All other replies, if any, shall be filed within twenty (20) days from the filing of the answer. For good cause shown and found by the judge, the judge may extend the time for the filing of any of the pleadings provided for in this article on the part of the plaintiff or on the part of the defendant. (1923, c. 216, s. 12; 1925, c. 250, s. 3; C. S. 1608(y).)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended in 1925 to make it conform to other sections now appearing as sections 1-125 and 1-140.

§ 7-292. Criminal appeals to superior court; cases bound over to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the general county court has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court of the county from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from justices of the peace; and any person tried before the general county court for any offense of which said court has not final jurisdiction shall, if probable cause be found, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before a justice of the peace. The judge may, upon proper affidavit, issue criminal warrants returnable before him in or out of term. All persons convicted in said court may be sentenced to the roads, or county farms, or jail, as the judge may determine. (1923, c. 216, s. 15; C. S. 1608(z).)

§ 7-293. Amendments in pleadings and warrants.—The judge shall have power in his discretion to allow amendments in pleadings and warrants, to the same extent as is allowed in the superior courts of the state. (1923, c. 216, s. 16; C. S. 1608(aa).)

§ 7-294. Jury trials, conduct of.—The jury in the general county court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the superior court. (1923, c. 216, s. 17; C. S. 1608(bb).)

§ 7-295. Appeals to superior court in civil actions; time; record; judgment; appeal to supreme court.—Appeals in civil actions may be taken from the general county court to the superior court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court except that appellant shall file in duplicate statement of case on appeal, as settled, containing the exceptions and assignments of error, which, together with the original record, shall be transmitted by the clerk of the general county court to the superior court, as the complete record on appeal in said court; that briefs shall not be required to be filed on said appeal, by either party, unless requested by the judge of the superior court; the record on appeal to the superior court shall be docketed before the next term of the superior court ensuing after the case on appeal shall have been settled by the agreement of the parties or by order of the court, and the case shall stand for argument at the next term of the superior court ensuing after the record on appeal shall have been docketed ten days, unless otherwise ordered by the court. The time for taking and perfecting appeals shall be counted from the end of the term of the general county court at which such trial is had. Upon such appeal the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the general county court, or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court as is now provided by law. (1923, c. 216, s. 18; 1933, c. 109; 1937, c. 84; C. S. 1608(cc).)

Editor's Note.—Prior to Public Laws 1933, c. 109, the exception at the end of the first sentence of this section merely provided that the record might be typewritten and that only two copies should be required. This was omitted and the present exception inserted in lieu thereof.

The 1937 amendment inserted that part of the first sentence after the semi-colon and further provides as follows: "This act shall apply to all cases tried before the ratification of this act in which an appeal has been entered and time for service of case on appeal and counterclaim or exceptions has been extended by order of court with consent of council for parties."

"If any section of this act should be held to be invalid, such invalidity shall not affect the validity of any other section."

Assignment of Error.—In the absence of assignments of error appearing in the transcript on an appeal to the Supreme Court, the appeal will ordinarily be dismissed on the motion of the appellee. Smith v. The Texas Co., 200 N. C. 39, 41, 156 S. E. 160.

In the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction under this section, the Supreme Court may consider and pass only on the contention of the appellant that there was error in matters of law at the hearing in the Superior Court. This contention must, however, be presented to this Court by assignments of error based on exceptions to specific rulings of the judge of the Superior Court, on the assignments of error appearing in the case on appeal filed in the Superior Court. Id.

Sending Record Up.—Where an appeal is taken from a county court under this section it is not desirable that the entire record in the Superior Court be sent up, but only such parts as relate to the questions to be reviewed with only material exceptions, properly stated, grouped and sufficiently compiled to enable the court to understand them without searching through the record. Baker v. Clayton, 202 N. C. 741, 164 S. E. 233.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 217, where it is pointed out that the 1933 amendment changes this section, so that instead of following the practice in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, the appellant may file in duplicate the statement of the case on appeal, and this with the original records in the case shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Superior Court as the complete record on appeal. Briefs are not required to be filed by either party, unless requested by the judge of the Superior Court.

Superior Court Sits as an Appellate Court.—In hearing civil cases on appeal from the general county court, the Superior Court sits as an appellate court, subject to review by the Supreme Court. Jenkins v. Castelleo, 208 N. C. 406, 408, 181 S. E. 266, citing Cecil v. Snow Lbr. Co., 197 N. C. 81, 147 S. E. 735.

The jurisdiction of the superior court on an appeal from a general county court is an appellate jurisdiction limited to matters of law only which are properly presented by errors assigned, and the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the general county court or remand the cause for a new trial. Robinson v. McAlhanev, 216 N. C. 674, 6 S. E. (2d) 517.

In Granting a New Trial It Is Essential That the Superior Court Specifically State the Rulings upon Exceptions.—Where an appeal is taken from the general county court to the Superior Court for errors assigned in matters of law, as authorized by this section, and a new trial is granted by the Superior Court, it is essential that the rulings upon exceptions granting the new trial be specifically stated, so that in case of appeal to the Supreme Court, they may be separately assigned as error in accordance with Rule 19(3) of the Rules of Practice in the Supreme Court, and properly considered on appeal. Jenkins v. Castelleo, 208 N. C. 406, 181 S. E. 266.

Where the record is not docketed in the Superior Court within the time prescribed, the appeal is properly dismissed, it being formerly provided that appeals from the general county court shall be governed by the rules governing appeals from the Superior Courts to the Supreme Court, and dismissal in such circumstances is mandatory under Rule of Practice in the Supreme Court No. 5. Grogg v. Graybeal, 209 N. C. 575, 184 S. E. 85, decided prior to the 1937 amendment.

The superior court has discretionary authority to reinstate an appeal from a general county court upon motion made at the same term the appeal is dismissed for failure of appellant to comply with the statutory requirements governing such appeals. This section provides that such appeals shall be governed by the rules for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, and such procedure is provided by the rules of practice in the supreme court (Rule 17), and the superior court obtains jurisdiction through the motion to reinstate aptly made, and may pass upon the motion at that or a subsequent term. West v. Woolworth Co., 214 N. C. 214, 198 S. E. 659.

§ 7-296. Enforcement of judgments; stay of execution, etc.—Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the general county court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the general county court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and the judgment when docketed shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court in the same manner and to same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statutes of limitations and the statutes relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1923, c. 216, s. 19; C. S. 1608(dd).)

When the judgment of a general county court is docketed in the Superior Court of the county it becomes a judgment of the Superior Court in like manner as transcribed judgments of justices of the peace under § 7-166, and the general county court has no further jurisdiction of the case, and may not thereafter hear a motion for the appointment of a receiver for the judgment debtor. Essex Inv. Co. v. Pickelsimer, 210 N. C. 541, 187 S. E. 813.

In an action for subsistence without divorce tried in the general county court, judgment was rendered in favor of plaintiff, which judgment was duly docketed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county. Thereafter order was entered in the general county court reducing the amount of the monthly allowance. Upon the abolition of the general county court, the judge thereof, pursuant to previous notice given to the county bar, entered a general order transferring all cases then pending to the superior court of the county. Thereafter defendant failed to further comply with the orders for the payment of subsistence and plaintiff moved in the superior court for an order that defendant show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt and for an order increasing the amount of subsistence. Defendant entered a special appearance and demurred to the jurisdiction of the superior court. It was held that upon the docketing of the judgment in the superior court, it acquired jurisdiction of the cause, and defendant's demurrer to the jurisdiction was properly overruled under this section. Brooks v. Brooks, 220 N. C. 16, 16 S. E. (2d) 403.

Art. 32. District County Courts.

§ 7-297. May be established in two or more contiguous counties in same judicial district; jurisdiction.—In any two or more contiguous and adjoining counties of any judicial district of this

State there may be established, under the general powers and authority contained in articles thirty and thirty-one, of this chapter, except as herein otherwise provided, a court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, maintained pursuant to this sub-chapter and the said articles thirty and thirty-one, not inconsistent herewith, a court of record, to be known as and designated a district county court, and containing all the authority, jurisdiction, rights, powers and duties, compensations and fees, as provided in the articles aforesaid, except as herein otherwise provided. (1931, c. 70.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60.

§ 7-298. Judge of court; election; term of office; oath of office and salary.—The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be a licensed attorney at law, and at the time of his election he shall be a qualified elector in one of the counties composing the said district county court.

The first judge of said court, upon its establishment as hereinafter provided, shall be elected by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district courts, each board being entitled to one vote to be cast in accordance with the majority vote of each board, at any joint meeting of said boards of commissioners, as hereinafter provided, within sixty days after the establishment, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Any vacancy arising in the office of judge of said court shall be filled by the several boards of commissioners of the counties establishing the said district court, in joint meeting assembled, which shall be called by the chairman of the board of commissioners of the county in which such judge resided at the time of his death or removal, or resignation.

At the joint meeting of said boards of commissioners when an election of the judge of said court is made, the said commissioners shall also fix the salary of said judge, which salary together with the salary of the prosecuting attorney hereinafter provided for shall be paid from the costs taxed and collected in the trial of all actions in said court to which costs provided for there shall be added a trial fee of five dollars and if there be a deficiency in the payment of said salaries from said costs as herein provided for, the said deficiency shall be proportionately paid by the several counties composing the said district county court, in proportion as the population of each county shall bear to the whole of the counties creating said court, on the basis of the most recent federal decennial census.

The judge shall reside in one of the counties of said district; he shall take the oath of office prescribed in section 7-271; hold his terms of court in the county courthouse in each county of his district, and shall not be permitted to practice law during his tenure of office in any of the courts of the State.

His successor shall be nominated and elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the several counties embraced within the jurisdiction of said district at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office and when other county officers are elected, in the same manner, and as provided by law for the nomination and election of judges of the Superior Court, and he shall hold his office for a term of four years beginning January first next following his election, and until his successor is elected and qualified; except, however, in instances of an appointment to fill a vacancy, in which case he shall hold through the unexpired term of his predecessor in office, and until his successor is elected and qualified. (1931, c. 70; 1943, c. 543.)

The 1943 amendment struck out the words "one thousand nine hundred thirty census" at the end of the third paragraph of this section and inserted in lieu thereof the words "most recent federal decennial census."

§ 7-299. Present county courts may be changed to district courts.—In any county where a county court has been heretofore created and now exists under and by virtue of article thirty, of this chapter, where it is desired to change said court from a county court to a district county court, under the provisions of this article, its board of commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, abolish the said county court and establish for said county, in the manner provided in this article, a district county court; and in such event, the judge and solicitor of the said county court shall thereupon be named and elected as judge and solicitor of said district county court until the expiration of the time for which they were elected as officers of the said county court, and until their successors are duly elected and qualified. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-300. When court to be held.—The court shall be open for the transaction of business and trial of cases at least once a week in each county in each month in districts composed of four counties, or less, and at least once in every eight weeks in districts composed of more than four counties, which week or the time of holding said court for each of said counties shall be determined and declared by said joint meeting of said commissioners upon recommendation of the bars of the several counties composing said district, or majority of the resident lawyers of said counties, and certified by said commissioners to each superior court clerk of the several counties within the district. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-301. Prosecuting attorneys.—There shall be a prosecuting attorney of the said district court, known officially as the prosecuting attorney, and he shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal actions in said county courts of his district; and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the boards of county commissioners of the several counties composing the district.

The said prosecuting attorney shall be elected by the respective boards of commissioners in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the election of a judge thereof. He shall hold his office until January first next following the first general election for county officers, and at the said first general election following his election by the said boards of commissioners, and thereafter at each subsequent general election for county officers, he shall be nominated and elected by the duly qualified electors of the counties composing said district, under the general laws governing the nomination and election of district officers, or solicitors of the several judicial districts.

Any vacancy arising in the said office of prosecuting attorney shall be filled by the board of commissioners of the counties composing the district, in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for the election of the judge thereof; and the compensation or salary of the said prosecuting attorney shall be paid by the several counties composing the district in the same proportion, or basis provided for payment of the salary of the judge, and shall be payable monthly out of the funds of the counties composing said district court. If requested to do so by the judge, the prosecuting attorney shall represent the county in prosecuting any appeal of a criminal action from said district court in the Superior Court. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-302. Clerks; duties and compensation.—The several clerks of the superior court in the several counties of said district court shall ex-officio be clerk of said district court of each and all terms held within the respective counties of each, and subject to all the rights, duties and liabilities provided for in sections 7-274 and 7-277. The clerk of said court or any deputy thereof, upon application and the making of proper affidavit, as provided by law, shall have power and authority to issue any criminal warrant or warrants in said court and make the same returnable before the judge thereof, at any time or times designated for the trial of criminal cases. The last sentence shall not apply to the following counties: New Hanover, Caldwell, Henderson, Ashe, Hoke, Lincoln, Wayne, Wilkes, Nash, Edgecombe, Alexander, Rockingham, Duplin, Union, Alleghany, Halifax, Alamance, Clay, Yancey, Dare, Wake, Hertford, Jackson, Mecklenburg, Craven, Vance, Person, Robeson, Johnston, Yadkin, Davidson, Haywood, Pitt, Tyrrell, Hyde, Watauga, Durham, Scotland, Forsyth and Camden. (1931, c. 70, s. 1; c. 233.)

§ 7-303. Sheriffs; duties and compensation.—The several sheriffs of the several counties of said district court, or their duly constituted deputies, shall attend upon each term of this court within their respective counties, and be subject to and possess the same power and authority and additional compensation as authorized under § 7-275. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-304. Jurisdiction.—The said county district courts shall have the same criminal and civil jurisdiction as that of the general county court, and as fixed and defined in §§ 7-278 and 7-279. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-305. Procedure to establish.—Upon a petition signed by a majority of the resident licensed attorneys at law, of not less than two counties of the State within any one judicial district, and duly verified to that effect, addressed to and filed with the Governor, praying the establishment of a general county district court for any two or more of the counties named in the petition, the Governor shall transmit a copy of the petition to each of the respective boards of county commissioners, and at the same time he shall issue an order to each of said boards directing a joint meeting of the same at the courthouse of one of the said counties at such time and place as he may designate in said order.

The several boards of commissioners, or any two or more of them, if in their judgment the said court shall be established, shall, at such meeting, or at such later meeting within thirty days thereafter to which they may adjourn, pass a resolution reciting the petition for said court, and declaring the same to be established in and for each of the respective counties thus approving and voting for the said resolution.

A majority vote of two or more of the several boards of commissioners participating in the said proceedings for the passage of the said resolution shall be sufficient for the establishment of said court, and it shall thereupon become an established court in and for the counties voting for the resolution; and thereupon a certified copy of the minutes of said meeting, the said petition and resolution, executed by any one of the commissioners present, attested by one member of each of the several boards participating in the said proceedings and voting for said court, shall be transmitted to the clerk of the Superior Court of the several counties participating and adopting the resolution, and also recorded in the minutes of said commissioners' meetings of the several counties composing the district. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-306. Practice and procedure.—The practice and procedure of the said county district courts shall be the same as that of the general county court, and as prescribed in §§ 7-286 to 7-296. (1931, c. 70.)

§ 7-307. Abolishing the court.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under the provisions of this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of county commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefor, duly certify the same to the chairman of the board of commissioners of each other county composing, forming and creating the said district court; whereupon the respective boards of commissioners of the several counties embraced in said district court, shall meet at the courthouse of the county in which the judge resides on the third Monday of the month next following the receipt of the certified copy of the resolution aforesaid, or the subsequent and next following Monday first and abolish the said county court for the county having adopted the resolution aforesaid, which shall go into effect as to the county abolishing said court at the end of the term to which the judge has been elected. If, upon the abolition of the said county court, as to the county adopting the resolution aforesaid, as many as two other counties forming, composing and making up the said district court, desire the same continued in full force and effect within their respective counties the said commissioners shall readjust the salary and compensation of the judge and prosecuting attorney of said court on the basis hereinbefore provided to take effect at the end of the term to which the said judge has been elected, and the said county court shall continue in full force and effect within the other counties remaining, forming and composing the same, with no impairment of the rights, powers, duties, and authorities conferred by this article. But said court may, at any time, at a meeting held pursuant to a resolution, certified as aforesaid, subject to the provisions hereinbefore recited, abolish the said court in each, all or any of the counties in the districts; and in such event the Clerk of Court shall transfer all cases pending therein to the Superior Court of his respective county. (1931, c. 70.)

SUBCHAPTER VIII. CIVIL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 33. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $3000.

§ 7-308. Establishment.—An inferior court with civil jurisdiction only as hereinafter provided may be established by the board of county commissioners of any county in this state upon the petition of a majority of the resident practicing attorneys within the county. (1925, c. 135, s. 1.)

§ 7-309. Jurisdiction.—The said court shall have exclusive original jurisdiction in all civil actions, matters, and proceedings, including all proceedings whatever ancillary, provisional and remedial to civil actions founded on contract or tort, wherein the superior court now has exclusive original jurisdiction: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

Said court shall have jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions to try title to land and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof: Provided, the sum demanded or the value of property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000).

The said court shall have jurisdiction with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary restraining orders and injunctions: Provided, that the sum demanded or the value of the property in controversy shall not exceed three thousand dollars ($3,000). (1925, c. 135, s. 2.)

§ 7-310. Juries in such court; drawing jury; challenges.—In the trial of civil actions in said court either the plaintiff at the time of filing the complaint or the defendant at the time of filing the answer may in his pleadings demand and have a jury trial as provided in the trial of causes in the Superior Court; failure to demand a jury trial at the time herein provided shall be deemed a waiver of the right to a trial by jury. The judge of said court, when in his opinion the ends of justice would be best served by submitting the issues to the jury, may have a jury called of his own motion and submit to it such issues as he may deem material.

Jurors shall receive the same compensation as is now provided by law for jurors serving in the Superior Court, to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court; the clerk of said court shall tax the sum of three dollars as cost of jury in all jury cases and the same shall be collected by said clerks and paid into the county treasury of said county.

The commissioners of said county at their regular meeting on the first Monday of April, in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-five, and each two years thereafter, shall cause names of their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose which must have two divisions marked "No. 1" and "No. 2," respectively, and two locks to same, the keys of one to be kept by the sheriff of said county and the other to be kept by the chairman of the board of commissioners of said county, the box to be kept by the clerk of said board, which box shall be marked "County Court." The names in this box shall be drawn for juries acting as jurors in the said county court and when a jury is demanded in said court the sheriff shall cause to be drawn from said box out of partition "No. 1," by a child not more than ten years of age fifteen scrolls and the scrolls so drawn to make the jury shall be put into partition marked "No. 2," and in all other respects the jury shall be drawn as juries are drawn in the Superior Court. The jurors of this court shall have the same qualifications as provided for jurors in the trial of causes in the Superior Court. The said jurors shall be summoned to attend under the mandate from the clerk of said county court directed to the sheriff of said county: Provided, that for sufficient cause the judge of this court may issue an order to the board of county commissioners that no jury be drawn for such term or terms of this court, as may seem best to him.

The challenges allowed in the trial of causes in said county court shall be the same in number and for the same causes as are allowed in the trial of causes in the Superior Court; all jurors drawn from the box shall be regular jurors. The said court shall have the same power to summon tales jurors as the Superior Court now has and when a jury trial is had the jury shall be twelve in number. (1925, c. 135, s. 3.)

§ 7-311. Terms; docket.—The judge and clerk of said county court are hereby authorized to fix the terms of said court and to make up the docket of said court upon consulting with the bar association of said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 4.)

§ 7-312. Witnesses; how summoned.—Witnesses shall be summoned by subpoena issued by the clerk of said court as now provided for the summoning of witnesses for the trial of causes in the superior court and shall be allowed the same compensation to be taxed as cost by the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 5.)

§ 7-313. Appeals.—Appeals may be taken by either the plaintiff or the defendant from the said county court to the Superior Court of said county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner and under the same requirements as are now provided by law for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed and only one copy thereof shall be required. The time for taking and perfecting the appeals shall be counted from the end of the term. Upon appeals from said county court the Superior Court may either affirm, modify and affirm the judgment of said county court or remand the cause to the county court for a new trial.

The bonds to stay executions shall be the same as now required for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court. The judgment of the Superior Court shall be certified to said county court; final judgment may be rendered unless there is an appeal to the Supreme Court. In case of appeal to the Supreme Court upon filing of the certificate from the Supreme Court to the Superior Court said certificate shall be transmitted by the clerk thereof to the clerk of this court. (1925, c. 135, s. 6.)

An appeal to the Superior Court from the granting or refusal of a restraining order by the county court may be taken to the next term of the Superior Court without the necessity of serving statement of case on appeal, counter-case or exceptions, etc., the case having been heard on the pleadings and the record in the Superior Court consisting of the summons, complaint, answer, orders, judgment and assignment of errors. Thomason v. Swenson, 204 N. C. 759, 169 S. E. 620.

§ 7-314. How actions commenced.—All actions shall be commenced in said court by summons running in the name of the State and issued by the clerk of said county court and shall be returnable as is provided by law for summons in the Superior Court. The plaintiff shall file and retain complaint on or before the return day of such summons; the defendant shall file a written answer or demurrer and shall make his motions in writing during the term to which the summons is returnable and the case shall stand for trial at the next succeeding term. (1925, c. 135, s. 7.)

§ 7-315. Judgments.—The judgments of said court may be enforced by execution issued by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days. Transcripts of said judgments shall be docketed in the Superior Court of said county and become judgments of the Superior Court as now provided for executions and transcripts of judgments from the courts of justices of the peace with the same limitations as are now provided for judgments of justices of the peace. (1925, c. 135, s. 8.)

Cross Reference.—As to docketing judgments of courts of justices of the peace in superior court, see § 7-166.

§ 7-316. Process of the court.—The process of said court while exercising the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace shall not run outside of said county. In all other cases these processes shall run as processes issue out of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 9.)

§ 7-317. Removal of cause before justice.—When, upon affidavit made before entering upon the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace in said county, it shall appear proper for said cause to be removed for trial to some other justice of the peace, as is now provided by law, said cause may be removed for trial to the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 10.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg: 1933, c. 279.

§ 7-318. Rules of practice.—The rules of practice as prescribed by law for the superior court for the trial of all causes shall apply in this court, supplemented, however, by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed by the judge of this court relating to causes pending therein. (1925, c. 135, s. 11.)

§ 7-319. Bonds for costs; duties of clerk.—The statutes about bonds for costs and about suits without bonds for costs that now apply to the Superior Court shall also apply to this court. Wherever the statute provides for a thing to be done by the clerk of the Superior Court or by the judge of the Superior Court or by either, the same thing shall be performed by the clerk of said county court or by the judge of said county court in causes in said county court; this provision shall apply especially to all provisional remedies as now provided by statute except special proceedings. (1925, c. 135, s. 12.)

§ 7-320. Costs.—In all causes removed to or brought into the said county court the costs shall be the same as in the Superior Court. All cost shall be paid to or collected by the clerk of said county court in the same manner as in the Superior Court and be paid by the said clerk of said county court into the treasury of said county: Provided, that for the service of process the fees shall be paid to the officer serving the process. The officers shall perform all the duties in said county court as provided in the Superior Court and receive therefor the same fees as allowed for the same service performed in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 135, s. 13.)

§ 7-321. Appointment and compensation of judge; substitute; vacancies.—After the ratification of this article and the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the Governor who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each fourth year thereafter it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint the judge of each such county court who shall preside over said court, who shall be learned in the law, of good moral character, and who shall at the time of his appointment and qualification be an elector in and for said county; that the said judge shall hold office for a term of four years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. And before entering upon the duties of his office the said judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for the judges of the Superior Court and file the same with the clerk of the Superior Court of said county; and the said clerk shall record the same. Said judge shall receive a salary of one hundred dollars ($100) a week for each week that he is engaged in holding court, payable in equal weekly installments out of the treasury of said county.

The said judge shall not by reason of his office be prohibited from practicing the profession of attorney at law in other courts of this State except as to matters pending in connection with or growing out of said county court.

When the said judge is unable to preside over said court on account of sickness or absence for other cause he shall appoint some other person learned in the law who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for the judge, to act as a substitute judge with all the powers and duties of the judge, and the compensation of said substitute judge shall be paid by the said judge.

Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the Governor of the State. (1925, c. 135, s. 14.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oath required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-322. Compensation of clerk; vacancy; files, books, stationery, etc.—The clerk of the superior court of said county by himself or his deputies shall ex officio perform the duties of clerk of said county court and shall be paid a sum not less than one thousand dollars ($1,000) annually, the amount to be determined by the board of commissioners of said county and paid out of the treasury of said county as full compensation for his duties as clerk of said county court. Upon the failure of the clerk of the Superior Court of said county to qualify under this article or in case of any vacancy in the office of clerk of the said county court such vacancy shall be filled by the board of commissioners of said county. The necessary files, books, stationery and other material of that nature shall be furnished to the clerk of said county court by said county. (1925, c. 135, s. 15.)

§ 7-323. Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of this court whose duty shall be the same as the official stenographer of the Superior Court of said county. Said stenographer's fees shall be the same in amount as the fees of the official stenographer of the superior court of said county and shall be taxed as costs. (1925, c. 135, s. 16.)

§ 7-324. Procedure.—The procedure of said county court, except that hereinbefore provided, shall follow the rules and principles laid down in the chapter on civil procedure and amendments thereto in so far as the same may be adapted to the needs and requirements of the said county court. (1925, c. 135, s. 17.)

§ 7-325. Records.—There shall be dockets, files, and records kept of all proceedings in the said county court, conforming as nearly as possible to the records of the superior court. (1925, c. 135, s. 18.)

§ 7-326. To be court of record.—The said county court shall be a court of record and the clerk thereof shall be provided with a seal of said court. (1925, c. 135, s. 19.)

§ 7-327. Pending cases.—All cases pending in the superior court of said county and in the courts of the justices of the peace of said county on the date the court is established shall be tried in the courts wherein they are pending. (1925, c. 135, s. 20.)

§ 7-328. First session.—The presiding judge of said county court shall hold the first session of said county court within thirty days after his appointment by the Governor, and other sessions shall be held as provided in this article. (1925, c. 135, s. 21.)

§ 7-329. Discontinuance of court.—The board of commissioners of any county may discontinue such court on written petition signed by the majority of the practicing attorneys of such county. (1925, c. 135, s. 22.)

§ 7-330. Existing laws not repealed.—This article shall not be construed to repeal chapter seven, nor shall it repeal or affect any act establishing any inferior court now existing or that may hereafter be created under the existing law but shall be construed to be supplemental to the existing law and a method by which county courts may be established. (1925, c. 135, s. 23.)

§ 7-331. Article not applicable to certain counties.—The provisions of this article shall not apply to the following counties: Burke, Hyde, Avery, Alexander, Clay, Catawba, Mitchell, Madison, Graham, Swain, Henderson, Duplin, Jackson, Davie, Cherokee, Stokes, Lincoln, Wilkes, Johnston, Person, Pamlico, Watauga, Haywood, Vance, Robeson, Craven, Caldwell, Hoke, Yancey, Anson, Pender, Macon, Onslow, Bladen, Alleghany and Scotland: Provided, this article shall not apply to any of the counties of the present Sixteenth and Seventeenth Judicial Districts. (1925, c. 135, s. 24.)

Art. 34. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $5000.

§ 7-332. Establishment.—In addition to the plan for a general county court provided for in articles 30 and 31, of this chapter, there may be established by the board of county commissioners in any county, a court of civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and which shall be maintained pursuant to this article, and which court shall be called the county civil court, and shall have civil jurisdiction as provided in this article. (1925, c. 167, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-333. Qualification, election, and term of judge; office.—The county civil court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be an attorney at law, and shall reside and be a qualified elector in the county during his term of office, and shall be permitted to practice law during his term of office. The first judge of the county civil court shall be elected by the board of county commissioners at the time of the establishment of said court, and he shall hold his office until January first, following the next general election of county officers within said county, and until his successor is elected and qualified, and if a vacancy occurs in the office of judge, it shall be filled by the election of a successor for the unexpired term by the board of county commissioners. Each succeeding judge shall be elected by a vote of the qualified electors of the county at the next general election before the expiration of the term of office in the same manner as other county officers are nominated and elected, and shall hold office for a term of four years, beginning January first, following his election and until his successor is elected and qualified, unless said court is abolished. The judge shall qualify by taking and subscribing an oath of office as is now provided by law for a judge of the Superior Court, which shall be filed with the clerk. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, which shall not be decreased during the term of office; to be paid in monthly installments by the county. The judge shall be provided by the county board of commissioners with an office and a suitable and convenient room for holding court at the county seat. (1925, c. 167, s. 2.)

§ 7-334. Substitute judge.—When the judge of said county civil court is unable to hold court on account of sickness, absence, disqualification, or other cause, he shall appoint some other person learned in the law, who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for a judge, to act as substitute judge, who shall be invested with all the powers and duties of the judge, and his compensation during his appointment shall be paid by the said judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 3.)

§ 7-335. Terms of court; calendar.—The court shall open for the transaction of business and trial of cases on the first Monday of each month and continue until the matters of the court are disposed of, and it shall be the duty of the judge to prepare a calendar of cases for trial, on which jury cases shall have precedence. (1925, c. 167, s. 4.)

§ 7-336. Clerk of court.—The clerk of the superior court of the county shall be ex officio clerk of the court, and in addition to the salary or fees paid him as clerk of the Superior Court, he shall be paid such additional compensation as the county commissioners of the county may fix to be paid monthly out of the county funds, and the board of county commissioners be and are hereby authorized and empowered to provide for salary or fees for such additional deputies as he may need. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk, to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 5.)

§ 7-337. Sheriff.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies, appointed, shall attend upon the terms of this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county. The county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may fix for such services, in addition to his salary or fees fixed by law. (1925, c. 167, s. 6.)

§ 7-338. Records; blanks, forms, books, stationery.—The clerk of the court shall keep separate records for the use of the said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide such necessary blanks, forms, books, and stationery as may be needed by the court, and the clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 7.)

§ 7-339. Juries.—The jury in said court shall be a jury of twelve and the trial shall be conducted as nearly as possible as in the Superior Court. In all actions the parties shall be deemed to have waived a jury trial, unless demand shall be made therefor, as hereinafter provided, in writing. The plaintiff in filing the complaint, or the defendant at the time of filing answer, may in the pleadings demand a jury trial, or in cases transferred from the Superior Court to the said court, either party may demand jury trial, in writing, signed by the party making it or his attorney, which must be made at the time of such transfer. Any demand for a jury trial shall be accompanied by a deposit of five dollars ($5.00), to insure the payment of the jury tax, except in cases brought in forma pauperis, provided such demand shall not be used to the prejudice of the party making it. (1925, c. 167, s. 8.)

§ 7-340. Jury list; summons.—It shall be the duty of the board of county commissioners, upon the establishment of a court as herein provided, and every two years thereafter, to prepare a list of jurors, identical with the list prepared for the Superior Court and subject to the same rules and regulations, and mark said jury box as the county civil court box, from which the jury shall be drawn. The judge of the court shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county to summons the jurors for the court in the same manner as juries are ordered and drawn in the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 9.)

§ 7-341. Talesmen.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to summons a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1925, c. 167, s. 10.)

§ 7-342. Procedure, process, pleadings, etc.—The procedure, practice, processes, pleadings and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as near as may be to the courts having concurrent jurisdiction with this court. (1925, c. 167, s. 11.)

§ 7-343. Appeals.—Appeals in all actions may be taken from the court to the Superior Court of the county in term time for errors assigned in matters of law in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, with the exception that the record may be typewritten instead of printed, and only two copies shall be required; one for the court and the other for the opposing counsel. The time for taking and prosecuting appeals shall be counted from the end of the calendar month of the court at which such trial is had. It shall be the duty of any judge of the Superior Court holding the courts in any county, where a court is established under the provisions of this article, to allot sufficient and adequate time during each regular term of the Superior Court held in such county for the hearing of appeals from the county civil court of such county. Upon such appeal the Superior Court may either affirm or modify and affirm the judgment of the county civil court or remand the cause for a new trial. From the judgment of the Superior Court an appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court, as is now provided by law. Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the court shall be the same as in appeals from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court, and judgments of said court may be enforced by execution by the clerk thereof, returnable within twenty days, and transcripts of such judgments may be docketed in the superior court as now provided for judgments of justices of the peace, and when docketed shall, in all respects, be judgments in the superior court in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the superior court. (1925, c. 167, s. 12.)

§ 7-344. Jurisdiction.—The county civil court shall have jurisdiction only in civil matters, and as follows:

(1) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;

(2) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;

(3) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions not founded upon contract; wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000), exclusive of interest and cost;

(4) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions to try title to lands and to prevent trespass thereon and to restrain waste thereof;

(5) Jurisdiction concurrent with the Superior Court in all actions pending in said court to issue and grant temporary and permanent restraining orders and injunctions. (1925, c. 167, s. 13.)

§ 7-345. Stenographer; fees.—There shall be an official stenographer of the court whose duties and fees shall be the same and taxed as those of the official stenographer of the superior court. (1925, c. 167, s. 14.)

§ 7-346. Disqualification of judge.—Where the judge is disqualified to try any case, it shall be removed for trial to the superior court of the county, in which the court is located or ore tenus to the substitute judge. (1925, c. 167, s. 15.)

§ 7-347. Pending cases, transfer.—By consent of plaintiff and defendant any case, within the jurisdiction of the court, pending in the superior court may be transferred to the docket of the county civil court, and there tried. (1925, c. 167, s. 16.)

§ 7-348. Abolishing court.—This court may be abolished by resolution of the board of county commissioners of any county for such county by giving written notice of such intention six months prior to the end of the term of any presiding judge thereof, to become effective at the end of such term of office; and, in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the Superior Court. (1925, c. 167, s. 17.)

§ 7-349. Existing laws not repealed.—This article shall not be construed to repeal any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to effect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a county court may be established. (1925, c. 167, s. 18.)

§ 7-350. Article inapplicable to certain counties.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Bladen, Jones, Bertie, Caldwell, Craven, Columbus, Gaston, Henderson, Mitchell, Vance. (1925, c. 167, s. 19.)

Art. 35. With Jurisdiction Not to Exceed $1500.

§ 7-351. Establishment.—In addition to the plans now provided by law for the establishment of courts inferior to the superior court, there may be established by resolution of a majority of the members of the board of county commissioners of any county in the state a court of civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record, shall be called County Civil Court and shall have civil jurisdiction as provided in this article. (1937, c. 437, s. 1.)

Local Modification.—Caswell, Wayne: 1937, c. 437, s. 30.

§ 7-352. Qualification of judge.—The county civil court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be an attorney at law, who shall at the time of appointment and qualification be an elector in and for said county, and he shall not by reason of his term of office be prohibited from practicing the profession of attorney at law in other courts except as to matters pending in connection with or growing out of said county civil court. (1937, c. 437, s. 2.)

§ 7-353. Appointment of judge; vacancies; substitute judge.—After the ratification of this article and the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the governor of the state, who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each second year thereafter it shall be the duty of the governor of the state to appoint the judge of each such county civil court, who shall preside over said court; the said judge shall hold office for a term of two years and until his successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the governor of the state.

When the judge of said county civil court is unable to hold court on account of sickness, absence, disqualification or other cause, the governor of the state shall appoint some other person, who shall take the same oath and possess the same qualifications as provided for a judge, to act as substitute judge, who shall be invested with all the powers and duties of the judge. At the time of fixing the salary for the judge, the board of county commissioners shall fix a per diem compensation for the substitute judge which shall be paid out of the salary fixed for the judge. (1937, c. 437, s. 3.)

§ 7-354. Oath of judge.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, the said judge shall take and subscribe an oath of office as is now provided by law for the judges of the superior court, and file the same with the clerk of the superior court of said county; and said clerk shall record the same. (1937, c. 437, s. 4.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of superior court judges, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-355. Salary of judge.—The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, shall not be decreased during the term of office, and shall be paid in monthly installments out of the funds of the county. The judge shall be provided by the county board of commissioners with a suitable and convenient room for holding court at the county-seat. (1937, c. 437, s. 5.)

§ 7-356. Disqualification of judge.—Where the judge is disqualified by reason of interest in any case, it shall be removed for trial to the superior court of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 6.)

sible the same duties, powers and responsibilities with reference to the county civil court as he has in his capacity as clerk of the superior court. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk of the county civil court to the same extent as he is bound as clerk of superior court. In addition to the salary or fees paid him as clerk of superior court, the clerk of the county civil court shall be paid such additional reasonable compensation as the board of county commissioners may fix; and the board of county commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to provide the salary of such additional deputy or deputies as he may need. (1937, c. 437, s. 7.)

§ 7-358. Oath of clerks.—The clerks of the county civil court, before entering on the duties of their office, shall take and subscribe, before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oath required under general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of them under this article and file such oaths with the register of deeds for the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths required of clerk of the superior court, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-359. Appointment and removal of deputies.—Each clerk of the county civil court shall have the authority to appoint deputy clerks and the authority to revoke such appointments at will. He shall make a record of each appointment and furnish a transcript of such record to the register of deeds, who shall record the same in the record of deeds and make a cross-index thereof. When the appointment of any deputy clerk is revoked, the clerk shall write on the margin of the records of such appointment the word "revoked" and the date of revocation, and sign his name thereto. (1937, c. 437, s. 9.)

§ 7-360. Oath and power of deputies.—If any deputy clerk shall be appointed as provided in this article, he shall take and subscribe to the oaths prescribed for clerks. Each deputy clerk appointed as herein provided shall have as nearly as possible the same powers and duties, with reference to the county civil court, as a deputy clerk of the superior court has with reference to the superior court. (1937, c. 437, s. 10.)

§ 7-361. Sheriff.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies appointed, shall attend upon this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county. The board of county commissioners of the county are authorized to make said sheriff such additional allowances as they may deem necessary and proper for such services, in addition to his salary or fees now fixed by law. (1937, c. 437, s. 11.)

§ 7-362. Stenographer.—The board of county commissioners shall appoint an official stenographer of the court, whose duties shall be the same as those of the official stenographer of the superior court, and the compensation shall be fixed and paid by the board of county commissioners. (1937, c. 437, s. 12.)

§ 7-363. Jury trial.—In the trial of actions in said court any party is entitled to the right of trial by jury as is provided in the trial of causes in the superior court, unless said right of trial by jury shall be waived as hereinafter provided. (1937, c. 437, s. 13.)

§ 7-364. Waiver of jury trial; jurisdiction concurrent with superior court.—In those cases in which written pleadings are required to be filed, the parties shall be conclusively presumed to have expressly waived their right to trial by jury, unless at the time of the filing of the complaint or petition the plaintiff, in writing, demands a jury trial; or, at the time of the filing of the answer or other pleading which raises an issue of fact, the defendant or other party filing such pleading demands, in writing, a jury trial. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(a).)

§ 7-366. Jury trial in cases instituted in superior court or before magistrate.—In those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted before a justice of the peace and removed or appealed to this court, and in those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted in superior court and removed to this court, a jury trial will be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived unless the party desiring a trial by jury shall make a demand therefor, in writing, at any time before the case is called for trial; in which event the number of the jury shall be as herein elsewhere provided. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(c).)

§ 7-367. Jury of six; demand and deposit for jury of twelve.—The jury of said court shall be a jury of six unless, at any time before the calling of the cause for trial, either party, who has not waived the right to trial by jury by failing to demand a jury trial in apt time as provided herein, or otherwise, demands a trial by a jury of twelve, in which event a jury of twelve shall be impaneled: Provided, that in those cases in which a jury of twelve is demanded the party shall, at the time of making the demand, pay to the clerk of said court a deposit of five dollars to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided further, that where a party making such demand for a jury of twelve makes affidavit and satisfies the judge or clerk of said court that he is unable to make the deposit, such party shall not be required to make the same. The deposit for jury of twelve shall be returned to the party making it when the jury tax is paid by the losing party against whom the costs are taxed. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(d).)

§ 7-368. Judge may impanel jury on own motion.—The judge of said court, when in his opinion the ends of justice would be best served by submitting an issue or issues to the jury, may call a jury of his own motion and submit to it such issue or issues as he may deem material. (1937, c. 437, s. 13(e).)

§ 7-369. Drawing juries; summons of jurors; pay of jurors.—The regular jurors shall be drawn from the superior court jury box; the drawing and summoning of said jurors shall be in the same manner as jurors are drawn and summoned for the superior court: Provided, however, only twelve jurors shall be drawn and summoned for any one week of court unless the judge specifies that a larger number shall be drawn. The judge of each county civil court, at least thirty days in advance, shall notify the chairman of the board of county commissioners when a jury will be needed.

Jurors shall receive the same compensation as is provided by law for jurors serving in the superior court, to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court. (1937, c. 437, s. 14.)

§ 7-370. Talesmen.—The judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to summon a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week or a portion thereof for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1937, c. 437, s. 15.)

§ 7-371. When court opens; terms of court.—The county civil courts shall be open for the transaction of business within their jurisdiction whenever matters before the court require attention, except for the trial of issues of fact requiring a jury and the trial of contested causes wherein the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, which shall be heard in term time.

The judge of the county civil court is hereby authorized to fix the terms of said court upon consulting with the clerk of the court and the members of the bar of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 16.)

§ 7-372. Jurisdiction.—The county civil court shall have jurisdiction only in civil matters and as follows:

(1) Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county;

(2) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, exclusive of interest and costs;

(3) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions not founded on contract wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars, exclusive of interests and costs;

(4) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions to try title to lands, to prevent trespass thereon, and to restrain waste thereof wherein the value of the land does not exceed the sum of one thousand five hundred dollars;

(5) Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions and proceedings for divorce and alimony, or either, and to make such orders respecting the care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as may be proper. (1937, c. 437, s. 17.)

tice of the peace of a county wherein a county civil court has been established under the provisions of this article, such appeal shall be first heard de novo in the county civil court in the manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the said county civil court. Said appeals shall be docketed in the county civil court within the same time limit and in the same manner as such appeals are now required to be docketed in the superior court. (1937, c. 437, s. 18.)

§ 7-374. Removal of cause before justice of peace.—When, upon affidavit made before entering upon the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace of said county, it shall appear proper for said cause to be removed for trial to some other justice of the peace, as is now provided by law, said cause shall be removed for trial to the said county civil court. (1937, c. 437, s. 19.)

§ 7-375. Pending cases, transfer.—By written consent of plaintiff and defendant filed with the clerk of superior court, any case within the jurisdiction of the county civil court, now or hereafter pending in the superior court, may be transferred to the docket of the county civil court and there tried; if a jury trial is desired, it shall be expressed in the agreement to transfer the case; otherwise, the right to trial by jury shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived. (1937, c. 437, s. 20.)

§ 7-376. Records; blanks, forms, books, stationery.—The clerk of the county civil court shall keep separate records for use of the said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide such necessary blanks, forms, books, and stationery and office equipment as may be needed by the court; the clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of such court. (1937, c. 437, s. 21.)

§ 7-377. Processes; pleadings; procedure, etc.—When the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, the rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice, and procuring evidence and judgment shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the superior court.

When the county civil court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of justices of the peace, actions shall be commenced in the county civil court by summons issued and signed by the clerk or deputy; and orders to seize property in claim and delivery proceedings, warrants of attachment and subpoena may be issued by the clerk or deputy and the other rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice, and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the courts of the justices of the peace of the county. (1937, c. 437, s. 22.)

§ 7-378. Appeal to superior court; time for perfecting appeal; record on appeal; briefs; judgment; appeal to supreme court.—Appeals in actions may be taken from the county civil court within ten days from date of rendition of judgment to the superior court of the county in term time, for errors assigned in matters of law or legal inference, in the same manner as is provided for appeals from the superior court to the supreme court, except as follows:

(1) The appellant shall cause a copy of the statement of case on appeal to be served on the respondent within thirty days from the entry of the appeal taken, and the respondent, within fifteen days after such service, shall return the copy with his approval or specific amendments endorsed or attached; if the case be approved by the respondent, it shall be filed with the clerk as a part of the record; if not returned with objections within the time prescribed, it shall be deemed approved: Provided, that the judge trying the case shall have the power, in the exercise of his discretion, to enlarge the time in which to serve statement of case on appeal and exceptions thereto or counter statement of case.

(2) The appellant shall file one typewritten copy of the statement of case on appeal, as settled, containing the exceptions and assignments of error, which, together with the original record, shall be transmitted by the clerk of the county civil court to the superior court as the complete record on appeal in said court.

(3) The record in the case on appeal to the superior court must be docketed in the superior court within ten days after the date of settling the case on appeal. If the appellant shall fail to perfect his appeal within the prescribed time, the appellee may file with the clerk of superior court a certificate of the clerk of court from which the appeal comes showing the names of the parties thereto, the time when the judgment and appeal were taken, the name of the appellant and the date of the settling of case on appeal, if any has been settled, with his motion to docket and dismiss said appeal at appellant's cost, which motion shall be allowed at the first regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court.

(4) Appellant shall file one typewritten brief with the clerk of superior court, and shall immediately mail or deliver to appellee's counsel a carbon typewritten copy thereof. If appellant's brief has not been filed with the clerk of superior court, and no copy has been delivered to appellee's counsel within three weeks from the date of settling the case on appeal, the appeal will be dismissed on motion of appellee at the next regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court, unless for good cause shown the court shall give appellant further time to file his brief.

(5) Appellee shall file one typewritten brief and a carbon copy thereof with the clerk of superior court within five weeks from the date of settling the case on appeal; the copy of same will be furnished counsel for appellant by the clerk of superior court, on application. On failure of the appellee to file his brief by the time required, the case will be heard and determined at the next regular term or any succeeding regular term of the superior court without argument from appellee, unless for good cause shown the court shall give appellee further time to file his brief.

(6) It shall be the duty of any judge of the superior court holding court in any county where a court is established under the provisions of this article, to allot sufficient and adequate time during each regular term of the superior court held in such county for the hearing of appeals from the county civil court of such county: Provided, no such appeal shall be heard until five days has expired since the filing of appellee's brief or since the time appellee's brief should have been filed.

(7) Upon such appeal, the superior court may either affirm or modify the judgment of the county civil court or remand the cause for a new trial.

(8) From the judgment of the superior court an appeal may be taken to the supreme court as is now provided by law. (1937, c. 437, s. 23.)

§ 7-379. Stay of execution; enforcement of judgments, etc.—Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the county civil court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court.

Judgments of the county civil court shall be docketed in the judgment docket of the superior court as is provided for judgments of the superior court, and the judgment when docketed shall in all respects be a judgment of the superior court in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1937, c. 437, s. 24.)

§ 7-380. Court seal.—The county civil court shall have a seal with the impression "..... County Civil Court," which shall be used in attestation of all summons, other processes, acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and in the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the state of North Carolina. (1937, c. 437, s. 25.)

§ 7-381. Costs and fees.—There shall be taxed in the county civil court the same costs and fees for services of the officers thereof as provided for the court having concurrent jurisdiction; such costs and fees shall be taxed and collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1937, c. 437, s. 26.)

§ 7-382. Abolishing court.—This court may be abolished by resolution of a majority of the board of county commissioners of any county for such county by giving written notice of such intention six months prior to the end of the term of any presiding judge thereof, to become effective at the end of such term of office; and in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the superior court and there tried. (1937, c. 437, s. 27.)

§ 7-383. Existing laws not repealed.—This article shall not be construed to repeal or modify any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to affect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws, and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a county court may be established. (1937, c. 437, s. 28.)

SUBCHAPTER IX. COUNTY CRIMINAL COURTS.

Art. 36. County Criminal Courts.

§ 7-384. Counties authorized to establish county criminal courts.—In each county in this State there may be established a court of criminal jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record, and it shall be maintained pursuant to the provisions of this article, and said court shall be called the county criminal court, and shall have jurisdiction over the entire county in which said court shall be established. (1931, c. 89, s. 1.)

§ 7-385. Established by resolution of county commissioners.—If, in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county, the public interest will be best promoted by so doing, they may establish a County Court under the provisions of this article, by resolution which shall in brief recite the reasons for the establishment thereof, and further recite that in the opinion of the board of commissioners it is not necessary that an election be called for the establishment of said court, as herein provided, and upon the adoption of such resolution the board of commissioners may establish said court without holding such election. (1931, c. 89, s. 2.)

§ 7-386. Court may be abolished by resolution.—Whenever in the opinion of the board of commissioners of any county in which a court has been established under this article, the conditions prevailing in such county are such as to no longer require the said court, such board of commissioners may, by proper resolution, reciting in brief the reasons therefore, abolish said court. (1931, c. 89, s. 3.)

§ 7-387. Transfer of cases from docket of Superior Court.—Upon the establishment of the County Court, as in this article authorized, the clerk of the Superior Court shall immediately transfer from the Superior Court to such County Court all criminal actions pending in the Superior Court of which the County Court has jurisdiction, as in this article conferred, and the County Court shall immediately proceed to try and dispose of such criminal actions. (1931, c. 89, s. 4.)

§ 7-388. Appointment of judge; associate judge.—The court shall be presided over by a judge, who may be licensed to practice law, and who, at the time of his election or appointment, shall be a qualified elector in the county. The board of commissioners of the county shall appoint such judge, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided. In the event of a vacancy by death or resignation, appointment shall be for the unexpired term of the previous judge. The salary of said judge shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and the same shall be paid monthly out of the general county fund. In each county in which the court is established, under the provisions of this article, there shall be appointed by the board of commissioners of said county an associate judge, who shall preside as judge of the county court, and with like authority of the regular judge, in the event of sickness or absence from the county of the regular judge, or in the event that the regular judge should be disqualified by relationship to the parties in interest, or from other cause. The associate judge shall take the same oath of office required by the judge of the county court, and shall be paid such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of commissioners. The compensation which shall be paid to the associate judge shall be deducted from the salary to be paid to the regular county judge as herein provided. He shall be appointed at the time fixed for the appointment of the judge of the County Court, and for the same term as herein provided for a regular judge of the county, with the authority on the part of the board of commissioners to fill the vacancy in the event of death or resignation. (1931, c. 89, s. 5.)

§ 7-389. Appointment of prosecuting attorney.

—There shall be a prosecuting attorney of said County Court, to be known as the prosecuting attorney, who shall appear for the State and prosecute all criminal cases being tried in said court, and for his services he shall be paid such salary as may be fixed by the board of commissioners, to be paid monthly from the general county fund. The board of commissioners shall appoint such prosecuting attorney, whose term of office shall be two (2) years from the date of his appointment, and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified, or until the court shall be abolished, as herein provided, except in the event of a vacancy in the office of prosecuting attorney, either by death or resignation, the appointment to fill such vacancy shall be for the unexpired term of the previous prosecuting attorney. (1931, c. 89, s. 6.)

§ 7-390. Clerk of court; term of office; fees; bond; sheriff.—In those counties in which the clerk of the superior court and sheriff are paid fees and not salaries, such clerks and sheriffs shall receive the same fees for services rendered in a county court as they would have received had such services been rendered in the superior court.

The Clerk of the Superior Court shall, ex-officio, be Clerk of the County Court, and in all counties in which the Clerk of the Superior Court is paid fees, the Clerk of the Superior Court shall have the right and privilege to resign as Clerk of the County Court, and in the event of such resignation the board of commissioners shall have the authority to appoint a Clerk of the County Court, whose term of office shall be two (2) years, and whose term of office shall expire at the time fixed for the termination of the office of the judge of said court, and the appointment of the Clerk of the County Court shall thereafter be made by the board of commissioners at the same time when the appointment of the judge of said court is made by said board of commissioners. He will receive the same fees for services rendered as clerks of the Superior Courts. In all counties in which the Clerks of the Superior Court are paid salaries the board of commissioners are authorized, in their discretion, to provide additional compensation to such clerks for their services rendered as Clerk of the County Court.

In the event that the Clerk of the Superior Court shall resign as Clerk of the County Court as herein provided, upon the appointment of a Clerk to the County Court, he shall be required to enter into a bond in such sum as may be fixed by the board of commissioners for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. (1931, c. 89, s. 7.)

§ 7-391. Oath of judge; prosecuting attorney.

—The judge of the county court, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of judges of the Superior Court, and such oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. The prosecuting attorney, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take the prescribed oath required of solicitors of the Superior Court, and said oath shall be recorded by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county. (1931, c. 89, s. 8.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-392. Court seal.—The County Criminal Court shall have a seal with the impression "County Court of.....County," which shall be used in attestation of all writs, warrants, or other processes, acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and in the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the State of North Carolina. (1931, c. 89, s. 9.)

§ 7-393. Jurisdiction; appeal; judgment docket.—The jurisdiction of the County Court shall be as follows:

(a) Said court shall have final exclusive and original jurisdiction of all criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony, as now defined by law, except as to offenses over which justices of the peace have final jurisdiction, and all such offenses whereof said court is given jurisdiction are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors.

(b) To punish for contempt to the same extent and in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Court of this State; to issue writs ad testificandum and other processes to compel the attendance of witnesses and to enforce the orders and judgments of the court in the same manner allowed by law to the Superior Courts of this State.

(c) The judge of the County Court shall have all the power and jurisdiction and authority now conferred by law upon the Superior Court to sentence any person who pleads guilty or who is convicted in said court of a misdemeanor for which the punishment prescribed by law is imprisonment, to be imprisoned in the common jail of the county and to be assigned to work on the public roads under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission and the clerk of said court shall issue commitments therefor in the same manner as now provided by law for the Clerks of the Superior Court.

(d) Any person convicted in said court shall have the right of appeal to the Superior Court of said county, and upon such appeal the trial in the Superior Court shall be de novo.

(e) The County Court shall have exclusive preliminary jurisdiction over all offenses whereof exclusive jurisdiction is not given to said court, and shall hear and determine all warrants charging such offenses, and in the event that the court finds probable cause, shall bind the defendant over to the Superior Court, requiring such bond as the court may fix for the appearance of the defendant at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes; and all justices of the peace issuing warrants wherein the defendant or defendants are charged with the commission of an offense whereof the Superior Court has jurisdiction, shall make said warrants returnable before the said County Court.

(f) The judge of the County Court shall have the same authority as the judge of the Superior Court to render judgments upon all appearance bonds, and such other bonds as are authorized by law, when default has been made. All such judgments shall be certified to and docketed upon the civil judgment docket in the Superior Court of the county in which the court is held, and shall be cross-indexed as other judgments, and shall, from the time of docketing, have the same force and effect as judgments of the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 10; 1931, c. 241; 1937, c. 123.)

Local Modification.—Burke: 1935, c. 298; 1939, c. 226.

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1937, c. 123, repealed Public Laws 1931, c. 241, relative to civil jurisdiction of recorder's court in Gates county.

§ 7-394. Jury trials.—In all cases coming before the said County Court a jury may be demanded by either the State or the defendant, or the court may, upon its own motion, order a jury trial in any case where, in the judgment of the court, the ends of justice would be better met by submitting the case to a jury. The board of commissioners of the county in which said County Court is established are hereby required to furnish the clerk of said County Court with a list of jurors of said county, and in any case where a jury trial is to be had a jury of twelve (12) shall be drawn from the said list of jurors so furnished by the board of commissioners. The names of the jurors shall be drawn from the box as now provided in cases in the Superior Court in drawing a special venire; Provided, however, the defendant may waive a jury drawn from the box, in which event the court shall direct the sheriff to summons bystanders or tales jurors to serve as jurors in said cases, and the judge of the County Court shall have like authority as is now existing by the judge of the Superior Court to order the summons of tales jurors to serve in said court where the jurors drawn from the box shall be legally challenged or shall be otherwise disqualified to serve as such jurors. The causes of challenge of jurors in the County Court shall be the same as now provided for challenges of jurors in the Superior Court. The fees of jurors shall be the same as now paid jurors in the Superior Court, and shall be paid from the general county fund, and a jury tax of fifteen ($15.00) dollars in such cases shall be taxed in the bill of costs. (1931, c. 89, s. 11.)

Local Modification.—Lee: 1939, c. 213; Onslow: 1941, c. 303.

§ 7-395. Process.—The warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law issued by said court shall be directed to the sheriff or other lawful officer of the county to which said process is directed, and service thereof shall be lawfully made when made by the sheriff, deputy sheriff, of the county, or any other constable of said county, or by any rural policeman of said county, or municipal officer, and all warrants and subpoenas and other processes issued by the clerk of said county, when attested by the seal of said county, shall run anywhere in the State of North Carolina, and shall be executed by all officers in the same manner and way as processes now issued by the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 12.)

§ 7-396. Duties of judge; bond on appeal or on being bound over.—The judge of the County Court shall preside over said court and shall direct and determine all actions coming before him, the jurisdiction of which is conferred by this article, and in all cases where the defendant or defendants shall crave an appeal to the superior court, and in cases where the court has preliminary jurisdiction, and probable cause is found, the defendant shall be required to give bond, with sufficient surety, to be fixed by the court, conditioned upon the defendant's appearance at the next ensuing term of the Superior Court of said county for the trial of criminal causes, and in default thereof the court shall commit the defendant to the common jail of said county until said defendant shall have given bond or shall have been otherwise discharged according to law, except in capital cases, when the court shall find probable cause, he shall bind the defendant over to the superior court without bond. (1931, c. 89, s. 13.)

§ 7-397. When prosecuting attorney's fee taxed in bill of costs.—In all cases where the defendant shall plead guilty, or shall be convicted, there shall be taxed in the bill of costs a fee of eight dollars ($8.00) in lieu of prosecuting attorney's fee, which shall be paid by the defendant, and shall be paid into the general county fund. In the event the defendant is confined to jail or confined to jail and assigned to work on the public roads such fee shall not be taxed as a part of the cost. (1931, c. 89, s. 14.)

§ 7-398. Complete record to be kept by clerk; docket.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of said court to keep an accurate account and true record of all costs, fines, penalties, forfeitures, and punishments of said court imposed under the provisions of this article, and said record shall show the name of each offender, the name of the offense, the date of the hearing of the trial, and the punishment imposed, and the board of commissioners shall provide dockets for recording all of the processes issued by said court, which shall conform to the docket kept by the clerk of the Superior Court, and shall also provide proper files to properly keep a record of all cases which shall be disposed of in said court, and the disposition that has been made of the same. (1931, c. 89, s. 15.)

§ 7-399. Warrants returnable to court.—All warrants for crimes whereof the County Court shall have jurisdiction may be issued by any Justice of the Peace of said county, or mayor of any incorporated town, as provided by law, and shall be made returnable before the County Court at the next ensuing term thereof. (1931, c. 89, s. 16.)

§ 7-400. Service fees to officers except where they are on salary.—The cost of issuing and serving warrants, subpoenas, and other processes of law by said court shall be payable to the officers issuing or serving them, and shall be payable to the clerk of said court as is now done in cases determined by the superior court, except in those counties where officials are paid salaries and are not allowed fees, in which cases the costs so taxed shall be paid into the office of the clerk of said court, to be paid by him to the county treasurer or depository of said county, in the same manner and way as is now provided for similar fees in the Superior Court. (1931, c. 89, s. 17.)

§ 7-401. Regular and special terms; place of sessions.—There shall be held a regular term of the County Court established under the provisions of this article on the second Tuesday in each month: Provided, however, special terms may be held at any time by order of the judge of said court for the purpose of disposing of cases where pleas of guilty shall be entered and for the trial of cases where the defendants are confined to prison. At all regular terms the court shall continue in session until all cases are tried, continued, or otherwise disposed of according to law: Provided, however, the board of county commissioners in any county in which a County Court is established under the provisions of this article by proper resolution duly entered upon the minutes of said board, may, in the exercise of their discretion, fix other days than the days provided in this article on which regular terms of said court may be held: Provided, further, when a regular term of the County Court to be held under the terms fixed by this article shall conflict with a term of the Superior Court in said county, the regular term of the County Court shall be held on the first Tuesday following the termination of said term of the Superior Court, as fixed by law. All sessions of said County Court shall be held in the court house of the county in which said court is established. (1931, c. 89, s. 18.)

§ 7-402. Judge and prosecuting attorney may practice law in other courts.—In the event of the appointment of a licensed lawyer as judge or prosecuting attorney of said County Court, nothing in this article shall prevent the said judge or the prosecuting attorney appointed under the provisions of this article from practicing law in matters in which he is in no way connected by reason of his said office, or in courts in the State in matters which have not been heard or will not be heard in the County Court of which he is an officer. (1931, c. 89, s. 19.)

§ 7-403. Other County Court Acts not affected.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to repeal, alter, or amend any law heretofore enacted authorizing the establishment of county courts in the several counties of the State, but this article shall be construed to be in addition to and supplemental to such acts, and any court established under the provisions of this article shall be restricted and limited to all the provisions herein contained. (1931, c. 89, s. 20.)

§ 7-404. Certain counties excepted from provisions of article.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Alexander, Alleghany, Ashe, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Buncombe, Camden, Caswell, Catawba, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Craven, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Davidson, Davie, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe,

Franklin, Greene, Harnett, Haywood, Henderson, Hertford, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Jackson, Johnston, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Montgomery, New Hanover, Northampton, Orange, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Randolph, Robeson, Rockingham, Rowan, Sampson, Scotland, Stanly, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Vance, Wake, Warren, Watauga, Wayne, Wilkes, Yancey and Richmond. (1931, c. 89, s. 21, c. 270; 1935, c. 8; 1939, c. 41.)

Editor's Note.—Cabarrus county was omitted by the amendment of 1935.

The 1939 amendment omitted Yadkin county.

SUBCHAPTER X. SPECIAL COUNTY COURTS.

Art. 37. Special County Courts.

§ 7-405. Establishment upon resolution or county commissioners.—In addition to the plans now provided for the establishment of courts inferior to the superior court, there may be established by resolution of all of the members of the board of county commissioners of any county in the state a court of criminal and civil jurisdiction, which shall be a court of record and shall be called a special county court and shall have criminal and civil jurisdiction as herein provided: Provided, that the board of county commissioners may by proper resolution, establish a special county court having only criminal jurisdiction or only civil jurisdiction or having both criminal and civil jurisdiction as herein provided. (1939, c. 357, s. 1.)

§ 7-406. Qualifications of judge and solicitor.—The judge of said court shall be an elector in and for said county at the time of appointment and qualification, and shall be a man of good moral character. The solicitor of the county shall be an elector in and for said county, shall be a man of good moral character and a licensed attorney at law. (1939, c. 357, s. 2.)

§ 7-407. Appointment of judge.—After the establishment of such court by any county, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the board of commissioners of such county to immediately notify the governor of the state, who shall appoint a judge to preside over such court, and each second year thereafter it shall be the duty of the governor of the state to appoint the judge of each such county court who shall preside over said court, and the said judge shall hold office for a term of two years, and until his successor is appointed and qualified. Any vacancy occurring in the office of judge shall be filled by the governor of the state. (1939, c. 357, s. 3.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 2, repealed by 1943, c. 254, ss. 1, 3.

§ 7-408. Appointment of prosecuting attorney and clerk.—The board of commissioners of any county availing itself of the provisions of this article may elect or appoint and for the same term as herein provided for the appointment of the judge of this court, a prosecuting attorney and clerk for said court. (1939, c. 357, s. 4.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, ss. 3, 4; 1943, c. 254, ss. 1, 4.

§ 7-409. Appointment of acting attorney or judge in absence of regular official.—Whenever, for any reason, the prosecuting attorney is temporarily absent, the judge shall appoint some other practicing attorney in the county to act as prosecuting attorney, and in case of temporary absence of the judge, either on account of sickness or other cause, the judge of said court shall appoint a judge to hold court during the absence of the regular judge. (1939, c. 357, s. 5.)

§ 7-410. Compensation of judge and solicitor.—The salary of the judge and solicitor and clerk shall be fixed by the board of commissioners of the county, and shall be paid monthly out of the funds of the county. (1939, c. 357, s. 6.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 5.

§ 7-411. Oaths of judge and solicitor.—Before entering upon the duties of office, the judge and solicitor shall take and subscribe an oath as is now provided by law for the judges and solicitors of the superior court, and file the same with the clerk of the superior court of the county, and the clerk shall record the same. (1939, c. 357, s. 7.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, s. 7.

§ 7-412. Appointment of temporary judge, etc.—Where the judge is disqualified by reason of interest in any case, he may appoint a temporary judge to hear said case, or said case may be removed to the superior court for trial in the county. (1939, c. 357, s. 8.)

§ 7-413. Duties and liabilities of clerk.—The clerk of the special county court established under the provisions of this article shall have as nearly as possible the same duties, powers, and responsibilities with reference to the special county court as a clerk of the superior court. The said clerk shall be liable upon his official bond for the discharge of his duties and caring for funds paid to him as clerk of the special county court to the same extent as a clerk of the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 9.)

§ 7-414. Oath of office of clerk.—The clerk of the special county court before entering on the duties of the office, shall take and subscribe, before some officer authorized by law to administer an oath, the oath required under general law, and in addition thereto shall take and subscribe to an oath to perform faithfully all the duties required of him under this article and file such oath with the register of deeds for the county. (1939, c. 357, s. 10.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11; Const., Art. VI, § 7.

§ 7-415. Attendance upon court by sheriff or deputies.—The sheriff of the county, or his deputies, shall attend upon this court in the same manner and with the same power and authority as he does and has in attendance upon the superior court of the county. (1939, c. 357, s. 11.)

§ 7-416. Appointment of court stenographer.—In the trial of any case in the special county court where a stenographer is deemed necessary, the judge of said court shall appoint a stenographer, and the fees for such work shall be taxed as part of the court cost in said case. (1939, c. 357, s. 12.)

§ 7-417. Right of jury trial in civil actions.—In the trial of civil actions in said court, any party is entitled to the right of trial by jury as is provided in the trial of causes in the superior court, unless said right of trial by jury shall be waived as hereinafter provided. (1939, c. 357, s. 13.)

§ 7-418. Jury trial where no written pleadings are filed.—In those cases in which no written pleadings are required, the parties shall be conclusively presumed to have expressly waived their right to trial by jury, unless at the time of the issuance of the summons, the plaintiff, or petitioner, in writing, demands a jury trial, or the defendant at any time before the commencement of the trial, in writing, demands a jury trial. (1939, c. 357, s. 14.)

§ 7-420. Jury trial where cases appealed or removed.—In those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted before a justice of the peace and removed or appealed to this court, and in those cases which were or may hereafter be instituted in superior court, and removed to this court, a jury trial shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived unless the party desiring a trial by jury shall make a demand therefor, in writing, at any time before the case is called for trial, in which event the number of the jury shall be as herein elsewhere provided. (1939, c. 357, s. 16.)

§ 7-421. Number of jurors; deposit on demand for jury trial.—The jury of said court shall be a jury of six in all civil cases where a jury is demanded: Provided, that in those cases in which a jury is demanded the party shall at the time of making the demand pay to the clerk of the said court a deposit of six dollars ($6.00) to insure the payment of the jury tax: Provided, further, that where a party making such demand for a jury trial makes affidavit and satisfies the judge or clerk of the said court that he is unable to make the deposit, such party shall not be required to make the same. The deposit for a jury shall be returned to the party making it when the cost is paid by the losing party, against whom the cost is taxed. (1939, c. 357, s. 17.)

§ 7-422. Continuance of trial upon demand for jury; drawing and summoning of jury; compensation of jurors.—When a trial by jury is demanded in civil or criminal cases, the judge shall continue the cause until a day to be set, and the judge, together with the attorneys representing all parties shall immediately proceed to the office of the register of deeds of the county and cause to be drawn a jury of twelve, observing as nearly as may be the rule for drawing a jury for the superior court. The judge shall issue the proper writ to the sheriff of the county, commanding him to summon the jurors so drawn to appear at the court on the day set for the trial of the action. Such jurors shall receive the same compensation as is provided by law for jurors serving in the superior court, and are to be paid out of the treasury of said county on presentation of a ticket duly issued by the clerk of said court. (1939, c. 357, s. 18.)

§ 7-423. Jury trials in criminal actions.—In all criminal actions, upon demand of the defendant or the prosecuting attorney, a jury of six shall be summoned in the same manner as provided for summoning jurors in civil actions. (1939, c. 357, s. 19.)

§ 7-424. Talesmen may serve as jurors.—In all criminal and civil actions, the judge shall have the right to call in talesmen to serve as jurors, according to the practice of the superior court, and to direct the sheriff to call in a sufficient number of talesmen to serve during any one week or part of a week for the proper dispatch of the business of the court. (1939, c. 357, s. 20.)

§ 7-425. Sessions of court.—The special county court shall be open for the trial of all criminal cases of which it has jurisdiction at least one day of each week, and shall also be open at least once each month for the trial of all civil causes of which it has jurisdiction, said days to be fixed by the board of county commissioners, and shall continue its session from day to day until all business is transacted by trial, continuance or otherwise. The session of the court shall be held in the county court house or other place within the county provided by the board of county commissioners for that purpose. Special sessions of the court may be called by the judge as the necessities may require. (1939, c. 357, s. 21.)

§ 7-426. Civil jurisdiction of court.—The special county court shall have jurisdiction in civil matters as follows:

1. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the justices of the peace of the county.

2. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all actions founded on contracts wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of fifteen hundred dollars ($1500.00), exclusive of interest and cost.

3. Jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court in all actions not founded on contracts wherein the amount demanded shall not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000.00), exclusive of interest and cost.

4. Jurisdiction concurrent with the superior court in all attachment and claim and delivery proceedings wherein the value of the property demanded does not exceed the sum of one thousand dollars ($1000.00), exclusive of interest and cost. (1939, c. 357, s. 22.)

§ 7-427. Procedure for hearing of appeals from courts of justices of the peace.—In all cases where there is an appeal from a justice of the peace of a county wherein a special county court has been established under the provisions of this article, such appeal shall be first heard de novo in the special county court. All appeals from justices of the peace in civil cases shall be heard in the same manner provided herein for hearing causes within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace originating in the said special county court, and said appeals shall be docketed in the special county court within the same time limit and in the same manner as such appeals are now required to be docketed in the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 23.)

§ 7-428. Transfer of cases from superior court.—By written consent of a plaintiff and defendant filed with the clerk of the superior court, any civil case within the jurisdiction of the special county court, now or hereafter pending, in the superior court, may be transferred to the docket of the special county court, and there tried. If a jury trial is desired, it shall be expressed in the agreement to transfer the case; otherwise the right to trial by jury shall be conclusively presumed to have been expressly waived. (1939, c. 357, s. 24.)

§ 7-429. Separate records, equipment, etc., furnished by commissioners.—The clerk of the special county court shall keep separate records for use of said court to be furnished by the county commissioners, and they shall also provide necessary blanks, forms, books and such stationery and office equipment as may be needed by the court. The clerk shall keep the same in the office of the clerk of such court. (1939, c. 357, s. 25.)

§ 7-430. Procedure in civil actions.—In civil cases when the special county court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of the superior court, as now established, the rules of procedure, pleadings, practice, and admission of evidence, and judgment shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the superior court. In civil cases where the special county court is exercising jurisdiction concurrent with that of justices of the peace, actions shall be commenced in the special county court by summons issued and signed by the clerk or deputy, and orders to seize property in claim and delivery proceedings, warrants of attachment and subpoena may be issued by the clerk or deputy and the other rules of processes, pleadings, procedure, practice and procuring evidence and judgments shall conform as nearly as possible to those of the courts of the justices of the peace. (1939, c. 357, s. 26.)

§ 7-431. Orders to stay execution; judgments.—Orders to stay execution on judgments entered in the special county court shall be the same as in appeals from the superior court to the supreme court. Judgments of the county court shall be docketed in the judgment docket of the superior court, as is provided for judgments of the superior court, and the judgments when docketed shall in all respects be judgments of the superior court in the same manner and to the same extent as if rendered by the superior court, and shall be subject to the same statute of limitations and the statutes relating to the revival of judgments in the superior court and issuing executions thereon. (1939, c. 357, s. 27.)

§ 7-432. Seal of court.—The county court shall have a seal with the impression "..... County Special Court", which shall be used in attestation of all summons, other processes, etc., acts, or judgments of said court whenever required, and in the same manner and to the same effect as the seal of other courts of record in the state of North Carolina. (1939, c. 357, s. 28.)

§ 7-433. Costs and fees.—There shall be taxed in the special county court the same costs and fees for services of the officers thereof as provided for the court having concurrent jurisdiction; such costs and fees shall be taxed and collected by the clerk and paid over to the proper officers who are entitled to receive them. (1939, c. 357, s. 29.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1941, c. 60, s. 5½.

§ 7-434. Reopening of cases and modification of judgments.—When any case has been finally disposed of by the judge of the court and judgment pronounced therein, the case shall not thereafter be reopened or the judgment or sentence rendered therein changed, modified or stricken out by the judge after the adjournment of the regular weekly term of court or after the adjournment of any special term of court. (1939, c. 357, s. 30.)

§ 7-435. Criminal jurisdiction.—The court shall have concurrent jurisdiction in all criminal cases arising in the county which are now or may hereafter be given to a justice of the peace, and, in addition to the jurisdiction conferred by this section, shall have exclusive original jurisdiction of all other criminal offenses committed in the county below the grade of a felony as now defined by law, and the same are hereby declared to be petty misdemeanors: Provided, however, that where a special county court or recorder's court shall legally exist within such county by virtue of a special act of the legislature passed before the amendment of the constitution in reference thereto, then the special county court, as herein established, shall not have jurisdiction of criminal cases within the territory of such existing recorder's court, so as to interfere or conflict with the existing recorder's court, but shall have concurrent jurisdiction where the jurisdiction of the two courts covers the same causes or the same subject matter. This article and the establishment of any court thereunder shall not be construed to repeal, modify or in anywise affect any existing special court or recorder's court by virtue of such former special acts herein referred to. (1939, c. 357, s. 31.)

Local Modification.—Richmond: 1943, c. 254, s. 5.

Cross Reference.—For statute divesting inferior courts in most counties of exclusive original jurisdiction in criminal actions, see § 7-64.

§ 7-436. Judges vested with jurisdiction of municipal recorders.—The judges of special county courts herein provided for shall be vested with all the jurisdiction and authority conferred upon recorders of municipal courts, in like manner and to the same extent as if such jurisdiction and authority had been specially in this section set forth, in so far as such jurisdiction and authority are applicable to such courts, and the provisions of existing law relative to municipal recorder's courts shall in all things apply to the special county courts where the same are not inconsistent and in so far as same are practically applicable: Provided, that this section shall not take away the jurisdiction of a mayor to try breaches of ordinances when such city has no other municipal court. (1939, c. 357, s. 32.)

made before entering on the trial of any cause before any justice of the peace, it shall appear proper for the cause to be removed for trial to some other justice, as is now provided by law, the cause may be removed for trial to the special county court of the county. (1939, c. 357, s. 33.)

§ 7-438. Criminal cases bound over by justices of the peace.—In all criminal cases heard by a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate of the county against any person for any offense included within the exclusive jurisdiction of the special county court as provided in this article, and in which probable cause of guilt is found, such person shall be bound in a personal recognizance or surety to appear at the next succeeding session of the special county court of the county, for trial; and in default of such surety such person shall be committed to the common jail of the county to await a trial: Provided, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the superior court any person accused of a crime within the jurisdiction of the special county court, the clerk of the superior court shall, upon his own motion, transfer all papers in the case to the special county court, and the case shall then stand for trial at the next succeeding term of said special county court, as if the defendant had been bound over to the said court in the first instance: Provided, further, that in the event any justice of the peace or other committing magistrate shall bind over to the special county court any person charged with an offense beyond the jurisdiction of said court, the said judge shall cause the accused person to enter into a new bond with sufficient surety for his appearance at the next succeeding term of the superior court of the county, and shall transmit all papers in the case to the said superior court, but this shall be done without additional cost to the accused person. (1939, c. 357, s. 34.)

§ 7-439. Notice to accused person and surety in cases transferred from superior court.—Whenever the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the papers in any case from the superior court to a special county court, he shall at the same time issue a notice to the accused person and his surety, informing them that the cause has been so transferred and requiring the accused person to appear at the next succeeding term of said special county court for trial, and, upon the service of said notice upon the accused person and his surety, at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the special county court, the case shall stand for trial at said term and the bond given by the accused person for his appearance at the next term of the superior court shall in all respects be valid and binding to compel the appearance of the accused person at the said next succeeding term of said special county court, and in case said notice is not served on the accused person and his surety at least five days before the beginning of the next succeeding term of the special county court, then the case shall not be tried without the consent of the accused person until the following term of the special county court. (1939, c. 357, s. 35.)

shall be upon warrant issued by the clerk of said court or deputy clerk herein provided for or by the judge or by any justice of the peace of the county. In either event such warrant shall be issued upon affidavit duly made and subscribed, setting forth the complaint against the defendant: Provided, the judge shall have authority to amend the warrant and to allow amendment of the affidavit at any time before judgment. (1939, c. 357, s. 36.)

§ 7-441. Punishment upon conviction.—Whenever any person shall be convicted or plead guilty of any offense of which the court has final jurisdiction the judge may sentence him to the common jail of the county in which the court shall be held, and assign him to work on the public roads, under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission: Provided, that in case the person so convicted or pleading guilty shall be a woman or an infant of immature years, then the judge may assign him or her to the county workhouse, reformatory, or other penal institution located in the county; or if there be none, any similar institution that may be located outside of the county to which judges of the superior court are authorized to sentence such person under the general laws of the state. All fines imposed by the court shall be collected by the clerk of such court or the deputy clerk thereof in the same manner as the clerk of the superior court; and, where a defendant is convicted and fails to pay the costs of such conviction, the county shall pay such costs as are allowed by law in similar cases before the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 37.)

§ 7-442. Appeals to superior court.—Any person convicted of any offense of which the county court has final jurisdiction may appeal to the superior court from any judgment or sentence of the court in the same manner as is now provided for appeals from the courts of justices of the peace; and any person tried before the judge for any offense of which the court has not final jurisdiction shall, upon the judge's finding probable cause of guilt, be bound over to the superior court in the same manner as is provided by law in similar cases before justices of the peace. (1939, c. 357, s. 38.)

rants.—All justices of the peace, constables and sheriffs issuing or serving warrants or other process returnable to the special county court shall have the same fees as are now prescribed by law, which fees shall be collected and paid out in the same manner and by the same officers as collect and distribute such fees in the superior court. (1939, c. 357, s. 39.)

§ 7-444. Costs and fees as county funds.—There shall be taxed in the special county court the same costs and fees for the benefit of the officers thereof as provided for municipal recorder's court. Such costs and fees shall be collected by the clerk and paid over monthly to the treasurer of the county as county funds to be dealt with by the commissioners. (1939, c. 357, s. 40.)

§ 7-445. Abolition of court by resolution of commissioners.—Any court established under this article may be abolished by resolution of a majority of the board of county commissioners for such county by giving written notice of such intention one month prior thereto; and in case of the abolition of the court, cases then pending shall be transferred to the superior court and there tried. (1939, c. 357, s. 41.)

§ 7-446. Counties exempt.—This article shall not apply to the counties of Alamance, Alexander, Anson, Ashe, Avery, Beaufort, Bertie, Bladen, Brunswick, Burke, Caldwell, Carteret, Catawba, Chatham, Chowan, Clay, Cleveland, Columbus, Craven, Dare, Duplin, Edgecombe, Franklin, Forsyth, Gaston, Gates, Granville, Greene, Halifax, Harnett, Hoke, Hyde, Iredell, Johnston, Jones, Lee, Lenior, Lincoln, Madison, Mecklenburg, Mitchell, Nash, New Hanover, Northampton, Onslow, Pasquotank, Pender, Perquimans, Robeson, Rutherford, Sampson, Stanly, Surry, Union, Vance, Wake, Warren, Wayne, Washington and Wilson. (1939, c. 357, s. 42.)

§ 7-447. Construction of article.—This article shall not be construed to repeal or modify any existing laws by which a county court may be created or to affect or repeal any court now or hereafter created under existing laws, and shall only be construed to be an additional method by which a special county court may be established for criminal, civil, or criminal and civil jurisdictions. (1939, c. 357, s. 43.)

act of the general assembly certified by the secretary of state shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., ss. 1592, 1593; Code, ss. 1339, 1340; R. C., c. 44, ss. 4, 5; 1826, c. 7; C. S. 1747.)

Public Statute Admissible.—Where the public printer has published a certain act with other public acts of the general assembly, it is made, presumptively at least, a part of the public laws of the State and every person having occasion to do so has the right to read it in evidence in any court of the State as the law. Wrought Iron Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 337, 24 S. E. 352.

Private Statute Not Admissible.—The statute incorporating the North Carolina Railroad Company is a private act; and it is error to permit it to be read and commented on to the court or jury until it has been properly introduced as evidence. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 400, 402, 12 S. E. 1040, 13 S. E. 1.

Same—Question of Law.—Whether the statute, or some enactment in it, is public or private, is a question of law, which the court must determine, in the absence of statutory enactment declaring and settling its nature. Durham v. Richmond, etc., R. Co., 108 N. C. 399, 400, 12 S. E. 1040; 13 S. E. 1.

Journal of Legislature.—A copy of the journal of the Legislature deposited with the Secretary of State is not evidence for any purpose. Wilson v. Markley, 133 N. C. 616, 623, 45 S. E. 1023. The court said: "It is the journal, which we understand to be the original, which is to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and it is this original or an exemplification made therefrom by him which, when competent, is to be used in evidence." Id.

§ 8-2. Martin's collection of private acts.—Any private act published by Francis X. Martin, in his collection of private acts, shall be received in evidence in every court. (Rev., s. 1593; Code, s. 1340; R. C., c. 44, s. 5; 1826, c. 7, s. 2; C. S. 1748.)

§ 8-3. Laws of other states or foreign countries.—A printed copy of a statute, or other written law, of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, or a printed copy of a proclamation, edict, decree or ordinance, by the executive thereof, contained in a book or publication purporting or proved to have been published by the authority thereof, or proved to be commonly admitted as evidence of the existing law, in the judicial tribunals thereof, shall be evidence of the statute, law, proclamation, edict, decree, or ordinance. The unwritten or common law of another state, or of a territory, or of a foreign country, may be proved as a fact by oral evidence. The books of the reports of cases, adjudged in the courts thereof, shall also be admitted as evidence of the unwritten or common law thereof. And either party may also exhibit a copy of the law of such state, territory, or foreign country, duly certified by the secretary of state of this state as having been copied from a printed volume of the laws of such state, territory or country, on file in the state or supreme court library, or in the offices of the governor or secretary of state. (Rev., s. 1594; Code, s. 1338; R. C., c. 44, s. 3; 1823, c. 1193, ss. 1, 3; C. C. P., s. 360; C. S. 1749.)

Foreign Laws Must Be Proved.—The courts will not take judicial notice of the statutes and laws in the different states which may have changed the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same—Question of Fact.—What is the statute law of another state is a question of fact to be proved like any other fact. Gooch v. Faucett, 122 N. C. 270, 29 S. E. 362. See also Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Same—Burden of Proof.—The proof of the laws of another state must be shown in evidence by the party relying on them, in the manner prescribed by the provisions of this section. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838.

Where a party to an action contends that the law of another state controls the disposition of the issues involved, he is required, under this section, to show statute or written law or controlling decisions thereon, or such facts as would make the laws of that state applicable. Kelly Springfield Tire Co. v. Lester, 192 N. C. 642, 135 S. E. 778.

Instructions to Jury.—Where the foreign law has been proved it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to the meaning of the law, its applicability to the case at hand, and its effect on the case, and it is error to refer the whole case to the jury without instructions. Hooper v. Moore, 50 N. C. 130.

Publication of Foreign Laws Admissible.—A book purporting to be the publication of the statute laws of another state, and to be published by the authority of such state, is admissible as evidence of such laws. Balk v. Harris, 122 N. C. 64, 30 S. E. 318; Copeland v. Collins, 122 N. C. 619, 621, 30 S. E. 315.

Same—Printed Copy Admissible.—By the terms of this section, a printed copy of the acts of the legislature of another state, is admissible in our courts to prove the statute law of such other state. State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 804, 19 S. E. 220. Under the law as it stood prior to the enactment of this section, a printed copy of the acts of the legislature of a foreign state was not admissible in evidence. Id.

United States Agricultural Regulations Judicially Noticed.—The regulations of the United States Agricultural Department, concerning the transportation of cattle, are not foreign laws within the meaning of this section, and the courts are required to take judicial notice of them. State v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 846, 54 S. E. 294.

Presumption as Regards Common Law.—In the absence of proof to the contrary, the common law will generally be presumed to be in force in a sister state, except in those states whose jurisprudence is not founded on the common law. Miller v. Atlantic, etc., R. Co., 154 N. C. 441, 70 S. E. 838. See also the luminous treatment of the subject generally in Chamberlayne on Evidence, vol. I, sec. 584 et seq.

Same—Question for Jury.—Where the common law of another state is proved, the court must leave the evidence of what that law is to the jury and cannot inform them what the law is. Moore v. Gwynn, 27 N. C. 187.

Witnesses.—Any person who claims to know the provisions of the common or unwritten laws of a foreign country may, under this section, testify to and explain them before courts and juries. State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 802, 19 S. E. 220.

An examination of the cases will show that an attempt to prevent the admission of the testimony of a party who professes to know the state of the unwritten law of a foreign state, has quite frequently been made by the litigating parties. The basis of this attempt, and the reasons given in support thereof, has been different in a large number of the decided cases. One of the grounds, frequently resorted to as a means for the exclusion of this evidence, is the fact that the particular witness has not been shown to be and perhaps could not be an expert. This point, however, has been of little avail to the party contesting the admissibility of the evidence, since the construction placed on this section has been that it is not the legislative intent that expert evidence be required in such a case. In reaching this conclusion much weight has been attached to the wording that the common law of another state may be proved as "a fact."—Ed. Note.

The law of another State may be proven in transitory actions brought in the courts of this State by witnesses learned in the law of such other State, and by its authorized statutes and reports of decisions of its courts of last resort, and when properly offered in evidence they must be interpreted by our courts as matters of law. Howard v. Howard, 200 N. C. 574, 158 S. E. 101.

A transcript of a statute, once duly certified by the Secretary of State in the manner prescribed by our law, is evidence at all times of its being in force according to its terms unless a repeal is shown. State v. Cheek, 35 N. C. 114, 116.

Same—Applicable to Criminal and Civil Cases.—The certificate of the Secretary of State, in relation to the statutes of another state, given in pursuance of this section is evidence in criminal and civil cases. State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346.

§ 8-4. Judicial notice of laws of United States, other States and foreign countries.—When any question shall arise as to the law of the United States, or of any other state or territory of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, or of any foreign country, the court shall take notice of such law in the same manner as if the question arose under the law of this State. (1931, c. 30.)

Cross Reference.—As to judicial notice of private statutes, see § 1-157.

Editor's Note.—The act from which this section was codified provided that it should not apply in the trial of any cause of action which accrued prior to its ratification on February 16, 1931.

Survival of Action under Law of Another State.—In an action to recover for the alleged tortious conversion of personalty by a nonresident, instituted in this state after the death of the nonresident, against his personal representative, the failure of the complaint to allege that the cause of action survived under the laws of the state in which it arose does not render the complaint demurrable. Suskin v. Hodges, 216 N. C. 333, 4 S. E. (2d) 891.

§ 8-5. Town ordinances certified.—In the trial of appeals from mayors' courts, when the offense charged is the violation of a town ordinance, a copy of the ordinance alleged to have been violated, certified by the mayor, shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such ordinance. (Rev., s. 1595; 1899, c. 277, s. 2; C. S. 1750.)

Cross References.—As to duty of mayor to certify ordinance on appeal, see § 160-16. As to how ordinances are pleaded and proved, see § 160-272.

When Certification Unnecessary.—The certification of a town ordinance as required by this section, is only prima facie evidence of its existence, and this is unnecessary when the ordinance has been proven by the production of the official records of the town by the proper officer, which shows its passage. State v. Razook, 179 N. C. 708, 103 S. E. 67.

Evidence Insufficient to Rebut Prima Facie Case.—When the defendant, convicted of the violation of a city ordinance, on appeal introduces in evidence the minutes of the meeting of the governing authorities of the town held on the date when the purported ordinance was alleged to have been adopted, which does not show its passage on that date, it is not conclusive that the ordinance had not been passed at some other time, against the statutory certificate of the mayor that it was in existence at the time of the defendant's conviction. State v. Gill, 195 N. C. 425, 142 S. E. 328.

Art. 2. Grants, Deeds and Wills.

§ 8-6. Copies certified by secretary of state.—Copies of the plats and certificates of survey, or their accompanying warrants, and all abstracts of grants, which may be filed in the office of the secretary of state, certified by him as true copies, shall be as good evidence, in any court, as the original. (Rev., s. 1596; Code, s. 1341; R. C., c. 44, s. 6; 1822, c. 1154; C. S. 1751.)

In General.—This section does not make the copies better evidence than the original; and where there is a material discrepancy, it is for the jury to find as a fact which one is correct. Richards v. Ritter Lumber Co., 158 N. C. 54, 73 S. E. 485.

Certification by Clerk of Secretary of State.—See sec. 8-9.

Abstract Competent to Show Title.—Abstracts of grants in the usual form, duly certified as correct copies by the Secretary of State and recorded in the office of the register of deeds, are competent to show title out of the State. Marshall v. Corbett, 137 N. C. 555, 50 S. E. 210.

§ 8-7. Certified copies of grants and abstracts.—For the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees therein named and for the lands therein described, duly certified copies of all grants and of all memoranda and abstracts of grants on record in the office of the secretary of state, given in abstract or in full, and with or without the signature of the governor and the great seal of the state appearing upon such record, shall be competent evidence in the courts of this state or of the United States or of any territory of the United States, and in the absence of the production of the original grant shall be conclusive evidence of a grant from the state to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 1; C. S. 1752.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and valid. Howell v. Hurley, 170 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

Copy Conclusive as to Regularity of Original.—An abstract of a grant of the State's land by the Secretary of State imports the regularity of its issuance, and that the constitutional mandate of affixing the seal of the original had been legally complied with, though the abstract gives no indication thereof, the regularity of the official conduct in granting the original being presumed; and the abstract may be introduced as competent evidence on the trial of an action involving the title to the lands described in the grant, by one claiming under it. Howell v. Hurley, 170 N. C. 401, 87 S. E. 107.

§ 8-8. Certified copies of grants and abstracts recorded.—Duly certified copies of such grants and of such memoranda and abstracts of grants may be recorded in the county where the lands therein described are situated, and the records thereof in such counties, or certified copies thereof, shall likewise be competent evidence for the purpose of showing title from the state of North Carolina to the grantee or grantees named and for the lands described therein. (1915, c. 249, s. 2; C. S. 1753.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration of certified copies of any deeds or writings, and their use in evidence, see § 47-31.

§ 8-9. Copies of grants certified by clerk of secretary of state validated.—All copies of grants heretofore issued from the office of the secretary of state, duly certified under the great seal of the state, and to which the name of the secretary has been written or affixed by the clerk of the said secretary of state, are hereby ratified and approved and declared to be good and valid copies of the original grants and admissible in evidence in all courts of this state when duly registered in the counties in which the land lies; all such copies heretofore registered in said counties are hereby declared to be lawful and regular in all respects as if the same had been signed by the secretary of state in person and duly registered. (Rev., s. 1597; 1901, c. 613; C. S. 1754.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the enactment of this section it was consistently held that the clerk of the Secretary of State had no power to certify and affix the great seal of the state to copies of grants and other papers from the Secretary of State's office. Beam v. Jennings, 96 N. C. 82, 2 S. E. 245, but such acts on the part of the clerk are now validated by the provisions of this section.

§ 8-10. Copies of grants in Burke.—Copies of grants issued by the state within the county of Burke prior to the destruction of the records of said county by General Stoneman in the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, shall be admitted in evidence in all actions when the same are duly registered; and when the original grants are lost, destroyed or cannot be found after due search, it shall be presumed that the same were duly registered within the time prescribed by law, as provided upon the face of original grant. (Rev., s. 1610; 1901, c. 513; C. S. 1755.)

Cross Reference.—As to copies of destroyed record as evidence generally, see § 98-1 et seq.

§ 8-11. Copies of grants in Moore.—Copies of grants for land situated in Moore county and the counties of which Moore was a part, entered in a book, and the book being certified under the seal of the secretary of state, shall have the force and effect of the originals and be evidence in all courts. (Rev., s. 1613; 1903, c. 214; C. S. 1756.)

§ 8-12. Copies of grants in Onslow.—The copies of grants made by the register of deeds of Onslow county under laws of 1907, chapter 434, of grants, abstracts of grants, and other documents pertaining to titles of land in Onslow county issued prior to the year one thousand eight hundred, and contained in a book called Book of Transcribed Grants Issued Prior to One Thousand Eight Hundred, duly authenticated as prescribed in said chapter 434 of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, shall be received as evidence in all courts of the state, and certified copies therefrom shall be received as evidence. (1907, c. 434; C. S. 1757.)

§ 8-13. Certain deeds dated before 1835 evidence of due execution.—In all actions hereafter instituted in which the title or ownership of any lands situated in North Carolina is at issue or in dispute, any deed or release, or a duly certified copy thereof, in which the people of the state of North Carolina are grantees and bearing date prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five and purporting to have been filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state of North Carolina prior to said year and now on file and of record in said office, and executed or purporting to have been executed by any person or persons as the representatives or agents or for or on behalf of any society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, whether signed or executed individually or in their representative capacity, and any such deed or release having been authorized to be executed by an act of the general assembly of North Carolina by the properly authorized agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons, shall be prima facie evidence that the person or persons signing or executing any such deed or release were the properly authorized agent or agents of such society, tribe, nation or aggregation of persons. Any recitals or statements of fact in any such deed or release shall be prima facie evidence of the truth thereof in any such actions. (1915, c. 75; C. S. 1758.)

§ 8-14. Certified copies of maps of Cherokee lands.—Certified copies by the secretary of state of the copies, or parts thereof, of the maps of the Cherokee lands and of the Cherokee Country, as provided for and described in chapter one hundred and seventy-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall have the same force and effect and be entitled to the same force and effect as evidence as certified copies of the whole or parts of the original maps. (1911, c. 175; C. S. 1759.)

§ 8-15. Certified copies of certain surveys and maps obtained from the state of Tennessee.—A certified copy of the report of the survey made by the North Carolina commissioners, McDowell, Vance and Matthews, of that portion of the state of Tennessee extending from a point on the Virginia line to a point on the Smoky Mountain west of the Pigeon River, as obtained and filed by the secretary of state under the provisions of chapter one hundred and sixty-two of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, shall, when certified under the hand and seal of the secretary of state, be competent evidence in the trial of any action in the courts of the state. (1913, c. 162; C. S. 1760.)

§ 8-16. Evidence of title under H. E. McCulloch grants.—In all actions or suits, wherein it may be necessary for either party to prove title, by virtue of a grant or grants made by the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, it shall be sufficient for such party, in the usual manner, to give evidence of the grant or conveyance from the king of Great Britain or Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, and the mesne conveyances thereafter, without giving any evidence of the deed or deeds of release, relinquishment or confirmation of Earl Granville to the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, or the power or powers of attorney by which the conveyances from the said Henry McCulloch, or Henry Eustace McCulloch, purport to have been made. (Rev., s. 1600; Code, s. 1336; R. C., c. 44, s. 1; 1819, c. 1021; C. S. 1761.)

§ 8-17. Conveyances or certified copies evidence of title under McCulloch.—In all trials where the title of either plaintiff or defendant shall be derived from Henry Eustace McCulloch, or Henry McCulloch, out of their tracts number one and three, it shall not be required of such party to produce, in support of his title, either the original grant from the crown to the proprietors, or a registered copy thereof; but in all such cases the grant or deed executed by such reputed proprietors, or by his or their lawful attorney, or a certified copy thereof, shall be deemed and held sufficient proof of the title of such proprietors, in the same manner as though the original grants were produced in evidence. (Rev., s. 1601; Code, s. 1337; R. C., c. 44, s. 2; 1807, c. 724; C. S. 1762.)

§ 8-18. Certified copies of registered instruments evidence.—A copy of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney, or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of the county where the original or duly certified copy has been registered, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1598; Code, s. 1251; 1893, c. 119, s. 2; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1846, c. 68, s. 1; C. S. 1763.)

Cross Reference.—As to recordation and use in evidence of certified copies generally, see § 47-31.

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section permitting the reception of the copies herein mentioned as evidence, constitute a statutory exception to the rule of the best evidence. Under this rule it is well established that a party is required to introduce that kind of proof which affords the greatest certainty of the fact in question. In other words he will not be permitted to offer evidence of little weight when he is in possession of much better evidence. However this rule is not without its numerous exceptions, the foundation of which is that the primary object of all rules of evidence is to promote the administration of justice, and wherever general convenience requires it, the general rule will be bent or construed so as to meet the exigency.

The limitation placed on the exception contained in this section must be noted. The certified copies are admissible in evidence "unless by rule or order of the court, * * * such party shall have been previously required to produce the original * * *," in which case the general rule again becomes applicable and the original must be produced or its absence accounted for.

Certified Copy as Evidence.—The record of a registered deed is competent evidence without producing the original where no rule of court for the production of the original has been issued. Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425, 42 S. E. 887.

Copy of Registered Bond.—The "registry" or copy of the record of a bond to make title to land made by a deceased person, under which a deed has been made by the administrator of said obligor, is within the spirit and meaning of this section, and is admissible without accounting for the absence of the original. Doe v. Shelton, 46 N. C. 370.

Same—Official Bond.—Inasmuch as the duly certified copy of the record of any instrument required to be registered is admissible as full and sufficient evidence of such instrument, and as the register of deeds is required to register and keep the bond of the superior court clerk, a duly certified copy of the record of such bond is competent evidence of its provisions. State v. Baird, 118 N. C. 854, 24 S. E. 668.

Lack of Seal No Effect.—A copy of a grant from the register's office, which affirmatively shows that it was issued under the great seal of the state, is admissible in evidence, though the registry does not show the impress of the seal, or scroll to indicate it. Aycock v. Raleigh, etc., Railroad, 89 N. C. 321. And while the seal may be necessary to authenticate the grant, it will be presumed to have been affixed as required by law. Id.

Signature of Clerk Essential.—The failure of the clerk to sign his name to the certificate for registration, a requirement found in the provisions of sec. 47-14, renders the instrument inadmissible as evidence under this section. Woodlieff v. Woodlieff, 192 N. C. 634, 135 S. E. 612.

Production of Original to Correct Mistakes.—The original deed may be shown in evidence to correct an omission by the register of deeds of the signature of the justice of the peace before whom the deed was acknowledged. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302.

Parol Evidence to Explain Variance.—Where the original deed was lost, and it was contended that there was a material variance between the certified copy and the original deed, parol evidence to prove the correct description contained in the original instrument was rejected, this section being construed as to have no application to such a case. Hooper v. Justice, 111 N. C. 418, 422, 16 S. E. 626.

Time and Manner of Objecting.—A party against whom the registry of a deed (or other instrument), or a copy thereof has been introduced in evidence, can not then raise the objection that there is a variance between such registry, or copy, and the original instrument; if he desired to avail himself of such objection he should have required the production of the original in the way provided by this section. Devereux v. McMahon, 108 N. C. 134, 12 S. E. 902.

Issue of Tenancy in Common.—Where defendant in partition proceedings denies the allegations in the petition that petitioner is a tenant in common with defendants and seized of an undivided fee simple interest in the land, but does not plead sole seizin, petitioner is not required to prove title as in an action in ejectment, and petitioner's record evidence is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury upon the sole issue of whether petitioner is a tenant in common with defendants in the land. Talley v. Murchison, 212 N. C. 205, 193 S. E. 148.

§ 8-19. Common survey of contiguous tracts evidence.—Whenever any person owns several tracts of land which are contiguous or adjoining, but held under different deeds and different surveys, it may be lawful for any such person to have all such bodies of land included in one common survey by running around the lines of the outer tracts, and thereupon the possession of any part of said land covered by such common survey shall be deemed and held in law as a possession of the whole and every part thereof: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the rights or claims of persons which have already accrued to any part of said land. In all cases where such common surveys are made as directed by this section, the same may be recorded and registered as in cases of deeds, and shall be evidence in like manner. (Rev., s. 1505; Code, s. 1277; 1869-70, c. 34, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1764.)

When Possession of Part Equivalent to Whole.—Under the provisions of this section, by recording and registering a survey of the outer lines of several contiguous tracts, so as to exhibit their outer boundaries, as if the whole territory had been covered by one tract, a possession at any one point on either of the separate tracts will become equivalent to a possession of "the whole and every part." McNamee v. Alexander, 109 N. C. 242, 244, 13 S. E. 777.

Sufficiency of Proof.—The surveyor's testimony that the map is correct is sufficient to make it competent. Greenleaf v. Bartlett, 146 N. C. 495, 60 S. E. 419.

§ 8-20. Certified copies registered in another county and used in evidence.—A copy from the office of the register of deeds of any county of the record of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney or other instrument required or allowed to be registered, duly authenticated by the certificate and official seal of the register of deeds of such county, may, upon presentation to the register of deeds of any other county, be registered without further proof, and the record thereof, or a duly certified copy of the same, may be given in evidence in any court in the state where the original of such copy would be admitted as evidence, although the party offering the same shall be entitled to the possession of the original, and shall not account for the nonproduction thereof, unless by a rule or order of the court, made upon affidavit suggesting some material variance from the original in such registry or other sufficient grounds, such party shall have been previously required to produce the original, in which case the same shall be produced or its absence duly accounted for according to the course and practice of the court. (Rev., s. 1599; Code, s. 1253; 1893, c. 119, s. 3; R. C., c. 37, s. 16; 1846, c. 68; C. S. 1765.)

As to variance between original and copy, see note of Ratliff v. Ratliff, 131 N. C. 425, 42 S. E. 887, under section 8-18.

§ 8-21. Deeds and records thereof lost, presumed to be in due form.—Whenever it is shown in any judicial proceeding that a deed or conveyance of real estate has been lost or destroyed, and that the same had been registered, and that the register's book containing the copy has been destroyed by fire or other accident, so that a copy thereof cannot be had, it shall be presumed and held, unless the contents be shown to have been otherwise, that such deed or conveyance transferred an estate in fee simple, if the grantor was entitled to such an estate at the time of conveyance, and that it was made upon sufficient consideration. (Rev., s. 1602; Code, s. 1348; R. C., c. 44, s. 14; 1854, c. 17; C. S. 1766.)

Cross Reference.—As to burnt and lost records, see § 98-1 et seq.

Presumption of Regularity.—The registration of a deed is presumed to be correct. Cochran v. Linville Imp. Co., 127 N. C. 386, 394, 37 S. E. 496.

§ 8-22. Local: recitals in tax deeds in Haywood and Henderson.—In all legal controversies touching lands in the counties of Haywood and Henderson, in which either party shall claim title under any sale for taxes alleged to have been due and laid, in and for the year one thousand seven hundred and ninety-six, or any preceding year, the recital contained in the deed or assurance, made by the sheriff or other officer conveying or assuring the same, of the taxes having been laid and assessed, and of the same having remained due and unpaid, shall be held and taken to be prima facie evidence of the truth of each and every of the matters so recited. (Rev., s. 1606; Code, s. 1346; R. C., c. 44, s. 11; C. S. 1767.)

§ 8-23. Local: copies of records from Tyrrell.—Copies of records of the county of Tyrrell between the years one thousand seven hundred and thirty-five and one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, when copied in a book and certified to by the clerk of the superior court of Tyrrell county as to the records of his office and by the register of deeds as to the records of his office, and deposited in their respective offices in Washington county, shall be treated in all respects as original records and received as evidence in all courts of Washington county. (Rev., s. 1612; 1903, c. 199; C. S. 1768.)

§ 8-24. Local: records of partition in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of the reports of committees relating to the partition of real estate on file in his office prior and up to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, A, and the reports of committees beginning with and subsequent to the year one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, entered and indexed in a book entitled Reports of Committees, B, shall be as competent evidence as are the original reports of the committees. (1907, c. 395, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 1769.)

§ 8-25. Local: records of wills in Duplin.—The transcripts made by the clerk of the superior court of Duplin county, in accordance with chapter three hundred and ninety-five of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and seven, of all wills and entries of probate and dates of registration appearing on the same, on file in his office prior and up to the January term of the county court of Duplin county, one thousand eight hundred and thirty, and entered in a book designated as Record of Wills, A, and duly indexed as provided by law, shall be as competent evidence in any court as are the originals of such wills. (1907, c. 395, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1770.)

§ 8-26. Local: records of deeds and wills in Anson.—The copies of the deeds and deed books and of the wills and will books made in Anson county under the act of March second, one thousand nine hundred and five, shall have the same force and effect as the original deeds and deed books copied and as the original wills and will books copied, and shall take the place of said original deeds and deed books and wills and will books as evidence in all court procedure; and wherever said deed books or will books are ordered or directed to be produced in court by subpoena or other order of court, the copies made under such act shall be produced, unless the court shall specially order the production of the original books, and the copies so produced in court shall have the same validity and effect and be used for the same purposes, with the same effect, as the original books. (Rev., s. 1615; 1905, c. 663, s. 3; C. S. 1771.)

§ 8-27. Local: records of wills in Brunswick.—Under the provisions of chapter one hundred and six of the laws of one thousand nine hundred and eight, authorizing and directing that all unrecorded wills, dated prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five, on file in the office of the clerk of the superior court of Brunswick county, and which have been duly proved in the form required by law, and bearing the adjudication certificate of the proper officer, shall be recorded in the book of wills in the said office and properly indexed; that all wills recorded in the minutes of the court of pleas and quarter sessions or other books of record in said office shall be transcribed and indexed in the book of wills in said office; and that all wills recorded in the office of the register of deeds of said county shall be properly indexed in the book kept for the purpose in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county; the record of any instrument or certified copy thereof, recorded under the provisions of this article, shall be admitted in evidence in the trial of any cause, subject to the same rules upon which other wills are admitted. (1908, s. 106; C. S. 1772.)

§ 8-28. Copies of wills.—Copies of wills, duly certified by the proper officer, may be given in evidence in any proceeding wherein the contents of the will may be competent evidence. (Rev., s. 1603; Code, s. 2175; R. C., c. 119, s. 21; 1784, c. 225, s. 6; C. S. 1773.)

Cross Reference.—As to probate of copy of lost will, see §§ 98-4, 98-5.

Certified Copy as Evidence.—Under this section a certified copy of a will is competent evidence in any case wherein the contents of the will would be competent evidence. Hampton v. Hardin, 88 N. C. 592, 594.

Copy of Will Made in Another State.—See annotations under sec. 8-32.

§ 8-29. Copies of wills in secretary of state's office.—Copies of wills filed or recorded in the office of the secretary of state, attested by the secretary, may be given in evidence in any court, and shall be taken as sufficient proof of the devise of real estate, and are declared good and effectual to pass the estate therein devised: Provided, that no such will may be given in evidence in any court nor taken as sufficient proof of the devise unless a certificate of probate appear thereon. (Rev., s. 1607; Code, s. 2181; R. C., c. 44, s. 12; 1852, c. 172; 1856-7, c. 22; C. S. 1774.)

§ 8-30. Copies of wills recorded in wrong county.—Whereas, by reason of the uncertainty of the boundary lines of many of the counties of the state, wills have been proved, recorded and registered in the wrong county, whereby titles are insecure; for remedy whereof: The registry or duly certified copy of the record of any will, duly recorded, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of this state. (Rev., s. 1608; Code, s. 2182; 1858-9, c. 18; C. S. 1775.)

§ 8-31. Copy of will proved and lost before recorded.—When any will which has been proved and ordered to be recorded was destroyed during the war between the states, before it was recorded, a copy of such will, so entitled to be admitted to record, though not certified by any officer, shall, when the court shall be satisfied of the genuineness thereof, be ordered to be recorded, and shall be received in evidence whenever the original or duly certified exemplification would be; and such copies may be proved and admitted to record under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as are prescribed in chapter 98 entitled Burnt and Lost Records. (Rev., s. 1609; Code, s. 2183; 1866-7, c. 127; C. S. 1776.)

§ 8-32. Certified copies of deeds and wills from other states.—In cases where inhabitants of other states or territories, by will or deed, devise or convey property situated in this state, and the original will or deed cannot be obtained for registration in the county where the land lies, or where the property shall be in dispute, a copy of said will or deed (after the same has been proved and registered or deposited, agreeable to the laws of the state where the person died or made the same) being properly certified, either according to the act of congress or by the proper officer of the said state or territory, shall be read as evidence. (Rev., s. 1619; Code, s. 1344; R. C., c. 44, s. 9; 1802, c. 623; C. S. 1777.)

In General.—Records of other states, to be used in evidence in this state, must have the attestation of the clerk of the court whose record is offered, and the seal of the court, if it have one. If there be no seal, this must appear in the certificate of the clerk, and the judge, chief justice, or presiding magistrate of such court must certify that the record is properly attested. Riley v. Carter, 158 N. C. 484, 487, 74 S. E. 463; Kinsey v. Rumborgh, 96 N. C. 193, 2 S. E. 174; Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285.

Test for Admission under Section.—The copy, to be admissible in evidence, must be of such a will as would be admitted to record in North Carolina; hence where a will was executed in Tennessee and from the certificate of probate on the exemplified copy produced here, it appears that but one witness swore that he subscribed the will as witness in the presence of the testator and the other witness to the will did not appear to have been sworn at all, it was held that such a will should not be read in evidence. Blount v. Patton, 9 N. C. 237.

Properly Authenticated Copy Admissible.—A copy of a will made in another state, with its probate certified by the judge of the court in which it was proved, and accompanied by the testimonial of the governor of that state, that the person who gave that certificate was the proper officer to take such probate, and to certify the same, is a sufficient authentication of the will to authorize its reception as evidence in our courts. Knight v. Wall, 19 N. C. 125.

Incomplete Authentication.—Where a will, proved in another state, bore the certificate of the clerk of the court wherein the probate was had, to the oath of the attesting witnesses, but had no other authentication, it was held inadmissible in evidence. Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285, 287.

§ 8-33. Copies of lost records in Bladen.—The clerk of the superior court of Bladen county shall transcribe the judgment docket and index books and the will books in his office, and all other books in said office containing records made since the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-eight, and the records so transcribed shall have the same force and effect as the original records would have, and shall be received in evidence as the original records and be prima facie evidence of their correctness and of the sufficiency of their probate, though the probates are lost and are not transcribed. (Rev., s. 1611; 1895, c. 415; 1903, c. 65; C. S. 1778.)

Art. 3. Public Records.

§ 8-34. Copies of official writings.—Copies of all official bonds, writings, papers, or documents, recorded or filed as records in any court, or public office, or lodged in the office of the governor, treasurer, auditor, secretary of state, attorney general or adjutant general, shall be as competent evidence as the originals, when certified by the keeper of such records or writings under the seal of his office when there is such seal, or under his hand when there is no such seal, unless the court shall order the production of the original. Copies of the records of the board of county commissioners shall be evidence when certified by the clerk of the board under his hand and seal of the county. (Rev., s. 1616; Code, ss. 715, 1342; R. C., c. 44, s. 8; 1792, c. 368, s. 11; 1871-2, c. 91; 1868-9, c. 20, s. 21; C. S. 1779.)

Copy Defined.—A copy, within the meaning of this section is a transcript of the original—a writing exactly like another writing. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. See also Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

The Copy Certified.—The power of an officer, who is the keeper of certain public records, to certify copies is confined to a certification of their contents as they appear by the records themselves, and the records must, therefore, be so certified, for he has no authority to certify to the substance of them, nor that any particular fact, as a date, appears on them. Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.

A "Copy" of the Instrument Required.—This section makes competent only the "copies" of official records, etc., and a mere certified statement from the register's office is only evidence of the correctness of the record, and can not be admitted in evidence in place of the original record. State v. Champion, 116 N. C. 987, 989, 21 S. E. 700. (Cited and approved in Wiggins v. Rogers, 175 N. C. 67, 94 S. E. 685.)

Original Record Admitted.—This section does not prevent the admission in evidence of the original record itself. State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741, 745; State v. Abernathy, 94 N. C. 545. See also Riley & Co. v. Carter, 165 N. C. 334, 81 S. E. 414; State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; Blalock v. Whisnant, 216 N. C. 417, 5 S. E. (2d) 130.

Some hesitancy was at first shown by the court in reaching this conclusion, due to a contrary ruling in the earlier cases. However, it is now well settled that it would be little less than an absurdity to exclude the best possible evidence, when adduced, merely because an inferior evidence, by copy, is made admissible (by statute or otherwise).

On this point, it is said by Mr. Greenleaf: "As to the proof of records, this is done by the mere production of the records, without more, or by copy." Again in the same section, "Where a record is the gist of the issue, if it is not in the same court, it should be proved by an exemplification." Greenleaf on Evidence, sec. 501.

In reference to these clauses it is said in Gray v. Davis, 27 Conn. 447, cited and approved in State v. Voight, supra: "But he (the author) does not say, and it is obvious he does not mean, that the contents of a record can not in any court be proved by the original record itself, if it can be produced, but only to state the manner in which proof may be and usually is made."

There can be no doubt as to the soundness of this ruling, but it would seem that the conclusion would best be placed on the actual wording of this section instead of dealing in such broad inferences. The Legislature has specifically said that the copies, herein made admissible, "shall be as competent evidence as the originals." From the very phraseology of this section it does not seem plausible to say it was intended that the admission of the copies should serve to exclude the original record itself.—Ed. Note.

Original Record Lost.—A certified copy of a petition in a suit is admissible in evidence upon proof of the loss of the original records. Weeks v. McPhail, 128 N. C. 130, 132, 38 S. E. 472. See also 5 N. C. Enc. Dig. 511 et seq.

Where a superior court record is lost, a certified copy of the transcript of the same in the Supreme Court is sufficient evidence of the record. Aiken v. Lyon, 127 N. C. 171, 175, 37 S. E. 199.

Incriminating Evidence Contained in Document.—Where the document admitted under the provisions of this section contains incriminating evidence, the defense often interposed by the accused is that to admit such paper would be in violation of the constitutional right of the defendant on trial for crime to have opportunity to confront his accusers and the witnesses offered to sustain the charge. It is settled, however, that this section is not violative of this constitutional right, since these provisions constitute a well-recognized exception to the privilege given by the constitution. State v. Dowdy, 145 N. C. 432, 436, 58 S. E. 1002; State v. Behrman, 114 N. C. 797, 804, 19 S. E. 220. In reference to this point Mr. Greenleaf says: "The constitutional clause purported merely to adopt the general principle of the hearsay rule, that there must be confrontation, but it did not purport to enumerate all the exceptions and limitations to that principle. There were then a number of well-established exceptions, and there might be others in the future. The Constitution indorsed the general principle, subject to these exceptions, merely naming and describing it sufficiently to indicate the principle intended." Greenleaf on Evidence, section 163.—Ed. Note.

§ 8-35. Authenticated copies of public records.

—All copies of bonds, contracts, notes, mortgages, or other papers relating to or connected with any loan, account, settlement of any account or any part thereof, or other transaction, between the United States or any state thereof or any corporation all of whose stock is beneficially owned by the United States or any state thereof, either directly or indirectly, and any person, natural or artificial; or extracts therefrom when complete on any one subject, or copies from the books or papers on file, or records of any public office of the state or the United States or of any corporation all of whose stock is beneficially owned by the United States or by any state thereof, directly or indirectly, shall be received in evidence and entitled to full faith and credit in any of the courts of this state when certified to by the chief officer or agent in charge of such public office or of such office of such corporation, or by the secretary or an assistant secretary of such corporation, to be true copies, and authenticated under the seal of the office, department, or corporation concerned. Any such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the genuineness of such certificate and seal, the truth of the statements made in such certificate, and the official character of the person by which it purports to have been executed. (Rev., s. 1617; 1891, c. 501; 1939, c. 149; C. S. 1780.)

Cross References.—As to records judicially noticed, see § 8-3 and notes thereto, and also §§ 8-4, 1-157.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment so changed this section that a comparison here is not practicable.

The matters appearing in transcript of any paper on file or records of any public office of the State or United States, being relevant to an account which a referee was directed to take, are admissible in evidence by virtue of the provisions of this section. Wallace Bros. v. Douglas, 114 N. C. 450, 19 S. E. 668. See also, Hinton v. Lake Drummond Canal Co., 166 N. C. 484, 82 S. E. 844.

Authentication Essential.—Proper authentication is essential to the admission in evidence of the copies of the original records, and papers purporting to be exemplification from the treasury department of the United States, not authenticated, will not be admitted. Mott v. Ramsay, 92 N. C. 152.

Parol Evidence Inadmissible.—The contents of the original record may not be proved by parol evidence under this section, but must be shown by a certified copy. National Surety Co. v. Brock, 176 N. C. 507, 97 S. E. 417.

§ 8-36. Authenticated copy of record of administration.—When letters testamentary or of administration on the goods and chattels of any person deceased, being an inhabitant in another state or territory, have been granted, or a return or inventory of the estate has been made, a copy of the record of administration or of the letters testamentary, and a copy of an inventory or return of the effects of the deceased, after the same has been granted or made, agreeable to the laws of the state where the same has been done, being properly certified, either according to the act of congress or by the proper officer of such state or territory, shall be allowed as evidence. (Rev. s. 1618; Code, s. 1343; R. C., c. 44, s. 7; 1834, c. 4; C. S. 1781.)

§ 8-37. Certificate of commissioner of motor vehicles as to ownership of automobile.—In all civil actions, arising out of an injury to person or property by reason of the operation of a motor vehicle of any kind, evidence as to the display numbers on a particular car, a copy of the record kept by the commissioner of motor vehicles of such display numbers and the persons who obtained them, certified under the hand and seal of said commissioner of motor vehicles shall be competent evidence of the ownership of the motor vehicle inflicting the injury or doing the damage. (1931, c. 88, s. 1; 1943, c. 650.)

Cross Reference.—As to registration and certificate of title for motor vehicles generally, see § 20-50 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted "commissioner of motor vehicles" for "commissioner of revenue."

Art. 4. Other Writings in Evidence.

§ 8-38. Proof by attesting witness not required.

—It is not necessary to prove by the attesting witness instruments to the validity of which the attestation is not requisite, and such instruments may be proved by admission or otherwise as if there had been no attesting witness thereto: Provided, that this section shall not affect the method and manner of proving instruments for registration. (Rev., s. 1604; 1905, c. 204; C. S. 1782.)

Cross Reference.—As to essentials of registration, see § 47-1 et seq. and § 31-12 et seq.

§ 8-39. Parol evidence to identify land described.

—In all actions for the possession of or title to any real estate parol testimony may be introduced to identify the land sued for, and fit it to the description contained in the paper writing offered as evidence of title or of the right of possession, and if from this evidence the jury is satisfied that the land in question is the identical land intended to be conveyed by the parties to such paper-writing, then such paper-writing shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient in law to pass such title to or interest in such land as it purports to pass: Provided, that such paper-writing is in all other respects sufficient to pass such title or interest. (Rev., s. 1605; 1891, c. 465, s. 1; C. S. 1783.)

Cross Reference.—As to vagueness of description in deeds, see § 39-2 and notes thereto.

In General.—A deed which fails to describe any land is as void now as it was before the passage of this section. Moore v. Fowle, 139 N. C. 51, 53, 51 S. E. 796. But a description by name, where lands have a known name, is sufficient. Id.

This section applies only where there is a description which can be aided by parol, but not when there is no description. Harris v. Woodward, 130 N. C. 580, 41 S. E. 790; Hemphill v. Annis, 119 N. C. 514, 26 S. E. 152; Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. 539.

This rule has been sanctioned by the courts, not only upon the idea that there must be a certain subject matter, but because its observance is essential to a proper enforcement of the statute of frauds. Blow v. Vaughan, 105 N. C. 198, 10 S. E. 891.

Ambiguous or Indefinite Terms.—Where the written terms contained in the contract are sufficient to pass the property, but are ambiguous or indefinite, then parol evidence of the expressions of the parties and attendant facts and circumstances may be heard to aid in ascertaining the correct meaning of the terms used, but not to alter or add to what has been written. Ward v. Gay, 137 N. C. 399, 49 S. E. 884.

Not Retroactive in Operation.—There is a general presumption against the retroactive operation of a statute where it would impair vested rights, therefore this section cannot be held to operate retrospectively so as to allow parol testimony to locate land referred to and ambiguously described in a contract made before the passage of the section. Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 473, 17 S. E. 539. Shepherd, C. J., concurs, but further holds that the word "description" used in this section imports such description as can be aided by parol proof. Id.

When Description Sufficient.—A description of land in a deed as all that tract of land in two certain counties, lying on "both sides of old road between" designated points, and bounded by lands of named owners, "and others," being parts of certain State grants, conveyed by the patentee or enterer to certain grantees, etc., is sufficient to admit of parol evidence in aid of the identification of the lands as those intended to be conveyed. Buckhorn Land, etc., Co. v. Yarbrough, 179 N. C. 335, 102 S. E. 630.

While parol evidence is competent to "fit the description to the thing," it is not competent to establish a line or corner when the instrument by its terms wholly fails to identify such line or corner; in other words, it is competent to find but not to make a corner. Holmes v. Sapphire Valley Co., 121 N. C. 410, 28 S. E. 545.

Applied in McKay v. Bullard, 219 N. C. 589, 14 S. E. (2d) 657.

§ 8-40. Proof of handwriting by comparison.—In all trials in this state, when it may otherwise be competent and relevant to compare handwritings, a comparison of a disputed writing with any writing proved to the satisfaction of the judge to be genuine, shall be permitted to be made by witnesses, and such writings and the evidence of witnesses respecting the same may be submitted to the court and jury as evidence of the genuineness or otherwise of the writing in dispute: Provided, this shall not apply to actions pending on March 5, 1913. (1913, c. 52; C. S. 1784.)

In General.—The principle, formerly recognized in this State, that confined the proof of handwriting to the testimony of a competent witness in comparing that sought to be established with handwriting either admitted or proven to be that of the party, has been changed by this section, and where the disputed writing has been rendered competent under this principle, it may, in actions instituted after March 5, 1913, be submitted to the jury, together with that admitted or proven. Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 108 S. E. 336.

Rule under Prior Law.—Before the passage of this section it was incompetent for a handwriting expert to testify to the genuineness of the signature of a party to a writing, his testimony being based upon a comparison with another signature, not admitted to be genuine or requiring proof that it is so. Boyd v. Leatherwood, 165 N. C. 614, 81 S. E. 1025.

Same—Reasons.—In the cases decided under the prior law three reasons are given for excluding as incompetent a comparison by an expert witness of a signature or writing, not admitted to be genuine or connected with the case on trial, with a signature or writing which has been offered in writing, where the genuineness of the latter is drawn in question: (1) There is danger of fraud in the selecting of writings offered as specimens for the occasion. (2) The genuineness of specimens offered may be contested, and thus numberless collateral issues may be raised to confuse the jury and divert their attention from the real issue. (3) The opposing party may be surprised by the introduction of specimens, not admitted to be genuine, and for want of notice may fail to produce and offer evidence within his reach, tending to show their spurious character. 1 Greenleaf on Ev., secs. 578 to 580; Fuller v. Fox, 101 N. C. 119, 7 S. E. 589; Outlaw v. Hurdle, 46 N. C. 150; Tuttle v. Rainey, 98 N. C. 513, 4 S. E. 475; Pope v. Askew, 23 N. C. 16. This rule was recognized in the more recent cases. Martin v. Knight, 147 N. C. 564, 61 S. E. 447; Nicholson v. Eureka Lumber Co., 156 N. C. 59, 72 S. E. 86, 36 L. R. A. (N. S.) 162; Boyd v. Leatherwood, 165 N. C. 614, 616, 81 S. E. 1025.

Expert and Non-Expert Distinguished.—A comparison of handwriting is in some states permitted to be made by the jury or experts, and in others only by experts in the presence of the jury. Where a witness has acquired a knowledge of the person's writing, he compares a disputed signature or writing with an exemplar in his own mind. But when he testifies as an expert he must first be furnished, as the basis of his testimony, with some specimen the genuineness of which may be insisted on before the jury. Tunstall v. Cobb, 109 N. C. 316, 320, 14 S. E. 28.

Not Essential to See Person Write.—When the contents of letters written by a party to an action are relevant to the inquiry, it is not required that the witness should have seen the person write before he is permitted to identify the letter by the handwriting, for it is sufficient if he can do so from correspondence formerly had between them. Universal Oil, etc., Co. v. Burney, 174 N. C. 382, 93 S. E. 912.

Comparison by Jury.—Where payment of a note sued on is pleaded and the genuineness of the signature of the payee to a receipt for the amount is in dispute, and an expert in handwriting has given his opinion upon comparing with a magnifying glass the disputed signature with the genuine one, it is not error for the trial judge to permit the jury, while deliberating upon their verdict, to make the comparison with the magnifying glass for themselves, when it does not appear that it could have been to the prejudice of the appellant. As to whether this is otherwise permitted under the provisions of this section, quære? Goding v. Pope, 194 N. C. 403, 140 S. E. 21.

Analogy to Proof of Agency.—In Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 55, 108 S. E. 336, the court said: "As we understand the statute, the admission of testimony as to the genuineness of a writing by comparison of handwriting is now on the same basis as the declarations of agents. The court determines whether there is prima facie evidence of agency or of the genuineness of the writing admitted as a basis of comparison, and then the testimony of the witnesses and 'the writings' (in the plural) themselves are submitted to the jury."

Handwriting Irrelevant—Exclusion Harmless Error.—In this case the handwriting sought to be introduced as evidence before the jury and to be considered by them was irrelevant, and the action of the court in refusing to let the writing be submitted to the jury, to determine its genuineness, under the statute, was a harmless error. Newton v. Newton, 182 N. C. 54, 108 S. E. 336.

§ 8-41. Bills of lading in evidence.—In all actions by or against common carriers in which it shall be thought necessary to introduce in evidence any bills of lading issued by said common carrier or by a connecting carrier, it shall be competent to introduce in evidence any paper-writing purporting to be the original bill of lading, or a duplicate thereof, upon proof that such paper purporting to be such bill of lading or duplicate was received in due course of mail from consignor or agent of said carrier or connecting carrier, or delivered by said common carrier to the consignee or other person entitled to the possession of the property for which said paper purports to be the bill of lading: Provided, that such purported bill of lading shall not be declared to be the bill of lading unless the said purported bill of lading is first exhibited by the plaintiff or his agent or attorney to the defendant or its attorney, or its agent upon whom process may be served, ten days before the trial where the point of shipment is in the state, and twenty days when the point of shipment is without the state. Upon such proof and introduction of the bill of lading, the due execution thereof shall be prima facie established. (1915, c. 287; C. S. 1785.)

Cross Reference.—As to definitions of bills of lading, see §§ 21-2, 21-3.

§ 8-42. Book accounts under sixty dollars.—

When any person shall bring an action upon a contract, or shall plead, or give notice of, a set-off or counterclaim for goods, wares and merchandise by him sold and delivered, or for work done and performed, he shall file his account with his complaint, or with his plea or notice of setoff or counterclaim, and if upon the trial of the issue, or executing a writ of inquiry of damages in such action, he shall declare upon his oath that the matter in dispute is a book account, and that he hath no means to prove the delivery of any of the articles which he then shall propose to prove by himself but by this book, in that case such book may be given in evidence, if he shall make out by his own oath that it doth contain a true account of all the dealings, or the last settlement of accounts between himself and the opposing party, and that all the articles therein contained, and by him so proved, were bona fide delivered, and that he hath given the opposing party all just credits; and such book and oath shall be received as evidence for the several articles so proved to be delivered within two years next before the commencement of the action, but not for any article of a longer standing, nor for any greater amount than sixty dollars. (Rev., s. 1622; Code, s. 591; R. C., c. 15, s. 1; 1756, c. 57, ss. 2, 6, 7; C. S. 1786.)

Terms Construed.—In an early case, the words "to make out on his oath" and "to prove," used in this section, are construed to be synonymous terms. Kitchen v. Tyson, 7 N. C. 314.

Other Sections.—Notwithstanding the restrictions contained in sec. 8-51, in relation to a person's testifying as to any matter between himself and a deceased person, when his executor or administrator is a party, he may, as heretofore, be permitted to testify under this section. Leggett v. Glover, 71 N. C. 211. See also, Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627 and cases cited.

This section is applicable only to actions brought under the "book-debt law," hence in an action on a contract for sawing timber, it is not necessary to set out the items in the pleadings. McPhail v. Johnson, 115 N. C. 298, 302, 20 S. E. 373.

Swearing as to Price of Goods.—It is competent for a party under this section to swear to the price, as well as to the delivery of the articles stated in his account. Colbert v. Piercy, 25 N. C. 77.

Same—Cross-Examination.—It is competent for the opposite party to cross-examine the party, taking his oath as required by this section, both as to the article and the prices charged, with a view to contradict or discredit him, as he might do in regard to any other witness swearing to the account, the party so swearing being considered as a witness in his own cause. Colbert v. Piercy, 25 N. C. 77.

Where Original Account Exceeds Sixty Dollars.—Under this section, a plaintiff may prove by his own oath a balance of sixty dollars, due to him, although his account produced appears to have been originally for more than sixty dollars, but is reduced by credits below that amount. McWilliams v. Cosby, 26 N. C. 110.

Same—Dismissal of Part for Jurisdictional Purposes.—Where divers dealings are included in an account, the aggregate of which exceeds sixty dollars, the plaintiff can omit, or give credit for any item he may choose, so as to bring the case within the jurisdiction of a single magistrate. Waldo & Co. v. Jolly, 49 N. C. 173, 174. But after thus obtaining jurisdiction the plaintiff can not prove the account under this section for he is required to swear that the account rendered contains a true account of all the dealings. Id.

Proof of Set-Off Allowed.—The defendant may, under this section, prove a set-off. Webber v. Webber, 79 N. C. 572, 573, 575.

Same—Book and Oath Not Exclusive Evidence.—The book and the oath under this section are not evidence that the book contains all the credits and a full and true account of all the dealings between the parties, so as to show that nothing is due to the other party. Alexander v. Smoot, 35 N. C. 461.

Books of Decedent Admissible.—Under this section it is admissible to the amount of sixty dollars to offer the book accounts of a decedent, containing charges against third persons, and made by him. Bland v. Warren, 65 N. C. 372.

Unverified Entries on Own Book.—A party to an action may not show unverified entries of credit in his behalf on his own books involved in a disputed account, the same not falling within the intent and meaning of this section and secs. 8-43 and 8-44, especially when it has not been made to appear that the person having made them is dead or can not be had to give his sworn statement of the transaction. Branch v. Ayscue, 186 N. C. 219, 119 S. E. 201.

§ 8-43. Book accounts proved by personal representative.—In all actions where executors and administrators are parties, such book account for all articles delivered within two years previous to the death of the deceased may be proved under the like circumstances, rules and conditions; and in such case, the executor or administrator may prove by himself that he found the account so stated on the books of the deceased; that there are no witnesses, to his knowledge, capable of proving the delivery of the articles which he shall propose to prove by said book, and that he believes the same to be just, and doth not know of any other or further credit to be given than what is therein mentioned: Provided, that if two years shall not have elapsed previous to the death of the deceased, the executor or administrator may prove the said book account, if the suit shall be commenced within three years from the delivery of the articles: Provided further, that whenever by the aforesaid proviso the time of proving a book account in manner aforesaid is enlarged as to the one party, to the same extent shall be enlarged the time as to the other party. (Rev., s. 1623; Code, s. 592; R. C., c. 15, s. 2; 1756, c. 57, s. 2; 1796, c. 465; C. S. 1787.)

An administrator may, under this section, offer in evidence the book accounts of a decedent, containing charges against third persons, and made by him. Bland v. Warren, 65 N. C. 372.

A copy from the book of accounts proved in manner above directed may be given in evidence in any such action or setoff as aforesaid, and shall be as available as if such book had been produced, unless the party opposing such proof shall give notice to the adverse party or his attorney, at the joining of the issue, or ten days before the trial, that he will require the book to be produced at the trial; and in that case no such copy shall be admitted as evidence. (Rev., s. 1624; Code, s. 593; R. C., c. 15, s. 3; 1756, c. 57, s. 3; C. C. P., s. 343c; C. S. 1788.)

Production of Original after Notice.—In all cases under this and the two preceding sections, it is the duty of the party, who wishes to prove his debt by his own oath, to produce the original account when notice to that effect has been given to him by the other party. Coxe v. Skeen, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

A voluntary destruction of the original will not authorize the introduction of a copy. Coxe v. Skeen, 25 N. C. 443, 445.

§ 8-45. Itemized and verified accounts.—In any actions instituted in any court of this state upon an account for goods sold and delivered, for rents, for services rendered, or labor performed, or upon any oral contract for money loaned, a verified itemized statement of such account shall be received in evidence, and shall be deemed prima facie evidence of its correctness. (Rev., s. 1625; 1897, c. 480; 1917, c. 32; 1941, c. 104; C. S. 1789.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment in 1917 (ratified February 12, 1917) this section was applicable only to accounts for goods sold and delivered. See La Salle Extension University v. Ogburn, 174 N. C. 427, 93 S. E. 986; Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. Even before the amendment of this section, where the case was not instituted "upon an account for goods sold and delivered," which fact took the proceedings beyond the operative force of this section, the case was not necessarily dismissed on this account, when the additional evidence offered served to enable the jury to determine the amount of damages to which the plaintiff was entitled. See Gainesville, etc., Hospital Ass'n v. Hobbs, 153 N. C. 188, 195, 69 S. E. 79.

The 1941 amendment inserted the words "for rents" in this section.

Purpose.—This section was designed to facilitate the collection of such accounts where there was no bona fide dispute, and to relieve the plaintiff in such instances of the expense and delay of formally taking depositions. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Verification Essential.—An itemized account to be prima facie evidence of its correctness must be properly verified and stated so as to show an indebtedness. Knight v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 84, 42 S. E. 537.

Competency of Witness Required.—Under the terms of this section, as now drawn, an affiant, verifying an account so as to make the same prima facie evidence, must be a competent witness to the facts, and when it appears on the face of the account that he has no personal knowledge of these facts, or it is established that he is otherwise an incompetent witness, the ex parte account so verified should not be received in evidence. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627. And it must appear that he is not excluded under the provision of sec. 8-51. See Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584.

An itemized, verified statement of an account is an ex parte statement and this section, governing its admission, must be strictly complied with, and the person who verifies the account, being treated as a witness pro tanto must be competent to testify as a witness in respect to the account if called upon at the trial, but where an itemized statement of account offered at the trial is verified by the treasurer of the plaintiff corporation who declares in his affidavit that "he is familiar with the books and business" of the plaintiff, it cannot be held as a matter of law that the affiant had no personal knowledge of the transaction, and the exclusion of the statement by the trial court will be held for reversible error. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627, cited and distinguished. Endicott-Johnson Corp. v. Schochet, 198 N. C. 769, 153 S. E. 403.

Subordinate to Section 8-51.—In Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 184, 116 S. E. 584, the court said: "We have held that this section, appearing as a section on the law of evidence, should be construed in subordination to C. S., 1795, [§ 8-51] under the principle announced in Cecil v. High Point, 165 N. C. 431, 81 S. E. 616." See also, Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Prima Facie Case.—In an action to recover for goods sold and delivered, where a verified statement of the account shows that it is for goods sold by the plaintiff to the defendant and sets out the number and kind of articles, the catalogue numbers, price per dozen and discounts allowed, and there are trade terms and abbreviations well understood in the trade, which show more fully the kind of articles, it is properly itemized to make out a prima facie case under this section. Claus v. Lee, 140 N. C. 552, 53 S. E. 433; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820.

Same—Nonsuit.—Where a verified account or affidavit to a statement for goods sold and delivered is insufficient to establish a prima facie case, under the provision of this section, and this is the only evidence offered, a judgment of nonsuit upon the evidence is properly allowed. Nall v. Kelly, 169 N. C. 717, 86 S. E. 627.

Same—Burden of Proof.—Where a prima facie case has been made out by the plaintiff, in his action to recover the purchase price of goods sold and delivered to the defendant, and the latter contends that he, as the agent for the former, was to sell upon commission, and that he had accounted for such sales, except a small balance which he tendered, or offered to submit to judgment for that amount, the burden is upon the defendant to show the fact of agency, and of accounting thereon, which is for the determination of the jury upon the question of indebtedness. Carr v. Alexander, 169 N. C. 665, 86 S. E. 613.

Account of Mercantile Corporation.—This section applied in Wright Co. v. Green, 196 N. C. 197, 145 S. E. 16.

Husband as Agent of Wife.—Evidence held insufficient. Pitt v. Speight, 222 N. C. 585, 24 S. E. (2d) 350.

Art. 5. Life Tables.

§ 8-46. Mortuary tables as evidence.—Whenever it is necessary to establish the expectancy of continued life of any person from any period of such person's life, whether he be living at the time or not, the table hereto appended shall be received in all courts and by all persons having power to determine litigation, as evidence, with other evidence as to the health, constitution and habits of such person, of such expectancy represented by the figures in the columns headed by the words "completed age" and "expectation" respectively:

Need Not Be Put in Evidence.—This section being a public act, the tables herein contained are competent as evidence without being specially put in evidence. Coley v. Statesville, 121 N. C. 301, 317, 28 S. E. 482.

Tables Not Conclusive.—In an action to recover damages for a personal injury, the expectation of life tables contained in this section are not conclusive but merely evidential on the issue as to damages. Odom v. Canfield Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 134, 91 S. E. 716; Sledge v. Lumber Co., 140 N. C. 459, 461, 53 S. E. 295; Young v. Wood, 196 N. C. 435, 146 S. E. 70. The tables must be considered in connection with the "other evidence as to the health, constitution and habits" of the deceased. Russell v. Windsor Steamboat Co., 126 N. C. 961, 967, 36 S. E. 191. See Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Atlantic Greyhound Lines, 210 N. C. 293, 186 S. E. 320; Hancock v. Wilson, 211 N. C. 129, 189 S. E. 631.

Value of Life Tenancy.—When a life tenant and the remainderman sell the lands, the life tenant is entitled to the present cash value of her life estate in the purchase price, computed according to her life expectancy at the date of the execution of the deed, and the remainderman is entitled to the balance of the purchase price. Thompson v. Avery County, 216 N. C. 405, 5 S. E. (2d) 146.

§ 8-47. Present worth of annuities.—When-ever it is necessary to establish the present worth or cash value of an annuity to a person, payable annually during his life, such present worth or cash value may be ascertained by the use of the following table in connection with the mortu-ary tables established by law, the first column representing the number of years the annuity is to run and the second column representing the present cash value of an annuity of one dollar for such number of years, respectively:

The present cash value of the annuity for a fraction of a year may be ascertained as follows: multiply the difference between the cash value of the annuities for the preceding and succeeding full years by the fraction of the year in decimals and add the sum to the present cash value for the preceding full year. When a person is entitled to the use of a sum of money for life, or for a given time, the interest thereon for one year, computed at four and one-half per cent. may be considered as an annuity and the present cash value be ascertained as herein provided: Provided, the interest rate in computing the present cash value of dower shall be six per cent. (Rev., s. 1627; 1905, c. 347; 1927, c. 215; C. S. 1791; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The words "computed at four and one-half per cent." after the word "year" and before the word "may" near the end of the section were placed herein by the Act of 1927, which provided that it "shall apply only to estates hereafter created." This act became effective March 9, 1927.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso at the end of the section.

Applicable Only to Annuities.—This section is intended to apply strictly to annuities, and therefore, in an action to recover damages for injuries causing death, it is error to permit the jury to consider the provisions thereof for the purpose of ascertaining the present value of the intestate's life. Poe v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 525, 526, 54 S. E. 406. See Brown v. Lipe, 210 N. C. 199, 185 S. E. 681.

Art. 6. Calendars.

§ 8-48. Clark's calendar; proof of dates.—In any controversy or inquiry in any court or before any fact finding board, commission, administrative agency or other body, where it becomes necessary or pertinent to determine any information which may be established by reference to a calendar for any year between the years one thousand seven hundred and fifty-three and two thousand and two, Anno Domini, inclusive, it is permissible to introduce in evidence "Clark's Calendar, A Calendar Covering 250 Years, 1753 A. D. to 2002 A. D.", as supplemented, copyrighted, 1940, by E. D. Clark, Entry: Class AA, Number three hundred and twenty-eight thousand five hundred and seventy-three, Copyright Office of the United States of America, Washington, or any reprint of said one thousand nine hundred and forty edition certified by the secretary of state to be an accurate copy thereof; and such calendar or reprint, when so introduced, shall be prima facie evidence that the information disclosed by said calendar or reprint thereof is true and correct. (1941, c. 312.)

Art. 7. Competency of Witnesses.

§ 8-49. Witness not excluded by interest or crime.—No person offered as a witness shall be excluded, by reason of incapacity from interest or crime, from giving evidence either in person or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, on the trial of any issue joined, or of any matter or question, or on any inquiry arising in any suit or proceeding, civil or criminal, in any court, or before any judge, justice, jury or other person having, by law, authority to hear, receive and examine evidence; and every person so offered shall be admitted to give evidence, notwithstanding such person may or shall have an interest in the matter in question, or in the event of the trial of the issue, or of the suit or other proceeding in which he is offered as a witness. This section shall not be construed to apply to attesting witnesses to wills. (Rev., ss. 1628, 1629; Code, ss. 589, 1350; C. C. P., c. 342; 1866, c. 43, ss. 1, 4; 1869-70, c. 177; 1871-2, c. 4; C. S. 1792.)

Cross References.—See also, §§ 8-50, 8-51, 8-54, 8-56, and notes thereto. As to general treatment of application of the rule herein contained, see § 8-51 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section abolishes the common law rule which prevented a party who was interested in the result of the verdict and judgment from appearing as a witness. A similar enactment will be found in the codes of practically all the states.

A great number of varying constructions have been given to this section, and the decisions of the cases falling hereunder are not altogether harmonious. However, it seems settled that its provisions must be considered in the light of those contained in sec. 8-51 which place certain restrictions on the general rule embodied in this section. In other words, the provisions of sec. 8-51 form exceptions to this section, and take them from the operation of its principle, leaving the parties falling within these exceptions to stand upon the same footing as they did prior to the enactment of this section. See Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippy, 124 N. C. 643, 645, 32 S. E. 980.

The construction of this section should also be in connection with the provisions of secs. 8-50 and 8-56, since they all relate to the same subject—the competency of the witnesses. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 397, 79 S. E. 872. This being true, a portion of the notes found under each section will necessarily have some bearing on and may prove helpful to the practitioner in construing one or more of the other sections. A few of the decided cases are placed under this section simply to show that the general rule contained in its provisions constitutes the foundation for the decisions under the following sections.

Legatee under Will as Witness.—Under this section removing the disqualification on account of interest, the widow of the testator, who was named as a legatee and devisee in a will, is a competent witness to prove the fact that the script propounded was found among the papers of the deceased. Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 548, 14 S. E. 78. Nor would the last provision of the section prevent the widow in this case from testifying, since this provision applies only to attesting witnesses to the execution of a will. Id.

Beneficiary under Holograph Will.—Under this and the following section, one who is a beneficiary under a holograph will may testify to such competent relevant and material facts as tend to establish it as a valid will without rendering void the benefits he is to receive thereunder. It is otherwise as to an attesting witness of a will that the statute requires to be attested by witness thereto. In re Will of Westfeldt, 188 N. C. 702, 125 S. E. 531.

Executor as Witness.—An executor, named in a will, is a competent witness to testify as to the existence, probate and registration of a will, he being rendered competent by this section, and he is not disqualified by sec. 8-51, as to transactions occurring after the death of the testator, as they can in no sense be considered as transactions between the witness and the testator. Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381.

The widow of a deceased vendor, who was present at the sale of a mule by her husband to the plaintiff, is a competent witness under this section, and was not excluded under sec. 8-51, as she was not a party to the action and had no interest in the same. Little v. Ratliff, 126 N. C. 262, 35 S. E. 469.

Mortgagee.—Where he is not excluded under the provisions of sec. 8-51, the mortgagee in a chattel mortgage is competent, as a subscribing witness thereto, to prove its execution for admission to probate, inasmuch as this section removes the disqualification formerly attaching to witnesses having an interest. Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 21 S. E. 562.

Fornication and Adultery.—In a trial for fornication and adultery a former defendant as to whom a nolle prosequi has been entered is a competent witness against the other defendant. State v. Phipps, 76 N. C. 203.

Party Testifying in Own Behalf.—The provisions of this section make it permissible for a party to testify in his own behalf. Autry v. Floyd, 127 N. C. 186, 37 S. E. 208; State v. McIntosh, 64 N. C. 607.

Applied in State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

§ 8-50. Parties competent as witnesses.—On the trial of any issue, or of any matter or question, or on any inquiry arising in any action, suit or other proceeding in court, or before any judge, justice, jury or other person having, by law, authority to hear and examine evidence, the parties themselves and the person in whose behalf any suit or other proceeding may be brought or defended, shall, except as otherwise provided, be competent and compellable to give evidence, either viva voce or by deposition, according to the practice of the court, in behalf of either or any of the parties to said action, suit or other proceeding. Nothing in this section shall be construed to apply to any action or other proceeding in any court instituted in consequence of adultery, or to any action for criminal conversation. (Rev., s. 1630; Code, s. 1351; 1866, c. 43, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 1793.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 8-49, 8-51, 8-54, 8-56 and notes thereto.

In General.—This, and secs. 8-49 and 8-51 should be construed together, and thus construed, they do not prohibit the evidence of the husband as to the conduct of his wife, where she is not a party, in his action against another for damages for criminal conversation with his wife and the alienation of her affections. Powell v. Strickland, 163 N. C. 393, 79 S. E. 872.

At common law, neither the husband nor the wife is allowed to prove the fact of access or non-access; and as such rule is founded "upon decency, morality and public policy," it is not changed by this section, allowing parties to testify in their own behalf. Boykin v. Boykin, 70 N. C. 262; King v. Lourtoun, 31 Eng. C. L. 312.

Testimony of an Accomplice.—An accomplice may not testify on direct examination to facts tending to incriminate defendant and at the same time refuse to answer questions on cross-examination relating to matters embraced in his examination-in-chief, and where he refuses to answer relevant questions on cross-examination on the ground that his answers might tend to incriminate him, it is error for the court to refuse defendant's motion that his testimony-in-chief be stricken from the record, the refusal to answer the questions on cross-examination rendering the testimony-in-chief incompetent. State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639. See Const., Art. I, sec. 11.

Testifying against Co-Defendant.—A defendant in a criminal case is, under this section, competent and compellable to testify for or against a co-defendant, provided his testimony does not criminate himself. State v. Medley, 178 N. C. 710, 100 S. E. 591; State v. Smith, 86 N. C. 705. See State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

Same—Practice Not Commendable.—The practice of sending co-defendants to the grand jury to testify against each other, while allowable, is not commended. State v. Frizell, 111 N. C. 722, 16 S. E. 409.

Instructions Not to Incriminate Himself.—In an indictment for an affray, it is not error for the presiding judge to caution the witness (a defendant) before the counsel for the other defendant cross-examines him, that he need not tell anything to incriminate himself. State v. Weaver, 93 N. C. 595, 600. See State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

§ 8-51. A party to a transaction excluded, when the other party is dead.—Upon the trial of an action, or the hearing upon the merits of a special proceeding, a party or a person interested in the event, or a person from, through or under whom such a party or interested person derives his interest or title by assignment or otherwise, shall not be examined as a witness in his own behalf or interest, or in behalf of the party succeeding to his title or interest, against the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person, or the committee of a lunatic, or a person deriving his title or interest from, through or under a deceased person or lunatic, by assignment or otherwise, concerning a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person or lunatic; except where the executor, administrator, survivor, committee or person so deriving title or interest is examined in his own behalf, or the testimony of the lunatic or deceased person is given in evidence concerning the same transaction or communication. (Rev., s. 1631; Code, s. 590; C. C. P., s. 343; C. S. 1795.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Editor's Note.—Mr. Justice Clark in Bunn v. Todd, 107 N. C. 266, 11 S. E. 1043, gives the following analytical treatment to this section, which has been cited and approved in many of the cases coming within the principles of this section, and has proved to be a helpful guide-post for the courts in deciding as to the admissibility of the particular evidence involved in the case. It is submitted that if the practitioner, in passing upon the exclusion or non-exclusion of the evidence in the cases bearing upon this section, will carefully compare the point at issue with the clauses of the following out-line, then much time will have been saved, in addition to having the assurance that he more than likely will be correct in his conclusion since, as has been said, the substantive part of this resume has been accepted by the great majority (if not all) of the courts. See Fidelity Bank v. Wysong, et al., Co., 177 N. C. 284, 98 S. E. 769; Seals v. Seals, 165 N. C. 409, 81 S. E. 613.

It disqualifies—

WHOM—1. Parties to the action.

2. Persons interested in the event of the action.

3. Persons through or under whom the persons in the first two classes derive their title or interest.

A witness, although belonging to one of these three classes, is incompetent only in the following cases:

WHEN—To testify in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, against the representative or a deceased person, or committee of a lunatic, or any one deriving his title or interest through them.

And the disqualification of such person, and in even such cases, is restricted to the following:

SUBJECT-MATTER.—As to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the person since deceased or a lunatic.

And even as to those persons and in those cases there are the following:

EXCEPTIONS.—When the representative of, or person claiming through or under, the deceased person or lunatic is examined in his own behalf, or the testimony of the deceased person or lunatic is given in evidence concerning the same transaction. Burnett v. Savage, 92 N. C. 10; Sumner v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

The editor has deemed it expedient to use this excellent outline as the basis of his analysis of the section, and, wherever possible, has adhered to the same, making no departures but only continuing the treatment by breaking the lines into further ramifications of the same subjects in order to show the component parts thereof.

Purpose of Section.—The mischief the statute was passed to prevent was the giving of testimony by a witness interested in the event, as to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and the deceased person whose lips are sealed in death. Abernathy v. Skidmore, 190 N. C. 66, 128 S. E. 475, 476.

The purpose of this section is to exclude evidence of a personal transaction or communication between the witness and a person who by reason of death or lunacy cannot be heard. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 92, 144 S. E. 526.

This section applies to actions in tort as well as actions on contract. Boyd v. Williams, 207 N. C. 30, 175 S. E. 832.

Reasons for Exclusion.—The exclusion of such testimony rests not merely upon the ground that the dead man can not have a fair showing, but upon the broader and more practical ground that the other party to the action has no chance by the oath of the relevant witness to reply to the oath of the party to the action. In re Will of Mann, 192 N. C. 248, 134 S. E. 649.

Province of Court to Decide What Testimony May "Come In."—When a personal representative "opens the door" by testifying to a transaction, it is not in his province, but that of the court, to decide what testimony favorable to the adverse party may "come in." Mansfield v. Wade, 208 N. C. 790, 796, 182 S. E. 475, citing Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

Instruction as to Use of Section Cannot Be Obtained by Declaratory Judgment.—In an action instituted under the Declaratory Judgment Act the court has no authority to instruct a litigant whether to take advantage of the provision of this section, upon the hearing of the cause upon its merits, since such instructions upon a question of procedure do not fall within the purview of the act. Redmond v. Farthing, 217 N. C. 678, 9 S. E. (2d) 405.

Testimony Not Within Section.—Where a widow is entitled during her widowhood to the profits on the land devised by her deceased husband, but not to his moneys commingled therewith in a deposit in a bank, and has died devising the total amount of the deposit: Held, testimony as to her receipt of the money from the crops is competent, not falling within the provisions of this section, and does not affect the title to other money owned by her husband at his death and given to her for life by his will. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

Same—Conversations with Living Persons.—Where the widow under the terms of the will of her husband may only dispose of the moneys in the bank to her credit, and not such as may at her death have passed to the remainderman under his will, it may be shown by disinterested witnesses as to what part passed under the widow's will, as not objectionable evidence under this section based upon conversations with other living parties interested under the husband's will. White v. Mitchell, 196 N. C. 89, 144 S. E. 526.

Record Evidence.—While testimony as to personal transactions with the deceased payee of a note would be incompetent to establish defenses to the note over the objection of the personal representative of the payee, record evidence tending to establish such defenses is not precluded by this section. Flippin v. Lindsey, 221 N. C. 30, 18 S. E. (2d) 824.

General Rule Applicable in Other States.—The decisions in other jurisdictions are equally emphatic in the rejection of such evidence, the statutes being the same as this one, relating to personal transactions or communications. See Comstock v. Comstock, 76 Minn. 396, where it is said: "A party to an action, or interested in the result thereof, can not give evidence as to conversations with a deceased person, even though the witness took no part in the conversation." See also, Holland v. Holland, 98 Appellate Div. (N. Y.) 366; Matthews v. Hoagland, 48 N. J. Eq. 455.—Ed. Note.

Rehearsal of Conversation Admissible.—Direct evidence of a conversation and understanding with the plaintiff's testator is, under this section, incompetent, but a rehearsal of that conversation is a part of the res gestae, and admissible. Gilmer v. McNairy, 69 N. C. 335.

Testimony of conversations with party to action wherein witness related statements of decedent is not in contravention of this section. Allen v. Allen, 213 N. C. 264, 195 S. E. 801.

Itemized and Verified Accounts.—Section 8-45 relating to itemized and verified accounts is subordinate to this section. See note of Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 184, 116 S. E. 584, placed under sec. 8-45.

The provisions of this section may be waived by the adverse party. Andrews v. Smith, 198 N. C. 34, 150 S. E. 670.

Where an administrator brings proceedings under the provisions of §§ 1-569 et seq., to examine a defendant to discover assets of the estate of the deceased, the administrator waives the provisions of this section and the testimony thus taken may be introduced by the defendant in his own behalf. Andrews v. Smith, 198 N. C. 34, 150 S. E. 670.

Applied in State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

Cited in Bynum v. Fidelity Bank, 219 N. C. 109, 12 S. E. (2d) 898 (dissenting opinion).

II. THE SECTION DISQUALIFIES WHOM.

A. Parties to the Action.

Editor's Note.—The general rule is that a party is not competent to testify as to a transaction with persons since deceased; e converso, a person not a party nor interested in the event of the suit may testify as to such transaction or communication.

It will be noticed that this section excludes the testimony of "a party or person interested;" in regard to parties, however, interest is not a necessary prerequisite to the exclusion of the evidence and it was not the legislative purpose so to make it. It is immaterial whether a "party" is interested or not but a "person," of course because of the context of the section, must be interested. See Cartwright v. Coppersmith, 222 N. C. 573, 24 S. E. (2d) 246.

The following cases under this analysis line will demonstrate when persons are considered or are not considered parties within the meaning of this section.

A "next friend" is not a party to the suit. Mason v. McCormick, 75 N. C. 263. But his liability for costs renders him incompetent to testify to the transactions or conversations here under consideration. Id. See also McLeary v. Norment, 84 N. C. 235.

Testimony of Guardian.—Testimony of a guardian, suing an executor to establish a gift made by a testatrix to the guardian's ward, as to what occurred between the testatrix and executor, was admissible as against the objection that the guardian could not testify as to any communication or transaction between himself and testatrix. Zollicoffer v. Zollicoffer, 168 N. C. 326, 84 S. E. 349.

Testimony of Tenant.—In an action for goods sold and delivered to the intestate, a tenant of the intestate who was furnished with goods from the plaintiff's store, and who settled with the intestate, is competent to testify in the plaintiff's behalf as to the intestate's delivery to him of the merchandise because the witness is not a party to the action. Sorrell v. McGhee, 178 N. C. 279, 100 S. E. 434.

Probate of Will.—In a proceeding for the probate of a will, both propounders and caveators are parties within the meaning and spirit of this section. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 583, 595, 140 S. E. 192.

Under this section the beneficiary under a will may not testify to transactions and communications with the deceased, but he may in proceedings of devisavit vel non give his opinion, based on his own observations, as to the mental incapacity of the deceased at the time of the execution of the writing propounded, and then testify to personal transactions he has had with him as being a part of the basis of his opinion, when evidence of this character is properly so confined upon the trial by instructions or otherwise, the weight and credibility being for the jury to determine. In re Will of Brown, 194 N. C. 583, 140 S. E. 192.

A defendant executor can not testify concerning a land transaction between himself and the intestate, in a suit brought by creditors of the estate to subject the land alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed to the defendant by the intestate. Grier v. Cagle, 87 N. C. 377; State v. Morris, 69 N. C. 444.

A member of the board of county commissioners is not a competent witness as to transactions with the defendant's intestate in a suit by the board. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159.

A principal debtor, who was a party to an action to foreclose a mortgage given by his sureties as security for the loan, was an incompetent witness to a contract with the deceased creditor. Benedict v. Jones, 129 N. C. 475, 40 S. E. 223.

Party Acting in Corporate Capacity.—One who is a party to a suit, though in his corporate capacity, is not competent to testify as to a transaction with a person deceased. Commissioners v. Lash, 89 N. C. 159, 164.

In an action to recover for services rendered deceased, testimony by the plaintiff that plaintiff boarded deceased is incompetent under the provisions of this section. Price v. Pyatt, 203 N. C. 799, 167 S. E. 69.

Time and Place of Signing Receipt.—The defendant in an action for money demanded is disqualified by this section, to testify as to the time and place of signing a receipt by the plaintiff's intestate, in support of his plea of satisfaction. Sumner v. Candler, 86 N. C. 71.

B. Persons Interested in the Event of the Action.

1. General Consideration.

The Rule Stated.—To be incompetent under this section a witness must be either a party to the action or interested in the event thereof. Having discussed the question of "parties" under the preceding analysis line, it next becomes pertinent to examine the subject of "interest" of witnesses and other persons not parties.

To determine when such interest exists so as to render the person incompetent, the following rule should be applied: The true test of the competency of a witness is whether he bears such a relation to the controversy that the verdict and judgment in the case may be used against him as a party in another action if not he is not disqualified. Jones v. Emory, 115 N. C. 158, 20 S. E. 206; Henderson v. McLain, 146 N. C. 329, 59 S. E. 873.

Nature of Interest Involved.—This section does not disqualify every witness who, in the broadest sense of the term, is interested in the event of the action, but only such as have a direct and substantial or a direct legal or pecuniary interest in the result. Jones v. Emory, 115 N.

C. 158, 163, 20 S. E. 206; Helsabeck v. Doub, 167 N. C. 205, 83 S. E. 241; In re Gorham, 177 N. C. 271, 98 S. E. 717; Allen v. Allen, 213 N. C. 264, 195 S. E. 801.

It follows that a mere sentimental interest will not suffice. Sutton v. Walters, 118 N. C. 496, 24 S. E. 357. And it has been held that relationship of the parties alone does not constitute the direct, legal, pecuniary interest required. See Bennett v. Best, 142 N. C. 168, 55 S. E. 84; Sutton v. Walters, 118 N. C. 495, 24 S. E. 357; Porter v. White, 128 N. C. 42, 38 S. E. 24; Walston v. Lowry, 212 N. C. 23, 192 S. E. 877.

Present Interest.—In Isler v. Dewey, 67 N. C. 93, 96, the court intimates that the interest necessary to disqualify is a present interest; that is, one retained by the party at the time of examination. In reaching this conclusion it was said: "Any other construction would make a statute, professedly for the removal of the incompetency of witnesses, the means of introducing new incompetencies unknown to the common law and opposed to its principles."

In Bunn v. Todd, 107 N. C. 266, 268, 11 S. E. 1043, it is said: "Originally this section disqualified a fourth class of persons, i. e. those who have had an interest in the subject matter of the suit, but whose interest has since ceased. This disqualification did not exist at common law, and was struck out of this section of the Code of 1883, except in the cases in which such persons still came under the third class of disqualified persons above [see the Editor's Note and analysis line I of this note] stated."

Witness Must Be Party in Interest.—The testimony of a witness, in an action against the administrator of his deceased brother-in-law to recover certain sums obtained by the deceased on two vouchers made to a fictitious firm and embezzled by him, that he collected the vouchers for the deceased through his bank and sent the proceeds to the deceased, is not incompetent as falling within the provisions of this section, the witness not being a party in interest and having no direct, legal or pecuniary interest in the event of the action. Ft. Worth, etc., R. Co. v. Hegwood, 198 N. C. 309, 151 S. E. 641.

In an action against the administrator of a deceased person to recover for breach of the deceased's contract to devise, testimony of witnesses not interested in the event as to declarations made by the deceased against his interest was properly admitted. Hager v. Whitener, 204 N. C. 747, 169 S. E. 645.

Not Confined to Parties to Action.—The provisions of this section are not confined to the parties to the action, but extend to testimony of a witness interested in the result of the action. Honeycutt v. Burleson, 198 N. C. 37, 150 S. E. 634.

2. Applications.

No Interest in Recovery—Interest in Subject Matter.—In an action against an insane person for damages for breach of warranty in a deed, a witness who is not interested in the recovery is not disqualified by this section, though he may have an interest in the land. Lemly v. Ellis, 143 N. C. 200, 55 S. E. 629.

Where some of the witnesses in an action in ejectment are not interested in the event, their testimony does not fall within the intent and meaning of this section and the exclusion of their testimony tending to show the tenancy of a decedent under whom one defendant claims as adverse possessor, is reversible error entitling the plaintiff to a new trial. Pitman v. Hunt, 197 N. C. 574, 150 S. E. 13.

Neither Husband nor Wife Is an Interested Party.—Where husband and wife instituted separate suits to recover, each respectively, for personal services rendered by them to defendant's testate, it was held that each was competent to testify for the other, since neither had a direct pecuniary interest in the action of the other, and was not therefore an interested party in the other's action within the meaning of this section, the testimony not being as to a transaction between the witness and the deceased, but between a third party and deceased. Burton v. Styers, 210 N. C. 230, 186 S. E. 248.

It has been consistently held by this court that the prohibition against the testimony of a "person interested in the event" extends only to those having a "direct legal or pecuniary interest," and not to the sentimental interest the husband or wife would naturally have in the lawsuit of the other. Burton v. Styers, 210 N. C. 230, 231, 186 S. E. 248, citing Hall v. Holloman, 136 N. C. 34, 48 S. E. 515; Helsabeck v. Doub, 167 N. C. 205, 83 S. E. 241, L. R. A. 1917A, 1; Vannoy v. Stafford, 209 N. C. 748, 184 S. E. 482. See § 8-56 and note.

Where the blind husband of a grantee, in a deed reserving a life estate in the grantor, was present and heard the grantor acknowledge its execution and delivery, he was a competent witness to prove such execution and delivery, his wife having died prior to the grantor and the title therefore being vested in her son, in that his evidence disclosed no personal transaction or communication and he was not a party in interest within this section. Turlington v. Neighbors, 222 N. C. 694, 24 S. E. (2d) 648.

The Same Being True of Attorney Formerly Holding Note for Collection.—An attorney formerly holding a note for collection is not an interested party in an action on the note within the meaning of this section, prohibiting testimony by interested parties as to transactions with or declarations of a decedent. Vannoy v. Stafford, 209 N. C. 748, 184 S. E. 482.

And of Draftsman Who Failed to Insert Reversionary Clause in Deed.—In an action for reformation of a deed to a county board of education for mistake of the draftsman in failing to insert a reversionary clause therein in accordance with the agreement between the grantors and grantee, testimony of the draftsman relating to declarations of a deceased member of the board and of the superintendent of schools, tending to show that it was agreed that the reversionary clause should be inserted, was held not precluded by this section, the draftsman not being a party interested in the event as contemplated by the statute. Ollis v. Board of Education, 210 N. C. 489, 187 S. E. 772.

Interest of Wife in Compensation Due Husband.—In an action against an administrator to recover the value of services the plaintiff alleges he has rendered the deceased, the wife of the plaintiff has no interest in the event which would bar her testimony as to a transaction with the deceased, and it is competent for her to testify to the contract relied upon by her husband the plaintiff. Helsabeck v. Doub, 167 N. C. 205, 83 S. E. 241. See Price v. Askins, 212 N. C. 583, 194 S. E. 284.

In Linebarger v. Linebarger, 143 N. C. 229, 55 S. E. 709, the court had held that on an issue of devisavit vel non it was not competent to prove by a witness whose husband was one of the caveators and heirs at law of the testator, declarations of said testator offered for the purpose of showing undue influence, as such witness had an interest in the real estate, dependent upon the result of the action. This and the foregoing case are distinguishable, however, upon the ground that in the Linebarger case the property in controversy was land, and the wife's inchoate dower attached immediately upon the recovery by her husband.—Ed. Note.

The interest which a married woman has in the real property of her husband before and during coverture comes within the intent and meaning of this section, and will exclude testimony by her of a communication or transaction between her husband and a deceased person as to a contract made between them whereby a mortgage on the lands of her husband executed prior to his marriage was to be canceled by the deceased. Honeycutt v. Burleson, 198 N. C. 37, 150 S. E. 634.

A husband has no vested interest in the real estate of his wife, and it would seem that he is not a "person interested in the event" within the contemplation of this section in an action involving his wife's title to realty. Allen v. Allen, 213 N. C. 264, 195 S. E. 801.

Widower Has No Interest in Division of Wife's Lands among Children.—When a husband and wife, each owning certain lands, enter into an agreement to pool their lands for division among their children, and the wife dies intestate before her lands are deeded in accordance with the agreement the husband has a life estate in her lands as tenant by the curtesy regardless of the disposition of the lands among the children, and therefore has no direct pecuniary interest in an action by the children to whom deeds were not executed to declare the heirs of another child estopped to assert an interest in the lands of their mother, and his testimony of the agreement with his wife is not precluded by this section. Coward v. Coward, 216 N. C. 506, 5 S. E. (2d) 537.

The mother, in her illegitimate child's action against the estate of the deceased father on a contract made by him for the child's support, is not a party interested in the event of the action whose evidence on the trial is excluded under the provisions of this section. Conley v. Cabe, 198 N. C. 298, 299, 151 S. E. 645.

Husband as Interested Party in Deed Drawn by Wife.—The husband is an interested witness in the event of the action, though not a party, when a trust deed made by his deceased wife is being attacked for the want of his joining therein; and upon the question of abandonment, his evidence, to the effect that his wife said to him she would give him a horse if he would leave, was incompetent. Whitty v. Barham, 147 N. C. 479, 61 S. E. 372. The testimony of the daughter that she heard the conversation to that effect would be the "indirect testimony of an interested witness as to a transaction or communication with deceased," and also incompetent. Id.

Husband as Interested Party in Check Given Wife.—When a check made payable to one of the intestate's daughters and signed by the intestate was introduced in evidence to show an advancement, the daughter's husband was held competent under this section to testify over objection that the check was given his wife as a wedding present, he having no interest in the event of the action. Likewise another daughter was permitted to testify for her sister, the transaction testified to not being between the witness and deceased, but between the witness's sister and deceased father. Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 80, 173 S. E. 275.

Interest of Depositor's Son in Action to Recover Moneys Deposited.—In an action by the administrator of a deceased person against a bank to recover moneys deposited by the intestate, resisted on the ground that the deceased had authorized the bank to pay the money upon his son's checks, the latter being present at the time, the son was interested in the event since he would be liable to the plaintiff if he was not authorized to draw the checks and possibly to the defendant, and his testimony was incompetent under this section, and the fact that a third person was present at the time of the transaction and testified at the trial does not affect this result. Donoho v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 765, 153 S. E. 451.

Sheriff as Witness.—A deputy collected a sum of money on account of taxes and deposited the same with G. with instructions to pay it over to the sheriff, which was not done, and the deputy was afterwards required to pay the sheriff the sum so collected; it was held, in an action to recover the amount, brought by the deputy against the administrator of G., that the sheriff had no interest in the event of the action, and was a competent witness under this section. Allen v. Gilkey, 86 N. C. 65.

A partner in intestate's firm may not testify as to transactions or communications with intestate in an action by brokers against the estate on a claim for commissions and advancements. Fenner v. Tucker, 213 N. C. 419, 196 S. E. 357.

Testimony as to Partnership Transaction by Nonmember of Firm.—Where the defendant's liability depends upon whether he was a member of the defendant partnership at the time the firm contracted a debt, which is the subject of the action, with the plaintiff who has since died and whose administrator has been made a party to the action, a witness who was not a member of the firm is not such person interested in the result as would exclude his direct testimony, under the provisions of this section as to the payment to his own knowledge by the deceased of the partnership debts. Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

Stockholder's Interest in Recovery on Contract of Sale.—Where defendant's intestate made two separate contracts with the holders of stock in a corporation to purchase their respective holdings, in an action by one of the stockholders to recover on the contract of sale the other testified that he had no claim against the estate on his contract. It was held the witness was not interested in the event, and his testimony as to transaction between decedent and plaintiff as to the contract of sale of plaintiff's stock was competent under this section. Winborne v. McMahan, 206 N. C. 30, 31, 173 S. E. 278.

In caveat proceedings propounders and caveators are "parties interested in the event" within the meaning of this section. In re Brown, 203 N. C. 347, 166 S. E. 72.

The interest of one who temporarily held the title to the lands in dispute prior to the defendant is a sufficient interest in the event to disqualify his testimony as to a conversation or transaction with the plaintiff's deceased predecessor in title. Dill-Cramer-Truitt Corp. v. Downs, 201 N. C. 478, 160 S. E. 492.

In this case, testimony of an endorser of a note, as to conversations with the payee's agent, now dead, showing the consideration which induced the endorsement, is not excluded under this section, the agent not being a party interested in the event within the meaning of the statute for, although the agent guaranteed all notes to the payee, if there was a failure of consideration the payee could hold neither of the guarantors and had the endorser been liable he could not have recovered from the agent. American Agr. Chemical Co. v. Griffin, 204 N. C. 559, 169 S. E. 152.

Effect of Insolvency of Deceased.—In an action involving the validity of a deed of trust, where the trustor is dead and his estate insolvent, the son of the trustor is a competent witness as to his declarations concerning the trust; the disqualification of the son under this section is removed by the insolvency of his father's estate, for there is nothing for the children in any event of the action. Gidney v. Logan, 79 N. C. 214.

Holder of Insurance Policy.—A policy holder in a mutual life insurance company is not disqualified as "interested in the event of the action" to testify for the company suing to cancel another policy. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Leaks-ville Woolen Mills, 172 N. C. 534, 90 S. E. 574. See also Gwaltney v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 132 N. C. 925, 44 S. E. 659; Gwaltney v. Provident Sav. Life Assur. Soc., 134 N. C. 552, 47 S. E. 122.

Agreement to Bequeath Property in Consideration of Services.—Where the plaintiff, in her own right and as administratrix of her mother, seeks to recover upon an alleged contract made by her mother and another person now deceased, under which her mother performed services to such other person under his agreement that he would devise and bequeath to her all of his property, it is incompetent for the plaintiff to testify to communications or transactions between her mother and such other person tending to establish her demand, for she is a party interested, within the contemplation of the statute. Brown v. Adams, 174 N. C. 490, 93 S. E. 989.

Agreement as to Disputed Boundary.—Testimony of a party interested in the result of the action that the deceased predecessor of the common source of title of the parties had agreed as to the boundary of the lands in dispute preliminary to making the deeds, that the deceased had the lands surveyed and that the witness saw the deceased mark the boundary claimed by him as controlling the description given in the deeds later made, is that of a transaction or communication prohibited by this section. Poole v. Russell, 197 N. C. 246, 148 S. E. 242.

C. Persons Deriving Title or Interest Through Two Preceding Classes.

In General.—The words of this section "derives its interest or title by assignment or otherwise" mean—gets from a source—some person, through or under one or more persons, successively, directly or indirectly, immediately or mediately, "his interest or title," any valuable interest in part or share of something real or personal, of whatever nature, whether legal or equitable, acquired by assignment, or by any other means, or in any other manner. Carey v. Carey, 104 N. C. 171, 10 S. E. 156.

It should be noted, however, that interest must be present and not speculative. So it has been held that a husband is not disqualified by interest from testifying in his wife's behalf in her action to recover for services rendered a deceased person, the possibilities of his being benefited by her will or in case of her intestacy being too remote. McCurry v. Purgason, 170 N. C. 463, 87 S. E. 244.

When deceased has had no interest in lands, but was simply an assignee, evidence of his declarations is admissible as no claim of title is made under him. Condor v. Secret, 149 N. C. 201, 62 S. E. 921.

Attorney.—The fact that an attorney has had an interest in the event of a suit on account of the fee taxed does not disqualify him under this section. Syme v. Broughton, 85 N. C. 367. Nor is an attorney of one of the parties precluded from testifying for his client concerning the agreement. Propst v. Fisher, 104 N. C. 214, 10 S. E. 295, cited in note in 49 L. R. A. 426.

Testimony of Grantee of Deceased Debtor.—In an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, evidence of the brother of the immediate grantee of the deceased debtor was held incompetent as in favor of their sister, claiming title under the witness, the validity of which title was affected by the testimony. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688.

Suits by Plaintiff against Surety.—See post, this note, "When the Disqualification Exists," III.

Trustee.—In an action by trustors against a trustee to compel an accounting for the proceeds of a foreclosure sale the incompetency of the trustor to testify as to transactions between himself and the deceased cestui que trust must be predicated upon the assumption that trustee under the deed of trust derived his "title or interest from, through or under" the cestui, and furthermore that it is this interest which is attacked. Garrett v. Stadiem, 220 N. C. 654, 659, 18 S. E. (2d) 178.

III. WHEN THE DISQUALIFICATION EXISTS.

Editor's Note.—Continuing the treatment as based upon Mr. Justice Clark's resume of this section, it is proper at this place to consider the circumstances which render incompetent the testimony of the witness who comes within one or more of the three classes of persons who are disqualified by the provision of this section. It will be seen from the outline given under the analysis line "General Consideration," that the testimony of such witness is excluded in two cases, (1) when he testifies in behalf of himself, or the person succeeding to his title or interest, and (2) when the testimony is against the representative of a deceased person, or any one deriving his title or interest through him. The following cases will illustrate the principles upon which the exclusion of the testimony falling within one or both of these two subdivisions is founded. They appear in the order as stated in the outline.

Party Testifying against Interest.—Under this section a witness may testify against his own interest, even if thereby other parties to the suit are injuriously affected and the disqualification applies only when a witness testifies in his own behalf. In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 223, 39 S. E. 956.

In proceedings to caveat a will, an heir at law who would receive more as a beneficiary under the will if it is not set aside may testify to declarations made by the testator after its execution which are competent to show that it was obtained by fraud and undue influence; and such testimony, being against the interests of the witness, is not prohibited by this section. In re will of Fowler, 159 N. C. 203, 74 S. E. 117; In re Worth's Will, 129 N. C. 223, 39 S. E. 956.

In an action to declare a deed void on the ground that it was never delivered to the grantee, since deceased, testimony offered by the grantor tending to show that the deed had not been delivered is not incompetent under this section. Gulley v. Smith, 203 N. C. 274, 165 S. E. 710.

Contradicting Former Witness.—A defendant having an interest in the event of an action is not permitted under this section to testify in his own behalf, for the purpose of contradicting a former witness whose testimony tended to show that the defendant fraudulently procured an assignment from a person deceased. Bushee v. Surles, 77 N. C. 62.

Testifying in Favor of Representative.—Where a witness was not asked to testify against the representative or assignee of a dead person as to any transaction or communication between himself and the person deceased, but in favor of such a representative, the testimony being offered by the party to the suit who represented the dead person, it was held that such testimony does not fall within the inhibition of this section, which is intended to protect the deceased person's representative or assignee, who is suing or being sued. Bonner v. Stotesbury, 139 N. C. 3, 51 S. E. 781.

Representative Not a Party.—It is competent for a plaintiff, as a witness for himself, to testify where the representative of the deceased was not a party to the suit. Thomas v. Kelly, 74 N. C. 174.

Trustor as Witness.—Where a deed of trust was attacked for fraud, the trustee having died, and the property having been conveyed by a substituted trustee to the defendants, the trustor is not excluded by this section from being a witness for the plaintiff, who also claimed title through him. Isler v. Dewey, 67 N. C. 93.

Suits against Sureties.—Where the plaintiff sues the surety, and proposes to testify as to transactions between himself and the deceased principal of the surety, an interesting question arises which has been answered by the courts of North Carolina in a masterful manner. Is this testimony to be excluded and if so upon what grounds? In order to render the witness incompetent, the testimony must be against "the executor, administrator or survivor of a deceased person or a person deriving his title or interest from" such deceased person. From a cursory view of this problem it would seem that the testimony is not against the principal or his executor, administrator, etc., but when the rule of law, which gives the surety an action over against the representative of the principal, is recalled this view must be abandoned. It would seem that where the testimony affects the estate either directly or indirectly (i. e. giving rise to a right of subrogation against it) such testimony must be excluded.

In McGowan v. Davenport, 134 N. C. 526, 47 S. E. 27, Mr. Justice Walker in an illuminating opinion discussing this subject, says: "The rule to be deduced from these authorities is that the surety, who comes not within the letter but within the intentment of the law, stands in the same position and is entitled to the same protection under section 590 of the Code as the representative on his deceased principal when sued."

Conversation before Death of One of Contracting Parties Admissible.—A witness is not incompetent, under this section, to testify to a conversation had with two persons, one of whom is dead at the time of the trial, in reference to a contract made between them and the witness. Peacock v. Stott, 90 N. C. 518.

Partnership.—The death of one of the partners in a firm will not incapacitate the witness from proving a transaction with the firm while the other partner, who was present at the interview, is living. Peacock v. Stott, 90 N. C. 518.

Where the conversation is not strictly with the intestate, but is one held with him and two others who were associated with him in the transaction, then the provisions of this section do not incapacitate the party from testifying. Johnson v. Townsend, 117 N. C. 338, 340, 23 S. E. 271.

Testimony of Third Parties Present.—This section makes no exception where other parties are present but leaves these witnesses to be called by either, and their testimony to come before the jury and be considered by itself, its credit unaffected by the testimony of the interested party. MacRae v. Molley, 90 N. C. 521, 524.

The administrator of a deceased guardian is a competent witness to prove the execution to said guardian by a debtor of a bond for the payment of money, such testimony not being against the representatives of a deceased person. Thompson v. Humphrey, 83 N. C. 416.

IV. SUBJECT MATTER OF THE TRANSACTION.

Not Applicable unless Transaction Is Personal.—Under this section the parties in interest are disqualified from testifying only as to personal transactions with the deceased. For instance, such party could testify that a paper writing was in the handwriting of the deceased, as will be seen from the catchline "Proof of Handwriting" following in this note, or as to any independent fact which was neither a transaction nor communication with the testator. McCall v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 598, 600, 8 S. E. 225; Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 32 S. E. 381; Davidson v. Bardin, 139 N. C. 1, 51 S. E. 779.

This section does not preclude a witness from testifying to independent facts and circumstances within her observation and knowledge or from giving evidence of what she saw or heard take place between the deceased and another or others, not involving personal transactions between herself and the deceased. Collins v. Lamb, 215 N. C. 719, 2 S. E. (2d) 863.

Testimony of an interested witness as to independent facts and circumstances, within his own knowledge, or as to what he saw or heard take place between deceased and a third party, is not rendered incompetent by this section, since in such instances the testimony does not relate to a personal transaction or communication between the witness and deceased, and appellant's exceptions to the admission of such testimony are not sustained. Wilder v. Medlin, 215 N. C. 542, 2 S. E. (2d) 549.

Test as to When Transaction Is "Personal."—A fair test in undertaking to ascertain what is a "personal transaction or communication" with the deceased is to inquire whether, in case the witness testifies falsely, the deceased, if living, could contradict it of his own knowledge. Sherrill v. Wilhelm, 182 N. C. 673, 675, 110 S. E. 95.

Driving of Car Is "Transaction" within Meaning of Statute.—Where the only evidence of negligence in an action by the wife of the driver to recover for injuries sustained in an automobile accident was her testimony that he was traveling at an excessive speed upon a curve, and that the accident occurred when the car failed to make the curve, and that she had spoken to him in regard to the speed he was driving the car, the driving of the car was a transaction within the meaning of the term as used in this section and her testimony of his manner of driving and her statement to him regarding the speed was incompetent under this section, her testimony of the transaction and communication being an essential or material link in the chain establishing liability of the estate to her. Boyd v. Williams, 207 N. C. 30, 175 S. E. 832.

In an action against an administrator to recover for personal injuries, plaintiff's testimony that he was unable to drive a car and that at the time of the accident he and one other person were in the car, when taken in connection with other evidence tending to show that intestate was such other person and customarily drove the car, was within the prohibition of this section, as being of a transaction with a deceased person material in establishing liability on the part of the estate. Davis v. Pearson, 220 N. C. 163, 16 S. E. (2d) 655.

Transaction Must Be Exclusive Source of Knowledge.—In order to exclude testimony under this provision, it must be made to appear that the knowledge of the witness was derived from a personal transaction with the deceased person. Thompson v. Onley, 96 N. C. 9, 1 S. E. 620. And it is proper to show whether the witness had knowledge of the fact testified to, from sources extraneous to his personal communications or relations with the deceased. Charlotte Oil, etc., Co. v. Rippey, 123 N. C. 626, 31 S. E. 879.

Facts Occurring Out of Presence of Deceased.—A witness who offered to prove a fact which occurred out of the presence of, and which was in no sense a transaction with, a deceased person is not incompetent under this section. It is only when the transaction is between the deceased and the living party that the statute prohibits the latter from testifying. Lockhart v. Bell, 86 N. C. 443.

Substantive Facts.—In an action in the nature of a creditor's bill, testimony of the deceased debtor's grantee that the deceased grantor occupied the building part of the time after she got her deed to the land in litigation was held admissible as being to a substantive fact of which she had knowledge independently of any statement by the deceased. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688.

The rule may be deduced, therefore, that a party in interest may testify to any substantive fact which is independent of any transaction or communication with the deceased or is based upon independent knowledge not derived from such source. Sutton v. Wells, 175 N. C. 1, 94 S. E. 688. See also In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 98 S. E. 378; Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, etc., 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Conversation of Deceased with Living Defendant.—This section does not apply to the testimony of an interested witness as to a conversation between her deceased father and a living defendant. This is not testimony "concerning a personal transaction." Abernathy v. Skidmore, 190 N. C. 66, 128 S. E. 475.

Testimony Given in Former Trial.—It is competent for the plaintiff's witness to testify what the deceased maker of the note sued upon testified on a former trial as to its payment, such not being a personal transaction within the meaning of the provisions of this section. Worth v. Wrenn, 144 N. C. 656, 657, 57 S. E. 388; Costen v. McDowell, 107 N. C. 546, 12 S. E. 432.

Proof of Handwriting.—A party interested in the event of a suit is not an incompetent witness, under this section, to prove the handwriting of the deceased person. Rush v. Steed, 91 N. C. 226; Hussey v. Kirkman, 95 N. C. 63, 65; Armfield v. Colvert, 103 N. C. 147, 9 S. E. 461; Sawyer v. Grady, 113 N. C. 42, 18 S. E. 79; Lister v. Lister, 222 N. C. 555, 24 S. E. (2d) 342.

These decisions are based on the distinction which is drawn between proving the handwriting and proving the actual signing of the paper, the latter being held to be a transaction within the meaning of this section while the former is not. A similar distinction was drawn in the case of State v. Maxwell, 64 N. C. 313, the case having been decided prior to the insertion of the word "personal" before the word "transaction." In the Rush Case the court regards this amendment as the legislative recognition of the soundness of this distinction and says that it (the amendment) was "probably induced by the decision in State v. Maxwell."—Ed. Note. ¶

Will Cases.—In Cox v. Beaufort County Lumber Co., 124 N. C. 78, 82, 32 S. E. 381, it is held that this section does not apply to wills, but that they are governed by sections 31-9 and 31-10; this was placed on the ground that this section applies where there is necessarily a contract or agreement between the parties, and in the case of a will there is ordinarily no transactions between the parties.

By the same reasoning it is held that attesting a will is not a "personal transaction," the witness being of the law and not of the party. Vester v. Collins, 101 N. C. 114, 7 S. E. 687. Again, a beneficiary may testify as to the leaving of a holograph will with her for safe keeping. McEvan v. Brown, 176 N. C. 249, 97 S. E. 20. Or to the fact that when a will was opened it contained certain erasures and that they were not made by him. In re Will of Saunders, 177 N. C. 156, 98 S. E. 378.

Circumstances may arise, however, in which the person interested as a beneficiary may attempt to testify as to personal transactions or conversations with the deceased and this testimony would, of course, be excluded. But the rule of exclusion does not apply, as may be inferred from the preceding cases, as to facts of which the witness had knowledge by means other than by personal transactions with the deceased. So the rule does exclude the witness from testifying as to the identity of certain papers as being those which he had previously seen in the testator's presence; nor to the fact that it was the same "will," when only for the purpose and effect of the identification of the sheets in question. In re Will of Mann, 192 N. C. 248, 134 S. E. 649.

Under this section a party interested in the result of the action is incompetent to testify to declaration of the deceased, whose will is under attack, when the issue is as to undue influence. In re Will of Platt, 211 N. C. 451, 190 S. E. 717.

Mental Capacity of Deceased Formed from Conversation.—Where a witness testifies to the want of mental capacity in a grantor to take a deed, and that his opinion was formed from conversation and communication between the witness and grantor, it was held competent to prove the facts upon which such opinion was founded, the provisions of this section not applying as the subject was not a "transaction" within its meaning. McLeary v. Norment, 84 N. C. 235; Rakestraw v. Pratt, 160 N. C. 436, 76 S. E. 259.

Services of Physician.—Testimony by a physician, the plaintiff, that he attended the deceased as such, for which he had an account against him, of the number of visits, sum due therefor, etc., is incompetent as being "personal" transactions with the deceased, prohibited by this section. Knight

v. Everett, 152 N. C. 118, 67 S. E. 328; Dunn v. Currie, 141 N. C. 123, 53 S. E. 533.

Sale of Property by Guardian.—It is competent for the plaintiff to prove the sale of his property by his guardian as this is not a personal transaction within the meaning of this section. State v. Osborne, 67 N. C. 259.

Testimony as to Placement of Deed.—This section does not exclude testimony that the witness saw the decedent place the deed, under which the witness claims, in a trunk as it does not involve a communication or transaction with him. Carroll v. Smith, 163 N. C. 204, 79 S. E. 497; Cornelius v. Brawley, 109 N. C. 542, 548, 14 S. E. 78.

In a proceeding for dower, the decision of the question whether the plaintiff left her husband's home of her own volition or by reason of what the law will recognize as compulsion, is an inquiry that does not necessarily involve a transaction or communication with her husband which disqualifies her under this section. Hicks v. Hicks, 142 N. C. 231, 55 S. E. 106.

Claim That Intestate Was Holder in Due Course.—Where the administrator of the deceased claims that his intestate was a holder of a negotiable instrument in due course for value, and relies upon his intestate's possession to make out a prima facie case, it is not a personal transaction or communication with the deceased, prohibited by statute, for it may be shown in rebuttal that after maturity it was seen in the possession of another claimant of the title. Price Real Estate, etc., Co. v. Jones, 191 N. C. 176, 131 S. E. 587.

Evidence of the declarations of a deceased partner tending to show that the deceased partner made an agreement with plaintiff that check given for a disputed account and marked thereon "balance on account" was not to be taken as full settlement is incompetent as a transaction or communication with a deceased person prohibited by this section. Walston v. Coppersmith, 197 N. C. 407, 149 S. E. 381.

Sale of Interest in Partnership.—This section does not apply to a transaction between living persons by which one of them sold to the other his interest in a firm of which the decedent was the other partner. Brantley v. Marshbourn, 166 N. C. 527, 82 S. E. 959.

Bailment.—The burden is on plaintiff to show the contract of bailment sued on, whether express or implied, by competent evidence, and the fact that the alleged bailee is dead, rendering incompetent testimony as to any transaction or communication with him to establish the bailment, is not a circumstance to be considered in passing upon the sufficiency of the evidence actually presented. Troxler v. Bevil, 215 N. C. 640, 3 S. E. (2d) 8.

Settlement of Estate.—Testimony relating to an agreement between administrator and distributee in regard to the settlement of an estate was incompetent in an action by distributee's administrator to recover assets. Wilder v. Medlin, 215 N. C. 542, 2 S. E. (2d) 549.

Possession of stock, see Jones v. Walldroup, 217 N. C. 178, 7 S. E. (2d) 366.

V. EXCEPTIONS.

Similar Evidence Previously Introduced.—This section does not apply where evidence, similar to that which is being introduced, has previously been introduced and the door has been opened to the objecting party. Davidson v. West Oxford Land Co., 126 N. C. 704, 708, 36 S. E. 162.

Grounds for Exceptions.—The rule of exclusion, if left absolute in form, might in certain cases, it was thought, work unequally, and therefore the exception was inserted to make it fair and just in its operation. There is nothing inequitable in requiring that the opposing testimony to that given in evidence by the other side should be limited to the same transaction or communication. It could not be otherwise without opening the door much wider than the necessity of the particular case justified. Pope v. Pope, 176 N. C. 283, 287, 96 S. E. 1034. Where the testimony, of a deceased adverse party has been given and is available, the reason for the exclusion rule ceases. Phillips v. Intestate Land Co., 174 N. C. 542, 94 S. E. 12.

In order to "open the door" for the admission of evidence of transactions or communications with a deceased person, prohibited by this section, such evidence must relate to the particular subject-matter of the evidence testified to by the adverse party, or the same transaction, and the door is not necessarily opened to all transactions or fact situations growing out of the controversy. Walston v. Coppersmith, 197 N. C. 407, 149 S. E. 381.

Limitation of the Exception.—Where the door is opened to the opposing party to testify for himself, he can testify only as to those particular transactions and communications to which the testimony of the deceased person or his representative was pertinent. Summer v. Candler, 92 N. C. 634.

Illustrations.—Where the defendant executor has testified as to certain matters relating to the identification of certain letters the deceased had written upon the question of whether he should be held liable as a partner for the debts of a firm, it is competent for the plaintiff's witness to testify in the plaintiff's behalf, as to other matters relating thereto and tending to fix the deceased with liability as a partner, under the principle that when the defendant has himself "opened the door by his own evidence" the plaintiff may testify as to the completed transaction, and this section prohibiting testimony as to transaction, etc., with a deceased person, does not apply. Herring v. Ipock, 187 N. C. 459, 121 S. E. 758.

It is incompetent as a transaction with a deceased person for the plaintiff to testify as to personal services rendered to the deceased as coming within her demand for damages. Pulliam v. Hoge, 192 N. C. 459, 135 S. E. 288. The court said: "We do not think the defendant 'opened the door' by asking the plaintiff for an explanation as to why she had changed the amount at her demand." Id.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Effect of Failure to Object.—Objections to the competency of testimony must be taken in due time; if not, they are waived. Therefore, where a party was allowed to testify, upon examination in chief, to a conversation between himself and the defendant's testator, and during the cross-examination the defendant objected to the competency of such testimony and asked that it might be excluded, it was held that, although incompetent, the objection to its reception came too late. Meroney v. Avery, 64 N. C. 312. Where a general objection as to witness' competency was overruled, and afterwards no specific objection was made to his testimony as to transactions with the decedent, the objection will be deemed waived. Norris v. Stewart, 105 N. C. 455, 10 S. E. 912, 18 Am. St. Rep. 917.

The objection will not be considered unless so specific as to show that the evidence is objectionable. Perkins v. Berry, 103 N. C. 131, 9 S. E. 621. The incompetency must appear at the time of the objection to the evidence, so that the court may pass intelligently upon the objection. Harris v. Harris, 178 N. C. 7, 100 S. E. 125.

When Admission of Evidence Harmless.—The erroneous admission of evidence of transactions with deceased persons prohibited by this section becomes immaterial when from the answers by the jury to the issues it appears that this evidence was disregarded by them. Ray v. Ray, 175 N. C. 290, 95 S. E. 550.

Determination on Appeal of Relevancy of Testimony.—Where testimony of transactions or communications with a decedent is properly excluded as irrelevant to the issue, its competency or incompetency under this section will not be determined on appeal. Pendleton v. Spencer, 205 N. C. 179, 170 S. E. 637.

§ 8-52. Communications between attorney and client.—In cases where fraud upon the state is charged it shall not be a sufficient cause to excuse any one from imparting any evidence or information legally required of him, because he came into the possession of such evidence or information by his position as counsel or attorney before the consummation of such fraud, and any person refusing for such cause to answer any question when legally required so to do shall be guilty of contempt, and punished at the discretion of the court or other body demanding such information: Provided, that it shall not be competent to introduce any admissions thus made on the trial of any persons making the same. (Rev., s. 1620; Code, s. 1349; 1874-5, c. 213; C. S. 1797.)

Statutory Exception.—This section, providing that communications to counsel, in cases of fraud where the State is concerned, are not privileged, constitutes a statutory exception to the general rule privileging communications made to an attorney where the relation of attorney and client exists. Hughes v. Boone, 102 N. C. 137, 159, 9 S. E. 286.

§ 8-53. Communications between physician and patient.—No person, duly authorized to practice physic or surgery, shall be required to disclose any information which he may have acquired in attending a patient in a professional character, and which information was necessary to enable him to prescribe for such patient as a physician, or to do any act for him as a surgeon: Provided, that the presiding judge of a superior court may compel such disclosure, if in his opinion the same is necessary to a proper administration of justice. (Rev., s. 1621; 1885, c. 159; C. S. 1798.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 326; 16 N. C. Law Rev. 53.

In General.—The principle by which a physician may not be compelled to divulge communications and other matters which have come to his knowledge by observation of his patient is regulated by statute, and under the provisions of this section, the privilege is qualified, and it rests within the discretion of the trial judge, in the administration of justice, to compel the physician, called as a witness, to testify to such matters when relevant to the inquiry. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

If the statements were privileged under this section, then in the absence of a finding by the presiding judge, duly entered upon the record, that the testimony was necessary to a proper administration of justice, it was incompetent, and upon defendant's objection should have been excluded. Sawyer v. Weskett, 201 N. C. 500, 501, 160 S. E. 575.

What Information Included.—It is the accepted construction of this statute that it extends, not only to information orally communicated by the patient, but to knowledge obtained by the physician or surgeon through his own observation or examination while attending the patient in a professional capacity, and which was necessary to enable him to prescribe. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Gartside v. Ins. Co., 76 Mo. 446; Dilleber v. Ins. Co., 69 N. Y. 256. See Crech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 658, 191 S. E. 840.

Relationship of Physician and Patient Must Exist.—The admissions of one accused of crime are not rendered confidential within the meaning of the law when made to a psychiatrist examining him by order of the court in order to form an opinion as to whether the defendant had sufficient capacity to be in law guilty of crime, since, under the circumstances of this case, the relationship of physician and patient did not exist, and this section is not applicable. State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 187.

Privilege May Be Waived.—The privilege given by this section is for the benefit of the patient alone, and it may be insisted on or waived at his discretion, subject to the exceptions included in the section. Smith v. Roper Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 62, 64, 60 S. E. 717; Fuller v. Knights of Pythias, 129 N. C. 318, 40 S. E. 65. See Crech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 658, 191 S. E. 840.

Judge's Finding of Record that Testimony Necessary.—Before a physician may testify to matters arising in his confidential relationship with his patient, our statute requires that the trial judge find that in his opinion such testimony is "necessary to a proper administration of justice," and in the absence of such finding appearing of record on appeal, it is reversible error for the trial judge upon defendant's exception to admit testimony of the insured's physician tending to show that the insured in his application for life insurance had made misstatements of material facts that would avoid the insurer's liability in his suit to cancel the policy issued thereon. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Boddie, 194 N. C. 199, 139 S. E. 228. See Crech v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 658, 191 S. E. 840.

§ 8-54. Defendant in criminal action competent but not compellable to testify.—In the trial of all indictments, complaints, or other proceedings against persons charged with the commission of crimes, offenses or misdemeanors, the person so charged is, at his own request, but not otherwise, a competent witness, and his failure to make such request shall not create any presumption against him. But every such person examined as a witness shall be subject to cross examination as other witnesses. Except as above provided, nothing in this section shall render any person, who in any criminal proceeding is charged with the commission of a criminal offense, competent or compellable to give evidence against himself, nor render any person compellable to answer any question tending to criminate himself. (Rev., ss. 1634, 1635; Code, ss. 1353, 1354; 1881, c. 89, s. 3; 1881, c. 110, ss. 2, 3; 1856-7, c. 23; 1866, c. 43, s. 3; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 4; C. S. 1799.)

Cross References.—See also, the North Carolina Const., Art. I, § 11. As to provision in preliminary examination, see § 15-89. As to exceptions, i. e., where witness is not excused from testifying on ground that testimony will tend to incriminate him, see §§ 1-357, 14-354, 14-38, 18-8, 18-27.

For article discussing the limits to self-incrimination, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 229.

Common-law disqualification removed by this section. State v. Howard, 222 N. C. 291, 22 S. E. (2d) 917.

Privilege and Not a Duty.—A defendant in a criminal matter can only be examined as a witness by his own request. State v. Ellis, 97 N. C. 447, 2 S. E. 525.

Treated as Other Witnesses.—When the defendant exercises this privilege he is treated just as any other witness and thereby subjects himself to all the disadvantages of that position. State v. Effer, 85 N. C. 585; State v. Hawkins, 115 N. C. 712, 715, 20 S. E. 623.

Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution testifies in his own behalf he waives his constitutional privilege not to answer questions tending to incriminate him and is subject to cross-examination for the purpose of impeaching his credibility as other witnesses. State v. Griffin, 201 N. C. 541, 160 S. E. 826.

Extent of Cross Examination Permitted.—Cross examination of a defendant under this section is not confined to matters brought out on direct examination, but questions are admissible to impeach, diminish or impair the credit of the witness. State v. Dickerson, 189 N. C. 327, 127 S. E. 256.

Testimony May Be Used in Subsequent Trial.—Where a defendant, in a prosecution for another crime, testified in his own behalf, after having been informed of his privilege not to testify, admissions made by him are competent evidence against him in a subsequent trial. State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567.

Failure to Take Stand.—The failure of the prisoner charged with homicide to take the witness-stand voluntarily will not create a presumption against him. State v. Bynum, 175 N. C. 777, 95 S. E. 101.

Court need not charge that failure of defendant to testify should not be considered against him in absence of request. State v. Jordan, 216 N. C. 356, 5 S. E. (2d) 156.

Where defendant moved to set aside the verdict on ground that the jury, without defendant's consent, took into its room the complaint in a civil action relating to the subject matter of the prosecution, which had been admitted in evidence without objection, and typed notes of the argument of counsel for the prosecution containing reference to defendant's failure to testify, it was error to permit the jury to take such papers into the jury room and retain same while in its deliberations, and defendant's motion to set aside the verdict should have been allowed. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 258, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

Same—How Far Subject to Comment.—The introduction or non-introduction of a party as a witness in his own behalf should be the subject of comment only as the introduction or non-introduction of any other witness might be. Goodman v. Sapp, 102 N. C. 477, 9 S. E. 483.

"It is the privilege, but not the duty, of a party to an action to offer himself as a witness in his own behalf, and he is not the proper subject for unfriendly criticism because he declines to exercise a privilege conferred upon him for his own benefit merely. The fact is not the subject of comment at all, certainly not unless under very peculiar circumstances, which must be necessarily passed upon by the judge presiding at the trial, as a matter of sound discretion." Gragg v. Wagner, 77 N. C. 246.

General Character Can Be Shown.—When a prosecutor or defendant in a criminal action goes upon the stand as a witness he becomes just as any other witness, and his general character can be proven, not only as it was before a charge affecting it was made, but as it is at the date he goes upon the stand. State v. Spurling, 118 N. C. 1250, 24 S. E. 533.

Same—Not in Issue unless So Placed.—Where a defendant goes on the witness stand and testifies, he does not thereby put his character in issue, but only puts his testimony in issue, and the State may introduce evidence tending to show the bad character of the witness solely for the purpose of contradicting him. State v. Cloninger, 149 N. C. 567, 63 S. E. 154; State v. Foster, 130 N. C. 666, 41 S. E. 284.

When defendant does not go upon the stand, and does not offer evidence of good character, his character is not in issue and it may not be impeached by the state. State v. Proctor, 213 N. C. 221, 195 S. E. 816.

Same—Where Introduced by Defendant.—When the defendant introduces evidence himself to prove his good character, then that evidence is substantive evidence, and may be considered by the jury as such. State v. Cloninger, 149 N. C. 567, 63 S. E. 154.

The right of the defendant to offer testimony of his good character does not depend upon his having been examined as a witness in his own behalf. State v. Hice, 117 N. C. 782, 23 S. E. 357.

"In declaring him to be 'a competent witness' we understand the statute to mean that he shall occupy the same position with any other witness, be under obligation to tell the truth, entitled to the same privileges, receive the same protection, and equally liable to be impeached or discredited  But by availing himself of the statute he assumes the position of a witness and subjects himself to all the disadvantages of that position, and his credibility is to be weighed and tested as that of any other witness." State v. Effer, 85 N. C. 585; State v. Traylor, 121 N. C. 674, 676, 28 S. E. 493.

Same—Put in Issue by State.—Where, in the trial of a criminal action, the defendant testifies in his own behalf and introduces no evidence as to his general character, but the State introduces evidence to show that such character is bad, it was held that such evidence by the State can be considered only as affecting the credibility of the defendant as a witness and not as a circumstance in determining the question of his guilt or innocence. State v. Traylor, 121 N. C. 674, 28 S. E. 493.

Where There Are Two or More Defendants.—Even prior to the enactment of this section on a trial for an affray one defendant could not oppose the testifying of his codefendant for himself, the State's counsel not objecting. State v. Hamlet, 85 N. C. 520.

Testifying as to Confessions.—The defendant in a criminal action is competent as a witness in his own defense upon the preliminary hearing of the trial judge, as to whether confessions he had made to the officers of the law were voluntarily made or induced from him contrary to law. State v. Whitener, 191 N. C. 659, 132 S. E. 603.

Admission before Magistrate.—Where a prisoner made certain confessions which were induced by hope, and therefore inadmissible, but a day or so after, upon his examination before a committing magistrate, he asked to be examined as a witness on his own behalf, when he admitted that he had made the confessions, but said that they were not true, it was held, that his evidence given before the magistrate was admissible against him, and it was for the jury to say whether they believed the confession, or that part of his evidence declaring that the confessions were not true. State v. Ellis, 97 N. C. 447, 2 S. E. 525.

Weight Given Testimony Is for Jury.—While the interpretations of this section require defendant's testimony to be scrutinized, it is the province of the jury to determine from his demeanor and the attending circumstances the weight which they will accord his testimony, and a charge of the court that "the law presumes" that he is naturally laboring under the temptation to testify to whatever he thinks may be necessary to clear himself and that the jury should take into consideration what a conviction would mean to defendant, etc., is held to impose a burden and cast a shadow upon his testimony greater than the law requires and to constitute reversible error. State v. Wilcox, 206 N. C. 691, 175 S. E. 122.

Constitutional Provision as to Self-Incrimination.—See N. C. Const., Art. I, Sec. 11, and notes thereto.

Erroneous Instructions.—While it is proper for the court to instruct the jury to scrutinize testimony of a defendant in a criminal prosecution because of his interest in the verdict, it is error for the court to fail to follow such instruction with a charge that if after such scrutiny the jury finds him worthy of belief they should give his testimony as full credit as they would that of any other witness. State v. Dee, 214 N. C. 509, 199 S. E. 730.

An instruction that the jury should scrutinize defendant's testimony in his own behalf because of his interest in the verdict, but if after doing so they were satisfied he told the truth, they should give his testimony the same weight they would give that of any "interested witness," perforce impeaches the testimony of defendant contrary to this section, and the pertinent decisions, and constitutes prejudicial error. Id.

Proper Instruction.—The court's remarks to the jury in instructing them that defendant was within his rights in not testifying, and that his failure to testify should not be considered against him, were held without error upon defendant's exception. State v. Horne, 209 N. C. 725, 184 S. E. 470.

Cited in State v. Colson, 194 N. C. 206, 139 S. E. 230; State v. Spivey, 198 N. C. 655, 656, 153 S. E. 255; State

v. McLeod, 198 N. C. 649, 650, 152 S. E. 895; State v. Vernon, 208 N. C. 340, 180 S. E. 590; York v. York, 212 N. C. 695, 194 S. E. 486.

§ 8-55. Testimony enforced in certain criminal investigations; immunity.—If any justice of the peace, magistrate of police, mayor of a town, or judge of the supreme or superior courts shall have good reason to believe that any person within his jurisdiction has knowledge of the existence and establishment of any faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table prohibited by law, or of any place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, in any town or county within his jurisdiction, such person not being minded to make voluntary information thereof on oath, then it shall be lawful for such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor, or judge to issue to the sheriff of the county or to any constable of the town or township in which such faro-bank, faro-table, gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law is supposed to be, a subpoena, capias ad testificandum, or other summons in writing, commanding such person to appear immediately before such justice of the peace, magistrate, mayor or judge and give evidence on oath as to what he may know touching the existence, establishment and whereabouts of such faro-bank, faro-table or other gaming table, or place where intoxicating liquors are sold contrary to law, and the name and personal description of the keeper thereof. Such evidence, when obtained, shall be considered and held in law as an information on oath, and the justice, magistrate, mayor or judge may thereupon proceed to seize and arrest such keeper and destroy such table, or issue process therefore as provided by law. No person shall be excused, on any prosecution, from testifying touching any unlawful gaming done by himself or others; but no discovery made by the witness upon such examination shall be used against him in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall be altogether pardoned of the offenses so done or participated in by him. (Rev., ss. 3721, 1637; Code, ss. 1215, 1050; R. C., c. 35, s. 50; 1858-9, c. 34, s. 1; 1889, c. 355; 1913, c. 141; C. S. 1800.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 18-27.

Section Constitutional.—This section is not unconstitutional by reason of the Fifth Amendment to Constitution of the United States, because it does not apply to the State; nor does it violate Article I, section 11, Constitution of North Carolina, for the reason that the said statute grants a pardon to the witness. In re Briggs, 135 N. C. 118, 47 S. E. 403.

Witness Compellable to Testify.—In a prosecution for gaming a witness may be compelled to testify, although his answer tends to criminate him, since he is pardoned for the offense. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—In an indictment for keeping a common gaming-house the use of the word "gaming" is sufficient. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

§ 8-56. Husband and wife as witnesses in civil actions.—In any trial or inquiry in any suit, action or proceeding in any court, or before any person having, by law or consent of parties, authority to examine witnesses or hear evidence, the husband or wife of any party thereto, or of any person in whose behalf any such suit, action or proceeding is brought, prosecuted, opposed or defended, shall, except as herein stated, be competent and compellable to give evidence, as any other witness on behalf of any party to such suit, action or proceeding. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence for or against the other in any action or proceeding in consequence of adultery, or in any action or proceeding for divorce on account of adultery (except to prove the fact of marriage); or in any action or proceeding for or on account of criminal conversation, except that in actions of criminal conversation brought by the husband in which the character of the wife is assailed she shall be a competent witness to testify in refutation of such charges. No husband or wife shall be compellable to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. (Rev., s. 1636; Code, s. 588; C. C. P., s. 341; 1866, c. 43, ss. 3, 4; 1919, c. 18; C. S. 1801.)

Cross References.—As to competency in criminal actions, see § 8-57 and notes thereto. See also, § 8-50.

Editor's Note.—For note on privileged communications between husband and wife, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 282.

In General.—Husbands and wives are competent and compellable to give evidence for or against each other, save only in the particular cases mentioned in the section. Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179, 181.

The provisions of this section are quite clear and self-explanatory. The legislative intent is apparent and little room is left for a judicial construction of the clauses herein contained. A few of the leading cases are sufficient to show that the decisions of the various cases arising hereunder have been predicated upon the section as actually worded, without any judicial inferences being drawn by the courts. —Ed. Note.

Section Does Not Render Voluntary Disclosure Incompetent.—This section means that neither shall be compelled to disclose any such confidential communication, but does not perforce render a voluntary disclosure thereof incompetent. Hagedorn v. Hagedorn, 211 N. C. 175, 178, 189 S. E. 507, citing Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N. C. 465, 149 S. E. 585.

Divorce for Adultery.—In divorce for alleged adultery, neither the husband nor the wife is a competent witness. Perkins v. Perkins, 88 N. C. 41; Horne v. Horne, 75 N. C. 101, 103.

Contradiction by Wife.—Under this section, a wife, sued for divorce for adultery, is competent to deny the evidence of witnesses that she was guilty of adultery with them. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 41 S. E. 673.

Same—Criminal Conversation.—In an action for criminal conversation wherein the husband has testified to immoral relations between his wife and the defendant, the wife is a competent witness for the defendant for the purpose of refuting the charges made against her character. Chestnut v. Sutton, 204 N. C. 476, 168 S. E. 680.

Confidential Communications Defined.—The confidential communications made between husband and wife which neither will be compelled to disclose, are those which are communicated "during their marriage." Whitford v. North State Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 223, 79 S. E. 501.

Same—Protected.—The confidential communications between husband and wife cannot, on the grounds of public policy, be admitted in evidence. State v. Britain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433.

In a suit in equity to set aside a judgment rendered in an action at law for fraud, letters from the plaintiff in the former action to his wife respecting fraud in that action are properly excluded when the letters are obtained by a third party with the consent of the wife, the letters being privileged communications and inadmissible against either the husband or the wife. McCoy v. Justice, 199 N. C. 602, 603, 155 S. E. 452.

Where a witness for the state has written a letter to his wife, and his wife, without his knowledge or consent, has given the letter to the defendant, the witness cannot be cross-examined relative to the letter in an attempt to prove bias. State v. Banks, 204 N. C. 233, 167 S. E. 851.

Applied, in action by husband for criminal conversation, in Rouse v. Creech, 203 N. C. 378, 166 S. E. 174. See State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dis. op.

§ 8-57. Husband and wife as witnesses in criminal actions.—The husband or wife of the defendant, in all criminal actions or proceedings, shall be a competent witness for the defendant, but the failure of such witness to be examined shall not be used to the prejudice of the defense. Every such person examined as a witness shall be subject to be cross-examined as are other witnesses. No husband or wife shall be compellable to disclose any confidential communication made by one to the other during their marriage. Nothing herein shall render any husband or wife competent or compellable to give evidence against each other in any criminal action or proceeding, except to prove the fact of marriage in case of bigamy, and except that in all criminal prosecutions of a husband for an assault and battery upon his wife, or for abandoning his wife, and/or his children, or for neglecting to provide for her support, and/or the support of his children, it shall be lawful to examine the wife in behalf of the state against the husband. (Rev., ss. 1634, 1635, 1636; Code, ss. 588, 1353, 1354; 1856-7, c. 23; 1866, c. 43; 1868-9, c. 209; 1881, c. 110; 1933, c. 13, s. 1; 1933, c. 361; C. S. 1802.)

Cross Reference.—As to competency in civil action, see § 8-56 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, cc. 13 and 361, added, near the end of this section, the words "and/or his children" following the word "wife" and the words "and/or the support of his children" following the word "support." For a criticism of this amendment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 231.

In General.—Under this section the husband or wife is a competent witness for the defendant in all criminal actions or proceedings. State v. Harbison, 94 N. C. 885. But neither is competent or compellable to give evidence against the other in any criminal proceeding. Id. See State v. Watson, 215 N. C. 387, 1 S. E. (2d) 886.

Under this section a wife is neither competent nor compellable to testify against her husband in a criminal proceeding, hence hearsay evidence of her declarations, not made in his presence or by his authority, which would be prejudicial to the husband, is inadmissible. State v. Reid, 178 N. C. 745, 101 S. E. 104.

See State v. Cotton, 218 N. C. 577, 12 S. E. (2d) 246.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Where the defendant husband is alleged to have stolen certain property, it is competent for him to introduce his wife as a witness to prove from what source he got the money to pay for such property, but unless he introduces her in proper time it rests within the discretion of the trial judge whether her testimony will be received. State v. Lemon, 92 N. C. 791, 793.

A wife cannot be compelled to testify against her husband in a criminal action; but when she takes the stand in his behalf, she is subject to cross-examination in the same manner and to the same extent as any other witness. State v. Tola, 222 N. C. 406, 23 S. E. (2d) 321.

Confidential Communication.—Testimony of a witness that at the time of the arrest of the defendant, by the officers of the law, his wife was present and said to him: "I told you that you would get into it if you did not stay with me like I wanted you to," to which he replied: "hush," is not a confidential communication between husband and wife within the contemplation of this section and may be testified to by the witness who was present and heard it, and is some evidence of guilt in connection with the other evidence in the case. State v. Freeman, 197 N. C. 376, 148 S. E. 450.

The confidential communications between husband and wife cannot, on the grounds of public policy, be admitted in evidence. State v. Brittain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433.

Husband May Testify against Wife in Assault.—Conversely to the rule enunciated in this section, that a wife may testify against her husband in actions for assault against her, it appears that a husband may testify in assaults by the wife against him, and this was so held. State v. Davidson, 77 N. C. 522; State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 919, 110 S. E. 59.

In case of assault and battery with intent to kill by poison, with evidence tending to show the previous threats of the wife, and that the poison was put into the food prepared by the daughter in her mother's presence at their home, and that the husband was poisoned from eating thereof, the testimony of the husband as to his wife's previous threats is not inadmissible under the provisions of this section, but is admissible for the purpose of showing knowledge and identifying the perpetrators of the crime, and is distinguishable from the rule that threats are ordinarily inadmissible on trials for assault and battery. State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 110 S. E. 59.

The rule that neither the husband nor wife is competent to testify against the other in criminal cases does not apply to proof of assault by the one upon the other. State v. French, 203 N. C. 632, 166 S. E. 747.

A wife under this section is not competent to testify against her husband in a prosecution for felonious burning and the admission of her testimony entitles him to a new trial. State v. Kluttz, 206 N. C. 726, 175 S. E. 81.

Failure of Wife to Appear and Testify.—The failure of the wife to be examined as a witness in behalf of a husband tried for a criminal offense, is expressly excluded as evidence to the husband's prejudice by this section, though she is competent to testify. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

Where the trial judge has properly excluded from the consideration by the jury testimony relating to the wife's failure to appear and testify in behalf of her husband on his trial for a homicide, the prisoner may not successfully complain of error on appeal in the failure of the trial judge to again instruct the jury thereon, when there has been no exception taken to the charge of the court or the refusal of any prayer for instruction on the subject. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

Where a prisoner's wife, on his trial for a homicide, has failed to appear and be examined in her husband's defense, and a witness has testified to facts relating thereto, before the trial judge has had opportunity to rule upon the prisoner's objection, the reading of this section by the trial judge to the jury, and his telling them they must not consider this failure of the wife to appear as evidence to the prisoner's prejudice, renders the error harmless, if any was committed. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

During the absence of the judge, the solicitor in his argument to the jury called the jury's attention to the fact that defendant's wife had not testified in his behalf, and persisted in the argument after objection by defendant's counsel. Upon its return, the court sustained the objection, and near the conclusion of its charge to the jury stated that the law did not permit such comment and that the jury should not let the argument influence it. Held: The solicitor's comment violates this section, and was prejudicial, and called for prompt peremptory and certain caution by the court not only that the argument should be disregarded but that the failure of defendant's wife to testify should not be considered to his prejudice, and the action of the court in merely sustaining the objection and the caution later given by the court near the conclusion of the charge is insufficient to free the case of prejudice. State v. Helms, 218 N. C. 592, 12 S. E. (2d) 243.

Threats.—In a homicide case, where there is a plea and evidence of self-defense, it is competent for defendant's wife to testify to a threat made by deceased against her husband, which she communicated to defendant before the killing. State v. Rice, 222 N. C. 634, 24 S. E. (2d) 483.

Abandonment of Wife.—Under this section the wife is a competent witness against her husband as to the fact of abandonment, or neglect to provide adequate support. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470.

Proof of Marriage.—The wife is competent to prove the fact of marriage under an indictment against her husband for abandonment. State v. Chester, 172 N. C. 946, 90 S. E. 697. The holding was otherwise under a former wording of the statute. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470.

Same—Bigamy.—In an indictment for bigamy the first wife of the defendant is a competent witness to prove the marriage, public cohabitation as man and wife being public acknowledgments of the relation and not coming within the nature of the confidential relations which the policy of the law forbids either to give in evidence. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933. See also State v. McDuffie, 107 N. C. 885, 890, 12 S. E. 83.

Adultery Prior to Marriage.—Where a man and woman are indicted for fornication and adultery, and a nol. pros. is entered as to the feme defendant, the husband of the woman is a competent witness to show adultery between the defendants committed before the marriage of the woman and the witness. State v. Wiseman, 130 N. C. 726, 41 S. E. 884.

Consolidation of Prosecutions against Husband and Wife.—Where husband and wife are separately indicted for the same homicide and the prosecutions are consolidated and tried together over their objections, and the wife's testimony, though admitted only as to her, is to the effect that her husband killed deceased and forced her, through fear, to confess and attempt to exculpate him, her testimony is necessarily inculpatory of the husband and impinges this section, and his motion for a mistrial and severance at the conclusion of the state's evidence should have been granted. State v. Cotton, 218 N. C. 577, 12 S. E. (2d) 246.

Competency of Divorced Parties.—A divorced husband is incompetent to testify against the divorced wife in the trial of an indictment against her for fornication and adultery which occurred prior to the divorce. State v. Raby, 121 N. C. 682, 28 S. E. 490.

Applied in State v. Perry, 210 N. C. 796, 188 S. E. 639, dissenting opinion.

§ 8-58. Wife may testify in applications for peace warrants.—The wife shall be competent to make affidavit and testify in applications for peace warrants against the husband. (1933, c. 13, s. 2.)

Art. 8. Attendance of Witness.

§ 8-59. Issue and service of subpoena.—In obtaining the testimony of witnesses in causes depending in the superior, criminal and inferior courts, the following rules shall be observed in practice, to wit:

In suits where witnesses are to appear at any court, the clerk at the instance of a party shall issue a subpoena, directed to the sheriff or other officer of the county where such witnesses reside, naming the time and place for their appearance, the names of the parties to the suit wherein the testimony is to be given, and the party at whose instance they are summoned. Every subpoena made returnable immediately shall be issued only in term time, and shall be personally served on the witness therein named. A copy of every subpoena issued by the clerk in vacation, in case any witness therein named is not to be found, may be left at his usual place of residence; and such copy certified by the sheriff or other officer, and left as aforesaid, shall be deemed a legal summons, and the person therein named shall be bound to appear in the same manner as if personally summoned. (Rev., s. 1639; Code, s. 1355; R. C., c. 31, s. 59; 1777, c. 115, s. 36; C. S. 1803.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of clerk to issue subpoena, see § 2-16.

§ 8-60. Attendance before referee or commissioners.—In all cases not otherwise provided for, when witnesses are required to attend any court, commission, referee, order of survey, or jury of view, a summons shall be issued by the clerk of the court, at the request of either party, naming the day and place when and where they are to appear, the names of the parties to the suit, and in whose behalf summoned. (Rev., s. 1640; Code, s. 1366; R. C., c. 31, s. 68; 1805, c. 685, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1804.)

§ 8-61. Subpoena duces tecum issued.—In all causes depending in any court, in which the production of an original paper, lodged in any of the public offices of the state, or in any office of any court, shall become necessary, the court may issue the process of subpoena duces tecum, requiring such persons who hold said offices to attend the court with such original paper, in like manner and under the same penalties as witnesses are required in cases of subpoena to testify. (Rev., s. 1641; Code, s. 1372; R. C., c. 31, s. 81; 1797, c. 476; C. S. 1805.)

depositions may be taken in the cause, and subpoenas for the attendance of witnesses and commissions to take depositions may issue from either of the said courts, under the same rules as if the cause had been originally commenced in the court from which the subpoenas or commissions issued. (Rev., s. 1642; Code, s. 1371; R. C., c. 31, s. 72; 1810, c. 787; 1832, c. 8; C. S. 1806.)

Cross Reference.—As to depositions generally, see § 8-71 et seq.

In General.—Until the transcript is deposited the removal is not consummated and the cause is not constituted so as to give full jurisdiction to the court to which the removal is ordered, hence to meet this situation the provision of this section gives to the clerk of either court the power to issue subpoenas for witnesses. Commissioners v. Lemly, 85 N. C. 342, 346.

Upon removal jurisdiction of the court from which the cause is removed ceases, unless otherwise provided in the order of removal, or by consent of the parties in writing, duly filed. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

This section, however, makes one exception to the general rule by allowing the subpoena to be issued from either court. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

Time for Depositing Transcript.—The party procuring the order of removal has until the term of the court to which the cause is removed to deposit his transcript. Fisher v. Cid Copper Min. Co., 105 N. C. 123, 10 S. E. 1055.

§ 8-63. Witnesses attend until discharged; effect of nonattendance.—Every witness, being summoned to appear in any of the said courts, in manner before directed, shall appear accordingly, and continue to attend from term to term until discharged, when summoned in a civil action or special proceeding, by the court or the party at whose instance such witness shall be summoned, or, when summoned in a criminal prosecution, until discharged by the court, the prosecuting officer, or the party at whose instance he was summoned; and in default thereof shall forfeit and pay, in civil actions or special proceedings, to the party at whose instance the subpoena issued, the sum of forty dollars, to be recovered by motion in the cause, and shall be further liable to his action for the full damages which may be sustained for the want of such witness's testimony; or if summoned in a criminal prosecution shall forfeit and pay eighty dollars for the use of the state, or the party summoning him. If the civil action or special proceeding shall, in the vacation, be compromised and settled between the parties, and the party at whose instance such witness was summoned should omit to discharge him from further attendance, and for want of such discharge he shall attend the next term, in that case the witness, upon oath made of the facts, shall be entitled to a ticket from the clerk in the same manner as other witnesses, and shall recover from the party at whose instance he was summoned the allowance which is given to witnesses for their attendance, with costs.

No execution shall issue against any defaulting witness for the forfeiture aforesaid but after notice made known to him to show cause against the issuing thereof; and if sufficient cause be shown of his incapacity to attend, execution shall not issue, and the witness shall be discharged of the forfeiture without costs; but otherwise the court shall, on motion, award execution for the forfeiture against the defaulting witness. (Rev.,

s. 1643; Code, s. 1356; R. C., c. 31, ss. 60, 61, 62; 1777, c. 115, ss. 37, 38, 43; 1799, c. 528; 1801, c. 591; C. S. 1807.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 6-51, 6-62.

Duty to Attend.—When a subpoena has been served on a witness, he is required by this section to attend from term to term until discharged. State v. Gwynn, 61 N. C. 445.

Non-Attendance Need Not Be Wilful.—This section does not require that the failure of the witness to attend should be "wilful." In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 247, 79 S. E. 507.

When Witness May Elect.—Where two subpoenas are served upon a witness, requiring his attendance on the same day at different places distant from each other, he is not bound to obey the writ which may have been first served, but may make his election between them. Icehour v. Martin, 44 N. C. 478.

Test of Inability to Attend.—In an early case, Eller v. Roberts, 25 N. C. 11, it was held that where a witness alleges that he was unable to attend court, this inability must be decided by reference to the modes of travelling which are in use in the community.

Where Service Had on Transient.—A witness, who is summoned in this State, while casually here, but who resides in another state, cannot be required to pay a forfeiture for non-attendance, if he has returned to his own state and is there at his domicile. Kinzey v. King, 28 N. C. 76.

Attorney Not Exempt.—A witness who fails to appear when the case is called in which he has been subpoenaed to testify is not justified in his default because he is a practicing attorney at law and has cases to try in another county at the date upon which the case was called wherein he was a witness, and the party who subpoenaed him can recover the penalty, with the costs of the motions. In re Pierce, 163 N. C. 247, 79 S. E. 507.

An issue in bastardy is not a "criminal prosecution" as to subject a defaulting witness to the fine of eighty dollars, prescribed by this section. Ward v. Bell, 52 N. C. 79.

§ 8-64. Witnesses exempt from civil arrest.—

Every witness shall be exempt from arrest in civil actions or special proceedings during his attendance at any court, or before a commissioner, arbitrator, referee or other person authorized to command the attendance of such witness, and during the time such witness is going to and returning from the place of such attendance, allowing one day for every thirty miles such witness has to travel to and from his place of residence. (Rev., s. 1644; Code, s. 1367; R. C., c. 31, s. 70; 1777, c. 115, s. 44; C. S. 1808.)

Common Law Rule Not Repealed.—This section does not serve to repeal the common law rule of exemption of witnesses from civil arrest. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 787, 29 S. E. 947.

Not Applicable to Criminal Proceeding.—The exemption of witnesses from civil arrest accorded by this section, and of nonresident parties and witnesses voluntarily attending court here, on grounds of public policy does not apply to parties arrested in criminal proceedings. White v. Underwood, 125 N. C. 26, 34 S. E. 104.

Procedure for Claiming Exemption.—Where a party has not been granted the exemption from service of summons (which the courts seem to have placed on the same plane as the exemption from civil arrest), his remedy is not a motion to dismiss the action, but a motion, on special appearance, to set aside the return of service. Dell School v. Pierce, 163 N. C. 424, 79 S. E. 687. This is because the service is not void but voidable. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 947.

Nonresident Attorney.—This section does not prevent service of summons on a nonresident attorney in this State to represent his clients in a matter pending in the federal court. Greenleaf v. Peoples Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

Art. 9. Attendance of Witnesses from without State.

§ 8-65. Definitions.—"Witness" as used in this article shall include a person whose testimony is desired in any proceeding or investigation by a grand jury or in a criminal action, prosecution or proceeding.

The word "state" shall include any territory of the United States and District of Columbia.

The word "summons" shall include a subpoena order or other notice requiring the appearance of a witness. (1937, c. 217, s. 1.)

See 15 N. C. Law Rev., No. 4, p. 345.

§ 8-66. Summoning witness in this state to testify in another state.—If a judge of a court of record in any state which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within that state to attend and testify in this state certifies, under the seal of such court, that there is a criminal prosecution pending in such court, or that a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, that a person being within this state is a material witness in such prosecution, or grand jury investigation, and that his presence will be required for a specified number of days, upon presentation of such certificate to any judge of a court of record in the county in which such person is, such judge shall fix a time and place for a hearing, and shall make an order directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing.

If at a hearing the judge determines that the witness is material and necessary, that it will not cause undue hardship to the witness to be compelled to attend and testify in the prosecution or a grand jury investigation in the other state, and that the laws of the state in which the prosecution is pending, or grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, and of any other state through which the witness may be required to pass by ordinary course of travel, will give to him protection from arrest and the service of civil and criminal process, he shall issue a summons, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to attend and testify in the court where the prosecution is pending, or where a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, at a time and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

If said certificate recommends that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting state to assure his attendance in the requesting state, such judge may, in lieu of notification of the hearing, direct that such witness be forthwith brought before him for said hearing; and the judge at the hearing, being satisfied of the desirability of such custody and delivery, for which determination the certificate shall be prima facie proof of such desirability may, in lieu of issuing subpoena or summons, order that said witness be forthwith taken into custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting state.

If the witness, who is summoned as above provided, after being paid or tendered by some properly authorized person the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending and five dollars for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state. (1937, c. 217, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of non-attendance of witness, see § 8-63.

§ 8-67. Witness from another state summoned to testify in this state.—If a person in any state which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within its borders to attend and testify in criminal prosecutions, or grand jury investigations commenced or about to commence in this state, is a material witness in a prosecution pending in a court of record in this state, or in a grand jury investigation which has commenced or is about to commence, a judge of such court may issue a certificate under the seal of the court, stating these facts and specifying the number of days the witness will be required. Said certificate may include a recommendation that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of this state to assure his attendance in this state. This certificate shall be presented to a judge of a court of record in the county in which the witness is found.

If the witness is summoned to attend and testify in this state he shall be tendered the sum of ten cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending, and five dollars for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness. A witness who has appeared in accordance with the provisions of the summons shall not be required to remain within this state a longer period of time than the period mentioned in the certificate unless otherwise ordered by the court. If such witness, after coming into this state, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from a court of record in this state. (1937, c. 217, s. 3.)

Cross References.—See also, § 8-66. As to effect of non-attendance of witness, see § 8-63.

§ 8-68. Exemption from arrest and service of process.—If a person comes into this state in obedience to a summons directing him to attend and testify in this state he shall not, while in this state pursuant to such summons, be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons.

If a person passes through this state while going to another state in obedience to a summons to attend and testify in that state, or while returning therefrom, he shall not while so passing through this state be subject to arrest or the services of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into this state under the summons. (1937, c. 217, s. 4.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 8-64.

Res Judicata.—In an action against the driver of a car upon whom service of summons was had while he was in the state in obedience to a summons from a coroner to testify at an inquest, motion to vacate the service was allowed upon the court's finding from the evidence that defendant was a nonresident and that therefore he was exempt from service of process in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into the state in obedience to the coroner's summons. In a subsequent action arising out of the same collision, brought in another county by the administrator of a party killed in the collision, service was had upon the defendant at the same time and in the same manner. It was held that the prior adjudication that defendant was a nonresident and was exempt from service under this section was in the nature of a judgment in rem and is res judicata as to the status and residence of the defendant, and is binding upon the administrator under the maxim res judicata pro veritate accipitur, and the holding of the court in the second action upon substantially the same evidence that defendant was a resident of this state and that the service of summons on him was valid must be reversed on appeal even though supported by evidence. Current v. Webb, 220 N. C. 425, 17 S. E. (2d) 614.

Applied in Bangle v. Webb, 220 N. C. 423, 17 S. E. (2d) 613.

§ 8-69. Uniformity of interpretation.—This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of the states which enact it. (1937, c. 217, s. 5.)

§ 8-70. Title of article.—This article may be cited as "Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from without a State in Criminal Proceedings." (1937, c. 217, s. 6.)

Art. 10. Depositions.

§ 8-71. Manner of taking depositions in civil actions.—Any party in a civil action or special proceeding, upon giving notice to the adverse party or his attorney as provided by law, may take the depositions of persons whose evidence he may desire to use, without any special order therefor, unless the witness shall be beyond the limits of the United States.

Depositions shall be taken on commission, issuing from the court and under the seal thereof, by one or more commissioners, who shall be of kin to neither party, and shall be appointed by the clerk; or depositions may be taken by a notary public of this state or of any other state or foreign country, or any commissioner of oaths or commissioner of deeds of any foreign country, or by any officer of the army of the United States or marine corps having the rank of captain or higher, by any officer of the United States navy or United States coast guard having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, or by any officer of the United States merchant marine having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, without a commission issuing from the court. No official seal shall be required of said military or naval officials, but they shall sign their name, designate rank, name of ship or military division, and date, without a commission issuing from the court.

Depositions shall be subscribed and sealed up by the commissioners or notary public, and returned to the court, the clerk whereof or the judge holding the court, if the clerk is a party to the action, shall open and pass upon the same, after having first given the parties or their attorneys not less than one day's notice; and all such depositions, when passed upon and allowed by the clerk, without appeal, or by the judge upon appeal from the clerk's order, or by the judge holding the court, when the clerk is a party to the action, shall be deemed legal evidence, if the witness be competent. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1911, c. 158; R. C., c. 31, s. 63; 1881, c. 279; 1893, c. 360; 1943, c. 160, s. 1; C. S. 1809.)

Editor's Note.—As this section originally stood, it contained many restrictive clauses which no longer appear.

The 1943 amendment added to the second paragraph the provisions relating to commissioners of oaths or deeds and to officers in the armed forces and in the merchant marine. Section 2 of the amendatory act provided that in all instances in which depositions had been taken by an officer of the armed forces as provided in the said paragraph, they are validated as though taken pursuant thereto.

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to save the inconvenience and cost of taking witnesses to the court, unless the party desiring the testimony of the witness sees fit to summon him to attend the court and testify in person. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Optional with Party Desiring the Evidence.—A party may take the deposition; he is not obliged to do so and it is optional with him whether he will or not. Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514, 516.

Right of Cross Examination.—Where a cause has been referred and regularly proceeded with before a commissioner to take deposition therein, the party has a right to cross-examine the witnesses of the opposing party, which may not be denied him as a matter of law. Sugg v. St. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Presumed Regular.—The presumption is that a deposition has been properly taken when it appears thereon that it was taken by one named in the commission on the day and at the designated place. Younce v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 239, 71 S. E. 329.

May Be Taken in Place of Business.—It is not error to take a deposition in the place of business of one of the parties if such place is named in the notice and there is no suggestion that the other party suffered any prejudice thereby. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

May Be Taken before Answer.—The plaintiff is not required to delay taking the deposition of a witness in a cause until after the answer is filed. Freeman v. Brown, 151 N. C. 111, 65 S. E. 743.

Leading Question.—It is discretionary with the trial judge whether or not answers to leading questions shall be stricken out of the deposition. Bank v. Carr, 130 N. C. 479, 41 S. E. 876.

Necessity of Sealing.—A deposition must be sealed up by the commissioners, so as to prevent inspection and alteration; it need not be certified under the seal of the commissioners. Ward v. Ely, 12 N. C. 372.

Where a deposition was found among the papers, with a commission unattached, and an envelope which appeared to have been sealed up and afterwards broken open, it was held that this was sufficient evidence to justify the clerk in finding that the deposition had been taken under such commission, and had been returned to him sealed up by the commissioner, and therefore, that the clerk had done right in passing upon and allowing such deposition to be read. Hill v. Bell, 61 N. C. 122.

Name of Witness in Commission Not Essential.—It is not necessary that the commission issued for taking depositions name the particular witness to whose depositions exceptions are taken, when the notice to take the deposition gave the name of the witness and the address of the commissioner, and the requirement of the statute has been met. Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 624.

Signature of Witness Unnecessary.—Where a deposition is otherwise regular and identified, it should not be refused as evidence because it has not been signed by the witness whose testimony was being taken, this not being required by our statute. Boggs v. Cullowhee Min. Co., 162 N. C. 393, 78 S. E. 274. And the fact that it was signed when neither party was present is not ground for refusing to admit it. Riff v. Yarkin, etc., Co., 189 N. C. 585, 127 S. E. 588.

Question Need Not Be Written.—In the taking of a deposition, interrogatories are not required to be in writing, and when there is nothing to indicate that the deposition does not contain the whole of the deponent's testimony or that it was not written down at the time and in the presence of the witness, a motion to quash should be refused. Chippewa Valley Bank v. National Bank, 116 N. C. 815, 21 S. E. 688.

Attachment or Identification of the Papers.—While it is customary, and the better practice, to attach to a deposition a paper-writing therein referred to, or, if there are more than one deposition, to attach it to one and identify it by reference in the others, and in case the writing is a matter of record or in the custody of the court, over which the parties have no control, to attach an exemplified copy; it is not required by our statutes that the writing be so attached, and when this has not been done, the fact of identity may be proved as any other fact in evidence. In re Will of Clodfelter, 171 N. C. 528, 88 S. E. 625.

As to waiver of formal defects, see note of McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128, under section 8-81.

Notice to Adverse Party Required.—A party offering to read a deposition as evidence must prove that he has given the notice of the opening of the deposition before the clerk prescribed by this section, or show facts that would amount to a waiver by the opposite party of the statutory requirement. Berry v. Hall, 105 N. C. 154, 10 S. E. 903. See section 8-72 and notes thereto.

Power of Clerk.—This section allowing the clerk to pass upon depositions only applies to the depositions of competent witnesses; where, therefore, he passed upon and allowed one to be read which was taken out of the county, under a commission without a seal, it was held, that such action of his might well be disregarded by the court trying the cause. Sehorn v. Williams, 51 N. C. 575.

An Appeal Essential for Review by Court.—The superior court has no jurisdiction to decide whether a deposition be regularly taken, except on appeal from the clerk's decision. Hix v. Fisher, 60 N. C. 474.

Qualification of Commissioner Presumed.—A commissioner appointed to take depositions will be presumed to be properly qualified until the contrary is shown. Gregg v. Mallett, 111 N. C. 74, 15 S. E. 936.

Mistake in Name.—Where the notice to take depositions correctly states the name of the commissioner appointed to take them, and is otherwise regular, it is error for the trial judge to exclude the depositions, as evidence, on account of a slight error in the spelling of the commissioner's name. Hardy v. Phoenix Mut. Life Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 22, 83 S. E. 5.

Commissioner Related to Parties.—The commissioner should not be related to either of the parties, but the burden of proving this relationship rests upon the movant. Younce v. Broad River Lumber Co., 155 N. C. 239, 71 S. E. 329.

Same-Objection.—An objection that a commissioner to take depositions is related to one of the parties must be taken at the time of opening such depositions before the clerk. Kerr v. Hicks, 131 N. C. 90, 42 S. E. 532.

Duty of Witness to Answer.—The commissioner acts for the court and it is the duty of the witness to answer proper questions propounded by him, just as though the examination is conducted before the judge or clerk. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 146, 17 S. E. 69.

Delay of Commission Insufficient for Continuance.—Commissions to take testimony are issued at the instance, and for the benefit, of one of the parties, and he will usually make them returnable at the earliest day consistent with convenience. But if through laches or from a wish to delay the trial, he should not do so, the non-execution of the commission will be adjudged an insufficient reason for asking a continuance. Duncan v. Hill, 19 N. C. 291.

§ 8-72. Notice required for taking depositions.

—In taking depositions in civil actions or special proceedings, written notice of the time and place of taking a deposition, specifying the name of the witness, must be served by the party at whose instance it is taken upon the adverse party or his attorney. The time for serving such notice shall be as follows: Three entire days when the party notified resides within ten miles of the place where the deposition is to be taken; in other cases, where the party notified resides in the state, one day more for every additional twenty miles, except where the deposition is to be taken within ten miles of a railway in running operation in the state, when one day only shall be given for every hundred miles of railway to the place where the deposition is to be taken. When a deposition is to be taken beyond the state, ten days notice of the taking thereof shall be given, when the person whose deposition is to be taken resides within ten miles of a railway connecting with a line of railway within twenty miles of the place where the person notified resides. In other cases, where there are no railways running as above specified, twenty days notice shall be given. When objection is taken to the reading of any such deposition, upon the ground that there are no railways or connecting railways to and from the points specified in this section, or that the notice given had otherwise been actually insufficient, it shall devolve upon the party objecting to satisfy the court of the truth of his allegation. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1881, c. 279; C. S. 1810.)

In General.—The object of the notice is to give the party an opportunity to attend and cross-examine; and, while on the one hand, a party will not be forced to attend on Sunday, or on a day when his presence is required at another place for the purpose of that very suit, so, on the other, it is held that the principle is complied with substantially, if the notice describes the place with reasonable certainty. Owens v. Kinsey, 51 N. C. 38, 40.

Variance between Notice and Certificate.—A deposition certified to have been taken at the house of J. E. was objected to because the notice was to take it at the house of J. A. E., it was held, that it would be presumed that the notice and certificate referred to the same person. Ellmore v. Mills, 2 N. C. 359.

Alternative Days.—A notice to take a deposition on "the 5th or 6th" of a certain month was held sufficient. Kenedy v. Alexander, 2 N. C. 25.

On a Particular Day for Several Successive Weeks.—Notice to take a deposition on a particular day of every week for three successive months is not good. Bedell v. State Bank, 12 N. C. 483.

Conflicting Dates.—Where notice is served that depositions will be taken at the same time in two different places, so that the party who is notified cannot be present at both, he may attend at either place designated and disregard the notice as to the other, and the deposition taken in his absence at the other place will, on motion, be quashed or suppressed, but where he elects to appeal by counsel and cross-examines the witnesses without making any objection at the time, this is a waiver as to any defect in the notice. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613.

Certainty of Place.—A misdescription of a place, in one small particular, in a notice to take depositions will not be fatal, if there be other descriptive terms used in the notice, less liable to mistake, by which such place may be identified. Pursell v. Long, 52 N. C. 102.

Reasonableness as to Time.—Where the statute required three days' notice of the taking of a deposition, and only two days' notice was given and the opposite party appeared and objected to the shortness of notice, and declined to cross-examine the deponent, the deposition was rejected. In such cases the day on which notice is given is not counted, but the day on which the deposition is taken may be counted. Beasley v. Downey, 32 N. C. 284.

Where Parties Specially Mentioned.—Where notice was given to take the deposition of certain parties, specifically mentioned, "and others," and depositions of those particularly mentioned were not taken, it was held to be no ground for exception. McDugald v. Smith, 33 N. C. 576.

The notice directing the commissioner to take the depositions of persons named "and others," depositions taken of others than those named are admissible. In re Will of Rawlings, 170 N. C. 58, 86 S. E. 794.

Notice to One of Joint Defendants.—Upon a bill against joint administrators relative to the acts of the intestate, of which the administrators put in a joint answer, a deposition taken by the plaintiff upon notice to one of the defendants only was excluded, though it was the deposition of the plaintiff's only witness, who had since died. Cox v. Smitherman, 37 N. C. 66.

Served at Residence of Party.—Notice of taking a deposition is sufficient, if left at a party's residence. Kennedy & Co. v. Fairman, 2 N. C. 404.

Service by Constable.—A town constable cannot serve a notice to take depositions in an action pending in the superior court. Cullen v. Absher, 119 N. C. 441, 26 S. E. 33.

Notice by Guardian Appointed after Person Released as Sane.—Where a party to an action has become insane and placed in a State institution therefor, and is thereafter released therefrom as sane, § 122-67, the court is without authority, after his regaining his sanity, to appoint a guardian ad litem for him, § 1-65, and notice to the guardian so appointed as to the taking of depositions of witnesses does not comply with the requirements of this section, and upon objection, the depositions so taken should be excluded. Orr v. Beachboard, 199 N. C. 276, 154 S. E. 311.

Proof of Service.—The practice permits the person, who has served the notice that a deposition will be taken, to appear before the commissioners and swear to that fact and if it be shown by the certificate of the commissioners, the deposition may be read. Sawrey v. Murrell, 3 N. C. 397.

Absent Party or Attorney.—In taking depositions where a party lives out of the State, notice may be given to the absent party, or to his attorney in court. Savage v. Rice, 1 N. C. 19.

§ 8-73. Publication of notice in case of non-resident.—Instead of the notice served upon the adverse party or his attorney in taking depositions in civil actions or special proceedings, when the adverse party is a nonresident and has no attorney of record, it shall be sufficient to publish notice to the adverse party in some newspaper published in the county where the action is pending, or if no newspaper is published in such county, then in some newspaper in the judicial district, for three consecutive weeks, giving the time and place of taking the deposition and specifying the name of the witness. And when the adverse party is a nonresident and service of notice cannot be had upon him or his attorney in this state, then one publication of notice to open such deposition shall be sufficient notice. (1913, c. 137; C. S. 1811.)

Cross Reference.—As to publication generally, see §§ 1-98, 1-99.

Where the defendant had left for parts unknown, and his attorney in the case had died, and none other been substituted, and plaintiff was desirous of taking a deposition in New England, an order was made directing publication for three successive weeks in a newspaper, of notice that the deposition would be taken at a certain place and day three months after publication. Maxwell v. Holland, 2 N. C. 302.

§ 8-74. Depositions for defendant in criminal actions.—In all criminal actions, hearings and investigations it shall be lawful for the defendant in any such action to make affidavit before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said action is pending, that it is important for the defense that he have the testimony of any person, whose name must be given, and that such person is so infirm, or otherwise physically incapacitated, or nonresident of this state, that he cannot procure his attendance at the trial or hearing of said cause. Upon the filing of such affidavit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to appoint some responsible person to take the deposition of such witness, which deposition may be read in the trial of such criminal action under the same rules as now apply by law to depositions in civil actions: Provided, that the solicitor or prosecuting attorney of the district, county or town in which such action is pending have ten days notice of the taking of such deposition, who may appear in person or by representative to conduct the cross-examination of such witness. This section shall not apply to the taking of depositions in courts of justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 1652; Code, s. 1357; 1891, c. 522; 1893, c. 80; 1915, c. 251; C. S. 1812.)

Not Applicable to State Witnesses.—In State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466, Stacy, J., commenting on an offer of a trial judge to allow the defense to take depositions of State's witnesses, in a dissenting opinion said: "This section provides that the defendant, in all criminal actions, may take the depositions of witnesses to be used as evidence in his behalf. But this applies to his own witnesses and not to those who testify against him. It would be strange, indeed, to say that a statute, intended to grant, as it does, a privilege to the defendant, could be used to deprive him of his constitutional guarantees. As to the witnesses offered by the State, he has the right to demand their presence in the courtroom, and to confront them with other witnesses, and to subject them to the test of a cross-examination. State v. Mitchell, 119 N. C. 784, 25 S. E. 783. The prisoner may not be required to examine the State's witnesses in the absence of the jury; and the contrary suggestion of his Honor, though unintentional, was prejudicial to the defendant."

Where there are several defendants in the same bill of indictment, it is not necessary to notify each of the others of the taking of a deposition by one for use as evidence on his behalf. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

A deposition taken under this section is competent to be read in favor of one prisoner, although it contains testimony charging his codefendant with committing the crime. When so read, it is the duty of the presiding judge to instruct the jury that they are not to consider it as evidence against the codefendant thus charged with the crime, but only as evidence in favor of the prisoner who offers it. State v. Finley, 118 N. C. 1162, 24 S. E. 495.

§ 8-75. Depositions in justices' courts.—Any party in a civil action before a justice of the peace may take the depositions of all persons whose evidence he may desire to use in the action; and to do so he may apply to the clerk of the superior court for a commission to take the same, and shall proceed in all things in taking such depositions as if such action was pending in the superior court. When any such depositions are returned to the clerk, they shall be opened and passed upon by the clerk, and delivered to the justice of the peace before whom the trial is to be had; and the reading and using of said depositions shall conform to the rules of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1646; Code, s. 1359; 1872-3, c. 33; C. S. 1813.)

§ 8-76. Depositions before municipal authorities.—Any board of aldermen, board of town or county commissioners or any person interested in any proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial before such board, may take the depositions of all persons whose evidence may be desired for use in said proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial; and to do so, the chairman of such board or such person may apply in person or by attorney to the superior court clerk of that county in which such proceeding, investigation, hearing or trial is pending, for a commission to take the same, and said clerk, upon such application, shall issue such commission, or such deposition may be taken by a notary public of this state or of any other state or foreign county without a commission issuing from the court; and the notice and proceedings upon the taking of said depositions shall be the same as provided for in civil actions; and if the person upon whom the notice of the taking of such deposition is to be served is absent from or cannot after due diligence be found within this state, but can be found within the county in which the deposition is to be taken, then, and in that case, said notice shall be personally served on such person by the commissioner appointed to take such deposition or by the notary taking such deposition, as the case may be; and when any such deposition is returned to the clerk it shall be opened and passed upon by him and delivered to such board, and the reading and using of such deposition shall conform to the rules of the superior court. (Rev., s. 1653; 1889, c. 151; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1814.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the provisions relating to notary public.

§ 8-77. Depositions in quo warranto proceedings.—In all actions for the purpose of trying the title to the office of clerk of the superior court, register of deeds, county treasurer or sheriff of any county, it shall be competent and lawful to take the deposition of witnesses before a commissioner or commissioners to be appointed by the judge of the district wherein the case is to be tried, or the judge holding the court of said district, or the clerk of the court wherein the case is pending, or a notary public, under the same rules as to time of notice and as to the manner of taking and filing the same as is now provided by law for the taking of depositions in other cases; and such depositions, when so taken, shall be competent to be read on the trial of such action, without regard to the place of residence of such witness or distance of residence from said place of trial: Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the oral examination, by either party on the trial, of such witnesses as they may summon in their behalf. (Rev., s. 1654; 1889, c. 428; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 1815.)

§ 8-78. Commissioner may subpoena witness and punish for contempt.—Commissioners to take depositions appointed by the courts of this state, or by the courts of the states or territories of the United States, arbitrators, referees, and all persons acting under a commission issuing from any court of record in this state, are hereby empowered, they or the clerks of the courts respectively in this state, to which such commission shall be returnable, to issue subpoenas, specifying the time and place for the attendance of witnesses before them, and to administer oaths to said witnesses, to the end that they may give their testimony. And any witness appearing before any of the said persons and refusing to give his testimony on oath touching such matters as he may be lawfully examined unto shall be committed, by warrant of the person before whom he shall so refuse, to the common jail of the county, there to remain until he may be willing to give his evidence; which warrant of commitment shall recite what authority the person has to take the testimony of such witness, and the refusal of the witness to give it. (Rev., s. 1649; Code, s. 1362; R. C., c. 31, s. 64; 1777, c. 115, s. 42; 1805, c. 685, ss. 1, 2; 1848, c. 66; 1850, c. 188; C. S. 1816.)

Cross References.—As to attendance of witnesses before commissioners, etc., see § 8-60. See also, § 5-1, subsec. 6, under which refusal of witness to be sworn or answer questions amounts to contempt.

Power Not Exclusively in Commissioner.—The power to commit to jail a person refusing to testify before a commissioner, as provided for in this section, is not given exclusively, if at all, to the commissioner, but he may invoke the aid of the judge from whom he derives his appointment and whose authority is defied. Bradley, etc., Co. v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 141, 17 S. E. 69.

§ 8-79. Attendance before commissioner enforced.—The sheriff of the county where the witness may be shall execute all such subpoenas, and make due return thereof before the commissioner, or other person, before whom the witness is to appear, in the same manner, and under the same penalties, as in case of process of a like kind returnable to court; and when the witness shall be subpoenaed five days before the time of his required attendance, and shall fail to appear according to the subpoena and give evidence, the default shall be noted by the commissioner, arbitrator, or other person aforesaid; and in case the default be made before a commissioner acting under authority from courts without the state, the defaulting witness shall forfeit and pay to the party at whose instance he may be subpoenaed fifty dollars, and on the trial for such penalty the subpoena issued by the commissioner, or other person, as aforesaid, with the indorsement thereon of due service by the officer serving the same, together with the default noted as aforesaid and indorsed on the subpoena, shall be prima facie evidence of the forfeiture, and sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to judgment for the same, unless the witness may show his incapacity to have attended. (Rev., s. 1650; Code, s. 1363; R. C., c. 31, s. 65; 1848, c. 66, s. 2; 1850, c. 188, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1817.)

§ 8-80. Remedies against defaulting witness before commissioner.—But in case the default be made before a commissioner, arbitrator, referee or other person, acting under a commission or authority from any of the courts of this state, then the same shall be certified under his hand, and returned with the subpoena to the court by which he was commissioned or empowered to take the evidence of such witness; and thereupon the court shall adjudge the defaulting witness to pay to the party at whose instance he was summoned the sum of forty dollars; but execution shall not issue therefor until the same be ordered by the court, after such proceedings had as shall give said witness an opportunity to show cause, if he can, against the issuing thereof. (Rev., s. 1651; Code, s. 1364; R. C., c. 31, s. 66; 1850, c. 188, s. 2; C. S. 1818.)

§ 8-81. Objection to deposition before trial.—At any time before the trial, or hearing of an action or proceeding, any party may make a motion to the judge or court to reject a deposition for irregularity in the taking of it, either in whole or in part, for scandal, impertinence, the incompetency of the testimony, for insufficient notice, or for any other good cause. The objecting party shall state his exceptions in writing. (Rev., s. 1648; Code, s. 1361; 1895, c. 312; 1903, c. 132; 1869-70, c. 227, ss. 13, 17; C. S. 1819.)

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section is to settle the depositions as evidence before the trial or hearing and thus prevent surprise, misapprehension, confusion and delay on the trial. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 420, 4 S. E. 199.

Time and Manner of Objection.—As stated by the section exceptions to a deposition, especially those which relate to its regularity, should be disposed of, at the latest, before the trial is entered upon. Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 197, 55 S. E. 613; Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473, 480; Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199. Such objection must be made in writing. Brittain v. Hitchcock, 127 N. C. 400, 37 S. E. 474.

Same—When Allowed at Trial.—Where it appeared that no notice had been given to the adverse party of the taking of a deposition, and that it had not been passed upon by the clerk, it was held that an objection to its reception might be taken on the trial of the action. Bryan v. Jeffreys, 104 N. C. 242, 10 S. E. 167.

Waiver of Formal Defects.—Where a party attends upon and takes part in taking depositions, he thereby waives all objections of a formal character, but a void process will not be vitalized unless there is an amendment without prejudice to third parties. McArter v. Rhea, 122 N. C. 614, 30 S. E. 128.

The failure to insert the name of the commissioner in the commission to take the deposition is waived by the objecting party appearing at the taking of the deposition and making no objection thereto until after the trial was begun. Womack v. Gross, 135 N. C. 378, 47 S. E. 464; Tomlinson Chair Mfg. Co. v. Townsend, 153 N. C. 244, 69 S. E. 145.

Where the provisions of this section as to making the objection before trial and in writing are not complied with, the objection to the deposition is waived. Woodley v. Hassell, 94 N. C. 157.

For discussion of waiver in general, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 706; as to cross-examination of witnesses, see 4 N. C. Enc. Dig. 707.

Cited in Hood System Industrial Bank v. Dixie OH Co., 205 N. C. 778, 779, 172 S. E. 360.

§ 8-82. Deposition not quashed after trial begun.—No deposition shall be quashed, or rejected, on objection first made after a trial has begun, merely because of an irregularity in taking the same, provided it shall appear that the party objecting had notice that it had been taken, and it was on file long enough before the trial to enable him to present his objection. (Rev., s. 1647; Code, s. 1360; 1869-70, c. 227, s. 12; C. S. 1820.)

Opportunity to Object before Trial.—Where a deposition was open and on file before the trial, and an objection thereto was made for the first time on the trial, it was held that the objection could not be sustained. Morgan v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 170 N. C. 75, 81, 86 S. E. 975; citing Ivey v. Bessemer City Cotton Mills, 143 N. C. 189, 55 S. E. 613. And this is true whether the motion is to quash the deposition in whole or in part. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

Filing as Notice.—Where the deposition had been on file for two or three months before the trial, the appellant's counsel having notice and being present when it was opened by the clerk and ordered by him to be read in evidence on the trial, and they making no objections thereto, it was held that such deposition could not be quashed on oral objection made at the trial. Carroll v. Hodges, 98 N. C. 418, 4 S. E. 199.

As to failure to give notice to adverse party, see note of Bryan v. Jeffreys, 104 N. C. 242, 10 S. E. 167, under section 8-81.

Preservation of Exception.—Where a commissioner to take depositions has, over the objection and exceptions of a party litigant, denied him the right of cross-examination of a witness of his opponent, and the litigant has appealed therefrom to the trial court, and preserved his right, the exception gives notice of the grounds upon which it was based, and on his motion on the trial, the deposition relating to that part of the evidence will be stricken out. Sugg v. St. Mary's Oil Engine Co., 193 N. C. 814, 138 S. E. 169.

Incompetent Questions.—Since a deposition can be quashed only for irregularities in the taking or the incompetency of witnesses, objection should be taken to the questions and answers of the deponent by way of exception and not by motion to quash the depositions. Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 624.

Stated in Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 91 S. E. 844.

§ 8-83. When deposition may be read on the trial.—Every deposition taken and returned in the manner provided by law may be read on the trial of the action or proceeding, or before any referee, in the following cases, and not otherwise:

1. If the witness is dead, or has become insane since the deposition was taken.
2. If the witness is a resident of a foreign country, or of another state, and is not present at the trial.
3. If the witness is confined in a prison outside the county in which the trial takes place.
4. If the witness is so old, sick or infirm as to be unable to attend court.
5. If the witness is the president of the United States, or the head of any department of the federal government, or a judge, district attorney, or clerk of any court of the United States, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court.
6. If the witness is the governor of the state, or the head of any department of the state government, or the president of the university, or the head of any other incorporated college in the state, or the superintendent or any physician in the employ of any of the hospitals for the insane for the state.

7. If the witness is a justice of the supreme court, or a judge, presiding officer, clerk or solicitor of any court of record, and the trial shall take place during the term of such court.

8. If the witness is a member of the congress of the United States, or a member of the general assembly, and the trial shall take place during a session of the body of which he is a member.

9. If the witness has been duly summoned, and at the time of the trial is out of the state, or is more than seventy-five miles by the usual public mode of travel from the place where the court is sitting, without the procurement or consent of the party offering his deposition.

10. If the action is pending in a justice's court the deposition may be read on the trial of the action, provided the witness is more than seventy-five miles by the usual public mode of travel from the place where the court is sitting. (Rev., s. 1615; Code, s. 1358; R. C., c. 31, s. 63; 1777, c. 115, ss. 39, 40, 41; 1803, c. 633; 1828, c. 24, ss. 1, 2; 1836, c. 30; 1869-70, c. 227, s. 11; 1881, c. 279, ss. 1, 3; 1905, c. 366; 1919, c. 324; C. S. 1821.)

Cross References.—As to manner, form, and time of taking exceptions, see §§ 8-81, 8-82 and notes thereto. As to depositions in criminal actions, see § 8-74 and notes thereto.

Selected Parts.—It is not permissible to introduce selected portions of depositions without offering the whole. Sternberg v. Crookon, etc., Co., 172 N. C. 731, 90 S. E. 935; Enloe v. Charlotte Coca-Cola Bottling Co., 210 N. C. 262, 186 S. E. 242.

Witness Unable to Talk.—The deposition of a witness adjudged to be unable to talk or remain in court is admissible in evidence under this section. Willeford v. Bailey, 132 N. C. 402, 43 S. E. 928.

Where Admissible in Subsequent Action.—In the trial of an action a deposition regularly taken in another action between the same parties and involving the same subject matter is admissible as substantive evidence. Hartis v. Charlotte Elect. R. Co., 162 N. C. 236, 78 S. E. 164. It may be introduced whether the deponent was examined as a witness in the case being tried or not. Mabe v. Mabe, 122 N. C. 552, 29 S. E. 843.

The difference between hearsay evidence and that obtained by deposition, as pointed out by the court in the Hartis case, lies in the fact that in the latter instance the testimony is taken before one who is empowered to administer oaths, and the adverse party is given full opportunity to cross-examine.—Ed. Note.

Same—Where Action Survives.—Where the deposition de bene esse of the plaintiff in an action has been taken in accordance with law, and the plaintiff has since died, but the cause of action survives, the deposition may properly be read in evidence in behalf of those who survive him in interest, and have properly been made parties to the original action. Barbee v. Cannady, 191 N. C. 529, 132 S. E. 572.

Meaning of "Duly Summoned."—By reasonable construction the ninth sub-division of this section means that where the deposition has been regularly taken, and where the witness is more than seventy-five miles from the place of trial without the consent of the party, and the presence of the witness cannot be procured, the deposition may be read if a subpoena has been duly issued—not necessarily served. Tomlinson Chair Mfg. Co. v. Townsend, 153 N. C. 244, 69 S. E. 145. See also Sparrow v. Blount, 90 N. C. 514. Stated in Jeffords v. Albemarle Waterworks, 157 N. C. 10, 72 S. E. 624; Barnhardt v. Smith, 86 N. C. 473. Section cited in Stern & Co. v. Herren, 101 N. C. 517, 8 S. E. 221.

§ 8-84. Depositions taken in the state to be used in another state:

1. By whom obtained. In addition to the other remedies prescribed by law, a party to an action, suit or special proceeding, civil or criminal, pending in a court without the state, either in the United States or any of the possessions thereof, or any foreign country, may obtain, by the proceedings prescribed by this section, the testimony of a witness and in connection therewith the production of books and papers within the state to be used in the action, suit or special proceeding.

2. Application filed. Where a commission to take testimony within the state has been issued from the court in which the action, suit or special proceeding is pending, or where a notice has been given, or any other proceeding has been taken for the purpose of taking the testimony within the state pursuant to the laws of the state or country wherein the court is located, or pursuant to the laws of the United States or any of the possessions thereof, if it is a court of the United States, the person desiring such testimony, or the production of papers and documents, may present a verified petition to any justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court, stating generally the nature of the action or proceeding in which the testimony is sought to be taken, and that the testimony of the witness is material to the issue presented in such action or proceeding, and he shall set forth the substance of or have annexed to his petition a copy of the commission, order, notice, consent or other authority under which the deposition is taken. In case of an application for a subpoena to compel the production of books or papers, the petition shall specify the particular books or papers, the production of which is sought, and show that such books or papers are in the possession of or under the control of the witness and are material upon the issues presented in the action or special proceeding in which the deposition of the witness is sought to be taken.

3. Subpoena issued. Upon the filing of such petition, if the justice of the supreme court or judge of the superior court is satisfied that the application is made in good faith to obtain testimony within the provisions of this section, he shall issue a subpoena to the witness, commanding him to appear before the commissioner named in the commission, or before a commissioner within the state, for the state, territory or foreign country in which the notice was given or the proceeding taken, or before the officer designated in the commission, notice or other paper, by his title or office, at a time and place specified in the subpoena, to testify in the action, suit or special proceeding. Where the subpoena directs the production of books or papers, it shall specify the particular books or papers to be produced, and shall specify whether the witness is required to deliver sworn copies of such books or papers to the commissioner or to produce the original thereof for inspection, but such books and original papers shall not be taken from the witness. This subpoena must be served upon the witness at least two days, or, in case of a subpoena requiring the production of books or papers, at least five days before the day on which the witness is commanded to appear. A party to an action or proceeding in which a deposition is sought to be taken, or a witness subpoenaed to attend and give his testimony, may apply to the court issuing such subpoena to vacate or modify the same.

4. Witness compelled to attend and testify. If the witness shall fail to obey the subpoena, or refuse to have an oath administered, or to testify or to produce a book or paper pursuant to a subpoena, or to subscribe his deposition, the justice or judge issuing the subpoena shall, if it is determined that a contempt has been committed, prescribe punishment as in case of a recalcitrant witness. Upon proof by affidavit that a person to whom a subpoena was issued has failed or refused to obey such subpoena, to be duly sworn or affirmed, to testify or answer a question propounded to him, to produce a book or paper which he has been subpoenaed to produce, or to subscribe to his deposition when correctly taken down, the justice or judge shall grant an order requiring such person to show cause before him, at a time and place specified, why he should not appear, be sworn or affirmed, testify, answer a question propounded, produce a book or paper, or subscribe to the deposition, as the case may be. Such affidavit shall set forth the nature of the action or special proceeding in which the testimony is sought to be taken, and a copy of the pleadings or other papers defining the issues in such action or special proceeding, or the facts to be proved therein. Upon the return of such order to show cause, the justice or judge shall, upon such affidavit and upon the original petition and upon such other facts as shall appear, determine whether such person should be required to appear, be sworn or affirmed, testify, answer the question propounded, produce the books or papers, or subscribe to his deposition, as the case may be, and may prescribe such terms and conditions as shall seem proper. Upon proof of a failure or refusal on the part of any person to comply with any order of the court made upon such determination, the justice or judge shall make an order requiring such person to show cause before him, at a time and place therein specified, why such person should not be punished for the offense as for a contempt. Upon the return of the order to show cause, the questions which arise must be determined as upon a motion. If such failure or refusal is established to the satisfaction of the justice or judge before whom the order to show cause is made returnable, he shall enforce the order and prescribe the punishment as hereinbefore provided.

5. Deposit for costs required. The commissioner herein provided for shall not proceed to act under and by virtue of his appointment until the party seeking to obtain such deposition has deposited with him a sufficient sum of money to cover all costs and charges incident to the taking of the deposition, including such witness fees as are allowed to witnesses in this state for attendance upon the superior courts. From such deposit the commissioner shall retain whatever amount may be due him for services, pay the witness fees and other costs that may have been incurred by reason of taking such deposition, and if any balance remains in his hands, he shall pay the same to the party by whom it was advanced. (Rev., s. 1655; 1903, c. 608; C. S. 1822.)

Art. 11. Perpetuation of Testimony.

§ 8-85. Relief afforded by superior courts.—The relief afforded in courts of equity by what is known as a "bill to perpetuate testimony" shall be afforded by the superior courts of this State. (1935, c. 254, s. 1.)

§ 8-86. How to obtain relief.—Such relief may be obtained either by a special proceeding before the clerk of the superior court, or by a civil action brought to the superior court in term. (1935, c. 254, s. 2.)

§ 8-87. Rules of procedure; admissibility of testimony taken.—Such special proceedings and civil actions shall be governed by the same rules of procedure that govern other special proceedings and civil actions; and the testimony taken therein shall be admissible in the trial of any controversy, under the same regulations and restrictions which govern depositions taken in other cases in which the taking of depositions is provided for by the laws of this State: Provided, however, the evidence so perpetuated shall not be competent against any person who was not served with notice now provided by law for the taking of depositions in civil causes to be present and cross examine said witnesses. (1935, c. 254, s. 3.)

Cross References.—As to procedure in civil actions, see § 1-88 et seq. As to procedure in special proceeding, see § 1-393 et seq. As to depositions, see § 8-71 et seq.

§ 8-88. Taxing costs.—The costs of such special proceedings and civil actions shall be taxed against the party at whose instance the proceeding is instituted. (1935, c. 254, s. 4.)

Art. 12. Inspection and Production of Writings.

§ 8-89. Inspection of writings.—The court before which an action is pending, or a judge thereof, may, in its or his discretion, and upon due notice, order either party to give to the other, within a specified time, an inspection and copy, or permission to take a copy, of any books, papers, and documents in his possession or under his control, containing evidence relating to the merits of the action or the defense therein. If compliance with the order be refused, the court, on motion, may exclude the paper from being given in evidence, or punish the party refusing, or both. (Rev., s. 1656; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1821, c. 1095; C. C. P., s. 331; 1828, c. 7; C. S. 1823.)

Cross Reference.—As to examination of adverse party, see § 1-569 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section is quite similar to the provisions of section 8-90 and must be construed therewith. In many of the cases the courts have used the term "production" when more properly the term "inspection" should be used, as the case was decided primarily under the provisions of this section. The reasoning used by the courts would indicate that this use of language has not been through inadvertence, but on the other hand would seem to furnish an additional support to the statement that the two sections are kindred in their nature and substance.

Liberal Construction.—This section is remedial, and should be liberally construed to advance the remedy intended thereby to be afforded. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Discretion of Court.—Whether the trial court shall grant an order for the inspection of writings upon a sufficient affidavit rests in its sound discretion. Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 750.

The trial court's refusal to grant plaintiff's motion, for an order that defendant produce certain written statements signed by witnesses, employees of defendant, which statements these employees testified they used to refresh their recollection before becoming witnesses, was not error, the granting of such motion being in the discretion of the court, and the record failed to show that the requirements of this and the following section were met by plaintiff, or that the written statements were in court. Star Mfg. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. (2d) 32.

Application for Order.—While a "roving commission for the inspection of papers" will not be ordinarily allowed, an application for an order for inspection of writings is sufficiently definite when it refers to papers under the exclusive control of the adverse party, which relate to the immediate issue in controversy, which could not be definitely described, and an order based thereon will be upheld. Bell v. Murchison National Bank, 196 N. C. 233, 145 S. E. 241.

Substitute for Bill of Discovery.—This section is primarily designed and intended to afford the facilities for the ascertainment of truths that were formerly supplied by a bill of discovery. Girard Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 165 N. C. 374, 81 S. E. 327.

Must Be Pertinent to Issue.—Upon motion to allow inspection or copy of books, papers, etc., before trial, it must be made to appear that the instrument in question relates to the merits of the action or is pertinent to the issue. Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617.

Where No Information Could Be Gained.—Under this section, a person will not be ordered to allow an inspection of the paper-writing if the party making the request knows the contents thereof. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334. The court said: "The object of this section is to enable a party to get information that he did not have, or to give him more definite information, or data, than he already had." Id.

Inspection within Specified Time.—This section only authorizes the judge to order one party to exhibit the writing to the other and require a copy to be given him or permit him to take a copy of the same, within a specified time. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 272, 37 S. E. 334. It was not intended that there should be an investigation of the controversies—a kind of inferior court or petty trial—with witnesses and lawyers on both sides. Id.

An examination of an adverse party, under § 1-569 et seq., may be joined with an order under this section for an inspection of writings, in the possession or under the control of the party to be examined. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 11, 144 S. E. 297.

Due Notice Required.—The inspection as provided for in this section can only be had upon the order of the court, made after due notice. Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 34, 15 S. E. 1031.

Same—Duration of Notice.—A notice to produce papers, etc., "on a trial to be had this day," is not confined to a trial on that day, but extends to a trial at a subsequent term. State v. Kimbrough, 13 N. C. 431.

As an Aid to Frame Complaint.—In an action by a stockholder of a corporation to set aside as fraudulent an assignment by the corporation of a contract, the plaintiff is entitled under this section to inspect the records and books of the corporation in order to obtain information upon which to frame his complaint. Holt v. Southern Finishing, etc., Co., 116 N. C. 480, 487, 21 S. E. 919. This is true even though their evidence may result in pecuniary injury. Id.

Depositing the Papers Not Required.—This section does not authorize the judge or clerk to issue an order that the respondent be required to deposit the papers in the clerk's office. Mills v. Biscoe Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 524, 52 S. E. 200.

Extent of Admission.—The papers, when produced by the method herein prescribed, are competent evidence for all legitimate purposes. Austin v. Secrest, 91 N. C. 214, 218.

Applicability of Res Judicata.—An order of the judge, reversing an order of the clerk with reference to the production of papers, is a discretionary matter, and being an administrative order in the cause, and not affecting the merits, is not res judicata and the motion can be renewed and a new order obtained. Mills v. Biscoe Lumber Co., 139 N. C. 524, 52 S. E. 200.

Motion to Nonsuit.—A motion to nonsuit a plaintiff for not producing books or papers, cannot be made unless a previous order of the court has been obtained for the production of such books or papers. Graham v. Hamilton, 25 N. C. 381.

Where Inspection Refused.—Where the judge refuses an inspection which is of the character authorized by this section, it still rests within his discretion to compel the production of the writing later or upon trial, when its competency and pertinency as evidence bearing on the issue may be better determined. Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617.

The affidavit supporting an order for inspection of writings must sufficiently designate the writings sought to be inspected and show that they are material to the inquiry, and where the affidavit is insufficient the order based thereon is invalid. Dunlap v. London Guaranty, etc., Co., 202 N. C. 651, 163 S. E. 750.

An application for an order for inspection of writings is sufficiently definite when it refers to papers under the exclusive control of the adverse party which relate to the immediate issue in controversy, and which cannot be more definitely described by applicant. Rivenbark v. Shell Union Oil Corp., 217 N. C. 592, 8 S. E. (2d) 919.

And Must Show Materiality and Necessity.—It is required that the affidavit set forth facts showing the materiality and necessity of the papers sought to be produced, and the mere averment that they are material and necessary is insufficient. Patterson v. Southern Ry. Co., 219 N. C. 23, 12 S. E. (2d) 652.

Review.—Where the trial court, within its discretion, has ordered a party to give to the other an inspection and copy of certain books, papers or documents containing material evidence, and the order is supported by sufficient findings of fact, and there is no evidence of abuse of such discretion, the order is not reviewable on appeal, and the appeal will be dismissed. Abbitt v. Gregory, 196 N. C. 9, 144 S. E. 297.

Reviewal by Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court will not pass upon the propriety of discharging a rule for the production of papers under this section unless the facts are stated upon which the application is based. Maxwell v. McDowell, 50 N. C. 391.

Appeal Allowed.—An appeal lies from an order requiring a person to allow an inspection of paper writings. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Applied to note for purpose of taking photographic copy thereof, in Girard Nat. Bank v. McArthur, 165 N. C. 374, 81 S. E. 327. Applied in Long v. Oxford, 104 N. C. 408, 10 S. E. 525, to determine the genuineness of a new promise on an indebtedness set up by the plaintiff to defendant's plea of the statute of limitations.

Stated in McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497; Whitten v. Western Union Tel. Co., 141 N. C. 361, 54 S. E. 289; Harper v. Pinkston, 112 N. C. 293, 17 S. E. 161.

Cited in Sossamon v. Oaklawn Cemetery, 212 N. C. 535, 193 S. E. 720.

§ 8-90. Production of writings.—The courts have full power, on motion and due notice thereof given, to require the parties to produce books or writings in their possession or control which contain evidence pertinent to the issue, and if a plaintiff shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion, may give the like judgment for the defendant, as in cases of nonsuit; and if a defendant shall fail to comply with such order, and shall not satisfactorily account for his failure, the court, on motion as aforesaid, may give judgment against him by default. (Rev., s. 1657; Code, s. 1373; R. C., c. 31, s. 25; 1821, c. 1095; 1828, c. 7; C. S. 1824.)

Discretion of Court.—When the requirements of the applicant, as set forth in the preceding section, are met, this section does nothing more than vest the granting of such application in the discretion of the judge. Star Mfg. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 222 N. C. 330, 333, 23 S. E. (2d) 32.

Complaint Essential.—A court cannot under this section order the production of papers by the defendant where no complaint has been filed, so that, in case the papers are not produced, the court can render judgment for the plaintiff, according to the provision of the section. Branson v. Pentress, 35 N. C. 165.

Where No Answer Filed.—Where no answer has been filed, the defendant is not entitled to an order to inspect a check in possession of the plaintiff, under this section. Sheek v. Sain, 127 N. C. 266, 37 S. E. 334.

Proof by Parol.—The contents of a paper writing cannot be proved by parol, unless notice has been given to the adverse party, who has it in possession to produce it on trial. Murchison v. McLeod, 47 N. C. 239.

As to requirement of notice, see note of Vann v. Lawrence, 111 N. C. 32, 15 S. E. 1031, under section 8-89. As to requirement of pertinence to issue, see note of Evans v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 167 N. C. 415, 83 S. E. 617, under section 8-89.

Due notice is notice sufficient to enable the party to have the document when called for. McDonald v. Carson, 95 N. C. 377.

Generally if a party dwells in another town than that in which the trial is had, a service of notice upon him at the place where the trial is had, or after he has left home to attend court, to produce papers, is not sufficient. Beard v. Southern R. Co., 143 N. C. 136, 55 S. E. 505.

As to extent of admission, see note of Austin v. Secrest, 91 N. C. 214, under section 8-89.

Affidavit for Non-Production.—Where the plaintiff's affidavit stated that he had not seen the letter (ordered produced) since he first sent it, that he had not knowingly destroyed it, and had made diligent search for it and could not find it, thus it was held to be sufficient cause shown for a discharge of the rule for its production. Fuller v. McMillan, 44 N. C. 206.

Stated in McDonald v. Carson, 94 N. C. 497; Rivenbark v. Shell Union Oil Corp., 217 N. C. 592, 8 S. E. (2d) 919.

§ 8-91. Admission of genuineness.—Either party may exhibit to the other, or to his attorney, at any time before the trial, any paper material to the action, and request an admission in writing of its genuineness. If the adverse party, or his attorney, fail to give the admission within four days after the request, and if the party exhibiting the paper be afterwards put to expense in order to prove its genuineness, and the same be finally proved or admitted on the trial, such expense, to be ascertained at the trial, shall be paid by the party refusing the admission, unless it appear to the satisfaction of the court that there were good reasons for the refusal. (Rev., s. 1658; Code, s. 578; R. C., c. 31, s. 82; R. S., c. 31, s. 86; 1821, c. 1095; 1828, c. 7; C. C. P., s. 331; C. S. 1825.)

Comments by Counsel.—Counsel may comment as to the truth of the contents of an instrument as suggested by its appearance, even after the admission in writing under this section that the instrument is genuine. Knight v. Hough-talling, 85 N. C. 17.

- 9-16. Causes of challenge to juror drawn from box.
- 9-17. Jurors impaneled to try case furnished with accommodations.

Art. 1. Jury List and Drawing of Original Panel.

§ 9-1. Jury list from taxpayers of good character.—The board of county commissioners for the several counties at their regular meeting on the first Monday in June, in the year nineteen hundred and five, and every two years thereafter, shall cause their clerks to lay before them the tax returns of the preceding year for their county, from which they shall proceed to select the names of all such persons as have paid all the taxes assessed against them for the preceding year and are of good moral character and of sufficient intelligence. A list of the names thus selected shall be made out by the clerk of the board of commissioners and shall constitute the jury list, and shall be preserved as such. (Rev., s. 1957; Code, ss. 1722, 1723; 1806, c. 694; 1889, c. 569; 1899, c. 729; 1897, cc. 117, 539; 1899, c. 729; 1937, cc. 19, 200; 1941, c. 92; C. S. 2312.)

Sec.

- 9-18. Exemption from civil arrest.
- 9-19. Exemptions from jury duty.
- 9-20. Clerk to keep record of jurors.
- 9-21. Extra or alternate juror; challenges; compensation and duties.

Art. 3. Peremptory Challenges in Civil Cases.

- 9-22. Six peremptory challenges on each side.
- 9-23. Where several defendants; challenges apportioned; discretion of judge.

Art. 4. Grand Jurors.

- 9-24. How grand jury drawn.
- 9-25. Grand juries in certain counties.
- 9-26. Exceptions for disqualifications.
- 9-27. Foreman may administer oaths to witnesses.
- 9-28. Grand jury to visit jail and county home.

Art. 5. Special Venire.

- 9-29. Special venire to sheriff in capital cases.
- 9-30. Drawn from jury box in court by judge's order.
- 9-31. Penalty on sheriff not executing writ or jurors not attending.

Local Modification.—Macon: 1933, c. 62; Yancey: 1929, cc. 57, 65.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1937, c. 19, applicable only to Ashe county, changed the date for selecting the jury list to the first Monday in March.

Public Laws 1937, c. 200, amended this section by adding the following: "In Ashe county, non-payment of taxes shall not be a bar to jury service nor prevent the placing of the names of persons otherwise qualified upon the jury list for said county."

Public Laws, 1941, c. 92 repealed Public Laws, 1937, cc. 19, 200.

Section Directory.—The regulations contained in this section, relative to the revision of the jury lists, are directory only and, while they should be observed, the failure to do so does not vitiate the venire in the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the county commissioners. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549; State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384; State v. Bonner, 149 N. C. 519, 63 S. E. 84.

Special Statute Allowing Other Method.—Where a statute creating a special criminal court for certain counties allows every facility to the accused for getting a fair and impartial jury, it is not unconstitutional because it does not follow the same methods of drawing the jury which are provided for by the superior courts. State v. Jones, 97 N. C. 469, 1 S. E. 680.

Alienage.—Alienage is disqualification of a juror. Hinton v. Hinton, 196 N. C. 341, 145 S. E. 615.

Omission of Negroes.—The omission of negroes from the jury list, when not excluded on account of their race, is not of itself grounds for quashing an indictment. State v. Daniels, 134 N. C. 641, 46 S. E. 743.

Names of Qualified Persons Not on Jury List.—Where the county commissioners, while drawing the jurors, laid aside the names of several persons, otherwise qualified, for the reason that they did not know whether they were residents of the county, and the jury list was completed by the names of other duly qualified persons, if there was any irregularity it did not affect the action of the jurors so drawn and summoned. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 453.

Merely Purging Jury List.—Merely purging the jury list of the names of those who had not paid their taxes, without adding any new names thereto, does not vitiate the venire in the absence of bad faith or corruption on the part of the county commissioners. State v. Dixon, 131 N. C. 808, 42 S. E. 944.

Section Does Not Abolish Challenge.—This section providing that good and lawful men, required by the Constitution to serve on juries, shall be men found by the county commissioners to have paid taxes for the preceding year, and of good moral character and of sufficient intelligence, did not abolish challenges to jurors, in particular actions, for bias, interest, kinship, etc. State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626.

Juror Having Served within Two Years.—A juror of the original panel is not subject to be challenged upon the ground that he had served upon a jury in the same court within two years; only tales-jurors who have thus served are disqualified by the statute. State v. Brittain, 89 N. C. 481.

Payment of Taxes—Motion to Quash Indictments.—Under this section only such persons as have paid all of their taxes for the preceding year are competent to serve as jurors or grand jurors. Breese v. United States, 143 Fed. 250. But there are many defenses to the failure to pay. For example nonpayment of taxes due to failure to put name on list of taxpayers does not of itself disqualify the juror. Breese v. United States, 203 Fed. 824. Nor does this section disqualify where the juror owned no taxable property above the exemption. U. S. v. Breese, 172 Fed. 761. To disqualify the failure to pay must be for the fiscal year preceding the annual revision at which the juror's name was drawn. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 780; State v. Hargrove, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185; Sellers v. Sellers, 98 N. C. 13, 3 S. E. 917; State v. Carland, 90 N. C. 668. And a juror is not disqualified when the sheriff has been enjoined from collecting his taxes. State v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 505.

The findings of the judge in the trial court as to whether a juror has paid his taxes is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Carland, 90 N. C. 668.

Formerly it was held that an indictment could be quashed if one of the members of the grand jury had not paid his taxes but this was changed by legislative enactment. See sec. 9-26 and note thereto.

§ 9-2. Names on list put in box.—The commissioners at their regular meeting on the first Monday in July in the year nineteen hundred and five, and every two years thereafter, shall cause the names on their jury list to be copied on small scrolls of paper of equal size and put into a box procured for that purpose, which must have two divisions marked No. 1 and No. 2, respectively, and two locks, the key of one to be kept by the sheriff of the county, the other by the chairman of the board of commissioners, and the box by the clerk of the board. (Rev., s. 1958; Code, s. 1726; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 5; 1937, c. 19; 1941, c. 92; C. S. 2313.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1937, c. 19, applicable only to Ashe county changed date for putting names in box to "first Monday in March or a date selected and approved on the first Monday in March." Public Laws 1941, c. 92, repealed Public Laws 1937, c. 19.

Boxes Improperly Marked.—Where the partitions of the jury box, instead of being marked "No. 1" and "No. 2," were marked "Jurors Drawn" and "Jurors Not Drawn"; there was a lock on each partition, but one key unlocked both; there was but one key and that was placed in the custody of the register and ex officio clerk to the board of county commissioners by the chairman of the board, it was held that a special venire drawn under the directions of the presiding judge from such boxes was legal. State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657.

Middle Letter Entered Erroneously.—The entering on the scroll of the name J. L. B. summoned as a juror, as J. S. B. is immaterial, since the use of a middle letter forms no part of the name. State v. Mills, 91 N. C. 581.

Applied in State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 191 S. E. 232.

§ 9-3. Manner of drawing panel for term from box.—At least twenty days before each regular or special term of the superior court, the board of commissioners of the county shall cause to be drawn from the jury box out of the partition marked No. 1, by a child not more than ten years of age, thirty-six scrolls except when the term of court is for the trial of civil cases exclusively, when they need not draw more than twenty-four scrolls. The persons whose names are inscribed on said scrolls shall serve as jurors at the term of the superior court to be held for the county ensuing such drawing, and for which they are drawn. The scrolls so drawn to make the jury shall be put into the partition marked No. 2. The said commissioners shall at the same time and in the same manner draw the names of eighteen persons who shall be summoned to appear and serve during the second week, and a like number for each succeeding week of the term of said court, unless the judge thereof shall sooner discharge all jurors from further service. The said commissioners may, at the same time and in the same manner, draw the names of eighteen other persons, who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned. The trial jury which has served during each week shall be discharged by the judge at the close of said week, unless the said jury shall be then actually engaged in the trial of a case, and then they shall not be discharged until the trial is determined. (Rev., s. 1959; Code, ss. 1727, 1731; 1889, c. 559; 1897, c. 117; 1868-9, c. 175; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 6; 1806, c. 694; 1901, c. 636; 1901, c. 28, s. 3; 1903, c. 11; 1905, cc. 38, 76, s. 4; 1905, c. 285; 1933, c. 89; C. S. 2314.)

Local Modification.—Buncombe, Cabarrus, Catawba, Forsyth, Guilford, Haywood, Iredell, Wake: 1933, c. 89.

Cross References.—As to manner of drawing panel when commissioners fail to act, see § 9-9. As to drawing of grand jury from those returned as jurors, see § 9-24. As to drawing special veniremen, see § 9-30. As to drawing additional jurors from other counties instead of removal, see § 1-86. As to drawing jurors in recorders' courts, see § 7-250. As to drawing jurors in civil county courts, see § 7-310. As to general county courts, see § 7-288.

Section Partly Mandatory.—The portion of this section, requiring persons named on the scrolls drawn from the jury box to constitute the jury, is mandatory. Moore v. Navassa Guano Co., 130 N. C. 229, 41 S. E. 293.

But the section is directory merely so far as it relates to the action of the commissioners as to the time and place of drawing the jury. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 521, 63 S. E. 84; State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

While the provisions of the statutes fixing the number of jurors to be drawn by the county commissioners is directory, yet they are very essential to the impartial administration of justice, and their non-observance is the subject of censure, if not punishment. State v. Watson, 104 N. C. 735, 10 S. E. 705.

Child Draws Jurors to Prevent Fraud.—The reason for having a child not more than ten years of age to draw the jurors is to prevent fraud in the selection of the jury, so that the law can be administered impartially and without discrimination. The child draws from the jury box the names of all sorts and conditions of men, white and negro persons, Jew and Gentile, who are qualified to serve under the law. A more perfect system could hardly be devised to insure impartiality. State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 494, 191 S. E. 232.

Effect of Excluding Negroes from Grand Jury.—The exclusion of all persons of the negro race from a grand jury, which finds an indictment against a negro, where they are excluded solely because of their race or color, denies him the equal protection of the laws in violation of the Constitutions of North Carolina and of the United States. State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 494, 191 S. E. 232.

Findings That Section Complied with Conclusive.—The findings of the trial court, after hearing evidence, that the jurors were drawn, sworn and empanelled in accordance with this section, and that there was no discrimination against persons of the negro race in making up the jury lists, are conclusive on appeal when supported by sufficient evidence, in the absence of gross abuse. State v. Cooper, 205 N. C. 657, 172 S. E. 199. See State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 191 S. E. 232.

§ 9-4. Local modifications as to drawing panel.

—In Buncombe county forty-eight jurors shall be drawn to serve the first week and twenty-four to serve the second week.

In Cabarrus county the board of county commissioners shall annually draw forty-two jurors for the first week of the January term of superior court of each year and twenty-four jurors for each and every other week of superior court during the year.

In Cumberland county the commissioners may, in their discretion, cause an additional twelve scrolls to be drawn, to serve as the jury for the first week.

In Forsyth county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and likewise for the second week. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

For the second week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Hertford county fifteen extra jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Iredell county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In McDowell county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At each term when grand jury is to be selected, for the first week, forty-eight jurors shall be drawn and summoned, and for each subsequent week of such terms and at all other terms, both civil and criminal, or mixed, regular or special, for each week, thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Randolph county forty-two scrolls shall be drawn for the first week and twenty-four for the second week. The commissioners may at the same time and in the same manner draw the names of twenty-four other persons who shall serve as petit jurors for the week for which they are drawn and summoned.

In Rockingham county the board of county commissioners is authorized and empowered to draw as jurors from the box, as provided in the preceding section, an additional number of jurors to those now provided by law. At all civil terms, regular and special, for the first week thirty jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned. At all criminal terms, regular and special, for the first week forty-two jurors shall be drawn and summoned; for the second week twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned.

In Rowan county twenty-four jurors shall be drawn and summoned for the second week.

In Stokes county the commissioners shall draw for each term of the superior court, in accordance with law, twenty-four jurors, to be summoned by the sheriff of Stokes county.

In Wayne, Robeson and Granville counties the board of commissioners for the first week of each term of the superior court of said counties for the trial of civil and criminal causes shall cause to be drawn from the jury box forty-two scrolls, and for each additional week or for any court for the trial of civil causes only, said board of commissioners shall draw twenty-four scrolls; provided, that in Wayne county the forty-two scrolls required by this section shall be drawn only at the January and July criminal terms of court; at all other times, thirty-six scrolls shall be drawn from the jury box for each week. (Rev., s. 1959; 1907, c. 239; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 4; Pub. Loc., 1915, cc. 233, 744, 764; 1921, c. 142; 1923, c. 107, s. 2; 1923, c. 117; 1937, c. 19, s. 4; 1939, c. 140; 1941, cc. 87, 92, 175; C. S. 2315.)

Editor's Note.—By Public Laws 1921, ch. 142, the paragraph relating to Stokes County was added. In 1923 the paragraphs relating to Wayne, Robeson, Granville and McDowell Counties were added.

Public Laws 1941, c. 92, s. 1, repealed Public Laws 1937, c. 19 which added a paragraph relating to Ashe County. The 1939 amendment added the proviso relating to Wayne County which was amended by Public Laws 1941, c. 87. Public Laws 1941, c. 175, added the proviso relating to Cabarrus County.

§ 9-5. Fees of jurors.—All jurors in the superior court other than special veniremen and tales jurors shall receive such an amount per day as the boards of commissioners of their respective counties may fix, not less than two dollars per day and not more than four dollars per day, and mileage at the rate of five cents per mile while coming to the county-seat and returning home. The said distance to be computed by the usual route of public travel. In the counties of Union, Nash, Brunswick, Randolph, Haywood, Polk, Surry, Swain, Alleghany, Anson, Graham, Ashe, Dare, Alexander, Cleveland, Clay, Transylvania, Harnett, Stanly, Mitchell, Burke, Franklin, Greene, Johnston, and Henderson, jurors other than special veniremen and tales jurors shall not receive more than three dollars per day.

Special veniremen and tales jurors shall receive such an amount per day for their attendance upon court as may be fixed by the boards of commissioners of their respective counties, not exceeding three dollars per day. Special veniremen who have been accepted on the panel in the trial of any cause shall receive the pay and mileage of regular jurors. (Rev., s. 2798; 1919, c. 85, ss. 1, 2; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 61, ss. 1, 3; 1921, c. 62, s. 1; C. S. 3892.)

grand jury in Scotland county, see § 9-25. As to payment of an alternate juror, see § 9-21. As to payment of additional jurors from another county, see § 1-86. As to compensation of jurors to value division fence under the fence and stock law, see § 68-10.

§ 9-6. Jurors having suits pending.—If any of the jurors drawn have a suit pending and at issue in the superior court, the scrolls with their names must be returned into partition No. 1 of the jury box. (Rev., s. 1960; Code, s. 1728; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 7; 1806, c. 694; C. S. 2316.)

Cross Reference.—As to grand juror who has suit pending, see § 9-26.

Fundamental Objection.—The circumstance described by this section is a fundamental objection to the juror, whenever it is made to appear, and is a cause of challenge, although the county commissioners may have allowed his name to go upon the venire. Hodges Bros. v. Lassiter, 96 N. C. 351, 2 S. E. 923.

Such juror is incompetent, and the defendant in a criminal action is not required to show affirmatively that the juror was present and participated in the deliberations of the grand jury when the bill was found. State v. Smith, 80 N. C. 410.

When Suit Not Triable at Same Term.—This section disqualifies only one who has a suit to be tried at the same term at which he is drawn to serve as a juror, and does not disqualify a party to a suit in which the summons is issued and made returnable to the term at which he is drawn to serve, but no pleadings are filed, so that it, even if thereafter brought to issue at that term, is not triable till the next term. State v. Spivey, 132 N. C. 989, 43 S. E. 475.

Suit Pending but Not at Issue.—A juror who has a suit "pending" but not "at issue" at the term of the court at which he has been drawn to serve, is not disqualified under this section. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549.

Indictment Quashed When Section Violated.—An indictment was properly quashed where one of the grand jurors who found the bill was a party to an action pending and at issue in the superior court. State v. Liles, 77 N. C. 496; State v. Smith, 80 N. C. 410.

Applied in State v. Parish, 104 N. C. 679, 10 S. E. 457.

§ 9-7. Disqualified persons drawn.—If any of the persons drawn to serve as jurors are dead, removed out of the county, or otherwise disqualified to serve as jurors, the scrolls with the names of such persons must be destroyed, and in such cases other persons shall be drawn in their stead. (Rev., s. 1961; Code, s. 1729; 1889, c. 559; 1897, c. 117, s. 5; 1806, c. 694; C. S. 2317.)

§ 9-8. How drawing to continue.—The drawing out of partition marked No. 1 and putting the scrolls drawn into partition No. 2 shall continue until all the scrolls in partition No. 1 are drawn out, when all the scrolls shall be returned into partition No. 1 and drawn out again as herein directed. (Rev., s. 1962; Code, s. 1730; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 9; 1806, c. 6, s. 94; C. S. 2318.)

Cross Reference.—See § 9-3 and notes thereto.

§ 9-9. Drawing when commissioners fail to draw.—If the commissioners for any cause fail to draw a jury for any term of the superior court, regular or special, the sheriff of the county and the clerk of the commissioners, in the presence of and assisted by two justices of the peace of the county, shall draw such jury in the manner above prescribed; and if a special term continues for more than two weeks, then for the weeks exceeding two a jury or juries may be drawn as in this section provided. (Rev., s. 1963; Code, s. 1732; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 11; C. S. 2319.)

Time When Names Must Be Drawn.—This section does not require a jury to be drawn twenty days or more before the term but when considered with the preceding sections it is evident that the drawing must be done within the twenty days. Even if the twenty days were required as a time limited it would be regarded as directory only. Lanier v. Greenville, 174 N. C. 311, 93 S. E. 850.

Deputy Sheriff Included.—The provision of this section refers to sheriffs in the generic sense, including deputies within its meaning to perform a duty of a ministerial nature in the sheriff's name; and where the deputy thus acts at the request of the sheriff, a challenge to the panel on that account alone will not be sustained. Lanier v. Greenville, 174 N. C. 311, 93 S. E. 850.

Court May Order Jury Drawn.—Where, upon failure of the commissioners to draw a jury for a third week of court, the court orders the same to be drawn as prescribed by this section, such jury is legal. Leach v. Linde, 108 N. C. 547, 13 S. E. 212.

Art. 2. Petit Jurors; Attendance, Regulation and Privileges.

§ 9-10. Summons to jurors drawn; to attend until discharged.—The clerk of the board of county commissioners shall, within five days from the drawing, deliver the list of jurors drawn for the superior court to the sheriff of the county, who shall summon the persons therein named to attend as jurors at such court. The summons shall be served, personally, or by leaving a copy thereof at the house of the juror, at least five days before the sitting of the court to which he may be summoned. Jurors shall appear and give their attendance until duly discharged. (Rev., s. 1976; Code, s. 1733; 1868-9, c. 9, s. 12; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 157, ss. 4, 6; C. S. 2320.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for disobeying summons, see § 9-13.

§ 9-11. Summons to talesmen; their disqualifications.—That there may not be a defect of jurors, the sheriff shall by order of the court summon, from day to day, of the bystanders, other jurors, being freeholders, within the county where the court is held, or the judge may, in his discretion, at the beginning of the term direct the tales jurors to be drawn from the jury box used in drawing the petit jury for the term, in the presence of the court; such tales jurors so drawn to be summoned by the sheriff and to serve on the petit jury, and on any day the court may discharge those who have served the preceding day. The judge may, upon his own motion, or upon the request of counsel for either plaintiff or defendant, instruct the sheriff to summon such jurors outside of the courthouse. It is a disqualification and ground of challenge to any tales juror that such juror has acted in the same court as grand, petit or tales juror within two years next preceding such term of court. (Rev., s. 1967; Code, s. 1733; R. C., c. 31, s. 29; 1779, c. 156, s. 69; 1911, c. 15; 1915, c. 210; C. S. 2321.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 218.

Tales Jurors Defined.—A tales is a supply of such men as are summoned on the first panel in order to make up the deficiency. Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 576, 621, 11 S. E. 665.

Qualifications of Tales Juror.—A tales juror must have the same qualification as a regular juror, with the additional one of being a freeholder. State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. This includes the requirement as to being a taxpayer. State v. Hargrove, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185; State v. Sherman, 115 N. C. 773, 20 S. E. 711. But it is not a disqualification of such a juror that his name does not appear on the list of the county commissioners. Lee v. Lee, 71 N. C. 139.

Selection.—Although this section seems to imply that tales jurors are to be selected from bystanders, it is the practice and within the powers of the court and of the executive officers, acting under the court's orders, to go outside for the purpose of selecting talesmen, or to notify them in advance when such a course best promotes the ends of justice. Lupton v. Spencer, 173 N. C. 126, 91 S. E. 718.

None of Original Panel Necessary.—The trial judge, in his discretion, may discharge any jurors or jury, and is not required to reserve one juror of the original panel to "build to," before directing the sheriff to summons tales jurors as authorized by this section. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

"Freeholders."—A freeholder is one who owns land in fee, or for life, or for some indeterminate period. As there are legal and equitable estates, so there are legal and equitable freeholds. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12. The realty must be situated in the county where the court is held. State v. Cooper, 83 N. C. 671. A mortgagor in possession is a freeholder within the meaning of this section. State v. Ragland, 75 N. C. 12. But not so with the holder of a license to lay off an oyster bed. State v. Young, 138 N. C. 571, 50 S. E. 213.

A finding by the trial judge that persons drawn were not freeholders is conclusive on appeal. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Regular Jurors Discharged.—Where the regular jurors have been discharged by the trial judge for the term, evidently under the impression that the business of the court was over, and on the following day there remains a criminal case regularly coming up for trial on a defect of jurors, the judge, within his discretion, is authorized to direct the sheriff to summons "other jurors, being freeholders within the county," whether within or without the courthouse. State v. Manship, 174 N. C. 798, 94 S. E. 2.

Instruction of Court Held Not to Be an Order under This Section.—Where upon adjournment the court instructed the sheriff to summon a number of men to act as talesmen in a case proposed to be called for the next day and upon the trial defendants moved that none of the men so summoned and none of the jurors already in the box should serve, but that the jury be selected from bystanders, it was held that the instruction of the court was not an order under this section for talesmen or a special venire, and that the jurors summoned being subject to all the qualifications of talesmen, and defendants having failed to exhaust their respective challenges to the poll, defendants' exceptions to the refusal of their motions could not be sustained. State v. Anderson, 208 N. C. 771, 182 S. E. 643.

§ 9-12. How talesmen summoned when sheriff interested.—When, in the trial of any action before a jury, the sheriff of the county in which the case is to be tried is a party to or has any interest in the action, or when the presiding judge finds upon investigation that the sheriff of the county is not a suitable person, on account of indirect interest in or relative to the cause of action, to be entrusted with the summoning of the tales jurors in any particular case pending, such judge shall appoint some suitable person to summon the jurors in place of the sheriff. (Rev., s. 1968; 1889, c. 441; C. S. 2322.)

Stated and applied in Boyer v. Teague, 106 N. C. 577, 11 S. E. 665; Lupton v. Spencer, 173 N. C. 126, 91 S. E. 718.

§ 9-13. Penalty for disobeying summons.—Every person on the original venire summoned to appear as a juror who fails to give his attendance until duly discharged shall forfeit and pay for the use of the county the sum of twenty dollars, to be imposed by the court; but each delinquent juror shall have until the next succeeding term to make his excuse for his nonattendance, and, if he renders an excuse deemed sufficient by the court, he shall be discharged without costs. Every person summoned of the bystanders who shall not appear and serve during the day as a juror shall be fined in the sum of two dollars, unless he can show sufficient cause to the court; and the clerk shall forthwith issue an execution against the estate of the delinquent tales juror for such amercement and costs. (Rev., s. 1977; Code, ss.

1734, 405; R. C., c. 31, s. 30; 1779, c. 157, s. 4; 1783, c. 189; 1806, c. 694; C. S. 2323.)

§ 9-14. Jury sworn; judge decides competency.—The clerk shall, at the beginning of the court, swear such of the petit jury as are of the original panel, to try all civil cases; and if there should not be enough of the original panel, the talesmen shall be sworn. The petit jurors of the original panel, as well as talesmen, shall be sworn as prescribed in the chapter entitled Oaths. Nothing herein shall be construed to disallow the usual challenges in law to the whole jury so sworn or to any of them; and if by reason of such challenge, any juror is withdrawn, his place on the jury shall be supplied by any of the original venire, or from the bystanders qualified to serve as jurors. The judge or other presiding officer of the court shall decide all questions as to the competency of jurors in both civil and criminal actions. (Rev., s. 1966; Code, s. 405; R. C., c. 31, s. 34; 1790, c. 321; 1822, c. 1133, s. 1; C. S. 2324.)

Cross References.—As to oaths, see Chapter 11. As to peremptory challenges in civil cases, see §§ 9-22 and 9-23. As to peremptory challenges in criminal cases, see §§ 15-163, 15-164.

Challenges for Cause.—The causes of challenge to the juror are so numerous as to be described by Lord Coke as "infinite." It has been held in many cases that the right is given to afford a litigant fair opportunity to remove objectionable jurors, and was not intended to enable them to select a jury of his own choosing. See Blevins v. Mills, 150 N. C. 493, 64 S. E. 428. A few of the most common grounds for challenge will be set out. Chief of these, perhaps, is expression of opinion. This is sometimes ground for challenge, but is not if the juror states that the opinion could be eliminated and a fair and impartial verdict rendered. State v. Bailey, 179 N. C. 724, 102 S. E. 406; State v. Winder, 183 N. C. 776, 111 S. E. 530. The challenge for this cause can be made only by that party against whom the opinion was formed and expressed. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196.

A juror may be examined as to opinions honestly formed, and honestly expressed, manifesting a bias of judgment, not referable to personal partiality, or malevolence; but if the opinion has been made up and expressed under circumstances which involve dishonor and guilt, and where such expression may be visited with punishment, he ought not to be required to testify so as to criminate himself. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196; State v. Mills, 91 N. C. 581.

Other grounds for challenge, briefly enumerated, are relation within the ninth degree of affinity (State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 6 S. E. 657); opposition to capital punishment (State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626); nonresidence (State v. Bullock, 63 N. C. 570; State v. Upton, 170 N. C. 769, 87 S. E. 328); employment by party (Oliphant v. Ry. Co., 171 N. C. 303, 88 S. E. 425.) But in an indictment for illegal sale of liquor, challenges for cause, in that the jurors belonged to the Anti-Saloon League, were properly disallowed, where the jurors had taken no part in prosecuting or aiding in the prosecution of the defendant. State v. Sultan, 142 N. C. 569, 54 S. E. 84.

Time of Challenge.—The court may, in its discretion, permit a juror to be challenged by the State for cause, after he has been tendered to the defendant and before the jury is impaneled. State v. Green, 95 N. C. 611.

Excusing Unchallenged Juror.—The trial judge may excuse a juror, before the jury is impaneled, although the solicitor has passed him to the prisoner and has not challenged him for cause. State v. Vick, 132 N. C. 995, 43 S. E. 626.

Method of Taking Advantage of Error.—The action of a trial judge in determining the qualifications of a juror, if erroneous, is ground for a challenge to the array by a motion to quash and set aside the entire panel, and in the absence of such challenge a defendant cannot be allowed to take advantage of the alleged error after trial and judgment. State v. Moore, 120 N. C. 570, 26 S. E. 697.

§ 9-15. Questioning jurors without challenge.—The court, or any party to an action, civil or criminal, shall be allowed, in selecting the jury to make inquiry as to the fitness and competency of any person to serve as a juror, without having such inquiry treated as a challenge of such person, and it shall not be considered by the court that any person is challenged as a juror until the party shall formally state that such person is so challenged. (1913, c. 31, s. 6; C. S. 2325.)

§ 9-16. Causes of challenge to juror drawn from box.—It shall not be a valid cause of challenge that a juror called from those whose names are drawn from the box is not a freeholder or has served upon the jury within two years prior to the court at which the case is tried or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years. In other respects the cause of challenge shall be the same as now provided by law, and nothing herein shall modify any law authorizing jurors to be summoned from counties other than the county of trial. (1913, c. 31, ss. 5, 7; 1933, c. 130; C. S. 2326.)

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 218, for discussion as to effect of the 1933 amendment to this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 130, inserted, at the end of the first sentence of this section, the clause "or has not paid the taxes assessed against him during the preceding two years."

§ 9-17. Jurors impaneled to try case furnished with accommodations.—When a jury, impaneled to try any cause, is put in charge of an officer of the court, the said officer shall furnish said jury with such accommodation as the court may order, and the same shall be paid for by the party cast or by the county, under the order and in the discretion of the judge of the court. (Rev., s. 1978; Code, s. 1736; 1876-7, c. 173; 1889, c. 44; C. S. 2327.)

Effect on Verdict of Refusal to Furnish Refreshments.—Where a jury retired at 11 a. m., to consider their verdict, which was returned at 3 p. m. such verdict cannot be impeached because the sheriff declined to give them refreshments, except water, until they agreed on a verdict, or until the judge should tell him to take them to dinner. Gaither v. Generator Co., 121 N. C. 384, 28 S. E. 546.

§ 9-18. Exemption from civil arrest.—No sheriff or other officer shall arrest under civil process any juror during his attendance on or going to and returning from any court of record. All such service shall be void, and the defendant on motion shall be discharged. (Rev., s. 1979; Code, s. 1735; R. C., c. 31, s. 31; 1779, c. 157, s. 10; C. S. 2328.)

Section Does Not Repeal Common-Law Exemption.—This section does not by implication repeal the common-law exemption of nonresidents from service of process while in the State in attendance in court either as witnesses or as suitors. Cooper v. Wyman, 122 N. C. 784, 29 S. E. 947. See, also, Greenlief v. Peoples Bank, 133 N. C. 292, 45 S. E. 638.

§ 9-19. Exemptions from jury duty.—All practicing physicians, licensed druggists, telegraph operators who are in the regular employ of any telegraph company or railroad company, train dispatchers who have the actual handling of either freight or passenger trains, regularly licensed pilots, regular ministers of the gospel, officers or employees of a state hospital for the insane, active members of a fire company, funeral directors and embalmers, printers and linotype operators, all millers of grist mills, all United States railway postal clerks and rural free delivery mail carriers, locomotive engineers, brakemen and railroad conductors in active service, radio broadcast technicians, announcers, and optometrists, and all members of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, who comply with and perform all duties required of them as members of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, shall be exempt from service as jurors. On the first day of January and July of each year, the commanding officer of each company, troop, battery, detachment, or division of the national guard, naval militia, officers reserve corps, enlisted reserve corps, and the naval reserves, of North Carolina, shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such company, troop, battery, detachment, or division is located a statement giving the name and rank of each member of his organization who has performed all military duties during the preceding six months; and any member of such military organization whose name does not appear upon such statement shall not receive the benefit of the exemption provided for herein during the six months immediately following the filing of the statement.

The board of county commissioners of any county in North Carolina may, in their discretion, exempt any ex-confederate soldier in their county from jury duty who shall apply to them for exemption.

The clerk of the superior court of each county is hereby empowered to excuse from jury duty any person or persons exempt under the first sentence of this section prior to the convening of the term of court for which such person or persons are required to serve as jurors. (Rev., s. 1980; Code, ss. 1723, 2269; 1885, c. 289; 1889, c. 255; 1897, c. 32; 1901, c. 118; 1909, cc. 333, 868; 1913, c. 38, s. 1; 1913, c. 103; 1915, cc. 217, 228, 260; 1917, c. 200, s. 89; 1931, c. 410; 1937, c. 151; 1937, c. 224, s. 2; 1943, c. 343; C. S. 2329, 6870.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added "brakemen" to the first paragraph of this section.

The first 1937 amendment added the last paragraph. And the second 1937 amendment made the section applicable to the officers reserve corps, the enlisted reserve corps and the naval reserves.

The 1943 amendment made the section applicable to radio broadcast technicians, announcers and optometrists.

Exemption Not a Contract.—Exemption from jury duty is not a contract, but a mere privilege, and may be revoked by the Legislature at any time. State v. Cantwell, 142 N. C. 604, 55 S. E. 820.

§ 9-20. Clerk to keep record of jurors.—The clerk of the superior court shall record alphabetically in a book kept for the purpose the names of all grand and petit jurors and talesmen who serve in his court, with the term at which they serve. (Rev., s. 1981; 1893, c. 52, s. 3; C. S. 2330.)

§ 9-21. Extra or alternate juror; challenges; compensation and duties.—In the trial in the Superior Court of any case, civil or criminal, when it appears to the judge presiding that the trial is likely to be protracted, upon direction of the judge after the jury has been duly impaneled and sworn, an additional or alternate juror shall be selected in the same manner as the regular jurors in said case were selected, but each party shall be entitled to two peremptory challenges as to such alternate juror; such additional or alternate juror shall likewise be sworn and seated near the jury, with equal opportunity for seeing and hearing the proceedings and shall attend at all times upon the trial with the jury and shall obey all orders and admonitions of the court to the jury and, when the jurors are ordered kept together in any case, said alternate juror shall be kept with them. Such additional or alternate juror shall be liable as a regular juror for failure to attend the trial or to obey any order or admonition of the court to the jury, shall receive the same compensation as other jurors, and except as hereinafter provided shall be discharged upon the final submission of the case to the jury. If before the final submission of the case to the jury a juror becomes incapacitated or disqualified, or by reason of illness or death in his family, or other sufficient reason in the opinion of the court, he may be discharged by the judge, in which case, or if a juror dies, upon the order of the judge said additional or alternate juror shall become one of the jury and serve in all respects as though selected as an original juror. (1931, c. 103; 1939, c. 35.)

Editor's Note.—In 9 N. C. L. Rev. 378, this statute and its background are discussed.

The 1939 amendment inserted in the last sentence the words "or by reason of illness or death in his family, or other sufficient reason in the opinion of the court."

Constitutional.—The essential attributes of trial by jury guaranteed by Art. I, sec. 13, are the number of jurors, their impartiality and a unanimous verdict, and this section does not infringe upon same, the alternate not being technically a juror until a member of the jury has died or been discharged and the alternate is made a juror by order of the court, and the verdict being finally returned by the unanimous verdict of twelve good and lawful men. State v. Dalton, 206 N. C. 507, 174 S. E. 422.

Applied in State v. Broom, 222 N. C. 324, 22 S. E. (2d) 926.

Art. 3. Peremptory Challenges in Civil Cases.

§ 9-22. Six peremptory challenges on each side.

—The clerk, before a jury is impaneled to try the issues in any civil suit, shall read over the names of the jury upon the panel in the presence and hearing of the parties or their counsel; and the parties, or their counsel for them, may challenge peremptorily six jurors upon the said panel, without showing any cause therefor, which shall be allowed by the court. (Rev., s. 1964; Code, s. 406; R. C., c. 31, s. 35; 1796, c. 452, s. 2; 1812, c. 833; 1935, c. 475, s. 1; C. S. 2331.)

Cross References.—As to challenge of alternate juror, see § 9-21. As to peremptory challenges in a criminal case, see §§ 15-163 and 15-164.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1935 the number of peremptory challenges was increased from four to six.

In General.—As in the case of challenges for cause, the right is given to challenge but such right does not constitute the right to select jurors. Ives v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 131, 137, 55 S. E. 74; Medlin v. Simpson, 144 N. C. 397, 57 S. E. 24.

Reasons for Challenge Need Not Be Given.—A party's reason for peremptorily challenging can not be inquired into. Dupree v. Ins. Co., 92 N. C. 418.

More Parties than One.—Whether there are one or more plaintiffs or defendants, only four (now six) peremptory challenges to the jury on either side are allowable. Bryan v. Harrison, 76 N. C. 360.

After Acceptance.—Where a juror has been accepted it is error to permit a peremptory challenge. Dunn v. Railroad, 141 N. C. 446, 42 S. E. 862.

§ 9-23. Where several defendants; challenges apporportioned; discretion of judge.—When there are two or more defendants in a civil action the judge presiding at the trial, if it appears to the court that there are divers and antagonistic interests between the defendants, may in his discretion apportion among the defendants the challenges now allowed by law to defendants, or he may increase the number of challenges to not exceeding four to each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. In either event, the same number of challenges shall be allowed each defendant or class of defendants representing the same interest. The decision of the judge as to the nature of the interests and number of challenges shall be final. (Rev., s. 1965; 1905, c. 357; C. S. 2332.)

Art. 4. Grand Jurors.

§ 9-24. How grand jury drawn.—The judges of the superior court, at the terms of their courts, except those terms which are for the trial of civil cases exclusively, and special terms for which no grand jury has been ordered, shall direct the names of all persons returned as jurors to be written on scrolls of paper and put into a box or hat and drawn out by a child under ten years of age; whereof the first eighteen drawn shall be a grand jury for the court; and the residue shall serve as petit jurors for the court. (Rev., s. 1969; Code, s. 404; R. C., c. 31, s. 33; 1779, c. 157, s. 11; C. S. 2333.)

Twelve Jurors Sufficient.—Eighteen jurors are not necessary to the finding of an indictment, but twelve are sufficient in North Carolina as at common law. State v. Stewart, 189 N. C. 340, 127 S. E. 260.

Wilson County.—Chapter 189, Public-Local Laws 1937, providing that the board of county commissioners of Wilson county shall select grand juries in the county "in the manner prescribed by law," merely empowers the board to draw grand juries in the manner prescribed by this section, and the act is a valid exercise of legislative power. State v. Peacock, 220 N. C. 63, 16 S. E. (2d) 452.

§ 9-25. Grand juries in certain counties.—At the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held for the counties of Craven, Gaston, Guilford, Mecklenburg, Moore, Pitt, Richmond, New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, Lenoir, Columbus, Nash, Johnston, Vance, Wayne, Iredell, and Wake, grand juries shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge them as provided by law, and they shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms, respectively. In the event of vacancies occurring in the grand jury of Pitt county, the judge holding the court of said county may, in his discretion, order a new juror drawn to take the oaths prescribed and to fill any vacancy occurring thereon.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland and Lenoir counties may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over either the criminal or civil court of New Hanover, McDowell, Durham, Cumberland, or Lenoir counties may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall or spring term. The first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of Cumberland and Lenoir counties for the trial of criminal causes in the year of one thousand nine hundred twenty-two shall serve during the spring and fall terms, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter, nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year.

The first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of McDowell County for the trial of criminal cases after January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, shall serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified.

At any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said jury an additional charge. The said judge presiding over the criminal court of Columbus county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said fall and spring term.

Every grand juror drawn and summoned in Robeson county shall serve for a period of twelve months.

At the spring term of the criminal court held for the county of Gates, and for the county of Henderson, grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge them as provided by law, and they shall serve for twelve (12) months: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county or Henderson county may call said jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over the criminal courts of Gates county and of Henderson county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, and may cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve during the remainder of the said twelve (12) months: Provided, further, that the first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the fall term of the superior court of Gates County for the trial of criminal cases in the year one thousand nine hundred and forty-three shall serve during the fall and spring terms, and at the spring and fall terms thereafter, nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year.

At the April term of superior court held for the county of Hoke a grand jury shall be drawn, the presiding judge shall charge it as provided by law, and it shall serve until the following April term, Hoke superior court: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge: Provided further, that the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn, which shall serve out the unfinished year.

If it should appear to the board of commissioners of Union county, thirty days before the beginning of the term of superior court that begins on the third Monday after the first Monday in March, that the condition of the criminal docket, and the number of prisoners in jail, make it necessary that said March term should be used as a criminal term, the said board of commissioners are authorized and empowered within their discretion to draw a grand jury for said term, and to give thirty days' notice in some local paper that criminal cases would be tried at said term, and all criminal process and undertakings returnable to a subsequent term shall be returnable to said March term. A grand jury for Union county shall be selected at each January term of the superior court in the usual manner by the presiding judge, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

In the selection of a grand jury for Bertie County for the fall term of one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven and annually thereafter, there shall be drawn and summoned forty men, in the same manner as now provided by law, from which a grand jury of eighteen shall be selected by the presiding judge of the superior court, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

The persons drawn for service in the grand jury at the term at which said grand jury is selected, and who are not selected to serve on the grand jury, shall serve on the petit jury for the week of the term at which the grand jury is selected: Provided, that at other terms of the Superior Court of Bertie County, both civil and criminal, there shall be drawn and summoned, in the manner now provided by law, twenty persons from which the jury for the term of court for which they are drawn shall be selected.

At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in Durham county after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said grand jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said grand jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first regular and not special term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year.

The grand jurors for Davidson County shall be drawn at the first fall and spring terms of the criminal courts held in the County of Davidson, and the judge shall charge them as provided by law, and the jurors so drawn shall serve during the remaining fall and spring terms respectively.

In the event of any vacancy occurring in the grand jury of Johnston, Wayne or Iredell County by death, removal from the county, sickness, or otherwise, the presiding judge may, in his discretion, order such vacancy, or vacancies, filled by drawing sufficient jurors to fill said vacancy or vacancies from the jury box, and said juror or jurors so drawn shall take the oath prescribed by law and shall fill out the unexpired term of the juror or jurors whose places they were drawn to fill. The presiding judge shall have the power, in his discretion, to appoint an assistant-foreman of the grand jury in the counties of Johnston, Wayne and Iredell and said assistant-foreman so appointed shall, in the absence or disqualification of the foreman, discharge the duties of the foreman of said grand jury.

At the first term of court for the trial of criminal cases in New Hanover County after the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven, there shall be chosen a grand jury as now provided by law, and the first nine members of said jury chosen at said term shall serve for a term of one year, and the second nine members of said jury so chosen shall serve for a term of six months, and thereafter at the first term of criminal court after the first days of January and July of each year there shall be chosen nine members of said grand jury to serve for a term of one year.

At each August term of the superior court hereafter held for the county of Scotland the grand jury drawn as now provided by law shall be charged by the presiding judge as provided by law, and said grand jury shall serve until the next succeeding March term of the superior court for Scotland County and until its successor has been drawn and has qualified; at each March term of the superior court hereafter held for the county of Scotland the grand jury drawn as now provided by law shall be charged by the presiding judge as provided by law, and said grand jury shall serve until the next succeeding August term of the superior court for Scotland County and until its successor has been drawn and has qualified; said grand jury shall attend every term of the superior court held in said county in which criminal cases may under the law be tried during the term of service of said grand jury and until it has been discharged; at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal, civil, or mixed terms of court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge; the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal, civil, or mixed terms of court in said county may at any time discharge said grand jury from further service, in which event he shall cause a new grand jury to be drawn and qualified, which shall serve out the unexpired term of said grand jury so discharged; said grand jury shall be subject to call for session and service at any time by the presiding judge, the solicitor of the district, or the foreman of said grand jury.

While in session or otherwise actually engaged in the performance of their duties as members of said grand jury, the members thereof shall be paid and compensated as follows: Three dollars per day shall be paid the foreman and two dollars per day shall be paid to other members of said grand jury.

A grand jury for Cabarrus County shall be selected at each January term of the superior court in the usual manner by the presiding judge, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

A grand jury for Montgomery County shall be selected at each July term of the superior court in the usual manner, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of their selection.

A grand jury for Rowan County shall be selected at the one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven May term of criminal court to serve until the February term of said court in one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight, and at each February term of criminal court a grand jury for Rowan County shall be selected in the usual manner by the presiding judge, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of its selection: Provided, in case of removal from the county, sickness, death or other cause a juror or jurors become disqualified, the presiding judge may in his discretion select in the usual manner a juror or jurors to fill such vacancy or vacancies, which said juror or jurors selected shall fill out the unexpired term of such juror or jurors disqualified; and, Provided further, the presiding judge may in his discretion at any term discharge said grand jury in whole or in part and cause another to be selected.

The first nine members of the grand jury chosen at the first term of the superior court of Caldwell County for the trial of criminal cases after May first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, shall serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified, and at the first of such courts of the fall and spring terms thereafter nine additional jurors shall be chosen to serve for one year and until their successors are chosen and qualified.

A grand jury for Lincoln County shall be selected at each January term of the superior court in the usual manner by the presiding judge, which said grand jury shall serve for a period of one year from the time of its selection: Provided, that at any time the judge of the superior court presiding over either criminal or civil court in said county may call said grand jury to assemble and may deliver unto said grand jury an additional charge. (1913, c. 196; 1917, cc. 116, 118; 1919, cc. 113, 187; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 39; 1921, cc. 18, 55, 69, 72; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 15; 1923, cc. 11, 15, 104, 115; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 28; 1925, c. 24; 1927, c. 78; Pub. Loc. 1927, cc. 80, 162; 1929, c. 52, ss. 1, 2; 1929, cc. 122, 133; 1931, cc. 43, 97, 130, 131, 237; 1933, cc. 29, 92, 138; 1935, cc. 5, 41; 1937, cc. 21, 77, 78, 372; 1939, c. 26; 1943, cc. 50, 51, 613; C. S. 2334.)

§ 9-26. Exceptions for disqualifications. — All exceptions to grand jurors for and on account of their disqualifications shall be taken before the jury is sworn and impaneled to try the issue, by motion to quash the indictment, and if not so taken, the same shall be deemed to be waived. But no indictment shall be quashed, nor shall judgment thereon be arrested, by reason of the fact that any member of the grand jury finding such bills of indictment had not paid his taxes for the preceding year, or was a party to any suit pending and at issue. (Rev., s. 1970; Code, s. 1741; 1907, c. 36, s. 1; C. S. 2335.)

Grand Jury of Twelve Men.—An indictment found by a grand jury of twelve men is good, provided all of the twelve concur in finding the bill. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

Duty of Grand Jurors.—It is not only the right but it is the duty of grand jurors, of their own motion, to originate prosecutions by making presentments of all violations of law which have come under the personal observation or knowledge of each juror, or of which they have credible information. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 10 S. E. 453.

A party litigant does not have the right to select jurors, but only to challenge or reject them. State v. Peacock, 220 N. C. 63, 16 S. E. (2d) 452.

Grand Juror also Member of Petit Jury.—The fact that a member of the grand jury which returned a true bill for perjury was one of the petit jury that tried the issues in an action wherein it was charged the perjury was committed, is not good ground for abating or quashing the indictment. He was bound by his oath as a grand juror to communicate to his fellows the information he had acquired as a petit juror. State v. Wilcox, 104 N. C. 847, 19 S. E. 433.

Grand Juror Having Suit Pending.—The fact that one of the grand jurors who found a true bill had at that time a suit pending and at issue in the same court is sufficient ground to support a motion to quash the indictment, if the motion is made in apt time. State v. Gardner, 104 N. C. 739, 10 S. E. 146.

Son of Prosecutor Member of Grand Jury.—The fact that the son of the prosecutor, in an indictment for larceny, was a member of the grand jury, and actively participated in finding the bill, did not vitiate the indictment, and it was error to quash it on that ground. State v. Sharp, 110 N. C. 604, 14 S. E. 504.

Absence of Negroes from Grand Jury.—It is no ground to quash an indictment because it was found by a grand jury drawn from a venire in which there were no colored freeholders. The jury list, as constituted by the county court in accordance with the law in force at the time of its constitution, did not contain the names of such colored freeholders. State v. Taylor, 61 N. C. 508. See also State v. Daniels, 134 N. C. 641, 46 S. E. 743.

The exclusion of all persons of the negro race from a grand jury, which finds an indictment against a negro, where they are excluded solely because of their race or color, denies him the equal protection of the laws in violation of the Constitution of the United States. State v. Peoples, 131 N. C. 784, 42 S. E. 814.

Indictment Not Quashed for Failure to Pay Taxes.—Formerly, it was discretionary with the trial judge to allow or refuse a motion to quash because a grand juror had not paid his taxes after entry of plea until the petit jury was sworn and impaneled, and a motion to quash after entry of plea was made too late as a matter of right. This is changed by the amendment of 1907 adding the last sentence of this section. State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 63 S. E. 84.

The passage of this section, immediately following the decision of this court in Breese v. United States, 143 F. 250, was evidently for the purpose of removing the disqualification of grand jurors, based upon failure to pay taxes for the preceding year, in case where they actually serve upon the grand jury and pass upon bills of indictment; and there is no reason why it should not be given this interpretation. Davis v. United States, 49 F. (2d) 269, 270.

Members of Grand Jury Summoned by Mistake.—While, generally, the provisions of the statute for drawing and summoning jurors are directory, the grand jury is illegally constituted when one whose name was not drawn from the boxes was summoned by mistake, and served by mistake. State v. Paramore, 146 N. C. 604, 60 S. E. 502.

When Competency of Grand Jury Excepted to.—Matters which go to the incompetency of a grand jury may be excepted to after the bill is found, if it is done at the earliest opportunity afterwards, which clearly is upon the arraignment, when the defendant is first called upon to answer. State v. Griffee, 74 N. C. 316.

A motion to quash an indictment, made upon arraignment and before pleading, for that the grand jury was improperly constituted, is in apt time. State v. Paramore, 146 N. C. 604, 60 S. E. 502.

Qualifications Judged at Time of Service.—The fact that a grand juror was a minor when his name was put on the jury list is immaterial if he was of age at the time he served. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1018, 29 S. E. 384.

§ 9-27. Foreman may administer oaths to witnesses.—The foreman of every grand jury duly sworn and impaneled in any of the courts has power to administer oaths and affirmations to persons to be examined before it as witnesses: Provided, that the said foreman shall not administer such oath or affirmation to any person except those whose names are endorsed on the bill of indictment by the officer prosecuting in behalf of the state, or by direction of the court. The foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the bill the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury. In case of the absence of the foreman, or in case of his inability to serve, the presiding Judge shall appoint an acting foreman, who shall have all powers vested by law in the foreman. (Rev., s. 1971; Code, s. 1742; 1879, c. 12; 1929, c. 228; C. S. 2336.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last sentence to this section.

Section Not Exclusive.—This section, authorizing the foreman of the grand jury to swear witnesses to be examined before the jury, is directory merely. The fact that witnesses are sworn by the clerk of court rather than by the foreman is not grounds for arresting judgment or quashing an indictment. State v. Allen, 83 N. C. 680; State v. White, 88 N. C. 698.

Section Directory Merely.—The provision of the section, providing that the foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the indictment the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury, is directory merely, and the omission of the foreman to comply therewith is no ground for quashing the bill, where the proof is that the witnesses were sworn. State v. Hines, 84 N. C. 810. See State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 163 S. E. 806; State v. Lancaster, 210 N. C. 584, 187 S. E. 802.

This section requiring the foreman of the grand jury, when the oath is administered by him, to mark on the bill the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury is directory, and the fact that it does not appear by indorsement on a bill that the witness had been sworn and examined is no ground for quashing the indictment or arresting the judgment. State v. Hollingsworth, 100 N. C. 535, 6 S. E. 417.

No Indorsement Necessary.—No indorsement on a bill of indictment by the grand jury is necessary. The record that it was presented by the grand jury is sufficient in the absence of evidence to impeach it. State v. Sultan, 142 N. C. 569, 54 S. E. 841, overruling State v. McBroom, 127 N. C. 528, 37 S. E. 193.

Witnesses Not Re-Examined.—Where an indictment upon which witnesses had been examined was returned by the grand jury "a true bill," and quashed because it did not sufficiently charge the offense intended, and thereupon a new bill for the offense was sent and returned into court, "a true bill," without a re-examination of the witnesses, this bill should be quashed. State v. Ivey, 100 N. C. 539, 5 S. E. 407.

§ 9-28. Grand jury to visit jail and county home.—Every grand jury, while the court is in session, shall visit the county home for the aged and infirm, the workhouse, if there is one, and the jail, examine the same, and especially the apartments in which inmates and prisoners shall be confined; and they shall report to the court the condition thereof and of the inmates and prisoners confined therein, and also the manner in which the jailer or superintendent has discharged his duties. (Rev., s. 1972; Code, s. 785; R. C., c. 30, s. 3; 1816, c. 911, s. 3; C. S. 2337.)

Art. 5. Special Venire.

§ 9-29. Special venire to sheriff in capital cases.

—When a judge of the superior court deems it necessary to a fair and impartial trial of any person charged with a capital offense, he may issue to the sheriff of the county in which the trial may be a special writ of venire facias, commanding him to summon such number of persons qualified to act as jurors in said county as the judge may deem sufficient (such number being designated in the writ), to appear on some specified day of the term as jurors of said court; and the sheriff shall forthwith execute the writ and return it to the clerk of the court on the day when it is returnable, with the names of the jurors summoned. (Rev., s. 1973; Code, s. 1738; R. C., c. 35, s. 30; 1830, c. 27; 1913, c. 31, s. 1; C. S. 2338.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty on sheriff who fails to execute writ, see § 9-31.

Discretion of Judge.—It is in the discretion of the trial judge to order a special venire in capital cases and determine its number, which he may likewise change by another order. State v. Brodgen, 111 N. C. 656, 16 S. E. 170.

The trial judge has the discretionary power to issue a writ of venire facias, instead of directing the jurors to be drawn from the jury box, and the court's action in issuing the writ is not reviewable in the absence of abuse of discretion. State v. Casey, 212 N. C. 352, 193 S. E. 411.

An objection by a prisoner charged with capital offense, that the special venire was summoned by the sheriff as prescribed by this section instead of being drawn from the jury box as prescribed by section 9-30, is untenable since the latter method is purely discretionary. State v. Smarr, 121 N. C. 669, 28 S. E. 549.

The ordering of a special venire where the prisoner is charged with a capital offense, and the manner in which it shall be summoned or drawn, when so ordered, whether selected by the sheriff under this section, or drawn from the box under section 9-30, are both discretionary with the judge of the superior court, and unless an objection goes to the whole panel of jurors, it may not be taken advantage of by a challenge to the array, unless there is partiality or misconduct of the sheriff shown, or some irregularity in making out the list. State v. Levy, 187 N. C. 581, 122 S. E. 386.

Juror May Have Served Within Two Years.—A juror summoned on a special venire is not rendered incompetent because he has served on the jury in the same court within two years. Only tales jurors come within the proviso of sec. 9-11 and, in order that they may be disqualified, it must appear that they have not only been summoned, but have acted as jurors within that time. State v. Whitfield, 92 N. C. 831.

Special Venire Selected without Partiality.—A challenge to the array on the ground that the sheriff and his deputies, under instructions by the sheriff, selected for the special venire freeholders of good character, who had not served on the jury within the past two years and who lived in townships in the county other than the township in which the crime was committed and townships contiguous thereto, is properly refused, the instructions of the sheriff being in compliance with this section, and the action of the sheriff and the deputies showing no partiality, misconduct and irregularity in making out the list. State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 438, 2 S. E. (2d) 371.

Special Venire Selected without Regard to Color.—It is no ground of exception that a special venire was selected from the freeholders of the county without regard to color, no reference having been had to the jury list constituted by the county court. State v. Taylor, 61 N. C. 508.

Accessory May Be Tried by Special Venire.—Where two persons are indicted for murder, one as principal and the other as accessory before the fact, the latter may be tried by a jury selected from a special venire ordered in the case. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

Challenge for Cause.—Under this section where a special venire has been ordered by the court for the trial of a capital felony, the veniremen, being selected by the sheriff in his discretion, not from the jury box, are subject to the same challenges for cause as tales jurors. State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 163 S. E. 806.

§ 9-30. Drawn from jury box in court by judge's order.—When a judge deems a special venire necessary, he may, at his discretion, issue an order to the clerk of the board of commissioners for the county, commanding him to bring into open court forthwith the jury boxes of the county, and he shall cause the number of scrolls as designated by him to be drawn from box number one by a child under ten years of age. The names so drawn shall constitute the special venire, and the clerk of the superior court shall insert their names in the writ of venire, and deliver the same to the sheriff of the county, and the persons named in the writ and no others shall be summoned by the sheriff. If the special venire is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the judge shall order another special venire until the jury has been chosen. The scrolls containing the names of the persons drawn as jurors from box number one shall, after the jury is chosen, be placed in box number two, and if box number one is exhausted before the jury is chosen, the drawing shall be completed from box number two after the same has been well shaken. (Rev., s. 1974; Code, s. 1739; 1897, c. 364; 1913, c. 31, s. 2; C. S. 2339.)

Cross Reference.—As to qualification of jurors, see § 9-1 and annotations thereto.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 219.

Editor's Note.—Formerly special veniremen were required to be freeholders, but in 1913 this requirement was omitted.

For cases decided under the former rule, see State v. Moore, 120 N. C. 565, 26 S. E. 629; State v. Kilgore, 93 N. C. 533. See, also, State v. Freeman, 100 N. C. 429, 5 S. E. 921.

Method of Drawing Directory.—The regulations as to drawing a special venire may be directory, but they should be strictly observed. However, failure to follow the directions of the statute will not invalidate the panel in the absence of bad faith or other adequate cause. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 43 S. E. 830.

The practice of drawing the venire from the box is commended. State v. Brogden, 111 N. C. 656, 16 S. E. 170.

The drawing of the jury from the box is authorized by this section, and is favored by the courts, though the requirement is not mandatory. State v. Whitson, 111 N. C. 695, 697, 16 S. E. 332.

Discretion of Judge.—See notes to § 9-29.

How Jurors Drawn.—On the trial of a capital case, the names of the jurors of the original panel should be first put into the box and drawn, before those of the tales jurors are put in and drawn; and the jurors summoned under a special venire facias are in this respect to be regarded as talesmen. State v. Benton, 19 N. C. 196.

Special Venire Exhausted.—When a special venire is exhausted without completing the jury, the court may order a further venire to be summoned at once from the bystanders. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

Matters Affecting Entire Panel.—In the absence of any allegation that the sheriff acted corruptly or with partiality in summoning the venire, or that anything had been done affecting "the integrity and fairness of the entire panel," it is not a ground of challenge to the array that the sheriff failed to summon several of the special venire, drawn from the jury box or that the jury box was not revised by the county commissioners. State v. Stanton, 118 N. C. 1182, 24 S. E. 536.

The integrity and fairness of the entire panel of jurors summoned in obedience to a writ of special venire are not affected by the fact that one man named in the writ had removed from the county and that another named therein was dead when the jury list was revised by the commissioners. Neither are they affected by the fact that one of these named on the venire was not summoned, nor by the fact that the Sheriff in copying the list of the venire furnished him omitted, by mistake, the name of one who in consequence was not summoned. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.

§ 9-31. Penalty on sheriff not executing writ or jurors not attending.—If any sheriff fails duly to execute and return such writ of venire facias, he shall be fined by the court not exceeding one hundred dollars. All jurors so summoned shall attend until discharged by the court, under the same rules and penalties as are prescribed for other jurors. (Rev., ss. 1975, 3602; Code, s. 1740; R. C., c. 35, s. 31; 1830, c. 27, s. 2; C. S. 2340.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules and penalties prescribed for other jurors, see § 9-10 et seq.

Amendment of Return on Writ.—Where a sheriff, in making his return on a writ and list of special venire, endorsed thereon, "Received October 15, 1893, executed October 30, 1893, by summoning one hundred and fifty men," it was within the discretion of the court, at the term to which the writ was returnable, to permit an amendment of the return so as to show those of the list furnished him by the clerk who were actually summoned, and those not summoned, with the reasons why they were not. State v. Whitt, 113 N. C. 716, 18 S. E. 715.

Chapter 10. Notaries.

Sec.

- 10-1. Appointment and commission; term of offices; revocation of commission.
- 10-2. To qualify before clerk; record of qualification.
- 10-3. Clerks notaries ex officio; may certify own seals.
- 10-4. Powers of notaries.
- 10-5. Notaries public, who are stockholders, etc.,

Sec

- permitted to take acknowledgments, administer oaths, etc.
- 10-6. May exercise powers in any county.
- 10-7. Expiration of commission to be stated after signature.
- 10-8. Fees of notaries.
- 10-9. Notarial seal.
- 10-10. Acts of minor notaries validated.

§ 10-1. Appointment and commission; term of office; revocation of commission.—The governor may, from time to time, at his discretion, appoint one or more fit persons in every county to act as notaries public, and shall issue to each a commission. They shall hold their office for two years from and after the date of their appointment.

Any commission so issued by the Governor or his predecessor, shall be revokable by him in his discretion upon complaint being made against such notary public and when he shall be satisfied that the interest of the public will be best served by the revocation of said commission.

Whenever the Governor shall have revoked the commission of any notary public appointed by him, or his predecessor in office, it shall be his duty to file with the clerk of the court in the county of such notary public a copy of said order and mail a copy of same to said notary public.

Any person holding himself out to the public as a notary public, or any person attempting to act in such capacity after his commission shall have been revoked by the Governor, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction be punishable in the discretion of the court, as provided for in other misdemeanors. (Rev., ss. 2347, 2348; Code, ss. 3304, 3305; 1927, c. 117; C. S. 3172.)

Cross References.—As to validating acknowledgments before notaries under age, see § 10-10. As to validation of defective acknowledgments before notaries public in certain conveyances, see §§ 47-52, 47-53, 47-102.

Editor's Note.—The Supreme Court, by a three to two decision, with the great Chief Justice Clark dissenting, held in State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 85 S. E. 418, that women could not hold the position of notary public in North Carolina. The Legislature had, at its previous session, enacted chapter 12, Laws 1915, as follows: "The Governor is hereby authorized to appoint women as well as men to be notaries public, and this position shall be deemed to be a place of trust and profit, and not an office." The Governor, acting upon this authority, issued his commission to Mrs. Noland Knight as a notary public. Thereafter a quo warranto proceeding was brought, averring that a notary public was not a place of trust and profit, as the Legislature has enacted, but was in truth an office, and therefore that the commission issued to her by the Chief Executive was a nullity because she was a woman. The action was brought before his Honor Judge Webb of the superior court, who declined to hold the commission void. The Supreme Court reversed the decision and held the act unconstitutional on the grounds that a notary public was a public office; that a woman was ineligible for public office under the Constitution; and that being a public office, that the Legislature could not change its character by simply making a change in its name. This was so held in spite of the fact that, as pointed out by Mr. Chief Justice Clark, there was no constitutional provision as to notaries public, and that the place was wholly a creature of legislative enactment. In Opinion of Justices, 165 Mass. 599, 601, 43 N. E. 927, 32 L. R. A. 350, the court said: "Where an office is created by statute . . . the qualifications required . . . are wholly within the control of the Legislature, unless there is some limitation put upon the Legislature by the Constitution." And in Bank v. Smith (Tenn.), 37 S. W. 1102, it was said: "All that is needed to enable one to be a de jure female notary public is an enabling act of the Legislature."

However correct or incorrect may have been the conclusion of the court in State v. Knight, supra, by the very reasoning in that case, women are now eligible as notaries public. Federal and State constitutional amendments now insure to women the right to the ballot on equal terms with men. Article VI, sec. 7, of the Constitution of North Carolina is as follows: "Every voter in North Carolina, except as in this article disqualified, shall be eligible to office," etc. Women are not included within the exceptions numbered. See Lee v. Dunn, 73 N. C. 595; Spruill v. Batemen, 162 N. C. 588, 77 S. E. 768. Therefore, since women can vote, and voters may hold office, and the position of notary public is a public office, it follows that women are eligible to the office of notary public.

Origin.—The office of notary public has long been known both to the civil and to the common law. State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 337, 85 S. E. 418; 29 Cyc. 1068.

In Loan Co. v. Turrell, 19 Ind. 469, it was said: "The office originated in the early Roman jurisprudence, and was known in England before the Conquest." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 338, 85 S. E. 418.

Same—Recognized as an Officer.—That the position was recognized as an office at common law is shown by the following, taken from 5 Comyn's Dig., 140, when speaking of protests of bills of exchange: "The protest must be made by a public notary upon all foreign bills of exchange, because he is a public officer to whom credit is given"; and by the opinion of Buller, J., in Lefty v. Mills, 4 T. R., 175 (1791), that "The demand of a foreign bill must be made by a notary public, to whom credit is given, because he is a public officer." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 337, 85 S. E. 418.

Present Status.—In Ashcraft v. Chapman, 38 Conn. 232, Chief Justice Butler says: "Notaries were originally mere commercial scribes. Becoming important to the commercial world, their appointment was provided for and their duties regulated by public law, and they became sworn public officers." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 338, 85 S. E. 418. See also, 21 A. and E. Enc. Law, 555.

It is in most of the states a state office, although in few states it has been regarded as a county office, and its functions, once simple, have now a wider scope. State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 337, 85 S. E. 418.

Who Eligible.—In U. S. v. Bixby, 10 Bizzell, 520, it was held by Gresham, J., that "at common law a minor is eligible to the position of notary public." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 358, 85 S. E. 418.

After the passage of Chapter 12, Laws 1915 an official inquiry was instituted as to the status of notary public in the other states. The replies from their judicial departments show that out of the fifty-three jurisdictions in the United States (i. e., forty-eight States, the District of Columbia, and the territories of Alaska, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines) women are competent to be notaries public in all except ten, and in those ten they were held incompetent either because, as in Massachusetts, the Constitution had made the position an office or a statute had made it an office, or, as in a few of them, "it had not been the custom to admit women to hold the place, and there was no statute as yet authorizing them to fill the position." In no case was there found, or reported, a decision holding women incompetent to fill the place when there was a statute authorizing them to do so, or providing that the position was not an office. Outside of these ten States (of our fifty-three jurisdictions) there is no country which disqualifies a woman to hold the position of notary public. From dissenting opinion of Clark, C. J., in State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 359, 85 S. E. 418.

Same—In Virginia.—In Virginia, which naturally more nearly follows the English law than any other State in the Union, its Attorney-General says: "In this State any man or woman over 18 years of age can be a notary public." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 358, 85 S. E. 418.

Same—English Rule as to Women.—Sir John Simon, when Attorney-General of England, said: "No act of Parliament has ever disqualified women from holding the position of notary public in this country, and it is very certain that none such could be passed." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 358, 85 S. E. 418.

§ 10-2. To qualify before clerk; record of qualification.—Upon exhibiting their commissions to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which they are to act, the notaries shall be duly qualified by taking before said clerk an oath of office, and the oaths prescribed for officers. A certificate of the commission shall be deposited with the clerk and filed among the records, and he shall note on his minutes the qualification of the notary public. (Rev., ss. 2347, 2348; Code, ss. 3304, 3305; C. S. 3173.)

Cross References.—As to the oath prescribed for officers, see § 11-11. As to when an attorney is disqualified, see § 47-8.

§ 10-3. Clerks notaries ex officio; may certify own seals.—The clerks of the superior court may act as notaries public, in their several counties, by virtue of their office as clerks, and may certify their notarial acts under the seals of their respective courts. (Rev., s. 2349; Code, s. 3306; R. C., c. 75, s. 3; 1833, c. 7, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3174.)

A clerk of the superior court is, by virtue of his office, a notary public, and the taking of acknowledgments must be referred to the exercise of his notarial authority. Lawrence v. Hodges, 92 N. C. 672, 681.

§ 10-4. Powers of notaries.—Notaries public, in and out of the state, have power to take and certify the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds and other instruments of writing, to take depositions and to administer oaths and affirmations in matters incident or belonging to the duties of their office, and to take affidavits to be used before a court, judge or other officer, within the state, and have power to take the privy examination of femes covert. (Rev., s. 2350; Code, s. 3307; 1866, c. 30; 1879, c. 128; C. S. 3175.)

Cross Reference.—As to the taking of affidavits to be used before a court, see § 3-8.

Scope of Powers.—A notary public is recognized by the universal law of civilized and commercial nations; but his powers are confined to the authentication of commercial papers and to the protesting of bills of exchange and the like. Benedict, Hall & Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113, 114.

By statute in this State the powers of notaries public have been extended beyond those which were incident to the office by the universal law-merchant, and pertained to the presentment of bills of exchange for acceptance or payment and the protest thereof for nonpayment or refusal to accept; they may now take and certify the acknowledgment or proof of powers of attorney, mortgages, deeds and other instruments of writing, etc. Pipe and Foundry Co. v. Keith & Co., 114 N. C. 178, 184, 19 S. E. 109.

Duty in Taking Acknowledgments.—The notary is required "to take and certify the acknowledgment or proof" and this imposes upon him the duty of ascertaining (1) that the persons who present themselves are the grantors in the deed; (2) that they acknowledge the execution of it; (3) that the wife signed the deed freely and voluntarily, and that she voluntarily assents thereto. Young v. Jackson, 92 N. C. 144, 147; Darden v. Steamboat Co., 107 N. C. 434, 446, 12 S. E. 46; State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 343, 85 S. E. 418.

Acknowledgment Quasi Judicial Act.—An acknowledgment of a deed, taken before a notary public, is a judicial, or at least a quasi judicial, act. Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 18 S. E. 499.

Protest as Evidence.—The protest of a notary establishes the facts stated in it in respect to each and all of these points to the full extent the notary could do it if he were examined as a witness and were believed. Pipe and Foundry Co. v. Keith & Co., 114 N. C. 178, 184, 19 S. E. 109.

This was for convenience of commerce and to dispense with the necessity of bringing witnesses from a distance or of taking depositions to prove the facts certified to in the protest, the certificate being prima facie true. Elliott v. White, 51 N. C. 98; Pipe and Foundry Co. v. Keith & Co., 114 N. C. 178, 184, 19 S. E. 109.

Certificates of Probate Prima Facie Evidence.—With the extension of the powers of notaries to take probate of deeds, the same quality attaches to their certificates of probate or acknowledgment; it is prima facie evidence of the truth of its pertinent recitals. Pipe and Foundry Co. v. Keith & Co., 114 N. C. 178, 184, 19 S. E. 109.

Not Disqualified to Act Because Employee of Grantee.—A notary public is not disqualified to take acknowledgment of grantors and privy examination of married women to conveyances of land when he is an employee of the grantee, without any interest in the land conveyed. Smith v. Ayden Lumber Co., 144 N. C. 47, 56 S. E. 555.

Incurable Incompetency.—Where a notary public was interested in a deed of trust, he was disqualified to take the acknowledgment, his attempted action was a nullity, and such defect could not be cured by probate upon such acknowledgment before the clerk and registration. Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 18 S. E. 499.

§ 10-5. Notaries public, who are stockholders, etc., permitted to take acknowledgments, administer oaths, etc.—It shall be lawful for any notary public who is a stockholder, director, officer or employee of a bank or other corporation to take the acknowledgment of any party to any written instrument executed to or by such corporation, or to administer an oath to any other stockholder, director, officer, employee or agent of such corporation, or to protest for non-acceptance or non-payment bills of exchange, drafts, checks, notes and other negotiable instruments which may be owned or held for collection by such corporation: Provided, it shall be unlawful for any notary public to take the acknowledgment of an instrument executed by or to a bank or other corporation of which he is a stockholder, director, officer, or employee, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument, or to protest any negotiable instrument owned or held for collection by such corporation, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument. (1937, c. 183.)

Notaries public have full power and authority to perform the functions of their office in any and all counties of the state, and full faith and credit shall be given to any of their official acts where-soever the same shall be made and done. (Rev., s. 2351; 1891, c. 248; C. S. 3176.)

A notary public resident out of the State has no authority to take affidavits to be used in the courts of this State. Hall & Co. v. Hall, 76 N. C. 113, 114.

§ 10-7. Expiration of commission to be stated after signature.—Notaries public shall state after each official signature by them the date of the expiration of their commissions; but the failure to do so shall not thereby invalidate their official acts. (Rev., s. 2351a; C. S. 3177.)

§ 10-8. Fees of notaries.—Notaries public and other persons acting as such shall be allowed the sum of fifty cents for protesting for nonacceptance or for nonpayment, or for both when done at the same time, any order, draft, note, bond or bill or any other thing necessary to be protested, and the sum of ten cents for each notice sent in connection therewith. For other necessary services, where no fee is fixed, they shall be allowed twenty cents for every ninety words.

Cases of protest concerning vessels or other cargoes shall not be affected by this section. (Rev., s. 2800; Code, s. 3749; 1889, c. 446; 1895, c. 296; 1903, c. 734; C. S. 3178.)

The fees of notaries public are created and regulated by statute. Cider & Vinegar Co. v. Carroll, 124 N. C. 555, 559, 32 S. E. 959.

§ 10-9. Notarial seal.—Official acts by notaries public shall be attested by their notarial seals. (Rev., s. 2352; C. S. 3179.)

Cross Reference.—As to validation of deeds and probate and registration thereof where notarial seals have been omitted, see §§ 47-102 and 47-103.

Courts Take Judicial Notice.—It was said in Pierce v. Indseth, 106 U. S. 546, 1 S. Ct. 418, 27 L. Ed. 254: "The court will take judicial notice of the seals of notaries public, for they are officers recognized by the commercial law of the world." State v. Knight, 169 N. C. 333, 338, 85 S. E. 418.

Name in Seal.—The statute authorizing a notary public to take acknowledgment of deeds does not require that his name or any name shall be used in the notarial seal, and the seal appended to the certificate is presumably his in the absence of evidence to the contrary; hence, where the fact of the execution of deed by a notary public is adjudged to have been proved by such seal and certificate, it is not rebutted by the mere fact that the notary signs his name, "Geo. Theo. Somner" and the seal has on it the name of "Theo. Somner." Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 19 S. E. 146.

Failure to Attest by Seal.—A motion for judgment for want of an answer was properly allowed when the complaint was duly verified and what purported to be the verification of the answer was attested only by a person signing his name with the letters "N. P." added thereto, but without an official seal. Tucker v. Inter-States Life Association, 112 N. C. 796, 17 S. E. 532.

The acknowledgment of a deed before a notary public in due form is not defective because not attested by his notarial seal. Peel v. Corey, 196 N. C. 79, 144 S. E. 559.

§ 10-10. Acts of minor notaries validated.—All acts of notaries public for the state of North Carolina who were not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of the performance of such acts are hereby validated; and in every case where deeds or other instruments have been acknowledged before such notary public who was not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of taking of said acknowledgment, such acknowledgment taken before such notary public is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1941, c. 233.)

Cross References.—As to validation of defective acknowledgments before notaries public in certain conveyances, see §§ 47-52, 47-53, 47-102.

Chapter 11. Oaths.

Art. 1. General Provisions.

11-1. Oaths to be administered with solemnity.
11-2. Administration of oath upon the Gospels.
11-3. Administration of oath with uplifted hand.
11-4. Affirmation of Quakers and others.
11-5. Oaths of corporations.
11-6. Oath to support constitution of United States; all officers take.
11-7. Oath or affirmation to support state constitution; all officers to take.

Art. 1. General Provisions.

§ 11-1. Oaths to be administered with solemnity.—Whereas, lawful oaths for the discovery of truth and establishing right are necessary and highly conducive to the important end of good government; and being most solemn appeals to Almighty God, as the omniscient witness of truth and the just and omnipotent avenger of falsehood, such oaths, therefore, ought to be taken and administered with the utmost solemnity. (Rev., s. 2353; R. C., c. 76, s. 1; 1777, c. 108, s. 2; C. S. 3188.)

This "solemnity" applies not only to the substance of the oath, but to the form and manner of taking it and of administering it. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

Object of Statutes.—It is manifest, by a perusal of the statutes, that they were not intended to alter any rule of law, but the sole object was to prescribe forms for the sake of convenience and uniformity. State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 271, 80 S. E. 1060.

Double Sanction to Oath of Witness.—The law requires two guarantees of the truth of what a witness is about to state; he must be in the fear of punishment by the laws of man, and he must also be in the fear of punishment by the laws of God, if he states what is false; in other words, there must be a temporal and also a religious sanction to his oath. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 26.

Sufficiency of Belief.—A person who believes in the obligation of an oath on the Bible; who believes in God and Jesus Christ, and that God will punish in this world, all violators of his law, and that the sinner will inevitably be punished in this world for each and every sin committed; but there will be no punishment after death, and that in another world all will be happy and equal to the angels is competent to be sworn. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 26.

In the case of Omychund v. Barker, 1 Atk. 19, and Wiles, 538, it was decided by the Lord Chancellor, with the assistance of Chief Baron Parker, Chief Justice Willes and Chief Justice Lee, that a Gentoo, who was an infidel, who did not believe in either the Old or New Testament, but who believed in a God, as the Creator of the Universe, and that he is a rewarder of those who do well, and an avenger of those who do ill, according to the common law, may be sworn in that form which is the most sacred and obligatory upon his religious sense. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 27.

The great case of Omychund v. Barker, establishes the rule to be, that an infidel is competent to be sworn, provided he believes in the existence of a Supreme Being, who punishes the wicked, without reference to the time of punishment. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 29.

It is laid down by Lord Hale to be the common law, that a Jew is competent to be sworn, and may be sworn on the Old Testament, and such has ever since been taken to be the law. Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, 27.

Finding of the Judge Conclusive.—The finding of the judge as to the competency of a witness to take oath is conclusive, and not reviewable. State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 270, 80 S. E. 1060.

At Common Law.—In Shaw v. Moore, 49 N. C. 25, Pearson, J., said that "in the old cases it was held to be common law that no infidel (in which class Jews were included) could be sworn as a witness in the courts of England." He then proceeds to say that the reason for this as given by Lord Coke, "to say the least of it, is narrow-minded, illiberal, bigoted, and unsound." State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 270, 80 S. E. 1060.

Objection to Oath of Incompetent after Verdict.—Where a juror is incompetent to be sworn because an atheist (State v. Davis, 80 N. C. 412) and the objection is not discovered till after verdict, setting aside the verdict rests in the discretion of the trial judge. State v. Lambert, 93 N. C. 618; State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814, 816.

Objection to Manner of Administering after Verdict.—Where a juror was sworn in the presence of the prisoner, and his counsel let him acquiesce in the manner in which the oath was taken, to object after the verdict would simply make a trial not a decision upon the merits but a series of pitfalls for the State. Not having spoken when he was called upon to speak, the prisoner should not be heard after the verdict has gone against him. State v. Boon, 82 N. C. 638; State v. Patrick, 48 N. C. 443; Briggs v. Byrd, 34 N. C. 377; State v. Ward, 9 N. C. 443; State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814, 816.

Failure to Administer.—In State v. Gee, 92 N. C. 756, where a witness was not sworn at all, the court held that this was not ground of objection after verdict. State v. Council, 129 N. C. 511, 39 S. E. 814, 817.

§ 11-2. Administration of oath upon the Gospels.—Judges and justices of the peace, and other persons who may be empowered to administer oaths, shall (except in the cases in this chapter excepted) require the party sworn to lay his hand upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, in token of his engagement to speak the truth, as he hopes to be saved in the way and method of salvation pointed out in that blessed volume; and in further token that, if he should swerve from the truth, he may be justly deprived of all the blessings of the Gospel, and made liable to that vengeance which he has imprecated on his own head. (Rev., s. 2354; Code, s. 3309; R. C., c. 76, s. 1; 1777, c. 108, s. 2; 1941, c. 11; C. S. 3189.)

Cross Reference.—As to validation of defective acknowledgment for oath with uplifted hand, and § 11-4 for Quakers and others. As to forms of oaths, see § 11-11. As to perjury, see § 14-209.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment dispensed with the former requirement that the Holy Gospel be kissed as a part of the administration of an oath. For case relating to the requirement, see State v. Owen, 72 N. C. 605, 612.

Application to Witnesses.—After this manner, every witness, except as otherwise provided, must be sworn. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

Sufficiency of Juror's Oath.—An oath administered to a juror in the manner prescribed by statute is sufficient; the juror need not repeat the words "so help me God." State v. Paylor, 89 N. C. 539.

Ministerial Act.—The administration of an oath is a ministerial act and may be done by any one in the presence and by the direction of the court, but is the act of the court. State v. Knight, 84 N. C. 790.

Partially Directory.—"As to the form of the oath, when it is prescribed by statute," remarks Mr. Bishop, "the statute is to be construed in some sense directory only, so far at least that a departure from the words, in matter not of substance but of form merely, does not exempt the person taking it from the pains of perjury." 2 Bish. Cr. Law, secs. 862, 982; State v. Mazon, 90 N. C. 676, 678.

Same—Validity of Irregular Oath.—To hold invalid an oath that did not follow the very words of the statute might prove disastrous to the public interests. "Perjury and slander," in the language of the Supreme Court of Tennessee, "could often find, in slight variances from the prescribed forms of oath, the means of escape from condign punishment which justice invokes. Undoubtedly an oath, administered substantially according to the prescribed form, will be valid, and if taken falsely the party will be guilty of perjury." Sharp v. Wilhite, 21 Tenn. 434. And in the language of Green, C. J., in State v. Daylor, 3 Zab. (N. Y.), 49: "The Legislature did not design to prescribe the precise form of the oath, the slightest deviation from the phraseology of which would prove fatal." State v. Mazon, 90 N. C. 676, 678.

Same—Same—Juror's Oath in Capital Cases.—Although the omission of the words "you swear" at the commencement of the oath of jurors in a capital case looks awkward and mars the comeliness of judicial proceedings, we do not think that it vitiates the oath. State v. Owen, 72 N. C. 605, 612.

The manner of swearing is, as Judge Pearson says, merely a form "adapted to the religious belief of the general mass of citizens for the sake of convenience and uniformity." State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 271, 80 S. E. 1060.

Presumption.—The administration of an oath to a witness is an official act of the court; and it being shown affirmatively that an oath was administered to the defendant in open court on the Bible, a presumption arises that it was rightly done. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668, 670.

The maxim omnia presumuntur rite esse acta applies in no case with greater effect than to official acts of this nature, the minute and particular details of which, while important, are not likely to attract such attention as to insure their being accurately remembered. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668, 670.

Willful Violation.—A willful violation of such an oath in a material matter is perjury, and no other is. This is the general rule. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

When Deputy Clerk May Administer.—The deputy of the clerk of the superior court is authorized to take the affidavit of the plaintiff in an action of claim and delivery. Jackson v. Buchanan, 89 N. C. 74.

A deputy sheriff is not authorized to administer oath to homestead appraisers. Oates v. Munday, 127 N. C. 439, 444, 37 S. E. 457.

Cited in State v. Beal, 199 N. C. 278, 280, 154 S. E. 604.

§ 11-3. Administration of oath with uplifted hand.—When the person to be sworn shall be conscientiously scrupulous of taking a book oath in manner aforesaid, he shall be excused from laying hands upon, or touching the Holy Gospel; and the oath required shall be administered in the following manner, namely: He shall stand with his right hand lifted up towards heaven, in token of his solemn appeal to the Supreme God, and also in token that if he should swerve from the truth he would draw down the vengeance of heaven upon his head, and shall introduce the intended oath with these words, namely:

I, A. B., do appeal to God, as a witness of the truth and the avenger of falsehood, as I shall answer the same at the great day of judgment, when the secrets of all hearts shall be known (etc., as the words of the oath may be). (Rev., s. 2355; Code, s. 3310; R. C., c. 76, s. 2; 1777, c. 108, s. 3; C. S. 3190.)

Cross References.—As to forms of oaths, see § 11-11. As to oath required of voter, see § 163-29.

Conscientious Scruples.—If the usual form of oaths upon the Holy Evangelists is dispensed with, and an "appeal" or "affirmation" is substituted, it must appear that the person sworn had conscientious scruples, else the "appeal" or "affirmation" is invalid. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 386; Pearre v. Folb, 123 N. C. 239, 31 S. E. 475.

Presumption as to Manner.—Where it appears that the registrar administered the prescribed oath to electors, but that he did not swear them on the Bible, it will be inferred, in the absence of direct proof to the contrary, that the oath was taken with uplifted hand, as specified by the section, and was accepted as a valid mode of administering it, by both the registrar and the elector. Administering the oath in such manner is sufficient to meet the requirements of the election law. State v. Nicholson, 102 N. C. 465, 9 S. E. 545.

Presumption as to Witness.—When a witness comes before a tribunal to be sworn it is to be presumed that he has settled the point with himself in what manner he will be sworn, and he should make it known to the officer of the court; and should he be sworn with uplifted hand, though not conscientiously scrupulous of swearing on the Gospels, and depose falsely, he subjects himself to the pains and penalties of perjury. State v. Whisenhurst, 9 N. C. 458.

Cited in State v. Beal, 199 N. C. 278, 280, 154 S. E. 604.

§ 11-4. Affirmation of Quakers and others.—The solemn affirmation of Quakers, Moravians, Dunkers and Mennonites, made in the manner heretofore used and accustomed, shall be admitted as evidence in all civil and criminal actions; and in all cases where they are required to take an oath to support the constitution of the state, or of the United States, or an oath of office, they shall make their solemn affirmation in the words of the oath beginning after the word "swear"; which affirmation shall be effectual to all intents and purposes. (Rev., s. 2356; Code, s. 3311; R. C., c. 76, s. 3; 1777, c. 108, s. 4; 1777, c. 115, s. 42; 1819, c. 1019; 1821, c. 1112; C. S. 3191.)

Quakers and some others who have conscientious scruples about swearing at all, are permitted to "affirm." State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 383, 385.

Cited in State v. Beal, 199 N. C. 278, 280, 154 S. E. 604.

§ 11-5. Oaths of corporations.—In all cases where a corporation is appointed administrator, executor, collector, or to any other fiduciary position, of which fiduciary an oath is required by law, such oath may be taken by such corporation by and through any officer or agent of said corporation who is authorized by law to verify pleadings in behalf of such corporation; and any oath so taken shall be valid as the oath of such corporation. Any oath heretofore taken in the manner aforesaid in behalf of a corporation as such fiduciary is hereby validated as the oath of such corporation. (1919, c. 89, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3192.)

Cross Reference.—As to verification of pleadings by corporations, see § 1-147.

§ 11-6. Oath to support constitution of United States; all officers take.—All members of the general assembly, and all officers who shall be elected or appointed to any office of trust or profit within the state, shall, agreeably to act of congress, take the following oath or affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will support the constitution of the United States; so help me, God.

Which oath shall be taken before they enter upon the execution of the duties of the office. (Rev., s. 2357; Code, s. 3313; R. C., c. 76, s. 5; 1791, c. 342, s. 2; C. S. 3193.)

Officers and Placemen.—Officers are required to take an oath to support the Constitutions of the State and of the United States, while placemen are not. Worthy v. Barrett, 63 N. C. 199.

Oath Incidental.—The oath required of public officers is merely incidental to and constitutes no part of the office. State v. Stanley, 66 N. C. 60, 63.

Failure to Take Oath.—Public officers who have not taken the required oaths of office are not entitled to the salaries attached to such offices. Wiley v. Worth, 61 N. C. 171.

§ 11-7. Oath or affirmation to support state constitution; all officers to take.—Every member of the general assembly, and every person who shall be chosen or appointed to hold any office of trust or profit in the state, shall, before taking his seat or entering upon the execution of the office, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely swear (or affirm) that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the state of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain and defend the constitution of said state, not inconsistent with the constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; so help me, God.

Where such person shall be of the people called Quakers, Moravians, Mennonites or Dunkers, he shall take and subscribe the following affirmation:

I, A. B., do solemnly and sincerely declare and affirm that I will truly and faithfully demean myself as a peaceful citizen of North Carolina; that I will be subject to the powers and authorities that are or may be established for the good government thereof, not inconsistent with the constitution of the state and constitution of the United States, either by yielding an active or passive obedience thereto, and that I will not abet or join the enemies of the state, by any means, in any conspiracy whatever, against the state; that I will disclose and make known to the legislative, executive or judicial powers of the state all treasonable conspiracies which I shall know to be made or intended against the state. (Rev., s. 2358; Code, s. 3312; R. C., c. 76, s. 4; 1781, c. 342, s. 1; C. S. 3194.)

§ 11-8. When deputies may administer.—In all cases where any civil officer, in the discharge of his duties, is permitted by the law to administer an oath, the deputy of such officer, when discharging such duties, shall have authority to administer it, provided he is a sworn officer; and the oath thus administered by the deputy shall be as obligatory as if administered by the principal officer, and shall be attended with the same penalties in case of false swearing. (Rev., s. 2359; Code, s. 3316; R. C., c. 76, s. 7; 1836, c. 27, s. 2; C. S. 3195.)

§ 11-9. Administration by certain officers.—The chairman of the board of county commissioners and the chairman of the board of education of the several counties may administer oaths in any matter or hearing before their respective boards. (Rev., s. 2362; 1899, c. 89; 1889, c. 529; C. S. 3196.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of sheriff to administer oath to homestead appraisers, see § 1-371.

§ 11-10. When county surveyors may administer oaths.—The county surveyors of the several counties are empowered to administer oaths to all such persons as are required by law to be sworn in making partition of real estate, in laying off widows' dower, in establishing boundaries and in surveying vacant lands under warrants. (Rev., s. 2361; Code, s. 3314; 1881, c. 144; C. S. 3197.)

Art. 2. Forms of Official and Other Oaths.

§ 11-11. Oaths of sundry persons; forms.—The oaths of office to be taken by the several persons hereafter named shall be in the words following the names of said persons respectively:

You swear (or affirm) that you will keep every person, sworn on this jury, together in some private or convenient place, without meat or drink (water excepted). You shall not suffer any person to speak to them, neither shall you speak to them yourself, unless it be to ask them whether they are agreed in their verdict, but with leave of the court; so help you, God.

Jury, in a Capital Case

You swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly try, and true deliverance make, between the state and the prisoner at the bar, whom you shall have in charge, and a true verdict give according to the evidence; so help you, God.

Jury, in Criminal Actions Not Capital

You and each of you swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly try all issues in criminal actions which shall come before you during this term, and true verdicts give according to the evidence thereon; so help you, God.

(The same oath to talesmen, by using the word "day" instead of "term.")

Jury, in Civil Actions

You and each of you swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly try all civil actions which shall come before you during this term, and true verdicts give according to the evidence; so help you, God.

(The same oath to talesmen, by using the word "day" instead of "term.")

Jury, Laying off Dower

You and each of you swear (or affirm) that you will, without partiality and according to your best judgment, lay off and allot to A. B., widow of C. D., such dower in the lands of said C. D. as by law she is entitled to; so help you, God.

Judge of the Supreme Court

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that in my office of justice of the supreme court of North Carolina I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and the rich, to the state and to individuals; and that I will honestly, faithfully, and impartially perform all the duties of the said officer according to the best of my abilities, and agreeably to the constitution and laws of the state; so help me, God.

Judge of the Superior Court

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly serve the state of North Carolina in the office of judge of the superior court of the said state; I will do equal law and right to all persons, rich and poor, without having regard to any person. I will not wittingly or willingly take, by myself or by any other person, any fee, gift, gratuity or reward whatsoever, for any matter or thing by me to be done by virtue of my office, except the fees and salary by law appointed; I will not maintain, by myself or by any other person, privately or openly, any plea or quarrel depending in any of the said courts; I will not delay any person of common right by reason of any letter or command from any person or persons in authority to me directed, or for any other cause whatsoever; and in case any letter or orders come to me contrary to law, I will proceed to enforce the law, such letters or order notwithstanding; I will not appoint any person to be clerk of any of the said courts but such of the candidates as appear to me sufficiently qualified for that office; and in all such appointments I will nominate without reward, hope of reward, prejudice, favor or partiality or any other sinister motive whatsoever; and finally, in all things belonging to my office, during my continuance therein, I will faithfully, truly and justly, according to the best of my skill and judgment, do equal and impartial justice to the public and to individuals; so help me, God.

Justice of the Peace

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that as justice of the peace of the county of, in all articles in the commission to me directed, I will do equal right to the poor and the rich, to the best of my judgment and according to the laws of the state; I will not, privately or openly, by myself or any other person, be of counsel in any quarrel or suit depending before me; the fines and amercements that shall happen to be made, and the forfeitures that shall be incurred, I will cause to be duly entered without concealment; I will not wittingly or willingly take, by myself or by any other person for me, any fee, gift, gratuity or reward whatsoever for any matter or thing by me to be done by virtue of my office, except such fees as are or may be directed and limited by statute; but well and truly I will perform my office of justice of the peace; I will not delay any person of common right, by reason of any letter or order from any person in authority to me directed, or for any other cause whatever; and if any letter or order come to me contrary to law I will proceed to enforce the law, such letter or order notwithstanding. I will not direct or cause to be directed to the parties any warrant by me made, but will direct all such warrants to the sheriffs or constables of the county, or the other officers or ministers of the state, or other indifferent persons, to do execution thereof; and finally, in all things belonging to my office, during my continuance therein, I will faithfully, truly and justly, and according to the best of my skill and judgment, do equal and impartial justice to the public and to individuals; so help me, God.

Register of Deeds

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully and truly, according to the best of my skill and ability, execute the duties of the office of register of deeds for the county of....., in all things according to law; so help me, God.

Secretary of State

I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will, in all respects, faithfully and honestly execute the office of secretary of state of the state of North Carolina, during my continuance in office, according to law; so help me, God.

Sheriff

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will execute the office of sheriff of county to the best of my knowledge and ability, agreeably to law; and that I will not take, accept or receive, directly or indirectly, any fee, gift, bribe, gratuity or reward whatsoever, for returning any man to serve as a juror or for making any false return on any process to me directed; so help me, God.

Standard Keeper

I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will not stamp, seal or give any certificate for any steel-yards, weights or measures, but such as shall, as near as possible, agree with the standard in my keeping; and that I will, in all respects, truly and faithfully discharge and execute the power and trust by law reposed in me, to the best of my ability and capacity; so help me, God.

State Treasurer

I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that, according to the best of my abilities and judgment, I will execute impartially the office of state treasurer, in all things according to law, and account for the public taxes; and I will not, directly or indirectly, apply the public money to any other use than by law directed; so help me, God.

Stray Valuers

You swear (or affirm) that you will well and truly view and appraise the stray, now to be valued by you, without favor or partiality, according to your skill and ability; so help you, God.

Surveyor for a County

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will well and impartially discharge the several duties of the office of surveyor for the county of....., according to law; so help me, God.

Treasurer for a County

I, A. B., do solemnly swear (or affirm) that, according to the best of my skill and ability, I will execute impartially the office of treasurer for the county of....., in all things according to law; that I will duly and faithfully account for all public moneys that may come into my hands, and will not, directly or indirectly, apply the same, or any part thereof, to any other use than by law directed; so help me, God.

Witness to Depose before the Grand Jury

You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the grand jury, upon this bill of indictment against A. B., shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in a Capital Trial

You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this trial, between the state and the prisoner at the bar, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in a Criminal Action

You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this action between the state and A. B. shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness in Civil Cases

You swear (or affirm) that the evidence you shall give to the court and jury in this cause now on trial, wherein A. B. is plaintiff and C. D. defendant, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help you, God.

Witness to Prove a Will

You swear (or affirm) that you saw C. D. execute (or heard him acknowledge the execution of) this writing as his last will and testament; that you attested it in his presence and at his request; and that at the time of its execution (or at the time the execution was acknowledged) he was, in your opinion, of sound mind and disposing memory; so help you, God.

General Oath

Any officer of the state or of any county or township, the term of whose oath is not given above, shall take an oath in the following form:

I, A. B., do swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly execute the duties of the office of according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me, God. (Rev., s. 2360; Code, ss. 3057, 3315; 1903, c. 604; 1874-5, c. 58, s. 2; R. C., c. 76, s. 6; C. S. 3199.)

Cross Reference.—As to oath of members of finance committee of county, see § 153-45.

Chapter 12. Statutory Construction.

Sec.

12-1. No public-local or private act may amend or repeal public law unless latter is referred to in caption.

§ 12-1. No public-local or private act may amend or repeal public law unless latter is referred to in caption.—No act, which by its caption purports to be a public-local or private act, shall have the force and effect to repeal, alter or change the provisions of any Public Law, unless the caption of said public-local or private act shall make specific reference to the Public Law it attempts to repeal, alter or change. (1929, c. 250, s. 1.)

Cited in State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 161, 1 S. E. (2d) 521.

§ 12-2. Repeal of statute not to affect actions.

—The repeal of a statute shall not affect any action brought before the repeal, for any forfeitures incurred, or for the recovery of any rights accruing under such statute. (Rev., s. 2830; Code, s. 3764; R. C., c. 108, s. 1; 1830, c. 4; 1879, c. 163; 1881, c. 48; C. S. 3948.)

Section Not Obligatory.—As the laws of our Legislature do not bind another, except in so far as they may be absolute contracts, this section must be taken as merely a rule of construction having no application where the intention of the Legislature clearly and explicitly appears to the contrary. Dyer v. Ellington, 126 N. C. 941, 945, 36 S. E. 177.

Repeal after Services Rendered.—Where a statute was in force when certain services were rendered, it was held that the plaintiff's right had become absolute, and no subsequent repeal could invalidate it. Copple v. Commissioners, 138 N. C. 127, 134, 50 S. E. 574.

Action Commenced before Repeal.—By express terms of the section, the repeal of a statute does not affect an action theretofore commenced under it. Smith v. Morganton Ice Company, 159 N. C. 151, 74 S. E. 961.

Same—For Penalty or Forfeiture.—Under the provisions of the section a suit for a forfeiture or penalty is not discontinued by a repeal of the statute giving the penalty. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 455, 2 S. E. 55; Grocery Co. v. Southern R. Co., 136 N. C. 396, 48 S. E. 801; Epps v. Smith, 121 N. C. 157, 28 S. E. 359.

Subject Matter Destroyed by Statute Pending Appeal.—Where, pending an appeal, the subject matter of the action is destroyed or a statute giving the cause of action is repealed, the Supreme Court will not go into consideration of the abstract question as to which party ought to have prevailed, in order to adjudicate the costs but the judgment below as to costs will be allowed to stand. Wikel v. Board, 120 N. C. 451, 27 S. E. 117; Brinson v. Duplin County, 173 N. C. 137, 91 S. E. 708.

A vested right of action is property in the same sense in which tangible things are property, and is equally protected against interferences. Where it springs from contract, or from the principles of the common law, it is not competent for the Legislature to take it away. Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, p. 517; Black's Const. Law, p. 432; Williams v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 153 N. C. 360, 363, 69 S. E. 402. This case contains an excellent discussion which will be of aid in determining when a right is vested.

Right of Informer.—An informer has, in a certain sense, an inchoate right when he brings his suit, but he has no vested right to the penalty until judgment. Hence, until his right becomes vested, it can be destroyed by the Legislature. Dyer v. Ellington, 126 N. C. 941, 36 S. E. 177.

Action to Recover Arrearages of Taxes.—An action pending to recover arrearages of taxes, brought under an act authorizing the collection of unpaid taxes for past years, is not affected by the repeal of such statute. Wilmington v. Cronly, 122 N. C. 388, 30 S. E. 9.

Changing Rules of Evidence.—An act of the Legislature changing the rules of evidence can not be construed as operating retrospectively so as to affect existing rights. Lowe v. Harris, 112 N. C. 472, 17 S. E. 539.

Modes of Procedure.—Statutes which change modes of procedure may govern suits pending at the time of their enactment. Sumner v. Miller, 64 N. C. 688.

Sec.

12-2. Repeal of statute not to affect actions.

12-3. Rules for construction of statutes.

12-4. Construction of amended statute.

A retrospective law is one that in some way affects the rights and liabilities of parties incident to and growing out of a transaction that has passed. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 584, 90 S. E. 694.

Maxim "Leges Posteriores Priores Contrarias Abrogant."

—To give operation to the maxim, leges posteriores priores contrarias abrogant, the latter law must be in conflict with the former; therefore, when a later statute is almost in ipsisimis verbis with a former one: Held, that there was no repeal of the former. Kesler v. Smith, 66 N. C. 154.

General Rule—Prospective Effect.—The general rule is that a statute will be given prospective effect only unless the law in question clearly forbids such a construction. Mann v. Allen, 171 N. C. 219, 88 S. E. 235; Elizabeth City v. Commissioners, 146 N. C. 539, 60 S. E. 416; Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 584, 90 S. E. 694.

Remedial Legislation.—In case of a remedial legislation, the general rule is not so insistent, and such statutes are not infrequently given retrospective effect where the language permits and such a construction will best promote the meaning and purpose of the Legislature. Connecticut and E. Ins. Co. v. Talbot, 113 Ind. 373; Ex Parte Brickley, 53 Ala. 42; People ex re Collins v. Spicer, 99 N. Y. 225; cited and approved in Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 584, 90 S. E. 694.

Mere Court Procedure.—The rule that statutes may be construed to have retrospective effect does not prevail when they concern mere matters of court procedure before action instituted, or the substitution or designation of new parties deemed necessary to a proper determination of a controversy or authorized to maintain and enforce a recognized or existent right. Waddill v. Masten, 172 N. C. 582, 90 S. E. 694.

Limitation of Actions.—While the Legislature has the power to extend or reduce the time in which an action may be brought, this is subject to the restriction that when the limitation is shortened a reasonable time must be given for the commencement of an action before the statute works a bar. Strickland v. Draughan, 91 N. C. 103, and cases there cited; Cooley Const. Lim. 450 (8 Ed.), and cases there cited. The action in the instant case having been instituted before the passage of the act, is not affected by it. Nichols v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 120 N. C. 495, 498, 26 S. E. 643.

General Rule in Criminal Actions.—The repeal of a statute pending a prosecution for an offense which it creates arrests the prosecution and withdraws all authority to pronounce judgment, even after conviction. State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 455, 2 S. E. 55; State v. Massey, 103 N. C. 356, 9 S. E. 632.

Same—Legislative Authority to Increase Punishment.—The Legislature has no more authority to give a retroactive effect to a statute making the punishment for an offense already created more severe, than to subject persons to punishment under a criminal statute passed after the commission of the act for which they may be indicted. The provision of the Federal Constitution, which forbids the enactment by a State of any ex post facto law, could, in either event, be invoked for the protection of the person charged. Ordonaux Cons. Leg., p. 223; State v. Ramsour, 113 N. C. 642, 644, 18 S. E. 707; State v. Williams, 97 N. C. 455, 2 S. E. 55.

§ 12-3. Rules for construction of statutes.—In the construction of all statutes the following rules shall be observed, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the manifest intent of the general assembly, or repugnant to the context of the same statute, that is to say:

1. Singular and plural number, masculine gender, etc. Every word importing the singular number only shall extend and be applied to several persons or things, as well as to one person or thing; and every word importing the plural number only shall extend and be applied to one person or thing, as well as to several persons or things; and every word importing the masculine gender only shall extend and be applied to females as well as to males, unless the context clearly shows to the contrary.

2. Authority, to three or more exercised by majority. All words purporting to give a joint authority to three or more public officers or other persons shall be construed as giving such authority to a majority of such officers or other persons, unless it shall be otherwise expressly declared in the law giving the authority.

3. "Month" and "year." The word "month" shall be construed to mean a calendar month, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year," a calendar year, unless otherwise expressed; and the word "year" alone shall be equivalent to the expression "year of our Lord."

4. Leap-year, how counted. In every leap-year the increasing day and the day before, in all legal proceedings, shall be counted as one day.

5. "Oath" and "sworn." The word "oath" shall be construed to include "affirmation," in all cases where by law an affirmation may be substituted for an oath, and in like cases the word "sworn" shall be construed to include the word "affirmed."

6. "Person" and "property." The word "person" shall extend and be applied to bodies politic and corporate, as well as to individuals, unless the context clearly shows to the contrary. The words "real property" shall be coextensive with lands, tenements and hereditaments. The words "personal property" shall include moneys, goods, chattels, choses in action and evidences of debt, including all things capable of ownership, not descendible to the heirs at law. The word "property" shall include all property, both real and personal.

7. "Preceding" and "following."—The words "preceding" and "following," when used by way of reference to any section of a statute, shall be construed to mean the section next preceding or next following that in which such reference is made; unless when some other section is expressly designated in such reference.

8. "Seal."—In all cases in which the seal of any court or public office shall be required by law to be affixed to any paper issuing from such court or office, the word "seal" shall be construed to include an impression of such official seal, made upon the paper alone, as well as an impression made by means of a wafer or of wax affixed thereto.

9. "Will."—The term "will" shall be construed to include codicils as well as wills.

10. "Written" and "in writing."—The words "written" and "in writing" may be construed to include printing, engraving, lithographing, and any other mode of representing words and letters: Provided, that in all cases where a written signature is required by law, the same shall be in a proper handwriting, or in a proper mark.

11. "State" and "United States."—The word "state," when applied to the different parts of the United States, shall be construed to extend to and include the District of Columbia and the several territories, so called; and the words "United States" shall be construed to include the said district and territories and all dependencies.

12. "Imprisonment for one month," how construed. The words "imprisonment for one month," wherever used in any of the statutes, shall be construed to mean "imprisonment for thirty days."

13. "Governor," "senator," "solicitor," "elector," "executor," "administrator," "collector," "juror," and "auditor."—The words "governor," "senator," "solicitor," "elector," "executor," "administrator," "collector," "juror," "auditor," and any other words of like character shall when applied to the holder of such office, or occupant of such position, be words of common gender, and they shall be a sufficient designation of the person holding such office or position, whether the holder be a man or woman. (Rev., s. 2831; Code, s. 3765; R. C., c. 31, s. 108; R. C., c. 108; R. S., c. 31, s. 113; 21 Hen. III; 1921, c. 30; C. S. 3949.)

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS.

Specific Words Followed by General Words.—Where particular and specific words or acts, the subject of a statute, are followed by general words, the latter must, as a rule, and by a proper interpretation, be confined to acts and things of the same kind. State v. Craig, 176 N. C. 740, 97 S. E. 400.

Words Given Ordinary Meaning.—When construing a statute the words used therein will be given their ordinary meaning, unless it appears from the context that they should be taken in a different sense. Abernethy v. Board, 169 N. C. 631, 86 S. E. 577.

When Court May Interpolate Necessary Words.—When it is necessary to carry out the clear meaning of a statute, and to make it sensible and effective, the court may interpolate the words necessary thereto, which were evidently omitted, as appears from the context, or silently understand them to be incorporated in it. Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 52 S. E. 950; Abernethy v. Board, 169 N. C. 631, 86 S. E. 577.

In Palms v. Shawano, 61 Wisc., 217, the words "south" used in the legislative act defining the boundaries of a county was read "north"; in Stoneman v. Whaley, 9 Iowa, 390, a subsequent act purported to repeal the sixteenth section of another act, and it was held that the repealing act referred to the sixth section; and in a case from 3 Utah, 334, a subsequent act referred to section 162 of a prior act, and it was construed to mean section 151. Tooney v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 181, 88 S. E. 215.

Proviso.—As a general rule in the construction of statutes, a proviso will be considered as a limitation upon the general words preceding, and as excepting something therefrom, but this rule is not absolute, and the meaning of the proviso will be ascertained by the language used in it. Traders Nat. Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 3 S. E. 363.

Words Cannot Be Construed Away.—The court has no power or right to strike out words or to construe them away. Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 370, 63 S. E. 116.

When laws have been codified, it is permissible to examine the original legislation as an aid to correct interpretation. Rodgers & Co. v. Bell, 156 N. C. 378, 386, 72 S. E. 817; Morganton Mfg., etc., Co. v. Andrews, 165 N. C. 285, 292, 81 S. E. 418.

The maxim cessante ratione legis, cessat et ipsa lex has no application in the construction of statutes. State v. Eaves, 106 N. C. 752, 11 S. E. 370.

Void for Vagueness.—If a statute be so vague in its terms as to convey no definite meaning to the court or a ministerial officer, it is void. State v. Partlow, 91 N. C. 550.

II. DETERMINATION OF INTENT AND MEANING.

A. In General.

When Statute Is Clear.—It is not allowable to interpret what has no need of interpretation, or, where the words have a definite and precise meaning, to go elsewhere in search of conjecture in order to restrict or extend the meaning. Statutes should be read and understood according to the natural and most obvious import of the language without resorting to subtle and forced construction for the purpose of either limiting or extending their operation. McCluskey v. Cornwell, 11 N. Y. 593; Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 372, 63 S. E. 116; Hamilton v. Rathbone, 175 U. S. 414, 421, 44 L. Ed. 219, 20 S. Ct. 155; State v. Carpenter, 173 N. C. 767, 769, 92 S. E. 373.

Where Language Is of Doubtful Meaning.—In interpreting the statute where the language is of doubtful meaning, the Court will reject an interpretation which would make the statute harsh, oppressive, inequitable and unduly restrictive of primary private rights. Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 63 S. E. 116.

Meaning First Sought in Language Used.—In Caminetti v. United States, 242 U. S. 470, 37 S. Ct. 192, 193, 61 L. Ed. 442, the court said: "It is elementary that the meaning of a statute must, in the first instance, be sought in the language in which the act is framed, and if that is plain, and if the law is within the constitutional authority of the law-making body which passed it, the sole function of the courts is to enforce it according to its terms." State v. Carpenter, 173 N. C. 767, 768, 91 S. E. 373.

Law Existing at Time of Enactment.—To discover the true meaning of a statute, consideration should be given the law as it existed at the time of its enactment, the public policy as declared in judicial opinions and legislative acts, the public interest, and the purpose of the act in question. Kendall v. Stafford, 178 N. C. 461, 101 S. E. 15.

But the meaning must be ascertained from the statute itself, and the means and signs of which, as appears upon its face, it has reference. State v. Parlow, 91 N. C. 550, 552.

Objects Embraced.—The meaning of a statute in respect to what it has reference and the objects it embraces, as well as in other respects, is to be ascertained by appropriate means and indicia, such as the purposes appearing from the statute taken as a whole, the phraseology, the words ordinary or technical, the law as it prevailed before the statute, the mischief to be remedied, the remedy, the end to be accomplished, statutes in pari materia, the preamble, the title, and other like means. State v. Parlow, 91 N. C. 550, 552.

Misdescription or Misnomer.—The question was fully considered by the Supreme Court in Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 328, 52 S. E. 950, and the court there says: "A misdescription or misnomer in a statute will not vitiate the enactment or render it inoperative, provided the means of identifying the person or thing intended, apart from the erroneous description, are clear, certain, and convincing." Black Interp. of Laws, sec. 558. Under this rule we may call to our aid anything in the act itself, or even in the alleged erroneous description, which sufficiently points to something else as furnishing certain evidence of what was meant, though the reference to the extraneous matter may not in itself be full and accurate. The rule, even when literally or strictly construed, does not require that the erroneous description shall be altogether rejected in making the search for the true meaning; but it may be used in connection with anything outside of the statute to which it refers and which itself, when examined, makes the meaning clear. The erroneous description may in this way be helped out by extraneous evidence. Black Interp. Laws, sec. 38; Toomey v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 181, 88 S. E. 215.

The title of a statute is no part thereof. State v. Welsh, 10 N. C. 404. But it may be construed when the meaning is doubtful. State v. Woolard, 119 N. C. 779, 25 S. E. 719.

It cannot control the text when it is clear. Blue v. McDuffie, 44 N. C. 131; Hines v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 434; Jones v. Hartford Ins. Co., 88 N. C. 499, 500; State v. Woolard, 119 N. C. 779, 25 S. E. 719. Especially is this true as to the headings of a section in the Code. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197; In re Chisholm's Will, 176 N. C. 211, 213, 96 S. E. 1034.

B. Legislative Intent.

Motive and Purpose of Legislature.—If the language of a statute is doubtful, and the intention of the Legislature is clear, the former will be construed in the latter; but where the language is plain, the Courts can not look into the motive or purpose of the Legislature in the enactment of the law. State v. Eaves, 106 N. C. 752, 11 S. E. 370.

Same—Understanding of Individual.—Whatever may be the views and purposes of those who procure the enactment of a statute, the legislature contemplates that its intention shall be ascertained from its words as embodied in it. And courts are not at liberty to accept the understanding of any individual as to the legislative intent. State v. Boon, 1 N. C.

191; Drake v. Drake, 15 N. C. 110; Adams v. Turrentine, 30 N. C. 147; State v. Melton, 44 N. C. 49; Blue v. McDuffie, 44 N. C. 131; State v. Parlow, 91 N. C. 550, 552.

Same—Same—Affidavit of Legislators.—In interpreting a statute it is not permissible to show its intent and meaning by affidavit of legislators, for such must be gathered from the act itself. Goins v. Trustees Indian Training School, 169 N. C. 736, 86 S. E. 629.

Harmonizing Context.—It is the duty of the Court to adopt that sense which harmonizes best with the context, and promotes in the fullest manner the apparent policy and objects of the Legislature. U. S. v. Winn, 3 Sumner, 209; Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 372, 63 S. E. 116.

Effectuation of Purpose.—Where the language used is ambiguous, or admits of more than one meaning, it is to be taken in such a sense as will conform to the scope of the act and effectuate its objects. Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 52 S. E. 950; State v. Parlow, 91 N. C. 550, 552.

The use of inapt, inaccurate or improper terms or phrases will not invalidate the statute, provided the real meaning of the Legislature can be gathered from the context or from the general purpose and tenor of the enactment. Fortune v. Commissioners, 140 N. C. 322, 52 S. E. 950.

Mistakes or Omissions.—Legislative enactments are not to be defeated on account of mistakes or omissions, any more than other writings, provided the intention of the Legislature can be collected from the whole statute. If the mistake renders the intention doubtful, the courts will look to the title and preamble as well as the body or purview of the act for assistance in arriving at it, and not until all these fail can the act be held inoperative. Toomey v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 181, 88 S. E. 215, quoting Nazro v. Ins. Co., 14 Wisc. 298.

Impossible Requirements.—In the construction of a statute the court will avoid attributing to the legislature the intention to punish the failure to do an impossible thing. Garrison v. Southern R. Company, 150 N. C. 575, 64 S. E. 578.

Proviso Prevails over Purview.—When a proviso in a statute is directly contrary to the purview of the statute, the proviso is good and not the purview, because the proviso speaks the later intention of the Legislature. Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Star Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964.

As to Whether Statute Mandatory or Directory.—There is no absolutely formal test for determining whether a statutory provision is to be considered mandatory or directory. The meaning and intention of the Legislature must govern; and these are to be ascertained, not only from the phraseology of the provision, but also by considering its nature, its design, and the consequences which would follow from construing it in the one way or the other. Black's Interpretation of Laws, p. 338 (124); Spruill v. Davenport, 178 N. C. 364, 368, 100 S. E. 527.

III. SIMILAR AND RELATED ACTS.

A. In General.

Words and Phrases in One Statute Read in a Subsequent Act.—Dwarris on Statutes, 274, says: "That words and phrases, the meaning of which, in a Statute, has been ascertained, are, when read in a subsequent Statute, to be understood in the same sense," and in the note of Judge Potter on the same page, it is said that "where the terms of a Statute which has received judicial construction are used in a later Statute, whether passed by the Legislature of the same State or county, or by that of another, that construction is to be given to the later Statute. Conn. v. Hartwell, 3 Gray, 450; Ruchmabay v. Mottichmed, Eng. L. & Eng. 84; Bogards v. Trinity Church, 4 Sand. Chan. 633; Riggs v. Wilton, 13 Ill. 15; Adams v. Field, 21 Vt. 256. It is presumed that the Legislature which passed the latter Statute knew the judicial construction which had been placed on the former one, and such a construction becomes a part of the law." Bridgers v. Taylor, 102 N. C. 86, 89, 8 S. E. 893.

Permissible to Look at Other Statutes.—To ascertain the mischief which an act of the Legislature was intended to remove, it is permissible, in the interpretation thereof, to consider other statutes, related to the particular subject, or to one under construction. Abernethy v. Board, 169 N. C. 631, 86 S. E. 577.

It is not permissible, if it can be reasonably avoided, to put such a construction upon a law as will raise a conflict between different parts of it, but effect should be given to each and every clause and provision. But when there is no way of reconciling conflicting clauses of a statute and nothing to indicate which the Legislature regarded as of paramount importance, force should be given to those clauses which would make the statute in harmony with the other legislation on the same subject, and which would tend most completely to secure the rights of all persons affected by such legislation. Black's Interpretation of Laws (1896), p. 60, sec. 32; State Board v. White Oak Buckle Drainage District, 177 N. C. 222, 226, 98 S. E. 597.

B. Statutes in Pari Materia.

Statutes relating to the same subject-matter should be construed in connection with each other as together constituting one law, giving effect to all parts of the statute when possible; and the history of the legislation may be considered in the effort to ascertain the uniform and consistent purpose of the Legislature. Allen v. Reidsville, 178 N. C. 513, 101 S. E. 267.

Where a former act has been repealed, or has expired by its limitation when it is in pari materia, it must be considered in connection with the last act and if necessary, a part of it. Walser v. Jordan, 124 N. C. 683, 33 S. E. 139.

Where there are different statutes in pari materia, though made at different times, or even where they have expired, and not referring to each other, they shall be taken and considered together as one system, and as explanatory of each other. Walser v. Jordan, 124 N. C. 683, 33 S. E. 139.

Same—Apparent Conflict.—"Where two statutes on the same subject, or on related subjects, are apparently in conflict with each other they are to be reconciled, by construction, so far as may be, on any fair hypothesis, and validity and effect given to both, if this can be done without destroying the evident intent and meaning of the later act." Black's Interpretation of Laws (1896), p. 60, sec. 32; Peoples Bank v. Loven, 172 N. C. 666, 90 S. E. 948; State Board v. White Oak Buckle Drainage District, 177 N. C. 222, 226, 98 S. E. 597.

Acts of Same Session of Legislature.—All acts of the same session of the Legislature upon the same subject matter are considered as one act, and must be construed together, under the doctrine of "in pari materia." They should be considered in pari materia, whether passed at the same session or not. Walser v. Jordan, 124 N. C. 683, 33 S. E. 139.

Act Declaratory of Intent of Previous Act.—An act of the Legislature declaratory of the intent of a previous act will not control the judiciary in the construction of the first act in actions prior to the declaratory act. Rodwell v. Harrison, 132 N. C. 45, 43 S. E. 540.

Private and Local Acts.—Private as well as local acts are, as a whole, and in every clause, unaffected by any repugnant provision of the general law. State v. Womble, 112 N. C. 862, 864, 17 S. E. 491.

C. Amendatory and Repealing Acts.

When Act Purports to Be Amendatory.—Where a statute refers to a prior legislative enactment, and in the caption and body of the act purports to be amendatory, substituting and amending different sections, the legislative intent cannot be construed to repeal the former act. Toomy v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 88 S. E. 215.

Amended and Amending Acts Construed Together.—Where an amendment to an existing statute is enacted the proper method of arriving at their true intent and meaning is by construing together. Keith v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 88 S. E. 640; Township Road Comm. v. Board of Com'rs, 178 N. C. 61, 100 S. E. 122.

When Amendatory Act Refers to Wrong Section.—If a section in an amendatory act refers to a section of the act amended by number, and the section referred to does not express the legislative intent, but another section is found which does express that intent, the reference will be treated as being made to the latter section. Toomey v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 178, 181, 88 S. E. 215, quoting People v. King, 28 Cal. 266.

Erroneous Statement of Date.—An act of the Legislature subsequent to and in amendment of a former Act of the same session and correcting an ambiguity therein, is not invalidated by the fact that the date of ratification of the amended Act is erroneously stated, provided it sufficiently appears beyond cavil, what prior Act is referred to. State v. Woolard, 119 N. C. 779, 25 S. E. 719.

Summary of Rules of Construing Repealing Acts.—In Winslow v. Morton, 118 N. C. 486, 492, 24 S. E. 417, it was said: "Upon a perusal of the authorities it appears that the courts have universally given their sanction to the following rules of construction: (1) That the law does not favor a repeal of an older statute by a later one by mere implication. State v. Woodside, 30 N. C. 104; Simonton v. Lanier, 71 N. C. 498. (2) The implication, in order to be operative, must be necessary, and if it arises out of repugnancy between the two acts the later abrogates the older only to the extent that it is inconsistent and irreconcilable with it. Wood v. United States, 16 Peters, 341, 363, 10 L. Ed. 987; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 536, 549, 28 L. Ed. 770, 5 S. Ct. 255; St. Louis v. Independent, 17 Mo. 146. A later and older statute will, if it is possible and reasonable to do so, be always construed together, so as to give effect not only to the distinct parts or provisions of the latter, not inconsistent with the new law, but to give effect to the older law as a whole, subject only to restrictions or modifications of its meaning, where such seems to have been the legislative purpose. Southerland on Stat. Construct., sec. 158. A law will not be deemed repealed because some of its provisions are repeated in a subsequent statute, except in so far as the latter plainly appears to have been intended by the Legislature as a substitute, Chicago, etc., R. Co. v. United States, 127 U. S. 406, 32 L. Ed. 180, 8 S. Ct. 1194; State v. Stolt, 17 Wallace, 425; Longlois v. Longlois, 48 Mo. 60; Casey v. Harned, 5 Clarke (Iowa) 1; State v. Custer, 65 N. C. 339; The Code, sec. 3706; Brietung v. Lindoner, 37 Mich. 217. * * *

(3) Where a later or revising statute clearly covers the whole subject-matter of antecedent acts, and it plainly appears to have been the purpose of the Legislature to give expression in it to the whole law on the subject, the latter is held to be repealed by a necessary implication. Matter of N. Y. Institution, 121 N. Y. 234; United States v. Tynen, 11 Wall. 88, 20 L. Ed. 153; Jernigan v. Holden, 34 Fla. 530."

Repeal of Act Giving Forfeiture.—The repeal of an act of Assembly giving a forfeiture for an offense is a repeal of all forfeitures incurred under the act repealed, unless there be a special exception to the contrary. Governor v. Howard, 5 N. C. 465.

Repeal of Repealing Act.—The repeal of a statute repealing a former statute leaves the latter in force. Brinkley v. Swicegood, 65 N. C. 626.

Implied Repeal by Lessening Degree of Crime.—It is perfectly settled as a rule of construction that if, by the common or statute law, an offense, for example, be a felony, and subsequent statute by an enactment merely affirmatively lessen its grade or mitigate the punishment, the latter is to that extent an implied repeal of the former. State v. Upchurch, 31 N. C. 454, 457.

When Acts Irreconcilably Inconsistent.—A later statute repeals, by implication, an older statute, with which it is irreconcilably inconsistent, to the extent of such repugnancy. But the two statutes must be reconciled if that can be done by any fair construction. State v. Massey, 103 N. C. 356, 9 S. E. 632.

IV. STATUTES STRICTLY CONSTRUED.

A. In General.

In Derogation of Common Law.—A statute in derogation of the common law must be strictly construed. Swift & Co. v. Tempelos, 178 N. C. 487, 101 S. E. 8.

Acts Limiting Rights to Contract.—Statutes restricting or disabling persons capable of contracting in the making of contracts, being in derogation of common right, and especially those penal in their nature, must be strictly construed. Marriner & Bro. v. Roper Co., 112 N. C. 164, 16 S. E. 906.

Mandatory Act.—No provision, it would seem, could be more mandatory, in form or substance, than one which declares that non-compliance with it shall make void the act of the body required to observe its requirements. Spruill v. Davenport, 178 N. C. 364, 368, 100 S. E. 527.

Statutes depriving courts of jurisdiction once attached are strictly construed, and every requirement of such statute must be met before the court will yield its jurisdiction. State v. Sullivan, 110 N. C. 513, 14 S. E. 796.

Statutes providing for forfeitures should be strictly construed and not extended beyond the meaning of the words employed. Skinner v. Thomas, 171 N. C. 98, 87 S. E. 976.

Acts Restricting Private Acts.—Statutes which restrict the private rights of persons or the use of property in which the public have no concern should be strictly construed. Nance v. Southern Railway, 149 N. C. 366, 63 S. E. 116.

Local Lien Law.—In Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Star Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964, it was held that a lien law applicable to certain counties only, was local in its nature, and being contrary to the general lien laws of the State, must be strictly construed.

A remedial statute should be liberally construed, according to its intent, so as to advance the remedy and repress the evil. Cape Lookout Co. v. Gold, 167 N. C. 63, 67, 83 S. E. 3.

B. Criminal Statutes.

Rule for Construction of Penal Statutes.—It is familiar learning that penal statutes must be strictly construed, and the plaintiff, before he is entitled to recover the penalty, must bring his case strictly within the language and meaning of the statute. They must be construed sensibly, as all other instruments, but not liberally, so as to stretch their meaning beyond what the words will warrant. 36 Cyc., 1185, 1186, 1187; Sears v. Whitaker, 136 N. C. 37, 48 S. E. 517; Alexander v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 144 N. C. 93, 99, 56 S. E. 697; Coble v. Schoffner, 75 N. C. 42; Hamlet Grocery Co. v. Southern R. Co., 170 N. C. 241, 244, 87 S. E. 57; State v. Godfrey, 97 N. C. 507, 1 S. E. 779.

Rule Explained.—The rule that a penal Statute must be strictly construed, means no more than that the court, in ascertaining the meaning of such a Statute, cannot go beyond the plain meaning of the words and phraseology employed in search of an intention not certainly implied by them, and when there is a reasonable doubt as to the meaning of the words used in the Statute, the Court will not give them such an interpretation as to impose the penalty, nor will the purpose of the Statute be extended by implication, so as to embrace cases not clearly within its meaning. Hines v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 434.

This rule is, however, never to be applied so strictly as to defeat the clear intention of the Legislature, and if the intention to impose the penalty clearly appears, that is sufficient, and it must prevail. Hines v. Wilmington, etc., Railroad, 95 N. C. 434.

Supplying Omission and Strained Constructions.—In State v. Massey, 103 N. C. 356, 9 S. E. 632, it was announced that as a policy it is more dangerous for the Supreme Court to usurp the powers of the legislative department by supplying omissions in, or putting strained constructions upon, criminal statutes, than that some criminals should go unpunished.

V. CONSTRUCTION IN ACCORD WITH CONSTITUTION.

A. Construction.

General Rule.—Whenever an act of the Legislature can be so construed and applied as to avoid conflict with the Constitution, and give it the force of law, such construction will be adopted by the Court. State v. Pool, 74 N. C. 402.

Valid and Invalid Portions of Same Act.—Where there are distinct and valid provisions of a statute, with unconstitutional provisions, the two portions of the law being separate and it appearing from a perusal of the statute that the Legislature intended the valid portion to be effective independently of the invalid part, the valid provisions may be enforced. Archer v. Joyner, 173 N. C. 75, 91 S. E. 699.

In Black on Constitutional Law the rule is said to be: "That if the invalid portions can be separated from the rest, and if, after their excision, there remains a complete, intelligible, and valid statute capable of being executed, and conforming to the general purpose and intent of the Legislature as shown in the act, the same will not be adjudged unconstitutional in toto, but sustained to that extent." Quoted in Keith v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 458, 88 S. E. 640.

The position, however, is not allowed to prevail when the parts of the statute are so connected and dependent the one upon the other that to eliminate one will work substantial change to the portion which remains. Thus, in Black's work, the author says, page 63: "And if the unconstitutional clause cannot be rejected without causing the statute to enact what the Legislature did not intend, the whole statute must fall." Employers' Liability Cases, 207 U. S. pp. 463-501, 28 S. Ct. 141, 52 L. Ed. 297; Illinois Cen. R. Co. v. McKendree, 203 U. S. 514, 27 S. Ct. 153, 51 L. Ed. 298; Greene v. Owen, 125 N. C. 212, 34 S. E. 424; Riggsbee v. Durham, 94 N. C. 800; Keith v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 458, 88 S. E. 640; Lewis Sutherland Statutory Construction (2 Ed.), sec. 306. Or if constitutional and unconstitutional parts are all interdependent. State v. Godwin, 123 N. C. 697, 700, 31 S. E. 221.

Resort to Implication.—Courts may resort to an implication to sustain an act, but not to destroy it. Lowery v. School Trustees, 140 N. C. 33, 52 S. E. 267.

Presumption in Favor of Validity.—Every presumption is in favor of the validity of an act of the Legislature and all doubts are resolved in support of the act. Lowery v. School Trustees, 140 N. C. 33, 52 S. E. 267.

It is never to be presumed that the Legislature intends an infringement of the Constitution, even when the infringement is palpable; but it is to be set down to inadvertence or mistake, or unconscious bias from pressing circumstances. Jacobs v. Smallwood, 63 N. C. 112, 113.

When Object Is Valid and Effect Invalid.—A statute, while its object may be legitimate and altogether praiseworthy, is, nevertheless, invalid if its effect is unconstitutional. Jacobs v. Smallwood, 63 N. C. 112, 117.

B. Effect.

Liability of Public Officer under Unconstitutional Act.—An individual officeholder is not required to be wiser than the whole people represented in their General Assembly;

therefore, he is not indictable for obeying an unconstitutional legislative act (unless it required the commission of a crime, which is not for a moment to be supposed); nor is he indictable for refusing to perform certain duties under a former law repealed by a subsequent unconstitutional statute, until at least after a decision by competent authority. State v. Godwin, 123 N. C. 697, 31 S. E. 221.

When Court Reverses Its Decision Not Retroactive.—Where property rights are acquired in accordance with a decision of the Supreme Court, in the interpretation of a statute, which is subsequently overruled, the effect of the later decision will not be retroactive in effect. Fowle & Son v. Ham, 176 N. C. 12, 96 S. E. 639.

VI. DEFINITIONS.

Purpose.—Paragraph one of this section was intended to avoid the very awkward expressions, "such person or persons," "he, she, or they," "himself or themselves," to be met with in some badly drawn statutes. Von Glahn v. Harris, 73 N. C. 323, 333.

"Person" Extends to "Persons."—The word "person" is construed to extend to "persons" under the authority of paragraph one of this section. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 670, 46 S. E. 949; State v. Wilkerson, 98 N. C. 696, 701, 3 S. E. 683.

The words "twelve months," in the absence of any legislative definition of the word month and the word "year," will be interpreted to mean twelve calendar, not lunar, months. Muse v. London Assur. Corp., 108 N. C. 240, 13 S. E. 94.

Month.—The lunar month, when spoken of in statutes, consists of twenty-eight days; a calendar month contains the number of days ascribed to it in the calendar, varying from twenty-eight to thirty-one. State v. Upchurch, 72 N. C. 146. In this respect our statute has adopted the computation of the civil instead of the common law. Satterwhite v. Burwell, 51 N. C. 92; Adcock v. Fuquay Springs, 194 N. C. 423, 425, 140 S. E. 24.

"Thirty days," as used in Art. IV of the Constitution, is not synonymous with "one month"; it may be more or less. State v. Upchurch, 72 N. C. 146.

Does Not Affect Constitution.—The provisions of paragraph six of this section could not affect the meaning of the terms employed in the Constitution; indeed, it purports to apply only to statutes, and to them, when the meaning is manifestly otherwise than as therein provided and defined. Redmond v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 122, 144, 10 S. E. 845.

"Property" Used in Limited Sense.—While the term "property," in its broadest and most general signification, embraces all kinds of property, including choses in action, rights and credits, and the like things, it is very often and conveniently used in its limited sense, and this is so notwithstanding the statutory provision. Redmond v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 122, 144, 10 S. E. 845.

A chose in action is property, and embraced in the terms of paragraph six of this section. Winfree v. Bagley, 102 N. C. 515, 9 S. E. 198.

A promissory note or due bill being an "evidence of debt" is embraced in the term "personal property." State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 365.

Money.—While the word "property" in its legal sense ordinarily includes money, yet where it can be seen from other parts of a will in which it is used that it was not intended, that interpretation will be given it by the courts with which the testator had evidently employed it. Patterson v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 584, 8 S. E. 229.

The word "estate" has a broader meaning than the word "property." The latter word could not include choses in action, unless there be something in the context which would require it to receive this interpretation, except by force of the definition contained in this section. Vaughan v. Murfreesboro, 96 N. C. 317, 2 S. E. 676.

§ 12-4. Construction of amended statute.—

Where a part of a statute is amended it is not to be considered as having been repealed and reenacted in the amended form; but the portions which are not altered are to be considered as having been the law since their enactment, and the new provisions as having been enacted at the time of the amendment. (Rev., s. 2832; Code, s. 3766; 1868-9, c. 270, s. 22; 1870-1, c. 111; C. S. 3950.)

Editor's Note.—See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 262.

Amending Act Presumed Not to Repeal.—Where a statute only undertakes to amend one already on the statute-books, it will be presumed that it did not intend to repeal it, unless there is an express repealing clause. State v. Massey, 97 N. C. 465, 2 S. E. 445. State v. Broadway, 157 N. C. 598, 601, 72 S. E. 987.

Time of Enactment of New Proviso.—By this section when a part of the statute is amended, the new proviso is considered as having been enacted at the time of the amendment, and the act of 1885, amendatory of the Code of 1883 is subject to this rule of construction. Leak v. Gay, 107 N. C. 468, 12 S. E. 312.

Amendment of a statute operates from its enactment, leaving in force the portions which are not altered. Nichols v. Board, 125 N. C. 13, 34 S. E. 71.

Re-enacted Contemporaneous with Repeal.—It was held in State v. Williams, 117 N. C. 753, 23 S. E. 250, that: "The re-enactment by the Legislature of a law in the terms of a former law at the same time it repeals the former law, is not, in contemplation of law, a repeal, but it is a re-affirmance of the former law, whose provisions are thus continued without any intermission." Bishop, Stat. Crimes, sec. 181; State v. Sutton, 100 N. C. 474, 6 S. E. 687; State v. Gumber, 37 Wis. 298; State v. Southern R. Co., 125 N.

C. 666, 673, 34 S. E. 527; State v. Bellamy, 120 N. C. 212, 27 S. E. 113.

Bill of Indictment.—If a statute creating an offense is amended in any important particular, a bill of indictment for an offense committed before the act was amended, but which was found after the passage of the amending act, should charge the offense under the old act, and contain an averment that the offense was committed before the amendment was passed. State v. Massey, 97 N. C. 465, 2 S. E. 445.

Misdemeanor Made Punishable by Fine or Imprisonment.—A public-local law making an act a misdemeanor is not repealed by a statute, making the same offense for the first time punishable by "a fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court," and a felony for the second offense; the later statute expressly stating in the heading of the chapter that it was amendatory, and for the better enforcement, of the former statute, and that it was to take effect from and after its ratification; and where the prohibited offense has been committed prior to the enactment of the latter act, it is punishable under the prior law. State v. Mull, 178 N. C. 748, 101 S. E. 89.

§ 13-1. Petition filed.—Any person convicted of an infamous crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, desiring to be restored to the same, shall file his petition in the superior court, setting forth his conviction and the punishment inflicted, his place or places of residence, his occupation since his conviction, the meritorious causes which, in his opinion, entitle him to be restored to his forfeited rights, and that he has not before been restored to the lost rights of citizenship. (Rev., s. 2675; Code, ss. 2938, 2940; R. C. c. 58, ss. 1, 3; 1840, c. 36, s. 4; C. S. 385.)

Cross References.—As to infamous crimes generally, see §§ 14-1, 14-2, 14-3. See also, the North Carolina Const., Art. II, § 11; Art. VI, § 8.

Loss of citizenship.—Loss of citizenship does not form a part of the judgment of the court, but follows as a consequence of such judgment. State v. Jones, 82 N. C. 685.

§ 13-2. When and where petition filed.—At any time after the expiration of two years from the date of discharge of the petitioner, the petition may be filed in the superior court of the county in which the applicant is at the time of filing and has been for five years next preceding a bona fide resident, or in the superior court of the county, at term, where the indictment was found upon which the conviction took place; and in case the petitioner may have been convicted of an infamous crime more than once, and indictments for the same may have been found in different counties, the petition shall be filed in the superior court of that county where the last indictment was found. (Rev., s. 2676; Code, ss. 2940, 2941; 1897, c. 110; R. C., c. 58, ss. 3, 4; 1840, c. 36, s. 3; 1933, c. 243; C. S. 386.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment by Public Laws 1933, c. 243, the petition was permitted to be filed after "four years from the date of conviction," instead of "two years from the date of discharge" as is now permitted.

§ 13-3. Notice given.—Upon filing the petition the clerk of the court shall advertise the substance thereof, at the courthouse door of his county, for the space of three months next before the term when the petitioner proposes that the same shall be heard. (Rev., s. 2677; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 1; 1840, c. 36; C. S. 387.)

§ 13-4. Hearing and evidence.—The petition shall be heard by the judge at term, at which hearing the court shall examine all proper testimony which may be offered, either by the petitioner as to the facts set forth in his petition or by any one who may oppose the grant of his prayer. The petitioner shall also prove by five respectable witnesses, who have been acquainted with the petitioner's character for three years next preceding the filing of his petition, that his character for truth and honesty during that time has been good; but no deposition shall be admissible for this purpose unless the petitioner has resided out of this state for three years next preceding the filing of the petition. (Rev., s. 2678; Code, ss. 2938, 2939; 1897, c. 110; 1901, c. 533; R. C., c. 58, ss. 1, 2; 1840, c. 36; C. S. 388.)

§ 13-5. Decree.—At the hearing the court, on being satisfied of the truth of the facts set forth in the petition, and on its being proved that the character of the applicant for truth and honesty is good, shall decree his restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the petitioner shall accordingly be restored thereto. (Rev., s. 2679; Code, s. 2938; R. C., c. 58, s. 1; 1840, c. 36; C. S. 389.)

§ 13-6. Procedure in case of pardon or suspension of judgment.—Any person convicted of any crime, whereby the rights of citizenship are forfeited, and the judgment of the court pronounced does not include imprisonment anywhere, and pardon has been granted by the governor, or the court suspended judgment on payment of the costs, and the costs have been paid, such person may be restored to such forfeited rights of citizenship upon application, by petition, to the judge presiding at any term of the superior court held for the county in which the conviction was had, one year after such conviction. The petition shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction, the judgment of the court, and that pardon has been granted by the governor, and also that said crime was committed without felonious intent, and shall be verified by the oath of the applicant and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant and that in their opinion the crime was committed without felonious intent. No notice of the petition in such case shall be necessary, and no advertisement thereof be made, but the same shall be heard by the judge, upon its presentation, during a term of court; and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and affidavits, he shall decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship, and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute docket: Provided, that in all cases where the court suspended judgment it shall not be necessary to allege or prove that pardon has been granted by the governor, and in such cases the petition may be made and the forfeited rights of citizenship restored at any time after conviction. (Rev., s. 2680; 1899, cc. 44, 249; 1905, c. 547; C. S. 390.)

Application.—This section is not applicable where one has been convicted of an infamous crime, imprisoned, and pardoned by the governor. In re Petition of Jones, 160 N. C. 15, 75 S. E. 1007.

§ 13-7. Restoration of rights of citizenship to persons committed to certain training schools.—Any person convicted of any crime whereby any rights of citizenship are forfeited, and the judgment of the court pronounced provides a sentence, and such sentence is suspended upon the condition that such person be admitted to and remain at one of the following schools: Eastern Carolina Industrial Training School for Boys, the Stonewall Jackson Manual Training and Industrial School, the Morrison Training School for Negro Boys, or the State Home and Industrial School for Girls, until lawfully discharged, and upon payment of costs, such person may be restored to such forfeited rights of citizenship upon application and petition to the judge presiding at any term of the superior court held in the county in which the conviction was had, at any time after one year from the date of the lawful discharge from any such school. (1937, c. 384, s. 1.)

§ 13-8. Contents of petition; affidavits of reputable citizens; hearing; decree of restoration.—The petition provided for in § 13-7 shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction, the judgment of the court, and shall recite that the costs of suit have been paid, the lawful discharge of the applicant from the school to which he or she was admitted, and that applicant has never before had restored to him lost rights of citizenship, which petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant, and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county in which said conviction took place, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant, and that they are of the opinion that the applicant should have restored to him the lost rights of citizenship. The petition shall be heard by the judge during a term of court, and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and the affidavits, he shall decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute dockets. (1937, c. 384, s. 2.)

§ 13-9. Restoration of citizenship to persons convicted, etc., of involuntary manslaughter.—Any person who has been convicted of, or confessed guilty to, the crime of involuntary manslaughter and is not actually serving a term in the state prison or on the roads of the state may, at any subsequent term of the superior court of the county in which the conviction was had, or the confession of guilt made, make application and petition the court for a restoration of all forfeited rights of citizenship. (1941, c. 184, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for involuntary manslaughter, see § 14-18.

§ 13-10. Contents of petition; supporting affidavits; hearing and decree.—The petition provided for in section 13-9 shall set out the nature of the crime committed, the time of conviction or confession of guilt, the judgment of the court, and shall recite that the costs of suit have been paid, and that applicant has never before had restored to him lost rights of citizenship, which petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant, and accompanied by the affidavits of ten reputable citizens of the county in which said conviction or confession of guilt took place, who shall state that they are well acquainted with the applicant, and that they are of the opinion that the applicant should have restored to him the lost rights of citizenship. The petition shall be heard by the judge during a term of court, and if he is satisfied as to the truth of the matters set out in the petition and the affidavits, he shall have the authority to decree the applicant's restoration to the lost rights of citizenship and the clerk shall spread the decree upon his minute dockets.  14-409. Machine guns and other like weapons.

SUBCHAPTER I. GENERAL PROVISIONS.Art. 1. Felonies and Misdemeanors.*§ 14-1. Felonies and misdemeanors defined.—

A felony is a crime which is or may be punishable by either death or imprisonment in the state's prison. Any other crime is a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3291; 1891, c. 205, s. 1; C. S. 4171.)

Cross Reference.—As to statute of limitations for misdemeanors, see section 15-1.

Common Law Provisions.—Up to the time this section was passed the somewhat arbitrary common-law rule was followed as to what crimes were felonies, and what were misdemeanors and under that, conspiracy, and even such grave crimes as perjury and forgery, were misdemeanors. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 723, 34 S. E. 651; State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 608, 69 S. E. 66. See State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561.

For article on punishment for crime in North Carolina, See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 205.

Section Constitutional.—This section is held to be constitutional in State v. Lytle, 138 N. C. 738, 744, 51 S. E. 66.

Punishment Determines Classification of Offenses.—By this section, North Carolina adopted the rule, now almost universally prevalent, by which the nature of the punishment determines the classification of offenses; those which may be punished capitally or by imprisonment in the penitentiary are felonies (as to which there is no statute of limitations), and all others are misdemeanors, as to which prosecutions in this State are barred by two years. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 723, 34 S. E. 651.

The measure of punishment is the test of the nature of a crime, whether felony or misdemeanor. State v. Hyman, 164 N. C. 411, 414, 79 S. E. 284; Jones v. Brinkley, 174 N. C. 23, 24, 93 S. E. 372.

It should be noted that there are exceptions to this general rule. The legislature has the power to style any offence a misdemeanor, notwithstanding it is punishable in the state's prison. Examples of this appear in sections 14-278, 14-280 and 44-25 where the offenses are specifically declared to be misdemeanors although they are punishable in the State's Prison. See State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 608, 609, 69 S. E. 66. See also Editor's Note under section 14-3.

Offence Need Not Be Specified.—It is not necessary to prescribe that an act is a misdemeanor or felony, as the punishment affixed determines that. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 630, 55 S. E. 600.

Indictment Must Use Word "Feloniously."—Since all criminal offenses punishable with death or imprisonment in a State prison were by this section declared felonies, indictments wherein there has been a failure to use the word "feloniously," as characterizing the charge in the latter class of cases, have been declared fatally defective. State v. Wilson, 116 N. C. 979, 21 S. E. 692; State v. Skidmore, 109 N. C. 795, 14 S. E. 63; State v. Shaw, 117 N. C. 764, 23 S. E. 246; State v. Bryan, 112 N. C. 848, 16 S. E. 909; State v. Caldwell, 112 N. C. 854, 16 S. E. 1010; State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 608, 69 S. E. 66. See State v. Callett, 211 N. C. 563, 191 S. E. 27. But this principle does not hold good where the Legislature otherwise expressly provides.

In section 15-145 the legislature has prescribed a form of indictment for perjury (which is by section 14-209 a felony) and left out the word "feloniously." And in State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 59 S. E. 115 the court held that in the case of perjury it was unnecessary that the word appear. See State v. Holder, supra, at page 609.

Same—New Bill Obtained.—But the bill should not be quashed; the defendant should be held until a new bill is obtained. State v. Skidmore, 109 N. C. 795, 14 S. E. 63.

Penitentiary Unknown to Common Law.—The penitentiary, being a modern device, unknown to the common law, punishment in the penitentiary could not be imposed by the common law. State v. McNeill, 75 N. C. 15, 16.

The use of the word "penitentiary," in prescribing the punishment for one convicted under a criminal statute, has the same legal significance as the words "State's Prison," both meaning the place of punishment in which convicts sentenced to imprisonment and hard labor are confined by the authority of law. State v. Burnett, 184 N. C. 783, 115 S. E. 57.

Concurrence of General and Local Laws.—Our general prohibition statutes, prohibiting the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors, expressly provide that they shall not have the effect of repealing local or special statutes upon the subject, but they shall continue in full force and in concurrence with the general law except where otherwise provided by law; and where the local law applicable makes the offense a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment, in the county jail or penitentiary not exceeding two years, etc., the person convicted thereunder is guilty of a felony, by this section, and the two-year statute of limitations is not a bar to the prosecution. State v. Burnett, 184 N. C. 783, 115 S. E. 57.

Thus in the case of a public-local law the fact that the offense is declared a misdemeanor does not govern where the punishment prescribed is confinement in the state prison. In such cases, by this section, the offense is a felony. See above catchline "Punishment Determines Classification of Offense."—Ed. Note.

Conspiracy.—A conspiracy to commit a felony is a felony and a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor is a misdemeanor. State v. Abernethy, 220 N. C. 226, 17 S. E. (2d) 25, holding that a conspiracy to interfere with election of officials in the discharge of their duties is a misdemeanor.

§ 14-2. Punishment of felonies.—Every person who shall be convicted of any felony for which no specific punishment is prescribed by statute shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state prison not exceeding two years, or be fined, in the discretion of the court, or if the offense be infamous, the person offending shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state prison not less than four months nor more than ten years, or be fined. (Rev., s. 3292; Code, s. 1096; R. C., c. 34, s. 27; C. S. 4172.)

In General.—It is only felonies where no specific punishment is prescribed, and offenses that are infamous, or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud, that may be punished with imprisonment in the penitentiary. State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 920, 921, 924. See Editor's Note under § 14-3.

Where Section Applies.—This section applies only where an act is made a felony without the nature of punishment being specified. State v. Rippey, 127 N. C. 516, 37 S. E. 148.

Specific Punishment.—A provision in a criminal statute "that the punishment shall be in the discretion of the court and the defendant may be fined or imprisoned or both," is the prescribing of a "specific punishment" within this section. State v. Richardson, 221 N. C. 209, 19 S. E. (2d) 863.

The felony defined in section 14-26 is not one "for which no specific punishment is prescribed," within this section. The punishment is expressly left to the discretion of the court, which takes the case out of this section. State v. Swindell, 189 N. C. 151, 126 S. E. 417. See further under § 14-3, catchline "Meaning of Specific Punishment."

Cited in State v. Ritter, 199 N. C. 116, 119, 154 S. E. 62.

§ 14-3. Punishment of misdemeanors, infamous offenses, offenses committed in secrecy and malice, etc.—All misdemeanors, where a specific punishment is not prescribed shall be punished as misdemeanors at common law; but if the offense be infamous, or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud, the offender shall, except where the offense is a conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor, be guilty of a felony and punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or shall be fined. (Rev., s. 3293; Code, s. 1097; R. C., c. 34, s. 120; 1927, c. 1; C. S. 4173.)

Cross References.—As to uttering worthless check, see §§ 14-106 and 14-107. As to statute of limitations for misdemeanors, see § 15-1.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1927 amended this section by inserting the words "or state prison." The effect of this amendment is to make misdemeanors, where no specific punishment is prescribed and which are "infamous or done in secrecy and malice or with deceit and intent to defraud," punishable in the state prison.

Interpreting, then, this addition to § 14-3, in connection with § 14-1, it makes the particular offense in the instant case, having been done in secrecy and malice, distinctly a felony. That section is not defining offences, but providing punishment for them and it, therefore, sets aside, as the necessary effect of the amendment, the offenses in the latter clause as felonies, to be punished by imprisonment in the State's prison. Consequently, properly interpreted, this amendment of 1927 creates a conspiracy formed in secrecy and in malice, a felony, which, using the words in § 14-1, may be punishable by imprisonment in State's prison. State v. Ritter, 199 N. C. 116, 120, 164 S. E. 62.

The grade or class of a crime is determined by the punishment prescribed therefor and not the nomenclature of the statute, a felony being a crime punishable by death or imprisonment in the State prison, and while all misdemeanors for which no punishment is prescribed are punishable as misdemeanors at common law, where the offense is infamous, or done in secrecy or malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud, it is punishable by imprisonment in the county jail or State prison, under this section, and is a felony. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 173 S. E. 24.

When Section Applies.—This section applies only where an act is prohibited or is made unlawful, without the nature of the punishment being specified. State v. Rippey, 127 N. C. 516, 517, 37 S. E. 148.

If a statute prohibits a matter of public grievance, or commands a matter of public convenience, all acts or omissions contrary to the prohibition or command of the statute are misdemeanors at common law, notwithstanding the fact that no punishment is prescribed in the statute. State v. Bloodworth, 94 N. C. 918, 920.

Meaning of Specific Punishment.—It can not be said that all the crimes in the Code fall within the scope of this and the preceding sections, because "no specific punishment" is prescribed. The punishment is specific (i. e., specified as fine, or imprisonment in jail or in State's Prison), though the extent of the specified punishment is left in the discretion of the court, or in its discretion not exceeding a limit stated. State v. Rippey, 127 N. C. 516, 517, 37 S. E. 148.

Same—Assault Not Punishable under Section.—Under the ruling in State v. Rippey, 127 N. C. 516, 37 S. E. 148, section 14-33, bearing directly on the case of assaults, with or without intent to kill, making provision for punishment of such offenses, is to be regarded as specific, within the meaning of this section, and entirely withdraws the case of assault from the operation of this section. State v. Smith, 174 N. C. 804, 806, 93 S. E. 910.

Common Law Punishment.—Misdemeanors made punishable as at common law, or punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, can be punished by fine, or imprisonment in the county jail, or both. State v. McNeill, 75 N. C. 15; State v. Powell, 94 N. C. 920, 923.

Fornication and Adultery.—Persons convicted of fornication and adultery may be imprisoned in the common jail for a period to be fixed in the discretion of the court. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661.

Conspiracy to Charge with Infanticide.—A conspiracy to charge one with infanticide, being only a common-law misdemeanor, is not punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary. State v. Jackson, 82 N. C. 565.

Receiving Stolen Goods.—Although the offense of receiving stolen goods is declared to be a misdemeanor by section 14-71, the same section authorizes the court to punish the offense in the same manner as larceny is punished; that is, confinement in the State's prison or county jail for not less than four months, nor more than ten years. State v. Britte, 73 N. C. 26.

Attempt to Commit Crime against Nature.—While an attempt to commit a felony is a misdemeanor, when such misdemeanor is infamous, or done in secrecy and malice, or with deceit and intent to defraud, it is punishable by imprisonment in the state's prison, and is made a felony by this section, and an attempt to commit the crime against nature is infamous and is punishable by imprisonment in the state's prison as a felony within the definition of this section. State v. Spivey, 213 N. C. 45, 195 S. E. 1.

What Amounts to Confession of Felony.—A plea of guilty to an indictment charging defendant with wilfully, feloniously, secretly, and maliciously giving aid and assistance to his codefendant by manufacturing evidence, altering and destroying original records in the office of the Commissioner of Revenue, is a confession of a felony under this section, although § 14-76 designates such offense as a misdemeanor. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 173 S. E. 24.

Discretion of Trial Judge.—Where the extent of the punishment is referred to the discretion of the trial judge, his sentence may not be interfered with by the appellate court, except in case of manifest and gross abuse. State v. Smith, 174 N. C. 804, 807, 93 S. E. 910; State v. Willer, 94 N. C. 904.

Excessive Punishment.—The word "or," in criminal statutes, cannot be interpreted to mean "and," when the effect is to aggravate the offense or increase the punishment. And so where a statute provides that a party guilty of the offense created by it shall be fined or imprisoned, the court has no power to both fine and imprison. State v. Walters, 97 N. C. 489, 2 S. E. 539.

Same—Example.—A sentence of imprisonment for five years in the county jail and a recognizance of $500 to keep the peace for five years after the expiration thereof upon a defendant convicted of assault and battery, is excessive and therefore unconstitutional. State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 423.

Same—Two Years Not Cruel or Unusual.—It is well settled that when no time is fixed by the statute, an imprisonment for two years will not be held cruel and unusual. State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 423; State v. Miller, 94 N. C. 904. State v. Farrington, 141 N. C. 844, 845, 53 S. E. 954.

Effect of Consent of Defendant.—No consent of the defendant can confer a jurisdiction which is denied to the court by the law, and any punishment imposed, other than that prescribed for the offense, is illegal. In re Schenck, 74 N. C. 607, 608.

Where Common Law Offense Altered by Statute.—Where the grade of a common law offense has been made higher by statute, the indictment must conclude against the statute, but when the punishment has been mitigated, it may conclude at common law. State v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 522, 523.

Where Statute Repealed before Judgment.—Where a statute prescribing the punishment for a crime is expressly and unqualifiedly repealed after such crime has been committed, but before final judgment, though after conviction, no punishment can be imposed. State v. Perkins, 141 N. C. 797, 53 S. E. 735; State v. Cress, 49 N. C. 421; State v. Nutt, 61 N. C. 20; State v. Long, 78 N. C. 571; State v. Massey, 103 N. C. 356, 9 S. E. 632; State v. Biggers, 108 N. C. 760, 12 S. E. 1024.

Cited in State v. Wilson, 216 N. C. 130, 4 S. E. (2d) 440; State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. (2d) 475.

§ 14-4. Violation of town ordinance misdemeanor; punishment.—If any person shall violate an ordinance of a city or town, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3702; Code, s. 3820; 1871-2, c. 195, s. 2; C. S. 4174.)

Cross Reference.—As to ordinances, see §§ 160-52 et seq. In General.—While the town or city government has no right to make criminal law, the Legislature has made the violation of ordinances a criminal offense. State v. Higgs, 126 N. C. 1014, 35 S. E. 473; Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 691, 36 S. E. 158.

Prior to Section Violation Not Punishable.—Prior to the passage of this section there was no way provided for the enforcement of obedience to town ordinances; a violation of such ordinances was not a misdemeanor. State v. Parker, 75 N. C. 249; School Directors v. Asheville, 137 N. C. 503, 509, 50 S. E. 279.

Jurisdiction.—The mayor, or other chief officer of towns or cities, has jurisdiction of offenses under this section. State

v. Cainan, 94 N. C. 880; State v. Wood, 94 N. C. 855; State v. Smith, 103 N. C. 403, 405, 9 S. E. 435.

Same—Concurrent with Justice.—A justice of the peace has concurrent jurisdiction with the mayor of a city or town, of violation of ordinances, which are made misdemeanors. State v. Cainan, 94 N. C. 880.

Same—Superior Court Excluded.—The superior court has no original jurisdiction to try indictments for violation of town ordinances. State v. White, 76 N. C. 15; State v. Threadgill, 76 N. C. 17.

Ordinance Must Conform to State Law.—It is uniformly held that a town ordinance in violation of a valid state statute appertaining to the question is void. State v. Beacham, 125 N. C. 652, 34 S. E. 447; Shaw v. Kennedy, 4 N. C. 591; State v. Austin, 114 N. C. 855, 858, 19 S. E. 919; State v. Prevost, 178 N. C. 740, 743, 101 S. E. 370.

Violation of Invalid Ordinance No Offense.—The violation of a valid ordinance is, under the provision of this section, a misdemeanor, but it is not a criminal offense to disregard one enacted without authority. State v. Hunter, 106 N. C. 796, 11 S. E. 366; State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 967, 12 S. E. 598.

Failure to Prescribe Penalty.—The violation of a valid town ordinance is made a misdemeanor by this section, and the defense that the ordinance did not prescribe a penalty therefor is untenable. State v. Razook, 179 N. C. 708, 103 S. E. 67.

Where Fine Provided It Must Be Certain.—An ordinance which imposes a fine is invalid if it is not certain as to the amount of the fine. State v. Irvin, 126 N. C. 989, 996, 35 S. E. 430.

Provision in Ordinance for Arrest Void.—When a municipal ordinance imposed a penalty for its violation, and provided that the offender should be "arrested and fined twenty-five dollars upon conviction thereof." It was held, that so much of the ordinance as provided for the arrest was void, but the other provisions were valid. State v. Earhardt, 107 N. C. 789, 12 S. E. 426.

Personal Notice to Offender Sufficient.—The requirement of the charter of a city or town that its ordinances shall be printed and published, is to bring such ordinances to the attention of the public, and where personal notice has been given to an offender thereunder who afterwards commits the offense prohibited, the requirement of publication, etc., is not necessary for a conviction. State v. Razook, 179 N. C. 708, 103 S. E. 67.

State Must Show Violation of Valid Ordinance.—Upon the prosecution of a criminal action for the violation of a city ordinance, under this section the State must show that the ordinance in question was a valid one, as well as the violation as charged in the warrant. State v. Prevost, 178 N. C. 740, 101 S. E. 370; State v. Snipes, 161 N. C. 242, 76 S. E. 243; State v. Hunter, 106 N. C. 796, 11 S. E. 366.

And where the state fails to show that the original act of incorporation authorized the enactment of an ordinance, it fails to make out the case, for the legislature never intended to make the violation of a void ordinance an indictable misdemeanor. State v. Threadgill, 76 N. C. 17, 19.

Defects in Warrant May Be Waived.—Ordinarily defects in the form of a warrant for violating a city ordinance may be waived, and usually it is so considered when a plea of not guilty is entered by the defendants. State v. Prevost, 178 N. C. 740, 101 S. E. 370.

Form of Indictment.—It is not necessary, in indictments for violations of city ordinances, to set out the ordinance in the warrant. It is sufficient to refer to it by such indicia, as point it out with sufficient certainty. State v. Cainan, 94 N. C. 880; State v. Merritt, 83 N. C. 677, 679.

In an indictment under an ordinance for loud and boisterous swearing, it is not necessary to set out the words used by the defendant. State v. Cainan, 94 N. C. 880.

No Removal under Section 7-147.—In a prosecution for violation of a town ordinance before a mayor, the defendant is not entitled to a removal, under section 7-147. State v. Joyner, 127 N. C. 541, 37 S. E. 201.

Costs of Prosecutions under Section.—Whether the criminal offenses created by the violation of town ordinances under this section are tried before the mayor, or before a Justice of the Peace, they are State prosecutions, in the name of the State, or for violation of the criminal law of the State, and at the expense of the State (State v. Higgs, 126 N. C. 1014, 35 S. E. 473), and the city can not be charged with the costs of such prosecutions. Board v. Henderson, 126 N. C. 689, 692, 36 S. E. 158.

Conviction for Fighting No Bar to Prosecution for Assault.—A conviction of violating a city ordinance punishing the disturbance of the good order and quiet of the town by fighting is not a bar to a prosecution by the State for an assault. State v. Taylor, 133 N. C. 755, 46 S. E. 5.

Art. 2. Principals and Accessories.

§ 14-5. Accessories before the fact; trial and punishment.—If any person shall counsel, procure or command any other person to commit any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any statute, the person so counseling, procuring or commanding shall be guilty of a felony, and may be indicted and convicted, either as an accessory before the fact to the principal felony, together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon; or he may be indicted and convicted of a substantive felony, whether the principal felon shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and may be punished in the same manner as any accessory before the fact to the same felony, if convicted as an accessory, may be punished. The offense of the person so counseling, procuring or commanding, howsoever indicted, may be inquired of, tried, determined and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction to try the principal felon, in the same manner as if such offense had been committed at the same place as the principal felony or where the principal felony is triable, although such offense may have been committed at any place within or without the limits of the state. In case the principal felony shall have been committed within the body of any county, and the offense of counseling, procuring or commanding shall have been committed within the body of any other county, the last mentioned offense may be inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either of such counties: Provided, that no person who shall be once duly tried for any such offense, whether as an accessory before the fact or as for a substantive felony, shall be liable to be again indicted or tried for the same offense. (Rev., s. 3287; Code, s. 977; R. C., c. 34, s. 53; 1797, c. 485, s. 1; 1852, c. 58; C. S. 4175.)

In General.—It is a well established principle, that where two agree to do an unlawful act, each is responsible for the act of the other, provided it be done in pursuance of the original understanding, or in furtherance of the common purpose. State v. Simmons, 51 N. C. 21, 24.

Common Law Provision.—At common law an accessory before the fact could only be convicted when tried at the same time with the principal, and after conviction of the principal, or after the principal had been tried, convicted and sentenced. State v. Duncan, 28 N. C. 98; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 721, 8 S. E. 147.

But the rule that an accessory could not be tried and convicted before the principal had no application as between two principals in first and second degrees. State v. Jarrell, 141 N. C. 722, 53 S. E. 137.

"Accessory before Fact" Is a Substantive Felony.—This section made the facts which formerly had been called "accessory before the fact" a substantive felony (whether in murder or any other felony). State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 807, 92 S. E. 698.

Prior Conviction of Principals Unnecessary.—Under the provisions of this section it is not required that the principals be first convicted of the charge of murder to convict the accessories thereto, either before or after the fact, upon sufficient evidence. State v. Walton, 186 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886; State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 722, 8 S. E. 147.

One indicted as accessory before the fact can not complain that his cause was tried before that of the alleged principal, and before the alleged principal had even been called on to plead. State v. Reid, 178 N. C. 745, 101 S. E. 104.

Same—What Indictment Must Aver.—Where the principal felon is not amenable to the process of the law, it is necessary to aver that in the indictment. State v. Ives, 35 N. C. 338, 339; State v. Groff, 5 N. C. 270.

Who Are Principals.—All who are present, either actually or constructively, at the place of a crime, and are either aiding, abetting, assisting, or advising its commission, or are present for such purpose, are principals in the crime.

State v. Gaston, 73 N. C. 93; State v. Jarrell, 141 N. C. 722, 53 S. E. 127.

Same—Second Degree.—Persons present assisting in doing a criminal act are principals in the second degree, not accessories. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 69 S. E. 58; State v. Skeen, 182 N. C. 844, 109 S. E. 71.

In Misdemeanors All Are Principals.—In a misdemeanor all aiders, abettors, and accessories, whether before or after the fact, are principals. State v. Rowland Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 610, 69 S. E. 58; State v. Barden, 12 N. C. 518; State v. Cheek, 35 N. C. 114; State v. De Boy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167; State v. Grier, 184 N. C. 723, 114 S. E. 622. For an example of "first degree" and "second degree" in misdemeanors, see section 14-207.

Accessory Tried as Principal.—An accessory before the fact can be tried and convicted as principal, under this section. State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 806, 92 S. E. 698.

One Charged with Murder May Be Convicted as Accessory.—Under section 15-170 the charge of the principal crime includes the crime of accessory before the fact and hence one charged with murder may be convicted as accessory before the fact. State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 92 S. E. 698, overruling on this point State v. Dewey, 65 N. C. 572. See also State v. Simons, 179 N. C. 700, 103 S. E. 5.

Principal in Assault Cannot Be Convicted as Accessory.—A defendant charged as principal in an indictment for an assault with intent to kill can not be convicted as accessory. State v. Green, 119 N. C. 899, 26 S. E. 112.

No Conviction of Accessory Where Principal Acquitted.—This section does not change the common law rule that an acquittal of the principal is an acquittal of the accessory. State v. Jones, 101 N. C. 719, 8 S. E. 147.

Effect of Acquittal of One of Several Principals.—Where there are three charged as principals with murder, the acquittal of one of them, the others having fled the jurisdiction of the court, does not of itself acquit the prisoners on trial as accessories before or after the fact, when the evidence of their guilt of the offense charged is sufficient both as to them as accessories and the principals directly charged with the murder. State v. Walton, 186 N. C. 485, 119 S. E. 886.

Accessory Tried by Special Veniremen.—Where two persons are indicted for murder, one as principal and the other as accessory before the fact, the latter may be tried by a jury selected from a special venire ordered in the case. State v. Register, 133 N. C. 746, 46 S. E. 21.

What Constitutes Counseling, Procuring and Commanding.—At a meeting of a board of commissioners of a town, at which the mayor presided, a report of the cemetery committee was adopted, recommending that, unless parties, who had taken lots in the town cemetery and had not paid for them, should pay the amount due within sixty days on notice, the bodies buried in such lots should be removed to the free part of such cemetery. And, in reply to a question of one of the commissioners as to the legal right to remove the bodies, the mayor said: "The way is open, go ahead and remove them." It was held, that the mayor was individually guilty of counseling, procuring and commanding an act within the meaning of this section, the committing of which afterwards was a felony. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

The meaning of the word "command," as applied to the case of principal and accessory, is, where a person, having a control over another, as a master over his servant, orders a thing to be done. State v. Mann, 2 N. C. 4.

One Present Not Bound to Interfere.—One who is present, and sees that a felony is about to be committed, and does in no manner interfere, does not thereby participate in the felony committed. State v. Hildreth, 31 N. C. 440.

Evidence Admissible.—The record of the conviction of a principal felon is admissible on the trial of the accessory, and is conclusive evidence of the conviction of the principal, and prima facie evidence of his guilt. State v. Chittum, 13 N. C. 49.

But the conviction of the principal is not admissible evidence until judgment has been rendered on the verdict. State v. Duncan, 28 N. C. 98.

Same—Sufficient for Conviction.—Testimony that the accused had asked the one convicted of the murder of her husband to kill him, and that he accomplished the act the morning afterwards, at the place she designated, is sufficient for a conviction of murder, as an accessory before the fact. State v. Jones, 176 N. C. 702, 97 S. E. 32.

Sufficient Evidence to Submit Question to Jury.—Evidence tending to show that defendant knew of and participated in the plans or preparations made for the killing of deceased, that defendant procured a coat for the killer and furnished an automobile as a means of flight after the murder had been committed is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on an indictment drawn under this section. State v. Williams, 208 N. C. 707, 182 S. E. 131.

Applied in State v. Holland, 211 N. C. 284, 189 S. E. 761.

 S. E. 186; State v. Kluttz, 206 N. C. 726, 175 S. E. 81.

§ 14-6. Punishment of accessories before the fact.—Any person who shall be convicted as an accessory before the fact in either of the crimes of murder, arson, burglary or rape shall be imprisoned for life in the state's prison. An accessory before the fact to the stealing of any horse, mare, gelding or mule, on being duly convicted thereof, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than five nor more than twenty years, in the discretion of the court. Every accessory before the fact in any other felony shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison or county jail for not more than ten years, or may be fined in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3290; Code, s. 980; 1868-9, c. 31, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 212; C. S. 4176.)

Life Sentence for Accessory to Murder Valid.—Upon conviction of murder in the second degree, and sentence to twenty years in the State's Prison, upon an indictment for murder, when it appears from the evidence that the accused was only an accessory, the case will not be remanded to the Superior Court for resentencing, as the statute provides a sentence for life. State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 92 S. E. 698.

Sufficiency of Evidence to Go to Jury.—Evidence that defendant, for the purpose of freeing himself of competition in the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors, procured another to kill deceased by shooting him from ambush while lying in wait, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder under this section. State v. Mazingo, 207 N. C. 247, 176 S. E. 582.

Cited in State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

§ 14-7. Accessories after the fact; trial and punishment.—If any person shall become an accessory after the fact to any felony, whether the same be a felony at common law or by virtue of any statute made, or to be made, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and may be indicted and convicted together with the principal felon, or after the conviction of the principal felon, or may be indicted and convicted for such felony whether the principal felon shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years, and may also be fined in the discretion of the court. The offense of such person may be inquired of, tried, determined and punished by any court which shall have jurisdiction of the principal felon, in the same manner as if the act, by reason whereof such person shall have become an accessory, had been committed at the same place as the principal felony, although such act may have been committed without the limits of the state; and in case the principal felony shall have been committed within the body of any county, and the act by reason whereof any person shall have become accessory shall have been committed within the body of any other county, the offense of such person guilty of a felony as aforesaid may be inquired of, tried, determined, and punished in either of said counties: Provided, that no person who shall be once duly tried for such felony shall be again indicted or tried for the same offense. (Rev., s. 3289; Code, s. 978; R.

C., c. 34, s. 54; 1797, c. 485, s. 1; 1852, c. 58; C. S. 4177.)

In General.—See in connection with this section the annotations under section 14-5, many of which apply equally to this section.

An accessory after the fact is one who, after a felony has been committed, with knowledge that the felony has been committed, renders personal assistance to the felon in any manner to aid him to escape arrest or punishment knowing, at the time, the person so aided has committed a felony. State v. Potter, 221 N. C. 153, 19 S. E. (2d) 257.

Receiver of Stolen Goods Not Accessory.—All felonious stealing being now reduced by section 14-70 to the grade of petit larceny, a receiver of stolen goods is not an accessory after the fact. State v. Tyler, 85 N. C. 569.

Husband of Accessory Not Competent Witness.—The husband of one charged as an accessory is not a competent witness in favor of the one charged as the principal felon. State v. Ludwick, 61 N. C. 401.

SUBCHAPTER II. OFFENSES AGAINST THE STATE.

Art. 3. Rebellion.

§ 14-8. Rebellion against the state.—If any person shall incite, set on foot, assist or engage in a rebellion or insurrection against the authority of the state of North Carolina or the laws thereof, or shall give aid or comfort thereto, every person so offending in any of the ways aforesaid shall be guilty of a felony, and, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not more than fifteen years and by a fine of not more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3437; Code, s. 1106; 1868, c. 60, s. 2; 1861, c. 18; 1866, c. 64; Const., Art. IV, s. 5; C. S. 4178.)

§ 14-9. Conspiring to rebel against the state.—If two or more persons shall conspire together to overthrow or put down, or to destroy by force, the government of North Carolina, or to levy war against the government of the state, or to oppose by force the authority of such government, or by force or threats to intimidate, or to prevent, hinder or delay the execution of any law of the state, or by force or fraud to seize or take possession of any firearms or other property of the state, against the will or contrary to the authority of such state, every person so offending in any of the ways aforesaid shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned not more than ten years in the state's prison and be fined not exceeding five thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3438; Code, s. 1107; 1868, c. 60, s. 1; C. S. 4179.)

In General.—It is a rule well established that all who engage in a conspiracy, as well as those who participate after it is formed, are equally liable, and the acts and declarations of each in furtherance of the common illegal design are admissible against all. State v. Jackson, 82 N. C. 565, 567.

§ 14-10. Secret political and military organizations forbidden.—If any person, for the purpose of compassing or furthering any political object, or aiding the success of any political party or organization, or resisting the laws, shall join or in any way connect or unite himself with any oath-bound secret political or military organization, society or association of whatsoever name or character; or shall form or organize or combine and agree with any other person or persons to form or organize any such organization; or as a member of any secret political or military party or organization shall use, or agree to use, any certain signs or grips or passwords, or any disguise of the person or voice, or any disguise whatsoever for the advancement of its object, and shall take or administer any extra-judicial oath or other secret, solemn pledge, or any like secret means; or if any two or more persons, for the purpose of compassing or furthering any political object, or aiding the success of any political party or organization, or circumventing the laws, shall secretly assemble, combine or agree together, and the more effectually to accomplish such purposes, or any of them, shall use any certain signs, or grips, or passwords, or any disguise of the person or voice, or other disguise whatsoever, or shall take or administer any extra-judicial oath or other secret, solemn pledge; or if any persons shall band together and assemble to muster, drill or practice any military evolutions except by virtue of the authority of an officer recognized by law, or of an instructor in institutions or schools in which such evolutions form a part of the course of instruction; or if any person shall knowingly permit any of the acts and things herein forbidden to be had, done or performed on his premises, or on any premises under his control; or if any person being a member of any such secret political or military organization shall not at once abandon the same and separate himself entirely therefrom, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten nor more than two hundred dollars, or be imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3439; Code, s. 1095; 1870-1, c. 133; 1868-9, c. 267; 1871-2, c. 143; C. S. 4180.)

Cited in State v. Pelley, 221 N. C. 487, 20 S. E. (2d) 850.

Art. 4. Subversive Activities.

§ 14-11. Activities aimed at overthrow of government; use of public buildings.—It shall be unlawful for any person, by word of mouth or writing, willfully and deliberately to advocate, advise or teach a doctrine that the government of the United States, the state of North Carolina or any political subdivision thereof shall be overthrown or overturned by force or violence or by any other unlawful means. It shall be unlawful for any public building in the state, owned by the state of North Carolina, any political subdivision thereof, or by any department or agency of the state or any institution supported in whole or in part by state funds, to be used by any person for the purpose of advocating, advising or teaching a doctrine that the government of the United States, the state of North Carolina or any political subdivision thereof should be overthrown by force, violence or any other unlawful means. (1941, c. 37, s. 1.)

For comment on the enactment of this section, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 466.

§ 14-12. Punishment for violations.—Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this article shall, for the first offense, be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished accordingly, and for the second offense shall be guilty of a felony and punished accordingly. (1941, c. 37, s. 2.)

Art. 5. Counterfeiting and Issuing Monetary Substitutes.

§ 14-13. Counterfeiting coin and uttering coin that is counterfeit.—If any person shall falsely make, forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be falsely made, forged or counterfeited, or willingly aid or assist in falsely making, forging or counterfeiting the resemblance or similitude or likeness of a Spanish milled dollar, or any coin of gold or silver which is in common use and received in the discharge of contracts by the citizens of the state; or shall pass, utter, publish or sell, or attempt to pass, utter, publish or sell, or bring into the state from any other place with intent to pass, utter, publish or sell as true, any such false, forged or counterfeited coin, knowing the same to be false, forged or counterfeited, with intent to defraud any person whatsoever, every person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3422; Code, s. 1035; R. C., c. 34, s. 64; 1811, c. 814, s. 3; C. S. 4181.)

Cross References.—As to forgery, see § 14-119 et seq. As to counterfeiting trademarks, see § 80-8.

§ 14-14. Possessing tools for counterfeiting.—If any person shall have in his possession any instrument for the purpose of making any counterfeit similitude or likeness of a Spanish milled dollar, or other coin made of gold or silver which is in common use and received in discharge of contracts by the citizens of the state, and shall be duly convicted thereof, the person so offending shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, or be fined not more than five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3423; Code, s. 1036; R. C., c. 34, s. 65; 1811, c. 814, s. 4; C. S. 4182.)

Indictment Sufficient.—An indictment charging defendant with having in his possession "one pair of dies, upon which were made the likeness, similitude, figure and resemblance of the sides of a lawful Spanish milled silver dollar, etc., for the purpose of making and counterfeiting money in the likeness and similitude of Spanish milled silver dollars," was held to charge, with sufficient certainty, the offence designated in this section. State v. Collins, 10 N. C. 191.

§ 14-15. Issuing substitutes for money without authority.—If any person or corporation, unless the same be expressly allowed by law, shall issue any bill, due bill, order, ticket, certificate of deposit, promissory note or obligation, or any other kind of security, whatever may be its form or name, with the intent that the same shall circulate or pass as the representative of, or as a substitute for, money, he shall forfeit and pay for each offense the sum of fifty dollars; and if the offender be a corporation, it shall in addition forfeit its charter. Every person or corporation offending against this section, or aiding or assisting therein, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3711; Code, s. 2493; 1895, c. 127; R. C., c. 36, s. 5; C. S. 4183.)

Local Modification.—Cumberland: 1933, c. 33; Currituck: 1933, c. 328.

Editor's Note.—In State v. Humphreys, 19 N. C. 555, the act of 1816, ch. 900, which was very similar to this section, is discussed. It is there held that the act is constitutional and that the intent in so issuing the notes, etc., is an essential ingredient of the offense.

§ 14-16. Receiving or passing unauthorized substitutes for money.—If any person or corporation shall pass or receive, as the representative of, or as the substitute for, money, any bill, check, certificate, promissory note, or other security of the kind mentioned in § 14-15, whether the same be issued within or without the state, such person or corporation, and the officers and agents of such corporation aiding therein, who shall offend against this section shall for every such offense forfeit and pay five dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3712; Code, s. 2494; 1895, c. 127; R. C., c. 36, s. 6; C. S. 4184.)

Editor's Note.—In State v. Bank, 48 N. C. 450, it was held that this section making it an offense to "pass and receive" banknotes, did not apply to a bank but that the bank should be penalized under another section which made it unlawful to make and issue notes of a less denomination than three dollars.

SUBCHAPTER III. OFFENSES AGAINST THE PERSON.

Art. 6. Homicide.

§ 14-17. Murder in the first and second degree defined; punishment.—A murder which shall be perpetrated by means of poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, torture, or by any other kind of willful, deliberate and premeditated killing, or which shall be committed in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate any arson, rape, robbery, burglary or other felony, shall be deemed to be murder in the first degree and shall be punished with death. All other kinds of murder shall be deemed murder in the second degree, and shall be punished with imprisonment of not less than two nor more than thirty years in the state prison. (Rev., s. 3631; 1893, cc. 85, 281; C. S. 4200.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

"Homicide," in its largest sense is generic, embracing every mode by which the life of one person is taken by another. Generally speaking, therefore, homicide is the taking of human life, which may or may not be criminal. It is only those homicides which are committed in the manner described by the laws prescribing punishment therefor that are criminal.

Criminal homicide is the unlawful killing of a human being, and is classified as murder and manslaughter, and by statute, in most of the states as in North Carolina, murder is divided into two or more degrees.

The statutes where murder is divided into two degrees, have not, as a general thing, added to or taken away any ingredients of murder at common law, and every murder at common law is murder under the statutes. I Michie on Homicide 68.

II. MURDER IN GENERAL.

Effect of Section Dividing Murder into Degrees.—This section, dividing murder into two degrees, does not give any new definition of murder, but the same remains as it was at common law before the enactment. State v. Delton, 178 N. C. 779, 101 S. E. 548.

Purpose.—This section intended to select out of all murders denounced those that were more heinous because committed with premeditation and deliberation, or in the perpetration or attempted perpetration of a felony, etc., as murder in the first degree, punishable with death, and leave other murders deemed less heinous as murder in the second degree, punished by imprisonment. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 289, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Principal May Be Prosecuted under This Section and Accessory under § 14-6.—Section 14-6 prescribing imprisonment for life upon a conviction as an accessory before the fact to the crime of murder was in force at the time this section was enacted and the principal may therefore be convicted and punished under this section for murder in the second degree, while the accessory before the fact receives life under § 14-6. State v. Mazingo, 207 N. C. 247, 250, 176 S. E. 582.

Malice—Definition.—Malice is that condition of mind which prompts a person to take the life of another intentionally without just cause, excuse or justification. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869.

Same—Necessity.—Malice is always a necessary ingredient of murder. State v. Baldwin, 152 N. C. 822, 68 S. E. 148.

Same—Express.—But it is not necessary to a conviction for murder that the state prove express malice. State v. McDowell, 145 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same—Implied.—For this intentional killing of a human being with a deadly weapon implies malice. State v. Pasour, 183 N. C. 793, 111 S. E. 779; State v. Brinkley, 183 N. C. 720, 110 S. E. 783; State v. McDowell, 145 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same—Presumption.—At common law, the intentional killing of a human being with a deadly weapon, nothing more appearing, was murder, malice being presumed from the facts. State v. Rhyne, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128. The common law rule has been followed and it is now also presumed that a killing with a deadly weapon is unlawful and malicious. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Walker, 193 N. C. 489, 137 S. E. 429.

If the accused previously procured a weapon for the purpose of using it, and does use it, the offense is ordinarily murder. State v. Johnson, 172 N. C. 920, 90 S. E. 426.

Provocation never disproves malice; it only removes the presumption of malice, which the law raises without proof. A malicious killing is murder, however gross the provocation. State v. Johnson, 23 N. C. 354.

Motive—Necessity.—It is not necessary to a conviction of murder that the state prove motive. State v. Adams, 136 N. C. 617, 48 S. E. 589; State v. McDowell, 145 N. C. 563, 59 S. E. 690.

Same—To Strengthen State's Case.—But the case of the state may be strengthened by the showing of a motive when the evidence is circumstantial. State v. Stratford, 149 N. C. 483, 62 S. E. 882; State v. Turner, 143 N. C. 641, 57 S. E. 158.

Same—To Identify Prisoner or Establish Malice.—And it may be shown to identify the prisoner as the perpetrator of the crime, and to establish malice, deliberation, and premeditation. State v. Wilkins, 158 N. C. 603, 73 S. E. 992; State v. Adams, 138 N. C. 688, 50 S. E. 765.

Intent—Necessity.—Before a conviction for murder can be had, an unlawful and intentional taking of another's life must be shown. Sometimes the intent may be imputed by reason of the killing with a deadly weapon, or by circumstances which indicate a reckless indifference to human life, but it must always exist before a charge of murder can be sustained. State v. Stitt, 146 N. C. 643, 61 S. E. 566.

Same—Must Co-exist with Killing.—"The act of killing, and the guilty intent, must concur to constitute the offense." State v. Scates, 50 N. C. 420, 423.

Attempt to Kill.—"An attempt only, to, kill, with the most diabolical intent, may be moral, but can not be legal, murder." State v. Scates, 50 N. C. 420, 423.

Applied in State v. Hodgins, 210 N. C. 371, 186 S. E. 495. Quoted in State v. Hudson, 218 N. C. 219, 10 S. E. (2d) 730.

III. MURDER IN THE FIRST DEGREE.

Effect of Statute Dividing Murder into Degrees.—By the act of 1893, chapter 85 (this section), the crime of murder has been divided into two degrees, first and second. The common law definition and description are still applicable to the crime in the second degree; but it takes more than this to constitute murder in the first degree—the killing must be wilful, deliberate and premeditated, and this must be shown by the State beyond a reasonable doubt before it is justified in asking a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Rhyne, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128.

Definition.—Murder in the first degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice and with premeditation and deliberation. State v. Starnes, 220 N. C. 384, 17 S. E. (2d) 346.

Deliberation and Premeditation—Premeditation.—Premeditation means thought beforehand, for some length of time, however short. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869. It is a prior determination to do the act. State v. Cameron, 166 N. C. 379, 81 S. E. 748; State v. Bowser, 214 N. C. 249, 199 S. E. 31.

Same—Deliberation.—Deliberation means a preconceived intent to kill, executed in cold blood, in furtherance of a fixed design to gratify a feeling of revenge or to accomplish some unlawful purpose, and not under the influence of a violent passion suddenly aroused by some lawful or just cause or legal provocation. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Bowser, 214 N. C. 249, 199 S. E. 31.

Deliberation means that the act is done in cool state of blood. It does not mean brooding over it or reflecting upon it for a week, a day or an hour, or any other appreciable length of time, but it means an intention to kill, executed by the defendant in a cool state of blood, in furtherance of a fixed design to gratify a feeling of revenge, or to accomplish some unlawful purpose, and not under the influence of a violent passion, suddenly aroused by some lawful or just cause or legal provocation. State v. Hawkins, 214 N. C. 326, 334, 199 S. E. 284; State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869.

Same—Necessity.—And before a conviction for murder in the first degree can be had, the state must show that the prisoner had formed, prior to the killing, with deliberation and premeditation, a purpose to kill deceased. State v. Terry, 173 N. C. 761, 92 S. E. 154; State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869. See also 5 N. C. Law Rev. 364.

Same—Length of Time Immaterial.—The killing of a human being after the fixed purpose to do so has been formed, for however short a time, is sufficient for the conviction of murder in the first degree. State v. Walker, 173 N. C. 780, 92 S. E. 327. No particular period of time is necessary to constitute premeditation and deliberation for a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section. If the purpose to kill at all events has been deliberately formed, the interval which elapses before its execution is immaterial. State v. Holdscaw, 180 N. C. 731, 105 S. E. 181; State v. Cogey, 174 N. C. 814, 94 S. E. 416. And deliberation and premeditation need not be of any perceptible time. State v. Bynum, 175 N. C. 777, 95 S. E. 101; State v. Hammonds, 216 N. C. 67, 4 S. E. (2d) 439; State v. Burney, 215 N. C. 598, 3 S. E. (2d) 24.

Same—Sufficiency.—Weighing the purpose to kill long enough to form a fixed design, and the putting of such design into execution at a future period, no matter how long deferred, constitutes premeditation and deliberation sufficient to sustain a conviction of murder in the first degree. State v. Dowden, 118 N. C. 1145, 24 S. E. 722.

Same—Willful.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree the killing must be done with willful premeditation and determination. State v. McKay, 150 N. C. 813, 63 S. E. 1059; State v. Baldwin, 152 N. C. 822, 68 S. E. 148.

Malice.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree the killing must be done with malice aforethought, express or implied. State v. McKay, 150 N. C. 813, 68 S. E. 1059.

But a charge that murder in the first degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice aforethought cannot be held correct, since "aforethought" as so used does not connote premeditation and deliberation but the pre-existence of malice. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Murder in the first degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice and with premeditation and deliberation. State v. Payne, 213 N. C. 719, 197 S. E. 573.

Formed Design to Take Life.—If the circumstances of the killing show a formed design to take life of deceased, the crime is murder in the first degree. State v. Walker, 173 N. C. 780, 92 S. E. 327; State v. Cain, 178 N. C. 724, 100 S. E. 884.

Lying in Wait.—Defendants who lay in wait and killed deceased from ambush are guilty of murder in first degree. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 813, 89 S. E. 58. See also State v. Satterfield, 207 N. C. 118, 176 S. E. 466; State v. Mazingo, 207 N. C. 247, 176 S. E. 582.

Killing Wrong Person by Mistake.—Where defendant, intending to kill a certain person, by mistake inflicts fatal injuries on another, he is guilty in the same degree as though he had killed the person intended, and therefore an instruction that if the jury should be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant intended to kill a certain person with malice and with premeditation and deliberation and that by mistake he shot and killed deceased, defendant would be guilty of murder in the first degree, is without error. State v. Burney, 215 N. C. 598, 3 S. E. (2d) 24.

Killing in Perpetration of Robbery.—A homicide committed in the perpetration of, or in attempt to perpetrate, a robbery will be deemed murder in the first degree. State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 81 S. E. 620. See also State v. Glover, 208 N. C. 68, 179 S. E. 6; State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

Where all the evidence for the State tends to show that the defendants killed the deceased while attempting to rob him, the crime is murder in the first degree, under this section, and the failure of the trial court to submit the issue of guilty of murder in the second degree is not error. State v. Donnell, 202 N. C. 782, 164 S. E. 352.

Where upon a trial for murder all the evidence and inferences therefrom unquestionably tend to show that the deceased was killed by one lying in wait and for the purpose of robbery, with evidence tending to establish that the defendant had perpetrated the crime, and there is no evidence in mitigation of the offense, the evidence establishes the crime of murder in the first degree under this section, and an instruction to the jury either to convict the defendant of murder in the first degree, or to acquit him is not error. State v. Myers, 202 N. C. 351, 162 S. E. 764.

Evidence tending to show that defendant killed the deceased with a deadly weapon while attempting to perpetrate a robbery is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the issue of first degree murder, the credibility and probative force of the evidence being for the jury. State v. Langley, 204 N. C. 687, 169 S. E. 705.

Evidence tending to show that the prisoner with another entered a store with intent to rob its cash drawer, and shot and killed the deceased is of an attempt to commit a felony and sufficient to sustain a verdict of murder in the first degree, as defined by this section, under proper instructions from the court thereon upon conflicting evidence. State v. Sterling, 200 N. C. 18, 19, 156 S. E. 96.

Where murder is committed in the perpetration of a robbery from the person, it is murder in the first degree, irrespective of premeditation or deliberation or malice aforethought. State v. Alston, 215 N. C. 713, 3 S. E. (2d) 11.

A homicide committed in the perpetration or an attempt to perpetrate a robbery is murder in the first degree, notwithstanding the absence of any fixed intent to kill or any previous purpose, design or plan. State v. Kelly, 216 N. C. 627, 6 S. E. (2d) 533.

All Conspirators Are Guilty Regardless of Who Actually Committed Crime.—Where a conspiracy is formed to rob a bank, and murder is committed by one of the conspirators in the attempt to perpetrate the crime, each conspirator is guilty of murder in the first degree, under this section, and it is immaterial which one of them fired the fatal shot. State v. Green, 207 N. C. 369, 177 S. E. 120; State v. Kelly, 216 N. C. 627, 6 S. E. (2d) 533.

Thus, where defendants conspire to rob a certain place, and a murder is committed by one or more of them in the attempt to perpetrate the robbery, each of them is guilty of murder in the first degree. State v. Stefanoff, 206 N. C. 443, 174 S. E. 411; State v. Miller, 219 N. C. 514, 14 S. E. (2d) 522.

Each party to a conspiracy to burglarize or rob a home is guilty of murder in the first degree if any one of the conspirators commits murder in an attempt to perpetrate the burglary or robbery. State v. Bell, 205 N. C. 225, 171 S. E. 50.

IV. MURDER IN THE SECOND DEGREE.

Definition.—Murder in the second degree is the unlawful killing of a human being with malice, but without elements of premeditation and deliberation. State v. Benson, 183 N. C. 795, 111 S. E. 869; State v. Starnes, 220 N. C. 384, 17 S. E. (2d) 346.

By this section the crime of murder in the second degree is as at common law. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

Effect of Statute Dividing Murder into Degrees.—At common law, when the intentional killing by a deadly weapon was shown, the law presumed malice aforethought, and the burden of reducing the offense to a lower grade by proof of matters of mitigation or excuse devolved upon the prisoner. The statute dividing murder into two degrees (under this section) contains no reference to this rule, but the Supreme Court of N. C. in State v. Fuller, 114 N. C. 885, 19 S. E. 797, held that one result of the division of murder into two degrees was that proof of intentional killing with a deadly instrument raised a presumption only of murder in the second degree, and the burden was on the State to aggravate the offense to murder in the first degree, as it was on the prisoner, to reduce it. But this applies only to cases of homicide in which premeditation must be shown and not when the homicide is shown or admitted to have been committed by lying in wait, poisoning, starvation, imprisonment or torture. As to these, when intentionally done the law still raised the presumption of murder in the first degree. But none the less if the jury convict of a less offense, it is within their power so to do under the statute. Nor is intentional homicide by poisoning necessarily always murder in the first degree. The presumption may be rebutted. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 625, 55 S. E. 342.

Same—Presumption.—Since the Act of 1893, the killing being proved, and nothing else appearing, the law presumes malice, but not premeditation and deliberation, and the killing is murder in the second degree. State v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 636, 34 S. E. 247.

The presumptions from the use of a deadly weapon in committing a homicide are that the killing was unlawful and that it was done with malice, which constitutes murder in the second degree, and in order for such homicide to constitute murder in the first degree the State must show beyond a reasonable doubt that it was done with premeditation and deliberation. State v. Miller, 197 N. C. 445, 446, 149 S. E. 590.

The intentional killing of a human being with a deadly weapon implies malice and, if nothing else appears, constitutes murder in the second degree. State v. Hawkins, 214 N. C. 326, 334, 199 S. E. 284; State v. Payne, 213 N. C. 719, 197 S. E. 573; State v. Bright, 215 N. C. 537, 2 S. E. (2d) 541.

A killing with a deadly weapon raises the presumption that the homicide was murder in the second degree, and if the State seeks a conviction of murder in the first degree it has the burden of proving beyond a reasonable doubt that the homicide was committed with deliberation and premeditation. State v. Perry, 209 N. C. 604, 184 S. E. 545.

Intent Formed Simultaneous with Act of Killing.—Where this intent to kill is formed simultaneously with the act of killing, the homicide is not murder in the first degree. State v. Dowden, 118 N. C. 1145, 24 S. E. 722; State v. Barrett, 142 N. C. 565, 54 S. E. 856.

V. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Form of Indictment.—Nothing contained in the act of 1893 requires any alteration or modification of the existing form of indictment for murder. Therefore, it is not necessary that an indictment for murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate larceny should contain a specific allegation of the attempted larceny, such allegation not having been necessary in indictments prior to the said act of 1893. State v. Covington, 117 N. C. 834, 23 S. E. 337.

Remedy for Alternative Indictment Held to Be by Motion for Bill of Particulars.—After the return of a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, defendant moved in arrest of judgment for that the indictment was alternative, indefinite, and uncertain. It was held that although the indictment was alternative, either charge constituted murder in the first degree under this section, informing defendant of the crime charged, and defendant's remedy, if he desired greater certainty, was by motion for a bill of particulars under § 15-143. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 183.

Evidence of Killing in Perpetration of Robbery.—Evidence tending to show that the prisoner killed the deceased in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate a robbery, is expressly made competent by this section, and may be considered by the jury in determining the degree of crime, and whether the accused committed the highest felony or one of lower degree. State v. Westmoreland, 181 N. C. 590, 107 S. E. 438.

Evidence of Facts Succeeding Homicide.—Testimony of facts and circumstances which occurred after the commission of a homicide which tends to show a preconceived plan formed and carried out by the prisoner in detail, resulting in his actual killing of the deceased by two pistol shots, without excuse, with evidence that he had thereafter stated he had done as he had intended, is competent upon the question of deliberation and premeditation, under the evidence in this case, to sustain a verdict of murder in the first degree. State v. Westmoreland, 181 N. C. 590, 107 S. E. 438.

Beyond Reasonable Doubt.—The additional elements of premeditation and deliberation, necessary to constitute murder in the first degree, are not presumed from a killing with a deadly weapon. They must be established beyond a reasonable doubt, and found by the jury, before a verdict of murder in the first degree can be rendered against the prisoner. State v. Hawkins, 214 N. C. 326, 334, 199 S. E. 284.

Determination of Degree of Murder.—Under this section, distinguishing murder into two degrees, the jury, on conviction, must determine in their verdict whether the crime is murder in the first or second degree. State v. Truesdale, 123 N. C. 696, 34 S. E. 646; State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 477.

Charge—Willful Premeditation and Deliberation.—The law is fixed by the statute, that the killing must be willful, upon premeditation and with deliberation, and where there is no evidence tending to prove this, the jury should be so instructed, and the question of guilt on the charge of murder in the first degree ought not to be submitted to them. State v. Rhyne, 124 N. C. 847, 33 S. E. 128.

Same—Burden of Proof of Unlawful Killing.—Where the prisoner is on trial for murder in the first degree, burglary and rape, and there is evidence to support a verdict for each of these offenses, an instruction is proper, and in keeping with the language of this section, when construed as a whole, that the burden of proof was on the State to show beyond a reasonable doubt an unlawful killing with malice and with premeditation and deliberation, or murder committed in the perpetration, or attempt to perpetrate, other felonies named. State v. Walker, 193 N. C. 489, 137 S. E. 429.

Same—Sufficiency of Charge.—The court charged fully as to what was reasonable doubt, circumstantial evidence, presumption of innocence, etc. In absence of a request to do so, it was not error for the court to fail to define robbery in detail. State v. Godwin, 216 N. C. 49, 3 S. E. (2d) 347.

Sufficient Showing of Provocation So as to Reduce the Crime.—A defendant who has intentionally killed another with a deadly weapon, in order to rebut the presumption arising from such showing or admission, must establish to the satisfaction of the jury the legal provocation which will take from the crime the element of malice and thus reduce it to manslaughter, or excuse it altogether, but if there is no evidence of mitigation or provocation sufficient to reduce the offense to manslaughter it is proper to withhold this issue from the jury's consideration. State v. Keaton, 206 N. C. 682, 686, 175 S. E. 296.

Instruction.—See annotations under § 15-172.

Evidence Sufficient to Support Instruction as to Murder in First Degree.—Evidence that defendant, while in the custody of officers of the law who had arrested him when they apprehended him in the commission of a robbery, drew his pistol in an attempt to escape, and with premeditation and deliberation shot one of the officers in his attempt to escape, is sufficient to support an instruction to the jury on the question of murder in the first degree. State v. Brooks, 206 N. C. 113, 172 S. E. 879.

Where Jury May Be Instructed to Return First Degree Verdict or Not Guilty.—It is only in cases where all of the evidence tends to show that the homicide was committed by means of poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, torture, or in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate a felony, that the trial judge can instruct the jury that they must return a verdict of murder in the first degree or not guilty. State v. Perry, 209 N. C. 604, 605, 184 S. E. 545.

Where all the evidence is to the effect that a murder was committed in the perpetration of a robbery, it is not error for the court to limit the jury to a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty under this section. State v. Gosnell, 208 N. C. 401, 181 S. E. 323.

Sufficiency of Evidence for Submission to Jury.—Evidence tending to show that the defendant on trial for a homicide drove to a filling station at night with two others for the purpose of robbery, that defendant waited outside in the car while his companions went into the filling station and that deceased was killed by a shot from a gun fired from the outside, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of defendant's guilt of murder in the first degree as stated in this section. State v. Ferrell, 205 N. C. 640, 172 S. E. 186.

Verdict.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section and section 15-172, the jury must find specifically under the evidence that this degree of crime has been committed by the defendant, and the verdict must be received in open court in the presence of the presiding judge under Constitutional Mandate, Const., Art. I, secs. 13, 17, which right may not be waived. State v. Bazemore, 193 N. C. 336, 137 S. E. 172.

§ 14-18. Punishment for manslaughter.—If any person shall commit the crime of manslaughter he shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state prison for not less than four months nor more than twenty years: Provided, however, that in cases of involuntary manslaughter, the punishment shall be in the discretion of the court, and the defendant may be fined or imprisoned, or both. (Rev., s. 3632; Code, s. 1055; 1879, c. 255; R. C., c. 34, s. 24; 4 Hen. VII, c. 13; 1816, c. 918; 1933, c. 249; C. S. 4201.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 249, added the proviso at the end of this section, relating to involuntary manslaughter.

As to Less Degrees of Same Crime.—While under the provisions of section 15-170, the trial judge is required to charge upon evidence on the less degrees of the same crime concerning which the prisoner was being tried, it is not required that he charge upon the principles of an assault with a deadly weapon, where the prisoner is charged with murder, and the killing of the deceased by him has been admitted, and the judge has correctly charged upon the crime of manslaughter, the lowest degree of an unlawful killing of a human being. State v. Lutterloh, 188 N. C. 412, 124 S. E. 752.

Punishment Not Reviewable on Appeal.—The question of the imposition of a sentence on the prisoner convicted of manslaughter within the maximum and minimum allowed by this section, is within the discretion of the trial court and is not reviewable on appeal. State v. Fleming, 202 N. C. 512, 163 S. E. 453.

Section Does Not Constitute Involuntary Manslaughter a Misdemeanor.—The amendment to this section by ch. 249, Public Laws of 1933, which added a proviso that in cases of involuntary manslaughter the defendant shall be punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, does not constitute involuntary manslaughter a misdemeanor instead of a felony, the effect of the proviso being to mitigate punishment in cases of involuntary manslaughter, and not to set up involuntary manslaughter as a separate offense. State v. Dunn, 208 N. C. 333, 180 S. E. 708. See also, State v. Richardson, 221 N. C. 209, 19 S. E. (2d) 863; Orinoco Supply Co. v. Masonic, etc., Home, 163 N. C. 513, 79 S. E. 964.

Thus the Superior Court has jurisdiction of a prosecution under the statute although the fatal accident occurred within the territorial jurisdiction of a city court having exclusive original jurisdiction of misdemeanors. State v. Leonard, 208 N. C. 346, 180 S. E. 710.

The proviso prescribes a "specific punishment," and a sentence of imprisonment in the state prison for a term of seven years upon defendant's plea of guilty of involuntary manslaughter will be upheld, the punishment being in the sound discretion of the trial court, limited only by the prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment. State v. Richardson, 221 N. C. 209, 19 S. E. (2d) 863.

§ 14-19. Punishment for second offense of manslaughter.—If any person, having been convicted of the crime of manslaughter and sentenced thereon, shall be convicted of a second crime of the like nature, he shall be imprisoned in the state prison not less than five nor more than sixty years; and in every such case of conviction for such second offense, the prior conviction of the same person and sentence thereon may be shown to the court. (Rev., s. 3633; Code, s. 1056; R. C., c. 34, s. 25; C. S. 4202.)

§ 14-20. Killing adversary in duel; aiders and abettors declared accessories.—If any persons fight a duel in consequence of a challenge sent or received, and either of the parties shall be killed, then the survivor, on conviction thereof, shall suffer death; and all their aiders or abettors shall be considered accessories before the fact. (Rev., s. 3629; Code, s. 1013; R. C., c. 34, s. 3; 1802, c. 608, s. 2; C. S. 4203.)

Cross References.—As to sending, accepting or bearing a challenge to fight a duel, or aiding and abetting a duel, see § 14-270. As to penalty for fighting a duel, see Art. XIV, § 2 of the N. C. Constitution.

Definition.—Webster's International Dictionary defines "duel" to be a combat between two persons, fought with deadly weapons by agreement. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 727, 45 S. E. 957.

Offense at Common Law.—Duelling was an offence at common law, 4 Bl. Com., 145; State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 727, 45 S. E. 957.

Deadly Weapons.—In 2 Bishop New Criminal Law, § 313(2), it is doubted whether the use of deadly weapons is essential to a duel, but the fighting must at least be upon such mutual agreement as permits one combatant to take the life of the other. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 727, 45 S. E. 957.

When Offense Complete.—Both at common law and under our statute the offense is complete, although no casualty results. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 727, 45 S. E. 957.

Challenge to Fight with Fists and Hands.—Challenge to fight a fair fight with fist and hands, without the use of any deadly weapons, is not dueling within the statute. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 45 S. E. 957.

Challenge to Fight Out of State.—Challenge to fight duel out of state is indictable under this section. State v. Farrier, 8 N. C. 487.

Indictments.—An indictment for sending a challenge, in the form of a letter, to fight a duel, need not set out the contents of the letter, nor the substance thereof. State v. Farrier, 8 N. C. 487.

Punishment.—Where a person is tried in the Superior Court for violation of the provisions of this section, but is convicted of a lesser offense, of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction, the punishment cannot exceed that which a justice of the peace could impose. State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 45 S. E. 957.

Art. 7. Rape and Kindred Offenses.

§ 14-21. Punishment for rape.—Every person who is convicted of ravishing and carnally knowing any female of the age of twelve years or more by force and against her will, or who is convicted of unlawfully and carnally knowing and abusing any female child under the age of twelve years, shall suffer death. (Rev., s. 3637; Code, s. 1101; R. C., c. 34, s. 5; 18 Eliz., c. 7; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 2; 1917, c. 29; C. S. 4204.)

Cross References.—As to conviction for assault when defendant not guilty of rape, see § 14-214. As to exclusion of bystanders during trial for rape, see § 15-166.

Editor's Note.—At common law rape was a felony, but the offense was afterwards changed to a misdemeanor before the statute of Westminster 1. By that statute the punishment, which then was castration and loss of eyes, was mitigated. State v. Dick, 6 N. C. 388. But by the statute of Westminster 2, the offense was again changed to a felony, and hence its present existence as a felony is in virtue of that statute. State v. Dick, 6 N. C. 388; State v. Jesse, 20 N. C. 95, 102.

Rape, under these and later statutes, was the "carnal knowledge of a female forcibly and against her will." State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 210. This definition left out the elements of age altogether. But as the instances of children below the age of discretion being enticed to yield without knowledge of the act and its consequences multiplied, it became necessary to fix an age under which it should be presumed, not that the act could not be consummated, but that consent could not be given. And so it came to be provided that the consummation of the act upon a female under ten years of age, with or without her consent, should be the same as if consummated upon a female over ten years of age without her consent or against her will. And the object of 18 Eliz., conclusively presuming lack of consent of a female under ten years of age, was not to create a new offense distinct from rape, but it was to make such carnal knowledge and abuse rape. The reason why the act does not call it rape in so many words is because of the seeming incongruity of calling an act rape when it is by consent, whereas the established meaning of rape is "against her will." State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 210. So that now the definition of rape of a female over ten years of age is as it always has been, "carnal knowledge against her will." But since 18 Eliz. and under our statute rape of a female under ten years of age is simply carnal knowledge; or in other words, carnal knowledge of a female under ten years of age is rape. State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 211.

By Public Laws 1917, chap. 29, the age of consent, below which it is conclusively presumed that a female child could not consent to sexual intercourse, was raised from ten to twelve years.

"The 'abusing' construed with the 'carnally knowing' means the imposing upon, deflowering, degrading, ill-treating, debauching and ruining socially, as well as morally, perhaps, of the virgin of such tender years, who, when yielding willingly, does so in ignorance of the consequences and of her right and power to resist. If the act be committed forcibly and against her will, it would be rape without reference to the statute." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 700, 41 S. E. 789.

"Injury" of her genital organs might have occurred from the effort to penetrate, or in some other way; but the statute does not declare it to be an element of the crime to injure or abuse the organs." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 700, 41 S. E. 789.

Same—Not Endeavoring to Penetrate.—"To have injured the organs in some way other than by endeavoring to penetrate with his person, if done with her consent, though it would be abusing her, would not be a crime, because there was no act of carnal knowledge." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 700, 41 S. E. 789.

Same—Against Her Will.—"But if the injury occurred against her will and intentionally, then it, the injury, would be embraced in the assault charged, for which he could be convicted." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 700, 41 S. E. 789.

Presumption of Force.—Under this section, force is conclusively presumed in the case of carnal knowledge of a female under the age of ten (now twelve). State v. Dancy, 83 N. C. 608, 609.

Age of Consent.—It is a settled construction of the latter clause of this section that to carnally know and abuse any child under ten (now twelve) years of age, whether she consents to such carnal knowledge or not, is rape. State v. Goldston, 103 N. C. 323, 324, 9 S. E. 580; State v. Storkey, 63 N. C. 7, 8.

But it in no way affects the guilt of one who carnally knows a female above that age against her will. State v. Storkey, 63 N. C. 7, 8.

Penetration without Emission of Seed Sufficient.—In rape the least penetration of the person is sufficient, and the emission of seed is unnecessary. State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 41 S. E. 789.

Before the passage of the Act of 1860-'61, Chp. 30 (now section 14-23), it was decided in State v. Gray, 53 N. C. 170, that in an indictment under this section, for carnally knowing and abusing an infant female under the age of ten (now twelve) years, there must be proof of the emission of seed, as well as of penetration, in order to convict the offender. Immediately after that decision, and probably in consequence of it, the act of 1860-'61, Chp. 30 was passed, providing that it shall not be necessary to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute a carnal knowledge, but that the carnal knowledge shall be deemed complete upon the proof of penetration only. State v. Hodges, 61 N. C. 231, 232.

Offense Complete on Proof of Penetration.—"It shall not be necessary upon the trial of any indictment for the offense of rape, carnally knowing and abusing any female child under 10 (now 12) years of age, to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute the offense, but the offense shall be completed upon proof of penetration only." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 699, 41 S. E. 789.

Upon Whom Rape May Be Committed.—For a conviction of rape under this section it is not always essential that this offense be committed upon a virtuous woman or actual physical force be used. The circumstances of this case may do away with the necessity of all the elements of the crime and yet constitute rape, as in the following cases.—Ed. Note.

Same—Common Strumpet.—One may be guilty of rape on a common strumpet or a woman shown to have been his mistress previously. State v. Long, 93 N. C. 542, 544.

Capacity of Infant to Commit Rape.—An infant under the age of 14 can not commit the crime of rape or assault with intent to commit rape. State v. Pugh, 52 N. C. 61, 63; State v. Gray, 53 N. C. 170, 173; State v. Sam, 60 N. C. 293, 295.

Who May Be Guilty of Rape.—The word, "person", in this section, includes slaves, free negroes and free persons of color, as well as white men. State v. Peter, 53 N. C. 19.

Same—Two or More Persons.—Two or more persons may be guilty of the single crime of rape by being present, aiding and abetting in its commission. State v. Jordan, 110 N. C. 491, 14 S. E. 752.

Same—Aiding and Abetting.—One holding the husband of prosecutrix while another is perpetrating the crime of rape is guilty as principal in the offense. State v. Jordan, 110 N. C. 491, 14 S. E. 752.

Same—Female Aiding Man to Commit Crime.—A man and a woman are both guilty of abusing and carnally knowing a female child where both caused the child to become drunk and the man had intercourse with the child while being held by the woman. State v. Hairston, 121 N. C. 579, 28 S. E. 492.

Necessary Allegations—Intent.—By this section, rape is the ravishing and carnally knowing any female of the age of twelve or older by force and against her will, and for conviction of a burglarious entry into a dwelling, presently occupied by a female as a sleeping apartment, with intent to commit rape upon her person, it is necessary to charge in the indictment, and support it with evidence, that at the time of the entry into the dwelling the prisoner had this specific intent, whether he accomplished his purpose, notwithstanding any resistance on her part, or not. State v. Allen, 186 N. C. 302, 119 S. E. 504.

Intent is not an element of the offense of carnally knowing or abusing a female child under the age of twelve years, and a motion to quash an indictment therefor on the ground that it failed to allege "intent" is properly denied. State v. Gibson, 221 N. C. 252, 20 S. E. (2d) 51.

Instruction.—Where the indictment charges that defendant did ravish and carnally know prosecutrix by force and against her will, she being a child under twelve years of age, it is not error for the court to present to the jury, as applicable to the evidence in the case, both the question of carnal knowledge of prosecutrix when she was under twelve years of age, and carnal knowledge of prosecutrix when she was over twelve years of age by force and against her will. State v. Johnson, 213 N. C. 389, 196 S. E. 327.

Applied in State v. Jackson, 211 N. C. 202, 189 S. E. 510; State v. Wagstaff, 219 N. C. 15, 12 S. E. (2d) 657.

Cited in State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 21 S. E. (2d) 812.

§ 14-22. Punishment for assault with intent to commit rape.—Every person convicted of an assault with intent to commit a rape upon the body of any female shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than one nor more than fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3638; Code, s. 1102; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 3; R. C., c. 107, s. 44; 1823, c. 1229; 1917, c. 162, s. 1; C. S. 4205.)

Editor's Note.—The offense of "assault with intent to commit rape" is a separate and distinct crime in and by itself and is not an "attempt to commit rape," as it is, sometimes, falsely designated. There is no such criminal offense as an "attempt to commit rape." It is embraced and covered by the offense of "an assault with intent to commit rape." See State v. Hewett, 158 N. C. 627, 629, 74 S. E. 356.

In General.—This section should be construed as if it read as follows: if any person shall attempt to commit rape specified in the preceding section, that is to say, to carnally know a female over ten (now twelve) years of age against her will, or to carnally know and abuse a female under ten (now twelve) years of age, with or against her will, he shall be punished, etc. State v. Johnston, 76 N. C. 209, 211.

The offense defined by this section is an assault on a female with intent to commit rape, the "intent" to commit this offense being inclusive of an "attempt" to commit it. State v. Adams, 214 N. C. 501, 199 S. E. 716.

"In order to convict a defendant on the charge of assault with intent to commit rape, the evidence should show not only an assault, but that the defendant intended to gratify his passion on the person of the woman, and that he intended to do so, at all events, notwithstanding any resistance on her part." State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 38, 21 S. E. (2d) 812, quoting State v. Massey, 86 N. C. 658, 41 Am. Rep. 478.

Age of Female.—This section in the act of 1868 followed immediately after the second section (14-21) of that act, and had direct reference to it, and was intended to include assaults upon females, whether of the age of ten years or more. It uses the words "any female," which embrace females of all ages. State v. Dancy, 83 N. C. 608, 610.

Who May Be Guilty of Offense.—At common law, rape was a felony, and all persons who were present, aiding and abetting a man to commit the offense, whether men or women, were principal offenders and might be indicted as such. In this regard the law is not different to-day, so that a woman as well as a man can be found guilty as a principal in the offense. See State v. Jones, 83 N. C. 605, 606.

Same—Husband upon Wife.—A husband who, by threats to kill in event of refusal, compels his wife to submit to, and a man to attempt, sexual connection, is guilty of an assault with intent to commit a rape upon his wife. State v. Dowell, 106 N. C. 722, 11 S. E. 525.

Same—Females.—A female who aids and abets a male assailant in an attempt to commit a rape becomes thereby a principal in the offense. State v. Jones, 83 N. C. 605.

Same—Infant under 14.—An infant under the age of 14 years cannot be guilty of an assault with intent to commit rape. State v. Sam, 60 N. C. 293.

Withdrawal of Consent before Perpetration of Offense.—If the prosecutrix consented to have connection with the prisoner upon certain terms, which the defendant refused, and attempted by force to carnally know her without her consent, he is guilty of rape if he succeeds, and of an assault with intent to commit rape, if he does not succeed. State v. Long, 93 N. C. 542.

Effect of Subsequent Consent.—It seems that this offense is complete, if the defendant attempts to force the prosecutrix against her will, although she afterwards consents. State v. Long, 93 N. C. 542.

Punishment.—Unlawfully to carnally know and abuse a female under the age of ten years (now twelve) constitutes a crime of rape. Therefore, one convicted of an assault with intent to commit such offense is liable to the punishment prescribed in this section. State v. Dancy, 83 N. C. 608.

§ 14-23. Emission not necessary to constitute rape and buggery.—It shall not be necessary upon the trial of any indictment for the offenses of rape, carnally knowing and abusing any female child under twelve years old, and buggery, to prove the actual emission of seed in order to constitute the offense, but the offense shall be completed upon proof of penetration only. (Rev., s. 3639; Code, s. 1105; 1860-1, c. 30; 1917, c. 29; C. S. 4206.)

Editor's Note.—The Editor has deemed it expedient to treat the substance of the provisions of this section in connection with those of section 14-21. For a treatment of the origin and effect of this section, reference is therefore made to section 14-21.

§ 14-24. Obtaining carnal knowledge of married woman by personating husband.—If any person shall have carnal knowledge of any married woman by fraud in personating her husband, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison at hard labor for not less than ten nor more than twenty years. (Rev., s. 3624; Code, s. 1103; 1881, c. 89, s. 1; C. S. 4207.)

Misrepresentation by Words or Conduct Sufficient.—A person who, either by his acts or by his conduct, induces a woman to believe he is her husband and has intercourse with her, is guilty of a felony under this section. State v. Williams, 128 N. C. 573, 37 S. E. 952.

Offense Does Not Constitute Rape.—An intercourse, obtained with such fraud, is not rape, for lack of force, except in those cases where the prisoner has been instrumental in disabling the prosecutrix to make resistance. State v. Brooks, 76 N. C. 1, 3.

§ 14-25. Attempted carnal knowledge of married woman by personating husband.—Every person convicted of an assault upon any married woman, with intent to have knowledge of her by fraud in personating her husband, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison at hard labor for not less than five nor more than fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3625; Code, s. 1104; 1881, c. 89, s. 2; C. S. 4208.)

Violation of this section is not tantamount to assault with intent to commit rape. State v. Brooks, 76 N. C. 1.

§ 14-26. Obtaining carnal knowledge of virtuous girls between twelve and sixteen years old.—If any male person shall carnally know or abuse any female child, over twelve and under sixteen years of age, who has never before had sexual intercourse with any person, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court; and any female person who shall carnally know any male child under the age of sixteen years shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court: Provided, that if the offenders shall be married or shall thereafter marry, such marriage shall be a bar to further prosecution. (Rev., s. 3348; 1895, c. 295; 1917, c. 29; 1923, c. 140, s. 1; C. S. 4209.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to 1917 the protection of this section extended only to a female child over ten and under fourteen years of age. The same act (1917) that raised the age of consent for the criminal offense of rape to twelve, limited this section by making it applicable to females over twelve and under fourteen years of age only. The radical change in the provisions of the section as it now stands was, however, effected by the Acts of 1923, ch. 140. As a result of this plausible amendment, the crime under this section is committed if the female child is over twelve and under sixteen, thus raising the age of consent for this particular offense to sixteen years.

The section was further amended by making it a misdemeanor for any female to carnally know any male child under the age of sixteen, a new criminal offense, hitherto unguarded against, and one that seems only fair and reasonable in an age that recognizes the equal rights of men and women.

Lastly, the new section makes the marriage of the offenders a bar to further prosecution. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 286.

Essentials of Crime.—The essentials of the crime in this case are (1) carnally know or abuse a female child; (2) over twelve and under sixteen years of age; (3) the female child never before having had sexual intercourse with any person. State v. Swindell, 189 N. C. 151, 126 S. E. 417.

Injuring Genital Organs Not Sufficient.—In an indictment under this section, for carnally knowing a girl between the ages of 10 and 14 (now 12 and 16), it is error to charge that the crime would be complete "if the jury should find that the defendant injured and abused her genital organs." State v. Monds, 130 N. C. 697, 41 S. E. 789.

Aiding and Abetting.—One who accompanies in an automobile another who accomplishes his purpose of having carnal knowledge of a female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age, in violation of this section, and with knowledge of this purpose leaves them together in the automobile at night until the purpose has been accomplished, though the female consents, is guilty as an aider or abetter in the commission of the offense, and punishable as a principal therein. State v. Hart, 186 N. C. 582, 120 S. E. 345.

Joinder of Offenses.—A charge of rape and that of carnally knowing a female person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years, under this section, can be properly joined in separate counts in one indictment, under § 15-152, since they are related in character and grow out of the same transaction, and are properly left to the jury under the general plea of not guilty, without any requirement on the part of the state to make an election. State v. Hall, 214 N. C. 639, 642, 200 S. E. 375.

Responsiveness of Verdict.—Defendant was charged in the first count with rape and in the second count with having carnal knowledge of a female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age. The solicitor announced he would not ask for a conviction of the capital offense of rape and the court correctly charged the jury as to the verdicts permissible upon the first count, and charged that upon the second count they might find defendant guilty or not guilty. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty upon the first count and guilty of assault upon a female upon the second count. The court thereupon instructed the jury again as to the verdicts it might render upon the respective counts, and upon the coming in of the jury the second time, it returned a verdict of guilty of an assault upon a female upon the first count and guilty upon the second count. Held: Even conceding that the first verdict of not guilty upon the first count precluded the jury from again considering that charge and rendered ineffective the second verdict of guilty of an assault upon a female, its first verdict upon the second count was not responsive to the indictment and was not a verdict permitted by law, and therefore the court properly instructed it to reconsider its verdict upon the second count, and the verdict finally rendered thereon is consistent with law and was properly accepted by the court. State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 556, 11 S. E. (2d) 567.

Evidence of Conversation.—Where the prosecutrix has testified upon the trial for the unlawfully carnally knowing or abusing an innocent female child over twelve and under fourteen years of age, her testimony in answer to the questions of the solicitor, to the effect that she had told her mother on the day of the occurrence, who was the only near relative present, is admissible for the purpose of corroborating her other testimony. State v. Winder, 183 N. C. 776, 111 S. E. 530.

Evidence of Age.—Prosecuting witness may give competent testimony as to her age. State v. Trippe, 222 N. C. 600, 24 S. E. (2d) 340.

Family Bible Entries Evidence of Child's Age.—Authenticated entries in family Bible constitute competent evidence to prove age of child. State v. Hairston, 121 N. C. 579, 28 S. E. 492.

Expression of Opinion by Court.—In prosecution under this section, the court, in summarizing the contentions of defendant, charged that defendant insisted that the jury should not find beyond a reasonable doubt that the prosecutrix was under sixteen years of age, "whereas the Biblical records and the testimony of her father and mother should satisfy you beyond a reasonable doubt that she is under sixteen years of age." Held: The instruction constitutes an expression of opinion on an essential element of the crime charged, prohibited by section 1-180, and the error is not mitigated by construing the charge as a whole, nor may it be upheld as charging that the jury should find that the prosecutrix was under sixteen years of age if they believed the uncontradicted testimony. State v. Wyont, 218 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. (2d) 473.

Evidence of Relations with Other Men.—In a prosecution under this section, it is not error to exclude evidence of improper relations between the prosecuting witness and another several months after the alleged crime of the defendant. State v. Houpe, 207 N. C. 377, 177 S. E. 20.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Evidence that prosecutrix at the time alleged was an innocent, virtuous woman, under sixteen years of age, and that defendant is the father of her illegitimate child, which was born shortly after she arrived at the age of sixteen, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution under this section. State v. Wyont, 218 N. C. 505, 11 S. E. (2d) 573.

Plea of Guilty May Not Be Withdrawn.—Upon the trial under this section of carnally knowing a female child over twelve and under sixteen years of age, the defendant may not enter a plea of guilty and thereafter withdraw the plea and enter a defense as a matter of right, and the sentence will be sustained in the absence of abuse of the court's discretion. State v. Porter, 188 N. C. 804, 125 S. E. 615.

Variance as to Time.—It is to the girl's first act of intercourse with a man, when she is under sixteen years of age, that the law attaches criminality on the part of the man, and a variance between allegation and proof as to time is not material. State v. Trippe, 222 N. C. 600, 24 S. E. (2d) 340.

Punishment.—The felony defined in this section is not one "for which no specific punishment is prescribed" within section 14-2, and the discretion of the court in fixing the punishment is limited only by Const. Art. I, § 14. A sentence of 30 years and hard labor is not a "cruel and unusual punishment" for an offense under this section. State v. Swindell, 189 N. C. 151, 126 S. E. 417.

Cited in State v. Cain, 209 N. C. 275, 183 S. E. 300.

§ 14-27. Jurisdiction of court; offenders classed as delinquents.—All persons charged with a violation of § 14-26 under the age of sixteen years shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court and such other courts as may hereafter exercise such jurisdiction, and shall be classed as delinquents and not as felons: Provided, that where the offenders agree to marry, the consent of the parent shall not be necessary: Provided further, that any male person convicted of the violation of § 14-26 who is under eighteen (18) years of age, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor only. (1923, c. 140, s. 2; C. S. 4209(a).)

Editor's Note.—This section is summarized and a brief history of the law given in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 286.

Art. 8. Assaults.

§ 14-28. Malicious castration.—If any person, of malice aforethought, shall unlawfully castrate any other person, or cut off, maim or disfigure any of the privy members of any person, with intent to murder, maim, disfigure, disable or render impotent such person, the person so offending shall suffer imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3627; Code, s. 999; R. C., c. 34, s. 4; 1831, c. 40, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 6; C. S. 4210.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under §§ 14-29 and 14-30.

Appeal from Sentence for Punishment.—Upon conviction of the criminal offense inhibited by this section, sentence of the court for a period within that allowed by statute will not be considered on appeal as a cruel or unusual punishment against the provision of our Constitution, Art. I, sec. 14, or discriminatory against the principal actor in committing the crime, when the others participating therein to a less extent have been sentenced for shorter terms, the sentences imposed being left largely in the discretion of the trial court, and in the absence of an abuse of this discretion not reviewable on appeal. State v. Griffin, 190 N. C. 133, 129 S. E. 410.

§ 14-29. Castration or other maiming without malice aforethought.—If any person shall, on purpose and unlawfully, but without malice aforethought, cut or slit the nose, bite or cut off the nose, or a lip or an ear, or disable any limb or member of any other person, or castrate any other person, or cut off, maim or disfigure any of the privy members of any other person, with intent to kill, maim, disfigure, disable or render impotent such person, the person so offending shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not less than six months nor more than ten years, and fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s.

3626; Code, s. 1000; R. C., c. 34, s. 47; 1754, c. 56; 1791, c. 339, ss. 2, 3; 1831, c. 40, s. 2; C. S. 4211.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 14-30.

Proof of Malice Aforethought Not Necessary.—Proof, of malice aforethought, or of a preconceived intention to commit the maim, is not necessary. State v. Girkin, 23 N. C. 121.

§ 14-30. Malicious maiming.—If any person shall, of malice aforethought, unlawfully cut out or disable the tongue or put out an eye of any other person, with intent to murder, maim or disfigure, the person so offending, his counselors, abettors and aiders, knowing of and privy to the offense, shall, for the first offense, be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, and be fined, in the discretion of the court; and for the second offense shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3636; Code, s. 1080; R. C., c. 34, s. 14; 1754, c. 56; 1791, c. 339, s. 1; 1831, c. 12; 22 and 23 Car. II, c. 1 (Coventry Act); C. S. 4212.)

When Corpus Delicti Complete.—Under this section the corpus delicti is complete, if the maim be committed on purpose, and with intent to disfigure, although without malice prepense. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

"Malice Aforethought" Construed.—For the words "malice aforethought" do not mean an actual, express or preconceived disposition; but import an intent, at the moment, to do, without lawful authority, and without the pressure of necessity, that which the law forbids. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425.

Malicious Intent Express or Implied.—The malicious intent to maim or disfigure may either be expressed or implied from circumstances. State v. Irwin, 2 N. C. 112.

Proof of Grudges or Threatenings Not Necessary.—And proof of antecedent grudges, threatenings or an express design is not necessary. State v. Irwin, 2 N. C. 112.

Presumptions.—An intent to disfigure is prima facie to be inferred from an act which does in fact disfigure, unless that presumption be repelled by evidence on the part of the accused of a different intent, or at least of the absence of the intent mentioned in the statute. State v. Girkin, 23 N. C. 121.

What Constitutes Maiming.—To constitute a maim, under this statute, by biting off an ear, it is not necessary that the whole ear shall be bitten off—it is sufficient if a part only is taken off, provided enough is taken off to alter and impair the natural personal appearance, and, to ordinary observation, to render the person less comely. State v. Girkin, 23 N. C. 121.

Conviction for Loss of Eye.—Construing this section in connection with the history of legislation on the subject, it is held that thereunder the loss of an eye is not included in the offense of mayhem, and though the infliction thereof without malice may neither be sustained as provided by section 14-29, nor under the common law, requiring that the offense should have been committed with malice, yet upon proper evidence a conviction may be had of an assault with a deadly weapon and an assault with serious damages, as a less degree of the crime charged under the provisions of section 14-29. State v. Wilson, 188 N. C. 781, 125 S. E. 612.

First Blow or Sudden Affray.—The first blow, or a sudden affray, does not palliate the offense of maiming under the act of 1791; for if it did, the statute would be of little avail. State v. Crawford, 13 N. C. 425, 426.

Same—Accident or Self-Defense.—When the act is proved, the law presumes that it was done on purpose. The burden is therefore upon defendant to show that it was done accidentally or in self-defense. State v. Evans, 2 N. C. 281, 282; State v. Skidmore, 87 N. C. 509.

Indictment—Necessary Allegations.—An indictment, for biting off ear, must state the offense to be done on purpose, as well as unlawfully. State v. Ormond, 18 N. C. 119.

Same—Unnecessary Allegations.—But it need not be alleged whether it was the right or left ear. State v. Green, 29 N. C. 39.

§ 14-31. Maliciously assaulting in a secret manner.—If any person shall in a secret manner maliciously commit an assault and battery with any deadly weapon upon another by waylaying or otherwise, with intent to kill such other person, notwithstanding the person so assaulted may have been conscious of the presence of his adversary, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in jail or in the penitentiary for not less than twelve months nor more than twenty years, or by a fine not exceeding two thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev. s. 3621; 1887, c. 32; 1919, c. 25; C. S. 4213.)

Cross Reference.—As to an assault in this state injuring person in another state, see § 15-132.

Editor's Note.—The 1919 amendment added the clause relative to consciousness of the presence of the assailant.

Effect of Words, "or Otherwise."—The Legislature, after denouncing as criminal secret assaults with intent to kill, and after giving one explicit illustration, added the words "or otherwise," in order to prevent the application of the maxim expressio unius exclusio alterius, thus including every other manner of making secret attempts, regardless of the attendant circumstances. State v. Shade, 115 N. C. 757, 758, 20 S. E. 537.

Assault with Intent to Commit Murder.—"Attempts to commit any of the four capital offences were formerly felonies, but during the prosecution for 'Ku Klux' troubles the offence of assault with intent to commit murder was reduced to a simple misdemeanor. The Act of 1887, Ch. 32, restored the grade of the offence to a felony, except in those cases in which it is committed openly, giving the assailed an opportunity to know his assailant. State v. Telfair, 109 N. C. 878, 13 S. E. 726." State v. Harris, 120 N. C. 577, 579, 26 S. E. 774.

What Constitutes Secret Assault.—While it is not required for the conviction of a secret assault, under the provisions of this section, that the assailed should not have been aware of the presence of his assailant, it is necessary that the purpose of the assailant be not previously made known to him; and where the evidence does not tend to show that it was a secret assault, within the intent and meaning of the statute, an instruction to the contrary is reversible error. State v. Oxendine, 187 N. C. 658, 122 S. E. 568.

Same—Assault from Behind.—An assault made from behind and in such a manner as to prevent the person assaulted from knowing who his assailant is, or that the blow is about to be struck, is a secret assault. State v. Harris, 120 N. C. 577, 26 S. E. 774.

Same—Assault by Means of Poison.—An assault by means of poison comes within the intent of our statutes making an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill punishable as a felony. State v. Alderman, 182 N. C. 917, 110 S. E. 59.

Same—Assault Facing Victim.—Where one, facing another or walking up in front of him, draws a pistol from a hip-pocket and shoots him without warning, it is not a secret assault, within the meaning of this section. State v. Patton, 115 N. C. 753, 20 S. E. 538.

Same—Sufficiency.—For sufficiency of evidence to prove a secret assault, see State v. Bridges, 178 N. C. 733, 101 S. E. 29.

Indictment—Necessary Allegations.—Indictment omitting the words "by waylaying or otherwise," is sufficient. State v. Shade, 115 N. C. 757, 20 S. E. 537.

Elements of Offense, Burden of Proof.—On a trial under a criminal indictment the burden is on the State to show beyond a reasonable doubt the ingredients or elements necessary to constitute the statutory offense, or the lower degree of the same crime for which a verdict is permissible and where assault and battery, prohibited by this section, are charged, the State must accordingly show that it was maliciously done with a deadly weapon, secretly by waylaying or otherwise, etc., with intent to kill, and when the evidence is conflicting, it is an expression of opinion inhibited by sec. 1-180, for the judge to charge the jury that if they believe the evidence, a cold-blooded and cruel assault had been committed. State v. Kline, 190 N. C. 177, 129 S. E. 417.

Evidence Permissible to Show Malice, etc.—As bearing on the question of malice and felonious intent, the state was allowed to show that, a week or two before the happening of the offenses charged in the bill of indictment, the defendant had been seen about the home of the prosecuting witness; that he had shot at his house and threatened to shoot him. State v. Miller, 189 N. C. 695, 128 S. E. 1.

Instruction.—For charge not sufficiently explaining the offense, see State v. Vanderburg, 200 N. C. 713, 158 S. E. 248.

Verdict for Simple Assault.—Upon the trial of an indictment charging a secret felonious assault, verdict may be rendered for simple assault. State v. Jennings, 104 N. C. 774, 10 S. E. 249.

An indictment charging a felonious assault with intent to kill as defined in this section, embraces as a lesser degree of the crime charged the offense of assault with a deadly weapon, and where the evidence is sufficient to sustain a verdict of the offense charged, defendant may not complain of a verdict of guilty of the lesser offense. State v. High, 215 N. C. 244, 1 S. E. (2d) 563.

Cited in State v. Strickland, 192 N. C. 253, 134 S. E. 850; State v. Potter, 221 N. C. 153, 19 S. E. (2d) 257.

§ 14-32. Assault with deadly weapon with intent to kill resulting in injury.—Any person who assaults another with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, and inflicts serious injury not resulting in death, shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison or be worked under the supervision of the state highway and public works commission for a period not less than four months nor more than ten years. (1919, c. 101; 1931, c. 145, s. 30; C. S. 4214.)

Cross Reference.—As to assault in this state resulting in injury in another state, see § 15-132.

Elements of Offense.—In order for a conviction of crime under the provisions of this section there must be a charge and evidence thereon of five essential elements: an assault, the use of a deadly weapon, the intent to kill, infliction of serious injury, death not resulting, and while an assault does not necessarily include a battery, where serious injury is inflicted a battery is necessarily implied. State v. Heiner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Indictment Necessary.—A charge of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, resulting in serious injury, is a charge of a felony, under this section, and defendant may not be put to answer thereon but by indictment. State v. Clegg, 214 N. C. 675, 200 S. E. 371.

Evidence of Infliction of Serious Injury.—Evidence that several defendants indicted under the provisions of this section were discovered selling liquor in violation of our prohibition law, and that they were armed with pistols and blackjacks and acted in concert, and that one of them threatened the life of the officer attempting to arrest them, and that the others participated by carrying the officer to a room of a garage where they beat him with a blackjack into unconsciousness, and carried him out into a field and left him there where later and alone he recovered consciousness, is sufficient for the conviction of them all of an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, resulting in serious injury, in violation of the statute. State v. Heiner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Evidence of Use of Deadly Weapon.—Where the evidence against the defendants, tried under an indictment for violating this section tends to show an assault with a blackjack and other like instruments whereby they beat the one assaulted into unconsciousness and carried him into a field where alone he eventually recovered consciousness, it is sufficient as to the use of a deadly weapon in making the assault. State v. Heiner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Evidence of communicated threats was received with apparent approval in State v. Scott, 4 Ired. 409, and with explicit approval in State v. Turpin, 77 N. C. 473, 24 Am. Rep. 455. It was denied in State v. Byrd, 121 N. C. 684, 28 S. E. 353, in an obscure opinion and in State v. Skidmore, 87 N. C. 509, in an opinion which overlooked the two cases first cited. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 230.

Instruction as to Serious Injury.—Where the evidence is sufficient of an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, not resulting in death, a charge by the judge to the jury that "serious injury" included "anything that would cause a breach of the peace," is held not to be reversible error to the defendant's prejudice where all the evidence tends to show that serious injury was inflicted in violation of the statute. State v. Heiner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Erroneous Instruction Not Cured by Verdict.—An instruction that defendant's admission of assault with a deadly weapon, which resulted in serious injury, raised the presumption of defendant's guilt of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, resulting in serious injury, as charged, and placed the burden on defendant to satisfy the jury of matters in mitigation or excuse, is not cured by a verdict of guilty of the misdemeanor of an assault with a deadly weapon, since the instruction required defendant to show to the satisfaction of the jury matters in mitigation or excuse before he could successfully ask for a verdict of not guilty. State v. Carver, 213 N. C. 150, 195 S. E. 349.

Burden of Proof.—This section under which the appealing defendant was indicted and convicted provides that any person who assaults another (1) with a deadly weapon, (2) with intent to kill, and (3) inflicts serious injury not resulting in death, shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punishable by imprisonment in the state's prison or be worked on the county roads for a period of not less than four months nor more than ten years. These three essential elements must be proved in order to warrant a conviction under the statute (State v. Crisp, 188 N. C. 799, 800, 125 S. E. 543); and the burden is on the state to establish them all beyond a reasonable doubt, where the defendant enters a plea of "not guilty" to the charge contained in the bill of indictment. State v. Redditt, 189 N. C. 176, 126 S. E. 506, 507.

State Must Prove Murderous Intent.—Upon a trial of one charged with using a deadly weapon in inflicting a serious injury not resulting in death, under this section, an instruction that the use of such weapon raises a presumption of felonious intent is reversible error, the fact of murderous intent being for the State to prove. State v. Gibson, 196 N. C. 393, 145 S. E. 772.

Guilt of Lesser Degree of Offense.—Where the defendants are tried for violating this section in making an assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, etc., the action will not be dismissed when the undisputed evidence tends to show the assault was made with a deadly weapon. State v. Heiner, 199 N. C. 778, 155 S. E. 879.

Conviction of Simple Assault.—An instruction directing verdict of guilty of at least simple assault is not erroneous when the prosecuting witness had been injured by being struck by some hard metallic substance in the defendant's hand, which he did not see, causing his nose to be broken and other serious injuries. State v. Strickland, 192 N. C. 253, 134 S. E. 850.

Stated in State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 551, 172 S. E. 407.

Cited in State v. Colson, 194 N. C. 206, 139 S. E. 230; State v. Potter, 221 N. C. 153, 19 S. E. (2d) 257.

§ 14-33. Punishment for assault.—In all cases of an assault, with or without intent to kill or injure, the person convicted shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court: Provided, that where no deadly weapon has been used and no serious damage done, the punishment in assaults, assaults and batteries, and affrays shall not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days; but this proviso shall not apply to cases of assault with intent to kill or with intent to commit rape, or to cases of assault or assault and battery by any man or boy over eighteen years old on any female person: Provided, that in all cases of assault, assault and battery, and affrays, wherein deadly weapons are used and serious injury is inflicted, and the plea of the defendant is self-defense, evidence of former threats against the defendant by the person alleged to have been assaulted by him, if such threats shall have been communicated to the defendant before the altercation, shall be competent as bearing upon the reasonableness of the claim of apprehension by the defendant of death or serious bodily harm, and also as bearing upon the amount of force which reasonably appeared necessary to the defendant, under the circumstances, to repel his assailant. (Rev., s. 3620; Code, s. 987; 1870-1, c. 43, s. 2; 1872-4, c. 176, s. 6; 1879, c. 92, ss. 2, 6; 1911, c. 193; 1933, c. 189; C. S. 4215.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for assault with intent to commit rape, see § 14-22.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 189, added the proviso, at the end of this section, relative to the admission of any evidence of threats of assailant.

As to excessive punishment, see State v. Driver, 78 N. C. 423; as to punishment under acts of 1870-1, ch. 43, see State v. Miller, 75 N. C. 73, 77; State v. McNeill, 75 N. C. 15.

Constitutionality.—This section is not unconstitutional on the grounds that severe sentences for criminal offenses can only be upheld under a statute affirmative in terms, this statute, by correct interpretation affirmatively providing that in all cases of assault with or without the intention to kill, the person convicted shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court, and not so limiting the court's discretion as to an assault upon a female, etc. State v. Stokes, 181 N. C. 539, 106 S. E. 763.

The constitutional inhibition as to the imposition of cruel and unusual punishments may only be invoked in cases of manifest and gross abuse by the trial judge acting within a legislative discretion given him; and, in this case, a sentence of three months on the road, upon conviction for an assault upon a female, cannot be held as a matter of law, on appeal, to be unconstitutional as cruel or unusual. State v. Stokes, 181 N. C. 539, 106 S. E. 763.

Same—Question of Discrimination.—This section, is not an unwarranted discrimination against one assaulting a female under the terms of the statute, or a denial to him of the equal protection of the laws guaranteed him by the Constitution. State v. Stokes, 181 N. C. 539, 106 S. E. 763.

Punishment—Extent.—While the language of this section authorizes a punishment for assault with or without intent to kill, by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court, it does not at all mean that the judge may change the character of punishment recognized and established by the law for such an offense, but that, within such limits, the extent of the punishment is referred to the discretion of the trial judge, and his sentence may not be interfered with by the appellate court, except in case of manifest and gross abuse. State v. Smith, 174 N. C. 804, 807, 93 S. E. 910.

Same—Limitation.—In conviction for simple assaults, where there is no intent to commit rape, and no deadly weapon used, and no serious bodily harm done, the punishment is limited to a fine of $50, or imprisonment for thirty days. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 863; State v. Battle, 130 N. C. 655, 41 S. E. 66.

In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon, appealing defendant relied upon and introduced evidence of self-defense and of matters in justification. The trial court instructed the jury that under the indictment and evidence the appealing defendant might be convicted of assault with a deadly weapon or of a simple assault. The jury convicted defendant of simple assault, but in imposing judgment the court found as a fact that said simple assault inflicted serious injury, and imposed a sentence of four months on the roads. It was held that the verdict of simple assault was permissible under the indictment and evidence, and the court was without power to sentence the appealing defendant to more than thirty days imprisonment. State v. Palmer, 212 N. C. 10, 192 S. E. 896.

Evidence Sufficient under Section.—Evidence that the prisoner awakened the prosecutrix while she was asleep in her own room at night by placing his hand upon her forehead, is sufficient to convict of an assault upon a female, etc., and a motion as of nonsuit thereon may not be granted, though such evidence is insufficient for a conviction of the intent to ravish her. State v. Hill, 181 N. C. 558, 107 S. E. 140.

Evidence that a negro man twenty-three years of age several times accosted a white girl fifteen years of age, on the streets of a town, with improper solicitation, resulting in her fleeing from him in a direction she had not intended to go, and, in her great fear of him, causing her to become nervous and to lose sleep at night, is held to be such evidence of violence, begun to be executed with ability to effectuate it, as will come within the intent and meaning of this section making it a crime for a man or boy over eighteen years of age to assault any female person. State v. Williams, 186 N. C. 627, 120 S. E. 224.

Burden to Prove Age Below Eighteen.—The burden is upon the defendant, charged with an assault upon a woman, to show that he was under the age specified in order to except his case from the proviso, and it is not necessary to the validity of the bill that it state that he was over the age, as an assault upon a woman is a crime without regard to the age of the person who commits it, and the age merely relates to the degree of punishment and is not an element or ingredient of the offense charged. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 853.

Cited in State v. Stansberry, 197 N. C. 350, 148 S. E. 546; State v. Griggs, 197 N. C. 352, 148 S. E. 547.

§ 14-34. Assaulting by pointing gun.—If any person shall point any gun or pistol at any person, either in fun or otherwise, whether such gun or pistol be loaded or not loaded, he shall be guilty of an assault, and upon conviction of the same shall be fined, imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3622; 1889, c. 527; C. S. 4216.)

Accidental Discharge of Gun—Manslaughter.—Where one points a loaded gun at another, though without intention of discharging it, if the gun goes off accidentally and kills, it is manslaughter. State v. Coble, 177 N. C. 588, 99 S. E. 339.

When one causes the death of another by an unlawful act which amounts to an assault on the person, as pointing a gun under circumstances which would not excuse its discharge, he is guilty at least of manslaughter. State v. Stitt, 146 N. C. 643, 61 S. E. 566.

Same—Question of Guilt for Jury.—Where one pointed a gun at another and death ensued by its discharge evidence was sufficient to submit to the jury the question of the prisoner's guilt or innocence of the crime of manslaughter. State v. Limerick, 146 N. C. 649, 61 S. E. 568; State v. Turnage, 138 N. C. 566, 49 S. E. 913.

Gun Need Not Be Loaded.—In an indictment for assault with a deadly weapon an instruction that if the State "had satisfied the jury beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant pointed a pistol at the prosecutor, whether loaded or not, this would be an assault," and to find the defendant guilty, was correct under the provisions of this section. State v. Atkinson, 141 N. C. 734, 53 S. E. 228.

Pointing Pistol in Pocket.—An instruction that if the jury were satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant had a pistol in his coat pocket and "with pistol and hand on the inside of his pocket, he pointed the pistol at the prosecutor, this would be an assault," is not error. State v. Atkinson, 141 N. C. 734, 53 S. E. 228.

Evidence of Guilt.—Defendant, pointing gun at the prosecutor, was, under the circumstances, guilty of an assault at common law, if not under this section. State v. Scott, 142 N. C. 582, 55 S. E. 69.

Applied in State v. Head, 214 N. C. 700, 200 S. E. 415.

Art. 9. Hazing.

§ 14-35. Hazing; definition and punishment.—It shall be unlawful for any student in any college or school in this state to engage in what is known as hazing, or to aid or abet any other student in the commission of this offense. For the purposes of this section hazing is defined as follows: "to annoy any student by playing abusive or ridiculous tricks upon him, to frighten, scold, beat or harass him, or to subject him to personal indignity." Any violation of this section shall constitute a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 169, ss. 1, 2, 3, 4; C. S. 4217.)

§ 14-36. Expulsion from school; duty of faculty to expel.—Upon conviction of any student of the offense of hazing, or of aiding or abetting in the commission of this offense, he shall, in addition to any punishment imposed by the court, be expelled from the college or school he is attending. The faculty or governing board of any college or school charged with the duty of expulsion of students for proper cause shall, upon such conviction at once expel the offender, and a failure to do so shall be a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 169, ss. 5, 6; C. S. 4218.)

§ 14-37. Certain persons and schools excepted; copy of article to be posted.—This article shall not apply to females, nor to schools or colleges not keeping boarders, nor to schools keeping less than ten student boarders. A copy of this article shall be framed and hung on display in every college or school to which it applies. (1913, c. 169, s. 3; C. S. 4219.)

§ 14-38. Witnesses in hazing trials; no indictment to be founded on self-criminating testimony.—In all trials for the offense of hazing any student or other person subpoenaed as a witness in behalf of the state shall be required to testify if called upon to do so: Provided, however, that no student or other person so testifying shall be amenable or subject to indictment on account of, or by reason of, such testimony. (1913, c. 169, s. 8; C. S. 4220.)

Art. 10. Kidnapping and Abduction.

§ 14-39. Kidnapping.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, or any individual, male or female, or its or their agents, to kidnap or cause to be kidnapped any human being, or to demand a ransom of any person, firm or corporation, male or female, to be paid on account of kidnapping, or to hold any human being for ransom: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to a father or mother for taking into their custody their own child.

Any person, or their agent, violating or causing to be violated any provisions of this section shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction therefor, shall be punishable by imprisonment for life.

Any firm or corporation violating, or causing to be violated through their agent or agents, any of the provisions of this section, and upon being found guilty, shall be liable to the injured party suing therefor, the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000), and shall forfeit its or their charter and right to do business in the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 542.)

Section Increases Maximum Punishment.—The effect of this section, repealing § 4221 of the Consolidated Statutes of North Carolina, relating to the crime of kidnapping, is to increase, within the discretion of the court, the maximum punishment for the crime from twenty years to life, and not to make a life term mandatory upon conviction, the intent of the statute to this effect being shown by the use of the word "punishable" in prescribing the sentence. State v. Kelly, 206 N. C. 660, 175 S. E. 294.

§ 14-40. Enticing minors out of the state for the purpose of employment.—If any person shall employ and carry beyond the limits of this state any minor, or shall induce any minor to go beyond the limits of this state, for the purpose of employment without the consent in writing, duly authenticated, of the parent, guardian or other person having authority over such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than five hundred and not more than one thousand dollars for each offense. The fact of the employment and going out of the state of the minor, or of the going out of the state by the minor, at the solicitation of the person for the purpose of employment, shall be prima facie evidence of knowledge that the person employed or solicited to go beyond the limits of the state is a minor. (Rev., s. 3630; 1891, c. 45; C. S. 4222.)

Count Joined with One under Section 14-41.—An indictment for abduction, containing two counts, one under this section and the second under section 14-41, cannot be quashed for misjoinder of two different offenses, as the two counts are merely statements of the same transaction to meet the different phases of proof. State v. Burnett, 142 N. C. 577, 578, 55 S. E. 72.

§ 14-41. Abduction of children.—If any one shall abduct or by any means induce any child under the age of fourteen years, who shall reside with its father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother or elder sister, or shall reside at a school, or be an orphan and reside with a guardian, to leave such person or school, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the state's prison for a period not exceeding fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3358; Code, s. 973; 1879, c. 81; C. S. 4223.)

Definition.—Abduction under this section, is the taking and carrying away of a child, ward, etc., either by fraud, persuasion, or open violence. The consent of the child is no defense. If there is no force or inducement and the departure of the child is entirely voluntary, there is no abduction. State v. Burnett, 142 N. C. 577, 578, 55 S. E. 72.

Father's Consent a Good Defense.—If the carrying away was with the father's consent, that fact is a defense the burden of which is upon the defendant. State v. Burnett, 142 N. C. 577, 578, 55 S. E. 72.

The indictment need not state the means by which the abduction was accomplished, nor that it was done without the consent and against the will of her father, State v. Burnett, 142 N. C. 578, 55 S. E. 72, nor that the defendant was not a nearer relation to the child than the person from whose custody it was abducted. State v. George, 93 N. C. 567.

§ 14-42. Conspiring to abduct children.—If any one shall conspire to abduct, or by any means to induce any child under the age of fourteen years, who shall reside with any of the persons designated in § 14-41, or shall reside at school, to leave such persons or the school, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished as prescribed in that section: Provided, that no one who may be a nearer blood relation to the child than the persons named in § 14-41 shall be indicted for either of said offenses. (Rev., s. 3359; Code, s. 974; 1879, c. 81, s. 2; C. S. 4224.)

Cross References.—As to application of this section, see annotations to § 14-41. As to persuading children to leave any state institution to which they have been legally committed, see § 14-266.

§ 14-43. Abduction of married women.—If any male person shall abduct or elope with the wife of another, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years: Provided, that the woman, since her marriage, has been an innocent and virtuous woman: Provided further, that no conviction shall be had upon the unsupported testimony of any such married woman. (Rev., s. 3360; 1903, c. 362; C. S. 4225.)

Elopement Defined.—Elopement of wife is her voluntary act in deserting her husband to go away with and cohabit with another man. State v. O'Higgins, 178 N. C. 708, 100 S. E. 438.

Effect of Prior Adultery.—In order to constitute the offense of abducting or eloping with a married woman, under this section, the seduction by the male may be accomplished by insistent persuasion under which the woman yields her consent to be carried away from the house of her husband by the defendant charged therewith and living with him in adultery; and the defense that the woman in the course of his scheme had yielded herself before the abduction is untenable when it was shown that the wife had not thus yielded herself to any other man than the defendant. State v. Hooper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769.

Adultery after the elopement is an essential element of the offense under this section. State v. Ashe, 196 N. C. 387, 145 S. E. 784.

Voluntary Leaving of Husband.—The fact that the wife had voluntarily left her husband falls within the definition of this section when this results from the unlawful scheming of the man to achieve that end. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769.

Evidence.—Evidence tending to show that the defendant knew of the whereabouts of the wife of another after she had left her husband, and that they had dined together at a house of ill fame, and that they had shut themselves in a room thereof is competent upon the question of the abduction and of their immoral relations and a circumstance to be submitted to the jury. State v. Ashe, 196 N. C. 387, 145 S. E. 784.

In a prosecution under this section the necessary element of adultery may be shown by circumstantial evidence which satisfies the jury of the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Ashe, 196 N. C. 387, 145 S. E. 784.

Testimony of Wife Supported by Others.—The provision of this section that no conviction of abduction or eloping with the wife of another may be had on the unsupported testimony of the wife as to her virtue, is complied with when the testimony of the wife is supported by evidence of others as to her previous good character. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769.

Evidence of Influence of Defendant.—Upon the question of influence of the defendant over the wife of another whom he is being tried for abducting and eloping with, it is competent to show the strength of the influence he had acquired, and the admission of testimony that the defendant had deserted his wife and dependent children, and also that the abducted woman had used her own money for expenses, is not subject to just exception. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769.

Testimony of Husband as to Chastity.—On a criminal trial for abducting and eloping with a married woman, it is competent for her husband to testify as to the chastity of his wife up to the time the defendant had invaded his home; such testimony may be sufficient to sustain a conviction. State v. Hopper, 186 N. C. 405, 119 S. E. 769; State v. O'Higgins, 178 N. C. 708, 100 S. E. 438.

Woman's General Character for Virtue Admissible.—In an indictment under this section, where the character of the woman is by express terms of the statute directly in question, evidence as to her general character for virtue is admissible. State v. Connor, 142 N. C. 70, 55 S. E. 787.

Burden of Proof of First Proviso.—The state has the burden of proving the facts required under the first proviso of the section. State v. Connor, 142 N. C. 700, 55 S. E. 787.

Instruction—"Bad" House.—Where the evidence is that the defendant and the married woman met in a bad house, it is not prejudicial or reversible error for the judge in the statement of facts in his instructions to call it a "bad" house or "house of ill fame," where this was not brought to his attention at the time. State v. Ashe, 196 N. C. 387, 145 S. E. 784.

Art. 11. Abortion and Kindred Offenses.

§ 14-44. Using drugs or instruments to destroy unborn child.—If any person shall willfully administer to any woman, either pregnant or quick with child, or prescribe for any such woman, or advise or procure any such woman to take any medicine, drug or other substance whatever, or shall use or employ any instrument or other means with intent thereby to destroy such child, unless the same shall be necessary to preserve the life of the mother, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than one year nor more than ten years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3618; Code, s. 975; 1881, c. 351, s. 1; C. S. 4226.)

Section relates to destruction of child. State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 537, 23 S. E. (2d) 842.

Elements of Offense—Intent.—The essential ingredient of the offense is the intent and not the noxious nature of the drug used. State v. Crews, 128 N. C. 581, 582, 38 S. E. 293; State v. Shaft, 166 N. C. 407, 81 S. E. 932.

Same—Abortion or Procuring Abortion.—It is just as much a crime to produce an abortion under the advice of and with means furnished by another, as it is to have an abortion performed by another. The gravamen of the offense is the abortion, or the procuring of the abortion, and not the manner by which it is accomplished. Parker v. Edwards, 222 N. C. 75, 78, 21 S. E. (2d) 876.

Same—Prescribing or Advising.—For a conviction under this section it is not essential to show that defendant procured the drug or that the woman used it. If defendant prescribed or advised its use with the illegal intent, that alone is sufficient. State v. Powell, 181 N. C. 515, 106 S. E. 133.

Same—Procuring Drug.—Under this section it is not necessary to charge or prove that the accused procured the drug. State v. Crews, 128 N. C. 581, 38 S. E. 293.

Same—Nature of Drug.—It is no defense even if defendant could show that the drug would not in fact cause a miscarriage. State v. Crews, 128 N. C. 581, 582, 38 S. E. 293. For the offense is committed by administering any substance with intent to procure an abortion. State v. Shaft, 166 N. C. 407, 81 S. E. 932.

Same—Stage of Pregnancy.—The offense can be perpetrated upon a woman at any stage of her pregnancy. State v. Seagle, 83 N. C. 630, 632.

Woman Not an Accomplice.—The woman is not, in a legal sense, an accomplice, whether or not she consents to the abortion. State v. Shaft, 166 N. C. 407, 81 S. E. 932, 933.

Statement of Woman as to Payment of Doctor's Fee.—The testimony as to the statement of a woman on whom the defendant was charged with bringing on a miscarriage or abortion, in violation of the provisions of this section and section 14-45, that the defendant had paid the physician one-half of the $200 fee he had charged for such services, uttered in the defendant's presence, is held competent with the other evidence in this case; and whether the defendant, under the circumstances, was so intoxicated that he did not understand, presented a question for the jury to determine as to whether the woman's statement was made in the hearing as well as in the defendant's presence, whether they were understood by him, whether he denied them or remained silent. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

Admissibility of Statement Made Four Months Prior to Abortion.—Upon the trial of a physician for procuring an abortion, testimony of a conversation between the physician and the woman as to an abortion about four months prior to the time in controversy is irrelevant and incompetent and its admission in evidence is prejudicial to the defendant and constitutes reversible error. State v. Brown, 202 N. C. 221, 162 S. E. 216.

Evidence of Disease Facilitating Abortion Properly Excluded.—Evidence offered by the defendant tending to show that the deceased was suffering from a disease which facilitated the abortion was not relevant to the issue involving the defendant's guilt as charged in the indictment. There was no error in the exclusion of such evidence. State v. Evans, 211 N. C. 458, 459, 190 S. E. 724.

Admission of evidence that woman took an anaesthetic was not prejudicial. State v. Evans, 211 N. C. 458, 459, 190 S. E. 724.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Indictment and evidence that the defendant advised the prosecutrix, who was then "pregnant or quick with child," to take a certain drug, medicine, or substance with intent to destroy the child is sufficient for a conviction under this section. State v. Powell, 181 N. C. 515, 106 S. E. 133.

Testimony of the relation between the defendant and the woman, his paying half of the doctor's fees, and his concern as to the result, is held sufficient to sustain the verdict of guilty, taken in connection with the other evidence in the case. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

Variance.—On the trial of an indictment charging the performance of an operation upon a woman "quick with child," with intent thereby to destroy the child, where the proof tends to show the performance of an operation upon a pregnant woman, with no evidence that she was "quick with child," there is a fatal variance and defendant's motion for nonsuit should be allowed. State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 537, 23 S. E. (2d) 842.

Joinder of Offenses.—Where the defendant is tried under this section and section 14-45, for producing a miscarriage or abortion of a pregnant woman, the action will not be dismissed upon the evidence if it is sufficient for a conviction upon either count. State v. Martin, 182 N. C. 846, 109 S. E. 74.

§ 14-45. Using drugs or instruments to produce miscarriage or injure pregnant woman.—If any person shall administer to any pregnant woman, or prescribe for any such woman, or advise and procure such woman to take any medicine, drug or anything whatsoever, with intent thereby to procure the miscarriage of such woman, or to injure or destroy such woman, or shall use any instrument or application for any of the above purposes, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the jail or state's prison for not less than one year nor more than five years and shall be fined, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3619, Code, s. 976; 1881, c. 351, s. 2; C. S. 4227.)

Cross Reference.—See annotations under § 14-44.

Generally.—This section relates to miscarriage of, or to injury or destruction of the woman. State v. Forte, 222 N. C. 537, 538, 23 S. E. (2d) 842.

§ 14-46. Concealing birth of child.—If any person shall, by secretly burying or otherwise disposing of the dead body of a new-born child, endeavor to conceal the birth of such child, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, such imprisonment to be in the county jail or state's prison, at the discretion of the court: Provided, that the imprisonment in the state's prison shall in no case exceed a term of ten years: Provided further, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the mother, who may be guilty of the homicide of her child, from being prosecuted and punished for the same according to the principles of the common law. Any person aiding, counseling or abetting any woman in concealing the birth of her child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3623; Code, s. 1004; R. C., c. 34, s. 28; 1818, c. 985; 1883, c. 390; 21, Jac. I, c. 27. See 43 Geo. III, c. 58, s. 3; 9 Geo. IV, c. 31, s. 14; C. S. 4228.)

Editor's Note.—The editor deems it advisable to note here some of the older cases construing this section as it stood after the amendment of act 1818, chap. 985, in view of the fact that these constructions may well be applied to the section as it now stands.

Under the section as it then stood, the offense was the concealing of the death of a being on whom murder could have been committed. If, therefore, the child was stillborn, concealment would be no offense. The burden of showing that fact would, however, be on the defendant. State v. Joiner, 11 N. C. 350.

And a former conviction for concealing the birth of a child is no defense to an indictment for the murder of such child. State v. Morgan, 95 N. C. 641. See also 2 Enc. Dig. 328 et seq.

Evidence Insufficient for Directed Verdict.—Under the provisions of this section making it a felony for any person to conceal the birth of a new-born child by secretly burying or otherwise disposing of its dead body, it is reversible error for the trial judge to direct a verdict of guilty upon evidence tending to show that the defendant found the dead body of the infant in a state of decomposition and therefore buried it, and had informed the authorities thereof and directed them where he had buried it, it being required of the State to rebut the common-law presumption of innocence by establishing the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Arrowood, 187 N. C. 715, 122 S. E. 759.

Art. 12. Libel and Slander.

§ 14-47. Communicating libelous matter to newspapers.—If any person shall state, deliver or transmit by any means whatever, to the manager, editor, publisher or reporter of any newspaper or periodical for publication therein any false and libelous statement concerning any person or corporation, and thereby secure the publication of the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3635; 1901, c. 557, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4229.)

Cross References.—As to the truth of allegations in indictment for libel as a defense, see § 15-168. As to libel by a newspaper, see §§ 99-1 and 99-2. As to derogatory reports about banks, see §§ 53-128 and 53-129. As to derogatory statements about building and loan associations, see § 54-44.

Responsibility of Newspaper Men.—“This statute punishes criminally the person who communicates libelous matter to newspapers, but that does not excuse the newspaper for publishing such libels, and the newspaper is responsible in damages for the injury done by the publication. Newspaper men (however) are not so apt to be prosecuted criminally for libel unless the publication attempts to destroy the reputation of an innocent woman by words which amount to charge of incontinency (under section 14-48), or unless there is a willful derogatory statement about the financial condition of a bank (under section 54-44).” 4 N. C. Law Rev. 27.

Cited in State v. Pelley, 221 N. C. 487, 20 S. E. (2d) 850.

§ 14-48. Slandering innocent women.—If any person shall attempt, in a wanton and malicious manner, to destroy the reputation of an innocent woman by words, written or spoken, which amount to a charge of incontinency, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3640; Code, s. 1113; 1879, c. 156; C. S. 4230.)

Cross Reference.—As to civil liability for charging innocent women with incontinency, see § 99-4 and annotation thereto.

Object of Statute.—The object of the legislature in enacting this section was to protect the character of innocent women, that is, chaste and virtuous women, against wanton and malicious attempts to destroy their reputation by charges of incontinency. State v. Aldridge, 86 N. C. 680, 681.

Essential Elements of Offense.—The innocence and virtue, then, of the woman who is subject of the attempt, lie at the very foundation of the offense, and constitute its most essential element. State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803, 805; State v. Aldridge, 86 N. C. 680, 681; State v. Smith, 155 N. C. 473, 71 S. E. 305.

What Constitutes Offense.—The offense of slandering an innocent woman consists in the attempt to destroy the reputation of an innocent woman by a charge of incontinency. State v. Davis, 92 N. C. 764. Not in the slander of a woman falsely by charging her with incontinency, but in the attempt to destroy her reputation by such means. State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803, 804.

Same—Sufficiency.—And to constitute this offense, it is necessary to prove that the words alleged to have been spoken amounted to a charge of actual, definitive, illicit sexual intercourse. State v. Moody, 98 N. C. 671, 4 S. E. 119.

"Innocent Woman."—An "innocent woman," within the meaning of this section, is one who has never had sexual intercourse with any man, State v. Malloy, 115 N. C. 737, 20 S. E. 461. One who had never had actual illicit intercourse with any man, State v. Davis, 92 N. C. 764; State v. Brown, 100 N. C. 519, 6 S. E. 568; a pure woman—one whose character is "unsullied," State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803, 805; a woman who, at the time the alleged slanderous charge was made, and at the time of the trial therefor, was chaste and virtuous. State v. Grigg, 104 N. C. 882, 10 S. E. 684.

Improper Conduct Short of Incontinency.—Mere lasciviousness, and the permission of liberties by men with her, although we might consider them improper, were not contemplated by the statute. State v. Davis, 92 N. C. 764, 765.

And a woman who has never had actual sexual intercourse with any one is an innocent woman, within the meaning of this section, even though she and a man were surprised in each other's embrace, about to commit the act of copulation, but before it took place. State v. Hinson, 103 N. C. 374, 9 S. E. 552.

Status of Reformed Women.—The question whether to slander a woman who had once lapsed from virtue, but who had reformed and led an exemplary life, would be a crime under this statute, was discussed but undecided in State v. Davis, 92 N. C. 764, the court expressing the opinion that in view of the strict construction put on the statute it would seem to exclude from the protection of its provisions every woman who had, at some time of her life, made a slip in her virtue, even though she had afterwards reformed.

Fortunately, however, the question was finally decided in favor of the reformed woman and the present law is that the fact that a woman at some former period in her life had departed from the path of virtue, will not per se entitle a defendant, indicted under the statute, to an acquittal; on the contrary, if the prosecutrix has satisfied the jury that she has reformed and led an exemplary life, she is entitled to the protection of the law. State v. Grigg, 104 N. C. 882, 10 S. E. 684.

Status of Seduced Women.—"A man cannot seduce a virtuous woman and then slander her with impunity, and, when indicted for such slander, claim protection against the penalties of law by pleading her disgrace, which he had caused to be brought upon her. The statute would fail to give that protection to innocent women, that was intended, if this was allowed." State v. Misenheimer, 123 N. C. 758, 763, 31 S. E. 852.

And a woman, seduced before marriage, but whose character was good before and since marriage, with this exception, is an "innocent woman" under this section. State v. Grigg, 104 N. C. 882, 10 S. E. 684; State v. Misenheimer, 123 N. C. 758, 31 S. E. 852.

Slander by Husband.—State v. Edens, 85 N. C. 522, holding that a husband is not indictable for slandering his wife, is overruled, and now, he is indictable under this section, if he wantonly and maliciously slanders his wife. State v. Fulton, 149 N. C. 485, 63 S. E. 145.

Malice Implied.—Where a slanderous charge is made, malice is implied, except in case of a privileged communication. State v. Malloy, 115 N. C. 737, 20 S. E. 461.

Burden of Proof.—The burden is upon the State to show that an innocent and virtuous woman has been slandered in order to convict under the provisions of this section. State v. Smith, 155 N. C. 473, 71 S. E. 305.

On trial of an indictment for slander under this section, the admission of the defendant that he spoke the words charged does not shift the burden of proof upon him to show he had not slandered an innocent woman. Her innocence is a question for the jury upon the evidence, and no presumption of her innocence should be allowed to weigh against the defendant. State v. McDaniel, 84 N. C. 803.

Art. 13. Injuring Others by Use of High Explosives.

§ 14-49. Willful injury a felony; punishment.

—Any person who shall willfully and maliciously injure or attempt to injure any person, or any building in actual use for residential or business purposes or customarily devoted to any such use or any contents thereof, by the use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or other high explosive, shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than five years and not more than thirty years. (1923, c. 80, s. 1; C. S. 4231(a).)

§ 14-50. Conspiracy declared a felony; punishment.

—If any two or more persons shall conspire to willfully and maliciously injure any person, or any building in actual use for residential or business purposes or customarily devoted to any such use or any contents thereof, by the use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or other high explosive, each and every one so conspiring shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than two years and not more than fifteen years. (1923, c. 80, s. 2; C. S. 4231(b).)

SUBCHAPTER IV. OFFENSES AGAINST THE HABITATION AND OTHER BUILDINGS.

Art. 14. Burglary and Other House-Breakings.

§ 14-51. First and second degree burglary.—

There shall be two degrees in the crime of burglary as defined at the common law. If the crime be committed in a dwelling-house, or in a room used as a sleeping apartment in any building, and any person is in the actual occupation of any part of said dwelling-house or sleeping apartment at the time of the commission of such crime, it shall be burglary in the first degree. If such crime be committed in a dwelling-house or sleeping apartment not actually occupied by any one at the time of the commission of the crime, or if it be committed in any house within the curtilage of a dwelling-house or in any building not a dwelling-house, but in which is a room used as a sleeping apartment and not actually occupied as such at the time of the commission of the crime, it shall be burglary in the second degree. (Rev., s. 3331; 1889, c. 434, s. 1; C. S. 4232.)

Cross References.—As to power of an individual to arrest a burglar, see § 15-40. As to accessories, see § 14-5 et seq. As to breaking into or entering jails with intent to kill or injure prisoners therein, see § 14-221.

In General.—Burglary, as defined at common law, was a capital offense, i. e., the breaking into and entering of the "mansion or dwelling-house of another in the night-time, with an intent to commit a felony therein," whether the intent was executed after the burglarious act or not. This has been changed by this section dividing the crime into two degrees, first and second, with certain designated differences between them, with different punishment prescribed for each. State v. Allen, 186 N. C. 302, 119 S. E. 504; State v. Morris, 215 N. C. 552, 2 S. E. (2d) 554.

The crime of burglary at common law was composed of five distinct elements, which were: (1), the breaking; (2), the entering; (3), that the breaking and entry be into a mansion house; (4), that the breaking and entering were in the nighttime, and (5), that the breaking and entering were with the intent to commit a felony. State v. Whit, 49 N. C. 349, 350.

Curtilage.—The meaning of the term curtilage is a piece of ground, either inclosed or not, that is commonly used with the dwelling house. State v. Twitty, 2 N. C. 102.

Indictment Must Charge Intended Felony.—In order for an indictment to sustain a verdict of guilty of burglary in the first degree, it must not only charge the burglarious entry with the intent at the time, but must also charge the felony intended to be committed with sufficient definiteness, though it is not necessary that the actual commission of the intended felony be charged or proven. State v. Allen, 186 N. C. 302, 119 S. E. 504.

Same—Proof of a Different Intent.—An averment in an indictment for burglary, that the breaking was with the intent to commit larceny, is supported by proof that the entry was made with a purpose to commit a robbery. State v. Halford, 104 N. C. 874, 10 S. E. 524. The intent may be shown by circumstances. State v. McBryde, 97 N. C. 393, 1 S. E. 925.

Indictment Must Charge Occupancy.—The indictment charging the offense alleging that the dwelling-house was in the actual occupation of someone at the time of the commission of the crime, was not required at common law, nor under sec. 14-53, but now, under the provisions of this section omission of that averment makes the indictment good only as an indictment for burglary in the second degree. State v. Fleming, 107 N. C. 905, 908, 12 S. E. 131.

Burglary can not be committed in a tent or booth erected in a market or fair, although the owner lodges in it. See 1 Hawk. Pl. Cr., Ch. 38, § 35; 1 Hale Pl. Cr. 559; Roscoe Cr. Ev., 300. State v. Jake, 60 N. C. 471.

Burglary in a Store with Sleeping Quarters.—The offense of burglary may be committed by breaking into a store if there are sleeping quarters in the store, for the sleeping there makes it a dwelling. State v. Foster, 129 N. C. 704, 40 S. E. 209.

Value of Goods Stolen Immaterial.—A person who burglariously breaks and enters a dwelling at nighttime while the same is occupied is guilty of burglary in the first degree, and the fact that the value of goods stolen from the dwelling is less than $20.00 is no defense to the capital charge, the provision of § 14-72, dividing larceny into two degrees, by its terms having no application to burglary. State v. Richardson, 216 N. C. 304, 4 S. E. (2d) 852.

Charging Elements of First and Second Degree.—Where a burglarious breaking into a dwelling-house has been charged in the bill of indictment, and the evidence tends only to establish the capital felony, an instruction to the jury that they might return a verdict of guilty in either degree is erroneous. State v. Allen, 186 N. C. 302, 119 S. E. 504.

Where there is evidence of a burglarious entry into a dwelling-house sufficient to convict of the capital offense, and also of the lesser offense, it is reversible error for the trial judge to refuse or neglect to charge the different elements of law relating to each of the separate offenses, though a verdict of guilty of the lesser offense might have been rendered, and this error is not cured under a general verdict of guilty of the greater offense. Id.

Where all the evidence shows that dwelling was actually occupied, instruction that verdict of burglary in second degree is not permissible is without error. State v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 604, 12 S. E. (2d) 278.

Discretionary Power of the Jury as to Degree.—The jury does not have the discretionary power to return a verdict of burglary in the second degree if all the evidence shows burglary in the first degree. But under an indictment for burglary in the first degree a verdict of second degree burglary may be returned if the evidence shows such an offense. State v. Fleming, 107 N. C. 905, 12 S. E. 131.

Where, in the trial of an indictment for burglary, the evidence showed that the house in which the crime was committed was actually occupied at the time, a conviction of burglary in the second degree is not authorized. State v. Johnston, 119 N. C. 883, 26 S. E. 163; State v. Alston, 113 N. C. 666, 18 S. E. 692; see sec. 15-171 and notes thereto.

One charged with burglary in the first degree and having admitted the entering and taking, the only question is whether it was done at nighttime, and the jury should not be charged that they could convict of a lesser offense as provided by this section, for the offense was either burglary in the first degree or larceny. State v. McKnight, 111 N. C. 690, 16 S. E. 319.

Sufficient Evidence to Submit Question of First Degree Burglary to Jury.—Evidence that the house was broken into by forcing the door open, that the time was late at night, and that the prosecuting witness and his wife were asleep in the room entered, together with evidence that tracks in the freshly fallen snow were followed and led to defendant's room in another house in a distant part of the city, where defendant was apprehended, is held sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of defendant's guilt of burglary in the first degree. State v. Oakley, 210 N. C. 206, 186 S. E. 244.

Sufficient Evidence to Submit Question of Second Degree Burglary.—Evidence that defendants encountered the owner of a dwelling house immediately outside of the house at nighttime, and marched him into the house at the point of firearms and stole money which was hidden in the house, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the charge of second degree burglary, the method of entry being a constructive "breaking". State v. Rodgers, 216 N. C. 572, 5 S. E. (2d) 831.

Submission of Question of Guilt of Nonburglarious Breaking.—The evidence tended to show unlawful entry into a dwelling at nighttime while same was actually occupied, and the actual commission thereof of the felony charged in the bill of indictment. The evidence also tended to show that a window of the room in which felony was committed was open, and that the perpetrator of the crime was first seen in this room, and that after the commission of the crime he escaped by the open window. There was also circumstantial evidence that entry was made by opening a window of another room of the house. There was also sufficient evidence tending to identify defendant as the perpetrator of the crime. Held: Although there is no evidence of burglary in the second degree, the evidence tends to show burglary in the first degree, or a nonburglarious breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, depending upon whether the perpetrator of the crime entered by the open window or burglariously "broke" into the dwelling, and therefore the trial court should have charged that the defendant might be found guilty of burglary in the first degree, guilty of a nonburglarious breaking and entering of the dwelling house with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, or not guilty, and its failure to submit the question of defendant's guilt of nonburglarious entry constitutes reversible error. State v. Chambers, 219 N. C. 442, 11 S. E. (2d) 280.

Applied in State v. Robertson, 210 N. C. 266, 186 S. E. 247; State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 191 S. E. 232.

§ 14-52. Punishment for burglary.—Any person convicted, according to due course of law, of the crime of burglary in the first degree shall suffer death: Provided, if the jury shall so recommend, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life in the state's prison. Anyone so convicted of burglary in the second degree shall suffer imprisonment in the state's prison for life, or for a term of years, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3330; Code, s. 994; 1889, c. 434, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 222; 1941, c. 215, s. 1; C. S. 4233.)

Cross References.—As to jury returning verdict for second degree burglary when first degree was charged in the indictment, see § 15-171 and annotation thereto. See also, annotation to § 14-51.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the proviso.

Quoted in State v. Oakley, 210 N. C. 206, 186 S. E. 244; State v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 604, 12 S. E. (2d) 278.

Cited in State v. Lawrence, 199 N. C. 481, 154 S. E. 741.

§ 14-53. Breaking out of dwelling-house burglary.—If any person shall enter the dwelling-house of another with intent to commit any felony or other infamous crime therein, or being in such dwelling-house, shall commit any felony or other infamous crime therein, and shall, in either case, break out of such dwelling-house in the nighttime, such person shall be guilty of burglary. (Rev., s. 3332; Code, s. 995; R. C., c. 34, s. 8; 12 Anne, c. 7, s. 3; C. S. 4234.)

Indictment Must Charge Breaking Out.—One charged by indictment of breaking into a house cannot be convicted of breaking out, and a charge of the court to that effect is error. State v. McPherson, 70 N. C. 239.

§ 14-54. Breaking into or entering houses otherwise than burglariously.—If any person, with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, shall break or enter either the dwelling-house of another otherwise than by a burglarious breaking; or any storehouse, shop, warehouse, banking-house, counting-house or other building where any merchandise, chattel, money, valuable security or other personal property shall be; or any uninhabited house, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3333; Code, s. 996; 1874-5, c. 166; 1879, c. 323; C. S. 4235.)

Intent Must Be Shown.—In order to convict under this section it is necessary to show intent and a failure to show intent leaves no other course except acquittal. State v. Spear, 164 N. C. 452, 79 S. E. 869.

The case of State v. Hooker, 145 N. C. 581, 59 S. E. 866, is cited and it is said that the construction of the statute in that case, which is that intent should only apply to a breaking into an uninhabited house, was obiter dictum as that point was not raised in the case. Clark, C. J., dissents on the grounds that a conviction for a less offense should be sustained.—Ed. Note.

In State v. Crisp, 188 N. C. 799, 801, 125 S. E. 543, it is said: "The trial court was doubtless misled by the dictum in State v. Hooker, 145 N. C. 581, 582, 59 S. E. 866, to the effect that, as used in section 3333 of the Revisal, the words 'with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein,' applied only to the clause with which it was closely connected, and not to all the clauses in the section; but this was expressly disapproved in State v. Spear, 164 N. C. 452, 79 S. E. 869. And further, it should be noted that this section of the Revisal has been restated in accordance with the decision in the Spear case, brought forward as section 4235 [now G. S. 14-54] in the Consolidated Statutes."

"Unlawfully Breaking" Charges Intent.—An indictment under this section for housebreaking, is sufficient when charging "that defendant did break and enter (otherwise than burglarious breaking) the storeroom and house, etc., with intent to commit a felony, to wit, with intent the goods, etc., etc., feloniously to steal, etc." and is not defective for the failure to allege that the breaking and entering was feloniously done, there being no distinction between the words "unlawfully breaking" and "entering with the intent to commit a felony." State v. Goffney, 157 N. C. 624, 73 S. E. 162.

Intent to Commit More Than One Offense.—An indictment for entering a house with an intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime is not defective because it charges an intent to commit more than one offense. State v. Christmas, 101 N. C. 749, 8 S. E. 361.

Owner Procuring Act to Be Done.—In order to convict of housebreaking under this section there must have been an unlawful entry by the prisoner, and when the owner has procured the act to be done by the prisoner in company with and at the instance of the one selected by the owner for the purpose, the entry is lawful, and no crime is shown to have been committed, whatever the intent of the prisoner may have been at the time. State v. Goffney, 157 N. C. 624, 73 S. E. 162.

Entry without Breaking.—It is evident it was the intention of the Legislature to make it a penal offense to wilfully break into a store-house where merchandise, etc., is kept, or into an uninhabited house, or to wilfully enter into a dwelling-house in the night otherwise than by breaking, with the intent to commit a felony. State v. Hughes, 86 N. C. 662, 664.

Crime Therein Distinct from Breaking and Entering.—"Prosecution for larceny will not bar a subsequent prosecution for breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny, the larceny being necessarily distinct from the breaking and entering. State v. Ridley, 48 Iowa, 370; Fisher v. State, 46 Ala., 717; State v. Ford, 30 La. Ann. (Part I), 311; People v. Curtis, 76 Cal., 517; Smith v. State, 22 Tex. App., 350; Copenhagen v. State, 15 Ga. 64." State v. Hooker, 145 N. C. 581, 584, 59 S. E. 866.

Erroneous Instruction.—The state's evidence tended to show that defendant broke and entered the dwelling house in question at night while same was occupied as a sleeping apartment, stole some money and ran when the female occupant discovered him and screamed. Defendant contended, upon supporting evidence, that at the time he was too drunk to know where he was or what he was doing. The court instructed the jury that defendant might be convicted of burglary in the first degree, or of burglary in the second degree, if they found that the room was unoccupied, but if they found defendant was too drunk to form felonious intent they should return a verdict of not guilty. Held: The instruction required the jury to find the defendant guilty of burglary in the first degree or not guilty, since there was no evidence that the room was unoccupied, and defendant is entitled to a new trial for error of the court in failing to instruct that defendant might be found guilty of breaking and entering otherwise than burglariously, or of an attempt to commit the offense. State v. Feyd, 213 N. C. 617, 197 S. E. 171.

Question for the Jury.—Under sec. 15-40 a person in whose presence a felony is committed has power to arrest the offender. Where some one breaks into the garage of another and the owner of the garage is killed in trying to make the arrest, the question of the offense being committed in his presence should be submitted to the jury. State v. Blackwelder, 182 N. C. 899, 109 S. E. 644.

Evidence Sufficient for Conviction.—Evidence that a cotton mill had been broken into and that goods taken therefrom had been found in defendant's possession within an hour or two thereafter, with further evidence of his unlawful possession, is sufficient for conviction, under the provisions of this section and defendant's demurrer to the State's evidence, or motion for dismissal thereon, is properly overruled. State v. Williams, 187 N. C. 492, 122 S. E. 13.

Duty of Court to Submit to Jury Question of Guilt Hereunder Where Indictment Charges First Degree Burglary.—Where the evidence is sufficient to justify it upon a bill of indictment charging a defendant with burglary in the first degree, it is the duty and mandatory upon the court to submit to the jury the question of whether or not the defendant is guilty of breaking and entering the dwelling house in question at the time and place mentioned in the bill of indictment otherwise than burglariously, and it is error for the court to fail or refuse to do so. State v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 604, 12 S. E. (2d) 278.

The evidence tended to show unlawful entry into a dwelling at nighttime while same was actually occupied, and the actual commission therein of the felony charged in the bill of indictment. The evidence also tended to show that the window of the room in which the felony was committed was open, and that the perpetrator of the crime was first seen in this room, and that after the commission of the crime he escaped by the open window. There was also circumstantial evidence that entry was made by opening a window of another room of the house. There was also sufficient evidence tending to identify defendant as the perpetrator of the crime. Held: Although there is no evidence of burglary in the second degree, the evidence tends to show burglary in the first degree, or a nonburglarious breaking and entering with intent to commit a felony, depending upon whether the perpetrator of the crime entered by the open window or burglariously "broke" into the dwelling, and therefore the trial court should have charged that the defendant might be found guilty of burglary in the first degree, guilty of a nonburglarious breaking and entering of the dwelling house with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, or not guilty, and its failure to submit the question of defendant's guilt of nonburglarious entry constitutes reversible error. State v. Chambers, 218 N. C. 442, 11 S. E. (2d) 280.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction under this section. State v. Hargett, 196 N. C. 692, 146 S. E. 801.

Cited in State v. Ellsworth, 130 N. C. 690, 41 S. E. 548, in dissenting opinion, State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 477; State v. Ratcliff, 199 N. C. 9, 11, 153 S. E. 605; State v. Setzer, 198 N. C. 663, 153 S. E. 118.

§ 14-55. Preparation to commit burglary or other house-breakings.—If any person shall be found armed with any dangerous or offensive weapon, with the intent to break or enter a dwelling, or other building whatsoever, and to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein; or shall be found having in his possession, without lawful excuse, any pick-lock, key, bit or other implement of house-breaking; or shall be found in any such building, with intent to commit a felony or other infamous crime therein, such person shall be guilty of a felony and punished by fine or imprisonment in the state's prison, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3334; Code, s. 997; 1907, c. 822; C. S. 4236.)

The offense of possessing implements of housebreaking without lawful excuse, does not require the proof of any "intent" or "unlawful use." State v. Vick, 213 N. C. 235, 195 S. E. 779.

A sentence of not less than twenty-five nor more than thirty years upon a plea of guilty of possession of weapons and implements for house breaking, in violation of this section is within the discretion of the court conferred by the statute, and is not objectionable as a cruel and unusual punishment within the meaning of Art. I, sec. 14, of the Constitution of North Carolina. State v. Cain, 209 N. C. 275, 183 S. E. 300.

§ 14-56. Breaking into or entering railroad cars.—If any person shall, with intent to commit larceny or other felony, break any seal upon a railroad car containing any goods, wares, freight or other thing of value, or shall unlawfully and willfully break or enter into any railroad car containing any goods, wares, freight or other thing of value, such person shall upon conviction be punished by confinement in the penitentiary in the discretion of the court for a term not exceeding five years. Any person found unlawfully in such car shall be presumed to have entered in violation of this section. (1907, c. 468; C. S. 4237.)

§ 14-57. Burglary with explosives.—Any person who, with intent to commit crime, breaks and enters, either by day or by night, any building, whether inhabited or not, and opens or attempts to open any vault, safe, or other secure place by use of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, gunpowder, or any other explosive, or acetylene torch, shall be deemed guilty of burglary with explosives. Any person convicted under this section shall be punished as for burglary in the second degree, as provided in § 14-52. (1921, c. 5; C. S. 4237(a).)

Art. 15. Arson and Other Burnings.

§ 14-58. Punishment for arson.—Any person convicted according to due course of law of the crime of arson shall suffer death: Provided, if the jury shall so recommend, the punishment shall be imprisonment for life. (Rev., s. 3335; Code, s. 985; R. C., c. 34, s. 2; 1870-1, c. 222; 1941, c. 215, s. 2; C. S. 4238.)

Cross References.—As to accomplices, see § 14-5 et seq. As to arrest of offender by insurance commissioner and prosecution, see § 69-2.

Editor's Note.—At common law arson was defined by Lord Coke as "the malicious and voluntary burning of the house of another by night or by day." "House" was meant to designate dwelling house and did not apply to barns and other buildings. Some of the states have extended the term so as to apply it to all property, and the common-law idea of "an offense against the security of the habitation" has been extended to an "offense against property." With this extension of application and meaning has come a change in the penalty, and but few states punish the offense by death.

In this state all offenses against property other than the habitation are covered by statutes making the offense punishable by imprisonment. So the offense that carries the death penalty is one against the habitation only and one that will greatly endanger human life. The 1941 amendment added the provision for life imprisonment upon recommendation of the jury.

By the act of 1869 the punishment for arson was confinement in the penitentiary, but by the act of 1871 a death penalty was fixed. In State v. Wise, 66 N. C. 120, the defendant was convicted and received the death sentence but judgment was arrested because the indictment did not specify which of the two acts it was found under. The failure to set out in the indictment the date of the offense left a question as to which of the statutes should apply as both of them provided punishment, one for offenses before April 4, 1871, the other for offenses after that date.

Wood Must Be Charred.—Where the statute requires that the building be "burned" an indictment charging "setting fire to" is not sufficient for there can be a setting fire to without charring the wood, as required to constitute burning. But if the statute provides "setting fire to," the indictment charging "setting fire to and burning" is sufficient as the charge of burning is surplusage and not detrimental to the indictment. State v. Hall, 93 N. C. 571.

§ 14-59. Burning of certain public and other corporate buildings.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously burn the statehouse, or any of the public offices of the state, or any courthouse, jail, arsenal, clerk's office, register's office, or any house belonging to any county or incorporated town in the state or to any incorporated company whatever, in which are kept the archives, documents, or public papers of such county, town or corporation, he shall, on conviction, be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than five nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3344; Code, s. 985, subsec. 3; R. C., c. 34, s. 7; 1830, c. 41, s. 1; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 5; C. S. 4239.)

Intent Necessary.—"If the prisoner put fire to the jail, not with an intention of destroying it, he is not guilty under the act of assembly. But if he put fire to the jail and burnt it with an intent to burn it down and destroy it, he is guilty, notwithstanding the fire went out, or was put out by others before the intention of the prisoner was completed by burning down the jail; and this is the law, although his main intention was to escape." State v. Mitchell, 27 N. C. 350, 353.

§ 14-60. Setting fire to schoolhouse.—If any person shall willfully set fire to any schoolhouse, or procure the same to be done, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or the county jail, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3345; 1901, c. 4, s. 28; 1919, c. 70; C. S. 4240.)

§ 14-61. Burning or attempting to burn certain bridges and buildings.—If any person, with intent to destroy the same, shall willfully and maliciously set fire to and burn any public bridge, or private toll-bridge, or the bridge of any incorporated company, or any fire-engine house, or any house belonging to any county or incorporated town, used for public purposes other than the keeping of archives, documents and public papers, or any house belonging to an incorporated company and used in the business of such company; or if any person shall willfully and maliciously attempt to burn any of such houses or bridges, or any of the houses or buildings mentioned in this article, the person offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3337; Code, s. 985, subsec. 4; R. C., c. 34, s. 30; 1825, c. 1278; C. S. 4241.)

City Market House.—A person charged with damaging a market house by fire must be tried under this section and not under a municipal ordinance as the general law must prevail over the ordinance, when they conflict. The municipal court would have jurisdiction only by express legislation conveying it. Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33.

§ 14-62. Setting fire to churches and certain other buildings.—If any person shall wantonly and willfully set fire to or burn or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel or procure the burning of, any church, chapel or meeting-house, or any stable, coach house, outhouse, warehouse, office, shop, mill, barn or granary, or to any building or erection used in carrying on any trade or manufacture, or any branch thereof, whether the same or any of them respectively shall then be in the possession of the offender, or in the possession of any other person, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than two nor more than forty years. (Rev., s. 3338; 1885, c. 66; 1903, c. 665, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 228; Code, s. 985, subsec. 6; 1927, c. 11, s. 1; C. S. 4242.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—By the amendment Public Laws 1927, c. 11, that part immediately after "set fire to" reading as follows "or burn or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel or procure the burning of," was added.

Crime Fixed Herein Is Separate from That in § 14-66.—A verdict of not guilty on a count brought under this section does not necessarily carry a verdict of not guilty on a second count brought under § 14-66, the counts being separate and distinct and each requiring proof of facts which the other does not. State v. Pierce, 208 N. C. 47, 179 S. E. 8.

Barn Defined.—A building of hewn logs (twenty-six feet by fifteen), divided by a partition of the same, upon one side of which were horses and upon the other corn, oats and wheat (threshed and unthreshed), also hay, fodder, etc., having sheds adjoining, under which were wagons and other farming utensils, is a "barn" within the meaning of this section. State v. Cherry, 63 N. C. 493.

But a house seventeen feet long and twelve wide, setting on blocks in a stable yard, having two rooms in it—one quite small, used for storing nubbins and refuse corn to be first fed to the stock, and the other used for storing peas, oats, and other products of the farm—is not a barn within the meaning of the statute. State v. Laughlin, 53 N. C. 455.

II. INDICTMENT.

"Wantonly and Wilfully" Must Be Charged.—An indictment charged that the defendant "did unlawfully, wilfully and feloniously set fire to and burn a certain gin house, belonging to B. and in the possession of one G." Verdict of guilty and defendant moved in arrest of judgment for that this section had been amended (Laws 1885, Chapter 66,) by striking out the words "unlawfully and maliciously" and inserting in lieu thereof "wantonly and wilfully," and that the words used in the indictment are not synonymous with those required by the amended statute. The objection would be well taken if this indictment was sustainable only under this section. State v. Morgan, 98 N. C. 641, 3 S. E. 27; State v. Massey, 97 N. C. 465, 2 S. E. 445. But it is a valid indictment under section 14-64, as was held in State v. Thorne, 81 N. C. 555, cited and followed by State v. Green, 92 N. C. 779. It seems to be the rule that "unlawfully and wilfully" do not answer the requirements under this section but under section 14-64 it is sufficient in the indictment. State v. Pierce, 123 N. C. 745, 746, 31 S. E. 847.

Charge of Particular Intent Not Necessary.—An indictment for burning a mill, under this section, as amended by the Laws of 1885, Ch. 66, need not allege that the prisoner set fire to the mill with the intent to injure some particular person. State v. Rogers, 94 N. C. 860.

It was formerly the rule that an indictment under this section for burning a barn must aver that the act was done "with intent thereby to injure or defraud" some person. And an indictment for such offense at common law must charge that the barn contained hay or grain, or is a parcel of the dwelling house. State v. Porter, 90 N. C. 719.

Title to Property Immaterial.—In the indictment it is not necessary to set out that the burned property "was the property of" or "was in the possession of" anyone. The constituent element is "wilful and wanton." State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 28 S. E. 255.

Kind of Building Must Be Specified.—An indictment for burning a gin house will not lie under this section as a gin house is not specified. An indictment describing the subject of offense as "house" is sufficient to describe a dwelling, and "house" is only used to describe dwellings. This section applies only to specified buildings. State v. Thorne, 81 N. C. 555.

III. EVIDENCE.

In General.—Under an indictment for burning a barn evidence of bad blood for the owner of the barn, footprints, failure of defendant to go to fire when the remainder of the neighborhood was there, the hour defendant arose, and his acts when notified of the fire is admissible and is sufficient to sustain a verdict of guilty. State v. Allen, 149 N. C. 458, 62 S. E. 597.

Admissibility.—On trial under indictment under this section for burning a barn to collect fire insurance thereon, evidence that the defendant at another place, at some indefinite time in the past, had another barn to burn is incompetent and does not come within the exceptions to the general rule, there being no causal relation between the two fires, or logical or natural connection between them, nor were they a part of the same transaction. State v. Deadmon, 195 N. C. 705, 143 S. E. 514.

Motive or Intent.—"It is not always necessary to show either a motive or an intent, for in some offenses the intent to do the forbidden act is the criminal intent, and the act committed with that intent constitutes the crime. If the person has done the act which in itself is a violation of the law, he will not be heard to say that he did not have the intent. State v. King, 86 N. C. 603; State v. Voight, 90 N. C. 741; State v. Smith, 93 N. C. 516; State v. McBrayer, 98 N. C. 619, 2 S. E. 755; State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140, 42 L. R. A., 721. But this principle does not apply when the act is itself equivocal and becomes criminal only by reason of the intent." State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 628, 629, 48 S. E. 670.

Bad Feeling.—It is entirely competent for the State to show motive upon the part of the defendant to burn a barn occupied and used by the witness, and to that end it was proper to show that bad feeling existed, and the reason for it, but that part of a reply of a witness in which he stated that defendant had been convicted of stealing and sent to the chain gang should be excluded and the jury carefully cautioned not to regard it as it puts the character of the defendant in issue. State v. Barrett, 151 N. C. 665, 666, 65 S. E. 894.

Where the only evidence against a person accused of burning a barn is threats made by him, without any evidence connecting him with the execution of said threats, or with the offense charged, the trial judge should withdraw the case from the jury. State v. Freeman, 131 N. C. 725, 42 S. E. 575.

The proof of threats directed against the son and grandson, from their near relationship to the owner of a burned house, is relevant, though perhaps feeble, in showing general ill will to the family and a motive for the act. State v. Rash, 34 N. C. 382; State v. Gailor, 71 N. C. 88; State v. Green, 92 N. C. 779; State v. Thompson, 97 N. C. 496, 498, 1 S. E. 921.

Same—Toward Agent.—Ill will toward an agent of the owner of a building is not sufficient to show motive for setting fire to the building, as such evidence is too remote. State v. Battle, 126 N. C. 1036, 35 S. E. 624.

Clark, J., dissents on the ground that malice toward the owner is not necessary to constitute the offense, and though the ill will was remote it was a circumstance to show motive.

Proof of Title Not Necessary.—"Ownership is alleged only to identify the property, and is sufficiently proved by showing occupancy. State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 576, 28 S. E. 255; State v. Thompson, 97 N. C. 496, 1 S. E. 921; State v. Jaynes, 78 N. C. 504, 507; State v. Gailor, 71 N. C. 88." State v. Sprouse, 150 N. C. 860, 861, 64 S. E. 900.

"This section is copied from the English Statute of 7 and 8 Geo. IV., c. 30; and under that it was sufficient to allege the building simply 'of' A. (Archb. Cr. Pl. [3d Am. Ed.] 262, and lxiv.); and this is the better practice, proof of either possession or property being sufficient identification." State v. Daniel, 121 N. C. 574, 577, 28 S. E. 255.

Subsequent Attempt to Fire Another Building.—Where the defendant was indicted for setting fire to an outhouse, evidence is competent to show that at the same time an attempt was made to fire a dwelling-house near it, the evidence directly connecting the defendant with the latter attempt. State v. Thompson, 97 N. C. 496, 1 S. E. 921.

Blood Hounds.—On the trial of defendant for burning a barn, the tracing by the bloodhounds some two hours later of a track leading from the rear of the barn to defendant's residence, together with the identification of the track as that of defendant by one of his shoes, with evidence of motive, is sufficient evidence of guilt to take the case to the jury. State v. Thompson, 192 N. C. 704, 135 S. E. 775.

IV. QUESTION FOR JURY.

Must Be Sufficient Evidence.—The general rule is, if there be any evidence tending to prove the fact in issue the weight of it must be left to the jury, but if there be no evidence conducing to that conclusion the Judge should say so, and, in a criminal case, direct an acquittal. In State v. Vinson, 63 N. C. 335, it is said: "But it is confessedly difficult to draw the line between evidence which is very slight, and that which, as having no bearing on the fact to be proved, is in relation to that fact no evidence at all." The evidence must be more than sufficient to raise a suspicion or a conjecture. State v. Rhodes, 111 N. C. 647, 650, 15 S. E. 1038.

Where, in a prosecution under this section, the evidence fails to establish the felonious origin of the fire or the identity of the defendant as the one who committed the offense charged, or circumstances from which these facts might reasonably be inferred, it is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Church, 202 N. C. 692, 163 S. E. 874.

On trial for wilfully and wantonly burning a barn in violation of this section, evidence of the felonious origin of the fire and of the identity of the defendant as the culprit is sufficient to be submitted to the jury that defendant had committed the crime, the corpus delicti being reasonably inferable from the circumstances, there being evidence that a fresh boot track found at the scene of the crime was made by defendant's boot, and that defendant failed to answer charges of his brother, made in the presence of officers, under circumstances calling for a reply. State v. Wilson, 205 N. C. 376, 171 S. E. 338.

Intent.—It is prima facie presumed that a person intended the natural consequence of his act when he set fire to a building. But this is subject to rebuttal by evidence to the contrary and then "intent" becomes a question for the jury. State v. Phifer, 90 N. C. 721.

Alibi.—The burden of proving an alibi does not rest on the prisoner, but the burden of proving the guilt of the prisoner rests on the state. It is for the jury to decide, and it is only necessary for the prisoner to offer enough evidence to produce in the mind of the jury a reasonable doubt. State v. Jaynes, 78 N. C. 504.

§ 14-63. Burning boats and barges.—If any person, with the intent to destroy the same, shall willfully and maliciously, or for a fraudulent purpose, set fire to and burn any boat, barge or float, whether he be the owner thereof or not, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or fined in the discretion of the court. (1909, c. 854; C. S. 4243.)

§ 14-64. Burning of gin-houses, tobacco houses and stables.—Every person convicted of the willful burning of any gin-house or tobacco house, or any part thereof, or, in the nighttime, of any stable containing a horse or a mule, or cattle, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than two nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3341; 1863, c. 17; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 5; 1903, c. 665, s. 1; Code, s. 985, subsec. 2; C. S. 4244.)

Cross References.—As to burning crops in the field, see § 14-141. As to setting fire to churches and certain other buildings, see § 14-62. As to setting fire to grass and brush lands and woodlands, see §§ 14-136 and 14-137.

Indictment in General.—That any informality will not be grounds for quashing proceeding if the charge is set out in a clear manner and enough matter appears to enable the court to proceed to judgment, see sec. 15-153. That judgments will not be vitiated for failure to aver certain unnecessary matter, see section 15-155. State v. Rogers, 168 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 161.

Necessity of Alleging "Wilful Burning."—In the case of State v. Thorne, 81 N. C. 555, there was an indictment for unlawfully, maliciously and feloniously burning a ginhouse. The court was asked to charge the jury that the defendant could not be convicted under the act of 1869, because the burning was not charged to have been wilfully done. The court held that the word maliciously was more comprehensive and included wilfully. State v. Green, 92 N. C. 779, 783.

"Nighttime" Must Be Alleged.—An indictment which omits to allege that the burning was in the "nighttime," is defective. State v. England, 78 N. C. 552.

Necessity of Showing Motive.—It is never indispensable to a conviction that a motive for the commission of the crime should appear. But when the State has to rely upon circumstantial evidence to establish the guilt to the defendant, it is not only competent, but often very important, in strengthening the evidence for the prosecution, to show a motive for committing the crime. State v. Green, 92 N. C. 779, 782.

§ 14-65. Fraudulently setting fire to dwelling-houses.—If any person, being the occupant of any building used as a dwelling-house, whether such person be the owner thereof or not, or, being the owner of any building designed or intended as a dwelling-house, shall willfully and wantonly or for a fraudulent purpose set fire to or burn or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel or procure the burning of such building, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3340; Code, s. 985; 1903, c. 665, s. 3; 1909, c. 862; 1927, c. 11, s. 2; C. S. 4245.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment Public Laws 1927, c. 11, that part of the section immediately following "set fire to" reading as follows "or burn or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel or procure the burning of," was added.

Specifying Particular Fraudulent Purpose.—Where in a prosecution under this section the indictment charges that the defendant burned his dwelling-house for the fraudulent purpose of obtaining insurance money thereon, and the court charges the jury that if they should find beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant did the act charged for a fraudulent purpose, it was not necessary for the bill of indictment to specify any particular fraudulent purpose, and the unnecessary allegation in the bill is not, necessarily, fatal. State v. Morrison, 202 N. C. 60, 161 S. E. 725.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Evidence that fire in defendant's house started in a closet in which was hanging a quilt soaked in kerosene, that kindling wood was on the floor of the closet, that the closet had no ceiling, but opened at the top into the attic, that defendant was being pressed to pay installments on the mortgage on the house, and was threatened with foreclosure, with other incriminating circumstantial evidence, establishes a motive and an opportunity for the defendant to commit the crime, and that the fire was of incendiary origin, and is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution under this section. State v. Moses, 207 N. C. 139, 176 S. E. 267.

Cited in State v. Klutts, 206 N. C. 726, 727, 175 S. E. 81.

§ 14-66. Willful and malicious burning of personal property.—Any person who shall willfully or maliciously burn, or cause to be burned, or aid, counsel, or procure the burning of any goods, wares, merchandise, or other chattels or personal property of any kind, whether the same shall be at the time insured, by any person or corporation against loss or damage by fire, or not, with intent to injure or prejudice the insurer, creditor or the person owning the property, or any other person, whether the same be the property of such person or another, shall be guilty of a felony. (1921, c. 119; C. S. 4245(a).)

See the note to § 14-62.

Evidence that defendant's car was driven away from defendant's house shortly before defendant's personal property therein was destroyed by fire, and that the car had been driven to the house several times during the days preceding the fire, and that the occupants of the car were heard in the house, is held insufficient, in the absence of evidence that defendant was one of the occupants of the car, to resist defendant's motions for judgment as of nonsuit in a prosecution under this section, although there was ample evidence that the fire was of incendiary origin and destroyed personal property of defendant which had been insured by him. State v. Simms, 208 N. C. 459, 181 S. E. 269.

§ 14-67. Attempting to burn dwelling-houses and certain other buildings.—If any person shall willfully attempt to burn any dwelling-house, uninhabited house, barn, stable or outhouse, or any mill, manufacturing house, cotton gin, tobacco barn, granary or turpentine distillery, the property of another, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3336; Code, s. 985, subsec. 7; 1876-7, c. 13; C. S. 4246.)

See notes to section 14-64.

In General.—A conviction for burning a ginhouse can be had either under this section or section 14-64. All that is required is a clear statement of the charge and because of sections 15-153, 15-155 if sufficient matter is set out in the charge, the proceedings will not be quashed, because of use of terms that have the same meaning as those used in the statute. If the punishment does not exceed that prescribed by either section it is immaterial under which section the conviction was had. State v. Rogers, 168 N. C. 112, 83 S. E. 161.

Cited in State v. Hampton, 210 N. C. 283, 186 S. E. 251.

§ 14-68. Failure of owner of property to comply with orders of public authorities.—If the owner or occupant of any building or premises shall fail to comply with the orders of the chief of the fire department, or of the insurance commissioner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten nor more than fifty dollars for each day's neglect. (Rev., s. 3343; 1899, c. 58, s. 4; C. S. 4247.)

§ 14-69. Failure of officers to investigate incendiary fires.—If any town or city officer shall fail, neglect or refuse to comply with any of the requirements of the law in regard to the investigation of incendiary fires, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3342; 1899, c. 58, s. 5; C. S. 4248.)

SUBCHAPTER V. OFFENSES AGAINST PROPERTY.

Art. 16. Larceny.

§ 14-70. Distinction between grand and petit larceny abolished.—All distinctions between petit and grand larceny, where the same has had the benefit of clergy, are abolished; and the offense of felonious stealing, where no other punishment shall be specifically prescribed therefor by statute, shall be punished as petit larceny is: Provided, that in cases of much aggravation, or of hardened offenders, the court may, in its discretion, sentence the offender to the state's prison for a period not exceeding ten years. (Rev., s. 3500; Code, s. 1075; R. C., c. 34, s. 26; C. S. 4249.)

Cross References.—As to larceny from dwelling by breaking and entering, see § 14-51 et seq. As to stealing of aircraft, see § 63-25. As to obtaining property by false pretense, see § 14-100 et seq. As to taking away or injuring exhibits at fairs, see § 14-164. As to robbing fishing nets, see § 113-248. As to theft of property from public libraries, museums, etc., see § 14-398. As to restitution of stolen property to its owner, see § 15-8. As to taking shellfish from private grounds, see § 113-215. As to robbery, see § 14-87.

Intent Necessary.—"To constitute the crime of larceny, there must be an original, felonious intent, general or special, at the time of the taking. If such intent be present, no subsequent act or explanation can change the felonious character of the original act. But if the requisite intent be not present, the taking is only a trespass, and it cannot be felony by any subsequent misconduct or bad faith on the part of the taker. State v. Arkle, 116 N. C. 1017, 1031, 21 S. E. 408." State v. Holder, 188 N. C. 561, 563, 125 S. E. 113.

Stolen Property Must Be Designated in Indictment.—"There is required a reasonable certainty in the designation of stolen property to enable the defendant to know and meet the specific charge if he can, and to protect himself if he cannot, from a second prosecution for the same offense."

State v. Clark, 30 N. C. 226; State v. Horan, 61 N. C. 571; State v. Bragg, 86 N. C. 688, 690.

Evidence Must Sustain Charge.—A charge of stealing two barrels of turpentine is not supported by proof of the taking of that quantity from the box cut in the tree to receive and hold the descending sap. State v. Moore, 33 N. C. 70; State v. Bragg, 86 N. C. 688, 690.

One Act Two Offences.—A person committing larceny from the person, upon two persons at the same time may be tried and convicted for both offences. State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 749, 23 S. E. 218; State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 752, 23 S. E. 219.

Accessories Abolished.—There are no accessories to larceny. All that counsel and aid are guilty of the offence as principals. State v. Gaston, 73 N. C. 93.

Larceny and Malicious Mischief Distinguished.—An indictment for larceny at common law for stealing a cow is not supported by proof that the defendant shot the cow down and then cut off her ears. Such an act is not larceny, but malicious mischief. State v. Butler, 65 N. C. 309, cited in note in 29 L. R. A., N. S., 40. See section 14-85.

Exclusive Jurisdiction in Superior Court.—"Under the general law all misdemeanors are punishable by fine and imprisonment at the discretion of the Superior Court, so by the Constitution the jurisdiction over such offenses appertains exclusively to the Superior Courts, unless some statute has limited the punishment to a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding one month. Art. IV, sec. 15. (Amended Const., Art. IV, sec. 25)." Washington v. Hammond, 76 N. C. 33, 35.

Sentence Not Excessive.—A sentence to the common jail of the county for a period of 12 months, and an assignment to work the public roads, upon defendant's plea of nolo contendere to a charge of stealing an automobile of the value of $325.00, is not excessive. State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. (2d) 475.

§ 14-71. Receiving stolen goods.—If any person shall receive any chattel, property, money, valuable security or other thing whatsoever, the stealing or taking whereof amounts to larceny or a felony, either at common law or by virtue of any statute made or hereafter to be made, such person knowing the same to have been feloniously stolen or taken, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be indicted and convicted, whether the felon stealing and taking such chattels, property, money, valuable security or other thing, shall or shall not have been previously convicted, or shall or shall not be amenable to justice; and any such receiver may be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in any county in which he shall have, or shall have had, any such property in his possession or in any county in which the thief may be tried, in the same manner as such receiver may be dealt with, indicted, tried and punished in the county where he actually received such chattel, money, security, or other thing; and such receiver shall be punished as one convicted of larceny. (Rev., s. 3507; Code, s. 1074; R. C., c. 34, s. 56; 1797, c. 485, s. 2; C. S. 4250.)

Included in Indictment for Larceny Charge.—An indictment for larceny if concluded at common law may include two counts, one for larceny, the other for receiving stolen goods. The count for receiving stolen goods must conclude against this section. If the offence of larceny charged is punishable by statute with a sentence greater than is provided by this section and if the count charging larceny concludes against the statute the two counts can not be joined, as the punishment is different, but if the count charging larceny concludes at common law, which provided whipping, the two counts may be joined, for by abolishing whipping the punishment for the two offences was made the same. State v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 522, 523.

A judgment upon a general verdict of guilty upon an indictment containing two counts—one for horse stealing, under sec. 14-81, and the other for receiving, under this section, is erroneous—the offenses not being of the same grade and the punishment being different. State v. Goings, 98 N. C. 766, 4 S. E. 121.

This section makes guilty knowledge one of the essential elements of the offense of receiving stolen goods. This knowledge may be actual, or it may be implied when the circumstances under which the goods were received are sufficient to lead the party charged to believe they were stolen. State v. Stathos, 208 N. C. 456, 181 S. E. 273.

It is necessary to establish either actual or implied knowledge on the part of the person charged of the facts that the goods were stolen. The question involved is whether the person charged had knowledge of the fact that the goods had been stolen at the time he received them, and not whether a reasonably prudent man in the transaction of his business would have gained such knowledge under the circumstances. Id.

The test is as to the knowledge, actual or implied, of the defendant, and not what some other person would have believed from the facts attending the receipt of the goods. Id.

Guilty knowledge is an essential element of the offense defined by this section, and while such knowledge may be implied or inferred by the jury from the facts and circumstances, it is error for the court to instruct the jury to the effect that defendant would have knowledge within the meaning of the statute if he received the goods under circumstances "such as to cause defendant to reasonably believe or know" that the property had been stolen, "reasonable belief" and "implied knowledge" not being synonymous. State v. Miller, 212 N. C. 361, 193 S. E. 388.

Felonious intent in receiving stolen goods with knowledge at the time that they had been stolen is necessary to a conviction under this section, and a charge which fails to submit the question of such intent to the jury entitled defendant to a new trial. State v. Morrison, 207 N. C. 804, 178 S. E. 562.

Interest Not Necessary for Conviction.—It is not necessary that one receiving stolen goods do it for the purpose of making them his own or to derive profit from them, if he receives them to help the thief, as a friendly act he is nevertheless guilty. State v. Rushing, 69 N. C. 29.

Goods Received Through Agent.—If stolen goods are received by an agent of the accused, at his instance, that is sufficient to sustain a conviction if he knew that they were stolen goods. State v. Stroud, 95 N. C. 626.

Failure to Prove Ownership of Property.—In a prosecution under this section where there was no evidence on the record tending to show that the property alleged to have been stolen was that of the owner named in the indictment, the defendant's motion for dismissal or nonsuit should be allowed. State v. Pugh, 196 N. C. 725, 147 S. E. 7.

The inference or presumption arising from the recent possession of stolen property, without more, does not extend to the charge of this section of receiving said property knowing it to have been feloniously stolen or taken. State v. Best, 202 N. C. 9, 10, 161 S. E. 535; State v. Lowe, 204 N. C. 572, 173, 169 S. E. 180.

Accessories Abolished.—By abolishing the distinction between petit and grand larceny the offense of accessory after the fact was also abolished, and one receiving stolen goods is treated and punished as principal. State v. Tyler, 85 N. C. 569.

Verdict Need Not Specify Value of Goods.—In a prosecution under this section, it is not required that the jury should determine the value of the goods in its verdict. State v. Morrison, 207 N. C. 804, 178 S. E. 562.

Defective Verdict.—Where the verdict in an indictment under this section is "guilty of receiving stolen goods," it is defective as not being responsive to the charge or falling within the requirements of the statute to constitute the offense made in the indictment, and thereon a judgment may not be entered or a sentence imposed. State v. Shaw, 194 N. C. 690, 140 S. E. 621; State v. Cannon, 218 N. C. 466, 11 S. E. (2d) 301.

Same—Failure to Charge as to Guilty Knowledge.—Where the evidence is conflicting as to whether the defendant knew at the time of receiving goods that they were stolen, and the charge of the court fails to instruct that finding of such knowledge was necessary for conviction, the verdict of guilty without finding that the defendant possessed such knowledge at the time he received the goods is defective, and a venire de novo will be ordered on appeal. State v. Barbee, 197 N. C. 248, 148 S. E. 249.

Punishment.—Receiving stolen goods is only a misdemeanor under this section but it may be punished as larceny at the discretion of the court. State v. Brite, 73 N. C. 2.

An exception to a judgment of imprisonment in the state's prison for a term of three years, pronounced against a defendant upon a verdict of guilty of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, was untenable, in that the judgment was within this section. State v. Reddick, 222 N. C. 520, 23 S. E. (2d) 909.

Applied in State v. Whitley, 208 N. C. 661, 182 S. E. 338; State v. Camby, 209 N. C. 50, 182 S. E. 715.

Cited in dissenting opinion in State v. Kittelle, 110 N. C. 560, 15 S. E. 103; State v. Brown, 198 N. C. 41, 150 S. E. 635; Factor v. Laubenheimer, 290 U. S. 276, 299, 54 S. Ct. 191, 78 L. Ed. 151; State v. Ray, 209 N. C. 772, 184 S. E. 836; State v. Conner, 212 N. C. 668, 194 S. E. 291.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1913 there was no express provision in this section making it inapplicable to breaking and entering a house at night and stealing less than $20. The section provided that it should not apply if the larceny was from the person or from a house in the daytime. In the case of State v. Shuford, 152 N. C. 809, 67 S. E. 923, the prisoner was indicted for burglary and was convicted of larceny, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment. It was contended by defendant that as this section provided for only one year punishment for larceny of property valued less than $20 the sentence should be for no more than one year. The Court construed the section liberally and by the nature of the offence and in the light of section 14-70, providing for discretionary sentences for hardened criminals, decided that the legislature did not intend to give a longer sentence to daytime breakers than nighttime breakers, and the judgment of the lower court was sustained.

In the case of In re Holley, 154 N. C. 163, 69 S. E. 872, the question of punishment under this section again arose, and the court followed the rule laid down in State v. Shuford setting out additional grounds for the ruling; that this section only provided punishment for misdemeanors and that under section 14-2 and section 14-3 the punishment in all cases unless otherwise provided would be from 4 months to ten years. By the amendment of 1913 this section was made to cover all cases of such nature and remove any ground for contention as to how it should be construed in such cases.

The 1941 amendment substituted "fifty dollars" for "twenty dollars."

Knowledge that the goods were stolen at the time of receiving them is an essential element of the offense of receiving stolen goods, and although guilty knowledge may be inferred from incriminating circumstances, a charge that such knowledge might be actual or implied, without specifying that it would have to exist at the time of the receiving, is erroneous. State v. Spaulding, 211 N. C. 63, 188 S. E. 647.

Indictment for Larceny from the Person.—It is not necessary for the indictment to allege that the larceny was from the person for it to be shown. State v. Bynum, 117 N. C. 749, 23 S. E. 218.

Exclusive Jurisdiction in Superior Court.—The crime of larceny is a felony punishable in the State's Prison, and a recorder's court, not having jurisdiction thereof, may not make orders disposing of a juvenile "delinquent" under the statute providing for reclamation of such, whether the offense be termed therein a misdemeanor or otherwise, Const., Art. I, secs. 12 and 13; and when such has been attempted, it will be disregarded upon conviction of this offense in the Superior Court having jurisdiction. State v. Newell, 172 N. C. 933, 90 S. E. 594.

Larceny from the person regardless of the value of the property is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Superior Court, as punishment under section 14-70 may be as much as ten years. State v. Brown, 150 N. C. 867, 64 S. E. 775.

Burglary.—A person who burglariously breaks and enters a dwelling at nighttime while the same is occupied is guilty of burglary in the first degree, and the fact that the value of goods stolen from the dwelling is less than $20 is no defense to the capital charge, this section dividing larceny into two degrees having no application to burglary. State v. Richardson, 216 N. C. 304, 4 S. E. (2d) 852.

Applied in State v. Davidson, 124 N. C. 839, 32 S. E. 957.

Cited in State v. Corpening, 207 N. C. 805, 178 S. E. 564; State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. (2d) 475.

§ 14-73. Jurisdiction of the superior courts in cases of larceny and receiving stolen goods.—The superior courts shall have exclusive jurisdiction of the trial of all cases of the larceny of property, or the receiving of stolen goods knowing them to be stolen, of the value of more than fifty dollars. (1913, c. 118, s. 2; 1941, c. 178, s. 2; C. S. 4252.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted "fifty dollars" for "twenty dollars."

See notes to § 14-72.

§ 14-74. Larceny by servants and other employees.—If any servant or other employee, to whom any money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned in the following section, by his master shall be delivered safely to be kept to the use of his master, shall withdraw himself from his master and go away with such money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned as aforesaid, or any part thereof, with intent to steal the same and defraud his master thereof, contrary to the trust and confidence in him reposed by his said master; or if any servant, being in the service of his master, without the assent of his master, shall embezzle such money, goods or other chattels, or any of the articles, securities or choses in action mentioned as aforesaid, or any part thereof, or otherwise convert the same to his own use, with like purpose to steal them, or to defraud his master thereof, the servant so offending shall be fined or imprisoned in the state prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, at the discretion of the court: Provided, that nothing contained in this section shall extend to apprentices or servants within the age of sixteen years. (Rev., s. 3499; Code, s. 1065; R. C., c. 34, s. 18; 21 Hen. VIII, c. 7, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4253.)

Cross Reference.—As to embezzlement, see 14-90 et seq.

Servant Defined.—In a strict sense all employees are servants but the term servant is usually applied, and meant to apply to one of menial rank. State v. Higgins, 1 N. C. 36.

Trust Relation Necessary.—A person employed as a clerk, who takes goods from his employer's store and sends them to another at a distance to be sold cannot be convicted under this statute as there was no parting with possession by the owner which brought about a trust relation. State v. Higgins, 1 N. C. 36.

Trust Relation Must Be Alleged.—In an indictment under this section, it is necessary to allege that the property was received and held by the defendant in trust, or for the use of the owner, and being so held it was feloniously converted or made away with by the servant or agent. State v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 730, 7 S. E. 872.

Averment of Age.—"The averment that the defendant, when committing the act, was not within—that is, was of the age of eighteen years or more, and thus negatives that she was under sixteen years of age—does not invalidate the indictment, although the negative goes beyond the statutory requirement, for the greater includes the less." State v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 730, 734, 7 S. E. 872.

Cited in State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 797, 10 S. E. 469.

§ 14-75. Larceny of chose in action.—If any person shall feloniously steal, take and carry away, or take by robbery, any bank-note, check or other order for the payment of money issued by or drawn on any bank or other society or corporation within this state or within any of the United States, or any treasury warrant, debenture, certificate of stock or other public security, or certificate of stock in any corporation, or any order, bill of exchange, bond, promissory note or other obligation, either for the payment of money or for the delivery of specific articles, being the property of any other person, or of any corporation (notwithstanding any of the said particulars may be termed in law a chose in action), such felonious stealing, taking and carrying away, or taking by robbery, shall be a felony of the same nature and degree and in the same manner as it would have been if the offender had feloniously stolen, or taken by robbery, money, goods or property of any value, and the offender for every such offense shall suffer the same punishment and be subject to the same pains, penalties and disabilities as he should or might have suffered if he had feloniously stolen or taken by robbery money, goods or other property of value. (Rev., s. 3498; Code, s. 1064; R. C., c. 34, s. 20; 1811, c. 814, s. 1; C. S. 4254.)

Cross Reference.—As to description of stolen money in indictment, see § 15-149.

Treasury Notes.—Treasury notes issued by the United States Treasury Department are covered by this statute as they are "public securities." Although a class of securities issued after the enactment of the statute they are subject to larceny the same as any other note issued after the enactment. State v. Thompson, 71 N. C. 146.

Due-Bills.—While a "due-bill" is not a promissory note, and negotiable by endorsement, it is within the meaning of the words, "or other obligation," in this section. The larceny of such a paper is indictable. State v. Campbell, 103 N. C. 344, 9 S. E. 410.

A pension check on the United States treasury comes under this section. State v. Bishop, 98 N. C. 773, 4 S. E. 357.

Larceny of the Instrument and Paper Distinguished.—When a person is indicted for stealing a promissory note or any other chose in action, it is upon the state to prove the larceny of the instrument, and proof of larceny of a piece of paper is not sufficient. If the instrument has been paid before the alleged felonious taking, the indictment charging only larceny of a chose in action is not sufficient to convict. State v. Campbell, 103 N. C. 344, 9 S. E. 410.

Charter of Bank Issuing Immaterial.—If a stolen note was issued by a bank within one of the United States, it is within the letter of the act, and there can not be the slightest doubt but that it is also within its spirit and meaning. The act is silent as to the authority by which the bank must be chartered, and the mischief of stealing one of its notes from a bona fide holder is the same, whether it derived its existence from an act of Congress or from the Legislature of New York. State v. Banks, 61 N. C. 577, 578.

Sufficient Description.—An indictment for larceny which describes the thing stolen, as "one promissory note issued by the treasury department of the government of the United States for the payment of one dollar," is in that respect sufficient. State v. Fulford, 61 N. C. 563.

Amount Must Be Set Out.—An indictment for stealing a bank note is sufficient if it states the amount of the note and what bank it was drawn on. Some cases hold that the mere statement of the amount of the note is sufficient description. State v. Rout, 10 N. C. 618.

Cited in State v. Freeman, 89 N. C. 469.

§ 14-76. Larceny, mutilation, or destruction of public records and papers.—If any person shall steal, or for any fraudulent purpose shall take from its place of deposit for the time being, or from any person having the lawful custody thereof, or shall unlawfully and maliciously obliterate, injure or destroy any record, writ, return, panel, process, interrogatory, deposition, affidavit, rule, order or warrant of attorney or any original document whatsoever, of or belonging to any court of record, or relating to any matter, civil or criminal, begun, pending or terminated in any such court, or any bill, answer, interrogatory, deposition, affidavit, order or decree or any original document whatsoever, of or belonging to any court or relating to any cause or matter begun, pending or terminated in any such court, every such offender shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and in any indictment or such offense it shall not be necessary to allege that the article, in respect to which the offense is committed, is the property of any person or that the same is of any value. If any person shall steal or for any fraudulent purpose shall take from the register's office, or from any person having the lawful custody thereof, or shall unlawfully and willfully obliterate, injure or destroy any book wherein deeds or other instruments of writing are registered, or any other book of registration or record required to be kept by the register of deeds or shall unlawfully destroy, obliterate, deface or remove any records of proceedings of the board of county commissioners, or unlawfully and fraudulently abstract any record, receipt, order or voucher or other paper-writing required to be kept by the clerk of the board of commissioners of any county, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3508; Code, s. 1071; R. C., c. 34, s. 31; 8 Hen. VI, c. 12, s. 3; 1881, c. 17; C. S. 4255.)

In General.—An indictment will lie under this section for changing, injuring or obliterating tax books, and the oral testimony of the register of deeds is competent to show the amount of the abstract made by him and sent to the auditor, the changed amount, and the acts of the deputy sheriff, as circumstances to show his guilt. State v. Gouge, 157 N. C. 602, 72 S. E. 994.

Notemendature does not always determine the grade or class of a crime; a felony is a crime which is or may be punishable either by death or by imprisonment in the State prison and any other crime is a misdemeanor. Calling an offense a misdemeanor does not make it so when the punishment imposed makes it a felony and construed with § 14-3 the offense prescribed by this section is punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, and therefore a felony. State v. Harwood, 206 N. C. 87, 89, 173 S. E. 24.

Must Show Offense Committed on Day of Opportunity.—On a trial under this section for the destruction of certain pages of a book in the office of the register of deeds, wherein the defendant's interest in so doing has been shown, it is required of the State to show that the offense was committed on the day the defendant had an opportunity to commit the offense, and a margin of several weeks, in which the offense might have been committed, during which time the books were open to the public generally, is insufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit should have been allowed. State v. Swinson, 196 N. C. 100, 144 S. E. 555.

§ 14-77. Larceny, concealment or destruction of wills.—If any person, either during the life of the testator or after his death, shall steal or, for any fraudulent purpose, shall destroy or conceal any will, codicil or other testamentary instrument, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3510; Code, s. 1072; R. C., c. 34, s. 32; C. S. 4256.)

Cross Reference.—As to clerk's power to compel production of will when one in whose custody it is refuses to produce it, see § 31-15.

Basis.—Obviously the basis for making the fraudulent suppression of a will a crime as provided by this section is the fact that it is the policy of the law that wills should be probated, and that the rights of the parties in cases of dispute should be openly arrived at according to the orderly process of law. Wells v. Odum, 207 N. C. 226, 228, 176 S. E. 563.

§ 14-78. Larceny of ungathered crops.—If any person shall steal or feloniously take and carry away any maize, corn, wheat, rice or other grain, or any cotton, tobacco, potatoes, peanuts, pulse, fruit, vegetable or other product cultivated for food or market, growing, standing or remaining ungathered in any field or ground, he shall be guilty of larceny, and shall be punished accordingly. (Rev., s. 3503; Code, s. 1069; 1811, c. 816; R. C., c. 34, s. 21; 1868-9, c. 251; C. S. 4257.)

At Common Law.—"By the common law, larceny can not be committed of things which savor of the realty, and are at the time they are taken a part of the freehold, such as corn and the produce of land. 2 Russell Crimes, 136; State v. Foy, 82 N. C. 679." State v. Thompson, 93 N. C. 537, 538.

What Indictment Must Allege.—On trial of an indictment for larceny charging the defendant with stealing "seed cotton and lint cotton," evidence that defendant took the gleanings of the cotton from the field, is not admissible. To render such evidence competent, the indictment should be framed under the statute, and described the crop as "growing, standing or ungathered" in the field, and cultivated for food or market. State v. Bragg, 86 N. C. 688.

In the case of State v. Liles, 78 N. C. 496, the defendant was indicted for the larceny of figs, "remaining ungathered in a certain field," etc., and the words "cultivated for food or market," were omitted, and it was held by this Court that the indictment, for that reason, was fatally defective. State v. Thompson, 93 N. C. 537, 539.

Indictment Must Conclude Against the Statute.—An indictment for larceny of growing cabbage must conclude against the statute, and a failure to so conclude makes the indictment one at common law. As the offence at common law was not larceny but only a civil trespass there can be no judgment. State v. Foy, 82 N. C. 679.

Applies to All Crops.—This section applies to any growing crops cultivated for food or market, and is not restricted to several articles specifically named. State v. Ballard, 97 N. C. 443, 1 S. E. 685.

Exclusive Jurisdiction of Superior Court.—The punishment for an offence under this section is greater than a justice of the peace can adjudge under the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 5. State v. Cherry, 72 N. C. 123. Therefore exclusive jurisdiction is vested in the Superior Court. State v. Graham, 76 N. C. 195.

§ 14-79. Larceny of ginseng.—If any person shall take and carry away, or shall aid in taking or carrying away, any ginseng growing upon the lands of another person, with intent to steal the same, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned not less than two years nor more than five years, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that such ginseng, at the time the same is taken, shall be in beds and the land upon which such beds are located shall be surrounded by a lawful fence. (Rev., s. 3502; 1905, c. 211; C. S. 4258.)

Cross Reference.—As to digging ginseng out of season on the lands of another, see § 14-392.

§ 14-80. Larceny of wood and other property from land.—If any person, not being the present owner or bona fide claimant thereof, shall willfully and unlawfully enter upon the lands of another, carrying off or being engaged in carrying off any wood or other kind of property whatsoever, growing or being thereon, the same being the property of the owner of the premises, or under his control, keeping or care, such person shall, if the act be done with felonious intent, be guilty of larceny, and punished as for that offense; and if not done with such intent, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3511; Code, s. 1070; 1866, c. 60; C. S. 4259.)

Cross References.—As to cutting, injuring, or removing another's timber, see § 14-135. As to larceny of branded timber, see §§ 80-21 and 80-22.

In General.—This section and section 14-134 were enacted immediately after the Civil War to protect land owners from aimless wanderers who entered land without force, but often did great damage. It was not intended to prevent entry by person who had an honest claim to the land, nor was it intended to apply when force was employed. State v. Crawley, 103 N. C. 353, 9 S. E. 409. It was intended to prevent the willful and unlawful taking from the land of another property that was not by common law or prior statute subject to larceny. State v. Vosburg, 111 N. C. 718, 720, 16 S. E. 392.

The word "whatsoever" shows a clear intent of the Legislature to make it general in its application.

The taking of a brass rail from around an engine that is stationary is larceny under this section. The rule in State v. Burt, 64 N. C. 619 in holding that taking a loose nugget of gold from a loose pile of stone is not larceny is not approved. It, although decided after this section was enacted, was probably decided under the common law as this section is not mentioned by the Court and in all probability was not called to its attention. State v. Beck, 141 N. C. 829, 53 S. E. 843. In the case of State v. Graves, 74 N. C. 396, it is held that an indictment for trespass to personal property can not be supported for the taking of rails from a fence as the taking is "one continuous act" and is trespass to the realty. State v. Burt is cited and approved, and no reference is made to this section. The technical distinction of one continuous act is exactly what was repealed.

One having title to the land or a bona fide claim thereto is not liable under this section by its express terms. One who enters as a servant of a bona fide claimant or one having title is not subject to the application of this section as the protection afforded the master extends to his servant.

In the case of State v. Boyce, 109 N. C. 739, 14 S. E. 98, it is held that a tenant of seven acres being a part of a tract of thirty five acres claimed by the landlord, when expressly prohibited from cutting timber on any of the tract except the seven acres on which he is a tenant, may as the servant of a third person claiming adversely go on the other part of the tract and cut timber, and he will not be estopped to deny his landlord's title except as to the seven acres leased to him, nor will he be liable under this section if the person whose servant he has been can prove his title or bona fide claim. Davis, J., and Avery, J., dissent.

Purpose of Section.—This section was enacted to eliminate a defect in the common law rule and to extend it so as to make chattels real, such as growing trees, plants, minerals, metals and fences, connected in some way with the land, the subject of larceny. The obvious intent of the act was to prevent the willful and unlawful entry upon the land of another and the taking and carrying away of such articles as were not, at common law or by previous statute, the subject of larceny. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Money Not Included.—The penalty for entering the lands of another and carrying off wood or any other kind of property whatsoever growing or being thereon, does not contemplate or embrace such taking and carrying away of money; it means such property as was not, at common law, subject to larceny. State v. Vosburg, 111 N. C. 718, 16 S. E. 392.

Turpentine which has flowed down trees into boxes made to catch it, and is in a state to be dipped out, is a subject of larceny. State v. Moore, 33 N. C. 70, cited in note in 49 L. R. A., N. S., 966; State v. King, 98 N. C. 648, 4 S. E. 44.

Trespass upon land is an essential element of the offense hereby created. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Claim of Interest Must Be Founded.—An entry, without a survey and grant from the state is not sufficient to support a claim to the land, and is no defense to an indictment under this section. State v. Calloway, 119 N. C. 864, 26 S. E. 46.

Tombstones.—Defendant was charged with feloniously stealing and carrying away one tombstone erected at the grave of a deceased person, being the goods and chattels of a named person. The court instructed the jury that the offense charged was larceny, which is the wrongful and felonious taking and carrying away of personal property of some value belonging to another, with felonious intent. Held: Neither the indictment nor the theory of trial refer to trespass constituting an element of the statutory crime or larceny of chattels real, nor to the distinction of taking with, and taking without felonious intent set forth in this section, and there is a fatal variance between the indictment for common law larceny and the proof of the statutory larceny of a chattel real, and defendant's motion to nonsuit should have been granted. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Quaere: As § 14-148, and cognate statutes relate expressly to tombstones, graveyards and graves, does this not exclude such property from the provisions of this section. Id.

§ 14-81. Larceny of horses and mules.—If any person shall steal any horse, mare, gelding or mule, he shall suffer imprisonment at hard labor for not less than one nor more than twenty years, at the discretion of the court. A count under this section may be joined in a bill of indictment with a count under section 14-82. (Rev., s. 3505; Code, s. 1066; 1868, c. 37, s. 1; 1879, c. 234, s. 2; 1866-7, c. 62; 1917, c. 162, s. 2; C. S. 4260.)

Taking with Belief of Interest.—One taking a mule from the stable of another at night and without the consent of the owner is not guilty of larceny if he believed at the time when he took the mule that he had an interest in it. State v. Thompson, 95 N. C. 596.

Same—Question for a Jury.—One who takes a mule from the stable of another in a manner indicating felonious purpose but under a claim of interest should have the question of his act being under a bona fide claim submitted to the jury, and a charge that if the taking was not under a bona fide belief that he had a property or interest in the mule he would be guilty of larceny was not error. State v. Thompson, 95 N. C. 596.

Joinder with Charge of Receiving Stolen Goods.—An indictment for horse stealing concluded at common law is punishable as petit larceny. If there are two counts and the second is for receiving stolen goods and concludes against the statute, the punishment for the two is the same and they may be joined, but on conviction a sentence of ten years is all that can be given. State v. Lawrence, 81 N. C. 522, 523.

An indictment having two counts, one for horse stealing, the other for receiving stolen property, both concluding upon a statute, is defective as the offences are not of the same grade and a conviction is error. State v. Johnson, 75 N. C. 123.

§ 14-82. Taking horses or mules for temporary purposes.—If any person shall unlawfully take and carry away any horse, gelding, mare or mule, the property of another person, secretly and against the will of the owner of such property, with intent to deprive the owner of the special or temporary use of the same, or with the intent to use such property for a special or temporary purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3509; Code, s. 1067; 1879, c. 234, s. 1; 1913, c. 11; C. S. 4261.)

Indictment.—An indictment for stealing the temporary use of a horse in violation of this section is not defective because it charges the stealing of the temporary use of a buggy also. State v. Darden, 117 N. C. 697, 23 S. E. 106.

Employee Liable.—An occasional employee, who took the employer's mule at night and drove it off without the knowledge or consent of the employer, was guilty of a tortious conversion, and an act indictable under this section; and where the mule died in his possession he was liable for its value, at least in the absence of any evidence in support of his claim that the death was accidental. Clark v. Whitehurst, 171 N. C. 1, 86 S. E. 78.

§ 14-83: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 14-84. Larceny of taxed dogs misdemeanor.—The larceny of any dog upon which the license tax provided in article two of the chapter entitled Dogs has been paid shall be a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 116, s. 9; C. S. 4263.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 67-15 and 67-27.

§ 14-85. Pursuing or injuring livestock with intent to steal.—If any person shall pursue, kill or wound any horse, mule, ass, jennet, cattle, hog, sheep or goat, the property of another, with the intent unlawfully and feloniously to convert the same to his own use, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punishable, in all respects, as if convicted of larceny, though such animal may not have come into the actual possession of the person so offending. (Rev., s. 3504; Code, s. 1068; 1866, c. 57; C. S. 4264.)

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment under this section for injury to livestock, in which the animal alleged to have been injured is described as a "certain cattle beast," is sufficiently definite. State v. Credle, 91 N. C. 640.

§ 14-86. Destruction or taking of soft drink bottles.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, or any employee thereof, to maliciously take up, carry away, destroy or in any way dispose of bottles or other property belonging to any bottler, bottling company, person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of bottling and/or distributing in bottles or other closed containers soda water, coca-cola, pepsi-cola, cheri-wine, chero-cola, ginger ale, grape and other fruit juices or imitations thereof, carbonated or malted beverages and like preparations commonly known as soft drinks. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 322, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to pollution of soft drink bottles, see § 14-288.

Art. 17. Robbery.

§ 14-87. Robbery with firearms or other dangerous weapons.—Any person or persons who, having in possession or with the use or threatened use of any firearms or other dangerous weapon, implement or means, whereby the life of a person is endangered or threatened, unlawfully takes or attempts to take personal property from another or from any place of business, residence or banking institution or any other place where there is a person or persons in attendance, at any time, either day or night, or who aids or abets any such person or persons in the commission of such crime, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than five nor more than thirty years. (1929, c. 187, s. 1.)

Possession Necessary.—The purpose and intent of this section is to provide for more severe punishment for the commission of robbery with firearms, and other specified weapons, than is prescribed for common law robbery, and construing the title and context of the statute together to ascertain the legislative intent, it is held that possession of firearms or other of the specified weapons is necessary to constitute the offense of "robbery with firearms" under this section, and it is reversible error for the court to refuse to so instruct the jury in accordance with defendants' prayers for special instructions upon evidence tending to show that defendants sought to make their victim believe they had firearms, and threatened to use same, but that they actually carried no weapon. State v. Keller, 214 N. C. 447, 199 S. E. 620.

Where an indictment charged defendants with robbery with firearms from the companion of the person they were formerly charged with killing, the two offenses having been committed at the same time, and evidence of guilt of one of the offenses being substantially the same as the evidence of guilt of the other, the acquittal or conviction for one offense will not bar a subsequent prosecution for the other. State v. Dills, 210 N. C. 178, 185 S. E. 677, distinguishing State v. Clemmons, 207 N. C. 276, 176 S. E. 760.

Applied in State v. Riddle, 205 N. C. 591, 172 S. E. 400.

§ 14-88. Train robbery.—If any person shall enter upon any locomotive engine or car on any railroad in this state, and by threats, the exhibition of deadly weapons or the discharge of any pistol or gun, in or near any such engine or car, shall induce or compel any person on such engine or car to submit and deliver up, or allow to be taken therefrom, or from him, anything of value, he shall be guilty of train robbery, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than ten years nor more than twenty years. (Rev., s. 3765; 1895, c. 204, s. 2; C. S. 4266.)

§ 14-89. Attempted train robbery.—If any person shall stop, or cause to be stopped, or impede, or cause to be impeded, or conspire with others for that purpose, any locomotive engine or car on any railroad in this state, by intimidation of those in charge thereof or by force, threats or otherwise, for the purpose of taking therefrom or causing to be delivered up to such person so forcing, threatening or intimidating, anything of value, to be appropriated to his own use, he shall be guilty of attempting train robbery, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by confinement in the state's prison for not less than two years nor more than twenty years. (Rev., s. 3766; 1895, c. 204, s. 1; C. S. 4267.)

Art. 18. Embezzlement.

§ 14-90. Embezzlement of property received by virtue of office or employment.—If any person exercising a public trust or holding a public office, or any guardian, administrator, executor, trustee, or any receiver, or any other fiduciary, or any officer or agent of a corporation, or any agent, consignee, clerk, bailee or servant, except persons under the age of sixteen years, of any person, shall embezzle or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misapply or convert to his own use, or shall take, make way with or secrete, with intent to embezzle or fraudulently or knowingly and willfully misapply or convert to his own use any money, goods or other chattels, bank note, check or order for the payment of money issued by or drawn on any bank or other corporation, or any treasury warrant, treasury note, bond or obligation for the payment of money issued by the United States or by any state, or any other valuable security whatsoever belonging to any other person or corporation, which shall have come into his possession or under his care, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished as in cases of larceny. (Rev., s. 3406; Code, s. 1014; 21 Hen. VII, c. 7; 1871-2, c. 145, s. 2; 1889, c. 226; 1891, c. 188; 1897, c. 31; 1919, c. 97, s. 25; 1931, c. 158; 1939, c. 1; 1941, c. 31; C. S. 4268.)

Cross References.—As to larceny by servants or other employees, see § 14-74. As to the embezzlement of funds of a corporation by its officers, see § 14-254. As to embezzlement of funds of a bank by its officers, see § 53-129. As to embezzlement by a member of the state sinking fund commission, see § 142-40. As to description in indictment for embezzlement, see § 15-150.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section so as to add "trustees" to the list of persons who may be guilty of embezzlement. Section 14-92 applies only to trustees of public bodies and institutions. The addition was probably necessary because of the fact that embezzlement is wholly a statutory crime. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 398.

The 1939 amendment inserted after the word "trustee" in the third line the words "or any receiver, or any other fiduciary", and was enacted to meet the decision in State v. Whitehurst, 212 N. C. 300, 193 S. E. 657, 113 A. L. R. 740. See 17 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

The 1941 amendment made this section applicable to baillees. For comment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 478.

Origin and Purpose.—Embezzlement was not a common-law offense. State v. Hill, 91 N. C. 561. It was first made a criminal offense in England by statute, 21 Henry VIII, ch. 7, to punish the appropriation by servants of the property of their masters in violation of the trust and confidence reposed on them. 1 McLain Cr. Law, § 621. It was enacted in consequence of a decision that a banker's clerk, who received money from a customer and appropriated it to his own use, could not be convicted of larceny on the ground that the money had never been in the employer's possession. Clark's Cr. Law, p. 308. State v. McDonald, 133 N. C. 680, 683, 45 S. E. 582.

Compared with Section 14-254.—The use of the word "abstract" in section 14-254 differentiates it from this section. The latter applies to embezzlement and excepts offenders under sixteen years of age. It is not necessary under section 14-254 to allege that the defendant is more than sixteen years old. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Cannot Be Extended by Construction.—This section is a penal statute, creating a new offense, and cannot be extended by construction to persons not within the classes designated. State v. Eurell, 220 N. C. 519, 17 S. E. (2d) 669.

The fact that ch. 31, Public Laws 1941, amended this section, by adding "bailee" to the classes of persons specified constitutes a legislative declaration that theretofore a bailee was not included in the definition of classes of persons made by the statute. Id.

The mere converting or appropriating the property of another to one's own use is not sufficient to constitute the crime of embezzlement, fraudulent intent in the act of such conversion or appropriation being an essential element of the offense. State v. Cohoon, 206 N. C. 388, 174 S. E. 91.

Fraudulent intent is a necessary element of the statutory offense of embezzlement and the State must prove such intent beyond a reasonable doubt, but direct proof is not necessary, it being sufficient if facts and circumstances are shown from which it may be reasonably inferred. State v. McLean, 209 N. C. 38, 182 S. E. 700.

Meaning of Fraudulent Intent.—Fraudulent intent within the meaning of this section is the intent to willfully or corruptly use or misapply the property of another for purposes other than that for which it is held, and evidence tending to show that defendant, without authorization, applied funds of his employer to his own use, although defendant testified that he used the funds to pay a debt due him by his employer, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the question of fraudulent intent. State v. McLean, 209 N. C. 38, 182 S. E. 700; State v. Howard, 222 N. C. 291, 22 S. E. (2d) 917.

Conversion Not Necessary.—To embezzle is for an agent fraudulently to misapply the property of his principal; it is not necessary that the agent should convert it to his own use, that is, expend the money for his own benefit. State v. Foust, 114 N. C. 842, 843, 19 S. E. 276.

Necessity of Demand for Payment.—A demand is not necessary to support a prosecution under this section as it is not made a prerequisite to prosecution. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. E. 310.

Property of Prosecutor.—The property alleged to have been embezzled must be the property of the prosecutor. State v. Barton, 125 N. C. 702, 34 S. E. 553.

Goods Received under Special Directions.—Where goods come into the possession of a servant, out of the ordinary course of his employment, but in pursuance of special directions from the master to receive them, and the servant embezzle the same, he is indictable under this section. State v. Costin, 89 N. C. 511.

Intent to Repay No Defense.—An intent to restore the property embezzled or a readiness and willingness at a latter date is not a defense to a prosecution under this section. State v. Summers, 141 N. C. 841, 53 S. E. 856.

To Whom Section Applies.—A contractor is not an officer, clerk or servant within the meaning of this section. State v. Barton, 125 N. C. 702, 34 S. E. 553. Nor is the relation of lessor and lessee embraced by the statute. State v. Keith, 126 N. C. 1114, 36 S. E. 169. And it does not apply to clerks of the superior courts and like officers who would seem to fall within the terms of section 14-92. State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 10 S. E. 469.

Commissioner in Equity Cannot Be Convicted as Agent or Attorney.—A commissioner appointed by a court of equity to sell land is empowered to do one specific act, viz.: to sell the land and distribute the proceeds to the parties entitled thereto; immediately upon his appointment he ceases to be an attorney or agent for either party, and where the indictment charges the defendant with embezzlement of funds under this section as commissioner the defendant could not be convicted as agent or attorney. State v. Ray, 207 N. C. 642, 644, 178 S. E. 224.

Allegations and Proof.—The name of the person from whom the money was received need not be stated. State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517, 88 N. C. 658. And it need not be alleged or proved that the property charged to have been embezzled had been committed to the care of defendant, nor that any breach of confidence of trust, save that which grows out of the relation of owner and servant or agent, had occurred. State v. Wilson, 101 N. C. 730, 7 S. E. 872. The averment that the defendant is neither an apprentice nor under the age of sixteen years, is a substantial compliance with the statute. State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517, 88 N. C. 658, 660.

The crime of embezzlement rests upon statute alone and conviction thereof under an indictment drawn under this section, when the evidence tends only to show a violation of § 14-92, is erroneous upon the ground that the proof is at variance with the offense charged in the bill. State v. Grace, 196 N. C. 280, 145 S. E. 399.

Evidence—Intent Must Be Shown.—The conversion being admitted or shown, the burden is on the State to show beyond a reasonable doubt the intent to defraud. State v. McDonald, 133 N. C. 680, 45 S. E. 582. But the burden of showing that he is under age is on the defendant and the state is not called on to prove that he is past sixteen years old, for this is a matter of defence and within the defendant's knowledge. State v. Blackley, 138 N. C. 620, 50 S. E. 310.

It is not necessary that a warrant for embezzlement issued by a justice of the peace should describe the criminal offense with the legal accuracy required in an indictment. Durham v. Jones, 119 N. C. 262, 25 S. E. 873.

Where there is evidence that an agent is charged with the duty of selling a load of tobacco upon a local market on behalf of the principal only, and accordingly receiving the price, he intentionally and wrongfully converted it to his use, it is sufficient to constitute the crime of embezzlement under this section and to sustain a verdict of guilty. State v. Eubanks, 194 N. C. 319, 139 S. E. 451.

Accusation of Embezzlement Actionable Per Se in Slander.—The offense defined in this section is a felony, and a false accusation thereof is slander, actionable per se, and malice is presumed. Elmore v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 189 N. C. 658, 127 S. E. 710.

It is unnecessary to determine whether an indictment could be sustained under other of the cognate statutes, §§ 14-91 to 14-99, where an indictment of a bank receiver for embezzlement is drawn under this section. State v. Whitehurst, 212 N. C. 300, 193 S. E. 657, 113 A. L. R. 740.

Illustrations of Wrongful Misapplications.—By a treasurer of a society depositing money in his private bank. See State v. Dunn, 138 N. C. 672, 50 S. E. 772. By a sales agent for automobiles. See State v. Klingman, 172 N. C. 947, 90 S. E. 690. By an agent selling a load of tobacco. See State v. Eubanks, 194 N. C. 319, 139 S. E. 451.

By an agent to buy a lot and build house. See State v. McClure, 205 N. C. 11, 169 S. E. 809. By a Consignee and Agent of a Piano Co. See State v. Dula, 206 N. C. 745, 175 S. E. 80.

§ 14-91. Embezzlement of state property by public officers and employees.—If any officer, agent or employee of the state, or other person having or holding in trust for the same any bonds issued by the state, or any security, or other property and effects of the same, shall embezzle or knowingly and willfully misapply or convert the same to his own use, or otherwise willfully or corruptly abuse such trust, such offender and all persons aiding and abetting, or otherwise assisting therein, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined not less than ten thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the state's prison not less than twenty years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3407; Code, s. 1015; 1874-5, c. 52; C. S. 4269.)

The word "property" is sufficiently all inclusive to embrace money, goods, chattels, evidences of debt and things in action. State v. Ward, 222 N. C. 316, 22 S. E. (2d) 922.

The fraudulent intent which constitutes a necessary element of the crime of embezzlement, within this section, is the intent to embezzle or otherwise willfully and corruptly use or misapply the property of the principal or employer for purposes other than those for which the property is held. State v. Howard, 222 N. C. 291, 293, 22 S. E. (2d) 917.

Instructions.—Where, in a prosecution for embezzlement, under this and the preceding section, counsel for defendant, in argument to the jury, commented on the severity of the minimum punishment in this section, and the court in its charge read the section to the jury and the indictment thereunder and also a portion of the general probation statute, carefully cautioning them that they were to decide the issue upon the evidence without regard to the punishment which might or might not be imposed, the charge was proper and not prejudicial. State v. Ward, 222 N. C. 316, 22 S. E. (2d) 922. See also, State v. Howard, 222 N. C. 291, 22 S. E. (2d) 917.

§ 14-92. Embezzlement of funds by public officers and trustees.—If any officer, agent, or employee of any city, county or incorporated town, or of any penal, charitable, religious or educational institution; or if any person having or holding any moneys or property in trust for any city, county, incorporated town, penal, charitable, religious or educational institution, shall embezzle or otherwise willfully and corruptly use or misapply the same for any purpose other than that for which such moneys or property is held, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined and imprisoned in the state's prison in the discretion of the court. If any clerk of the superior court or any sheriff, treasurer, register of deeds or other public officer of any county or town of the state shall embezzle or wrongfully convert to his own use, or corruptly use, or shall misapply for any purpose other than that for which the same are held, or shall fail to pay over and deliver to the proper persons entitled to receive the same when lawfully required so to do, any moneys, funds, securities or other property which such officer shall have received by virtue or color of his office in trust for any person or corporation, such officer shall be guilty of a felony. The provisions of this section shall apply to all persons who shall go out of office and fail or neglect to account to or deliver over to their successors in office or other persons lawfully entitled to receive the same all such moneys, funds and securities or property aforesaid. The punishment shall be imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail, or fine in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3408; Code, s. 1016; 1891, c. 241; 1876-7, c. 47; C. S. 4270.)

Compared with Section 14-231.—Under section 14-231 failure by an officer to pay over money coming into his hands is a misdemeanor. That section is very broad and seems to cover every case of failure by an officer to pay to the proper person funds coming into his hands. By this section the offence is declared a felony. An officer indicted for failure to pay to proper persons funds coming into his hands should be allowed the privilege of having the facts submitted to the jury. State v. Windley, 178 N. C. 670, 100 S. E. 116.

Meaning of "Willfully and Corruptly."—In a charge upon the trial of county officials for the misapplication of county funds under the provisions of this section, the definition that "willfully and corruptly" meant with "bad faith and without regard to the rights of others and in the interest of such parties for whom the funds were held" is not erroneous under the circumstances of this case. State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 657.

Applies Only to Public Funds.—This section does not embrace the unlawful appropriation of the property of private individuals. State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 10 S. E. 469.

Clerks of Courts.—In the case of State v. Connelly, 104 N. C. 794, 10 S. E. 469, it was held that this section was not applicable to clerks of the Superior Courts but by an amendment at the next session of the Legislature it was expressly made applicable to clerks of Superior Courts. State v. Windley, 178 N. C. 670, 672, 100 S. E. 116.

§ 14-93. Embezzlement by treasurers of charitable and religious organizations.—If any treasurer or other financial officer of any benevolent or religious institution, society or congregation shall lend any of the moneys coming into his hands to any other person or association without the consent of the institution, association or congregation to whom such moneys belong; or, if he shall fail to account for such moneys when called on, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3409; Code, s. 1017; 1879, c. 105; C. S. 4271.)

Two Offenses Created.—Under this section two offenses are created which apply to certain officers of benevolent or religious institutions. One offense is the lending their moneys without consent; the other is the failure to account for such moneys. State v. Dunn, 138 N. C. 672, 50 S. E. 772.

Association for Members Solely.—An association organized for the benefit of its members solely is not a benevolent or religious association and an indictment under this section cannot be sustained against an officer who misappropriates funds of the association. State v. Dunn, 134 N. C. 663, 46 S. E. 949.

§ 14-94. Embezzlement by officers of railroad companies.—If any president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer of any railroad company shall embezzle any moneys, bonds or other valuable funds or securities, with which such president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer shall be charged by virtue of his office or agency, or shall in any way, directly or indirectly, apply or appropriate the same for the use or benefit of himself or any other person, state or corporation, other than the company of which he is president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer, agent or other officer, for every such offense the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction in the superior or criminal court of any county through which the railroad of such company shall pass, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than three nor more than ten years, and fined not less than one thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3403; Code, s. 1018; 1870-1, c. 103, s. 1; C. S. 4272.)

§ 14-95. Conspiring with officers of railroad companies to embezzle.—If any person shall agree, combine, collude or conspire with the president, secretary, treasurer, director, engineer or agent of any railroad company to commit any offense specified in § 14-94, such person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction in the superior or criminal court of a county through which the railroad of any company against which such offense may be perpetrated passes, shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than three nor more than ten years, and fined not less than one thousand nor more than ten thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3404; Code, s. 1019; 1870-1, c. 103, s. 2; C. S. 4273.)

§ 14-96. Embezzlement by insurance agents and brokers.—If any insurance agent or broker who acts in negotiating a contract of insurance by an insurance company, association or fraternal order or society, lawfully doing business in this state, embezzles or fraudulently converts to his own use, or, with intent to use or embezzle, takes, secretes or otherwise disposes of, or fraudulently withholds, appropriates, lends, invests or otherwise uses or applies any money or substitute for money received by him as such agent or broker, contrary to the instructions or without the consent of the company for or on account of which the same was received by him, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny. (Rev., s. 3489; 1889, c. 54, s. 103; 1911, c. 196, s. 8; C. S. 4274.)

§ 14-97. Appropriation of partnership funds by partner to personal use.—Any person engaged in a partnership business in the state of North Carolina who shall, without the knowledge and consent of his copartner or copartners, take funds belonging to the partnership business and appropriate the same to his own personal use with the fraudulent intent of depriving his co-partners of the use thereof, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person or persons violating the provisions of this section, upon conviction, shall be punished as is now done in cases of misdemeanor. (1921, c. 127; C. S. 4274(a).)

Fraudulent intent is an essential element of this crime and must be proved by the State, and in a prosecution under this section an instruction that the jury should return a verdict of guilty if they found beyond a reasonable doubt the facts to be as the evidence tended to show, is error, the question of fraudulent intent being a question for the jury to determine from the evidence. State v. Rawls, 202 N. C. 397, 162 S. E. 899.

§ 14-98. Embezzlement by surviving partner.—If any surviving partner shall willfully and intentionally convert any of the property, money or effects belonging to the partnership to his own use, and refuse to account for the same on settlement, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the state's prison in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3405; 1901, c. 640, s. 9; C. S. 4275.)

§ 14-99. Embezzlement of taxes by officers.—If any officer appropriates to his own use the state, county, school, city or town taxes, he shall be guilty of embezzlement, and may be punished by confinement in the state's prison not exceeding five years, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3410; Code, s. 3705; 1883, c. 136, s. 49; C. S. 4276.)

Whether Felony or Misdemeanor.—As this section is silent as to whether or not the offense set out is a felony or a misdemeanor it will be construed as a misdemeanor as an offense will never be made a felony by construction of any doubtful or ambiguous words in the statute. State v. Hill, 21 N. C. 561. But see section 14-1, as that seems to change the construction as given in this case and make all offenses punishable by imprisonment felonies.—Ed. Note.

Inference of Fraudulent Intent.—While the intent to commit the offense of embezzlement is an essential ingredient of the crime, the fraudulent intent may be inferred by the jury under evidence sufficient to show it, and where under such evidence the trial court correctly defines such intent, and places the burden of proof throughout the trial on the State to show the intent beyond a reasonable doubt, an exception that the court failed to instruct the jury upon the element of felonious intent is untenable. State v. Lancaster, 202 N. C. 204, 162 S. E. 367.

Art. 19. False Pretenses and Cheats.

§ 14-100. Obtaining property by false tokens and other false pretenses.—If any person shall knowingly and designedly, by means of any forged or counterfeited paper, in writing or in print, or by any false token, or other false pretense whatsoever, obtain from any person or corporation within the state any money, goods, property or other thing of value, or any bank-note, check or order for the payment of money, issued by, or drawn on, any bank or other society or corporation within this state or any of the United States, or any treasury warrant, debenture, certificate of stock or public security, or any order, bill of exchange, bond, promissory note or other obligation, either for the payment of money or for the delivery of specific articles, with intent to cheat or defraud any person or corporation of the same, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years, or fined, in the discretion of the court: Provided, that if, on the trial of any one indicted for such crime, it shall be proved that he obtained the property in such manner as to amount to larceny, he shall not, by reason thereof, be entitled to be acquitted of the felony; and no person tried for such felony shall be liable to be afterwards prosecuted for larceny upon the same facts: Provided further, that it shall be sufficient in any indictment for obtaining or attempting to obtain any such property by false pretenses to allege that the party accused did the act with intent to defraud, without alleging an intent to defraud any particular person, and without alleging any ownership of the chattel, money or valuable security; and, on the trial of any such indictment, it shall not be necessary to prove an intent to defraud any particular person, but it shall be sufficient to prove that the party accused did the act charged with an intent to defraud. (Rev., s. 3432; Code, s. 1025; R. C., c. 34, s. 67; 1811, c. 814, s. 2; 33 Hen. VIII, c. 1, ss. 1, 2; 30 Geo. II, c. 24, s. 1; C. S. 4277.)

Cross Reference.—As to alleging intent in the indictment, see § 15-151.

Origin of Section.—This section was derived from the English Statutes, 33 Hen VIII, and 30 George II. State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

Elements of the Crime.—To constitute the crime of false pretense, a mistake, a pretense, a false pretense, a mere promise of opinion is not sufficient. It must be a (1) false representation of a subsisting fact, whether in writing or in words or in acts; (2) which is calculated to deceive and intended to deceive, and (3) which does in fact deceive (4) by which one man obtains value from another without compensation. State v. Simpson, 10 N. C. 621; State v. Roberts, 189 N. C. 93, 126 S. E. 161, 162; cited in State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216; State v. Howley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

The constituent elements of the offense of false pretense are: (1) That the representation was made as alleged; (2) that property or something of value was obtained by reason of the representation; (3) that the representation was false; (4) that it was made with intent to defraud; (5) that it actually did deceive and defraud the person to whom it was made. State v. Carlson, 171 N. C. 818, 89 S. E. 30; State v. Johnson, 195 N. C. 506, 507, 142 S. E. 775.

Same—Subsisting Fact.—It is settled that a promise is not a pretense. No matter what the form, or however false the promise to do something in the future, it will not come within the statute. There must be a false allegation of some subsisting fact. State v. Phifer, 65 N. C. 321, 324; State v. Knott, 124 N. C. 814, 32 S. E. 798.

Same—Whether in Writing or Words.—It was held formerly that some false writing or token was necessary to constitute the offense. See State v. Simpson, 10 N. C. 620. This case was overruled in State v. Phifer, 65 N. C. 321, 323, where it is held that a naked lie meeting the other requirements enumerated in the preceding paragraph is a crime within the meaning of the section. This latter case is followed in State v. Dixon, 101 N. C. 741, 743, 7 S. E. 870. In fact the false pretense may be by act or conduct without spoken words. See State v. Matthews, 121 N. C. 604, 28 S. E. 469.

Same—Intent to Deceive.—The intent to cheat and defraud the prosecutor is an essential ingredient in the crime of false pretense. State v. Blue, 84 N. C. 807; State v. Oakley, 103 N. C. 408, 9 S. E. 575. In the absence of such definite finding, the uniform practice is to grant a new trial. State v. McCloud, 151 N. C. 730, 731, 66 S. E. 568.

Same—Actual Deceit.—Another of the elements is that the party to whom the false representation was made was deceived by it. State v. Whedbee, 152 N. C. 770, 67 S. E. 60. If he is so deceived it matters not whether he parted with goods for the sake of gain or for a charitable purpose. State v. Matthews, 91 N. C. 635.

Caveat Emptor.—The doctrine of caveat emptor "let the buyer beware" does not apply to actual fraud or obtaining property by false representation. By this doctrine the purchaser is forewarned of tricks of the trade, bluster, puffs and empty boasts on the part of the person putting his property on the market; but the seller can not escape the penalty by reason of the doctrine where the facts constituting the crime, as stated in the second paragraph of this note, are made to appear. See State v. Jones, 70 N. C. 75; State v. Burke, 108 N. C. 750, 751, 12 S. E. 1000; State v. Young, 76 N. C. 258.

False Representations as to Deed of Trust.—A representation that a deed of trust covered certain land, which was not in fact included, on the faith of which defendant obtained money is a false pretense within this section. State v. Roberts, 189 N. C. 93, 126 S. E. 161.

False Representations as to Standing Timber.—A conviction under this section for false and fraudulent representations as to the quantity of standing timber on land sold to the prosecutor cannot be sustained where the amount of the purchase price for land is to be determined by the number of feet of timber cut therefrom, the prosecutor not being damaged thereby; nor can the conviction be sustained for misrepresentations as to the quality of the trees when the prosecutor had ample opportunity to inspect them and had been urged to do so by the defendant. State v. Corey, 199 N. C. 209, 153 S. E. 923.

Passing Counterfeit Money.—Where a person buys goods from another and the change given back by the seller is counterfeit an indictment under this section cannot be had, for there has been no fraudulent representations, nor intent to defraud before the defendant received the money. State v. Alfred, 84 N. C. 749.

Representation to Agent of Owner of Goods.—It is not necessary that the false representations be made to the owner of the goods directly, but it is sufficient if they were made to his agent. State v. Taylor, 131 N. C. 711, 42 S. E. 539.

Corporations Liable.—"In State v. Rowland Lumber Co. 153 N. C. 610, 612, 69 S. E. 58, it is said: 'The first ground, that corporations cannot be convicted of an offense where the intent is an ingredient, is no longer tenable. They are as fully liable in such cases as individuals. They are liable for libel, assaults and battery, etc. Corporate existence can be shown, though not charged in the bill. State v. Shaw, 92 N. C. 768.' This is fully sustained by all the late authorities." State v. Salisbury Ice, etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

The Indictment.—The indictment must allege all of the essential elements of the offense. State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 526, 80 S. E. 261.

"The indictment must show a causal connection between the false representation and the parting with the property (State v. Whedbee, 152 N. C. 770, 774, 67 S. E. 60) but 'no particular form of words is necessary; an allegation that "by means of the false pretense" or "relying on the false pretense," or the like, is sufficient, where it is apparent that the delivery of the property was the natural result of the pretense alleged. 19 Cyc. 430.'" State v. Claudius, 164 N. C. 521, 525, 80 S. E. 261.

The charge as to the persons intended to be cheated is surplusage and immaterial, all that is necessary is a charge of intent. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 658, 34 S. E. 434; State v. Salisbury Ice, etc., Co., 166 N. C. 366, 367, 81 S. E. 737.

Indictment held sufficient. State v. Howley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

Necessity of Averring Property Obtained.—The indictment must describe the thing alleged to have been thereby obtained with reasonable certainty, and by the name or term usually employed to describe it; and where the indictment charges obtaining money by a false pretense, and the State's evidence tends only to show that the defendant had obtained the signature of the prosecutor as an indorser or surety to a negotiable instrument, there is a fatal variance between the charge and the proof, and defendant's motion to nonsuit should be sustained. State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7. No averment of the value of the property obtained is necessary. State v. Gillespie, 80 N. C. 396. And where the allegation is that money was obtained and the proof is that property was obtained but the defendant made no exception, there is no ground for reversal. State v. Ashford, 120 N. C. 588, 26 S. E. 915. Nonsuit is the proper method of raising the question of variance. State v. Gibson, supra.

The offense is a felony and a bill of indictment charging such offense and which omits the word "feloniously" is defective, and judgment will be arrested on a verdict of guilty. State v. Caldwell, 112 N. C. 854, 16 S. E. 1010.

Applied in State v. Hollingsworth, 206 N. C. 739, 175 S. E. 99.

Cited in State v. Jones, 65 N. C. 395; State v. Howard, 129 N. C. 584, 40 S. E. 71; Factor v. Laubenheimer, 290 U. S. 276, 299, 54 S. Ct. 191, 78 L. Ed. 151.

§ 14-101. Obtaining signatures or property by false pretenses.—If any person, with intent to defraud or cheat another, shall designedly, by color of any false token or writing, or by any other false pretense, obtain the signature of any person to any written instrument, the false making of which would be punishable as forgery, or obtain from any person any money, goods, wares, merchandise or other property or valuable thing whatsoever, he shall be punishable by fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the state's prison for a term of not less than one year nor more than five years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3433; Code, s. 1026; 1871-2, c. 92; C. S. 4278.)

Cross References.—See annotations under § 14-100. As to forgery, see § 14-119 et seq. As to uttering a false bill of lading, see § 21-42.

Offense Is a Felony.—This section provides for imprisonment in the penitentiary, and therefore since the enactment of section 14-1 all offenses under this section are felonies, and an indictment must charge "feloniously." State v. Caldwell, 112 N. C. 854, 16 S. E. 1010.

This case overrules the case of State v. Crumple, 90 N. C. 701 in which it was held that as this section did not specify that the offense was a felony it would be treated as a misdemeanor in spite of the punishment being as for felonies.—Ed. Note.

Signing or Endorsing Note.—It has been held in S. v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7, that it is an indictable offense under this section, to procure a person to sign or endorse a note by means of false representation and with intent to cheat and defraud. State v. Johnson, 195 N. C. 506, 507, 142 S. E. 775.

Same—Element of Intent.—In order to constitute false pretense in the discounting a note at the bank by a maker upon misrepresentation to one of the endorsers that he had secured certain endorsers with him, when, in fact he had used the note without other endorsers, evidence that the maker had turned over to the endorsers on the note his entire stock of merchandise and that he had thereupon had a civil judgment in their favor canceled of record, is material and competent upon the element of intent necessary to constitute the offense charged. State v. Johnson, 195 N. C. 506, 142 S. E. 775.

Representation as to Titles to Land.—One who obtains money as the purchase price of land sold by him to another upon the representation that the land is unencumbered when it is encumbered by a mortgage, is liable under this section. State v. Munday, 78 N. C. 460.

Sufficient Indictment.—An indictment for false pretense charging that defendant wilfully, knowingly, falsely and feloniously pretended to the prosecutor that he had cut for him, for the use of another, twenty cords of wood, whereas in truth and in fact he had not cut the same, and by means of said false pretense did obtain from the prosecutor three dollars in money, with intent, etc., is sufficient. State v. Eason, 86 N. C. 674.

Same—Must Allege Certain Offense.—An indictment should state with reasonable certainty the offense charged, and an indictment charging the defendant with obtaining money when he obtained a note, is defective. State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7.

Cited in State v. Gibson, 169 N. C. 318, 85 S. E. 7.

§ 14-102. Obtaining property by false representation of pedigree of animals.—If any person shall, with intent to defraud or cheat, knowingly represent any animal for breeding purposes as being of greater degree of any particular strain of blood than such animal actually possesses, and by such representation obtain from any other person money or other thing of value, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall for each offense be punished by a fine of not less than sixty dollars nor more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months. (Rev., s. 3307; 1891, c. 94, s. 2; C. S. 4279.)

§ 14-103. Obtaining certificate of registration of animals by false representation.—If any person shall, by any false representation or pretense, with intent to defraud or cheat, obtain from any club, association, society or company for the improvement of the breed of cattle, horses, sheep, swine, fowls or other domestic animals or birds, a certificate of registration of any animal in the herd register of any such association, society or company, or a transfer of any such registration, upon conviction thereof he shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Rev., s. 3308; 1891, c. 94, s. 1; C. S. 4280.)

§ 14-104. Obtaining advances under promise to work and pay for same.—If any person, with intent to cheat or defraud another, shall obtain any advances in money, provisions, goods, wares or merchandise of any description from any other person or corporation upon and by color of any promise or agreement that the person making the same will begin any work or labor of any description for such person or corporation from whom the advances are obtained, and the person making the promise or agreement shall willfully fail, without a lawful excuse, to commence or complete such work according to contract, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3431; 1889, c. 444; 1891, c. 106; 1905, c. 411; C. S. 4281.)

Cross Reference.—As to tenant or cropper willfully abandoning landlord after advances have been made, see § 14-358.

Editor's Note.—The 1905 amendment, which made failure to perform services after being paid therefor presumptive evidence of fraudulent intent, has been held to contravene the constitutions both of North Carolina and of the United States. State v. Griffin, 154 N. C. 611, 70 S. E. 292. A similar provision in an Alabama statute was held to be unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court in Bailey v. Alabama, 219 U. S. 219, 31 S. Ct. 145, 55 L. Ed. 191.

Constitutional.—The gist of the offence of procuring advances "with intent to cheat and defraud" is not the obtaining the advances, and afterwards refusing to perform the labor, but in the fraudulent intent at the time of obtaining the advances, and making the promise. This section is constitutional. State v. Norman, 110 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968. This case was decided before the 1905 amendment discussed above.

Intent Must Be Shown.—To convict under this section it is necessary to show the fraudulent intent on the part of the promisor; and merely the facts of obtaining the advances, the promise to do the work, and a breach of that promise, are insufficient to sustain a conviction. State v. Griffin, 154 N. C. 611, 70 S. E. 292; State v. Islay, 164 N. C. 491, 79 S. E. 1105.

No Day of Grace.—Where, upon a promise to begin work on the following Monday, the prosecutor made advances to the defendant, and the latter failed, without proper excuse, to begin work at the time stipulated, and was arrested on complaint of prosecutor on Tuesday: Held, to be a failure to begin work within the meaning of the statute. State v. Norman, 110 N. C. 484, 14 S. E. 968.

§ 14-105. Obtaining advances under written promise to pay therefor out of designated property.—If any person shall obtain any advances in money, provisions, goods, wares or merchandise of any description from any other person or corporation, upon any written representation that the person making the same is the owner of any article of produce, or of any other specific chattel or personal property, which property, or the proceeds of which the owner in such representation thereby agrees to apply to the discharge of the debt so created, and the owner shall fail to apply such produce or other property, or the proceeds thereof, in accordance with such agreement, or shall dispose of the same in any other manner than is so agreed upon by the parties to the transaction, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether he shall or shall not have been the owner of any such property at the time such representation was made. (Rev., s. 3434; Code, s. 1027; 1879, cc. 185, 186; 1905, c. 104; C. S. 4282.)

Constitutional.—It is not the failure to pay the debt which is made indictable, but the failure to apply certain property, which, in writing, has been pledged for its payment, and advances made on the faith of such pledge; on this ground it is declared constitutional. State v. Torrence, 127 N. C. 550, 553, 37 S. E. 268; State v. Mooney, 173 N. C. 798, 92 S. E. 610.

Representations Must Be of Existing Facts.—An indictment for obtaining goods under a false pretense, must be founded on a false representation by the defendant of an existing fact, and the pledging of a check to be received at a subsequent date does not come within the meaning of the section. State v. Whidbee, 124 N. C. 796, 32 S. E. 318.

Indictment Should Charge Exact Terms.—The indictment should charge in the exact terms of the statute, and on failure to follow the statute it is subject to being quashed. State v. Mooney, 173 N. C. 798, 92 S. E. 610.

Compared with Section 14-114.—This section is on the same footing as section 14-114 for disposing of mortgaged property. It is not the failure to pay the debt which is made indictable, but the fraud in disposing of or withholding property which the owner has in writing agreed shall be applied in payment of advances made on the faith of such quasi mortgage, to one who has thus pro tanto become the owner thereof, and the subsequent conversion of said property, and diversion of the proceeds to the detriment of the equitable owner and in fraud of his rights. State v. Mooney, 173 N. C. 798, 799, 92 S. E. 610.

§ 14-106. Obtaining property in return for worthless check, draft or order.—Every person who, with intent to cheat and defraud another, shall obtain money, credit, goods, wares or any other thing of value by means of a check, draft or order of any kind upon any bank, person, firm or corporation, not indebted to the drawer, or where he has not provided for the payment or acceptance of the same, and the same be not paid upon presentation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. The giving of the aforesaid worthless check, draft, or order shall be prima facie evidence of an intent to cheat and defraud. (1907, c. 975; 1909, c. 647; C. S. 4283.)

Local Modification.—New Hanover: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 636.

Cross Reference.—As to false warehouse receipts, see § 27-54 et seq.

It is a misdemeanor for any person knowingly to utter a worthless check in this state and such act involves moral turpitude under this section if done with intent to defraud. Oats v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 205 N. C. 14, 169 S. E. 869.

Intent to Cheat or Defraud.—In order to convict a defendant under the provisions of this section for obtaining property in return for a worthless check, the indictment must sufficiently charge an intent to cheat or defraud or that the defendant obtained a thing of value. State v. Horton, 199 N. C. 771, 155 S. E. 866.

Signing in Name of Company.—Upon the trial under indictment for violating this section, the evidence tended to show that the check in question was signed in the name of a certain company by the defendant, and was conflicting as to whether the defendant was a member of the concern. It was held, that the question as to whether the defendant was a member of the company when he drew the check in question was not necessarily decisive of his guilt, and an instruction to find him guilty if the jury should find from the evidence he was not a partner, was reversible error. State v. Anderson, 194 N. C. 377, 139 S. E. 701.

Same—Burden of Proof.—The burden of proving the guilt of defendant in violating this section, the worthless check statute, is on the State, and where the check in question has been signed by him in the name of a certain firm and there is evidence tending to show that other checks similarly signed had been paid, with further evidence that defendant's authority to sign such checks had been revoked, the burden of proving defendant's guilt is on the State, and raises the question as to the defendant's good faith for the jury to determine. State v. Anderson, 194 N. C. 377, 139 S. E. 701.

§ 14-107. Worthless checks.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, to draw, make, utter or issue and deliver to another, any check or draft on any bank or depository, for the payment of money or its equivalent, knowing at the time of the making, drawing, uttering, issuing and delivering such check or draft as aforesaid, that the maker or drawer thereof has not sufficient funds on deposit in or credit with such bank or depository with which to pay the same upon presentation.

Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [If the amount due on such check is not over fifty dollars, the punishment shall not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days.]

The word "credit" as used herein shall be construed to mean an arrangement or understanding with the bank or depository for the payment of any such check or draft. The part of this section in brackets shall only apply to Pitt county, Robeson county, Iredell county, Martin county, Lee county, Rutherford county, Bladen county, Cumberland county, Mecklenburg county, Catawba county, Sampson county, Alleghany county, Lenoir county, Randolph county, Gaston county, Hoke county, Madison county, Burke county, Transylvania county, Rockingham county, Halifax county, Hertford county, Richmond county, Chatham county, Pamlico county, Wake county, Haywood county, Granville county, Davidson county, Anson county, Carteret county, Davie county, Forsyth county, Greene county, Jackson county, Henderson county, Stokes county, Onslow county, Macon county, Currituck county, Chowan county, Vance county, Edgecombe county, Northampton county, Stanly county, Cabarrus county, Mitchell county, Yancey county, Avery county, Alamance county, Franklin county, Yadkin county, Caldwell county, Gates county, Ashe county, Washington county, Nash county, Johnston county, Duplin county, Wayne county, Guilford county, Rowan county, Bertie county, Moore county, Harnett county, Columbus county, Watauga county, Lincoln county, Caswell county, Orange county, Buncombe county, Wilkes county, Hyde county, Swain county, Clay county, Graham county, Cherokee county, Scotland county, Union county, and Surry county. (1925, c. 14; 1927, c. 62; 1929, c. 273, ss. 1, 2; 1931, cc. 63, 138; 1933, cc. 43, 64, 93, 170, 265, 362, 458; 1939, c. 346.)

Local Modification.—For an act amending an Act that was never passed by the legislature, and applying only to Durham County, see Public Laws 1931, c. 292.

Cross Reference.—See annotation to § 14-106.

Editor's Note.—The part of this section appearing in brackets in the second paragraph, and some of the counties to which applicable, were added by the Act of 1929. The Acts of 1931, 1933 and 1939 added other counties.

As pointed out in the Article in 3 N. C. Law Rev.

141, the giving of worthless checks was first regulated in this state by the Acts of 1907, and 1909. Those acts are partly quoted and the elements of the crime analysed in the article. It was pointed out that although not expressly stated a logical interpretation discloses that under those acts the checks must have been given for present value and it was held that the freight for a car load of lumber was a present value within the section. (See State v. Freeman, 172 N. C. 925, 90 S. E. 507.)

In 1925 the legislature passed a new bad check law which left out the element of intent to defraud, etc., so that under it the giving of a check with insufficient funds was a crime. The elements of the crime under that law are outlined by Mr. Justice Adams in State v. Edwards, 190 N. C. 322, 130 S. E. 10, and repeated in the Law Review Article. It was also pointed out that the indictment must have charged both "insufficient funds" and "insufficient credits" to charge a violation. The question of the constitutionality of this act was raised both in the article previously cited and in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 75, where the position was taken that the law was violative of the constitution, Art. I, section 16, as permitting the imprisonment for debt.

Subsequently the legislature at the 1927 session repealed the act and passed the present section which cures the defect pointed out in the Law Review, and it has been upheld by the supreme court. See State v. Yarbboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

It would seem that this section does not require that the check be given for present value. The essence of the crime seems to be the giving of a check for the payment of money or its equivalent knowing that there are insufficient funds or credit with which to pay upon presentation whether for a pre-existing debt or for present value. See State v. Yarbboro, 194 N. C. 498, 504, 140 S. E. 216.

It is also apparent that this section does not require an actual intent to cheat or defraud. This element is presumed, no doubt, from the knowledge of lack of funds.

The prior laws contain a provision allowing the drawer 10 days within which to make the check good; the present law contains no such provision.

Under the prior laws which made intent to cheat or defraud an element of the crime, the uttering of the check raised a prima facie presumption of such intent and this cast the burden upon the defense of disproving the element. This section contains no such provision and the burden of proving the knowledge of lack of funds is upon the state, it would seem.

For a general note on the subject, see XIV Va. Law Rev. 134; as to applicability of Virginia Statute to post-dated checks, see XIV Va. Law Rev. 145.

Public Detriment.—The gravamen of the offense prescribed by this section is the putting into circulation worthless commercial paper to the public detriment, and not that of the individual payee. State v. Levy, 220 N. C. 812, 18 S. E. (2d) 355.

Postdated Check.—A postdated check given for a past due account and so accepted is not a representation importing a criminal liability if untrue that comes within the intent and meaning of the "bad check law," making it a misdemeanor for a person to issue and deliver to another any check on any bank or depository for the payment of money or its equivalent knowing at the time that he has not sufficient funds on deposit or credit with the bank or depository for its payment. State v. Crawford, 198 N. C. 522, 152 S. E. 504.

Indictment—Necessity of Charging All Elements.—In order to charge a statutory offense (the giving of a bad check), the indictment should set forth all the essential requisites therein prescribed, and no element should be left to inference or implication, and where the indictment is defective a demurrer is good. State v. Edwards, 190 N. C. 322, 130 S. E. 10.

Issuance as Fraud.—The issuance of a check on a bank in violation of this law is a false representation of subsisting facts that the maker has on deposit sufficient funds for its payment at the bank, upon its presentation, or that he has made the necessary arrangements with the bank therefor, and is in effect a fraud upon the payee, the payee accepting it in good faith. State v. Yarbboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216. See dissenting opinion.

Fatal Variance in Allegata and Probata.—An indictment charging the defendant with obtaining money on a day named by the issuance of a worthless check in violation of our statute, and evidence that it was given for the hire of an automobile, ten days later, are at fatal variance, and will not support a conviction. State v. Corpening, 191 N. C. 751, 133 S. E. 14.

The indictment charged that defendant issued a worthless check knowing at the time that he did not have sufficient funds or credit for its payment. The proof was that defendant issued a check of a corporation of which he was an executive officer, and that the corporation did not have sufficient funds or credit for its payment. There is a fatal variance between allegation and proof, and defendant's motion to nonsuit should have been allowed. State v. Dowless, 217 N. C. 589, 9 S. E. (2d) 18.

Waiver of Right to Trial by Jury.—Where the defendant in a criminal action enters the plea of "not guilty," the requirement of our State Constitution, Art. 1, § 13, of trial by jury may not be waived by the accused nor another method substituted by agreement, and where a defendant is indicted for violating the statute commonly known as the "bad check law," an agreement between the State and the accused that the judge may find the facts under a plea of "not guilty," will be disregarded on appeal and the case remanded to be tried according to law. State v. Crawford, 197 N. C. 513, 149 S. E. 729.

Instruction held proper. State v. Levy, 220 N. C. 812, 18 S. E. (2d) 355.

Sentence.—Upon defendant's conviction upon two warrants charging the issuance of worthless checks, a sentence of two years imprisonment on the first warrant and one year imprisonment on the second, the sentences to run consecutively, cannot be held excessive, cruel or unusual, since the sentences were within the limits prescribed by this section. State v. Levy, 220 N. C. 812, 18 S. E. (2d) 355.

§ 14-108. Obtaining property or services from slot machines, etc., by false coins or tokens.—Any person who shall operate, or cause to be operated, or who shall attempt to operate, or attempt to cause to be operated any automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other receptacle designed to receive lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, by means of a slug or any false, counterfeited, mutilated, sweated or foreign coin, or by any means, method, trick or device whatsoever not lawfully authorized by the owner, lessee or licensee of such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle, or who shall take, obtain or receive from or in connection with any automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other receptacle designed to receive lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, any goods, wares, merchandise, gas, electric current, article of value, or the use or enjoyment of any telephone or telegraph facilities or service, or of any musical instrument, phonograph or other property, without depositing in and surrendering to such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle lawful coin of the United States of America to the amount required therefor by the owner, lessee or licensee of such machine, coin-box telephone or receptacle, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or in the discretion of the court, by both. (1927, c. 68, s. 1.)

§ 14-109. Manufacture, sale, or gift of devices for cheating slot machines, etc.—Any person who, with intent to cheat or defraud the owner, lessee, licensee or other person entitled to the contents of any automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other receptacle, depository or contrivance designed to receive lawful coin of the United States of America in connection with the sale, use or enjoyment of property or service, or who, knowing that the same is intended for unlawful use, shall manufacture for sale, or sell or give away any slug, device or substance whatsoever intended or calculated to be placed or deposited in any such automatic vending machine, slot machine, coin-box telephone or other such receptacle, depository or contrivance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or in the discretion of the court, by both. (1927, c. 68, s. 2.)

§ 14-110. Obtaining entertainment at hotels and boarding-houses without paying therefor.—Any person who obtains any lodging, food or accommodation at an inn, boarding-house or lodging-house without paying therefor, with intent to defraud the proprietor or manager thereof, or who obtains credit at an inn, boarding-house or lodging-house by the use of any false pretense, or who, after obtaining credit or accommodation at an inn, boarding-house or lodging-house, absconds and surreptitiously removes his baggage therefrom without paying for his food, accommodation or lodging, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall upon conviction be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1907, c. 816; C. S. 4284.)

Local Modification.—Pitt: 1929, c. 103; Martin, Wake, Watauga: 1931, c. 9; Buncombe, Jackson, Franklin: 1933, c. 531; Lee: 1937, c. 168; Rockingham: 1939, c. 53.

Cross Reference.—As to liens on baggage, see § 44-30 et seq.

Constitutionality.—The misdemeanor prescribed by this section expressly applies, when the contract has been made with a fraudulent intent, and this intent also exists in surreptitiously absconding and removing baggage without having paid the bill, and this statute is not inhibited by Article I, section 16, of the State Constitution, as to imprisonment for the mere nonpayment of a debt, either in a civil action or by indictment. State v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 703, 122 S. E. 753.

Boarding House Defined.—One who has not been licensed to keep a boarding house, and who does not hold his place out as such, but who has received a boarder in his home, for pay, is not the keeper of a boarding house. State v. McRae, 170 N. C. 712, 86 S. E. 1039.

Evidence Insufficient for Conviction.—In order to convict under the provisions of this section, it is necessary for the State to show the fraudulent intent of the one who has failed or refused to pay for his lodging or food at an inn, boarding house, etc., or the like intent as to his surreptitiously leaving with his baggage without having paid his bill; and evidence tending only to show his inability to pay, under the circumstances, but his arrangement with the keeper of the inn or boarding house to pay in a certain way and within a fixed period after leaving, and his payment in part, and that his wife, remaining longer than he, thereafter took away his baggage without his knowledge or participation therein, and in the separation following he received no benefit therefrom, is insufficient for a conviction of the statutory offense. State v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 703, 122 S. E. 753.

Evidence Sufficient to Convict.—Where there is evidence that one having received accommodation at a hotel left with his baggage without notice to the proprietor, and without having paid his bill, it is sufficient to convict under this section, the question of intent being for the jury. State v. Hill, 166 N. C. 298, 81 S. E. 408.

§ 14-111. Fraudulently obtaining credit at hospitals and sanatoriums.—Any person who obtains accommodation at any public or private hospital or sanatorium without paying therefor, with intent to defraud the said hospital or sanatorium, or who obtains credit at such hospital or sanatorium by the use of any false pretense, or who, after obtaining credit or accommodation at a hospital or sanatorium, absconds and surreptitiously removes his baggage therefrom without paying for the accommodation or credit, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1931, c. 214.)

§ 14-112. Obtaining merchandise on approval.—If any person, with intent to cheat and defraud, shall solicit and obtain from any merchant any article of merchandise on approval, and shall thereafter, upon demand, refuse or fail to return the same to such merchant in an unused and undamaged condition, or to pay for the same, such person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Evidence that a person has solicited a merchant to deliver to him any article of merchandise for examination or approval and has obtained the same upon such solicitation, and thereafter, upon demand, has refused or failed to return the same to such merchant in an unused and undamaged condition, or to pay for the same, shall constitute prima facie evidence of the intent of such person to cheat and defraud, within the meaning of this section: Provided, this section shall not apply to merchandise sold upon a written contract which is signed by the purchaser. (1911, c. 185; 1941, c. 242; C. S. 4285.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the word "merchandise" for the words "wearing apparel" formerly appearing in this section. It also added the proviso at the end of the section.

§ 14-113. Obtaining money by false representation of physical defect.—It shall be unlawful for any person to falsely represent himself or herself in any manner whatsoever as blind, deaf, dumb, or crippled or otherwise physically defective for the purpose of obtaining money or other thing of value or of making sales of any character of personal property. Any person so falsely representing himself or herself as blind, deaf, dumb, crippled or otherwise physically defective, and securing aid or assistance on account of such representation, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 104; C. S. 4286.)

Art. 20. Frauds.

§ 14-114. Fraudulent disposal of mortgaged personal property.—If any person, after executing a chattel mortgage, deed of trust or other lien for a lawful purpose, shall make any disposition of any personal property embraced in such mortgage, deed of trust or lien, with intent to hinder, delay or defeat the rights of any person to whom or for whose benefit such deed was made, every person so offending and every person with a knowledge of the lien buying the property embraced in any such deed or lien, and every person assisting, aiding or abetting the unlawful disposition of such property, with intent to hinder, delay or defeat the rights of any person to whom or for whose benefit any such deed or lien was made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. In all indictments for violations of the provisions of this section it shall not be necessary to allege or prove the person to whom any sale or disposition of the property was made, but proof of the possession of the property embraced in such chattel mortgage, deed of trust or lien, by the grantor thereof, after the execution of said chattel mortgage, deed of trust, or lien, and while it is in force, the further proof of the fact that the sheriff or other officer charged with the execution of process cannot after due diligence find such property under process directed to him for his seizure, for the satisfaction of such chattel mortgage, deed of trust or lien, or that the mortgagee demanded the possession thereof of the mortgagor for the purpose of sale to foreclose said mortgage, deed of trust or lien, after the right to such foreclosure had accrued, and that the mortgagor failed to produce, deliver or surrender the same to the mortgagee for that purpose, shall be prima facie proof of the fact of the disposition or sale of such property, by the grantor, with the intent to hinder, delay or defeat the rights of the person to whom said chattel mortgage, deed of trust or lien was made. (Rev., s. 3435; Code, s. 1059; 1887, c. 14; 1873-4, c. 31; 1874-5, c. 215; 1883, c. 61; C. S. 4287.)

Cross Reference.—As to fraudulent conveyances, see § 39-15 et seq.

Three Classes of Offenders.—The statute is directed against three classes of offenders: (1) The maker of the lien who shall dispose of the property with the unlawful intent; (2) those who buy with a knowledge of the lien, and (3) those who aid or abet either the maker or purchaser in the unlawful acts. State v. Woods, 104 N. C. 898, 10 S. E. 555.

Intent Necessary.—Under this section the forbidden act must, in order to be indictable, be accomplished with a specific intent, and the courts cannot disregard this clearly expressed purpose of the Legislature. State v. Manning, 107 N. C. 910, 911, 12 S. E. 248. The actual sale of mortgaged crops raises a presumption of fraudulent intent. State v. Holmes, 120 N. C. 573, 26 S. E. 692. In a trial under this section the burden is upon the defendant to disprove the criminal intent. State v. Surles, 117 N. C. 720, 23 S. E. 324; State v. Holmes, 120 N. C. 573, 26 S. E. 692.

Result of Sale Must Injure.—If the property included in the mortgage (other than that disposed of), was abundantly sufficient and available to pay the indebtedness, there could be no such prejudicial result as is contemplated by the statute. State v. Manning, 107 N. C. 910, 912, 12 S. E. 248.

Justice Jurisdiction.—Under the original acts justices of the peace have exclusive jurisdiction of the offense of fraudulently disposing of personal property embraced in a chattel mortgage. State v. Jones, 83 N. C. 657.

Infant's Liability.—An indictment under this section for disposing of crops under mortgage cannot be sustained, where it appears that the defendant is an infant. The alleged disposition was a disaffirmance of the contract and renders it void. State v. Howard, 88 N. C. 651.

Indictment Must Charge Maker, Buyer or Assistant.—If the indictment does not charge the defendant as the maker of the lien nor the buyer of the property with knowledge of it, nor as assisting, aiding or abetting in the unlawful disposition of the property no offense is charged. State v. Woods, 104 N. C. 898, 900, 10 S. E. 555.

Indictment Must Charge Lien and Manner of Sale.—An indictment for disposing of mortgaged property is fatally defective, if it fails to set forth that the lien was in force at the time of sale, the party to whom sold, and the manner of disposition. State v. Burns, 80 N. C. 376; State v. Pickens, 79 N. C. 652.

Indictment in Two Counts.—Where an indictment for disposing of mortgaged property contained two counts, one alleging a disposal with intent to defraud G., "business manager" of an association, and the other a disposal with intent to defraud G., "business manager and agent" of such association, the counts are not repugnant to each other, since they relate to one transaction, varied only to meet the probable proof, and the court will neither quash the bill nor force the State to elect on which count it will proceed. State v. Surles, 117 N. C. 720, 721, 23 S. E. 324.

Prior Lien as Defense.—It is competent for the defendant, in an indictment for unlawfully disposing of mortgaged property—a crop of tobacco—to show that he, in good faith, applied the entire crop to the discharge of his landlord's lien. State v. Ellington, 98 N. C. 749, 4 S. E. 534.

Evidence of Other Sales Inadmissible.—On a trial of one charged with unlawfully disposing of an article of personal property covered by a chattel mortgage, with intent to defeat the right of the mortgagee, evidence that, five months after the offense was committed, the defendant offered to dispose of another article covered by the same mortgage is inadmissible to prove the intent with which the offense was committed. State v. Jeffries, 117 N. C. 727, 23 S. E. 163.

Cited in State v. Barrett, 138 N. C. 630, 635, 50 S. E. 506; State v. Torrence, 127 N. C. 550, 553, 37 S. E. 268.

§ 14-115. Secreting property to hinder enforcement of lien.—Any person removing, exchanging or secreting any personal property on which a lien exists, with intent to prevent or hinder the enforcement of the lien, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3436; 1887, c. 14; C. S. 4288.)

Local Modification.—Pitt: 1941, c. 284.

§ 14-116. Fraudulent entry of horses at fairs.—If any person shall knowingly enter or cause to be entered in competition for any purse, prize, premium, stake or sweepstake offered or given by any agricultural or other society, association or person in this state, any horse, mare, gelding, colt or filly under an assumed name or out of its proper class, he shall be punished by a fine not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than one nor more than five years, or by both fine and imprisonment, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3429; 1893, c. 387; C. S. 4289.)

§ 14-117. Fraudulent and deceptive advertising.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or association, with intent to sell or in anywise to dispose of merchandise, securities, service or any other thing offered by such person, firm, corporation or association, directly or indirectly, to the public for sale or distribution, or with intent to increase the consumption thereof, or to induce the public in any manner to enter into any obligation relating thereto, or to acquire title thereto, or an interest therein, to make public, disseminate, circulate or place before the public or cause directly or indirectly to be made, published, disseminated, circulated or placed before the public in this state, in a newspaper or other publication, or in the form of a book, notice, handbill, poster, bill circular, pamphlet or letter, or in any other way, an advertisement of any sort regarding merchandise, securities, service or any other thing so offered to the public, which advertisement contains any assertion, representation or statement of fact which is untrue, deceptive or misleading: Provided, that such advertising shall be done willfully and with intent to mislead. Any person who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1915, c. 218; C. S. 4290.)

§ 14-118. Blackmailing.—If any person shall knowingly send or deliver any letter or writing demanding of any other person, with menaces and without any reasonable or probable cause, any chattel, money or valuable security; or if any person shall accuse, or threaten to accuse, or shall knowingly send or deliver any letter or writing accusing or threatening to accuse any other person of any crime punishable by law with death or by imprisonment in the state's prison, with the intent to extort or gain from such person any chattel, money or valuable security, every such offender shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3428; Code, s. 989; R. C., c. 34, s. 110; C. S. 4291.)

Indictment.—Where the offence charged was the sending of a letter, under this section, and the letter was set out in the indictment, from which it is deducible by necessary implication that the defendant threatened to indict the prosecutor for an offence punishable by imprisonment in the penitentiary, with a view and intent to extort money a criminal offence is sufficiently charged. State v. Harper, 94 N. C. 936.

Circumstantial Evidence.—Letters demanding a sum of money from the prosecutor, the first requiring that he drop the amount along the road at a certain place at a designated time and at a certain signal, followed by the burning of the prosecutor's barn on his failing to comply; and the second one referring to this fact and making the same demand, and the apprehension of the defendant at the place at the time appointed, as he appeared after the signals were given, though circumstantial evidence, is adjudged sufficient under an indictment for blackmailing to sustain a conviction. State v. Frady, 172 N. C. 978, 90 S. E. 802.

Art. 21. Forgery.

§ 14-119. Forgery of bank-notes, checks and other securities.—If any person shall falsely make, forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure the same to be done, or willingly aid or assist therein, any bill or note in imitation of, or purporting to be, a bill or note of any incorporated bank in this state, or in any of the United States, or in any of the territories of the United States; or any order or check on any such bank or corporation, or on the cashier thereof; or any of the securities purporting to be issued by or on behalf of the state, or by or on behalf of any corporation, with intent to injure or defraud any person, bank or corporation, or the state, the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years, or by a fine in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3419; Code, s. 1030; R. C., c. 34, s. 60; 1819, c. 994, s. 1; C. S. 4293.)

Cross Reference.—As to alleging intent in the indictment, see § 15-151.

Elements of Offense.—To constitute an indictable forgery, it is not alone sufficient that there be a writing, and that the writing be false: it must also be such as, if true, would be of some legal efficacy, real or apparent, since otherwise it has no legal tendency to defraud. 2 Bishop Cr. Law, sec. 533; Barnes v. Crawford, 115 N. C. 76, 79, 20 S. E. 386. While an intent to defraud is an essential element of forgery, it is not essential that any person be actually defrauded, or that any act be done other than the fraudulent making, or altering of the instrument. State v. Hall, 108 N. C. 776, 13 S. E. 189; State v. Cross, 101 N. C. 770, 7 S. E. 715.

Indictment Must Allege Existence of Bank.—In an indictment under this section to punish the making, passing, etc., of counterfeit bank notes, if the note alleged to have been passed be of a bank not within the State, the indictment should aver that such a bank exists as that by which the counterfeit note purports to have been issued. State v. Twitty, 9 N. C. 248.

Evidence of Former Acts.—Upon an indictment for uttering forged money, knowing it to be forged, evidence may be received of former acts and transactions which tend to bring home the scienter to the defendant, notwithstanding such evidence may fix upon him other charges beside that on which he is tried. State v. Twitty, 9 N. C. 248.

Cited in State v. Peter, 53 N. C. 19, 23.

§ 14-120. Uttering forged paper.—If any person, directly or indirectly, whether for the sake of gain or with intent to defraud or injure any other person, shall utter or publish any such false, forged or counterfeited bill, note, order, check or security as is mentioned in the preceding section; or shall pass or deliver, or attempt to pass or deliver, any of them to another person (knowing the same to be falsely forged or counterfeited), the person so offending shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3427; Code, s. 1031; R. C., c. 34, s. 61; 1819, c. 994, s. 2; 1909, c. 666; C. S. 4294.)

Cross Reference.—As to payment of a forged check, see § 53-52.

Delivering to Agent.—"It is putting spurious paper into circulation, and not defrauding the individual who takes it, that the statute has in view. Hence, upon a similar statute, it was held, that delivering a forged note to an agent, that he might dispose of it in buying goods, was a passing within the act. Palmer's case, R. and R. 72." State v. Harris, 27 N. C. 287, 293.

Cited in dissenting opinion State v. Jarvis, 129 N. C. 598, 40 S. E. 220.

§ 14-121. Selling of certain forged securities.—If any person shall sell, by delivery, indorsement or otherwise, to any other person, any judgment for the recovery of money purporting to have been rendered by a justice of the peace, or any bond, promissory note, bill of exchange, order, draft or liquidated account purporting to be signed by the debtor (knowing the same to be forged), the person so offending shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3425; Code, s. 1033; R. C., c. 34, s. 63; C. S. 4295.)

§ 14-122. Forgery of deeds, wills and certain other instruments.—If any person, of his own head and imagination, or by false conspiracy or fraud with others, shall wittingly and falsely forge and make, or shall cause or wittingly assent to the forging or making of, or shall show forth in evidence, knowing the same to be forged, any deed, lease or will, or any bond, writing obligatory, bill of exchange, promissory note, endorsement or assignment thereof; or any acquittance or receipt for money or goods; or any receipt or release for any bond, note, bill or any other security for the payment of money; or any order for the payment of money or delivery of goods, with intent, in any of said instances, to defraud any person or corporation, and thereof shall be duly convicted, the person so offending shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, or fined in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3424; Code, s. 1029; R. C., c. 34, s. 59; 1801, c. 572; 5 Eliz., c. 14, ss. 2, 3; 21 James I, c. 26; C. S. 4296.)

General Considerations.—Differing from false pretenses it is not an element of this offence that the forgery was "calculated to deceive and did deceive," intent alone suffices to constitute the crime. State v. Collins, 115 N. C. 716, 20 S. E. 452; State v. Hall, 108 N. C. 776, 138 S. E. 189. It is immaterial to whom the advantages of the forgery would accrue. State v. Cross, 101 N. C. 770, 7 S. E. 715.

An instrument in writing on which forgery can be predicated is one which, if genuine, could operate as the foundation of another man's liability, or the evidence of his rights, such as a letter of recommendation of a person as a man of property and pecuniary responsibility, an order for the delivery of goods, a receipt, or a railroad pass, as well as a bill of exchange, or other express contract. 3 Greenleaf Ev., 103. Barnes v. Crawford, 115 N. C. 76, 78, 20 S. E. 386.

To constitute an "order for the delivery of goods," a forgery within the meaning of this section, there must appear to be a drawer, a person drawn upon, who is under obligation to obey, and there must appear to be a person to whom the goods are to be delivered, and if the paper-writing set forth in the indictment as a forgery does not contain these requisites, there cannot be a conviction for forgery under this section, State v. Lamb, 65 N. C. 419; but in such case a conviction will be sustained for the offense at common law. State v. Leak, 80 N. C. 403, cited in note in 32 L. R. A., N. S., 331.

Possession Raises Presumption of Guilt.—One possessing a forged instrument is presumed to have either forged it or consented to the forgery, and nothing else appearing such holder will be presumed guilty. State v. Peterson, 129 N. C. 556, 40 S. E. 9.

"In State v. Britt, 14 N. C. 122, Ruffin, J., says: 'That the order was not in the handwriting of the defendant did not rebut the legal presumption of his guilt. Being in possession of the forged order, drawn in his own favor, were facts constituting complete proof that, either by himself or by false conspiracy with others, he forged or assented to the forgery of the instrument; that he either did the act or caused it to be done until he showed the actual perpetrator and that he himself was not privy.' To the same effect is State v. Morgan, 19 N. C. 348. It is wholly immaterial whether the defendant himself forged the order or procured and caused it to be done. In either case his guilt is the same." State v. Lane, 80 N. C. 407, 408.

Lost Instruments.—If the forged instrument is lost it is not necessary to set it out in the indictment, and the substance of the forged instrument is all that need be charged, though in such case it would be better practice to aver the loss. State v. Peterson, 129 N. C. 556, 40 S. E. 9.

Misspelled Signature.—An indictment lies for forgery of an order for the payment of money, although the signature is misspelled, State v. Covington, 94 N. C. 913, cited in notes in 24 L. R. A. 33, 27 L. R. A., N. S., 1004; or the names of a firm are in reverse order if it is clear who the parties intended to be designated are. State v. Lane, 80 N. C. 407.

Falsely putting a witness' name to a bond not required to be attested by a subscribing witness does not affect the validity of the bond, and is not forgery. State v. Gherkin, 29 N. C. 206.

Erasure or Obliteration Not a Forgery.—Obliterating by erasure, or otherwise, a release or acquittance on the back of a bond or elsewhere, with the intent to defraud any person thereby, is not according to the law of North Carolina, a forgery. State v. Thornburg, 28 N. C. 79, cited in note in 54 L. R. A. 798.

Forgery of One of Two Names.—Where the alleged forged instrument has the names of two or more persons affixed, it is sufficient if one of them is proved to have been forged. State v. Cross, 101 N. C. 770, 7 S. E. 715.

Instrument Partly Printed and Partly in Writing.—An indictment for forging "a certain instrument in writing" is supported by proof of the forgery of an instrument partly printed and partly in writing. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 34 S. E. 439.

"Railroad Pass" Insufficiency of Description.—A description of the forged instrument as a "railroad pass" merely, is insufficient. The circumstances showing authority of the officer whose name is forged, and the obligation of the company to honor it, must be set out in the indictment. State v. Weaver, 94 N. C. 836, cited in note in 24 L. R. A. 43.

Cited in dissenting opinion State v. Jarvis, 129 N. C. 598, 40 S. E. 220.

§ 14-123. Forging names to petitions and uttering forged petitions.—If any person shall willfully sign, or cause to be signed, or willfully assent to the signing of the name of any person without his consent, or of any deceased or fictitious person, to any petition or recommendation with the intent of procuring any commutation of sentence, pardon or reprieve of any person convicted of any crime or offense, or for the purpose of procuring such pardon, reprieve or commutation to be refused or delayed by any public officer, or with the intent of procuring from any person whatsoever, either for himself or another, any appointment to office, or to any position of honor or trust, or with the intent to influence the official action of any public officer in the management, conduct or decision of any matter affecting the public, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, or imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court; and if any person shall willfully use any such paper for any of the purposes or intents above recited, knowing that any part of the signatures to such petition or recommendation has been signed thereto without the consent of the alleged signers, or that names of any dead or fictitious persons are signed thereto, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished in like manner. (Rev., s. 3426; Code, s. 1034; 1883, c. 275; C. S. 4297.)

§ 14-124. Forging certificate of corporate stock and uttering forged certificates.—If any officer or agent of a corporation shall, falsely and with a fraudulent purpose, make, with the intent that the same shall be issued and delivered to any other person by name or as holder or bearer thereof, any certificate or other writing, whereby it is certified or declared that such person, holder or bearer is entitled to or has an interest in the stock of such corporation, when in fact such person, holder or bearer is not so entitled, or is not entitled to the amount of stock in such certificate or writing specified; or if any officer or agent of such corporation, or other person, knowing such certificate or other writing to be false or untrue, shall transfer, assign or deliver the same to another person, for the sake of gain, or with the intent to defraud the corporation, or any member thereof, or such person to whom the same shall be transferred, assigned or delivered, the person so offending shall be imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3421; Code, s. 1032; R. C., c. 34, s. 62; C. S. 4298.)

§ 14-125. Forgery of bank-notes and other instruments by connecting genuine parts.—If any person shall fraudulently connect together different parts of two or more bank-notes, or other genuine instruments, in such a manner as to produce another note or instrument, with intent to pass all of them as genuine, the same shall be deemed a forgery, and the instrument so produced a forged note, or forged instrument, in like manner as if each of them had been falsely made or forged. (Rev., s. 3420; Code, s. 1037; R. C., c. 34, s. 66; C. S. 4299.)

SUBCHAPTER VI. CRIMINAL TRESPASS.

Art. 22. Trespasses to Land and Fixtures.

§ 14-126. Forcible entry and detainer.—No one shall make entry into any lands and tenements, or term for years, but in case where entry is given by law; and in such case, not with strong hand nor with multitude of people, but only in a peaceable and easy manner; and if any man do the contrary, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3670; Code, s. 1028; R. C., c. 49, s. 1; 5 Ric. II, c. 8; C. S. 4300.)

Cross Reference.—As to trespass after being forbidden, see § 14-134.

Force.—Actual force or appearances tending to inspire a just apprehension of violence is necessary to constitute the offense. 13 Am & Eng. Enc. (2 Ed.) 757. A forcible entry is not proved by evidence of a mere trespass; there must be proof of such force, or at least such show of force, as is calculated to prevent resistance. State v. Leary, 136 N. C. 578, 48 S. E. 570; State v. Davenport, 156 N. C. 596, 72 S. E. 7. So riding into the yard of a house occupied by a woman and remaining there cursing her constitutes force. State v. Davenport, supra. But where a person, in the absence of the prosecutor, merely unlocked and took off the lock put on by the prosecutor and put his own lock on, without breaking anything or doing any violence, and committed no violence upon the return of the prosecutor, he is not guilty of forcible entry and detainer. State v. Leary, supra.

Same—Title No Excuse.—The right or title to land cannot be vindicated with the bludgeon, but the party who claims the better title must, if it be denied or the actual possession of the land be refused, upon a lawful demand made for the same, resort to the peaceful methods and processes of the law for his redress and the recovery of his property. If, instead of pursuing this course, he elects to use violence, the law holds him criminally responsible for his act. State v. Webster, 121 N. C. 586, 28 S. E. 234, where it is said: "As forcible trespass is essentially an offense against the possession of another and does not depend upon the title, it is proper to exclude evidence of title in defendants on trial under an indictment for such offense." State v. Davenport, 156 N. C. 596, 602, 72 S. E. 7.

Original Entry Unlawful.—In order to convict of a misdemeanor under the provisions of this section it is not necessary that the act of going on the lands be unlawful, if the accused thereafter have in overpowering numbers cursed and abused the one in lawful possession, using threatening and abusive language. State v. Fleming, 194 N. C. 42, 138 S. E. 342.

Same—Title Not Invalid.—The offense of forcible trespass under this section, does not involve title to the premises, but is directed against the possession, and when the possession is in the prosecuting witness, and the entry is made in such a manner with such show of force, after being prohibited by the prosecuting witness, as tends to a breach of the peace, it is sufficient for conviction. State v. Earp, 196 N. C. 164, 144 S. E. 23.

Extent of Liability of Title Holder.—The court quoting from Reeder v. Purdy, 41 Ill. 279, says: "The reasoning upon which we rest our conclusion lies in the briefest compass, and is hardly more than a simple syllogism. The statute of forcible entry and detainer, not in terms, but by necessary construction, forbids a forcible entry, even by the owner, upon the actual possession of another. Such entry is, therefore, unlawful. If unlawful, it is a trespass, and an action for the trespass must necessarily lie. Although the occupant may maintain trespass against the owner for a forcible entry, yet he can only recover such damages as have directly accrued to him from injuries done to his person or property through the wrongful invasion of his possession, and such exemplary damages as the jury may (under proper instructions) think proper to give. But a person having no title to the premises clearly can not recover damages for any injury done to them by him who has the title." Mosseller v. Deaver, 106 N. C. 494, 497, 11 S. E. 529.

Actual Possession Necessary.—The essential element of the offense of forcible entry, that the lands, etc., must be in the actual possession of him whose possession is charged to have been interfered with. To constitute actual possession, there must be an actual exercise of authority and control over the land, either in person or by the family or servants of the person alleged to be in possession. He need not at all times be personally present on the premises. State v. Bryant, 103 N. C. 436, 9 S. E. 1. This element must be charged in the indictment. Id. It is a sufficient compliance with this rule to allege that the owner was "then and there in peaceable possession." State v. Eason, 70 N. C. 88, 91.

Right of Tenant of Sufferance.—Where the possession of the prosecutor in forcibly entry and detainer is only by sufferance, the prosecution cannot be sustained. State v. Leary, 136 N. C. 578, 48 S. E. 570.

No Accessories.—In misdemeanors there are no accessories, and those who were present in numbers, some armed with axes and others with guns, while one of their number caused the prosecutor's agents to abandon the locus in quo, were his aiders and abettors and equally guilty of forcible trespass. State v. Davenport, 156 N. C. 596, 72 S. E. 7.

Jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace.—The distribution of judicial powers by Art. IV of the Constitution is a virtual repeal of all laws giving jurisdiction to Justices of the Peace in case of forcible entry and detainer, except for the binding of trespassers to the Superior Court to answer a criminal charge. State v. Yarborough, 70 N. C. 250; Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Sharpe, 70 N. C. 509.

Entry under Void Warrant.—Where four or more men enter upon premises in the actual possession of another by virtue of a warrant and proceedings before a magistrate, which are a nullity, and eject such person and his family from the house they were occupying, they are guilty of a forcible trespass. State v. Yarborough, 70 N. C. 250; Atlantic, etc., R. Co. v. Johnston, 70 N. C. 348.

§ 14-127. Malicious injury to real property.—If any person shall maliciously commit any damage, injury or spoil upon any real property whatsoever, either of a public or private nature, for which no punishment is provided by any existing law, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein shall extend to any case where the party trespassing or doing the injury acted under a fair and reasonable belief that he had a right to do the act complained of, nor to any trespass, not being willful and malicious, committed in hunting, fishing or the pursuit of game. When the owner, or one of the owners, of an estate in possession shall complain of the injury before a justice of the peace of the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed before the regular term of the superior court next after the commission of the offense, and shall fail to state in his complaint that the damage exceeds ten dollars, the punishment, upon conviction of the offense, shall not exceed a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days. (Rev., s. 3677; Code, s. 1081; R. C., c. 34, s. 111; 1873-4, c. 176, s. 5; C. S. 4301.)

§ 14-128. Injury to trees, woods, crops, etc., near highway; depositing trash near highway.—Any person, not being on his own lands, or without the consent of the owner thereof, who shall, within one hundred yards of any State highways of North Carolina or within a like distance of any other public road or highway, willfully commit any damage, injury, or spoliation to or upon any tree, wood, underwood, timber, garden, crops, vegetables, plants, lands, springs, or any other matter or thing growing or being thereon, or who cuts, breaks, injures, or removes any tree, plant, or flower within such limits, or shall deposit any trash, debris, garbage, or litter within such limits, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction fined not exceeding fifty dollars ($50) or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to the officers, agents, and employees of the State Highway and Public Works Commission or county road authorities while in the discharge of their duties. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 54.)

Editor's Note.—It was said in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 25 that it is hoped that this section may prevent the laying waste of gardens, flowers, etc., by tourists who are not in the habit of regarding another's property rights and who usually leave trash and garbage at every place they stop to eat.

§ 14-129. Taking, etc., of certain wild plants from land of another.—No person, firm or corporation shall dig up, pull up or take from the land of another or from any public domain, the whole or any part of any trailing arbutus, American holly, white pine, red cedar, hemlock or other coniferous trees, or any flowering dogwood, any mountain laurel, any rhododendron, or any ground pine, or any Christmas greens, or any Judas tree, or any leucothea, or any azalea, without having in his possession a permit to dig up, pull up or take such plants, signed by the owner of such land, or by his duly authorized agent. Any person convicted of violating the provisions of this section shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the counties of Avery, Cabarrus, Carteret, Catawba, Cherokee, Chowan, Cumberland, Currituck, Dare, Duplin, Durham, Edgecombe, Franklin, Gaston, Granville, Hertford, McDowell, Mitchell, Pamlico,

Pender, Person, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Swain and Warren. (1941, c. 253.)

§ 14-130. Trespass on public lands.—If any person shall erect a building on any public lands before the same shall have been sold or granted by the state, or on any lands belonging to the state board of education before the same shall have been sold and conveyed by them, or cultivate or remove timber from any of such lands, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Moreover, the state board of education can recover from any person cutting timber on its land three times the value of the timber which is cut. When any person shall be in possession of any part of such land, it shall be the duty of the sheriff of the county in which the land is situated, and he is hereby required, to give notice in writing to such person, commanding him to depart therefrom forthwith; and if the person in possession, upon being so notified, shall not, within two weeks after the time of notice, remove therefrom, the sheriff is required to remove him immediately, and if necessary, he shall summon the power of the county to assist him in so doing. (Rev., s. 3746; Code, s. 1121; R. C., c. 34, s. 42; 1823, c. 1190; 1842, c. 36, s. 4; 1909, c. 891; C. S. 4302.)

Cited in Worth v. Commissioners, 118 N. C. 118, 125, 24 S. E. 778; Eastern Carolina Land, etc., Co. v. State Board, 101 N. C. 35, 7 S. E. 573.

§ 14-131. Trespass on land under option by the federal government.—On lands under option which have formally or informally been offered to and accepted by the North Carolina department of conservation and development by the acquiring federal agency and tentatively accepted by said department for administration as state forests, state parks, state game refuges or for other public purposes, it shall be unlawful to cut, dig, break, injure or remove any timber, lumber, firewood, trees, shrubs or other plants; or any fence, house, barn or other structure; or to pursue, trap, hunt or kill any bird or other wild animals or take fish from streams or lakes within the boundaries of such areas without the written consent of the local official of the United States having charge of the acquisition of such lands.

Any person, firm or corporation convicted of the violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of not more than fifty dollars or to imprisonment for not to exceed thirty days, or to both such fine and imprisonment.

The department of conservation and development through its legally appointed forestry, fish and game wardens is hereby authorized and empowered to assist the county law enforcement officers in the enforcement of this section. (1935, c. 317.)

§ 14-132. Disorderly conduct in and injuries to public buildings.—If any person shall make any rude or riotous noise or be guilty of any disorderly conduct in or near any of the public buildings of the state, or of any county or municipality, or shall write or scribble on, mark, deface, besmear, or injure the walls of any of the public buildings of the state or of any county or municipality, or any statue or monument, or shall do or commit any nuisance in or near any public building of the state or of any county or municipality, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The keeper of the capitol or any person in charge of any of such public buildings shall have authority to arrest summarily and without warrant for a violation of this section. The words "public buildings," as used in this section, shall include the grounds around such buildings. (Rev., s. 3742; Code, s. 2308; R. C., c. 103, ss. 7, 8; 1829, c. 29, ss. 1, 2; 1842, c. 47; 1915, c. 269; C. S. 4303.)

§ 14-133. Erecting artificial islands and lumps in public waters.—If any person shall erect artificial islands or lumps in any of the waters of the state east of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad running from Wilmington to Weldon by way of Burgaw, Warsaw, Goldsboro, Wilson, Rocky Mount, and Halifax (formerly the Wilmington and Weldon Railroad) and running from Weldon to the North Carolina-Virginia state boundary by way of Garysburg and Pleasant Hill (formerly the Petersburg and Weldon Railroad), he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3543; Code, s. 986; 1883, c. 109; C. S. 4304.)

§ 14-134. Trespass on land after being forbidden; license to look for estrays.—If any person after being forbidden to do so, shall go or enter upon the lands of another, without a license therefor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction, shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days: Provided, that if any person shall make a written affidavit before a justice of the peace of the county that any of his cattle or other livestock (which shall be specially described in such affidavit) have strayed away, and that he has good reason to believe that they are on the lands of a certain other person, then the justice may, in his discretion, allow the affiant to enter on the premises of such person with one or more servants, without firearms, in the daytime (Sunday excepted), between the hours of sunrise and sunset, and make search for his estrays for such limited time as to the justice shall appear reasonable. The only effect of such license shall be to protect the persons entering from indictment therefor, and the license shall have this effect only where it is made bona fide and the entry is effected without any damage except such as may be necessary to conduct the search. (Rev., s. 3688; Code, s. 1120; 1866, c. 60; C. S. 4305.)

Cross Reference.—As to forcible trespass, see § 14-126.

Entry under Claim of Right.—One who enters upon the land of another under a bona fide claim of right is guilty of no criminal offense. State v. Crosset, 81 N. C. 579. Mere belief of the claim is not sufficient, there must be proof of title or evidence of a reasonable belief of the existence of the right of entry. State v. Fisher, 109 N. C. 817, 13 S. E. 878; State v. Durham, 120 N. C. 546, 550, 28 S. E. 22. This bona fide claim of right must be passed on by a jury before defendant can be convicted. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 595, 55 S. E. 210. But the question will not be submitted as a mere abstraction; there must be evidence of a claim or of facts giving rise to a reasonable and bona fide claim. State v. Faggart, 170 N. C. 737, 740, 87 S. E. 31.

It must be noted that entry under a claim of right is a defense only in a criminal action, as ignorance of a trespasser will not exonerate him from civil liability. State v. Whitener, 93 N. C. 590, 593.

Land Sought to Be Condemned.—An indictment for willful trespass under this section will lie against an employee of a railroad company for an entry after being forbidden on land which the company is seeking to condemn, the entry being for the purpose of constructing the road and before an appraisal has been made, although a restraining order against such a trespass would be refused. State v. Wells, 142 N. C. 590, 55 S. E. 210.

Entry by Husband on Wife's Property.—A husband is not subject to the rule of this section, in regard to property of his wife, and although she may forbid him to enter he may enter nevertheless. State v. Jones, 132 N. C. 1043, 43 S. E. 939.

Entry as Servant.—Upon the trial under an indictment for trespass on lands after being forbidden, it is no defense to show that defendant acted under the instructions of his superior officer of a railroad company in entering upon the lands to construct a railroad. Evidence that such superior officer therein acted by the advice of counsel learned in the law is incompetent. State v. Mallard, 143 N. C. 666, 57 S. E. 351.

One who enters upon the land of another, after being forbidden, as the servant, and at the command of a bona fide claimant, is not guilty of any criminal offense. State v. Winslow, 95 N. C. 649.

Entry by Former Tenant to Gather Crops.—For a conviction under the provisions of this section for unlawful trespass on lands after being forbidden, it is not alone sufficient to show that the trespass had been forbidden, when there is evidence tending to show that the trespasser peacefully entered upon a claim of title, founded upon a reasonable belief that he had the right to go upon the lands; and a peremptory instruction to find the prisoner guilty upon the evidence is held as error, there being evidence that the trespasser had been a tenant upon the lands of the prosecutor, and had entered upon the lands to gather the crops he had sown and cultivated, after he had moved to another place with the intention to return for this purpose, believing he had the right, though forbidden to do so by the prosecutor. State v. Faggart, 170 N. C. 737, 87 S. E. 31.

Entry as Guest of Tenant.—One forbidden by the landlord to enter his land is not guilty under this section if he enters a part of the land in the possession of a tenant and as a guest of the tenant. State v. Lawson, 101 N. C. 717, 7 S. E. 905.

License to Enter Must Be Negated in Indictment.—In an indictment for entering on the land of another and taking therefrom turpentine, etc., it is necessary that a "license so to enter" should be distinctly negated as an essential part of the description of the offense. State v. Bullard, 72 N. C. 445.

An indictment in which it is charged that the defendant did unlawfully enter upon the premises of the prosecutors, he, the said defendant, having been forbidden to enter on said premises, and not having a license so to enter, etc., is sufficient. State v. Whitehurst, 70 N. C. 85.

Court Having Jurisdiction.—Justices of the peace have exclusive original jurisdiction of the offense under this section. State v. Dudley, 83 N. C. 660.

In State v. Presley, 72 N. C. 204, the rule at that time was held to be that Justices of the Peace and Superior Courts had concurrent jurisdiction and after six months the Superior Court had exclusive jurisdiction. In State v. Edney, 80 N. C. 360, the court held that because of the wording of the statute and Art. IV sec. 33 of the Constitution Justices of the Peace had no jurisdiction. These irregularities were removed by legislation, and State v. Dudley, supra construed this section as it was no doubt originally intended by the Legislature to be construed.

Warrant May Be Amended.—The Superior Court has power to amend, after verdict, a warrant brought by appeal of defendant from a Justice's court, charging defendant with going upon the land of another, after being forbidden to do so, so as to charge that the entry was "willful and unlawful," and to make the charge conclude, "against the peace and dignity of the State." State v. Smith, 103 N. C. 410, 9 S. E. 200.

Warrant with Affidavit Attached.—A warrant for trespass will not be quashed because it does not contain the necessary descriptive words of the alleged offense, when it refers to an "annexed affidavit" in which all the essential averments are made, as the reference to the affidavit makes it a part of the warrant. State v. Winslow, 95 N. C. 649.

Cited in State v. Connor, 142 N. C. 700, 708, 55 S. E. 787; State v. Holmes, 120 N. C. 573, 576, 26 S. E. 692.

§ 14-135. Cutting, injuring, or removing another's timber.—If any person, not being the bona fide owner thereof, shall knowingly and willfully cut down, injure or remove any standing, growing or fallen tree or log, the property of another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3687; 1889, c. 168; C. S. 4306.)

Local Modification.—Burke, Caldwell, Cherokee, McDowell,

Mitchell, Watauga, Wilkes, Yadkin: C. S. 4307, 4308; Duplin: 1929, c. 174.

§ 14-136. Setting fire to grass and brush lands and woodlands.—If any person shall intentionally set fire to any grass land, brush land or woodland, except it be his own property, or in that case without first giving notice to all persons owning or in charge of lands adjoining the land intended to be fired, and without also taking care to watch such fire while burning and to extinguish it before it shall reach any lands near to or adjoining the lands so fired, he shall for every such offense be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned for a period of not less than sixty days nor more than four months for the first offense, and for a second or any subsequent similar offense shall be imprisoned not less than four months nor more than one year. If wilful or malicious intent to damage the property of another shall be shown, said person shall be guilty of a felony, and shall, upon conviction, be punished by imprisonment in the state prison for not less than one nor more than five years. This section shall not prevent an action for the damages sustained by the owner of any property from such fires. For the purposes of this section, the term "woodland" is to be taken to include all forest areas, both timber and cut-over land, and all second-growth stands on areas that have at one time been cultivated. Any person who shall furnish to the state evidence sufficient for the conviction of a violation of this statute shall receive the sum of fifty dollars, to be taxed as part of the court costs. (Rev., s. 3346; Code, ss. 52, 53; R. C., c. 16, ss. 1, 2; 1777, c. 123, ss. 1, 2; 1915, c. 243, ss. 8, 11; 1919, c. 318; 1925, c. 61, s. 1; 1943, c. 661; C. S. 4309.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 301; Onslow: 1929, c. 185, 1939, c. 160.

Editor's Note.—By amendment of this section, Public Laws 1925 c. 61 sec. 1, the punishment was changed from "a fine not less than ten dollars or more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days" to "a fine not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisonment not less than sixty days nor more than four months for the first offence, and for subsequent similar offences imprisonment from four months to one year."

The sum provided for one furnishing state evidence was raised from twenty dollars to fifty dollars.

The 1943 amendment inserted the second sentence.

This section formerly provided only for setting fire to woodland, and one who let fire escape while burning other lands was not liable, under this section. Averitt v. Murrell, 49 N. C. 322, but was only liable for negligence. Cato v. Toler, 160 N. C. 104, 75 S. E. 929. In the case of Hall v. Crawford, 50 N. C. 3 it was held that "an old field which had turned out without any fence around it and which had grown up in broom sedge and pine brushes" came within the meaning of woodland. This case was pointed out in Achenback v. Johnston, 84 N. C. 264, as stretching the doctrine of liability too far. There it was held that a field grown up in grass and used as a pasture was not woodland. By Public Laws 1917 this section was made applicable to setting fire to grassland and bushland as well as woodland, so the prior constructions so strictly made in regard to firing woodland are no longer applicable as this section now seems to cover burning of any lands.

Care No Defense.—If one firing woods fails to give the statutory notice to adjoining owners and damages ensue, the cause of action is complete, no matter what degree of care may have been shown. Lamb v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534.

Waiver of Notice Bars Damages.—A waiver of notice is a sufficient answer to an action for damages caused to woodland by fire. Roberson v. Kirby, 52 N. C. 477; Lamb v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534. Waiver when made by a tenant in common while in possession is also a sufficient defense. See Stanland v. Rousk, 168 N. C. 568, 84 S. E. 845.

Waiver by Adjoining Owner No Bar to Penalty.—When an adjoining owner waives notice of the intended fire such waiver does not waive the penalty of this section, but is only a waiver of the land owner's right of action for damages to his land caused by the spreading of the fire. Lamb v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534.

Liability to One Not an Adjoining Owner.—The notice required by this section applies only to adjoining owners and one is not subject to the penalty for failure to give notice to one who is not an adjoining owner, but by the express terms of the statute there is a liability in damages for damages to "any property." See Robinson v. Morgan, 113 N. C. 991, 992, 24 S. E. 667.

Firing to Protect Property.—In the case of Lamb v. Sloan, 94 N. C. 534, it was held that if one set fire to his property to protect it he was not liable under the statute in force at that time which provided the act must be "wilfully." This section now provides that if the act is "intentionally" alone there is a liability. It would seem that this covers all except accidental fires.

No Evidence to Show Fire Started by Defendant.—Where the evidence tends only to show that the fire started on defendant's land and spread to the plaintiff's land, but that the defendant had ordered his employees not to set out a fire on account of the dry conditions, and there is neither direct nor circumstantial evidence tending to show the fire had been started either by the defendant or his employees under his authority, a judgment as of nonsuit is proper. Sutton v. Herrin, 202 N. C. 599, 163 S. E. 578.

Burning Off Railroad Right of Ways.—In case of Nizzell v. Bramming Mfg. Co., 158 N. C. 265, 73 S. E. 802, it was held under a prior statute, similar in some respects to this except that it did not provide against burning grassland and bushland, that the statute did not apply to railroad burning off their rights of way that were covered with grass and tree tops.

Action to Recover Penalty.—Action for a recovery of penalties provided for by this section may be brought before any justice of the peace where service can be had on the defendant. Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799.

§ 14-137. Wilfully or negligently setting fire to woods and fields.—If any person, firm or corporation shall wilfully or negligently set on fire, or cause to be set on fire, any woods, lands or fields, whatsoever, every such offender, upon conviction, shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. This section shall apply only in those counties under the protection of the state forest service in its work of forest fire control. It shall not apply in the case of a landowner firing, or causing to be fired, his own open, non-wooded lands, or fields in connection with farming or building operations at the time and in the manner now provided by law: Provided, he shall have confined the fire at his own expense to said open lands or fields. (1907, c. 320, ss. 4, 5; 1925, c. 61, s. 2; 1941, c. 258; C. S. 4310.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1941 amendment this section applied only to certain named counties.

Evidence that the county in which defendant negligently or wilfully started forest fires was in charge of the state forest service and that this section was applicable to the county, defendant having offered no evidence to the contrary, was sufficient to show a violation of the section. State v. Patton, 221 N. C. 117, 19 S. E. (2d) 142.

Cited in Lumber Co. v. Hayes, 157 N. C. 333, 72 N. C. 1078.

§ 14-138. Setting fire to woodlands and grass lands with campfires.—Any wagoner, hunter, camper or other person who shall kindle a campfire or shall authorize another to kindle such fire, unless all combustible material for the space of ten feet surrounding the place where such fire is kindled has been removed, or shall leave a campfire without fully extinguishing it, or who shall accidentally or negligently by the use of any torch, gun, match or other instrumentality, or in any manner whatever, start any fire upon any grass land, brush land or woodland without fully extinguishing the same, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. For the purposes of this section the term "woodland" is to be taken to include all forest areas, both timber and cut-over land, and all second-growth stands on areas that have at one time been cultivated. (Rev., s. 3347; Code, s. 54; 1885, c. 126; 1913, c. 8; 1915, c. 243, ss. 9, 11; C. S. 4311.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 301.

§ 14-139. Starting fires within five hundred feet of areas under protection of state forest service.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to start or cause to be started any fire or ignite any material in any of the areas of woodlands under the protection of the state forest service or within five hundred feet of any such protected area, between the first day of February and the first day of June, inclusive or between the first day of October and the thirtieth day of November, inclusive, in any year, without first obtaining from the state forester or one of his duly authorized agents a permit to set out fire or ignite any material in such above mentioned protected areas; no charge shall be made for the granting of said permits. This section shall not apply to any fires started or caused to be started within five hundred feet of a dwelling house. Any person, firm or corporation violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty (50) dollars, or imprisoned for a period of not more than thirty (30) days. (1937, c. 207; 1939, c. 120.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment changed the dates mentioned in this section, and the last sentence as to punishment.

§ 14-140. Certain fires to be guarded by watchman.—All persons, firms or corporations who shall burn any tar kiln or pit of charcoal, or set fire to or burn any brush, grass or other material, whereby any property may be endangered or destroyed, shall keep and maintain a careful and competent watchman in charge of such kiln, pit, brush or other material while burning. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not exceeding thirty days. Fire escaping from such kiln, pit, brush or other material while burning shall be prima facie evidence of neglect of these provisions. (1915, c. 243, s. 10; C. S. 4312.)

Local Modification.—Graham: Pub. Loc. 1933, c. 301.

§ 14-141. Burning or otherwise destroying crops in the field.—If any person shall willfully burn or destroy any other person's corn, cotton, wheat, barley, rye, oats, buckwheat, rice, tobacco, hay, straw, fodder, shucks or other provender in a stack, hill, rick or pen, or secured in any other way out of doors, or grass or sedge standing on the land, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison for not less than four months nor more than five years. (Rev., s. 3339; 1885, c. 42; 1874-5, c. 133; Code, s. 985, subsec. 2; C. S. 4313.)

Cross Reference.—As to arson, see § 14-58 et seq.

Out of Doors Defined.—One who burns cotton in a railroad car cannot be convicted under this section as the cotton is not out of doors. State v. Avery, 109 N. C. 798, 13

S. E. 931. Clark, J., dissents on the ground that it is merely secured out of doors and comes within the application of the statute.

Formerly Misdemeanor.—The burning provided in this section was at one time a misdemeanor. State v. Huskins, 126 N. C. 1070, 35 S. E. 608.

Indictment.—An indictment should charge a statutory crime in the words of the statute. Therefore an indictment charging setting fire to a lot of fodder without charging the burning, is defective. State v. Hall, 93 N. C. 571.

It is not necessary under this section to aver in the indictment that the stack burned was "out of doors." State v. Huskins, 126 N. C. 1070, 35 S. E. 608.

§ 14-142. Injuries to dams and water channels of mills and factories.—If any person shall cut away, destroy or otherwise injure any dam, or part thereof, or shall obstruct or damage any race, canal or other water channel erected, opened, used or constructed for the purpose of furnishing water for the operation of any mill, factory or machine works, or for the escape of water therefrom, he shall, upon conviction, be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3678; Code, s. 1087; 1866, c. 48; C. S. 4315.)

Obstruction Below Dam or Channel.—This section only applies to obstructions and damages to the dam or channel and an indictment cannot be had for obstructions below the dam or channel. State v. Tomlinson, 77 N. C. 528.

Cited in State v. Suttle, 115 N. C. 784, 20 S. E. 725.

§ 14-143. Taking unlawful possession of another's house.—If any person shall enter upon the lands of another and take possession of any house or other building thereon, without permission of the owner or his agent and without a bona fide claim of right or title so to enter and take possession, and shall fail or refuse to vacate such premises within ten days after being notified personally in writing to do so, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3685; 1893, c. 347; C. S. 4316.)

Local Modification.—Durham: 1929, c. 109.

Editor's Note.—See notes to section 14-134.

§ 14-144. Injuring houses, churches, fences and walls.—If any person shall, by any other means than burning or attempting to burn, unlawfully and willfully demolish, destroy, deface, injure or damage any of the houses or other buildings mentioned in this chapter in the article entitled Arson and Other Burnings; or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, demolish, pull down, destroy, deface, damage or injure any church, uninhabited house, outhouse or other house or building not mentioned in such article; or shall unlawfully and willfully burn, destroy, pull down, injure or remove any fence, wall or other inclosure, or any part thereof, surrounding or about any yard, garden, cultivated field or pasture, or about any church or graveyard, or about any factory or other house in which machinery is used, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3673; Code, s. 1062; R. C., c. 34, s. 103; C. S. 4317.)

I. HOUSES.

Trespass Necessary Part of Offense.—It is held, to constitute a criminal offense under this section, there must be a trespass. State v. Williams, 44 N. C. 197; State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 626; State v. McCracken, 118 N. C. 1240, 24 S. E. 530. And a party in lawful possession cannot commit a trespass upon the property he is in possession of. State v. Howell, 107 N. C. 835, 12 S. E. 509; State v. Reynolds, 95 N. C. 616; Dobbs v. Gullidge, 20 N. C. 197. Therefore, according to the logic of these decisions, if a defendant is shown to have been in the actual possession of the house at the time he tore it down, he committed no criminal offense under this section. We say the lawful possession, to distinguish his possession from that of a mere trespasser, which would not protect him from the penalty of the statute. State v. Jones, 129 N. C. 508, 39 S. E. 795, 796.

Tenant's and Landlord's Liability to One Another.—A tenant is not subject under this section for damage done to property in his possession, but the owner of the reversion would be subject to prosecution for damage to property in the possession of a tenant, as the statute covers offences against possession. State v. Mason, 35 N. C. 341; State v. Whitener, 92 N. C. 798.

A tenant cannot divest the possession of his landlord by an attempted attornment to another, and if the person to whom the attempted attornment is made enters the land and damages buildings he is liable under this section, in spite of proof of good faith and claim of title. State v. Howell, 107 N. C. 835, 12 S. E. 569.

Same—Tenant at Sufferance.—If a building is torn down by a landlord while it is in the possession of a tenant at sufferance an indictment under this section cannot be supported, for this section was intended to protect property which the tenant at sufferance has no interest in. State v. Mace, 65 N. C. 344.

Houses Erected Through Mistake.—One who peaceably enters upon lands believing at the time that he had the right to do so, and erects houses thereon, but, being still in possession, tears them down and removes them upon discovering that he was upon the lands of another, is not such a trespasser as will subject him to a conviction under this section. State v. Reynolds, 95 N. C. 616.

School Houses Held by Adverse Possession.—If defendants are in the adverse possession of the schoolhouse and bona fide claiming it as their own, it is not a crime in them to pull it down. State v. Roseman, 66 N. C. 634, 635.

"Other Houses."—It is manifest that the words "other house or building," embrace a jail, a jail-house or building. State v. Bryan, 89 N. C. 531, 533.

Dynamiting a Crib.—An indictment will lie under this section for injury to a crib by an explosion of dynamite. See State v. Martin, 173 N. C. 808, 92 S. E. 597.

II. FENCES AROUND FIELDS.

Cultivated Field Defined.—"Where a piece or tract of land has been cleared and fenced, and cultivated, or proposed to be cultivated and is kept and used for cultivation according to the ordinary course of husbandry, although nothing may be growing within the enclosure at the time of the trespass, it is a 'cultivated field' within the description of the statute." State v. McMinn, 81 N. C. 585, 588. State v. Allen, 35 N. C. 36.

Same.—The ruling in State v. Allen, 35 N. C. 36, was cited and approved in State v. McMinn, 81 N. C. 585, in which case it was also held that the smallness of the tract made no difference; that a town lot, if inclosed and cultivated, could be described as a "field" under this statute, unless it was used as a "garden," in which case it should be so described. State v. Campbell, 133 N. C. 640, 642, 45 S. E. 344.

Fence Must Enclose Something.—It is necessary under this section that the fence destroyed or injured surround or enclose something and a fence along a road to prevent passers-by from turning into the field to avoid mud in the road, when not connected with any other fence is not within the meaning of this section. See State v. Roberts, 101 N. C. 744, 7 S. E. 714.

Instruction That Pasture Is a Field.—Where in a criminal prosecution for the violation of this section providing that a person removing a fence surrounding "any yard, garden, cultivated field, or pasture" should be guilty of a misdemeanor, the indictment charges the defendant with having removed a fence surrounding a cultivated field, and the evidence is that the fence surrounded a pasture, the words "pasture" and "cultivated field" are not synonymous and are distinguished in the statute by a disjunctive, and an instruction which charges that a pasture is a cultivated field within the meaning of the statute is erroneous. State v. Cornett, 199 N. C. 634, 155 S. E. 451.

Title to Land No Defense.—It is well settled that where the state, in an indictment under this section, for unlawfully and wilfully removing a fence, shows actual possession in the prosecutor, the defendant cannot excuse himself by showing title to the land upon which the fence was situated. State v. Campbell, 133 N. C. 640, 45 S. E. 344; State v. Fender, 125 N. C. 649, 34 S. E. 448; State v. Hovis, 76 N. C. 117; State v. Howell, 107 N. C. 835, 12 S. E. 569; State v. Marsh, 91 N. C. 632; State v. Graham, 53 N. C. 397; State v. Taylor, 172 N. C. 892, 90 S. E. 294, 295.

Question of Title Cannot Be Raised.—Where a party has neither possession, nor a right of possession to land, he cannot, upon an indictment for unlawfully removing a fence therefrom, raise a question as to a right of entry, nor is it any defence to him that he did the act to bring on a civil suit in order to try the title. State v. Graham, 53 N. C. 397.

Agency No Defence.—Under an indictment for tearing down a fence the defendant cannot avoid liability by showing that he acted as agent for another. State v. Campbell, 133 N. C. 640, 45 S. E. 344.

Destroying Fence When Line Is in Dispute.—Although a defendant cannot plead his title as a defense to an indictment for destroying fences, etc., on the land in possession of another, he can plead his title if the land is not in the possession of the prosecutor. In case of a disputed line if the prosecutor erects a fence on land in possession of the defendant, the defendant is not liable under this section for pulling it down. State v. Fender, 125 N. C. 649, 34 S. E. 448; State v. Watson, 86 N. C. 626. Nor is a quasi tenant occupying by the consent of the owner subject to prosecution under this section for the removal of a fence. State v. Williams, 44 N. C. 197.

Right to Reclaim Fence.—Although rails of which a fence around an enclosure is made were taken from the land of another, no right to go on the land and remove the fence exists in favor of the person from whom the rails were taken as the fence is a part of the realty, and such a trespass comes within the meaning of this section. State v. McMinn, 81 N. C. 585.

Applicable to Wire Fences.—An indictment for cutting and destroying a wire fence may be maintained under this section if it charges that the wire fence was an enclosure. State v. Biggers, 108 N. C. 760, 12 S. E. 1024.

Defective Bill of Indictment.—A motion in arrest of judgment after conviction for a removal of fences on the ground that the bill of indictment is defective, will not be granted, unless it appears that the bill is so defective that judgment cannot be pronounced upon it. State v. Taylor, 172 N. C. 892, 90 S. E. 294, 295.

Fences Across a Street Removed by Officer.—A fence erected across a public street is a public nuisance, and a city marshal will not be liable for abating the nuisance by pulling it down. State v. Godwin, 145 N. C. 461, 59 S. E. 132.

§ 14-145. Unlawful posting of advertisements.

—Any person who in any manner paints, prints, places, or affixes, or causes to be painted, printed, placed, or affixed, any business or commercial advertisement on or to any stone, tree, fence, stump, pole, automobile, building, or other object, which is the property of another without first obtaining the written consent of such owner thereof, or who in any manner paints, prints, places, puts, or affixes, or causes to be painted, printed, placed, or affixed, such an advertisement on or to any stone, tree, fence, stump, pole, mile-board, mile-stone, danger-sign, danger-signal, guide-sign, guide-post; automobile building or other object within the limits of a public highway, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars ($50) or imprisoned not exceeding thirty (30) days. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 109.)

Cross Reference.—As to injuring, defacing, or destroying notices and advertisements, see §§ 14-384 and 14-385.

Editor's Note.—It was suggested in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 25 that the first part of this section seems to apply to posting advertisements anywhere on private property, while the last part applies to those posted within the limits of the public highway.

§ 14-146. Injuring bridges.—If any person shall unlawfully and wilfully demolish, destroy, break, tear down, injure or damage any bridge across any of the creeks or rivers or other streams in the state, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3771; Code, s. 993; 1883, c. 271; C. S. 4318.)

§ 14-147. Removing, altering or defacing landmarks.—If any person, firm or corporation shall knowingly remove, alter or deface any landmark in anywise whatsoever, or shall knowingly cause such removal, alteration or defacement to be done, such person, firm or corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. This section shall not apply to landmarks, such as creeks and other small streams, which the interest of agriculture may require to be altered or turned from their channels, nor to such persons, firms or corporations as own the fee simple in the lands on both sides of the lines designated by the landmarks removed, altered or defaced. Nor shall this section apply to those adjoining landowners who may by agreement remove, alter or deface landmarks in which they alone are interested. (Rev., s. 3674; Code, s. 1063; 1858-9, c. 17; 1915, c. 248; C. S. 4319.)

Removal of Stakes.—As between the parties stakes are evidence of a definite location of land, as also is the planting of a stone, and a removal of such stakes comes within the meaning of this section. State v. Jenkins, 164 N. C. 527, 529, 80 S. E. 231.

Indictment Must Aver.—An indictment charging that one A. B., with force and arms, etc., willfully and unlawfully did alter, deface and remove a corner tree, the property of C., against the form of the statute, is good without a negative averment of the matter contained in the proviso to the act creating the offense. State v. Bryant, 111 N. C. 693, 36 S. E. 326.

§ 14-148. Removing or defacing monuments and tombstones.—If any person shall, unlawfully and on purpose, remove from its place any monument of marble, stone, brass, wood or other material, erected for the purpose of designating the spot where any dead body is interred, or for the purpose of preserving and perpetuating the memory, name, fame, birth, age or death of any person, whether situated in or out of the common burying ground, or shall unlawfully and on purpose break or deface such monument, or alter the letters, marks or inscription thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3680; Code, s. 1088; R. C., c. 34, s. 102; 1840, c. 6; C. S. 4320.)

Cross References.—As to removal after abandonment, see § 65-15. As to abandonment of a cemetery by a municipality and removal of monuments and graves, see § 160-200, paragraph 36. See note to § 14-150.

Right of Landowner to Remove.—Where the owner of land consents, either expressly or by implication to the interment of dead bodies on his land, he has no right to afterwards remove the bodies or to deface or pull down the gravestones and monuments erected to perpetuate their memory. State v. Wilson, 94 N. C. 1015.

Indictment.—It is not necessary, to charge in the indictment that the monument removed was intended to designate the spot where the dead body of a particular person named, or a person unknown, was interred. State v. Wilson, 94 N. C. 1015.

It is not necessary to charge in terms that the dead body was that of a dead person. State v. Wilson, 94 N. C. 1015.

Generally.—This section creates a misdemeanor not defined as larceny. State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

Construction with Section 14-80.—Quaere: As this section and cognate statutes relate expressly to tombstones, graveyards and graves, does this not exclude such property from the provisions of § 14-80? State v. Jackson, 218 N. C. 373, 11 S. E. (2d) 149.

§ 14-149. Interfering with graveyards.—If any person shall unlawfully take away any stone, brick, iron or other material that encloses private graveyards, or shall cut or keep open any ditch or drainway, or put any permanent log or other obstruction not intended as a monument to a grave in such graveyards, or knowingly plow over and tear up any grave, or shall remove or change the location of any fence around such graveyard without the consent of such person or persons as may have parents, children or brothers or sisters buried therein, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not more than ten dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3681; 1889, c. 130; 1919, c. 218; C. S. 4321.)

§ 14-150. Disturbing graves.—If any person shall, without due process of law, or the consent of the surviving husband or wife or the next of kin of the deceased, and of the person having the control of such grave, open any grave for the purpose of taking therefrom any dead body, or any part thereof buried therein, or anything interred therewith, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3672; 1885, c. 90; C. S. 4322.)

Cross References.—As to removal after abandonment, see § 65-15. As to abandonment of a cemetery by a municipality and removal of monuments and graves, see § 160-200, paragraph 37.

Intent.—The intent to open a grave and remove the dead body is sufficient criminal intent, and proof of the intent to disturb the grave is conclusive. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

Persons Liable.—The mayor or other town officers counseling their subordinates to remove bodies are liable under this section although they were honestly mistaken as to the scope of their official power. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

When Lot Is Not Paid for.—The fact that the lot has not been paid for will not excuse the disturbance of a body only for the purpose of moving it to a pauper section. State v. McLean, 121 N. C. 589, 28 S. E. 140.

§ 14-151. Interfering with gas, electric and steam appliances.—If any person shall willfully, with intent to injure or defraud, commit any of the acts set forth in the following subsections, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor:

1. Connect a tube, pipe, wire or other instrument or contrivance with a pipe or wire used for conducting or supplying illuminating gas, fuel, natural gas or electricity in such a manner as to supply such gas or electricity to any burner, orifice, lamp or motor where the same is or can be burned or used without passing through the meter or other instrument provided for registering the quantity consumed; or,

2. Obstruct, alter, injure or prevent the action of a meter or other instrument used to measure or register the quantity of illuminating fuel, natural gas or electricity consumed in a house or apartment, or at an orifice or burner, lamp or motor, or by a consumer or other person other than an employee of the company owning any gas or electric meter, who willfully shall detach or disconnect such meter, or make or report any test of, or examine for the purpose of testing any meter so detached or disconnected; or,

3. In any manner whatever change, extend or alter any service or other pipe, wire or attachment of any kind, connecting with or through which natural or artificial gas or electricity is furnished from the gas mains or pipes of any person, without first procuring from said person written permission to make such change, extension or alterations; or,

4. Make any connection or reconnection with the gas mains, service pipes or wires of any person, furnishing to consumers natural or artificial gas or electricity, or turn on or off or in any manner interfere with any valve or stop-cock or other appliance belonging to such person, and connected with his service or other pipes or wires, or enlarge the orifice of mixers, or use natural gas for heating purposes except through mixers, or electricity for any purpose without first procuring from such person a written permit to turn on or off such stop-cock or valve, or to make such connection or reconnections, or to enlarge the orifice of mixers, or to use for heating purposes without mixers, or to interfere with the valves, stop-cocks, wires or other appliances of such, as the case may be; or,

5. Retain possession of or refuse to deliver any mixer, meter, lamp or other appliance which may be leased or rented by any person, for the purpose of furnishing gas, electricity or power through the same, or sell, lend or in any other manner dispose of the same to any person other than such person entitled to the possession of the same; or,

6. Set on fire any gas escaping from wells, broken or leaking mains, pipes, valves or other appliances used by any person in conveying gas to consumers, or interfere in any manner with the wells, pipes, mains, gate-boxes, valves, stop-cocks, wires, cables, conduits or any other appliances, machinery or property of any person engaged in furnishing gas to consumers unless employed by or acting under the authority and direction of such person; or,

7. Open or cause to be opened, or reconnect or cause to be reconnected any valve lawfully closed or disconnected by a district steam corporation; or,

8. Turn on steam or cause it to be turned on or to reënter any premises when the same has been lawfully stopped from entering such premises. (Rev., s. 3666; 1901, c. 735; C. S. 4323.)

§ 14-152. Injuring fixtures and other property of gas companies; civil liability.—If any person shall willfully, wantonly or maliciously remove, obstruct, injure or destroy any part of the plant, machinery, fixtures, structures or buildings, or anything appertaining to the works of any gas company, or shall use, tamper or interfere with the same, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days for such offense. Such person shall also forfeit and pay to the company so injured, to be sued for and recovered in a civil action, double the amount of the damages sustained by any such injury. (Rev., s. 3671; 1889 (Pr.), c. 35, s. 3; C. S. 4324.)

§ 14-153. Tampering with engines and boilers.—If any person shall willfully turn out water from any boiler or turn the bolts of any engine or boiler, or meddle or tamper with such boiler or engine, or any other machinery in connection with any boiler or engine, causing loss, damage, danger or delay to the owner in the prosecution of his work, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3667; 1901, c. 733; C. S. 4325.)

telephone, telegraph and electric-power companies.—If any person shall willfully injure, destroy or pull down any telegraph, telephone or electric-power-transmission pole, wire, insulator or any other fixture or apparatus attached to a telegraph, telephone or electric-power-transmission line, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined and imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3847; Code, s. 1118; 1881, c. 4; 1883, c. 103; 1907, c. 827, s. 1; C. S. 4326.)

§ 14-155. Making unauthorized connections with telephone and telegraph wires.—It shall be unlawful for any person to tap or make any connection with any wire or apparatus of any telephone or telegraph company operating in this state, except such connection as may be authorized by the person or corporation operating such wire or apparatus. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than ten dollars or imprisoned not more than ten days for each offense. Each day's continuance of such unlawful connection shall be a separate offense. (1911, c. 113; C. S. 4327.)

§ 14-156. Injuring fixtures and other property of electric-power companies.—It shall be unlawful for any person willfully and wantonly, and without the consent of the owner, to take down, remove, injure, obstruct, displace or destroy any line erected or constructed for the transmission of electrical current, or any poles, towers, wires, conduits, cables, insulators or any support upon which wires or cables may be suspended, or any part of any such line or appurtenances or apparatus connected therewith, or to sever any wire or cable thereof, or in any manner to interrupt the transmission of electrical current over and along any such line, or to take down, remove, injure or destroy any house, shop, building or other structure or machinery connected with or necessary to the use of any line erected or constructed for the transmission of electrical current, or to wantonly or willfully cause injury to any of the property mentioned in this section by means of fire. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not longer than one year, or both fined and imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (1907, c. 919; C. S. 4328.)

§ 14-157. Felling trees on telephone and electric-power wires.—If any person shall negligently and carelessly cut or fell any tree, or any limb or branch therefrom, in such a manner as to cause the same to fall upon and across any telephone, electric light or electric-power-transmission wire, from which any injury to such wire shall be occasioned, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall also be liable to penalty of fifty dollars for each and every offense. (Rev., s. 3849; 1903, c. 616; 1907, c. 827, s. 2; C. S. 4329.)

§ 14-158. Interfering with telephone lines.—If any person shall unnecessarily disconnect the wire or in any other way render any telephone line, or any part of such line, unfit for use in transmitting messages, or shall unnecessarily cut, tear down, destroy or in any way render unfit for the transmission of messages any part of the wire of a telephone line, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned for a term not exceeding two years, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3845; 1901, c. 318; C. S. 4330.)

Civil Action for Damages.—The willful cutting of a telephone wire in public use for hire is made a misdemeanor punishable by fine or imprisonment by this section, and where such act has caused damages to another the action sounds in tort, making the tortfeasor liable for any injuries naturally following and flowing from the wrongful act, independent of any contractual relations between the parties. Hodges v. Virginia-Carolina R. Co., 179 N. C. 566, 103 S. E. 145.

§ 14-159. Injuring buildings or fences; taking possession of house without consent.—If any person shall deface, injure or damage any house, uninhabited house or other building belonging to another; or deface, damage, pull down, injure, remove or destroy any fence or wall enclosing, in whole or in part, the premises belonging to another; or shall move into, take possession of and/or occupy any house, uninhabited house or other building situated on the premises belonging to another, without having first obtained authority so to do and consent of the owner or agent thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1929, c. 192, s. 1.)

Art. 23. Trespasses to Personal Property.

§ 14-160. Malicious injury to personal property.—If any person shall wantonly and willfully injure the personal property of another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, whether the property be destroyed or not, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3676; Code, s. 1082; 1885, c. 53; 1876-7, c. 18; C. S. 4331.)

Cross Reference.—As to definition of personal property, see § 12-3, paragraph 6.

Things That Are Personality.—A promissory note or due bill being an "evidence of debt" is personal property within the meaning of this section and section 12-3, par. 6. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 365.

An electric street car is personality and not a fixture. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 365.

Malice Not Necessary.—It is not necessary to allege or prove any malice to the owner of personal property on the part of one who wantonly and willfully injures it nor is it material whether the property was destroyed or not. State v. Sneed, 121 N. C. 614, 28 S. E. 365.

"Wantonly and Wilfully" Necessary.—An indictment for injury to personal property, under this section, which charged that the act was "wantonly and wilfully" done, was not defective because it did not aver the act to have been unlawfully perpetrated. Lawful acts are not done wantonly and wilfully. State v. Martin, 107 N. C. 904, 12 S. E. 194.

But an indictment cannot be sustained under this section if there is neither an allegation or finding that the injury was "wilfully and wantonly" done. The words "unlawfully and on purpose" will not supply their place. State v. Tweedy, 115 N. C. 704, 20 S. E. 183.

Malicious Mischief at Common Law.—This section was not intended to supersede the common law as to malicious mischief, and though malice must be charged at common law it is not necessary under this section. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 53 S. E. 874.

No Accessories.—As there are no accessories in misdemeanors, the offence under this section may be committed jointly by several persons, one doing the act the others aiding and abetting or participating. State v. Martin, 141 N. C. 832, 53 S. E. 874.

Destroying Whisky.—The mere possession of whisky gives no title; and a revenue officer who seizes a barrel concealed on private premises, and in good faith destroys it, is not guilty of a misdemeanor under this section. North Carolina v. Vanderford, 35 Fed. 282.

Conviction under This Section in Place of Section 14-165.—Where there is an erroneous conviction under this section, when the indictment should have been drawn under section 14-165, et seq., the prisoner should be discharged with permission to the solicitor to send another bill, if so advised. State v. Reed, 196 N. C. 357, 145 S. E. 691.

§ 14-161. Malicious removal of packing from railway coaches and other rolling stock.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously take or remove the waste or packing from the journal box of any locomotive, engine, tender, carriage, coach, car, caboose or truck used or operated upon any railroad whether the same be operated by steam or electricity, he shall upon conviction thereof be fined or imprisoned in the jail or state's prison, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3759; 1905, c. 335; C. S. 4332.)

§ 14-162. Removing boats or their fixtures and appliances.—If any person shall take away from any landing or other place where the same shall be, or shall loose, unmoor, or turn adrift from the same, any boat, canoe, pettiaugua, oars, paddles, sails or tackle belonging to or in the lawful custody of any person; or if any person shall direct the same to be done without the consent of the owner, or the person having the custody or possession of such property, he shall forfeit and pay to such owner, or person having the custody and possession as aforesaid, the sum of two dollars, and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, in the discretion of the court. The owner may also have his action for such injury. The penalties aforesaid shall not extend to any person who shall press any such property by public authority. (Rev., s. 3544; Code, s. 2288; 1889, c. 378; R. C., c. 14, ss. 1, 3; C. S. 4333.)

§ 14-163. Injuring livestock not inclosed by lawful fence.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully kill or abuse any horse, mule, hog, sheep or other cattle, the property of another, in any enclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3313; Code, s. 1003; 1868-9, c. 253; C. S. 4334.)

At Common Law.—Wounding of cattle maliciously is not an indictable offense at common law. State v. Manuel, 72 N. C. 201.

Purpose of Section.—The obvious purpose of the statute is to prohibit and prevent every person from unlawfully and willfully killing and abusing live-stock of another, that may get into and trespass upon inclosures not surrounded and protected by a lawful fence. This is the mischief to be suppressed. State v. Godfrey, 97 N. C. 507, 508, 1 S. E. 779.

Offence May Be Completed Elsewhere.—In order to complete the offense of injury to live-stock, it is not necessary that the offense should be consummated within the inclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence, for if it is begun therein and completed outside of such inclosure, the offence is complete. State v. Godfrey, 97 N. C. 507, 1 S. E. 779.

Cattle Defined.—The word "cattle" has a restricted sense which applies only to the bovine species, and also a broader meaning which includes all domestic animals. That it is used in this section in the latter and broader sense is apparent from the context, "horse, mule, hog, sheep or other cattle." State v. Groves, 119 N. C. 822, 823, 25 S. E. 819.

Injuries in Enclosed Fields.—A person is not liable under this section for injuring stock within his own field which is enclosed and under cultivation. State v. Waters, 51 N. C. 276.

Indictment Must Charge.—An indictment for injuring stock under this section must charge that the cattle abused or killed were property of some one, the abusing or killing must be charged to have been willfully and unlawfully done while the animal was in an enclosure not surrounded by a lawful fence. State v. Deal, 92 N. C. 802; State v. Simpson, 73 N. C. 269.

An indictment charging an offence under this section but not setting out who owned the inclosure, although not encouraged because of its looseness, is sufficient. State v. Allen, 69 N. C. 23; State v. Painter, 70 N. C. 70.

"The Field" Is Too General.—An indictment which simply charges the injury, etc., to have been committed on stock in "the field" is not certain to that extent required in such pleading. State v. Staton, 66 N. C. 640.

§ 14-164. Taking away or injuring exhibits at fairs.—If any person, without the license of the owner, or any agricultural or other society, shall unlawfully carry away, remove, destroy, mar, deface or injure anything, animate or inanimate, while on exhibition on the grounds of any such society, or going to or returning from the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. It shall be sufficient in any indictment for any such offense, or for the larceny of any such thing, animate or inanimate as aforesaid, to charge that the thing so carried away, destroyed, marred, injured or feloniously stolen is the property of the society to which the said thing shall be forwarded for exhibition. (Rev., s. 3668; Code, s. 2796; 1870-1, c. 184, s. 4; C. S. 4335.)

Cross Reference.—As to fraudulent entries at fairs, see section 14-116.

Art. 24. Vehicles and Draft Animals—Protection of Bailor against Acts of Bailee.

§ 14-165. Malicious or wilful injury to hired personal property.—Any person who shall rent or hire from any person, firm or corporation, any horse, mule or like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other like vehicle, for temporary use, who shall maliciously or wilfully injure or damage the same by in any way using or driving the same in violation of any statute of the State of North Carolina, or who shall permit any other person so to do, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to punishment as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—See annotation under § 14-160.

§ 14-166. Sub-letting of hired property.—Any person who shall rent or hire, for temporary use, any horse, mule, or other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other like vehicle, who shall, without the permission of the person, firm or corporation from whom such property is rented or hired, sub-let or rent the same to any other person, firm or corporation, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 2.)

§ 14-167. Failure to return hired property.—Any person who shall rent or hire, for temporary use, any horse, mule or other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile, or other vehicle, and who shall wilfully fail to return the same to the possession of the person, firm or corporation from whom such property has been rented or hired at the expiration of the time for which such property has been rented or hired, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 3.)

§ 14-168. Hiring with intent to defraud.—Any person who shall, with intent to cheat and defraud the owner thereof of the rental price therefor, hire or rent for temporary use any horse or mule or any other like animal, or any buggy, wagon, truck, automobile or other like vehicle, or who shall obtain the possession of the same by false and fraudulent statements made with intent to deceive, which are calculated to deceive, and which do deceive, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as hereinafter provided. (1927, c. 61, s. 4.)

§ 14-169. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person violating the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and punished at the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 61, s. 5; 1929, c. 38, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1929 amendment, this section provided for a maximum fine of fifty dollars and a maximum jail sentence of thirty days. The amendatory act provided that prosecutions instituted and crimes committed before its ratification on February 20, 1929, should be determined by the statute as it was before the amendment.

Art. 25. Regulating the Leasing of Storage Batteries.

§ 14-170. "Rental battery" defined; identification of rental storage batteries.—As used in this article the words "rental battery" are defined as an electric storage battery loaned, rented or furnished for temporary use by any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of buying, selling, repairing or recharging electric storage batteries. All such persons, firms or corporations may mark any such rental batteries belonging to them with the word "rental," or any other word of similar meaning, printed or stamped upon or attached to such battery together with such words as shall identify such batteries as the property of the person, firm or corporation so marking the same. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to so mark any such batteries which are not the property of such person, firm or corporation. (1933, c. 185, s. 1.)

§ 14-171. Defacing word "rental" prohibited.—It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to remove, deface, alter or destroy the word "rental" on any rental battery or any other word, mark or character printed, painted or stamped upon or attached to any rental battery to identify the same as belonging to or being the property of any person, firm or corporation. (1933, c. 185, s. 2.)

§ 14-172. Sale, etc., of rental battery prohibited.—It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation other than the owner thereof to sell, dispose of, deliver, rent or give to any other person, firm or corporation any rental battery marked by the owner as provided by section 14-170. (1933, c. 185, s. 3.)

§ 14-173. Repairing another's rental battery prohibited.—It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of buying, selling, repairing or recharging electric storage batteries to recharge or repair any rental battery not owned by such person, firm or corporation marked by the owner thereof as provided by section 14-170. (1933, c. 185, s. 4.)

§ 14-174. Time limit on possession of rental battery without written consent.—It is unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to retain in his, their or its possession for a longer period than ten (10) days, without the written consent of the owner, any rental battery marked as such by the owner as provided by section 14-170. Demand must be made on any person who so retains a rental battery in his possession at least five days before a prosecution can be instituted: Provided, however, that proof of a registered letter having been sent to the person so offending at his last known address shall be accepted as conclusive evidence of such demand. (1933, c. 185, s. 5.)

§ 14-175. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation, and the officers, agents, employees, and members of any firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections 14-170—14-174 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or be imprisoned for a term of not exceeding thirty days in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 185, s. 6.)

§ 14-176. Rebuilding storage batteries out of old parts and sale of, regulated.—Any person, firm or corporation who assembles or rebuilds an electric storage battery for use on automobiles, in whole or in part, out of second-hand or used material such as containers, separators, plates, groups or other battery parts, and sells same or offers same for sale in the state of North Carolina without the word "rebuilt" placed in the side of the container, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars or imprisoned for a term not exceeding six months or both. (1933, c. 535.)

SUBCHAPTER VII. OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC MORALITY AND DECENCY.

Art. 26. Offenses against Public Morality and Decency.

§ 14-177. Crime against nature.—If any person shall commit the abominable and detestable crime against nature, with mankind or beast, he shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years. (Rev., s. 3349; Code, s. 1010; R. C., c. 34, s. 6; 1868-9, c. 167, s. 6; 5 Eliz., c. 17; 25 Hen. VIII, c. 6; C. S. 4336.)

Scope of Section.—This section includes all kindred acts of bestial character whereby degraded and perverted sexual desires are sought to be gratified. State v. Griffin, 175 N. C. 767, 769, 94 S. E. 678. It includes unnatural intercourse between male and male. State v. Fenner, 166 N. C. 247, 80 S. E. 970.

Conviction for Attempt.—Upon the trial of an indictment for the crime against nature the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged therein, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. State v. Savage, 161 N. C. 245, 246, 76 S. E. 238.

Applied in State v. Callett, 211 N. C. 563, 191 S. E. 27; State v. Spivey, 213 N. C. 45, 195 S. E. 1.

§ 14-178. Incest between certain near relatives.

—In all cases of carnal intercourse between grandparent and grandchild, parent and child, and brother and sister of the half or whole blood, the parties shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished for every such offense by imprisonment in the state's prison for a term not exceeding fifteen years, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3351; Code, s. 1060; 1879, c. 16, s. 1; 1911, c. 16; C. S. 4337.)

In General.—Incest was not indictable at common law. State v. Sauls, 190 N. C. 810, 811, 130 S. E. 848, and cases cited. The amendment of 1911 increasing the punishment was held not retroactive. State v. Broadway, 157 N. C. 598, 72 S. E. 987.

Carnal intercourse by the father with his illegitimate daughter constitutes the offense. State v. Lawrence, 95 N. C. 659. Both parties are not necessarily guilty. Strider v. Lewey, 176 N. C. 448, 97 S. E. 398.

Evidence.—Confessions of the wife to the husband are not admissible in a trial for incest. State v. Brittain, 117 N. C. 783, 23 S. E. 433. But proof of other similar acts is competent in corroboration. State v. Broadway, 157 N. C. 598, 72 S. E. 987.

Failure to Charge "Carnal" Knowledge.—The mere fact that indictment failed to charge "carnal" knowledge, is not a fatal defect that would sustain the defendant's motion to quash the indictment. State v. Sauls, 190 N. C. 810, 130 S. E. 848.

§ 14-179. Incest between uncle and niece and nephew and aunt.—In all cases of carnal intercourse between uncle and niece, and nephew and aunt, the parties shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3352; Code, s. 1061; 1879, c. 16, s. 2; C. S. 4338.)

With Daughter of Half Sister.—It has been held under this section that carnal intercourse of a man with the daughter of his half sister is incest. State v. Harris, 149 N. C. 513, 62 S. E. 1090.

§ 14-180. Seduction.—If any man shall seduce an innocent and virtuous woman under promise of marriage, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court, and may be imprisoned in the state prison not exceeding the term of five years: Provided, the unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict: Provided further, that marriage between the parties shall be a bar to further prosecution hereunder. But when such marriage is relied upon by the defendant, it shall operate as to the costs of the case as a plea of nolo contendere, and the defendant shall be required to pay all the costs of the action or be liable to imprisonment for nonpayment of the same. (Rev., s. 3354; 1885, c. 248; 1917, c. 39; C. S. 4339.)

Who May Be Convicted.—A male, at the marriageable age of 18 years, is indictable for seduction under this section. State v. Creed, 171 N. C. 837, 88 S. E. 511.

Distinguishing Civil and Criminal Action.—It is only necessary for plaintiff's recovering damages in her civil action, in tort, for wrongful seduction, to show that the defendant induced the intercourse by persuasion, deception, enticement, or other artifice; not requiring, as in prosecution under this section, that the intercourse was procured under a promise of marriage, though when existent this may be shown in the civil action as a means used by the defendant to accomplish his purpose. Hardin v. Davis, 183 N. C. 46, 110 S. E. 602.

Three Elements of Offense.—To convict the defendant of seduction, it is incumbent upon the state to satisfy the jury beyond a reasonable doubt of every element essential to the offense. The three elements are: (1) The innocence and virtue of the prosecutrix; (2) the promise of marriage; and (3) the carnal intercourse induced by such promise. State v. Crook, 189 N. C. 545, 127 S. E. 579. State v. Pace, 159 N. C. 462, 74 S. E. 1018; State v. Brackett, 218 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. (2d) 146. If any one of these elements is lacking there can be no seduction. State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 848, 12 S. E. 574. See also State v. McDade, 208 N. C. 197, 179 S. E. 755.

Decelt is the very essence of this offence, the warp and woof of it, so to speak. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1053, 1057, 21 S. E. 502. The promise of marriage alone makes the seduction criminal. State v. Whitley, 141 N. C. 823, 824, 53 S. E. 820. Consent is no defense. State v. Horton, 100 N. C. 443, 6 S. E. 238.

Meaning of "Innocent and Virtuous."—Should any woman committing the act of adultery induced by her own lascivious desires, with or without the promise, her conduct is not such as to bring her within the intent and meaning of this section as an innocent and virtuous woman. State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 109 S. E. 786. See State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1058, 21 S. E. 502; State v. Ferguson, 107 N. C. 841, 12 S. E. 574.

Permitting familiarities not amounting to incontinence may be considered by the jury in determining whether the prosecutrix was virtuous. State v. Whitley, 141 N. C. 823, 53 S. E. 820. But when permitted by the prosecutrix after the act they do not negative evidence that she was innocent and virtuous prior thereto, though they may be properly considered by the jury with reference to the weight of her evidence. State v. Lang, 171 N. C. 778, 87 S. E. 957.

An adulteress may reform and become innocent and even virtuous, and the statute protects her just as much as if she had never fallen. State v. Johnson, 182 N. C. 883, 109 S. E. 786.

Promise of Marriage Must Be Unconditional.—In order for conviction under this section, the promise of marriage must be absolute and unconditional, and a promise at the time to marry the woman in the event "anything should happen to her," is insufficient for a conviction under the statute. State v. Shatley, 201 N. C. 83, 159 S. E. 362.

Testimony of Woman Must Be Corroborated as to Each Element.—The statute provides that the unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict. This proviso has been construed to mean that the prosecutrix must be supported by independent facts and circumstances as to each element of the offense. State v. Crook, 189 N. C. 545, 127 S. E. 579. See also, State v. Maness, 192 N. C. 708, 135 S. E. 777. See State v. Forbes, 210 N. C. 567, 187 S. E. 760; State v. Brewington, 212 N. C. 244, 193 S. E. 24.

For cases setting out facts held either sufficient or insufficient to support, see State v. Cooke, 176 N. C. 731, 97 S. E. 171; State v. Raynor, 145 N. C. 472, 59 S. E. 344; State v. Maloney, 154 N. C. 200, 69 S. E. 786; State v. Pace, 159 N. C. 462, 74 S. E. 1018; State v. Brackett, 218 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. (2d) 146.

The weight and credibility of the evidence supporting that of the woman, upon the trial of seduction, under this section, is for the jury, if it comes within the requirement of being legal evidence, however slight it may be. State v. Doss, 188 N. C. 214, 124 S. E. 156.

Supporting Evidence Need Not Be Direct.—It is not required that the "supporting evidence" of the promise of marriage coincide with the testimony of the prosecutrix as to the time the promise was made, since it is not required that the "supporting evidence" be direct, adminicular proof being sufficient. State v. Smith, 217 N. C. 591, 9 S. E. (2d) 9.

The proviso that "the unsupported testimony of the woman shall not be sufficient to convict" is fully met where the testimony of the prosecutrix was corroborated in respect to each essential element of the offense charged; as to the promise of marriage by evidence of the prosecutrix' statements to others, and by the witness who "heard them talking," and by the further circumstance of the long and constant association of the defendant with the prosecutrix; as to her innocence and virtue by the evidence of her good character; and as to the intercourse by the admission of the defendant. State v. Tuttle, 207 N. C. 649, 650, 178 S. E. 76.

Resemblance of Child to Defendant.—It is not error to permit a child to be exhibited to the jury that they may trace a resemblance to one charged with having begotten it; and such evidence is admissible on an indictment for seduction. State v. Horton, 100 N. C. 443, 6 S. E. 238.

Effect of Marriage upon Consent Judgment.—Where, in a prosecution for seduction a consent judgment is entered requiring the defendant to pay a certain sum to the prosecutrix, a subsequent marriage of the parties before the whole sum is paid does not discharge the judgment, the consent of all parties being necessary to set aside such judgment. For the defendant to get the benefit of this section the marriage must be before he is adjudged guilty. State v. McKay, 202 N. C. 470, 163 S. E. 586.

Indictments—No Set Form of Words.—In the trial of an indictment for seduction under this section, no set form of words is necessary to show the causal relation between the promise and the act of sexual intercourse. State v. Maloney, 154 N. C. 200, 69 S. E. 786.

Limitation of Action.—Deceit being the very essence of the offense of seduction, section 15-1 exempting certain crimes, including deceit, from the two years statute of limitations, applies to the offense of seduction under promise of marriage. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 21 S. E. 502.

Insufficient Evidence to Show Promise of Marriage.—In prosecution for seduction, the only evidence in support of the testimony of prosecutrix on the essential element of promise of marriage was the testimony of a witness that prosecutrix had told the witness that she and defendant were going to be married, and the further testimony that she had seen prosecutrix and defendant together over a certain period. No other witness testified that prosecutrix and defendant had been seen together. This is not sufficient to constitute proof of the promise of marriage by facts and circumstances independent of the testimony of prosecutrix, and defendant's motion to nonsuit should have been granted. State v. Forbes, 210 N. C. 567, 187 S. E. 760.

Burden of Proof on State.—In order to convict, the burden of proof is upon the State to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the seduction was accomplished under and by means of the promise of marriage, and that the prosecutrix was at that time an innocent and virtuous woman. It must affirmatively appear that the inducing promise preceded the intercourse, and that the promise was absolute and not conditional. State v. Wells, 210 N. C. 738, 188 S. E. 326, holding evidence insufficient to establish that seduction was induced by previous unconditional promise of marriage.

Punishment.—This section, providing that one convicted of seduction under promise of marriage "shall be fined or imprisoned," at the discretion of the court, does not authorize the imposition of both fine and imprisonment. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1053, 21 S. E. 502.

Defendant's contention that he was subjected to cruel and unusual punishment in that the trial court sentenced him to the maximum prison term permitted by statute for the offense of seduction of which he was convicted, and in addition dictated a letter to the parole commissioner in which he requested that no clemency be extended defendant, and also directed the solicitor to institute prosecution against defendant for failure to support his illegitimate child, is untenable, since the letter to the parole commissioner and the instructions to the solicitor are not parts of the sentence imposed. State v. Brackett, 218 N. C. 369, 11 S. E. (2d) 146.

§ 14-181. Miscegenation.—All marriages between a white person and a negro, or between a white person and a person of negro descent to the third generation inclusive, are forever prohibited, and shall be void. Any person violating this section shall be guilty of an infamous crime, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years, and may also be fined, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3369; Code, s. 1084; Const., Art. XIV, s. 8; R. C., c. 68, s. 7; 1834, c. 24; 1838-9, c. 24; C. S. 4340.)

Editor's Note.—Under the act of 1838-9, ch. 24, declaring void all marriages between white persons and free negroes and persons of color, all marriages between white persons and Indians were void, if within the third degree, and any violation thereof was punishable by indictment for fornication. State v. Melton, 44 N. C. 49.

The law has not been affected by the changes in the State or Federal Constitution. See State v. Puit, 94 N. C. 709, 718, and cases there cited.

Domicile in This State.—A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in this State, and who leave it for the purpose of evading this law and with intent to return, is not valid in this State. State v. Kennedy, 76 N. C. 251; State v. Ross, 76 N. C. 242.

Domicile in Another State.—A marriage solemnized in a State whose laws permit such marriage between a negro and a white person domiciled in such State is valid in this State. State v. Ross, 76 N. C. 242.

Evidence.—It was not error to admit evidence that the wife was reputed to be of mixed blood within the prohibited degrees, or to permit the witness to state his opinion on that point, although he was not an expert. It was also competent corroboration of other evidence tending to show the taint of blood to show that the wife usually associated with colored people. Hopkins v. Bowers, 111 N. C. 175, 16 S. E. 1.

§ 14-182. Issuing license for marriage between white person and negro; performing marriage ceremony.—If any register of deeds shall knowingly issue any license for marriage between any person of color and a white person; or if any clergyman, minister of the gospel or justice of the peace shall knowingly marry any such person of color to a white person, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3370; Code, s. 1085; R. C., c. 34, s. 80; 1830, c. 4, s. 2; C. S. 4341.)

§ 14-183. Bigamy.—If any person, being married, shall marry any other person during the life of the former husband or wife, every such offender, and every person counseling, aiding or abetting such offender, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail for any term not less than four months nor more than ten years. Any such offense may be dealt with, tried, determined and punished in the county where the offender shall be apprehended, or be in custody, as if the offense had been actually committed in that county. If any person, being married, shall contract a marriage with any other person outside of this state, which marriage would be punishable as bigamous if contracted within this state, and shall thereafter cohabit with such person in this state, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be punished as in cases of bigamy. Nothing contained in this section shall extend to any person marrying a second time, whose husband or wife shall have been continually absent from such person for the space of seven years then last past, and shall not have been known by such person to have been living within that time; nor to any person who at the time of such second marriage shall have been lawfully divorced from the bond of the first marriage; nor to any person whose former marriage shall have been declared void by the sentence of any court of competent jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 3361; Code, s. 988; R. C., c. 34, s. 15; 1790, c. 323; 1809, c. 783; 1829, c. 9; 1913, c. 26. See 9 Geo. IV, c. 31, s. 22; C. S. 4342.)

Editor's Note.—At common law, the second marriage was always void and from the earliest history of England polygamy has been treated as an offense against society. It is considered as a crime against the marital relation rather than against the wife. Bigamy and polygamy are likewise crimes by the laws of all civilized and Christian countries.

Mr. Chief Justice Waite said: "From that day (the date of the enactment of the bigamy statute in Virginia, 12 Henr. 8's Stat. 691), to this we think it may safely be said there never has been a time in any state of the Union when polygamy has not been an offense against society, cognizable by the civil courts and punishable with more or less severity." Reynolds v. United States, 98 U. S. 145, 165, 25 L. Ed. 244.

Offense against Society.—At common law and under this section bigamy is an offense against society rather than against the lawful spouse of the offender. State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769, reversed on other grounds in Williams v. North Carolina, 317 U. S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 189.

Constitutes a Felony.—While at common law bigamy was not an indictable offense, and even as late as the enactment of 1885, it was only a misdemeanor, it is now a felony under this statute. State v. Burns, 90 N. C. 707.

Necessity of Valid Marriage.—That the first marriage was celebrated without procurement of a license, while subjecting the parties to punishment, will not so invalidate the marriage so that bigamy cannot be predicated thereon. State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23.

In a trial for bigamy, an instruction that defendant could not be convicted, unless the jury was satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that the magistrate who solemnized the first marriage was a "duly appointed, qualified, and acting justice of the peace," was properly refused, it being sufficient if such justice was a de facto officer. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

The evidence showing that there were a number of eyewitnesses to the marriage, and a certified copy of the license with return endorsed being produced, it was not error to charge the jury that it would be presumed the ceremony was valid. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Belief That First Wife Is Dead.—A belief by the defendant that his first wife is dead or his ignorance of her being alive, she having been away for less than seven years, is no defense in a prosecution for bigamy. State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Absence of Wife.—"The burden is on the defendant to show as a matter of defense that his wife had absented herself for the space of seven years next before the second marriage, and that he was ignorant all that time that she was living." State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Admissions as to Prior Marriage.—In a prosecution for bigamy an admission of the defendant is competent to prove the first marriage. State v. Goulden, 134 N. C. 743, 47 S. E. 450.

Where a defendant charged with bigamy, upon the preliminary examination before a Justice of Peace, and after being cautioned that his statements could be used against him, stated that he had been married to his former wife while a slave in South Carolina, had children by her and was subsequently married in North Carolina to his present wife, such admissions were competent to go to the jury, on his trial in the superior court, as to his guilt. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933.

Testimony of First Wife.—In an indictment for bigamy the first wife of the defendant is a competent witness to prove the marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933.

The record book of marriage for the county or the original marriage license signed by the Justice solemnizing the marriage is admissible to prove a marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933.

Second Marriage out of State.—It was held formerly that the courts of this State could not take jurisdiction of the case where the second marriage took place out of the State. See State v. Barnett, 83 N. C. 615, 616. Subsequent to this decision a clause was inserted in the section in furtherance of a purpose to make the offense cognizable "whether the second marriage shall have taken place in the State of North Carolina, or elsewhere." This clause, in State v. Cutshall, 110 N. C. 538, 15 S. E. 261, was held unconstitutional insofar as it attempted to make a second marriage bigamous which occurred out of the State without proving that the parties afterwards cohabited in North Carolina. The constitutionality of the section was upheld in State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 57 S. E. 349, but from the statement of facts in that case it appears that while the second marriage took place in South Carolina the parties subjected themselves to the jurisdiction of this State by living here for four weeks thereafter. In State v. Ray, 151 N. C. 710, 66 S. E. 204, the authorities are reviewed and it is held (Clark, C. J., dissenting) that the words "or elsewhere," in the clause just quoted, were void. In recognition of these decisions the legislature, by the Public Laws of 1913, c. 26, amended the section and added the words "shall thereafter cohabit with such person in this State," which qualify and constitute a requisite to the jurisdiction when the second marriage is not in North Carolina. It has been held that this amendment is constitutional and does not confer extraterritorial jurisdiction upon the courts. See State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 754, 94 S. E. 698; State v. Moon, 178 N. C. 715, 100 S. E. 614.

Same—Pleading and Proof.—If the defendant wishes to rely upon the fact that the offense of bigamy was committed outside the state, he can not move to quash or in arrest, but must prove the fact in defense under his plea of not guilty. State v. Barrington, 141 N. C. 820, 53 S. E. 663; State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 575, 576, 50 S. E. 214; State v. Mitchell, 83 N. C. 674; State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 57 S. E. 349.

Foreign Divorces.—Where a decree of divorce in another state, which is attacked by the prosecution for insufficient residence in such other state, is relied upon as the only defense on a trial for bigamy, the defendant must satisfy the jury, but not beyond a reasonable doubt, of the bona fides of his residence in the other state. State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 754, 94 S. E. 698.

A man and a woman went from this state to Nevada and, after residing there for a time sufficient to meet the requirement of a Nevada statute, secured decrees from a Nevada court, divorcing them from their respective spouses, in this state, in which they had been married and domiciled. They then married each other in Nevada, returned to this state and cohabited there as man and wife. Prosecuted under this section for bigamous cohabitation, they set up in defense the Nevada decrees. A general verdict was returned, after instructions permitting that the decrees be disregarded upon either of two grounds, (1) that a Nevada divorce decree based on substituted service, where defendant made no appearance, could not be recognized in this state, and (2) that defendants went to Nevada, not to es-establish bona fide residence, but solely for the purpose of taking advantage of the laws of that state to obtain a divorce through a fraud upon the Nevada court. It was held that, as it could not be determined on the record that the verdict was not based solely upon the first ground—involving a construction and application of the Federal Constitution—the review in the supreme court of the United States must be of that ground, leaving the other out of consideration. Williams v. North Carolina, 317 U. S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 189, reversing 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769.

Proof of a divorce granted in another State, upon a trial for bigamy, in our own courts is only evidence which should be submitted to the jury under proper instructions. State v. Herron, 175 N. C. 754, 94 S. E. 698.

The Indictment.—An indictment for bigamy which charges that defendant “willfully, unlawfully and feloniously, being a married man, did marry one W. during the life of his first wife,” sufficiently avers the first marriage. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Same—Name of First Wife.—It is not necessary, in an indictment for bigamy, to set out the name of the first wife. State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55.

Same—Negating Divorce Unnecessary.—It was not necessary that an indictment for bigamy should contain an averment that the defendant had not been divorced from his wife. State v. Norman, 13 N. C. 222; State v. Davis, 109 N. C. 780, 14 S. E. 55; State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 596, 26 S. E. 933.

Same—Time and Place of Marriage.—This section does not by its language make it necessary for the indictment to state the dates of the marriages, and section 15-155 expressly enacts that such a statement shall not be necessary. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 671, 57 S. E. 349.

Under this section it is unnecessary to state where the second marriage took place, and it is not necessary that the offense should be committed in the county where the bill is found to confer jurisdiction. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 671, 57 S. E. 349.

Bill of Particulars.—As in other offenses a bill of particulars is necessary if defendant desires further information upon which to prepare his defense. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 671, 57 S. E. 349.

Venue.—Defendant may be prosecuted for bigamy in the county in which he is apprehended, and it is not required that the prosecution be instituted in the county in which the bigamous cohabitation takes place. State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769, reversed on other grounds in Williams v. North Carolina, 317 U. S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 189.

§ 14-184. Fornication and adultery.—If any man and woman, not being married to each other, shall lewdly and lasciviously associate, bed and cohabit together, they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that the admissions or confessions of one shall not be received in evidence against the other. (Rev., s. 3350; Code, s. 1041; R. C., c. 34, s. 45; 1805, c. 684; C. S. 4343.)

General Consideration.—Adultery is an aggravated species of fornication. State v. Crowell, 26 N. C. 231, 232. Fornication occurs upon cohabitation after miscegenation. See § 14-181 and notes thereto.

The Indictment.—The use of the word “adulterously” dispenses with the necessity of alleging that the parties were not married (State v. McDuffie, 107 N. C. 885, 12 S. E. 83) and were of different sex. State v. Britt, 150 N. C. 811, 812, 62 S. E. 1056. The words “lewdly and lasciviously” need not be used. Id. The state is not called upon to allege or prove the criminal intent. State v. Cutshall, 109 N. C. 764, 14 S. E. 107. The fact that the female is erroneously alleged to be a “spinster” is not ground of arrest. State v. Guest, 100 N. C. 410, 6 S. E. 253.

Evidence.—The admissions or confessions of one party are not to be received against the codefendant. State v. Rhinehart, 106 N. C. 787, 11 S. E. 512. However, it has been held that under certain circumstances such declarations are admissible when made by the female defendant in the presence of the male. See State v. Roberts, 188 N. C. 460, 124 S. E. 833.

It is competent to prove that either defendant had a living spouse. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661. Statements and conduct prior to the offense charged are admissible; State v. Austin, 108 N. C. 780, 13 S. E. 219, as is also testimony as to conduct of the parties after indictment. State v. Stubbs, 108 N. C. 774, 13 S. E. 90.

Acquittal as to One Party.—Where only one party is convicted and the other acquitted, there can be no judgment against the one convicted. State v. Mainor, 28 N. C. 340.

This holding was followed in the case of State v. Lyrerly, 52 N. C. 158, and was held as law in this state until doubted in the opinion of Mr. Justice Davis in State v. Rhinehart, 106 N. C. 787, 11 S. E. 512. The question came before the court again in State v. Cutshall, 109 N. C. 764, 14 S. E. 107, when it was held that an acquittal of one defendant did not work the same result as to the other, or prevent the court from rendering judgment. This seems to be the present status of the law on this point. It was followed in State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567.

Both Convicted—New Trial as to One.—Following a line of reasoning similar to that discussed in the foregoing paragraph, the court in State v. Parham, 50 N. C. 416, 417, held that if both defendants are convicted, a new trial may be granted as to one party without disturbing the verdict as to the other.

Punishment.—In fixing the punishment of persons convicted under this section, the courts have looked to the provisions of section 14-3 which prescribes the punishment of misdemeanors for which a specific punishment has not been fixed.—Ed. Note.

Persons convicted of fornication and adultery may be imprisoned in the common jail for a period to be fixed in the discretion of the court. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 61, 662, citing State v. McNeal, 75 N. C. 15; State v. Jackson, 82 N. C. 565.

The court has power, during the term, to correct or modify an unexecuted judgment in criminal as well as in civil actions. State v. Manly, 95 N. C. 661, 663. See also, In re Brittain, 93 N. C. 587.

Applied in State v. Miller, 214 N. C. 317, 199 S. E. 89.

§ 14-185. Inducing female persons to enter hotels or boarding-houses for immoral purposes.—Any person who shall knowingly persuade, induce or entice, or cause to be persuaded, induced or enticed, any woman or girl to enter a hotel, public inn or boarding-house for the purpose of prostitution or debauchery or for any other immoral purpose, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 158, s. 1; C. S. 4344.)

§ 14-186. Opposite sexes occupying same bedroom at hotel for immoral purposes; falsely registering as husband and wife.—Any man and woman found occupying the same bedroom in any hotel, public inn or boarding-house for any immoral purpose, or any man and woman falsely registering as, or otherwise representing themselves to be, husband and wife in any hotel, public inn or boarding-house, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 158, s. 2; C. S. 4345.)

§ 14-187. Permitting unmarried female under eighteen in house of prostitution.—Whoever, being the keeper of a house of prostitution, or assignment house, building or premises in this state where prostitution, fornication or concubinage is allowed or practiced, shall suffer or permit any unmarried female under the age of eighteen years to live, board, stop, or room in such house, building or premises, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761, s. 18; C. S. 4346.)

§ 14-188. Certain evidence relative to keeping disorderly houses admissible; keepers of such houses defined.—On a prosecution in any court for keeping a disorderly house or bawdy-house, or permitting a house to be used as a bawdy-house, or used in such a way as to make it disorderly, or a common nuisance, evidence of the general reputation or character of the house shall be admissible and competent; and evidence of the lewd, dissolute and boisterous conversation of the inmates and frequenters, while in and around such house, shall be prima facie evidence of the bad character of the inmates and frequenters, and of the disorderly character of the house. The manager or person having the care, superintendency or government of a disorderly house or bawdy-house is the "keeper" thereof, and one who employs another to manage and conduct a disorderly house or bawdy-house is also "keeper" thereof. (1907, c. 779; C. S. 4347.)

Constitutionality.—This section is constitutional. State v. Price, 175 N. C. 804, 95 S. E. 478.

Disorderly House Defined.—Illustrations.—A disorderly house is kept in such a way as to disturb or scandalize the public generally, or the inhabitants of a particular neighborhood, or the passers-by. State v. Wilson, 93 N. C. 608.

A few of the decided cases are given here in order that the counsel may have an idea as to what situations and conditions have been held to be included in the definition set out in the above paragraph.

The following have been held to constitute disorderly houses: A shop in which disorderly crowds assemble. State v. Robertson, 86 N. C. 628. A store in which persons collect and disturb the neighborhood. State v. Thornton, 44 N. C. 252.

The following have been held not to constitute disorderly houses: A private dwelling wherein an uproar was frequently raised but which disturbed few people. State v. Wright, 51 N. C. 25. The residence of an unchaste woman. State v. Evans, 27 N. C. 603.

Persons Leasing Premises as a "Keeper."—A person who leases a house knowing that it is to be used for disorderly and unlawful purposes is treated as a direct offender. State v. Boyd, 175 N. C. 791, 95 S. E. 161.

Powers of City Authorities.—The extent of the powers of the authorities of a municipality to enact ordinances concerning houses of ill-fame is discussed by Mr. Justice Avery in State v. Webber, 107 N. C. 962, 12 S. E. 598.

Evidence.—This section authorizes the admission of evidence tending to show the lewd, dissolute, and boisterous conversation of the inmates and frequenters of the house, and especially provides that evidence of the general reputation or character of the house shall be admissible and competent. State v. Hilderbran, 201 N. C. 780, 161 S. E. 488.

§ 14-189. Obscene literature.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to exhibit for the purpose of gain, or display for sale, lend or hire, or otherwise publish or sell for the purpose of gain, or exhibit in any school, college, or other institution of learning, or have in his possession for the purpose of sale or distribution, any obscene literature, as determined and defined in the postal laws and regulations of the United States post office department, in the form of book, paper-writing, print, drawing, or other representation, at any newsstand, book store, drug store or other public or private places; or if any person shall post any indecent placards, writings, pictures or drawings on walls, fences, billboards or other public or private places, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3731; 1885, c. 125; 1907, c. 502; 1935, c. 57; C. S. 4348.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 made many changes in this section and a comparison is necessary to determine its full extent. Prior to the amendment, the section also covered the offense of indecent exposure. This is now the subject of section 14-190.

Test of Immorality.—It has been suggested that the test of immorality is whether the literature "has a tendency to shock the moral sense of the average, normal head of a family." If such a test would prevent the publication of writings of an educational value on sex hygiene, commercialized vice and the like, the remedy would be a matter for the legislature, since the Constitution only prevents restrictions upon, and not enlargement of, the right to publish. 4 N. C. Law Rev. 33.

§ 14-190. Indecent exposure; immoral shows, etc.—Any person who in any place wilfully exposes his person, or private parts thereof, in the presence of one or more persons of the opposite sex whose person, or the private parts thereof, are similarly exposed, or who aids or abets in any such act, or who procures another so as to expose his person, or the private parts thereof, or take part in any immoral show, exhibition or performance where indecent, immoral or lewd dances or plays are conducted in any booth, tent, room or other public or private place to which the public is invited; or any person, who, as owner, manager, lessee, director, promoter or agent, or in any other capacity, hires, leases or permits the land, buildings, or premises of which he is owner, lessee or tenant, or over which he has control, to be used for any such immoral purposes, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person who shall wilfully make any indecent public exposure of the private parts, of his or her person in any public place or highway shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3731; 1885, c. 125; 1907, c. 502; 1935, c. 57; 1941, c. 273; C. S. 4348(a).)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the last sentence to this section. For comment on the amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 479.

§ 14-191. Sheriffs and deputies to report violations of two preceding sections.—It shall be the duty of the sheriffs and their deputies of the various counties to see that the provisions of §§ 14-189 and 14-190 are enforced by reporting violations of said sections to the presiding judge of a superior court, county or municipal court, or justice of the peace, who shall have warrants issued to cause such violators to come before their courts for immediate trial. (1935, c. 57.)

Editor's Note.—The case treated under this section was decided under section 14-189 as it read prior to the 1935 amendment. Prior to the enactment of this section there was no provision providing for the enforcement of section 14-189.

Powers of Officers.—Under section 14-189 it was held that the chief of police and his lawful officers or subordinates had the right to prevent or suppress an indecent or immoral show, given in any public place or in any place to which the public were invited and, in the proper discharge of these duties, they could act immediately whenever such exhibitions were taking place in their presence or were imminent and their interference was required to prevent them. Brewer v. Wynne, 163 N. C. 319, 79 S. E. 629.

§ 14-192. Cutting or painting obscene words or pictures near public places.—It shall be unlawful for any person to write, cut or carve any indecent word, or to paint, cut or carve any obscene or lewd picture or representation, on any tree or other object near the public highways or other public places. Any person guilty of violating this section shall be fined not more than fifty dollars, or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1907, c. 344; C. S. 4349.)

§ 14-193. Exhibition of obscene or immoral pictures; posting of advertisements.—If any person, firm, or corporation shall, for the purpose of gain or otherwise, exhibit any obscene or immoral motion pictures; or if any person, firm or corporation shall post any obscene or immoral placard, writings, pictures, or drawings on walls, fences, billboards, or other places, advertising theatrical exhibitions or moving picture exhibitions or shows; or if any person, firm, or corporation shall permit such obscene or immoral exhibitions to be conducted in any tent, booth, or other place or building owned or controlled by said person, firm, or corporation, the person, firm, or corporation performing either one or all of the said acts shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punishable in the discretion of the court. For the purpose of enforcing this statute any spectator at the exhibition of an obscene or immoral moving picture may make the necessary affidavit upon which the warrant for said offense is issued. (1921, c. 212; C. S. 4349(a).)

§ 14-194. Circulating publications barred from the mails.—It shall be unlawful for any news agent, news dealer, book-seller, or any other person, firm, or corporation to offer for sale, sell, or cause to be circulated within the State of North Carolina any magazine, periodical, or other publication which is now or may hereafter be excluded from the United States mails.

It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to offer for sale, sell, or give to any person under the age of twenty-one years any such magazine, periodical, or other publication which is now or may hereafter be excluded from the United States mails.

This section shall not be construed to in any way conflict with or abridge the freedom of the press, and shall in no way affect any publication which is permitted to be sent through the United States mails.

Any person, firm, or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 45.)

Editor's Note.—A practical criticism of the effect of this section upon the freedom of the press will be found in 4 N. C. Law Rev. 35. See also the review in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 26.

§ 14-195. Using profane or indecent language on passenger trains.—It shall be unlawful for any person to curse or use profane or indecent language on any passenger train. Any person so offending shall upon conviction be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1907, c. 470, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4350.)

§ 14-196. Using profane or indecent language to female telephone operators.—It shall be unlawful for any person to use any lewd or profane words, or any words of vulgarity, or to use indecent language to any female telephone operator operating any telephone, switchboard, circuit or line. Any person violating this section shall upon conviction be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 35; 1915, c. 41; C. S. 4351.)

§ 14-197. Using profane or indecent language on public highways, counties exempt.—If any person shall, on any public road or highway and in the hearing of two or more persons, in a loud and boisterous manner, use indecent or profane language, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. The following counties shall be exempted from the provisions of this section: Beaufort, Brunswick, Camden, Cleveland, Craven, Dare, Macon, Martin, Orange, Pasquotank, Pitt, Stanly, Swain, Transylvania, Tyrell, Washington and Watauga. (1913, c. 40; Pub. Loc. Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 65; 1933, c. 309; 1937, c. 9; 1939, c. 73; C. S. 4352.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 309, omitted Gates from the list of excepted counties.

The 1937 amendment struck out Perquimans and the 1939 amendment struck out Jones.

§ 14-198. Lewd women within three miles of colleges and boarding-schools.—If any loose woman or woman of ill-fame shall commit any act of lewdness with or in the presence of any student, who is under twenty-one years old, of any boarding-school or college, within three miles of such school or college, she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. Upon the trial of any such case students may be competent but not compellable to give evidence. No prosecution shall be had under this section after the lapse of six months. (Rev., s. 3353; 1889, c. 523; C. S. 4353.)

§ 14-199. Obstructing way to places of public worship.—If any person shall maliciously stop up or obstruct the way leading to any place of public worship, or to any spring or well commonly used by the congregation, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3776; Code, s. 3669; R. C., c. 97, s. 5; 1785, c. 241; C. S. 4354.)

Cross References.—As to procedure for laying out church roads, see § 136-71. As to obstruction of such highway, see § 136-90 and annotations thereto.

§ 14-200. Disturbing religious assembly by certain exhibitions.—If any person shall bring within half a mile of any place where the people are assembled for divine worship, and stop for exhibition, any stallion or jack, or shall bring within that distance any natural or artificial curiosities and there exhibit them, he shall forfeit and pay to any one who will sue therefor the sum of twenty dollars and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit such exhibitions at any time if made within the limits of any incorporated town, or without such limits if made before the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon or after three o'clock in the afternoon. (Rev., s. 3705; Code, s. 3670; R. C., c. 97, s. 6; 1809, c. 779, s. 1; 1907, c. 412; C. S. 4355.)

Local Modification.—Dare, Hatteras township: C. S. 4355.

§ 14-201. Permitting stone-horses and stone-mules to run at large.—If any person shall let any stone-horse or stone-mule of two years old or upwards run at large, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3323; Code, s. 2325; R. C., c. 17, s. 6; 1907, c. 412; C. S. 4356.)

Local Modification.—Dare, Hatteras township: C. S. 4356.

§ 14-202. Secretly peeping into room occupied by woman.—Any person who shall peep secretly into any room occupied by a woman shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 78; C. S. 4356(a).)

Editor's Note.—It was suggested in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 286 that although this law is made to apply generally to all persons, it is believed that it will not interfere with police officers or detectives who may be compelled to violate the letter of the law to get evidence.

Art. 27. Prostitution.

§ 14-203. Definition of terms.—The term "prostitution" shall be construed to include the offering or receiving of the body for sexual intercourse for hire, and shall also be construed to include the offering or receiving of the body for indiscriminate sexual intercourse without hire. The term "assignment" shall be construed to include the making of any appointment or engagement for prostitution or any act in furtherance of such appointment or engagement. (1919, c. 215, s. 2; C. S. 4357.)

Quoted in State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. (2d) 358.

Cited in State v. Fletcher, 199 N. C. 815, 155 S. E. 927.

§ 14-204. Prostitution and various acts abetting prostitution unlawful.—It shall be unlawful:

1. To keep, set up, maintain, or operate any place, structure, building or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignment.

2. To occupy any place, structure, building, or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignment; or for any person to permit any place, structure, building or conveyance owned by him or under his control to be used for the purpose of prostitution or assignment, with knowledge or reasonable cause to know that the same is, or is to be, used for such purpose.

3. To receive, or to offer or agree to receive any person into any place, structure, building, or conveyance for the purpose of prostitution or assignment, or to permit any person to remain there for such purpose.

4. To direct, take, or transport, or to offer or agree to take or transport, any person to any place, structure, or building or to any other person, with knowledge or reasonable cause to know that the purpose of such directing, taking, or transporting is prostitution or assignment.

5. To procure, or to solicit, or to offer to procure or solicit for the purpose of prostitution or assignment.

6. To reside in, enter, or remain in any place, structure, or building, or to enter or remain in any conveyance, for the purpose of prostitution or assignment.

7. To engage in prostitution or assignment, or to aid or abet prostitution or assignment by any means whatsoever. (1919, c. 215, s. 1; C. S. 4358.)

Cross Reference.—As to declaring houses of prostitution to be nuisances, see § 19-1.

Transporting.—Where defendants, taxi drivers, were apprehended in a clearing in the woods, each under the wheel of his taxi with motor running, and carrying soldiers, the evidence of the character of the scene and the other circumstantial evidence was sufficient to support the inference that defendants knew their destination and brought their passengers to the place for the purpose of engaging in prostitution. State v. Willis, 220 N. C. 712, 18 S. E. (2d) 118.

Aiding and Abetting.—A warrant alleging that defendant on a particular day in the designated county "did unlawfully, and willfully aid and abet in the prostitution and assignment contrary to the form of the statute and against the peace and dignity of the state" follows the language of subsection 7 of this section, and is sufficient to charge the offense therein proscribed. State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. (2d) 358.

Competency of Evidence.—Evidence of the reputation of the upstairs of a building owned by defendant, and of the persons frequenting it, is competent in a prosecution under this section. State v. Waggoner, 207 N. C. 306, 176 S. E. 566.

Cited in State v. Fletcher, 199 N. C. 815, 155 S. E. 927.

§ 14-205. Prosecution: in what courts.—Prosecutions for the violation of any of the provisions of this article shall be tried in the courts of this state wherein misdemeanors are triable except those courts the jurisdiction of which is so limited by the constitution of this state that such jurisdiction cannot by statute be extended to include criminal actions of the character herein described. (1919, c. 215, s. 6; C. S. 4359.)

§ 14-206. Reputation and prior conviction admissible as evidence.—In the trial of any person charged with a violation of any of the provisions of this article, testimony of a prior conviction, or testimony concerning the reputation of any place, structure, or building, and of the person or persons who reside in or frequent the same, and of the defendant, shall be admissible in evidence in support of the charge. (1919, c. 215, s. 3; C. S. 4360.)

§ 14-207. Degrees of guilt.—Any person who shall be found to have committed two or more violations of any of the provisions of § 14-204 of this article within a period of one year next preceding the date named in an indictment, information, or charge of violating any of the provisions of such section, shall be deemed guilty in the first degree. Any person who shall be found to have committed a single violation of any of the provisions of such section shall be deemed guilty in the second degree. (1919, c. 215, s. 4; C. S. 4361.)

Province of Judge.—When the degree of guilt has been properly ascertained the judge doubtless has the right to hear testimony for the purpose of fixing the terms of imprisonment within the limits of the statute; but this right does not extend to or include the finding by the judge of the degree of the offender's guilt. State v. Barnes, 122 N. C. 1031, 29 S. E. 381; State v. Lee, 192 N. C. 225, 134 S. E. 458; State v. Brinkley, 193 N. C. 747, 748, 138 S. E. 138.

§ 14-208. Punishment; probation; parole.—Any person who shall be deemed guilty in the first degree, as set forth in § 14-207, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and may be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court, or may be committed to any penal or reformatory institution in this state: Provided, that in case of a commitment to a reformatory institution, the commitment shall be made for an indeterminate period of time of not less than one nor more than three years in duration, and the board of managers or directors of the reformatory institution shall have authority to discharge or to place on parole any person so committed after the service of the minimum term or any part thereof, and to require the return to said institution for the balance of the maximum term of any person who shall violate the terms or conditions of the parole.

Any person who shall be deemed guilty in the second degree, as set forth in § 14-207, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court: Provided, that the defendant may be placed on probation in the care of a probation officer designated by law, or theretofore appointed by the court.

Probation or parole shall be granted or ordered in the case of a person infected with venereal disease only on such terms and conditions as shall insure medical treatment therefor and prevent the spread thereof, and the court may order any convicted defendant to be examined for venereal disease.

No girl or woman who shall be convicted under this article shall be placed on probation or on parole in the care or charge of any person except a woman probation officer. (1919, c. 215, s. 5; 1921, c. 101; C. S. 4362.)

Admission of Guilt—Effect on Time Limitation.—A defendant sentenced for the crime of prostitution upon his own admission of guilt, may not successfully resist a sentence therefor upon the ground that the offense charged in the indictment did not come within the period of time prescribed by the statute. State v. Brinkley, 193 N. C. 747, 138 S. E. 138.

SUBCHAPTER VIII. OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC JUSTICE.

Art. 28. Perjury.

§ 14-209. Punishment for perjury.—If any person shall willfully and corruptly commit perjury, on his oath or affirmation, in any suit, controversy, matter or cause, depending in any of the courts of the state, or in any deposition or affidavit taken pursuant to law, or in any oath or affirmation duly administered of or concerning any matter or thing whereof such person is lawfully required to be sworn or affirmed, every person so offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the county jail or state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3615; Code, s. 1092; R. C., c. 34, s. 49; 1791, c. 338, s. 1; C. S. 4364.)

Cross References.—As to form of bill for perjury, see § 15-145. As to false swearing by creditor in assignment for benefit of creditors, see § 23-9. As to swearing falsely in connection with an election, see § 163-197. As to false swearing in an investigation before the insurance commissioner, see § 69-3. As to false swearing in an investigation of trusts and combinations in restraint of trade, see § 75-12. As to making false affidavits in applications for motor vehicle licenses, see § 20-31. As to perjury in application for oyster license, see § 113-203. As to stevedore's false oath, see § 44-25. As to swearing falsely to official reports, see § 14-232.

Essential Elements.—The administration of an oath is an essential element of perjury. State v. Glisson, 93 N. C. 506. Another is jurisdiction of the court. Bolling v. Luther, 4 N. C. 635; State v. Wyatt, 3 N. C. 56; State v. Alexander, 11 N. C. 182, cited in note in 54 L. R. A. 513. The false testimony given must be material. State v. Cline, 146 N. C. 640, 61 S. E. 522.

Irregularity of Warrant Immaterial.—When perjury is charged to have been committed by a witness in the trial of a criminal proceeding which was begun by warrant, if the court had jurisdiction to investigate the offense charged, it is no defense that the warrant was issued without complaint or affidavit. State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74.

Burden of Proof on State.—The burden is not on the defendant in perjury to show the truth of the matter at issue, but the burden is on the state to show that it is false. State v. Cline, 150 N. C. 854, 64 S. E. 591.

Sufficient Evidence.—To prove the falsity of the oath, the evidence must not necessarily equal in weight the testimony of two witnesses. It is sufficient if there is the testimony of one witness and corroborative circumstances sufficient to turn the scale against the oath which is charged to have been false. State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74.

The direct oath of one witness and proof of declarations of the prisoner in an action for perjury are sufficient to convict. State v. Molier, 12 N. C. 263.

Where the defendant swears to an answer in a civil action before one authorized to administer the oath and the answer contains a false statement of fact, in order to convict him of perjury under the provisions of this section it must be shown that he "willfully and corruptly" committed the offense. State v. Dowd, 201 N. C. 714, 161 S. E. 205.

Formerly Called Misdemeanor.—The former provision in this section that the offence was a misdemeanor did not make it so for the punishment was felony punishment, and the offence was treated as a felony. State v. Hyman, 164 N. C. 411, 79 S. E. 284.

The Indictment.—See § 15-145 and notes thereto.

Cited in Grudger v. Penland, 108 N. C. 593, 13 S. E. 168.

§ 14-210. Subornation of perjury.—If any person shall, by any means, procure another person to commit such willful and corrupt perjury as is mentioned in § 14-209, the person so offending shall be punished in like manner as the person committing the perjury. (Rev., s. 3616; Code, s. 1093; R. C., c. 34, s. 50; 1791, c. 338, s. 2; C. S. 4365.)

Cross Reference.—As to bill for subornation of perjury, see § 15-146.

§ 14-211. Perjury before legislative committees.—If any person shall willfully and corruptly swear falsely to any fact material to the investigation of any matter before any committee of either house of the general assembly, he shall be subject to all the pains and penalties of willful and corrupt perjury, and, on conviction in the superior court of Wake county, shall be confined in the state's prison for the time prescribed by law for perjury. (Rev., s. 3611; Code, s. 2857; 1869-70, c. 5, s. 4; C. S. 4366.)

§ 14-212. Perjury in court-martial proceedings.—If any person shall willfully and corruptly swear falsely before any court-martial, touching and concerning any matter or thing cognizable before such court-martial, he shall be liable to the pains and penalties of perjury. (Rev., s. 3612; Code, s. 3235; R. C., c. 70, s. 73; 1812, c. 828, s. 3; C. S. 4367.)

§ 14-213. False oath to statement of insurance company.—Any person who shall make oath to a willfully false statement in the annual report or other statement required by law from an insurance company shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., s. 3493; 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 4368.)

§ 14-214. False oath to procure benefit of insurance policy or certificate.—Any person who shall wilfully and knowingly present or cause to be presented a false or fraudulent claim, or any proof in support of such claim, for the payment of a loss, or other benefits, upon a contract of insurance; or prepares, makes or subscribes to a false or fraudulent account, certificate, affidavit or proof of loss, or other document or writing, with intent that the same may be presented or used in support of such claim, shall be punishable by imprisonment for not more than five years or by a fine of not more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or by both such fine or imprisonment within the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3487; 1899, c. 54, s. 60; 1913, c. 89, s. 28; 1937, c. 248; C. S. 4369.)

Burden on the State.—The gravamen of the offense defined by this section is the willfully and knowingly presenting a false or fraudulent proof of claim for a loss upon a contract of insurance; and in the prosecution thereunder the burden is upon the state to prove that the claim for loss was false, that defendant knew it was false, and that, with such knowledge, he proceeded to make the claim for payment of insurance thereon. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 258, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

§ 14-215. False oath to statement required of fraternal benefit societies.—Any person who shall willfully make any false statement in any verified report or declaration under oath, required or authorized by law from fraternal benefit societies, shall be guilty of perjury. (1913, c. 89, s. 28; C. S. 4370.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 58-302.

§ 14-216. False oath to certificate of mutual fire insurance company.—Any person taking a false oath in respect to the certificate required by law before issuing policies in a mutual fire insurance company, that every subscription for insurance is genuine and made with an agreement that every subscriber will take the policies subscribed for by him within thirty days after granting a license to such company, shall be guilty of perjury. (Rev., ss. 4738, 4834; 1899, c. 54, s. 32; 1901, c. 391, ss. 3, 4; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; C. S. 4371.)

Cross Reference.—As to the oaths required of officers of a mutual fire insurance company, see § 58-92.

Art. 29. Bribery.

§ 14-217. Bribery of officials.—If any person holding office under the laws of this state who, except in payment of his legal salary, fees or perquisites, shall receive, or consent to receive, directly or indirectly, anything of value or personal advantage, or the promise thereof, for performing or omitting to perform any official act, or with the express or implied understanding that his official action, or omission to act, is to be in any degree influenced thereby, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for a term not exceeding five years, or fined not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3568; Code, s. 991; 1868-9, c. 176, s. 2; C. S. 4372.)

Cross References.—As to bank examiners' accepting bribes, see § 14-233. As to bribing agents and servants to violate duties owed employers, see § 14-353. As to bribery of baseball players, umpires, and officials, see § 14-373 et seq. As to when costs of prosecuting charges of bribery shall be paid by the state, see § 6-16.

"The distinction between bribery and extortion seems to be that the former offense consists in offering a present or receiving one, the latter in demanding a fee or present by color of office." State v. Pritchard, 107 N. C. 921, 12 S. E. 50.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An allegation in an indictment against a public officer for unlawfully receiving compensation for the performance of his duty, that defendant "did receive and consent to receive" such compensation, is sufficient and is not defective because of the use of "and" instead of "or" as used in the statute. State v. Wynne, 118 N. C. 1206, 24 S. E. 216.

Necessity of Proving Corrupt Intent.—On the trial of an officer for bribery in taking unlawful fees, it is necessary to prove a corrupt intent. State v. Pritchard, 107 N. C. 921, 12 S. E. 50.

Applied in State v. Cofer, 205 N. C. 653, 172 S. E. 176.

§ 14-218. Offering bribes.—If any person shall offer a bribe, whether it be accepted or not, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than five years in the state's prison or county jail, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3569; Code, s. 992; 1870-1, c. 232; C. S. 4373.)

Not Necessary that Bribed Juror Received Fee.—In a prosecution under this section it is not necessary that the indictment should charge that the juror received any fee or other compensation, the statutes making a distinction between bribery and an offer to bribe. State v. Noland, 204 N. C. 329, 168 S. E. 412. As to venue, see note to § 15-134. Cited in State v. Barkley, 198 N. C. 349, 151 S. E. 733.

§ 14-219. Bribery of legislators.—If any person shall directly or indirectly promise, offer or give, or cause or procure to be promised, offered or given, any money, bribe, present or reward, or any promise, contract, undertaking, obligation or security for the payment or delivery of any money, goods, right of action, bribe, present or reward, or any other valuable thing whatever, to any member of the senate or house of representatives of this state after his election as such member, and either before or after he shall have qualified and taken his seat, with intent to influence his vote or decision on any question, matter, cause or proceeding which may then be pending before the general assembly, or which may come before him for action in his capacity as a member of the general assembly, such person so offering, promising or giving, or causing or procuring to be promised, offered or given any such money, goods, bribe, present or reward, or any bond, contract, undertaking, obligation or security for the payment or delivery of any money, goods, bribe, present or reward, or other valuable thing whatever, and the member-elect who shall in anywise accept or receive the same or any part thereof, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined not exceeding double the amount so offered, promised or given, and imprisoned in the state's prison not exceeding five years, and the person convicted of so accepting or receiving the same, or any part thereof, shall forfeit his seat in the general assembly and shall be forever disqualified to hold any office of honor, trust or profit under this state. (Rev., s. 3570; Code, s. 2852; 1868-9, c. 176, s. 5; C. S. 4374.)

§ 14-220. Bribery of jurors.—If any juror, either directly or indirectly, shall take anything from the plaintiff or defendant in a civil suit, or from any defendant in a state prosecution, or from any other person, to give his verdict, every such juror, and the person who shall give such juror any fee or reward to influence his verdict, or induce or procure him to make any gain or profit by his verdict, shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3697; Code, s. 990; R. C., c. 34, s. 34; 5 Edw. III, c. 10; 34 Edw. III, c. 8; 38 Edw. III, c. 12; C. S. 4375.)

Art. 30. Obstructing Justice.

§ 14-221. Breaking or entering jails with intent to injure prisoners.—If any person shall conspire to break or enter any jail or other place of confinement of prisoners charged with crime or under sentence, for the purpose of killing or otherwise injuring any prisoner confined therein; or if any person shall engage in breaking or entering any such jail or other place of confinement of such prisoners with intent to kill or injure any prisoner, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, or upon a plea of guilty, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars, and imprisoned in the state's prison or the county jail not less than two nor more than fifteen years. (Rev., s. 3698; 1893, c. 461, s. 1; C. S. 4376.)

Cross References.—As to cost of investigating lynchings, see § 6-43. As to sheriff's duty to protect prisoner, see § 162-23. As to investigation of lynchings, see § 15-98 and § 114-15. As to venue, see § 15-128.

Conviction of Attempt.—On an indictment under this section as construed with sections 15-128 and 15-170, the defendant may be found guilty of an attempt. State v. Rumples, 178 N. C. 717, 100 S. E. 622.

Indictment Need Not Charge Accomplices.—It was error to quash a bill of indictment under this section which charged the defendant with conspiring "with others" to commit the crime of lynching, because it did not name the others or charge that they were unknown. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600. As to effect of splitting act of 1893, see note of this case under section 6-43.

Indictment in Adjoining County.—In an indictment for lynching it was error to quash the bill on the ground that it appeared on the face of the bill that the offense charged was not committed in the county in which the bill was found, but in an adjoining county. See sec. 15-128. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600.

§ 14-222. Refusal of witness to appear or to testify in investigations of lynchings.—If any person summoned as a witness in the investigation of a charge of lynching shall willfully fail to attend as a witness in obedience to the process served on him, or if, after being sworn, he shall refuse to answer questions pertinent to the matter being investigated before any tribunal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction, shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3699; 1893, c. 461, s. 3; C. S. 4377.)

Cross Reference.—As to privilege of witnesses, see § 15-99.

§ 14-223. Resisting officers.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully resist, delay or obstruct a public officer in discharging or attempting to discharge a duty of his office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3700; 1889, c. 51, s. 1; C. S. 4378.)

Cross References.—As to powers and duties of constable, see §§ 151-7 and 160-18. As to criminal authority of policemen, see § 160-21. As to arrest in general, see § 15-39 et seq.

Indictment in Two Counts.—An indictment having two counts, one against one person under this section, and the other against several persons under section 14-224, is defective, but if not objected to before a verdict which convicts on one count and acquits on the other, is not sufficient grounds for arrest of judgment, as the acquittal is equivalent to a nol. pros. State v. Perdue, 107 N. C. 853, 12 S. E. 253.

Quashing Indictment if Sufficient to Convict of Assault.—Where an indictment for resisting an officer is defective, as such it ought not to be quashed if the defendant may be convicted thereon for a simple assault. State v. Dunn, 109 N. C. 839, 13 S. E. 881.

Process Must Be Legal.—A person is not liable for resisting an unlawful arrest, as where the warrant lacked a seal and the officer did not state what he arrested him for. State v. Curtis, 2 N. C. 471.

Authority of Officer and Notice to Party.—“If the officer has no authority to make the arrest, or having the authority, is not known to be an officer and does not in some way notify the party that he is an officer and has authority, the party arrested may lawfully resist the arrest as if it were made by a private person.” State v. Belk, 76 N. C. 10, 14; State v. Kirby, 24 N. C. 201; State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327.

In a prosecution for resisting arrest under this section, a defense that the arrest was made by a constable outside of his township and that therefore defendant did not resist an officer in the performance of his duty is unavailing in view of § 151-7, and Art. IV, sec. 24 of the Constitution, a constable having authority to make an arrest anywhere in the county within which he is appointed. State v. Corpening, 207 N. C. 805, 178 S. E. 564.

Collector of Back Tax.—See State v. Alston, 127 N. C. 518, 37 S. E. 137.

Preventing Road Overseer Cutting Ditch.—See State v. New, 130 N. C. 731, 41 S. E. 1033.

Resisting Second Service of Warrant.—Defendant is not liable for assault and battery for resisting an entry into her house by an officer armed with a warrant which had once been served and returned, though defendant had entered into a recognizance and failed to appear. State v. Queen, 66 N. C. 615.

Persons Aiding and Abetting.—See State v. Morris, 10 N. C. 388.

§ 14-224. Failing to aid police officers.—If any person, after having been lawfully commanded to aid an officer in arresting any person, or in retaking any person who has escaped from legal custody, or in executing any legal process, willfully neglects or refuses to aid such officer, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3701; 1889, c. 51, s. 2; C. S. 4379.)

See note “Indictment in Two Counts” under preceding section.

Guilt of Party Arrested Immaterial.—The guilt or innocence of the party charged, or the false evidence on which the precept was based, does not impair this authority. Meeds v. Carver, 30 N. C. 298; State v. James, 30 N. C. 370. To the person summoned by a lawful officer to come to his aid in making an arrest it is absolutely immaterial and irrelevant what is the name of the party to be arrested or the nature of the offense.

“It is not for him to ask the reason why.” State v. Ditmore, 177 N. C. 592, 594, 99 S. E. 368.

Stated in Tomlinson v. Norwood, 208 N. C. 716, 182 S. E. 659.

§ 14-225. False, etc., reports to police radio broadcasting stations.—Any person who shall willfully make or cause to be made to a police radio broadcasting station any false, misleading or unfounded report, for the purpose of interfering with the operation thereof, or to hinder or obstruct any peace officer in the performance of his duty, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by imprisonment in the county jail not more than one year or by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 363.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 477.

§ 14-226. Intimidating or interfering with jurors and witnesses.—If any person shall by threats, menaces or in any other manner intimidate or attempt to intimidate any person who is summoned or acting as a juror or witness in any of the courts of this state, or prevent or deter, or attempt to prevent or deter any person summoned or acting as such juror or witness from attendance upon such court, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3696; 1891, c. 87; C. S. 4380.)

In General.—This section is additional to and not a repeal of the inherent power of the court to protect itself from interference by bribery or intimidation of its jurors or witnesses in both civil and criminal cases. In re Young, 137 N. C. 552, 50 S. E. 220.

§ 14-227. Failing to attend as witness before legislative committees.—If any person shall willfully fail or refuse to attend or produce papers, on summons of any committee of investigation of either house of the general assembly, either select or committee of the whole, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction in the superior court of the county in which such witness may reside or be found, he shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and shall be subject to imprisonment at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3692; Code, s. 2854; 1869-70, c. 5, s. 2; C. S. 4381.)

Art. 31. Misconduct in Public Office.

§ 14-228. Buying and selling offices.—If any person shall bargain away or sell an office or deputation of an office, or any part or parcel thereof, or shall take money, reward or other profit, directly or indirectly, or shall take any promise, covenant, bond or assurance for money, reward or other profit, for an office or the deputation of an office, or any part thereof, which office, or any part thereof, shall touch or concern the administration or execution of justice, or the receipt, collection, control or disbursement of the public revenue, or shall concern or touch any clerkship in any court of record wherein justice is administered; or if any person shall give or pay money, reward or other profit, or shall make any promise, agreement, bond or assurance for any of such offices, or for the deputations of any of them, or for any part of them, the person so offending in any of the cases aforesaid shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall forfeit all his right, interest and estate in such office, and every part and parcel thereof, and shall be imprisoned and fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3571; Code, s. 998; R. C., c. 34, s. 33; 5, 6 Edw. VI, c. 16, ss. 1, 5; C. S. 4382.)

Cross References.—As to sheriff letting to farm his office, see § 162-24. As to validity of bargain to sell an office, see § 128-3.

§ 14-229. Acting as officer before qualifying as such.—If any officer shall enter on the duties of his office before he executes and delivers to the authority entitled to receive the same the bonds required by law, and qualifies by taking and subscribing and filing in the proper office the oath of office prescribed, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be ejected from his office. (Rev., s. 3565; Code, s. 79; C. S. 4383.)

§ 14-230. Willfully failing to discharge duties.—If any clerk of any court of record, sheriff, justice of the peace, recorder, prosecuting attorney of any recorder's court, county commissioner, county surveyor, coroner, treasurer, constable or official of any of the state institutions, or of any county, city or town, shall willfully omit, neglect or refuse to discharge any of the duties of his office, for default whereof it is not elsewhere provided that he shall be indicted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If it shall be proved that such officer, after his qualification, willfully and corruptly omitted, neglected or refused to discharge any of the duties of his office, or willfully and corruptly violated his oath of office according to the true intent and meaning thereof, such officer shall be guilty of misbehavior in office, and shall be punished by removal therefrom under the sentence of the court as a part of the punishment for the offense, and shall also be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3592; 1901, c. 270, s. 2; 1943, c. 347; C. S. 4384.)

Cross References.—As to failure of county commissioners to perform duty, see § 153-15. As to failure of sheriff to make return, see § 14-242. As to prosecution of officers failing to discharge duties, see § 128-16 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment made this section applicable to recorders and prosecuting attorneys of recorder's courts.

In General.—"The law will not countenance or condone any attempt to defy its mandates. The private citizen must obey the law, and the public officer is not exempt from this duty by any special privilege appertaining to his office. He is not wiser than the law, nor is he above it. The truth is, that if he willfully neglects or omits to perform a public duty, he is liable to indictment at common law. State v. Commissioners, 4 N. C. 419; State v. Williams, 34 N. C. 172; State v. Com's, 48 N. C. 399; State v. Ferguson, 76 N. C. 197. If the neglect, omission, or refusal to discharge any of his official duties is willful and corrupt, it is criminal misbehavior, and subjects him to indictment for a misdemeanor and punishment by fine or imprisonment, and, as a part of the penalty, to removal from office." State ex rel. Battle v. Rocky Mount, 156 N. C. 329, 337, 72 S. E. 354.

Proceedings of Forfeiture under Section 1-515.—Forfeiture cannot be enforced by judgment of a motion from office as a part of the punishment, where the clerk has been convicted of a misdemeanor, under this section in willfully neglecting to discharge the duties of his office, but proceedings of forfeiture must be under section 1-515. State v. Norman, 82 N. C. 687.

Willful Neglect and Injury to Public.—It is to be observed that the essentials of the crime as prescribed are: first, a willful neglect in the discharge of official duty; and second, injury to the public. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 773, 147 S. E. 305.

Corrupt Intent Not Necessary.—It is not necessary to allege corrupt intent in a bill of indictment against county commissioners for neglect of duty in providing a necessary courthouse, and it is sufficient if the words of the statute are followed. State v. Loeper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585.

However honest the defendants may be (and their honesty is not called in question) the public have a right to be protected against the wrongful conduct of their servants, if there is carelessness amounting to a willful want of care in the discharge of their official duties, which injures the public. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 147 S. E. 305, quoting from State v. Hatch, 116 N. C. 1003, 21 S. E. 436.

Liability for Honest Errors.—It is so well settled that there is nothing to the contrary that an officer who has to exercise his judgment or discretion is not liable criminally for any error which he commits, provided he acts honestly. State v. Powers, 75 N. C. 281, 284.

"If the illegal act be done mala fide, then it becomes a crime, and the officer liable both civilly and criminally, but if free of any wicked intent, then he is civilly liable only." State v. Snuggs, 85 N. C. 542, 544.

Accused Must Show Good Faith.—Where a public officer is indicted for failure to perform a duty required by law, the law raises a presumption that such failure is wilful, and makes it incumbent upon him to rebut the presumption. State v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 505.

The Indictment.—It is required that the indictment under this section sufficiently charge the offense of which such officer is accused; and where the action is against the superintendent of a State hospital for the insane, and the indictment charges that he removed or caused to be removed patients to his private farm and caused them to be worked thereon, without allegation of injury to the public or to the patients, or of personal gain to the defendant, the indictment fails to charge facts sufficient to constitute an offense under the statute, and defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed. State v. Anderson, 196 N. C. 771, 147 S. E. 305.

Cited in Moffitt v. Davis, 205 N. C. 565, 570, 172 S. E. 317.

§ 14-231. Failing to make reports and discharge other duties.—If any state or county officer shall fail, neglect or refuse to make, file or publish any report, statement or other paper, or to deliver to his successor all books and other property belonging to his office, or to pay over or deliver to the proper person all moneys which come into his hands by virtue or color of his office, or to discharge any duty devolving upon him by virtue of his office and required of him by law, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3576; C. S. 4385.)

Cross References.—As to mandamus generally, see § 1-511 et seq. As to failure of sheriff to make return, see § 14-242. As to embezzlement by officers, see § 14-92. As to failure of a county officer to account for public funds, see §§ 153-47, 109-36, and 109-37.

Injurious Effect Not Necessary.—The crime exists although no injurious effects result to any individual because of the misconduct of the officer. State v. Glasgow, 1 N. C. 264.

Honesty of Purpose.—There may be neglect without corruption. Therefore honesty of purpose is not a full defense under this section. Turner v. McKee, 137 N. C. 251, 254, 49 S. E. 330, and cases there cited.

Enforcing Unconstitutional Law.—An officer is not liable for obeying the mandates of an unconstitutional statute. State v. Godwin, 123 N. C. 697, 31 S. E. 221.

Liability on Official Bonds.—See sections 109-33 et seq. and notes thereto.

Manager of Elections.—Any conduct of the manager of a primary election for county officials which interferes with the freedom or purity of the election is punishable at common law, and under this section. State v. Cole, 156 N. C. 618, 72 S. E. 221.

§ 14-232. Swearing falsely to official reports.—If any clerk, sheriff, register of deeds, county commissioner, county treasurer, justice of the peace, constable or other county officer shall willfully swear falsely to any report or statement required by law to be made or filed, concerning or touching the county, state or school revenue, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3605; Code, s. 731; 1874-5, c. 151, s. 4; 1876-7, c. 276, s. 4; C. S. 4386.)

§ 14-233. Making of false report by bank examiners; accepting bribes.—If any bank examiner shall knowingly and willfully make any false or fraudulent report of the condition of any bank, which shall have been examined by him, with the intent to aid or abet the officers, owners, or agents of such bank in continuing to operate an insolvent bank, or if any such examiner shall keep or accept any bribe or gratuity given for the purpose of inducing him not to file any report of examination of any bank made by him, or shall neglect to make an examination of any bank by reason of having received or accepted any bribe or gratuity, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3324; 1903, c. 275, s. 24; 1921, c. 4, s. 79; C. S. 4387.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of this section by Public Laws 1921, c. 4, sec. 79, effected one change. Prior to this amendment the offense was "receiving or accepting" any bribe instead of "keeping or accepting" any bribe as the section now reads. It is easy to see the change that this amendment brings about. By the prior law one was an offender if he received a bribe no matter what his purpose might be. If he received the bribe for the sole purpose of bringing the person offering the bribe to justice, he himself was guilty. Under such law it was hard to ascertain one who would bribe a bank examiner, for the act that would make the officer guilty of bribery would also make the examiner guilty of receiving a bribe. Now the offense is only the keeping and does not subject a bank examiner to punishment for accepting bribes in an attempt to ascertain and convict crooked bank officials.

§ 14-234. Director of public trust contracting for his own benefit.—If any person, appointed or elected a commissioner or director to discharge any trust wherein the state or any county, city or town may be in any manner interested, shall become an undertaker, or make any contract for his own benefit, under such authority, or be in any manner concerned or interested in making such contract, or in the profits thereof, either privately or openly, singly or jointly with another, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Provided, that this section shall not apply to public officials transacting business with banks or banking institutions in regular course of business: Provided further, that such undertaking or contracting shall be authorized by said governing board. (Rev., s. 3512; Code, s. 1011; R. C., c. 34, s. 38; 1825, c. 1269; 1826, c. 29; 1929, c. 19, s. 1; C. S. 4388.)

Cross Reference.—As to state highway and public works commissioner selling materials to the commission, see § 136-14.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the two provisos at the end of this section.

Effect of Special Validating Act.—Although municipal bonds were sold to a corporation controlled by the mayor, an act passed by the legislature expressly confirming and validating the sale removes all objections based upon the violation of the provisions of this section. Starmount Co. v. Ohio Sav. Bank, etc., Co., 55 F. (2d) 649.

Additional Service.—A member of the board of county commissioners cannot recover for services rendered the board in inspecting a bridge. Davidson v. Guilford County, 152 N. C. 436, 67 S. E. 918.

Officer of City and Corporation.—The prohibition of this section, extends to an officer of a corporation in making contracts between the corporation and the city of which he is commissioner or an alderman. State v. Williams, 153 N. C. 595, 68 S. E. 900.

Contracts between city when an alderman is an employee of the other contracting party are not covered by the section. State v. Weddell, 153 N. C. 587, 68 S. E. 897.

Contracts for Benefit of County.—A sheriff is not guilty of a misdemeanor where he purchases county claims at less than their value, but for the benefit of the county, at the instance of the county commissioners. State v. Garland, 134 N. C. 749, 47 S. E. 426.

§ 14-235. Speculating in claims against towns, cities and the state.—If any clerk, sheriff, register of deeds, county treasurer or other county, city, town or state officer shall engage in the purchasing of any county, city, town or state claim, including teacher's salary voucher, at a less price than its full and true value or at any rate of discount thereon, or be interested in any speculation on any such claim, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, and shall be liable to removal from office at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3575; Code, s. 1009; 1868-9, c. 260; 1923, c. 136, s. 208; C. S. 4389.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of this section by Public Laws 1923, c. 136, sec. 208, added "including teacher's salary voucher," and replaced the words "speculation in any such claim" with "speculation on any such claim."

§ 14-236. Acting as agent for those furnishing supplies for schools and other state institutions.—If any member of any board of directors, board of managers, board of trustees of any of the educational, charitable, eleemosynary or penal institutions of the state, or any member of any board of education, or any county or district superintendent or examiner of teachers, or any trustee of any school or other institution supported in whole or in part from any of the public funds of the state, or any officer, agent, manager, teacher or employee of such boards, shall have any pecuniary interest, either directly or indirectly, proximately or remotely in supplying any goods, wares or merchandise of any nature or kind whatsoever for any of said institutions or schools; or if any of such officers, agents, managers, teachers or employees of such institution or school or state or county officer shall act as agent for any manufacturer, merchant, dealer, publisher or author for any article of merchandise to be used by any of said institutions or schools; or shall receive, directly or indirectly, any gift, emolument, reward or promise of reward for his influence in recommending or procuring the use of any manufactured article, goods, wares or merchandise of any nature or kind whatsoever by any of such institutions or schools, he shall be forthwith removed from his position in the public service, and shall upon conviction be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and be imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3833; 1899, c. 732, s. 73; 1897, c. 543; C. S. 4390.)

Purchase of Property from Company Owned by Wife.—A member of the board of education of a county is not guilty under this section for voting as such member for the purchase of school buses from a company selling them owned by his wife, and in which he had no pecuniary interest and for which he worked upon a salary, when the sale was made by other agents of the company upon a commission basis. State v. Debnam, 196 N. C. 740, 146 S. E. 857.

§ 14-237. Buying school supplies from interested officer.—If any county board of education or school committee shall buy school supplies in which any member has a pecuniary interest, the members of such board shall be removed from their positions in the public service and shall, upon conviction, be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3835; 1901, c. 4, s. 69; C. S. 4391.)

§ 14-238. Soliciting during school hours without permission of school head.—No person, agent, representative or salesman shall solicit or attempt to sell or explain any article of property or proposition to any teacher or pupil of any public school on the school grounds or during the school day without having first secured the written permission and consent of the superintendent, principal or person actually in charge of the school and responsible for it.

Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 220.)

§ 14-239. Allowing prisoners to escape; burden of proof.—If any person charged with a crime or sentenced by the court upon conviction of any offense, shall be legally committed to any sheriff, constable or jailer, or shall be arrested by any sheriff, deputy sheriff or coroner acting as sheriff, by virtue of any capias issuing on a bill of indictment, information or other criminal proceeding, and such sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, constable or jailer, willfully or negligently, shall suffer such person, so charged or sentenced and committed, to escape out of his custody, the sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, constable or jailer so offending, being thereof convicted, shall be removed from office, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court before whom the trial may be had; and in all such cases it shall be sufficient, in support of the indictment against such sheriff or other officer, to prove that the person so charged or sentenced was committed to his custody, and it shall lie upon the defendant to show that such escape was not by his consent or negligence, but that he had used all legal means to prevent the same, and acted with proper care and diligence: Provided, that such removal of a sheriff shall not affect his duty or power as a collector of the public revenue, but he shall proceed on such duty and be accountable as if such conviction and removal had not been had. (Rev., s. 3577; Code, s. 1022; R. C., c. 34, s. 35; 1791, c. 343, s. 1; 1905, c. 350; C. S. 4393.)

Cross References.—See also, § 14-257. As to liability for escape under civil process, see § 162-21.

General Consideration.—This is a common law offense. State v. Ritchie, 107 N. C. 857, 12 S. E. 251. The statute contemplates two offenses—negligently permitting or willfully promoting the escape—but charging negligence alone will suffice, State v. McLain, 104 N. C. 894, 10 S. E. 518. The section changes the ordinary rule of the burden of proof by shifting such burden to the defendant. State v. Hunter, 94 N. C. 829; State v. Lewis, 113 N. C. 622, 18 S. E. 69. The question of good faith and diligence of the officer is for the jury. State v. Blockley, 131 N. C. 726, 42 S. E. 569.

Right to Kill to Prevent Escape.—The guard has no authority to kill one convicted of a misdemeanor while fleeing to escape, without his offering resistance or showing any menace or show of force in doing so, or, anything that would suggest danger to the person of the guard. Holloway v. Moser, 193 N. C. 185, 136 S. E. 375.

Where the escape is due to the negligence of an assistant the only question presented is whether the defendant has exercised due care in his selection. State v. Lewis, 113 N. C. 622, 18 S. E. 69.

§ 14-240. Solicitor to prosecute officer for escape.—It shall be the duty of solicitors, when they shall be informed or have knowledge of any felon, or person otherwise charged with any crime or offense against the state, having within their respective districts escaped out of the custody of any sheriff, deputy sheriff, coroner, constable or jailer, to take the necessary measures to prosecute such sheriff or other officer so offending. (Rev., s. 2822; Code, s. 1023; R. C., c. 34, s. 36; 1791, c. 343, s. 2; C. S. 4394.)

§ 14-241. Disposing of public documents or refusing to deliver them over to successor.—It shall be the duty of the clerk of the superior court of each county, and every other person to whom the acts of the general assembly, supreme court reports or other public documents are transmitted or deposited for the use of the county or the state, to keep the same safely in their respective offices; and if any such person having the custody of such books and documents, for the uses aforesaid, shall negligently and willfully dispose of the same, by sale or otherwise, or refuse to deliver over the same to his successor in office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine or imprisonment, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3598; Code, s. 1073; 1881, c. 151; C. S. 4395.)

§ 14-242. Failing to return process or making false return.—If any sheriff, constable or other officer, whether state or municipal, or any person who shall presume to act as any such officer, not being by law authorized so to do, refuse or neglect to return any precept, notice or process, to him tendered or delivered, which it is his duty to execute, or make a false return thereon, he shall forfeit and pay to anyone who will sue for the same one hundred dollars, and shall moreover be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3604; Code s. 1112; R. C., c. 34, s. 118; 1818, c. 980, s. 3; 1827, c. 20, s. 4; C. S. 4396.)

§ 14-243. Failing to surrender tax-list for inspection and correction.—If any sheriff or tax collector shall refuse or fail to surrender his tax-list for inspection or correction upon demand by the authorities imposing the tax, or their successors in office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned not more than five years, and fined not exceeding one thousand dollars, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3788; Code, s. 3823; 1870-1, c. 177, s. 2; C. S. 4397.)

§ 14-244. Failing to file report of fines or penalties.—If any officer who is by law required to file any report or statement of fines or penalties with the county board of education shall fail so to do at or before the time fixed by law for the filing of such report, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3579; 1901, c. 4, s. 62; C. S. 4398.)

Cross References.—As to misappropriation of fines, see § 115-182. As to treasurer of school fund failing to report, see § 115-174.

§ 14-245. Justices of the peace soliciting official business or patronage.—If any justice of the peace shall solicit official business, and/or patronage for his or her office, he or she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 58.)

§ 14-246. Failure of ex-justice of the peace to turn over books and papers.—If any justice of the peace, on expiration of his term of office, or if any personal representative of a deceased justice of the peace shall, after demand upon him by the clerk of the superior court, willfully fail and refuse to deliver to the clerk of the superior court all dockets, all law and other books, and all official papers which came into his hands by virtue or color of his office, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. § 14-247. Private use of publicly owned vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent or employee of the State of North Carolina, or of any county or of any institution or agency of the State, to use for any private purpose whatsoever any motor vehicle of any type or description whatsoever belonging to the State, or to any county, or to any institution or agency of the State. (1925, c. 239, s. 1.)

§ 14-248. Obtaining repairs and supplies for private vehicle at expense of State.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent or employee to have any privately owned motor vehicle repaired at any garage belonging to the State or to any county, or any institution or agency of the State, or to use any tires, oils, gasoline or other accessories purchased by the State, or any county, or any institution or agency of the State, in or on any such private car. (1925, c. 239, s. 2.)

§ 14-249. Limitation of amount expended for vehicle.—It shall be unlawful for any officer, agent, employee or department of the State of North Carolina, or of any county, or of any institution or agency of the State, to expend from the public treasury an amount in excess of fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500) for any motor vehicle other than motor trucks; except upon the approval of the Governor and Council of State: Provided, that nothing in §§ 14-247 through 14-251 shall be construed to authorize the purchase or maintenance of an automobile at the expense of the State by any State officer unless he is now authorized by statute to do so. (1925, c. 239, s. 3.)

§ 14-250. Publicly owned vehicle to be marked.—It shall be the duty of the executive head of every department of the State Government, and of any county, or of any institution or agency of the State, to have painted on every motor vehicle owned by the State, or by any county, or by any institution or agency of the State, a statement with letters of not less than three inches in height, that such car belongs to the State, or to some county, or institution or agency of the State, and that such car is "for official use only." Provided, however, that no automobile used by any officer or official in any county in the State for the purpose of transporting, apprehending or arresting persons charged with violations of the laws of the State of North Carolina, shall be required to be so lettered. (1925, c. 239, s. 4; 1929, c. 303, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1929 amendment added the proviso at the end of this section.

§ 14-251. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of sections 14-247 to 14-250 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), nor more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. Nothing in §§ 14-247 through 14-251 shall apply to the purchase, use or up-keep or expense account of the car for the executive mansion and the Governor. (1925, c. 239, s. 5.)

§ 14-252. Five preceding sections applicable to cities and towns.—Sections 14-247 through 14-251 in every respect shall also apply to cities and incorporated towns. (1931, c. 31.)

Art. 32. Misconduct in Private Office.

§ 14-253. Failure of certain railroad officers to account with successors.—If the president and directors of any railroad company, and any person acting under them, shall, upon demand, fail or refuse to account with the president and directors elected or appointed to succeed them, and to transfer to them forthwith all the money, books, papers, choses in action, property and effects of every kind and description belonging to such company, they shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state's prison for not less than one nor more than five years, and be fined at the discretion of the court. All persons conspiring with any such president, directors or their agents to defeat, delay or hinder the execution of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished in like manner. The governor is hereby authorized, at the request of the president, directors and other officers of any railroad company, to make requisition upon the governor of any other state for the apprehension of any such president failing to comply with this section. (Rev., s. 3760; Code, ss. 2001, 2002; 1870-1, c. 72, ss. 1-3; C. S. 4400.)

Cross Reference.—As to duty of railroad officials to account to successors, see § 60-20.

Not Applicable to Tax Bond.—As this section has reference only to money, books, choses, etc., an indictment can not be sustained against a former president of a railroad, for refusing to transfer to his successor in office certain special tax bonds. State v. Jones, 67 N. C. 210.

§ 14-254. Malfeasance of corporation officers and agents.—If any president, director, cashier, teller, clerk or agent of any corporation shall embezzle, abstract or willfully misapply any of the moneys, funds or credits of the corporation, or shall, without authority from the directors, issue or put forth any certificate of deposit, draw any order or bill of exchange, make any acceptance, assign any note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment or decree, or make any false entry in any book, report or statement of the corporation with the intent in either case to injure or defraud or to deceive any officer of the corporation, or if any person shall aid and abet in the doing of any of these things, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than four months nor more than fifteen years, and likewise fined, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3325; 1903, c. 275, s. 15; C. S. 4401.)

Cross Reference.—As to misapplication of funds by bank officers, see § 53-129.

Art. 33. Prison Breach and Prisoners.

§ 14-255. Escape of hired prisoners from custody.—If any prisoner, who shall be removed from the prison of the respective counties, cities and towns under the law providing for the hiring out of prisoners by counties and towns, shall escape from the person or company having him in custody, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be imprisoned at hard labor not more than thirty days, or fined not more than fifty dollars. (Rev., s. 3658; Code, s. 3455; 1876-7, c. 196, s. 4; C. S. 4403.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of counties, cities and towns to hire out prisoners, see §§ 153-191 to 153-193.

§ 14-256. Prison breach and escape.—If any person shall break prison, being lawfully confined therein, or shall escape from the custody of any superintendent, guard or officer, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3657; Code, s. 1021; R. C., c. 34, s. 19; 1 Edw. II, st. 2d; 1909, c. 872; C. S. 4404.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for escaping or assisting in an escape from the state prison, see § 148-45.

At Common Law.—The offense of breaking jail was a felony at common law, but by this section, all cases, no matter what the person is confined for, are reduced to a misdemeanor. State v. Brown, 82 N. C. 585.

Escape from Officer.—This section applies only to breaking prison or escaping therefrom and does not, because of its wording, include escape from an officer before being confined to prison. State v. Brown, 82 N. C. 585.

Cost of Recapture May Not Be Recovered from Prisoner.—The state may not recover of a prisoner moneys expended by it to recapture him after escape from custody, since the escape does not invade any property right of the state, but the expenditure of the sums is voluntary and made by it for the protection of the people of the state in preserving the integrity of the penal system. State Highway, etc., Comm. v. Cobb, 215 N. C. 556, 2 S. E. (2d) 565.

Cited in Holloway v. Moser, 193 N. C. 185, 136 S. E. 373.

§ 14-257. Permitting escape of or maltreating hired convicts.—If any person charged in any way with the control or management of convicts, hired for service outside of the state's prison, shall negligently permit them to escape, or shall maltreat them, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; but this provision shall not be held to relieve any person from any criminal liability. (Rev., s. 3659; Code, s. 3450; 1881, c. 127, s. 2; C. S. 4405.)

Cross Reference.—As to escape of prisoners from negligent officer's custody, see § 14-239.

Negligence Test of Guilt.—Officers and public agents will not be held to the rigorous common-law rule of responsibility for the custody of convicts employed in labors outside of the Penitentiary, actual negligence being the test of guilt. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 924.

Negligence Implied.—It is not necessary to prove negligence of the person having lawful custody of prisoners, for it is implied, unless occasioned by the act of God, or irresistible adverse force. State v. Johnson, 94 N. C. 924.

Cited in State v. Sneed, 94 N. C. 806, 809.

§ 14-258. Conveying messages and weapons to or trading with convicts and other prisoners.—If any person shall convey to or from any convict any letters or oral messages, or shall convey to any convict or person imprisoned, charged with crime and awaiting trial any weapon or instrument by which to effect an escape, or that will aid him in an assault or insurrection, or shall trade with a convict for his clothing or stolen goods, or shall sell to him any article forbidden him by prison rules, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that when a murder, an assault or an escape is effected with the means furnished, the person convicted of furnishing the means shall be sentenced to not less than four years hard labor in the state's prison. (Rev., s. 3662; Code, s. 3441; 1873-4, c. 158, s. 12; 1911, c. 11; C. S. 4406.)

Cross Reference.—As to furnishing prisoners with intoxicating liquors, narcotics, and fire arms, see § 14-390.

§ 14-259. Harboring or aiding escaped prisoners.—It shall be unlawful for any person knowing, or having reasonable cause to believe, that any other person has escaped from any prison, jail, reformatory, or from the criminal insane department of any state hospital, or from the custody of any peace officer who had such person in charge, or that such person is a convict or prisoner whose parole has been revoked, to conceal, hide, harbor, feed, clothe, or offer aid and comfort in any manner to any such person.

Every person who shall conceal, hide, harbor, feed, clothe, or offer aid and comfort to any other person in violation of this section shall be guilty of a felony, if such other person has been convicted of, or was in custody upon the charge of a felony, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the state prison not more than five years; and shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, if such other person had been convicted of, or was in custody upon a charge of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished in the discretion of the court.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to members of the immediate family of such escapee. For the purposes of this section "immediate family" shall be defined to be the mother, father, brother, sister, wife, husband and child of said escapee. (1939, c. 72.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 348.

§ 14-260. Injury to prisoner by jailer.—If the keeper of a jail shall do, or cause to be done, any wrong or injury to the prisoners committed to his custody, contrary to law, he shall not only pay treble damages to the person injured, but shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3661; Code, s. 3463; R. C., c. 87, s. 8; 1795, c. 433, s. 6; C. S. 4407.)

Cross Reference.—As to the degree of protection against violence allowed the jailer in the state prison system, see § 148-46.

Evidence Sufficient for Jury.—Evidence that the plaintiff's thumb had inadvertently been placed against the door jamb when jailer started to close door of cell, and that when plaintiff pushed against the door to release his thumb the jailer pushed the door shut with his shoulder, thereby cutting off plaintiff's thumb, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury on the issue of the jailer's negligent injury to the plaintiff. Davis v. Moore, 215 N. C. 449, 2 S. E. (2d) 366.

§ 14-261. Confining prisoners to improper apartments.—If the sheriff or jailer shall wantonly or unnecessarily confine those committed to his custody in any apartment, other than that provided and designated by law for persons of the description of the prisoner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3660; Code, s. 3471; R. C., c. 87, s. 16; 1795, c. 433, s. 4; C. S. 4408.)

Cross Reference.—As to apartments for prisoners, see § 153-51.

§ 14-262. Requiring female prisoners to work in chain-gang.—If any officer, either judicial, executive or ministerial, shall order or require the working of any female on the streets or roads in any group or chain-gang in this state, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3596; 1897, c. 270; C. S. 4409.)

§ 14-263. Classification and commutation of time for prisoners other than state prisoners.—The board of county commissioners, or such governing body as may have charge of prisoners in any county, city or town in the State of North Carolina, shall divide all prisoners into three classes, or grades, as follows:

In the first class shall be included all those prisoners who have given evidence that they will, or who it is believed will observe the rules and regulations and work diligently and are likely to maintain themselves by honest industry after their discharge. These shall be known as Grade A prisoners and shall receive a commutation of their sentences at the rate of one hundred and four days for each year served.

In the second class shall be included those prisoners who have not as yet given evidence that they can be trusted entirely, but are reasonably obedient to the rules and regulations. These shall be known as Class B prisoners and shall receive a commutation of their sentences of seventy-eight days for each year served.

In the third class shall be those prisoners who have demonstrated that they are incorrigible, have no respect for the rules and regulations and seriously interfere with the discipline and the effectiveness of the labor of the other prisoners. Such prisoners shall receive no commutation of their sentences.

All prisoners shall be admitted into Class B except where it is known by the superintendent of the prison that a prisoner is serving for a second offense. In such cases the superintendent may put the prisoner in Class C in his discretion.

Prisoners of Class A shall be known as honor prisoners and shall be worked in the discretion of the superintendent of the prison without guards. When in prison camps or in any other place of detention they may not be chained or under armed guards.

Prisoners in Class B shall be under guard and may or may not be chained in the discretion of the superintendent.

Prisoners in Class C shall wear chains during the day or night as in the opinion of the superintendent may be necessary.

Preference in assignment of work shall be given Class A prisoners.

The purpose of §§ 14-263 through 14-265 is to unify the regulations pertaining to county prisoners and to encourage industriousness among the prisoners. (1927, c. 178, s. 1; 1937, c. 88, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The mandatory provisions of this section with reference to the use of stripes were repealed by Public Laws 1937, c. 88, s. 2.

§ 14-264. Record to be kept; items of record.—The superintendent or other person having charge of prisoners shall keep a record showing, the name, age, date of sentence, length of sentence, crime for which convicted, home address, next of kin, and the conduct of each prisoner received. (1927, c. 178, s. 2.)

§ 14-265. Commutation of sentences for Sunday work.—All prisoners in the State's Prison, or in any county jail or county convict camp, who shall be assigned to regular work which requires the performance of the same, or substantially the same duties on Sundays as on other days of the week, shall be allowed a commutation of their sentences for each Sunday, or fractional part of a Sunday on which they shall be required to perform the duties of the task assigned to them. The commutation of sentence provided for in this section shall be in addition to all other commutations of sentence allowed such prisoners under existing statutes and laws of the State. (1931, c. 198, s. 1.)

Art. 34. Custodial Institutions.

§ 14-266. Persuading inmates to escape. — It shall be unlawful for any parent, guardian, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, or any person whatsoever to persuade or induce to leave, carry away, or accompany from any state institution, except with the permission of the superintendent or other person next in authority, any boy or girl, man or woman, who has been legally committed or admitted under suspended sentence to said institution, by juvenile, recorder's, superior, or any other court of competent jurisdiction. (1935, c. 307, s. 1; 1937, c. 189, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment included within the provisions of this and the following section inmates who have been "admitted under suspended sentence." Apparently, there was a loophole in the old law. 15 N. C. Law Rev., p. 341.

§ 14-267. Harboring fugitives.—It shall be unlawful for any person to harbor, conceal, or give succor to, any known fugitive from any institution whose inmates are committed by court or are admitted under suspended sentence. (1935, c. 307, s. 2; 1937, c. 189, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—See note under § 14-266.

§ 14-268. Violation made misdemeanor. — Any person violating the provision of this article, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 307, s. 3.)

SUBCHAPTER IX. OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC PEACE.

Art. 35. Offenses against the Public Peace.

§ 14-269. Carrying concealed weapons.—If any one, except when on his own premises, shall carry concealed about his person any bowie-knife, dirk, dagger, slung shot, loaded cane, brass, iron or metallic knuckles or razor or other deadly weapon of like kind, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. If any one, except on his own premises, shall carry concealed about his person any pistol or gun, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than fifty dollars, nor more than two hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than two years, at the discretion of the court. Upon conviction or submission the deadly weapon with reference to which the defendant shall have been convicted shall be condemned and ordered confiscated and destroyed by the judge presiding at the trial. If any one, not being on his own lands, shall have about his person any such deadly weapon, such possession shall be prima facie evidence of the concealment thereof. This section shall not apply to the following persons: officers and soldiers of the United States army when in discharge of their official duties as such and acting under orders requiring them to carry arms or weapons, civil officers of the United States while in the discharge of their official duties, officers and soldiers of the militia and the state guard when called into actual service, officers of the state, or of any county, city, or town, charged with the execution of the laws of the state, when acting in the discharge of their official duties. (Rev., s. 3708; Code, s. 1005; 1917, c. 76; 1919, c. 197, s. 8; 1923, c. 57; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 30; 1929, cc. 51, 224; C. S. 4410.)

Local Modification.—Caswell: 1941, c. 90; Durham: 1923, c. 48; Franklin: 1923, c. 57, Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 30; Halifax: 1943, c. 34.

Cross References.—As to tramps carrying weapons, see § 14-339. As to going armed on Sunday, see § 103-2.

Editor's Note.—The construction of this section has frequently been before the court but the power of the legislature to prescribe the rules of evidence and fix the burden of proof to the extent herein dictated has never been questioned. Public Laws, 1929, c. 224, added the qualifying clause, appearing in the last sentence, which follows the reference to soldiers and sailors and reads "when in discharge of official duties," etc.

Includes Butcher Knife.—The act of assembly making it indictable for one to carry concealed about his person any "pistol, bowie knife, razor or other deadly weapon of like kind," embraces a butcher's knife. State v. Erwin, 91 N. C. 545.

Concealment Is Gist of Offense.—The mischief provided against, is the practice of wearing weapons concealed about the person to be used upon any emergency. State v. Broadnax, 91 N. C. 543. The intent to carry, not the intent to use, determines the guilt. State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 556, 27 S. E. 1004. But the weapon carried must be concealed. State v. Lilly, 116 N. C. 1049, 21 S. E. 563. If the weapon is carried openly the defendant could not be guilty under this section. State v. Brown, 125 N. C. 704, 34 S. E. 549.

To conceal a weapon means something more than the mere act of having it where it may not be seen. It implies an assent of the mind and a purpose to so carry it that it may not be seen. State v. Gilbert, 87 N. C. 527, 528.

The question is as to the manner of carrying, whether concealed or not, and it might be shown, in defense, that there was no intent to conceal it. State v. Brown, 125 N. C. 104, 34 S. E. 549.

But if from defendant's own testimony it appears that he necessarily knew that he was carrying it concealed intent is immaterial. State v. Simmons, 143 N. C. 613, 56 S. E. 701.

The possession of a pistol by one on the premises of another is not alone sufficient to convict of carrying a concealed weapon in violation of this section, although the statute makes such possession prima facie evidence of the concealment thereof. State v. Vanderburg, 200 N. C. 713, 158 S. E. 248.

Same—Weapon on Person Prima Facie Evidence.—The fact that defendant had a pistol about his person, off of his own premises, was prima facie evidence of concealment, which shifted the burden upon the defendant to rebut or disprove. State v. Hamby, 126 N. C. 1066, 35 S. E. 614; State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 556, 27 S. E. 1004; State v. Lilly, 116 N. C. 1049, 21 S. E. 563; State v. McManus, 89 N. C. 555.

Same—Presumption Rebutted.—To rebut the statutory presumption arising from the concealment, the absence of intent to conceal must be affirmatively found. State v. Brown, 125 N. C. 704, 34 S. E. 549; State v. Gilbert, 87 N. C. 527.

Same—Concealment Question for Jury.—Whether, in a given case, the weapon is concealed from the public and such presumption of guilty intent is rebutted by the mode of carrying the weapon, are questions for the jury. State v. Reams, 121 N. C. 556, 27 S. E. 1004. See also State v. Lilly, 116 N. C. 1049, 21 S. E. 563.

Carrying on Own Premises.—The use of the words, "on his own premises," and not being "on his own lands," in this section, shows an intention to restrict the right to carry concealed weapons to those who are in the privacy of their own premises and not likely to be thrown into contact with the public, nor tempted, on a sudden quarrel, to use the great advantage a concealed weapon gives. State v. Perry, 120 N. C. 580, 26 S. E. 915, 1008.

A superintendent or overseer of a department of a cotton mill, is not, while therein, "on his premises," within the meaning of this section. State v. Bridgers, 169 N. C. 309, 34 S. E. 689.

Same—Servant on Employer's Premises.—A mere servant or hireling who carries concealed weapons on the premises of his employer is indictable. State v. Deyton, 119 N. C. 880, 25 S. E. 159.

Warrant Must State Defendant Carried Weapon Off His Own Premises.—In prosecution for carrying a concealed weapon, the warrant is held fatally defective in failing to embrace in the charge the essential element of the offense that the weapon was carried concealed by defendant off his own premises, the warrant itself excluding the charge that the weapon was carried off the premises by charging that defendant carried an unconcealed weapon off his premises. State v. Bradley, 210 N. C. 290, 186 S. E. 240.

Illustrations—Not on Person but Within Reach.—The language of the statute is, not "concealed on his person," but "concealed about his person," and hence, if the weapon be within reach and control of the defendant, it is sufficient to bring the case within the meaning of the statute. State v. McManus, 89 N. C. 555.

Same—Pistol in Coat on Shoulder.—Upon evidence tending to show that the defendant had a pistol with the butt end projecting above his hip pocket, and with his coat off and carried upon his shoulder, it is sufficient for the determination of the jury, upon the issue of defendant's guilt in having carried a concealed weapon in violation of this section. State v. Mangum, 187 N. C. 477, 121 S. E. 765.

Same—Carrying to Deliver to Another.—One is not guilty of a violation of this section where it appears that he had a pistol in his pocket for the purpose of delivering it to the owner who had sent him for it. State v. Broadnax, 91 N. C. 543.

Same—Apprehension of Assault.—Carrying concealed weapons in reasonable apprehension of deadly assaults is not justification of a violation of the statutory offense, but in aggravation thereof, and may be considered by the trial judge in imposing the sentence, according to the discretion given him therein by this section. State v. Woodlief, 172 N. C. 885, 90 S. E. 137.

Same—Acting upon Advice of Attorney.—A person acting in ignorance of the law in good faith and upon advice of the clerk of the court or of an attorney, but in violation of this section, is not excused. State v. Simmons, 143 N. C. 613, 56 S. E. 701.

Exceptions—Necessity of Being in Performance of Duties.—In order to come within the exception of this section, the defendant, otherwise having the authority, must have been in the actual performance of his duties at the time. State v. Simmons, 143 N. C. 613, 56 S. E. 701.

Same—Officials of Transportation Companies.—The exception in this section does not apply to the officials of corporations, such as turnpikes, railroads and others, which invite the public to use their lines of travel. State v. Perry, 120 N. C. 580, 26 S. E. 915, 1008.

Same—United States Mail Carrier.—A United States mail carrier is indictable under this section for carrying a concealed weapon while carrying the mail and while returning to his home after delivering the mail. State v. Boone, 132 N. C. 1107, 44 S. E. 595.

Same—Night Watchman.—A private night watchman is not guilty of carrying a concealed weapon, under this section, while on duty upon the premises he is employed to watch. State v. Anderson, 129 N. C. 521, 39 S. E. 824.

Jurisdiction.—The superior court does not acquire jurisdiction over a prosecution for carrying a concealed weapon by the fact at the time of the presentation of the indictment thereof it had exclusive cognizance of such offense, where, at the time of the commission of the offense sole jurisdiction was in justices of the peace. State v. Ramsour, 113 N. C. 642, 18 S. E. 707.

Former Conviction of Assault.—A conviction of assault with a deadly weapon will not sustain a plea of former conviction in a subsequent trial for carrying a concealed weapon. State v. Robinson, 116 N. C. 1046, 21 S. E. 701.

Time Not Essence of Offense.—Time is not the essence of the offense of carrying a concealed weapon, and it may be shown at a previous time to that alleged in the bill. State v. Spencer, 185 N. C. 765, 117 S. E. 803.

Punishment.—In a penal statute "or" will never be construed "and" so as to make it more penal. Hence one found guilty under this section could not be both fined and imprisoned. State v. Taylor, 124 N. C. 803, 32 S. E. 548.

Cited in State v. Divine, 98 N. C. 778, 784, 4 S. E. 477; State v. Barrett, 138 N. C. 630, 635, 50 S. E. 506; State v. Sauls, 199 N. C. 193, 154 S. E. 28.

§ 14-270. Sending, accepting or bearing challenges to fight duels.—If any person shall send, accept or bear a challenge to fight a duel, though no death ensue, he, and all such as counsel, aid and abet him, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, moreover, be ineligible to any office of trust, honor or profit in the state, any pardon or reprieve notwithstanding. (Rev., s. 3628; Code, s. 1012; R. C., c. 34, s. 48; 1802, c. 608, s. 1; C. S. 4411.)

Cross Reference.—As to killing adversary in duel, see § 14-20.

See Article XIV, sec. 2, of the State Constitution.

See State v. Fritz, 133 N. C. 725, 45 S. E. 957; State v. Farrier, 8 N. C. 487.

§ 14-271. Engaging in and betting on prize fights.—If any two or more persons engage in a prize fight, sparring match or glove or fist contest for money or other valuable prize or stake; or if any person bet or lay a wager on the result thereof or advise, aid or abet in any way whatever in promoting the same, he shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the state's prison or jail for not less than one year nor more than five years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3707; 1895, c. 28, ss. 1-4; C. S. 4412.)

Local Modification.—Robeson: Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 270; Vance: Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 497.

Cross Reference.—As to power of the governor to prevent prize fights, see § 147-12, paragraph 6.

§ 14-272. Disturbing picnics, entertainments and other meetings.—If any person shall willfully interrupt or disturb any picnic, excursion party, school entertainment, political meeting, or any meeting or other organization whatsoever lawfully and peaceably held, either at, within or without the place where such picnic, excursion party, school entertainment, political meeting or other meeting or organization is held, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3704; 1897, c. 213; C. S. 4413.)

Application.—The section applies to disturbing Sunday School, State v. Branner, 149 N. C. 559, 63 S. E. 169, and family reunions, State v. Starnes, 151 N. C. 724, 66 S. E. 347.

§ 14-273. Disturbing schools and scientific and temperance meetings; injuring property of schools and temperance societies.—If any person shall willfully interrupt or disturb any public or private school or temperance society or organization or any meeting lawfully and peaceably held for the purpose of literary and scientific improvement, or for the discussion of temperance or question of moral reform, either within or without the place where such meeting or school is held, or injure any school building, or deface any school furniture, apparatus or other school property, or property of any temperance society or organization, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3838; Code, s. 2592; 1885, c. 140; 1901, c. 4, s. 28; C. S. 4414.)

Preventing Use of School Building.—To take possession of a schoolhouse when there are no pupils present, and forbid the teacher to use the building, though the school is thereby prevented from assembling, is not a violation of this section. State v. Spray, 113 N. C. 686, 18 S. E. 700.

§ 14-274. Disturbing students at schools for women.—It shall be unlawful for any male person to willfully disturb, annoy or harass the students of any boarding school or college for women situated anywhere in North Carolina by rude conduct or by persisting unnecessary presence on or near the property of the school or college; or by the willful addressing or communicating orally or otherwise with said students while on school property, or while elsewhere when in charge of a teacher, officer or student of said school. The violation of this section shall be deemed a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than five dollars ($5) nor more than fifty dollars ($50), or by imprisonment not to exceed thirty days. (1925, c. 189, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For a criticism of the wisdom and necessity for this law, see 3 N. C. Law Rev. 143.

§ 14-275. Disturbing religious congregations.—If any person shall be intoxicated or shall be guilty of any rude and disorderly conduct at any place where people are accustomed to meet for divine worship, and while the people are there assembled for such worship, whether such worship should have begun or not, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3706; 1901, c. 738; C. S. 4415.)

In General.—In order to render indictable the disturbance of persons assembled for divine worship, the people, or some considerable number, must be collected at or about the time when worship is about to commence, and in the place where it is to be celebrated. State v. Bryson, 82 N. C. 576. But the congregation need not be engaged in the act of worship. State v. Ramsey, 78 N. C. 448. However the indictment will not lie after the congregation has dispersed. State v. Davis, 126 N. C. 1059, 35 S. E. 600. The act itself must disturb the congregation—information of the act, for example that a fight is in progress, will not suffice. State v. Kirby, 108 N. C. 772, 12 S. E. 1045.

Persistent speaking in church after remonstrance from the minister has been held sufficient to sustain a verdict under this section (see State v. Ramsey, 78 N. C. 448) but not persistence in singing off the key where the intention is not to disturb. State v. Linkhaw, 69 N. C. 214.

Disturbing Sunday School.—See note to section 14-272.

Family Gathering.—See State v. Starnes, 151 N. C. 724, 66 S. E. 347.

The Indictment.—The indictment should charge that the assembly had met "for divine worship," "divine service," "religious worship or service," or something of the same import. State v. Fisher, 25 N. C. 111.

Where the charge against the defendant is disturbing a congregation actually engaged in divine worship, it is variance to show merely the disturbance of parties assembled for such worship. State v. Bryson, 82 N. C. 576.

§ 14-276. Detectives going armed in a body.—If any body of men composed of more than three persons, calling themselves detectives or claiming to be in the employ of any detective agency or known and designated as detectives, shall go armed, they shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3703; 1893, c. 191; C. S. 4416.)

§ 14-277. Impersonation of peace officers.—It shall be unlawful for any person other than duly authorized peace officers or officers of the court to represent to any person that they are duly authorized peace officers, and acting upon such representation to arrest any person, search any building, or in any way impersonate a peace officer or act in accordance with the authority delegated to duly authorized peace officers. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a private citizen in whose presence a felony has been committed from arresting such person or persons participating in the commission of said felony when such arrest is deemed necessary, or to prohibit any private citizen in whose presence an act, which would constitute a breach of the peace and for which an indictment would lie, is committed from arresting such person or persons committing said breach of the peace when such arrest is deemed necessary. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction may be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court. (1927, c. 229.)

SUBCHAPTER X. OFFENSES AGAINST THE PUBLIC SAFETY.

Art. 36. Offenses against the Public Safety.

§ 14-278. Malicious injury of property of railroads and other carriers; causing death or other physical injury thereby.—If any person shall willfully and maliciously put or place any matter or thing upon, over or near any railroad track; or shall willfully and maliciously destroy, injure or remove the road-bed, or any part thereof, or any rail, sill or other part of the fixture appurtenant to or constituting or supporting any portion of the track of such railroad; or shall willfully and maliciously do any other thing with intent to obstruct, stop, hinder, delay or displace the cars traveling on such road, or to stop, hinder or delay the passengers or others passing over the same; or shall willfully and maliciously injure the road-bed or the fixtures aforesaid, or any part thereof, with any other intent whatsoever, such person so offending shall be guilty of a felony and shall be fined not exceeding one thousand dollars nor less than two hundred dollars, and be imprisoned in the state's prison or county jail not less than four months nor more than ten years, and shall be committed to jail till he find surety for his good behavior, for a space of time of not less than three nor more than seven years. If it shall happen that by reason of the commission of the offenses aforesaid, or any of them, any engine or car shall be displaced from the track, or shall be stopped, hindered or delayed, so that any one thereby be instantly killed, or so wounded or hurt as to die therefrom in twelve calendar months thereafter, or shall thereby be maimed or be disabled in the use of any limb or member, then, and in every such case, the party so offending, his counselors, aiders and abettors, on conviction, shall suffer death, if the person is killed, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five nor more than sixty years if the person is maimed or disabled. If any person shall maliciously destroy or injure any plank-road, turnpike or canal, or any appurtenance or fixture belonging thereto or used therewith, or shall maliciously destroy or injure any lock, dam or sluice, the same being a part of any work erected or made for the purpose of navigation, or improving the navigation of any water, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall suffer the like punishment as in this section is provided for maliciously injuring a railroad. (Rev., s. 3754; Code, s. 1098; R. C., c. 34, s. 99, 100; 1838, c. 38; 1879, c. 255, s. 2; 1911, c. 200; C. S. 4417.)

§ 14-279. Injuring without malice property of railroads and other carriers; causing death or other physical injury thereby.—If any person, unlawfully, and on purpose, but without malice, shall commit any of the offenses mentioned in § 14-278, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. If it shall happen that by reason of the commission of any such offense any person shall be instantly killed, or so wounded or hurt as to die therefrom in twelve calendar months thereafter, or shall thereby be maimed or disabled in the use of any limb or member, then, and in every such case, the party so offending, his counselors, aiders and abettors, shall be imprisoned not less than twelve months, and fined at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3755; Code, s. 1099; R. C., c. 34, s. 101; C. S. 4418.)

§ 14-280. Shooting or throwing at trains or passengers.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully cast, throw or shoot any stone, rock, bullet, shot, pellet or other missile at, against, or into any railroad car, locomotive or train, or any person thereon, while such car or locomotive shall be in progress from one station to another, or while such car, locomotive or train shall be stopped for any purpose, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the county jail or state's prison, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3763; Code, s. 1100; 1887, c. 19; 1876-7, c. 4; 1911, c. 179; C. S. 4419.)

Intent a Question for Jury.—Where a defendant was indicted, for shooting at a train, with intent to injure it, and there was evidence tending to show that he was helplessly drunk at the time, the court properly left the question of intent to the jury, and it was for them to say whether the presumption had been rebutted. State v. Barbee, 92 N. C. 820.

Proof that Gun was Loaded Unnecessary.—If a gun be unloaded and this is relied on as a defense, in an action for shooting at a train, the fact must be shown by the defendant. State v. Hinson, 82 N. C. 597.

Proof of Conspiracy.—Upon trial for throwing stones at a train, it is not necessary to show a conspiracy, it appearing that the several defendants were not only present, but threw stones at different coaches of the same train. State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 69 S. E. 66.

The Indictment.—Upon a trial for throwing stones at a train, a charge in the bill that it was done "from one station to another" follows the form set out in the statute, and is not void for vagueness and uncertainty. It is not necessary that the indictment contain the word "feloniously." State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 69 S. E. 66.

But it must charge that the train was in actual motion or stopped for a temporary purpose. State v. Boyd, 86 N. C. 634.

§ 14-281. Operating trains and street cars while intoxicated.—Any train dispatcher, telegraph operator, engineer, fireman, flagman, brakeman, switchman, conductor, motorman, or other employee of any steam, street, suburban or interurban railway company, who shall be intoxicated while engaged in running or operating, or assisting in running or operating, any railway train, shifting-engine, or street or other electric car, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3758; Code, s.

1972; 1891, c. 114; 1871-2, c. 138, s. 38; 1907, c. 330; C. S. 4420.)

§ 14-282. Displaying false lights on seashore.—If any person shall make or display, or cause to be made or displayed, any false light or beacon on or near the seacoast, for the purpose of deceiving and misleading masters of vessels, and thereby putting them in danger of shipwreck, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3430; Code, s. 1021; R. C., c. 31, s. 58; 1831, c. 42; C. S. 4421.)

§ 14-283. Exploding dynamite cartridges and bombs.—If any person shall fire off or explode, or cause to be fired off or exploded, except for mechanical purposes in a legitimate business, any dynamite cartridge, bomb or other explosive of a like nature, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3794; 1887, c. 364, s. 53; C. S. 4423.)

Cross References.—As to burglary with explosives, see § 14-57. As to willful injury with explosives, see § 14-49.

§ 14-284. Keeping for sale or selling explosives without a license.—If any dealer or other person shall sell or keep for sale any dynamite cartridges, bombs or other combustibles of a like kind, without first having obtained from the board of commissioners of the county where such person or dealer resides a license for that purpose, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3817; 1887, c. 364, ss. 1, 4; C. S. 4425.)

§ 14-285. Failing to enclose marl beds.—If any person shall open any marl bed without surrounding it with a lawful fence, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, this shall not apply to any person whose marl bed is situated inside his own inclosure. (Rev., s. 3796; 1887, cc. 235, 268; C. S. 4426.)

Cited in Wellons v. Sherrin, 217 N. C. 534, 8 S. E. (2d) 820 (dissenting opinion).

§ 14-286. Giving false fire alarms; molesting fire alarm system.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to wantonly and willfully give or cause to be given, or to advise, counsel, or aid and abet any one in giving a false alarm of fire, or to break the glass key protector, or to pull the slide, arm, or lever of any station or signal box of any municipal fire alarm system, except in case of fire, or in any way to willfully interfere with, damage, deface, molest, or injure any part or portion of the fire alarm system of any municipality. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 46; C. S. 4426(a).)

§ 14-287. Leaving unused well open and exposed.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, after discontinuing the use of any well, to leave said well open and exposed; said well, after the use of same has been discontinued, shall be carefully and securely filled: Provided, that this shall not apply to wells on farms that are protected by curbing or board walls. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 125; C. S. 4426(c).)

Editor's Note.—This section is said to be a sensible regulation in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 300.

Cited in Wellons v. Sherrin, 217 N. C. 534, 8 S. E. (2d) 820.

§ 14-288. Unlawful to pollute any bottles used for beverages.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation having custody for the purpose of sale, distribution or manufacture of any beverage bottle, to place, cause or permit to be placed therein turpentine, varnish, wood alcohol, bleaching water, bluing, kerosene, oils, or any unclean or foul substance, or other offensive material, or to send, ship, return and deliver or cause or permit to be sent, shipped, returned or delivered to any producer of beverages, any bottle used as a container for beverages, and containing any turpentine, varnish, wood alcohol, bleaching water, bluing, kerosene, oils, or any unclean or foul substance, or other offensive material. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined on the first offense, one dollar for each bottle so defiled, and for any subsequent offense not more than ten dollars for each bottle so defiled. (1929, c. 324, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to destruction or taking of soft drink bottles, see § 14-86.

SUBCHAPTER XI. GENERAL POLICE REGULATIONS.

Art. 37. Lotteries and Gaming.

§ 14-289. Advertising lotteries.—If any one, by writing or printing or by circular or letter or in any other way, advertise or publish an account of a lottery, whether within or without this state, stating how, when or where the same is to be or has been drawn, or what are the prizes therein or any of them, or the price of a ticket or any share or interest therein, or where or how it may be obtained, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3725; 1887, c. 211; C. S. 4427.)

See the discussion in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 31.

§ 14-290. Dealing in lotteries.—If any person shall open, set on foot, carry on, promote, make or draw, publicly or privately, a lottery, by whatever name, style or title the same may be denominated or known; or if any person shall, by such way and means, expose or set to sale any house, real estate, goods, chattels, cash, written evidence of debt, certificates of claims or any other thing of value whatsoever, every person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding two thousand dollars or imprisoned not exceeding six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. Any person who engages in disposing of any species of property whatsoever, including money and evidences of debt, or in any manner distributes gifts or prizes upon tickets, bottle crowns, bottle caps, seals on containers, other devices or certificates sold for that purpose, shall be held liable to prosecution under this section. Any person who shall have in his possession any tickets, certificates or orders used in the operation of any lottery shall be held liable under this section, and the mere possession of such tickets shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this section.

(Rev., s. 3726; Code, s. 1047; R. C., c. 34, s. 69; 1834, c. 19, s. 1; 1874-5, c. 96; 1933, c. 434; 1937, c. 157; C. S. 4428.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 434, added the last sentence of this section, relating to possession of tickets, certificates, etc.

The 1937 amendment inserted the words "bottle crowns, bottle caps, seals on containers, other devices" in the second sentence of this section.

In General.—A lottery may be defined as any scheme for the distribution of prizes, by lot or chance, by which one, on paying money or giving any other thing of value to another, obtains a token which entitles him to receive a larger or smaller value, or nothing, as some formula of chance may determine. State v. Lipkin, 169 N. C. 265, 84 S. E. 340. Statutes, such as this section, regulating such schemes violate neither the State nor Federal Constitution. Mfg. Co. v. Benjamin, 172 N. C. 53, 89 S. E. 797; State v. Lipkin, 169 N. C. 265, 84 S. E. 340. They are remedial and should be liberally construed. And the fact that the device is an advertising scheme of an otherwise legitimately run business concern does not prevent the section from applying. Id. See also State v. Lumsden, 89 N. C. 572.

Amendment of 1933 Is Valid.—The 1933 amendment to this section which makes the possession of tickets, etc., used in the operation of a lottery prima facie evidence of violation of the section, is constitutional and valid, the presumption being a rational one. State v. Fowler, 205 N. C. 608, 172 S. E. 191.

Actual Physical Possession Unnecessary.—The possession of lottery tickets sufficient to raise prima facie evidence of the violation of this section, need not be actual physical possession, and they need not be found on defendant's person, it being sufficient if they are found in his place of business under his control. State v. Jones, 213 N. C. 640, 197 S. E. 152.

Note for Lottery Contract.—Notes given in pursuance of a contract prohibited by this section are for an illegal consideration, and collection thereof is not enforceable in our courts. Brevard Mfg. Co. v. Benjamin & Sons, 172 N. C. 53, 89 S. E. 797.

Surety to Lottery Contract.—A bond guaranteeing the performance of a "trade expansion contract" which is contrary to this section, is as unenforceable against the surety thereon as the contract upon which it is founded. Basnight v. American Mfg. Co., 174 N. C. 206, 93 S. E. 734.

Lottery Privilege Not a Contract.—A right, conferred in the charter of a corporation, to dispose of property by means of lottery tickets, is not a contract between the corporation and the state, but a mere privilege or license, and is revocable at will by the legislative power. State v. Morris, 77 N. C. 512.

Purchaser Not Included.—This section does not embrace persons who buy lottery tickets. State v. Bryant, 74 N. C. 207, 209.

Admissibility of Evidence.—In establishing the promotion of the lottery by circumstantial evidence it was permissible for the State to show the association of the defendants together with their financial relation and transactions. The declaration of one defendant as to the other's participation in the enterprise and as to their protection if they were caught was also competent. State v. Ingram, 204 N. C. 557, 168 S. E. 837.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Evidence that numerous lottery tickets and lottery ticket books were found in the store operated by defendant is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in a prosecution under this section, and defendant's contention that there was no evidence that he was in charge of the store is untenable when the record discloses that several witnesses referred to the locus in quo as defendant's place of business. State v. Jones, 213 N. C. 640, 197 S. E. 152.

Evidence that officers apprehended defendant with lottery tickets in his possession and that upon seeing the officers he tried to dispose of same, is sufficient to be submitted to the jury in prosecution for operating a lottery and for illegal possession of lottery tickets, the evidence being sufficient to make out a prima facie case under the provisions of this section. State v. Powell, 219 N. C. 220, 13 S. E. (2d) 232.

Applied in State v. Blanton, 207 N. C. 872, 180 S. E. 81.

§ 14-291. Selling lottery tickets and acting as agent for lotteries.—If any person shall sell, barter or otherwise dispose of any lottery ticket or order for any number or shares in any lottery, or shall in anywise be concerned in such lottery, by acting as agent in the state for or on behalf of any such lottery, to be drawn or paid either out of or within the state, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished as provided for in § 14-290. (Rev., s. 3727; Code, s. 1048; R. C., c. 34, s. 70; 1834, c. 19, s. 2; C. S. 4429.)

Cited in concurring opinion of Stacy, C. J., in State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 506, 140 S. E. 216.

§ 14-291.1. Selling "numbers" tickets; possession prima facie evidence of violation.—If any person shall sell, barter or cause to be sold or bartered, any ticket, token, certificate or order for any number or shares in any lottery, commonly known as the numbers or butter and egg lottery, or lotteries of similar character, to be drawn or paid within or without the state, such person shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Any person who shall have in his possession any tickets, tokens, certificates or orders used in the operation of any such lottery shall be guilty under this section, and the possession of such tickets shall be prima facie evidence of the violation of this section. (1943, c. 550.)

§ 14-292. Gambling.—If any person play at any game of chance at which any money, property or other thing of value is bet, whether the same be in stake or not, both those who play and those who bet thereon shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3715; 1891, c. 29; C. S. 4430.)

Cross Reference.—As to gaming contracts, see § 16-1 et seq.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 248, for reference to acts legalizing pari-mutuel race track betting.

In General.—Betting is essential to the offense; playing without betting is not indictable. State v. Brannen, 53 N. C. 208. The section does not apply to prizes given for skill—here there is no betting. State v. Deboy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167. Tenpins is not a game of chance. State v. King, 133 N. C. 631, 18 S. E. 169.

All who engage in gambling are principals. State v. Deboy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167. A defendant may be indicted for keeping a gaming house and playing for money, without misjoinder. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

Calling Transaction a Raffle.—Where several parties each put up a piece of money and then decide, by throwing dice, who shall have the aggregate sum or "pool," the game is one of chance and the fact that the aggregate sum so put up is exchanged for a turkey and the transaction is denominated a "raffle" does not change the character of the game. State v. DeBoy, 117 N. C. 702, 23 S. E. 167.

Horse racing is included in the category of "gaming" or "gambling." The word "game" is very comprehensive and embraces every contrivance or institution which has for its object to furnish sport, recreation, or amusement. Let a stake be laid on the chance of a game, and it is gaming. State v. Brown, 221 N. C. 301, 20 S. E. (2d) 286.

Betting on horse racing, or on other sort of race, is an offense against the criminal law. The fact that the race itself is one of skill and endurance on the part of the jockey and his mount does not confer immunity upon those who wager on its result. Id.

Ordinances as to Gambling Void.—Gambling being an offense under the general law, a city ordinance covering the same subject is void. State v. McCoy, 116 N. C. 1059, 21 S. E. 690.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging defendant with keeping and maintaining a gaming house is sufficient, though it is not alleged that the games played there were games of chance, or that they were played at a place or tables where games of chance were played. State v. Morgan, 133 N. C. 743, 45 S. E. 1033.

§ 14-293. Allowing gambling in houses of public entertainment; duty of police officers; penalty.—If any keeper of an ordinary or other house of entertainment, or of a house wherein liquors are retailed, shall knowingly suffer any game, at which money or property, or anything of value, is bet, whether the same be in stake or not, to be played in any such house, or in any part of the premises occupied therewith; or shall furnish persons so playing or betting either on said premises or elsewhere with drink or other thing for their comfort or subsistence during the time of play, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars and be imprisoned not less than six months. Any person who shall be convicted under this section shall, upon such conviction, forfeit his license to do any of the businesses mentioned in this section, and shall be forever debarred from doing any of such businesses in this state. The court shall embody in its judgment that such person has forfeited his license, and no board of county commissioners, board of town commissioners or board of aldermen shall thereafter have power or authority to grant to such convicted person or his agent a license to do any of the businesses mentioned herein. It shall be the duty of every police officer of the cities, towns and villages of this state to make diligent inquiry and to exercise constant watchfulness to discover whether any of the offenses enumerated in this section are being committed, and to report once a week under oath to the mayor or other chief officer of his city, town or village, whether such offenses are being committed, and all the facts within his knowledge, or of which he has information relating thereto. If any such police officer shall know or have information that such offenses are being committed and shall fail or neglect to report the same to such mayor or other chief officer, together with all the information known to him, as to the person or persons committing the same, the time and place of the commission and the names of the witnesses thereto, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court, and shall forfeit his office. It shall be the duty of such mayor or other chief officer to require the report herein provided for, and to require that the same shall be verified by the oath of such policeman, and if it appear upon such report that any of the said offenses have been committed, it shall be the duty of such mayor or other chief officer to issue his warrant for the arrest of the offender. Any such mayor or other chief officer of any city, town or village who shall fail or neglect to require the reports herein mentioned, or shall fail or neglect to require of such police officer to verify the same upon oath, or who shall refuse or neglect, upon its appearing from such reports that there is probably cause to believe that any of the said offenses have been committed, to issue his warrant for the arrest of the offender, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Any person committing any of the offenses mentioned in this section shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, to be recovered by suit in the superior court in the county in which such offense may have been committed, one-half thereof to the use of the person bringing such suit and one-half to the school fund for the county. (Rev., s. 3716; Code, s. 1043; 1901, c. 753; R. C., c. 34, s. 76; 1799, c. 526; 1801, c. 581; 1831, c. 26; C. S. 4431.)

Gambling in Leased Room of Tavern.—Where it appeared that the room, in which the game took place, was a part of the house in which the tavern was kept, but had been leased and was not under the control of the landlord, it was held that the defendant landlord could not be convicted under this section. State v. Keisler, 51 N. C. 73.

Houses Where Liquor Was Retailed.—For case under this provision, see State v. Terry, 20 N. C. 325.

Excessive Punishment.—For the violation of this section a fine of two thousand dollars and imprisonment for thirty days, and thereafter until the fine and costs were paid, was held not excessive punishment. State v. Miller, 94 N. C. 904.

§ 14-294. Gambling with faro-banks and tables.—If any person shall open, establish, use or keep a faro-bank, or a faro-table, with the intent that games of chance may be played thereat, or shall play or bet thereat any money, property or other thing of value, whether the same be in stake or not, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined at least two hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than three months. (Rev., s. 3717; Code, s. 1044; R. C., c. 71; 1848, c. 34; 1856-7, c. 25; C. S. 4432.)

Cross Reference.—As to compelling testimony in cases when this section and §§ 14-295 to 14-297 have been violated, see § 8-55.

§ 14-295. Keeping gaming tables, illegal punchboards or slot machines, or betting thereat.—If any person shall establish, use or keep any gaming table (other than a faro-bank), by whatever name such table may be called, an illegal punch board or an illegal slot machine, at which games of chance shall be played, he shall on conviction thereof be fined not less than two hundred dollars and shall be imprisoned not less than thirty days; and every person who shall play thereat or thereat bet any money, property or other thing of value, whether the same be in stake or not, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten dollars. (Rev., s. 3718; Code, s. 1045; R. C., c. 34, s. 72; 1791, c. 336; 1798, c. 502, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 2; C. S. 4433.)

See notes to §§ 14-292 and 14-296.

The Indictment.—An indictment under this section is good, without any averment that the act was done "willfully and unlawfully" or that the games of chance were played at such table for money or other property. State v. Howe, 100 N. C. 449, 5 S. E. 671.

But a bill of indictment which does not charge that the game played was one of chance, and that it was played at a place or table where games of chance are played, will be quashed. State v. Norwood, 94 N. C. 935.

Evidence Admissible.—Where defendants admit keeping gaming tables, evidence may be admitted tending to show they were continuously present at the place and tending to show their large share in the receipts of these tables. State v. Galloway, 188 N. C. 416, 124 S. E. 745.

§ 14-296. Illegal slot machines and punchboards defined.—An illegal slot machine or punchboard within the contemplation of §§ 14-295 through 14-298 is defined as one that shall not produce for or give to the person who places coin or money or the representative of either, the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated by placing money or coin or the representative of either therein. (1931, c. 14, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act from which this section was taken amended sections 14-295 to 14-298 to make them applicable to illegal slot machines and punch boards. The Act expressly provided that it should not have the effect of modifying in any way sections 14-301 to 14-303 and should be construed as supplemental to that act.

§ 14-297. Allowing gaming tables, illegal punchboards or slot machines on premises.—If any person shall knowingly suffer to be opened, kept or used in his house or on any part of the premises occupied therewith, any of the gaming tables prohibited by §§ 14-289 through 14-300 or any illegal punch board or illegal slot machine, he shall forfeit and pay to any one who will sue therefor two hundred dollars, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined and imprisoned. (Rev., s. 3719; Code s. 1046; R. C., c. 34, s. 73; 1798, c. 502, s. 3; 1800, c. 5, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 3; C. S. 4434.)

See note to § 14-296.

Where the agreed statement of facts in an action to recover the penalty under this section states that defendant kept a slot machine in his store, without a finding that the machine was illegal, the findings are insufficient to support a judgment against defendant. Nivens v. Justice, 210 N. C. 349, 186 S. E. 237.

Cited in State v. Webster, 218 N. C. 692, 12 S. E. (2d) 272.

§ 14-298. Gaming tables, illegal punchboards and slot machines to be destroyed by justices and police officers.—All justices of the peace, sheriffs, constables and officers of police are hereby authorized and directed, on information made to them on oath that any gaming table prohibited to be used by §§ 14-289 through 14-300, or any illegal punchboard or illegal slot machine is in the possession or use of any person within the limits of their jurisdiction, to destroy the same by every means in their power; and they shall call to their aid all the good citizens of the county, if necessary, to effect its destruction. (Rev., s. 3720; Code, s. 1049; R. C., c. 34, s. 74; 1791, c. 336; 1798, c. 502, s. 2; 1931, c. 14, s. 4; C. S. 4435.)

See note to § 14-296.

Enjoining Officers.—The court should have found whether the slot machines involved were illegal in determining the plaintiff's right to enjoin officers from interfering with his business. McCormick v. Proctor, 217 N. C. 23, 6 S. E. (2d) 870.

§ 14-299. Property exhibited by gamblers to be seized; disposition of same.—All moneys or other property or thing of value exhibited for the purpose of alluring persons to bet on any game, or used in the conduct of any such game, shall be liable to be seized by any justice of the peace or other court of competent jurisdiction or by any person acting under his or its warrant. Moneys so seized shall be turned over to and paid to the treasurer of the county wherein they are seized, and placed in the general fund of the county. Any property seized which is used for and is suitable only for gambling shall be destroyed, and all other property so seized shall be sold in the manner provided for the sale of personal property by execution, and the proceeds derived from said sale shall be turned over and paid to the treasurer of the county wherein the property was seized, to be placed by said treasurer in the general fund of the county. (Rev., s. 3722; Code, s. 1051; R. C., c. 34, s. 77; 1798, c. 502, s. 3; 1943, c. 84; C. S. 4436.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "or used in the conduct of any such game." Prior to the amendment one-half of the moneys or property seized went to the person seizing them and the other half went to the use of the poor.

§ 14-300. Opposing destruction of gaming tables and seizure of property.—If any person shall oppose the destruction of any prohibited gaming table, or the seizure of any moneys, property or other thing staked on forbidden games, or shall take and carry away the same or any part thereof after seizure, he shall forfeit and pay to the person so opposed one thousand dollars, for the use of the state and the person so opposed, and shall, moreover, be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3723; Code, s. 1052; R. C., c. 34, s. 78; 1798, c. 502; s. 4; C. S. 4437.)

§ 14-301. Operation or possession of slot machine; separate offenses.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate, keep in his possession or in the possession of any other person, firm or corporation, for the purpose of being operated, any slot machine that shall not produce for or give to the person who places coin or money, or the representative of either, the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated by placing money or coin or the representative of either therein. Each time said machine is operated as aforesaid shall constitute a separate offense. (1923, c. 138, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4437(a).)

Editor's Note.—It was said in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 285, that "the interesting part of the statute is the definition of unlawful machine or device as one that does not produce for or give to the person operating, playing or patronizing the machine or device 'the same return in market value each and every time such machine or device is operated or patronized by paying money or other thing of value.' The act seems to cover all possible gambling devices not already covered by the lottery provisions of the Consolidated Statutes."

Construed with § 14-304.—This and the two following sections proscribing the operation and possession of slot machines of the type therein defined, are not repealed by §§ 14-304 to 14-309, proscribing ownership, sale, lease and transportation of such slot machines, since the two statutes are not repugnant, but are complementary. State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

Where an indictment charged defendant in one count with ownership, sale, lease and transportation of certain slot machines and devices prohibited by law, §§ 14-304 to 14-309, and charged defendant in the second count with the operation and possession of certain illegal slot machines, under this and the two following sections, it was held that the different counts in the bill may stand as separate and distinct offenses, and separate judgments may be entered thereon, and defendant's contention of duplicity is untenable. Id.

Value Required to Be Given.—Under this section, a slot machine so operated that one putting into it a coin receives, in any event, the value of such coin in chewing gum, and stands to win by chance additional chewing gum or discs of commercial value without further payment, is condemned by the statute as being unlawful. But if the slot machine were so operated that one who puts in a coin receives the same return in market value each and every time such machine is operated, it would not then fall within the condemnation of the statute. State v. May, 188 N. C. 470, 471, 125 S. E. 9.

License of Lawful Machines Only.—The State license issued for the operation of a slot machine is for one that is lawful, and does not permit the operation of one so devised as to give to the one who happens to strike certain mechanical combinations more of the merchandise than received at other times. State v. May, 188 N. C. 470, 125 S. E. 9.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging that the defendant "unlawfully and wilfully did operate a lottery, to wit, a slot machine (chapter 138, Public Laws 1923) against the form of the statute," etc., is insufficient because it fails to inform the accused of the specific offense or the necessary ingredients thereof, notwithstanding the statute is cited. State v. Ballangee, 191 N. C. 700, 701, 132 S. E. 795.

Cited in Calcutt v. McGeachy, 213 N. C. 1, 195 S. E. 49.

§ 14-302. Punchboards, vending machines, and other gambling devices; separate offenses.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to operate or keep in his possession, or the possession of any other person, firm or corporation, for the purpose of being operated, any punch-board, machine for vending merchandise, or other gambling device, by whatsoever name known or called, that shall not produce for or give to the person operating, playing or patronizing same, whether personally or through another, by paying money or other thing of value for the privilege of operating, playing or patronizing same, whether through himself or another, the same return in market value, each and every time such punch-board, machine for vending merchandise, or other gambling device, by whatsoever name known or called, is operated, played or patronized by paying of money or other thing of value for the privilege thereof. Each time said punch-board, machine for vending merchandise, or other gambling device, by whatsoever name known or called, is operated, played, or patronized by the paying of money or other thing of value therefor, shall constitute a separate violation of this section as to operation thereunder. (1923, c. 138, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 4437(b).)

An indictment charging possession of gambling devices, but failing to charge that defendant operated the devices or had them in his possession for the purpose of being operated, is fatally defective. State v. Jones, 218 N. C. 734, 12 S. E. (2d) 292.

§ 14-303. Violation of two preceding sections a misdemeanor.—A violation of any of the provisions of §§ 14-301, 14-302 shall be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or, in the discretion of the court, by both. (1923, c. 138, s. 5; C. S. 4437(c).)

§ 14-304. Manufacture, sale, etc., of slot machines and devices.—It shall be unlawful to manufacture, own, store, keep, possess, sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend or give away, transport, or expose for sale or lease, or to offer to sell, rent, lease, let on shares, lend or give away, or to permit the operation of, or for any person to permit to be placed, maintained, used or kept in any room, space or building owned, leased or occupied by him or under his management or control, any slot machine or device. (1937, c. 196, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this and the following sections, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 340.

Constitutionality.—This and following sections, prohibiting coin slot machines in the operation of which a player may make varying scores or tallies upon which wagers may be made, and differentiating between such machines and those returning a definite and unvarying service or things of value each time they are played, are in accord with the policy of the state to suppress gambling and have a reasonable relation to this objective, and this statute is constitutional as a reasonable regulation relating to the public morals and welfare, well within the police power of the State. Calcutt v. McGeachy, 213 N. C. 1, 195 S. E. 49; State v. Abbott, 218 N. C. 470, 11 S. E. (2d) 539, followed in 218 N. C. 480, 481, 482, 11 S. E. (2d) 545, 546, 547.

Construed with § 14-301.—See note to § 14-301.

Not Repealed by 1939 Licensing Act.—The provisions of the Flanagan Act, ch. 196, Public Laws of 1937, proscribing the possession and distribution of a coin slot machine in the operation of which the user may secure additional chances or rights to use the machine, is not repealed by § 105-66, since subsection 5 of that section expressly negatives the intention to license or legalize any gaming slot machine or device, and since subsection 1 of that section excludes from its licensing provisions slot machines which "automatically vend" any prize, coupon or reward which may be used in the further operation of such machine, the word "vend" being equivalent to the word "give" and the intent being to exclude from the licensing provisions a machine which provides a player with additional plays or games as a premium, prize, or reward irrespective of whether physical tokens of such premium, prize or reward are, or are not, delivered to the player. State v. Abbott,

§ 14-305. Agreements with references to slot machines or devices made unlawful.—It shall be unlawful to make or permit to be made with any person any agreement with reference to any slot machines or device, pursuant to which the user thereof may become entitled to receive any money, credit, allowance, or anything of value or additional chance or right to use such machines or devices, or to receive any check, slug, token or memorandum entitling the holder to receive any money, credit, allowance or thing of value. (1937, c. 196, s. 2.)

§ 14-306. Slot machine or device defined.—Any machine, apparatus or device is a slot machine or device within the provisions of §§ 14-304 through 14-309, if it is one that is adapted, or may be readily converted into one that is adapted, for use in such a way that, as a result of the insertion of any piece of money or coin or other object, such machine or device is caused to operate or may be operated in such manner that the user may receive or become entitled to receive any piece of money, credit, allowance or thing of value, or any check, slug, token or memorandum, whether of value or otherwise, or which may be exchanged for any money, credit, allowance or any thing of value, or which may be given in trade, or the user may secure additional chances or rights to use such machine, apparatus or device; or in the playing of which the operator or user has a chance to make varying scores or tallies upon the outcome of which wagers might be made, irrespective of whether it may, apart from any element of chance or unpredictable outcome of such operation, also sell, deliver or present some merchandise, indication or weight, entertainment or other thing of value. This definition is intended to embrace all slot machines and similar devices except slot machines in which is kept any article to be purchased by depositing any coin or thing of value, and for which may be had any article of merchandise which makes the same return or returns of equal value each and every time it is operated, or any machine wherein may be seen any pictures or heard any music by depositing therein any coin or thing of value, or any slot weighing machine or any machine for making stencils by the use of contrivances operated by depositing in the machine any coin or thing of value, or any lock operated by slot wherein money or thing of value is to be deposited, where such slot machines make the same return or returns of equal value each and every time the same is operated and does not at any time it is operated offer the user or operator any additional money, credit, allowance, or thing of value, or check, slug, token or memorandum, whether of value or otherwise, which may be exchanged for money, credit, allowance or thing of value or which may be given in trade or by which the user may secure additional chances or rights to use such machine, apparatus, or device, or in the playing of which the operator does not have a chance to make varying scores or tallies. (1937, c. 196, s. 3.)

An indictment charging the ownership and distribution of slot machines adapted for use in such a way that as a result of the insertion of a coin the machine may be operated in such a manner that the user may secure additional chances or rights to use such machine and upon which the user has a chance to make various scores upon the outcome of which wagers may be made, follows the language of this section and is sufficient to charge the offense therein defined. State v. Abbott, 218 N. C. 470, 11 S. E. (2d) 539, followed in 218 N. C. 480, 481, 482, 11 S. E. (2d) 545, 546, 547.

§ 14-307. Issuance of license prohibited.—There shall be no state, county, or municipal tax levied for the privilege of operating the machines or devices the operation of which is prohibited by §§ 14-304 through 14-309. (1937, c. 196, s. 4.)

§ 14-308. Declared a public nuisance.—An article or apparatus maintained or kept in violation of §§ 14-304 through 14-309 is a public nuisance. (1937, c. 196, s. 5.)

§ 14-309. Violation made misdemeanor.—Any person who violates any provision of §§ 14-304 through 14-309 is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 196, s. 6.)

Art. 38. Marathon Dances and Similar Endurance Contests.

§ 14-310. Dance marathon and walkathons prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, association or corporation to promote, advertise or conduct any marathon dance contests, walkathon contests and/or similar endurance contests, by whatever name called, of walking or dancing, and it shall be unlawful for any person to participate in any marathon dance contest, walkathon contest, and/or similar physical endurance contest by walking and dancing continuing or intended to continue for a period of more than eight consecutive hours, whether or not an admission is charged and/or a prize awarded, and it shall be unlawful for any person to participate in more than one such contest or performance within any period of forty-eight hours. (1935, c. 13, s. 1.)

§ 14-311. Penalty for violation.—Any persons violating the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by imprisonment in the county or municipal jail for not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days, or by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 13, s. 2.)

§ 14-312. Each day made separate offense.—Each and every day that any person, firm or corporation shall continue such a contest or engage in any such activities and/or each day's participation in such contest or advertisement of the same or do any act in violation of the provisions of this article shall be and constitute a distinct and separate offense. (1935, c. 13, s. 3.)

Art. 39. Protection of Minors.

§ 14-313. Selling cigarettes to minors.—If any person shall sell, give away or otherwise dispose of, directly or indirectly, cigarettes, or tobacco in the form of cigarettes, or cut tobacco in any form or shape which may be used or intended to be used as a substitute for cigarettes, to any minor under the age of seventeen years; or if any person shall aid, assist or abet any other person in selling such articles to such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3804; 1891, c. 276; C. S. 4438.)

Cross Reference.—As to giving intoxicants to unmarried minors under 17 years of age, see §§ 14-331 and 14-332.

§ 14-314. Aiding minors in procuring cigarettes; duty of police officers.—If any person shall aid or assist any minor child under seventeen years old in obtaining the possession of cigarettes, or tobacco in any form used as a substitute therefor, by whatsoever name it may be called, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court.

It shall be the duty of every police officer, upon knowledge or information that any minor under the age of seventeen years is or has been smoking any cigarette, to inquire of any such minor the name of the person who sold or gave him such cigarette, or the substance from which it was made, or who aided and abetted in effecting such gift or sale. Upon receiving this information from any such minor, the officer shall forthwith cause a warrant to be issued for the person giving or selling, or aiding and abetting in the giving or selling of such cigarette or the substance out of which it was made, and have such person dealt with as the law directs. Any such minor who shall fail or refuse to give to any officer, upon inquiry, the name of the person selling or giving him such cigarette, or the substance out of which it was made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3805; 1891, c. 276, s. 2; 1913, c. 185; C. S. 4439.)

§ 14-315. Selling or giving weapons to minors.—If any person shall knowingly sell, offer for sale, give or in any way dispose of to a minor any pistol or pistol cartridge, brass knucks, bowie-knife, dirk, loaded cane or sling-shot, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3832; 1893, c. 514; C. S. 4440.)

§ 14-316. Permitting young children to use dangerous firearms.—Any person, being the parent or guardian of, or standing in loco parentis to, any child under the age of twelve years, who shall knowingly permit such child to have the possession or custody of, or use in any manner whatever, any gun, pistol or other dangerous firearm, whether such firearm be loaded or unloaded, or any other person who shall knowingly furnish such child any such firearm, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (1913, c. 32; C. S. 4441.)

§ 14-317. Permitting minors to enter barrooms, billiard rooms and bowling alleys.—If the keeper or owner of any barroom, billiard room or bowling alley shall allow any minor to enter or remain in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, where before such minor enters or remains in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, the owner or keeper thereof has been notified by the parents or guardian of such minor not to allow him to enter or remain in such barroom, billiard room or bowling alley, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3729; 1897, c. 278; C. S. 4442.)

§ 14-318. Exposing children to fire.—If any person shall leave any child of the age of seven years or less locked or otherwise confined in any dwelling, building or enclosure, and go away from such dwelling, building or enclosure without leaving some person of the age of discretion in charge of the same, so as to expose the child to danger by fire, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3795; 1893, c. 12; C. S. 4443.)

§ 14-319. Marrying females under fourteen years old.—If any person shall marry a female under the age of fourteen years, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3368; Code, s. 1083; R. C., c. 34, s. 46; 1920, c. 1041, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4444.)

Cross Reference.—As to capacity to marry in general, see § 51-2.

Cited in Caroon v. Rogers, 51 N. C. 240.

§ 14-320. Separating child under six months old from mother.—It shall be unlawful for any person to separate or aid in separating any child under six months old from its mother for the purpose of placing such child in a foster home or institution, or with the intent to remove it from the state for such purpose, unless the consent in writing for such separation shall have been obtained from the clerk of the superior court and the county health officer of the county in which the mother resides, or of the county in which the child was born; and it shall be unlawful for any mother to surrender her child for such purpose without first having obtained such consent; provided, that in every instance the county superintendent of public welfare shall have made proper investigation of the condition and situation of said mother and child and shall make a written report of same to the clerk of court and the county health officer before they take action. Any person violating this section shall, upon conviction, be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars or imprisoned for one year, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 59; 1919, c. 240; 1939, c. 56; C. S. 4445.)

Cross Reference.—As to adoption generally, see Chapter 48.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the proviso to the first sentence.

§ 14-321. Failing to pay minors for doing certain work.—Whenever any person, having a contract with any corporation, company or person for the manufacture or change of any raw material by the piece or pound, shall employ any minor to assist in the work upon the faith of and by color of such contract, with intent to cheat and defraud such minor, and, having secured the contract price, shall willfully fail to pay the minor when he shall have performed his part of the contract work, whether done by the day or by the job, the person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3428a; 1893, c. 309; C. S. 4446.)

Cross Reference.—As to child labor regulations, see § 110-1 et seq.

Art. 40. Protection of the Family.

§ 14-322. Abandonment of family by husband.—If any husband shall willfully abandon his wife without providing adequate support for such wife, and the children which he may have begotten upon her, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; Provided, that the abandonment of children by the father shall constitute a continuing offense and shall not be barred by any statute of limitations until the youngest living child shall arrive at the age of eighteen years. (Rev., s. 3355; Code, s. 970; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 1; 1873-4, c. 176, s. 10; 1879, c. 92; 1925, c. 290; C. S. 4447.)

Cross References.—As to failure of husband to provide adequate support for family, see § 14-325. As to competency of wife's testimony upon trial of husband for abandonment, see § 8-57.

Editor's Note.—The latter part of this section, providing that the abandonment shall be a continuing offense until the youngest child should arrive at the age of eighteen years and barring the running of the statute of limitation until that time was added by Public Laws 1925, ch. 290.

The purpose of this section was to make unlawful a willful abandonment of a wife by a husband without providing adequate support for her. It is not made unlawful for a husband to simply willfully abandon his wife—a husband is not compelled to live with his wife if he provides her adequate support. Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N. C. 239, 240, 1 S. E. (2d) 540.

Section must be strictly construed. State v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 331, 13 S. E. (2d) 529.

It has no application to illegitimate children, and therefore an indictment drawn under this section charging defendant with the abandonment of his illegitimate child fails to charge a crime. State v. Gardner, 219 N. C. 331, 13 S. E. (2d) 529.

Two Offenses Created.—The placing of a comma after the words "such wife," in this section, evinces the legislative intent to create two offenses, the one, the willful abandonment of the wife, and the other, the willful abandonment by the father of his children of the marriage; especially when construed in connection with section 14-325, making it a misdemeanor for the husband to "willfully neglect to provide adequate support for his wife and the child or children which he has begotten by her." State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 115 S. E. 190.

This section in express terms constitutes the abandonment of children by the father a continuing offense. The prosecution of an offense of this nature is a bar to a subsequent prosecution for the same offense charged to have been committed at any time before the institution of the first prosecution, but it is not a bar to a subsequent prosecution for continuing the offense thereafter, as this is a new violation of the law. State v. Hinson, 209 N. C. 187, 190, 183 S. E. 397.

The willful failure and refusal to support an illegitimate child, constitutes a continuing offense. State v. Johnson, 212 N. C. 566, 194 S. E. 319.

Construed with § 14-325.—Where the husband has been convicted of willfully abandoning his wife and minor children (under this section); and, secondly, of willfully failing to support them (§ 14-325), an order suspending judgment upon the second count, to take effect, however, upon the defendant's failure to comply with the order for support under this first one, is not objectionable as being conditional or alternative. State v. Vickers, 196 N. C. 239, 145 S. E. 175.

The Indictment.—An indictment against a husband for abandoning his wife must aver his failure to support her. State v. May, 132 N. C. 1020, 43 S. E. 819.

Abandonment Must Be Willful.—The willful abandonment of the wife is an essential element of the offense made criminal by this section, and this, the prosecutrix is required to show beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756; State v. Smith, 164 N. C. 475, 79 S. E. 979.

But there is no reversible error in the charge of the court for omitting the word "willful" in one part thereof when he has elsewhere repeatedly instructed the jury that in order to convict the abandonment must have been willful, which must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Taylor, 175 N. C. 833, 96 S. E. 22.

Where the defendant is indicted under this section for failure to provide adequate support for his minor children, and in the prosecution of the action the evidence tends to show that the defendant and his wife were living apart and that he had not provided any support for his minor children for some time, and that a judgment had been entered in a civil action by the wife awarding all his personality except his personal belongings, and that he had transferred his realty to his daughter for the support of the wife and minor children, there is no presumption of wilfulness from the failure to provide adequate support under § 14-323, and an instruction that leaves out this essential element of the crime will be held for reversible error. State v. Roberts, 197 N. C. 662, 150 S. E. 199.

The word "willfully" as used in § 49-2 is used with the same import as in this section. State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 261, 262, 176 S. E. 757.

Providing for Support.—It is within the discretion of the trial judge to provide for the support of the wife and the minor children of the marriage from the property or labor of the husband upon his conviction of wilfully abandoning them (§§ 14-322, 14-324), and an order that he pay a certain sum of money into the clerk's office monthly for this purpose, and secure compliance therewith by executing a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars comes within the provisions of the statute. State v. Vickers, 196 N. C. 239, 145 S. E. 175.

Where the husband has been convicted of abandoning his wife and minor children, the order of the judge providing for their support should be definite in providing for the contingencies that may arise, such as the coming of age of the children, etc., and should state what part thereof is for the support of the wife and what part is for the support of the children; and an order requiring the defendant to pay a certain sum monthly into the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, under a bond of the defendant to secure compliance, without further provisions, will be remanded so that a more definite order be given in the judgment of the lower court. State v. Vickers, 196 N. C. 239, 145 S. E. 175.

Both Abandonment and Non-Support Must Be Proved.—Both the fact of wilful abandonment and that of failure to support must be alleged and proved, the abandonment, being a single act and not a continuing offense, day by day, but the duty to support being a continuing one during the marital union, to be performed by him unless relieved therefrom by legal excuse; and his wilful abandonment and failure to provide constitutes the statutory offense. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 597, 107 S. E. 429.

"In State v. Johnson, 194 N. C. 378, 139 S. E. 697, it was said: 'An offending husband may be convicted of abandonment and nonsupport when—and only when—two things are established: First, a wilful abandonment of the wife; and, second, a failure to provide "adequate support for such wife, and the children which he may have begotten upon her." S. v. Toney, 162 N. C. 635, 78 S. E. 156; S. v. Hopkins, 130 N. C. 647, 40 S. E. 973. The abandonment must be wilful, that is, without just cause, excuse or justification. S. v. Smith, 164 N. C. 475, 79 S. E. 979. And both ingredients of the crime must be alleged and proved. S. v. May, 132 N. C. 1020, 1021, 43 S. E. 819.' " State v. Yelverton, 196 N. C. 64, 65, 144 S. E. 534.

Good Faith of Abandonment Question for Jury.—In a prosecution of a husband for abandonment the question whether such abandonment was in good faith for the causes assigned is for the jury. State v. Hopkins, 130 N. C. 647, 40 S. E. 973.

Separation by Consent.—Where the wife has consented to a separation from her husband, his leaving her is not an abandonment within the meaning of this section. State v. Smith, 164 N. C. 475, 79 S. E. 979.

An offer of a home when not made in good faith, and when refused, is equivalent to abandonment by the husband. State v. Smith, 164 N. C. 475, 79 S. E. 978.

Divorce after First Conviction No Defense on New Trial.—Where the husband has been indicted, tried, and convicted for the criminal abandonment of his wife, under this section, and upon appeal he has been granted a new trial, the fact that since his former conviction his wife has obtained an absolute divorce from him will not avail him as a defense. State v. Faulkner, 185 N. C. 635, 116 S. E. 168.

Abandonment of Children after Divorce.—The father's duty to the children is not lessened by the fact that a decree of absolute divorce has been obtained, the obligation to support his own children continuing after the marriage relation between him and his wife has been severed by the law. State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 115 S. E. 190.

Denial of Paternity.—Where the husband in an action for nonsupport of a child admits the nonsupport, but denies that he is the father, and introduces evidence in support thereof, an instruction that withdraws the question of the paternity of the child from the jury is reversible error. State v. Ray, 195 N. C. 628, 143 S. E. 216.

Wife Guilty of Adultery.—Where a wife is guilty of adultery, her husband is not liable to prosecution for abandonment. State v. Hopkins, 130 N. C. 647, 40 S. E. 973.

Upon the trial of the husband for abandonment, under this section, the wife's unchastity is a defense, which he may put in issue by cross-examination or otherwise, with the burden remaining on the State to show his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756.

While ordinarily the husband may not withdraw his support from his wife and children, and compel her to leave him without violating this section, it is one of the exceptions to the rule under which the husband may prove justification, when she has committed adultery with another man, and an instruction which deprives the husband of this defense is reversible error. State v. Johnson, 194 N. C. 378, 139 S. E. 697.

Competency of Wife's Testimony.—Under § 8-57 the wife is a competent witness against her husband "as to the fact of abandonment, or neglect to provide adequate support." She is not, however, a competent witness to prove the fact of marriage. State v. Brown, 67 N. C. 470. See § 8-57 and notes thereunder.

Not a Continuing Offense.—The crime of wilful abandonment by the husband of his wife is not a continuing offense, day by day, and where there has been a complete act of abandonment and no renewal of the marital association, the act must have occurred within two years next before indictment found. State v. Hannon, 168 N. C. 215, 83 S. E. 701.

Condonation by Wife Does Not Bar Prosecution.—Abandonment of the wife by the husband is a statutory offense, and it is not condoned, so far as the State's right to prosecute is concerned, by a subsequent resumption of the marital relation. State v. Manon, 204 N. C. 52, 167 S. E. 493.

Jurisdiction.—The constructive domicile of the wife is that of her husband, and where he has resided in another State and has left her there, and where for business or other reasonable purposes he has come to this State and made his domicile here, and she has followed him and he has then abandoned her and ceased to contribute to her support and that of his child born to them in lawful wedlock, the abandonment occurs in this State and is within the jurisdiction of the courts of this State and subject to the provisions of our statute making it a misdemeanor. State v. Sneed, 197 N. C. 668, 150 S. E. 197.

Venue.—When the husband has agreed to a separation from his wife upon consideration of his remitting periodically a certain sum of money to a certain county in which she was to reside, and he fails of performance, the venue of an action under the provisions of this section, is in that county. State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Same—Where Husband Non-Resident.—Where a man willfully abandons his wife in this State and fails to send her funds for an adequate support, when he was residing in another State, he cannot direct her choice of residence and is indictable under this section in the county of her residence. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 597, 107 S. E. 429.

Statute of Limitations.—Where the abandonment consisted in the failure to remit her a certain sum of money periodically to a certain county in which his conduct had forced her to reside, the failure to support occurred at the time he failed to perform his agreement, and the statute will begin to run from that date, and was not a bar under the facts of this case. State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Same—Renewal of Cohabitation.—Where a man willfully abandons his wife, sends remittances for her support, returns and lives with her as man and wife for a while, and again abandons her, his willfully leaving her the second time without providing an adequate support for her is a fresh abandonment and failure to support, and an indictment found within two years therefrom is not barred by the statute of limitations. State v. Beam, 181 N. C. 597, 107 S. E. 429.

Same—Promise and Gifts.—The promise of the father to support his children and his making gifts to them is sufficient to repel the bar of the two-year statute of limitations, whether he was living in the home with them or otherwise, in proceedings under this section for his willfully abandoning them. State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 115 S. E. 190.

Instruction.—Plaintiff's contention that the court should have charged that the failure to provide support under this section must have been wilful in order to constitute an abandonment is untenable. Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N. C. 239, 1 S. E. (2d) 540.

Plea in Abatement after Plea of Not Guilty.—Where the defendant has been convicted of abandoning his wife and child and failing to provide an adequate support for them under the provisions of this section, his plea in abatement comes too late after his plea of not guilty. State v. Hooker, 186 N. C. 761, 120 S. E. 449.

Amendment of Complaint.—See § 1-129.

Sufficient Evidence to Show Wilful Abandonment and Failure to Support Minor Child.—Evidence that defendant refused to support his minor child although repeated demands were made on him after the parties had returned to this State, is held to show that the offense of wilful abandonment and failure to support said minor child was committed by the defendant in this State, since this section provides that the abandonment by the father of a minor child shall constitute a continuing offense. State v. Hinson, 209 N. C. 187, 183 S. E. 397.

Punishment for Violation.—Our Constitution, Art. II, sec. 4, making a person guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by commitment to houses of correction, leaves the matter of establishing a house of correction to the discretion of the legislature, and a husband convicted of abandonment under this section, may be imprisoned or assigned to work on the roads during his term. State v. Faulkner, 185 N. C. 635, 116 S. E. 168.

Husband Cannot Be Twice Convicted.—A husband once convicted of an abandonment of his wife cannot be again tried for the same offense, he not having lived with her since the original abandonment. State v. Dunston, 78 N. C. 418.

Autrefois Acquit and Convict.—In a prosecution for the violation of this section a plea by the defendant of former conviction of the same offense is good as to the period prior to the conviction, but it is not a bar to the prosecution for his failure to provide adequate support for his children subsequent thereto. State v. Jones, 201 N. C. 424, 160 S. E. 468.

Wife Not Deprived of Civil Remedies.—Requiring the state to show the husband's willful abandonment of his wife, etc., beyond a reasonable doubt, under this section, does not deprive the wife of her civil remedies under the provisions of section 50-16. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756.

Applied in State v. Woodland, 119 N. C. 779, 25 S. E. 719; Junior Order of United American Mechanics v. Tate, 212 N. C. 305, 193 S. E. 397, 113 A. L. R. 1514.

§ 14-323. Evidence that abandonment was willful.—If the fact of abandonment of and failure to provide adequate support for the wife and children shall be proved, or, while being with such wife, neglect by the husband to provide for the adequate support of such wife or children shall be proved, then the fact that such husband neglects applying himself to some honest calling for the support of himself and family, and is found sauntering about, endeavoring to maintain himself by gaming or other undue means, or is a common frequenter of drinking houses, or is a known common drunkard, shall be presumptive evidence that such abandonment and neglect is willful. (Rev., s. 3356; Code, s. 971; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 3; C. S. 4448.)

When Evidence for Defendant Necessary.—Where the nonsupport and abandonment of the husband are both established or admitted, under this section, it may be necessary for the defendant to come forward with his evidence and proof that the abandonment was not willful to avoid the risk of an adverse verdict. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756.

Cited in Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

§ 14-324. Order to support from husband's property or earnings.—Upon any conviction for abandonment, any judge or any recorder having jurisdiction thereof may, in his discretion, make such order as in his judgment will best provide for the support, as far as may be necessary, of the deserted wife or children, or both, from the property or labor of the defendant. (1917, c. 259; C. S. 4449.)

A judgment that the defendant be confined in the common jail for one year upon each count in the indictment, the term under one count to begin at the expiration of the term under the other, the judgment to be fully satisfied at the expiration of both terms, with provision that the judgment be suspended upon the payment to his abandoned wife and children certain monthly sums for a definite period and the giving of a bond for compliance therewith, is in this case held to be sufficiently certain and definite in its terms. State v. Vickers, 197 N. C. 62, 147 S. E. 673. See notes to § 14-322.

In Addition to Section 14-322.—This section is in addition to the powers conferred by section 14-322, and does not otherwise modify or interfere with its force and effect in making the abandonment of the wife a misdemeanor. State v. Faulkner, 185 N. C. 635, 116 S. E. 168.

"Husband," Applies after Divorce.—This section, uses the word "husband" as descriptio personae, in his relation to the child of the marriage to whom his duty of support continues after a decree of divorce has been entered; and does not confine the offense to the abandonment of the wife. State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 115 S. E. 190.

A judgment under this section is not conditional because of an order that capias issue at any time on motion of the solicitor, for such order is void and not a part of judgment and capias may issue upon an order of the court. State v. Manon, 204 N. C. 52, 167 S. E. 493.

The practice of suspending judgments or staying executions in criminal prosecutions upon reasonable and just terms, with the consent of defendant, is established by custom and judicial decision, and in prosecutions for abandonment has received express legislative sanction under this section. State v. Henderson, 207 N. C. 258, 176 S. E. 758.

Judgment Entered without Notice after Default in Payment Is Void.—In State v. Brooks, 211 N. C. 702, 703, 191 S. E. 749, an order was entered requiring the defendant to pay into the clerk's office for the support and maintenance of his children certain monthly stipulated amounts, after indictment under § 14-322. Default having been made in said payments, judgment was entered upon the defendant's original plea without his knowledge or presence, and the defendant was sentenced to two years on the road. It was held that the judgment was void because entered without the knowledge or presence of the accused.

§ 14-325. Failure of husband to provide adequate support for family.—If any husband, while living with his wife, shall willfully neglect to provide adequate support of such wife or the children which he has begotten upon her, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Upon conviction of any husband as herein provided, the court having jurisdiction thereof may in his discretion make such order as in his judgment will best provide for the support of such wife or children, and may commit the said husband to the common jail of the county, to be hired out by the county commissioners for such length of time as the court may deem proper, which said wage or salary shall be paid to the said wife or children, to be used toward their support. (Rev., s. 3357; Code, s. 972; 1868-9, c. 209, s. 2; 1873-4, c. 176, s. 11; 1879, c. 92; 1921, c. 103; C. S. 4450.)

Cross Reference.—As to abandonment of wife and children, see § 14-322.

Editor's Note.—The last sentence of the section was added by Public Laws of 1921, ch. 103.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—An indictment charging violation and following the words of the statute is sufficient. State v. Kerby, 110 N. C. 558, 14 S. E. 856.

Cited in State v. Bell, 184 N. C. 701, 115 S. E. 190.

§ 14-326. Abandonment of child by mother.—If any mother shall willfully abandon her child or children, whether legitimate or illegitimate, and under sixteen years of age, she shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1931, c. 57, s. 1.)

Art. 41. Intoxicating Liquors.

§ 14-327. Adulteration of liquors.—If any person shall adulterate any spirituous, alcoholic, vinous or malt liquors by mixing the same with any substance of whatever kind, except as provided in the following section, or if any person shall sell or offer to sell any spirituous, alcoholic, vinous or malt liquors, knowing the same to be thus adulterated, or shall import into this state any spirituous or intoxicating liquors, and sell or offer to sell such liquor, knowing the same to be adulterated, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3512; Code, s. 982; 1858-9, c. 57, ss. 1, 4; C. S. 4451.)

Cross Reference.—As to regulation of intoxicating liquors, see chapter 18.

§ 14-328. Selling recipe for adulterating liquors.—If any person shall sell or offer for sale any recipe or formula whatever for adulterating any spirituous or alcoholic liquors, by mixing the same with any substance of whatever kind, except as is herein provided, he shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be fined or imprisoned as is provided in the preceding section: Provided, that this section and the two sections that immediately precede and follow it respectively shall not be so construed as to prevent druggists, physicians and persons engaged in the mechanical arts from adulterating liquors for medical and mechanical purposes. (Rev., s. 3513; Code, s. 984; 1858-9, c. 57, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4452.)

§ 14-329. Manufacturing or selling poisonous liquors.—If any person shall manufacture, sell, or in any way deal out spirituous liquors, of any name or kind, to be used as a drink or beverage, and the same shall be found to contain any foreign properties or ingredients poisonous to the human system, he shall be guilty of a felony and shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than five years, and may be fined in the discretion of the court. It shall be competent for any citizen, after making purchase of any spirituous liquor, to cause the same to be analyzed by some known competent chemist, and if upon such analysis it shall be found to contain any foreign poisonous matter, it shall be prima facie evidence against the party making such a sale. (Rev., s. 3522; Code, s. 983; 1873-4, c. 180, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4453.)

§ 14-330. Selling or giving away liquor near political speaking.—If any person shall sell or give away, either directly or indirectly, any spirituous liquors, wine or bitters containing alcohol, within two miles of any place at which political public speaking shall be advertised to take place, and does take place, during the day on which such speaking shall take place, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding twenty days. (Rev., s. 3523; Code, s. 1079; 1879, c. 212; C. S. 4454.)

§ 14-331. Giving intoxicants to unmarried minors under seventeen years old.—If any person shall give intoxicating drinks or liquors to any unmarried minor under the age of seventeen years; or if any person shall aid, assist or abet any other person in giving such drinks or liquors to such minor, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by fine or imprisonment in the discretion of the court; but nothing in this section shall prevent any parent or other person standing in loco parentis from giving or administering any such drinks or liquors to his minor child for medicinal purposes, nor any physician from giving or administering such drinks or liquors to any minor patient under his care; nor shall this section apply to the giving or using of wine in the administration of the sacrament. (1915, c. 82; C. S. 4455.)

Cross Reference.—As to giving cigarettes to minors, see §§ 14-313 and 14-314.

§ 14-332. Selling or giving intoxicants to unmarried minors by dealers; liability for exemplary damages.—If any dealer in intoxicating drinks or liquors sell, or in any manner part with for a compensation therefor, either directly or indirectly, or give away such drinks or liquors, to any unmarried person under the age of twenty-one years, knowing such person to be under the age of twenty-one years he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and such sale or giving away shall be prima facie evidence of such knowledge. Any person who keeps on hand intoxicating drinks or liquors for the purpose of sale or profit shall be considered a dealer within the meaning of this section.

The father, or if he be dead, the mother, guardian or employer of any minor to whom a sale or gift shall be made in violation of this section, shall have a right of action in a civil suit against the person so offending by such sale or gift, and upon proof of such illicit sale or gift shall recover from the party so offending such exemplary damages as a jury may assess: Provided, that such assessment shall not be less than twenty-five dollars. (Rev., ss. 3524, 3525; Code, ss. 1077, 1078; 1873-4, c. 68; 1881, c. 242; C. S. 4456.)

For cases under this law, see Spencer v. Fisher, 158 N. C. 264, 73 S. E. 810; 161 N. C. 116, 76 S. E. 731; State v. Kittelle, 110 N. C. 560, 15 S. E. 103; State v. Lawrence, 97 N. C. 492, 2 S. E. 367; State v. Walker, 103 N. C. 413, 4 S. E. 582.

Art. 42. Public Drunkenness.

§ 14-333. Public drinking on railway passenger cars; copy of section to be posted.—Any person who shall publicly engage in the drinking of intoxicating liquors in the presence of passengers on any passenger car shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or imprisoned not to exceed thirty days. This section shall not apply to any smoking compartment or to any closet, dining or buffet car. It shall be the duty of all railway companies to have posted a copy of this section in all passenger coaches used for transporting passengers within the state. (1907, c. 455; C. S. 4457.)

§ 14-334. Public drunkenness and disorderliness.—It shall be unlawful for any person to be drunk and disorderly in any public place or on any public road or street in North Carolina; person or persons convicted of a violation hereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 211; C. S. 4457(a).)

Verdict of guilty of disorderly conduct but not of drunkenness will not support conviction for drunken and disorderly conduct under this section. State v. Myrick, 203 N. C. 8, 164 S. E. 328.

§ 14-335. Local: Public drunkenness.—If any person shall be found drunk or intoxicated on the public highway, or at any public place or meeting, in any county, township, city, town, village or other place herein named, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished as is provided in this section:

1. By a fine of not more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, in the counties of Alamance, Ashe, Avery, Brunswick, Burke, Catawba, Cherokee, Clay, Cleveland, Dare, Davie, Duplin, Franklin, Gaston, Graham, Greene, Haywood, Henderson, Hyde, Johnston, Lincoln, Madison, McDowell, Mitchell, Moore, Northampton, Orange, Pitt, Richmond, Rutherford, Scotland, Stanly, Union, Vance, Warren, Washington, Wayne, Wilkes and Yadkin, and at Pungo in Beaufort county. (1907, cc. 305, 785, 900, 976; 1908, c. 113; 1909, c. 815; Pub. Loc. 1915, c. 790; Pub. Loc. 1917, cc. 447, 475; Pub. Loc. 1919, cc. 148, 200; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 5; 1929, c. 135; 1931, c. 219; 1935, c. 49, s. 1; 1935, c. 208; 1937, cc. 46, 96, 286, 329, 443; 1941, cc. 334, 336; C. S. 4458.)

2. From and after February 28, 1935, it shall be lawful for any justice of the peace in Cherokee, Jackson and Clay counties, or any mayor of any incorporated city or town in said counties, in imposing the prison sentence provided for in this section as amended, to sentence the defendant to thirty days in prison to be assigned to work on the highways of the state of North Carolina under the supervision of the State Highway and Public Works Commission, and in any case where any such defendant is so sentenced for as much as thirty days it shall be lawful for, and the duty of, the State Highway and Public Works Commission to receive and work such prisoner, as is now provided by law in case of sentences by judges of the superior court. (1935, c. 49, s. 4; 1939, c. 55.)

3. By a fine of not less than three dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, in Yancey county. (1909, c. 256; C. S. 4458.)

4. By a fine of not less than two dollars and fifty cents nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, in Buncombe county. (1909, c. 271; C. S. 4458.)

5. By a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than ten dollars in Wake county. (1907, c. 908; C. S. 4458.)

6. By a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than ten days, in the village of Kannapolis, or on the premises or within one mile of the Kannapolis cotton mills. (1909, c. 46, s. 2; C. S. 4458.)

7. By a fine, for the first offense, of not less than ten nor more than twenty dollars; for second and further offense, not less than twenty nor more than thirty dollars, or imprisoned for not more than twenty days, in Transylvania county. (Pub. Loc. 1919, c. 190; Rev., 3733; 1897, c. 57; 1899, cc. 87, 208, 608, 638; 1901, c. 445; 1903, cc. 116, 124, 523, 758; C. S. 4458.)

8. By a fine of fifteen dollars or imprisonment for ten days for the first offense; by a fine of twenty-five dollars or imprisonment for twenty days for the second offense; by a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment for thirty days for the third and subsequent offenses, in the King high school district, Stokes county. (1933, c. 287.)

9. By a fine of not less than five dollars or more than fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, in the discretion of the court in Swain county. (1933, c. 10.)

10. In Harnett, Mecklenburg, Montgomery, Nash, Pender, and Wilson Counties, by a fine, for the first offense of not more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days; for the second offense within a period of twelve months by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and for the third offense within any twelve months' period, such third offense is to be declared a misdemeanor, punishable within the discretion of the court. (1935, cc. 284, 350; 1943, c. 268, ss. 1-3.)

11. In Guilford and Surry counties, by a fine, for the first offense, of not more than fifty dollars, or imprisonment for not more than thirty days; for the second offense within a period of twelve months by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and for the third offense within any twelve months' period, such third offense to be declared a misdemeanor, punishable as a misdemeanor, within the discretion of the court. (1935, c. 207; 1937, c. 203; 1941, cc. 82, 150.)

12. In Edgecombe county, by a fine, for the first offense, of not more than fifty dollars ($50.00), or imprisonment for not more than thirty days; for the second offense within a period of twelve months, by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars ($100.00), or imprisonment for not more than sixty days; and for the third offense within any twelve months' period such offense is declared a misdemeanor, punishable as a misdemeanor within the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 95.)

13. In Jackson and Macon counties, any person violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be punished in the discretion of the court. Provided, that in the event the county commissioners of Jackson county abolish the recorder's court of said county, then, and in that event, the first sentence of this subsection shall not apply to Jackson county. (Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 17; Pub. Loc. 1931, c. 413.)

14. Any person or persons found drunk or intoxicated on the public highway, or at any public place or meeting in Currituck County, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00), nor more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense, or be imprisoned not exceeding thirty (30) days, at the discretion of the court.

Upon complaint before any justice of the peace, he shall issue a warrant for the arrest of the accused and in the absence of a duly authorized officer to execute the said warrant, he shall deputize any citizen to execute the same. (1943, c. 506.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1929 paragraph one of this section was made applicable in Northhampton.

Public Laws of 1933, c. 287, added subdivision 8, relating to King High School District, Stokes county. Chapter 10 struck out Swain from the list of counties in subdivision 1, and added subdivision 9 applicable in that county only.

Public Laws of 1935, chapter 208, added Orange to the list of counties in subsection 1. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 49, added Cherokee and Clay to subsection 1 and deleted other subsections applicable to said counties. Section 4 of this amendatory act makes it lawful for Cherokee and Clay counties to sentence the defendant to thirty days in prison to be assigned to work on the highway. Public Laws 1939, c. 55, made said section 4 of chapter 49 of Public Laws of 1935, applicable to Jackson county. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 350, added subsection 10 to the section. Public Laws of 1935, chapter 207, added subsection 11.

The 1937 amendments made subsection 11 applicable to Surry county, and added subsection 12. The amendments also inserted several counties in the list in subsection 1 as follows: C. 46, Duplin; c. 96, Johnston; c. 286, Avery, Davie, Mitchell, Wilkes and Yadkin; c. 329, Alamance; c. 443, Brunswick.

Public Laws 1941, c. 334, amended subsection one by inserting "Burke" in the list of counties. And Public Laws 1941, c. 336, inserted "Wayne" therein.

For prior amendatory acts relating to Burke county, see Public Laws 1941, cc. 82, 150.

Subsection 10 was derived from the Public Laws of 1935 and from the first 1943 amendment. The latter struck Mecklenburg from the list of counties in subsection 1. The second 1943 amendment struck from subsection 1 the townships of Poplar Branch and Fruitville in Currituck County and added subsection 14.

Art. 43. Vagrants and Tramps.

§ 14-336. Persons classed as vagrants.—If any person shall come within any of the following classes, he shall be deemed a vagrant, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days: Provided, however, that this limitation of punishment shall not be binding except in cases of a first offense, and in all other cases such person may be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court:

1. Persons wandering or strolling about in idleness who are able to work and have no property to support them.

2. Persons leading an idle, immoral or profligate life, who have no property to support them and who are able to work and do not work.

3. All persons able to work having no property to support them and who have not some visible and known means of a fair, honest and reputable livelihood.

4. Persons having a fixed abode who have no visible property to support them and who live by stealing or by trading in, bartering for or buying stolen property.

5. Professional gamblers living in idleness.

6. All able-bodied men having no other visible means of support who shall live in idleness upon the wages or earnings of their mother, wife or minor children, except of male children over eighteen years old.

7. Keepers and inmates of bawdy-houses, assignation houses, lewd and disorderly houses, and other places where illegal sexual intercourse is habitually carried on: Provided, that nothing here is intended or shall be construed as abolishing the crime of keeping a bawdy-house, or lessening the punishment by law for such crime. (Rev., s. 3740; 1905, c. 391; 1907, c. 1012, s. 1; 1913, c. 75; 1915, c. 1; C. S. 4459.)

Cross References.—As to effect of § 108-80 et seq. on this section, see § 108-89. As to prostitution, see § 14-203.

Editor's Note.—For a case decided under the former law, acts 1886, ch. 42, see State v. Custer, 65 N. C. 339.

Amendment to Warrant.—Where a warrant in a criminal action charges the defendant with "being a vagrant," it is within the discretion of the judge to allow an amendment specifying the particular act under which it has been issued; and while it is the better practice to reduce the amendment to writing at the time, the order is self executing, and failure to do so does not destroy its legal effect. State v. Walker, 179 N. C. 730, 102 S. E. 404. See also State v. Price, 175 N. C. 804, 95 S. E. 478.

Evidence.—By express statutory provision (§ 14-188), the reputation that a house is kept as a bawdy house may be received in evidence on the trial of a person for keeping one, under an indictment for vagrancy, etc., and the statute is constitutional and valid. State v. Price, 175 N. C. 804, 95 S. E. 478.

Imposition of Wrong Sentence.—Where a conviction for vagrancy has been legally had under this section, and the sentence has been imposed of imprisonment for twelve months allowed under section 14-208, the case will be remanded for the imposition of the proper sentence. State v. Walker, 179 N. C. 730, 102 S. E. 404.

§ 14-337. Police officers to furnish list of disorderly houses; inmates competent and compellable to testify.—It shall be the duty of the chief of police, marshal, constable or other chief ministerial officer of each city and town in this state to furnish every thirty days to the police justice, recorder, mayor or other trial officer of such city or town a list of the bawdy, assignation, lewd and disorderly houses and other places where illegal sexual intercourse is carried on, together with the names of the keepers and inmates of such houses and places, in such city or town; and it shall be the duty of such police justice, recorder, mayor or other trial officer, upon the filing of such list, to issue his warrant for the persons declared in subsection seven of § 14-336 to be vagrants, and to punish in accordance with the provisions of that section such of them as may be found guilty. In all trials under said subsection seven of § 14-336 any keeper or inmate of any of the houses or places named, or his employees, shall be competent and compellable to give evidence of the character and nature of such house or place and of the character and acts of the keepers and inmates thereof; but the person so testifying shall not be prosecuted or punished for the commission of any crime about which he shall have been required to testify.

If any chief of police, marshal, constable or other chief ministerial officer of any city or town shall fail to furnish the list of houses and places provided for in this section, or shall suppress the name of any person whom he is required herein to report, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (1907, c. 1012, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 4460.)

Cross Reference.—As to the effect of § 108-80 et seq. on this section, see § 108-89.

§ 14-338. Tramp defined and punishment provided; certain persons excepted.—If any person shall go about from place to place begging or subsisting on charity, he shall be denominated a tramp, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding thirty days: Provided, that any person who shall furnish satisfactory evidence of good character shall be discharged without cost. Any act of begging or vagrancy by any person, unless a well-known object of charity, shall be evidence that the person committing the same is a tramp. This section shall not apply to any woman, to any minor under the age of fourteen years, or to any blind person. (Rev., s. 3735; Code, ss. 3828, 3829, 3831, 3833; 1897, c. 268; 1879, c. 198, ss. 1, 4, 6; C. S. 4461.)

Cross References.—As to the effect of § 108-80 et seq. on this section, see § 108-89. As to release for good behavior of one committed to house of correction, see § 153-221.

§ 14-339. Trespassing and the carrying of dangerous weapons by tramps.—If any tramp shall enter any dwelling-house or kindle any fire on the land of another without the consent of the owner or occupant thereof, or shall kindle a fire on any highway, or shall be found carrying any firearm or other dangerous weapon, or shall threaten to do any injury to the person, or to the real or personal estate, of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, not to exceed twelve months. (Rev., s. 3736; Code, s. 3829; 1879, c. 198, s. 2; C. S. 4462.)

§ 14-340. Malicious injuries by tramps to persons and property.—If any tramp shall willfully and maliciously do any injury to the person, or to the real or personal estate, of another, he shall be punished by imprisonment, at the discretion of the court, not to exceed three years. (Rev., s. 3737; Code, s. 3830; 1879, c. 198, s. 3; C. S. 4463.)

§ 14-341. Arrest of tramps by persons who are not officers.—Any person, upon a view of any offense described in §§ 14-338 through 14-340, shall cause the offender to be arrested upon a warrant and taken before some justice of the peace, or he may apprehend the offender and take him before a justice of the peace, for examination, and, on his conviction, he shall be entitled to the same fee as a sheriff. (Rev., s. 3738; Code, s. 3832; 1879, c. 198, s. 5; C. S. 4464.)

Art. 44. Regulation of Sales.

§ 14-342. Selling or offering to sell meat of diseased animals.—If any person shall knowingly and willfully slaughter any diseased animal and sell or offer for sale any of the meat of such diseased animal for human consumption, or if any person knows that the meat offered for sale or sold for human consumption by him is that of a diseased animal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3442; 1905, c. 303; C. S. 4465.)

§ 14-343. Unauthorized dealing in railroad tickets.—If any person shall sell or deal in tickets issued by any railroad company, unless he is a duly authorized agent of the railroad company, or shall refuse upon demand to exhibit his authority to sell or deal in such tickets, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3764; 1895, c. 83, s. 1; C. S. 4466.)

Cited in concurring opinion of Stacy, C. J., in State v. Yarboro, 194 N. C. 498, 506, 140 S. E. 216.

§ 14-344. Sale of athletic contest tickets in excess of printed price.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to sell or offer for sale any ticket of admission to any baseball, basketball, football game or other athletic contest of any kind in excess of the sale price written or printed on such ticket or tickets. Any person, firm or corporation violating any provision of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 180.)

§ 14-345. Sale of cotton at night under certain conditions.—If any person shall buy, sell, deliver or receive, for a price, or for any reward whatever, any cotton in the seed, or any unpacked lint cotton, brought or carried in a basket, hamper or sheet, or in any mode where the quantity is less than what is usually baled, or where the cotton is not baled, between the hours of sunset and sunrise, such person so offending shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3813; Code, s. 1006; 1873-4, c. 62; 1874-5, c. 70; 1905, c. 417; C. S. 4467.)

Local Modification.—Mecklenburg, Nash: C. S. 4467.

§ 14-346. Sale of convict-made goods prohibited.—Except as hereinafter provided, the sale anywhere within the state of North Carolina of any and all goods, wares and merchandise manufactured, produced or mined wholly or in part, by convicts or prisoners, except by convicts or prisoners on parole or probation, or in any penal and/or reformatory institutions is hereby prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

The provisions of this section shall not apply to sales or exchanges between the state penitentiary and other penal, charitable, educational and/or custodial institutions, maintained wholly or in part by the state, or its political subdivisions, for use in said institution or by the wards thereof; nor shall the provisions of this section apply to the sale of cotton, corn, grain or other processed or unprocessed agricultural products, including seed for growing purposes, or to the sale of stone, quarried by convict labor, or to the sale of coal or chert mined by convict labor, in any mine operated by the state: Provided that this section shall apply with equal force to sales to the state or any political subdivision thereof by any state penal or correctional institution, including the state highway: Provided further that the state of North Carolina shall have the right of manufacturing in any of its penal or correctional institutions products to be used exclusively by the state or any of its agencies.

This section shall apply equally to convict or prison-made goods, wares or merchandise, whether manufactured, produced or mined within or without the state of North Carolina.

Any person, firm or corporation selling, undertaking to sell, or offering for sale any such prison-made or convict-made goods, wares or merchandise, anywhere within the State, in violation of the provisions of this section, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction, shall be subject to fine, or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. Each sale or offer to sell, in violation of the provisions of this section, shall constitute a separate offense. (1933, c. 146, ss. 1-4.)

Art. 45. Regulation of Employer and Employee.

§ 14-347. Enticing servant to leave master.—If any person shall entice, persuade and procure any servant by indenture, or any servant who shall have contracted in writing or orally to serve his employer, to leave unlawfully the service of his master or employer; or if any person shall knowingly and unlawfully harbor and detain, in his own service and from the service of his master or employer, any servant who shall unlawfully leave the service of such master or employer, then, in either case, such person and servant shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding one hundred dollars or imprisoned not exceeding six months. (Rev., s. 3365; Code, ss. 3119, 3120; 1866, c. 58; 1866-7, c. 124; 1881, c. 303; C. S. 4469.)

Cross Reference.—As to a similar provision in the case of landlord and tenant or cropper, see § 14-359.

In General.—The offense was not known to the common law, State v. Rice, 76 N. C. 194. The section applies only where there has been an enticement, and not where a servant merely leaves his employer, even though such leaving is in violation of a contract between the parties. State v. Daniel, 89 N. C. 553. Nor does the section apply to the parent of a minor child who commands such child to quit employment. State v. Anderson, 104 N. C. 771, 10 S. E. 47. But if a minor is induced to leave his employment by a stranger, not in loco parentis, such stranger is amenable to action under this section. State v. Harwood, 104 N. C. 724, 10 S. E. 171. The section does not apply where a mere contract to serve, not entered into, has been made. Sears v. Whitaker, 136 N. C. 37, 48 S. E. 517; State v. Holly, 152 N. C. 839, 67 S. E. 53.

A tenant or cropper of another is not his servant, within the meaning of this section. State v. Etheridge, 169 N. C. 263, 84 S. E. 264.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—It is not necessary to specify whether the contract is oral or written, nor the means by which the enticing was accomplished. State v. Harwood, 104 N. C. 724, 10 S. E. 171.

Cited in Haskins v. Royster, 70 N. C. 601, 607.

§ 14-348. Local: Hiring servant who has unlawfully left employer.—If any person shall knowingly hire, employ, harbor or detain in his own service any servant, employee, tenant, or wage hand of any other person, who shall have contracted in writing, or orally, for a fixed period of time to serve his employer, and who shall have left the service of his employer in violation of his contract, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be civilly liable in damages to the party so aggrieved. This section shall apply to the following counties: Beaufort, Edgecombe, Person, Pitt, Washington, Warren, Vance, Pender, Halifax, Guilford, Granville, Hertford, Richmond, Wake, Wayne and Caswell. (Rev., s. 3374; 1901, c. 682; 1903, c. 365; 1907, c. 238, s. 2; 1907, c. 402; 1919, c. 274; C. S. 4470.)

Cross Reference.—As to employing tenant or cropper who has unlawfully violated a contract with his landlord, see § 14-358.

§ 14-349. Enticing seamen from vessel.—If any person shall induce any seaman, in the employment of any domestic or foreign vessel, in any of the ports of North Carolina, to leave any such vessel before his term of service shall have expired, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3555; Code, s. 1108; 1879, c. 219, s. 1; 1881, c. 256, s. 1; C. S. 4471.)

§ 14-350. Secreting or harboring deserting seamen.—If any person shall secrete or harbor any seaman who has deserted from any domestic or foreign vessel, knowing that such seaman has deserted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days; and if such seaman be found concealed or secreted by any person on his premises, such concealment and secretion shall be deemed prima facie evidence that such person knew that such seaman was a deserter. (Rev., s. 3556; Code, s. 1109; 1879, c. 219, s. 2; 1881, c. 256, s. 2; C. S. 4472.)

Cited in State v. Barrett, 138 N. C. 630, 636, 50 S. E. 506.

§ 14-351. Search warrants for deserting seamen.—If any credible witness shall complain, upon oath before any justice of the peace, that any person has concealed on his premises any seaman who has deserted from any such domestic or foreign vessel, it shall be lawful for such justice to grant a search warrant to be executed within the limits of his county to any proper officer, authorizing him to search for such seaman, and to arrest the person on whose premises he may be found; and the person on whose premises such seaman shall be found shall be adjudged to pay the costs of the search warrant, if on examination it shall appear that such seaman was secreted or concealed by such person; otherwise the costs shall be paid by the party making the complaint. (Rev., s. 3557; Code, s. 1110; 1881, c. 256, s. 3; C. S. 4473.)

§ 14-352. Appeal in cases of deserting seamen regulated.—In all cases arising under §§ 14-349 through 14-351, if any appeal is prayed by either party at the time of the trial, it shall be granted; but no appeal shall be granted by any justice at any time after the final hearing of the case. In case an appeal is prayed at the trial, it shall be the duty of the justice to proceed immediately to reduce to writing the testimony of any witness whose testimony is material (if such witness shall be master, officer or seaman on board of any vessel), in the presence of the adverse party, who may cross-question such witness, which testimony shall be subscribed by such witness and returned by the justice with the papers in the case; and on the hearing in the appellate court, the testimony so taken and reduced to writing by the justice shall be read, heard and accepted as the true and lawful testimony of such witness, as if such person were in person present to give evidence. For reducing such testimony to writing the justice shall receive the same fees as are allowed for taking depositions. (Rev., s. 3558; Code, s. 1111; 1881, c. 256, ss. 4, 5; C. S. 4474.)

§ 14-353. Influencing agents and servants in violating duties owed employers.—Any person who gives, offers or promises to an agent, employee or servant any gift or gratuity whatever with intent to influence his action in relation to his principal's, employer's or master's business; any agent, employee or servant who requests or accepts a gift or gratuity or a promise to make a gift or to do an act beneficial to himself, under an agreement or with an understanding that he shall act in any particular manner in relation to his principal's, employer's or master's business; any agent, employee or servant who, being authorized to procure materials, supplies or other articles either by purchase or contract for his principal, employer or master, or to employ service or labor for his principal, employer or master, receives, directly or indirectly, for himself or for another, a commission, discount or bonus from the person who makes such sale or contract, or furnishes such materials, supplies or other articles, or from a person who renders such service or labor; and any person who gives or offers such an agent, employee or servant such commission, discount or bonus, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1913, c. 190, s. 1; C. S. 4475.)

§ 14-354. Witness required to give self-incriminating evidence; no suit or prosecution to be founded thereon.—No person shall be excused from attending, testifying or producing books, papers, contracts, agreements and other documents before any court, or in obedience to the subpoena of any court, having jurisdiction of the crime denounced in § 14-353, on the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate him or to subject him to a penalty or to a forfeiture; but no person shall be liable to any suit or prosecution, civil or criminal, for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, before such court or in obedience to its subpoena or in any such case or proceeding: Provided, that no person so testifying or producing any such books, papers, contracts, agreements or other documents shall be exempted from prosecution and punishment for perjury committed in so testifying. (1913, c. 190, s. 2; C. S. 4476.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions against self-criminating evidence, see the North Carolina Constitution, Art. I, § 11, and notes thereto, and the United States Constitution, Amendment V.

Editor's Note.—For an article discussing the limits to self-incrimination, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 229.

§ 14-355. Blacklisting employees.—If any person, agent, company or corporation, after having discharged any employee from his or its service, shall prevent or attempt to prevent, by word or writing of any kind, such discharged employee from obtaining employment with any other person, company or corporation, such person, agent or corporation shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars; and such person, agent, company or corporation shall be liable in penal damages to such discharged person, to be recovered by civil action. This section shall not be construed as prohibiting any person or agent of any company or corporation from furnishing in writing, upon request, any other person, company or corporation to whom such discharged person or employee has applied for employment, a truthful statement of the reason for such discharge. (1909, c. 858, s. 1; C. S. 4477.)

Intent of Section.—This section was intended to correct the abuse under the common law of statements made concerning a discharged employee out of malice, where damages for the loss of employment were difficult of admeasurement; and under the provisions of the act a statement made as to the standing of the discharged employee is not privileged, if made maliciously. Seward v. Receivers, 159 N. C. 241, 242, 75 S. E. 34.

Remedial Provisions.—The provisions of this and the following section are remedial and do not put the burden upon the plaintiff of showing either malice or actual damages. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

What Constitutes a Violation.—Where an employer has discharged his employee for being a member of a lawful association of like employees, and has advised others, without a request from them, who would have engaged the services of such employee that he would not sell his product to them should they employ him, and thus has prevented the discharged employee from getting employment within the State, and forced him to obtain employment in another state, depriving him of his living at home here with his family, etc., the employee is entitled to recover damages in his civil action against his former employer, and a demurrer ore tenus to a complaint setting forth this cause of action is bad. Goins v. Sargent, 196 N. C. 478, 146 S. E. 131.

§ 14-356. Conspiring to blacklist employees.—It shall be unlawful for two or more persons to agree together to blacklist any discharged employee or to attempt, by words or writing or any other means whatever, to prevent such discharged employee, or any employee who may have voluntarily left the service of his employer, from obtaining employment with any other person or company. Persons violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (1909, c. 858, s. 2; C. S. 4478.)

Editor's Note.—See notes to § 14-355.

§ 14-357. Issuing nontransferable script to laborers.—If any person who employs laborers by the day, week or month shall issue in payment for the services of such laborers any ticket, certificate or other script bearing upon its face the word "non-transferable," or shall issue such ticket, certificate or other script in any form that would render it void by transfer from the person to whom issued, or shall refuse to pay to the person holding the same its face value, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3730; 1889, c. 280; 1891, cc. 46, 78, 167, 370, 456; 1895, c. 127; C. S. 4479.)

"Face Value" Defined.—The "face value" is the value expressed on the face of the writing in the commodity in which it is payable. Marriner v. Roper Co., 112 N. C. 164, 16 S. E. 906.

Rights of Assignee.—This section does not authorize the assignee of a ticket or scrip payable in merchandise to demand and receive payment in money instead of in merchandise. Marriner v. Roper Co., 112 N. C. 164, 16 S. E. 906.

Art. 46. Regulation of Landlord and Tenant.

§ 14-358. Local: Violation of certain contracts between landlord and tenant.—If any tenant or cropper shall procure advances from his landlord to enable him to make a crop on the land rented by him, and then willfully abandon the same without good cause and before paying for such advances; or if any landlord shall contract with a tenant or cropper to furnish him advances to enable him to make a crop, and shall willfully fail or refuse, without good cause, to furnish such advances according to his agreement, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. Any person employing a tenant or cropper who has violated the provisions of this section, with knowledge of such violation, shall be liable to the landlord furnishing such advances for the amount thereof, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. This section shall apply to the following counties only: Wayne, Lenoir, Greene, Johnston, Jones, Onslow, Craven, Cleveland, Sampson, Pitt, Duplin, Gates, Cumberland, Perquimans, Chowan, Robeson, Bladen, Nash, Harnett, Edgecombe, Hertford, Wilson, Rockingham, Pender, Currituck, Gaston, Stokes, Surry, Alamance, Northampton, Beaufort, Chatham, Tyrrell, Mecklenburg, Halifax, Caswell, Camden, Cabarrus, Columbus, Martin, Washington, Wake, Alexander, Montgomery, Pamlico, Rowan, Rutherford, Bertie, Vance, Warren, Lincoln, Randolph and Lee. (Rev., s. 3366; 1905, cc. 297, 383, 445, 820; 1907, c. 84, s. 1; 1907, c. 595, s. 1; 1907, cc. 8, 639, 719, 869; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 26; 1925, c. 285, s. 2; Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 211; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 614; 1931, c. 136, s. 1; C. S. 4480.)

Cross References.—As to similar provisions for master and servants, see § 14-347 et seq. As to ejectment of tenant, see § 42-26 and annotation thereto.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws 1920 Ex. Sess., ch. 26, and Lee county added to the list of counties to which its provisions are applicable. In 1925, Public Laws 1925, ch. 285, section 2, Randolph County was added thereto. Public-Local Laws, 1925, ch. 211, added Stokes and Surry counties, and Alamance was added by Public-Local Laws, 1927, ch. 614. The Act of 1931 added Vance County.

Constitutionality of Section.—The provisions of this section contravene Article I, section 16, of our State Constitution, prohibiting imprisonment for debt, except in cases of fraud; and an indictment thereunder, without averment of fraud, will be quashed. State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 802, 63 S. E. 949; Minton v. Early, 183 N. C. 199, 111 S. E. 347.

Jurisdiction.—A court of a justice of the peace has final jurisdiction of a willful abandonment of crop in violation of this section. State v. Wilkes, 149 N. C. 453, 62 S. E. 430.

Indictment Insufficient.—An indictment under the provisions of this section which does not charge that the abandonment of the crop by tenant or cropper was "without cause" and "before paying for such advances," should be quashed as insufficient. State v. Williams, 150 N. C. 802, 63 S. E. 949.

Cited in concurring opinion of Stacy, C. J., in State v. Yarbboro, 194 N. C. 498, 506, 140 S. E. 216.

§ 14-359. Local: Tenant neglecting crop; landlord failing to make advances; harboring or employing delinquent tenant.—If any tenant or cropper shall procure advances from his landlord to enable him to make a crop on the land rented by him, and then willfully refuse to cultivate such crops or negligently or willfully abandon the same without good cause and before paying for such advances; or if any landlord who induces another to become tenant or cropper by agreeing to furnish him advances to enable him to make a crop, shall willfully fail or refuse without good cause to furnish such advances according to his agreement; or if any person shall entice, persuade or procure any tenant, lessee or cropper, who has made a contract agreeing to cultivate the land of another, to abandon or to refuse or fail to cultivate such land, or after notice shall harbor or detain on his own premises, or on the premises of another, any such tenant, lessee or cropper, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Any person who employs a tenant or cropper who has violated the provisions of this section, with knowledge of such violation, shall be liable to the landlord furnishing such advances for the amount thereof. This section shall apply only to the following counties: Washington, Cabarrus, Alamance, Davidson, Harnett, Wake, Hyde, Anson, Hertford, Sampson, Franklin, Union, Richmond, Moore, Lincoln, Rowan, Rutherford, Halifax, Rockingham, Vance, Lee, Stokes, Granville, Randolph, Person and Stanly. (Rev., s. 3367; 1905, c. 299, ss. 1-7; 1907, c. 84, s. 2; 1907, c. 238, s. 1; 1907, c. 595, s. 2; 1907, cc. 543, 810; Ex. Sess. 1920, cc. 20, 26; 1923, c. 32; 1925, c. 285, s. 3; Pub. Loc. 1927, c. 614; 1929, c. 5, s. 1; 1931, c. 44; 1931, c. 136, s. 2; 1939, c. 95; C. S. 4481.)

Cross Reference.—As to willful destruction of landlord's property by the tenant, see § 42-11.

Editor's Note.—The counties of Randolph and Lee were added hereto by Public Laws 1920, Ex. Sess., ch. 20, 26; Granville and Person counties were added by Public Laws 1923, ch. 32; and Randolph County was added by Public Laws 1925, ch. 285, § 3. Alamance was added by Public Local Laws, 1927, ch. 614. The Act of 1929 added Stanley County, and in 1931 Stokes and Vance counties were added. The 1939 amendment added Washington, Cabarrus, Davidson and Harnett counties.

Art. 47. Cruelty to Animals.

§ 14-360. Cruelty to animals; construction of section.—If any person shall willfully overdrive, overload, wound, injure, torture, torment, deprive of necessary sustenance, cruelly beat, needlessly mutilate or kill or cause or procure to be overdriven, overloaded, wounded, injured, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, needlessly mutilated or killed as aforesaid, any useful beast, fowl or animal, every such offender shall for every such offense be guilty of a misdemeanor. In this section, and in every law which may be enacted relating to animals, the words "animal" and "dumb animal" shall be held to include every living creature; the words "torture," "torment" or "cruelty" shall be held to include every act, omission or neglect whereby unjustifiable physical pain, suffering or death is caused or permitted; but such terms shall not be construed to prohibit lawful shooting of birds, deer and other game for human food. (Rev., s. 3299; Code, ss. 2482, 2490; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 34, s. 1; 1881, c. 368, ss. 1, 15; 1907, c. 42; C. S. 4483.)

Cross Reference.—As to livestock, see also § 14-366.

In General.—Anger does not excuse the killing when it was wilful and needless. State v. Neal, 120 N. C. 613, 27 S. E. 81. And under such circumstances the intent is immaterial. Id. In order to convict, however, there must be a finding that the act was "wilfully and unlawfully" done. State v. Tweedy, 115 N. C. 704, 20 S. E. 183. Unnecessary suffering knowingly and willfully permitted constitutes the offense. State v. Porter, 112 N. C. 887, 16 S. E. 915.

The Indictment.—The facts constituting torturing, tormenting or cruel conduct must be set out when such conduct is charged. State v. Watkins, 101 N. C. 702, 8 S. E. 346. A charge that defendant "did unlawfully and wilfully beat" was held sufficient in State v. Alleson, 90 N. C. 733.

Injury to Prevent Depredations.—The fact that cows (State v. Butts, 92 N. C. 784) or chickens (State v. Neal, 120 N. C. 613, 27 S. E. 81) were trespassing on defendant's property is not a defense to an action under this section, where the killing or wounding was unnecessary. See also, State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 628, 72 S. E. 321.

Illustrations.—Shooting pigeons for sport (State v. Porter, 112 N. C. 887, 16 S. E. 915) and poisoning chickens (State v. Bossee, 145 N. C. 579, 59 S. E. 879) have been held violations of the section.

Hitting a runaway horse with a rock, however, has been held insufficient to sustain a directed verdict—the question of the wilful purpose to injure being for the jury. State v. Isley, 119 N. C. 862, 26 S. E. 35.

A dog is a useful animal within the meaning of this section. State v. Dickens, 215 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. (2d) 837.

Unnecessary to Show Dog Has Pecuniary Value.—It is unnecessary to show that a dog is of a pecuniary value to the owner to maintain an indictment for cruelty forbidden by the section. State v. Smith, 156 N. C. 628, 72 S. E. 321.

The word "wilful" as used in criminal statutes signifies more than the mere intention to do a thing, and means the commission of the act "without just cause, excuse, or justification." State v. Dickens, 215 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. (2d) 837.

Justification.—In a prosecution for needlessly killing a useful dog, evidence that a dog, not identified as the dog killed, had frequented the place where defendant was employed, resulting in unpleasant odors around the place, and that the dog had barked at night, is properly excluded from the evidence upon the state's objection, since the evidence does not tend to establish justification, the presence of the dog on the premises giving the defendant only the right to drive him away but not to injure him unnecessarily, and previous offenses committed by the dog not being justification for killing him, the right to kill being founded on the immediate necessity of protecting property, a person, or another animal. State v. Dickens, 215 N. C. 303, 1 S. E. (2d) 837.

Applied in State v. Holt, 90 N. C. 749.

§ 14-361. Instigating or promoting cruelty to animals.—If any person shall willfully set on foot, or instigate, or move to, carry on, or promote, or engage in, or do any act towards the furtherance of any act of cruelty to any animal, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3300; Code, s. 2487; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 6; C. S. 4484.)

§ 14-362. Bear-baiting, cock-fighting and similar amusements.—If any person shall keep, or use, or in any way be connected with, or interested in the management of, or shall receive money for the admission of any person to, any place kept or used for the purpose of fighting, or baiting any bull, bear, dog, cock, or other animal; or if any person shall encourage, aid or assist therein, or shall permit or suffer any place to be so kept or used, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3301; Code, s. 2483; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 2; C. S. 4485.)

§ 14-363. Conveying animals in a cruel manner.

—If any person shall carry or cause to be carried in or upon any vehicle or other conveyance, any animal in a cruel or inhuman manner, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. Whenever an offender shall be taken into custody therefor by any officer, the officer may take charge of such vehicle or other conveyance and its contents, and deposit the same in some safe place of custody. The necessary expenses which may be incurred for taking charge of and keeping and sustaining the vehicle or other conveyance shall be a lien thereon, to be paid before the same can be lawfully reclaimed; or the said expenses, or any part thereof remaining unpaid, may be recovered by the person incurring the same of the owner of such animal in an action therefor. (Rev., s. 3302; Code, s. 2486; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 5; C. S. 4486.)

Art. 48. Animal Diseases.

§ 14-364. Selling, using or exposing diseased animals.

—If any person shall sell, offer for sale, use or expose, or cause or procure to be sold, offered for sale, used or exposed, any horse or other animal having the disease known as glanders or farcy, or any other contagious or infectious disease known by such person to be dangerous to the life, or which shall be diseased past recovery, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (Rev., s. 3295; Code, s. 2488; 1891, c. 65; 1881, c. 368, s. 7; C. S. 4487.)

Art. 49. Protection of Livestock Running at Large.

§ 14-365. Failing to show hide and ears of livestock killed while running at large.

—If any person shall kill any neat cattle, sheep or hogs in the woods or range, and shall for two days fail to show the hide and ears to the nearest justice or to two freeholders, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3315; Code, s. 2318; R. C., c. 17, s. 2; 1901, c. 546; 1907, c. 821; C. S. 4493.)

Local Modification.—Tyrrell: C. S. 4493.

§ 14-366. Molesting or injuring livestock.

—If any person shall unlawfully and on purpose drive any livestock, lawfully running at large in the range, from said range, or shall kill, maim or injure any livestock, lawfully running at large in the range or in the field or pasture of the owner, whether done with actual intent to injure the owner, or to drive the stock from the range, or with any other unlawful intent, every such person, his counselors, aiders, and abettors, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall prohibit any person from driving out of the range any stock unlawfully brought from other states or places. In any indictment under this section it shall not be necessary to name in the bill or prove on the trial the owner of the stock molested, maimed, killed or injured. (Rev., s. 3314; Code, s. 1002; 1885, c. 383; 1887, c. 368; 1895, c. 190; R. C., c. 34, s. 104; 1850, c. 94, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 4494.)

Local Modification.—Graham, Haywood, Jackson, Swain, Transylvania: C. S. 4494.

Cross Reference.—As to cruelty to animals, see § 14-360.

§ 14-367. Altering the brands of and misbranding another's livestock.

—If any person shall knowingly alter or deface the mark or brand of any other person's horse, mule, ass, neat cattle, sheep, goat, or hog, or shall knowingly mismark or brand any such beast that may be unbranded or unmarked, not properly his own, with intent to defraud any other person, the person so offending shall be guilty of a felony, and shall be punished as if convicted of larceny. (Rev., s. 3317; Code, s. 1001; R. C., c. 34, s. 57; 1797, c. 485, s. 2; C. S. 4495.)

Cross Reference.—As to cattle brands, their registration, defacement, etc., see § 80-45 et seq.

§ 14-368. Placing poisonous shrubs and vegetables in public places.

—If any person shall throw into or leave exposed in any public square, street, lane, alley or open lot in any city, town or village, or in any public road, any mockorange or other poisonous shrub, plant, tree or vegetable, he shall be liable in damages to any person injured thereby and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3318; 1887, c. 338; C. S. 4496.)

Cross Reference.—As to putting out poisonous food stuffs, see § 14-401.

§ 14-369. Wounding, capturing or killing of homing pigeons prohibited.

—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons at any time or in any manner to hurt, pursue, take, capture, wound, maim, disfigure or kill any homing pigeon then and there owned by another person, or to trap the same by use of any pit, pitfall, scaffold, cage, snare, trap, net, baited hook or similar trapping device, or make use of any drug, poison, explosive or chemical for the purpose of injuring, capturing or killing any such homing pigeon. Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 10.)

Art. 50. Protection of Letters, Telegrams, and Telephone Messages.

§ 14-370. Wrongfully obtaining or divulging knowledge of telephonic messages.

—If any person wrongfully obtains, or attempts to obtain, any knowledge of a telephonic message by connivance with a clerk, operator, messenger or other employee of a telephone company, or, being such clerk, operator, messenger or employee, willfully divulges to any but the person for whom it was intended, the contents of a telephonic message or dispatch intrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or the nature thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3848; 1903, c. 599; C. S. 4497.)

§ 14-371. Violating privacy of telegraphic messages; failure to transmit and deliver same promptly.—If any person wrongfully obtains, or attempts to obtain, any knowledge of a telegraphic message by connivance with a clerk, operator, messenger, or other employee of a telegraph company, or, being such clerk, operator, messenger, or other employee, willfully divulges to any but the person for whom it was intended, the contents of a telegraphic message or dispatch intrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or the nature thereof, or willfully refuse or neglect duly to transmit or deliver the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3846; 1889, c. 41, s. 1; C. S. 4498.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for failure to transmit an intrastate telegraphic message within a reasonable time, see § 56-11.

§ 14-372. Unauthorized opening, reading or publishing of sealed letters and telegrams.—If any person shall willfully, and without authority, open or read, or cause to be opened or read, a sealed letter or telegram, or shall publish the whole or any portion of such letter or telegram, knowing it to have been opened or read without authority, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3728; 1889, c. 41, s. 2; C. S. 4499.)

The Indictment.—It is necessary to charge, in an indictment for a violation of this section and to prove upon the trial, that the letter or telegram was "sealed," or that it was published with knowledge that it had been opened and read without authority. State v. Bagwell, 107 N. C. 859, 12 S. E. 254.

Art. 51. Protection of the Game of Baseball.

§ 14-373. Bribery of baseball players, umpires, and officials.—If any person shall bribe or offer to bribe, any baseball player with the intent to influence his play, action or conduct in any baseball game, or if any person shall bribe or offer to bribe any umpire of a baseball game, with intent to influence his decision or bias his opinion or judgment, in relation to any baseball game, or if any person shall bribe or offer to bribe any manager, or other official of a baseball club, league, or association by whatsoever named called conducting said game of baseball, such person shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 1; C. S. 4499(a).)

§ 14-374. Acceptance of bribes by baseball players, umpires, or officials.—If any baseball player shall accept, or agree to accept, a bribe offered for the purpose of influencing his play, action or conduct in any baseball game, or if any umpire of a baseball game shall accept or agree to accept a bribe offered for the purpose of influencing his decision or biasing his opinions, rulings or judgment, or if any manager of a baseball club, or club or league official shall accept or agree to accept any bribe offered for the purpose of inducing him to lose or cause to be lost any baseball game, as set forth in § 14-373 of this article, such baseball player, manager, official, or umpire shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, shall be punished by confinement in the state penitentiary for not less than one year nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 2; C. S. 4499(b).)

§ 14-375. Completion of offenses set out in sections 14-373, 14-374.—To complete the offenses mentioned in §§ 14-373, 14-374, it shall not be necessary that the baseball player, manager, umpire, or official, shall, at the time, have been actually employed, selected, or appointed to perform their respective duties; it shall be sufficient if the bribe be offered, accepted or agreed to with the view of the probable employment, selection or appointment of the person to whom the bribe is offered or by whom it is accepted. Neither shall it be necessary that such baseball player, umpire or manager actually play or participate in a game or games concerning which said bribe is offered or accepted; it shall be sufficient if the bribe be given, offered, or accepted in view of his or their possibly participating therein. (1921, c. 23, s. 3; C. S. 4499(c).)

§ 14-376. "Bribe" defined.—By a "bribe" as used in this article, is meant any gift, emolument, money or thing of value, testimonial, privilege, appointment or personal advantage, or the promise of either, bestowed or promised for the purpose of influencing, directly or indirectly, any baseball player, manager, umpire, club or league official, to see which game an admission fee may be charged, or in which game of baseball any player, manager or umpire is paid any compensation for his services. Said bribe as defined in this article need not be direct; it may be such as is hidden under the semblance of a sale, bet, wager, payment of a debt, or in any other manner designed to cover the true intention of the parties. (1921, c. 23, s. 4; C. S. 4499(d).)

§ 14-377. Intentional losing of baseball game or aiding therein.—If any baseball player, manager or club official shall commit any willful act of omission or commission in playing or directing the playing of a baseball game with intent to cause the ball club with which he is affiliated to lose a baseball game; or if any umpire officiating in a baseball game, or league official, shall commit any willful act connected with his official duties for the purpose and with the intent to cause a baseball club to win or lose a baseball game which it would not otherwise have won or lost under the rules governing the playing of said game, he or they shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction, shall be punished by imprisonment in the state penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years. (1921, c. 23, s. 5; C. S. 4499(e).)

§ 14-378. Venue.—In all prosecutions under this article the venue may be laid in any county where the bribe herein referred to was given, offered or accepted, or in which the baseball game was played in relation to which the bribe was offered, given or accepted, or the acts referred to in § 14-377 committed. (1921, c. 23, s. 6; C. S. 4606(c).)

§ 14-379. Bonus or extra compensation.—Nothing in this article shall be construed to prohibit the giving or offering of any bonus or extra compensation to any manager or baseball player by any person to encourage such manager or player to a higher degree of skill, ability or diligence in the performance of his duties. (1921, c. 23, s. 7; C. S. 4499(f).)

§ 14-380. Application of article. — This article shall apply only to baseball league and club officials, umpires, managers and players who are officials of, or employed by, baseball clubs who are members of "The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues." (1921, c. 23, s. 7a; C. S. 4499(g).)

Art. 52. Miscellaneous Police Regulations.

§ 14-381. Desecration of state and national flag. —Any person who in any manner, for exhibition or display, shall place or cause to be placed any word, figure, mark, picture, design, drawing, or any advertisement of any nature upon any flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States or state flag or ensign of this state, or shall expose or cause to be exposed to public view any such flag, standard, color or ensign upon which shall have been printed, painted or otherwise placed, or to which shall be attached, appended, affixed or annexed, any word, figure, mark, picture, design or drawing or any advertisement of any nature, or who shall expose to public view, manufacture, sell, expose for sale, give away, or have in possession for sale or to give away, or for use for any purpose, any article or substance of merchandise, or a receptacle of merchandise or article or thing for carrying or transporting merchandise, upon which shall have been printed, painted, attached or otherwise placed a representation of any such flag, standard, color or ensign, to advertise, call attention to, decorate, mark or distinguish the article or substance upon which it is so placed, or who shall publicly mutilate, deface, defile, or defy, trample upon or cast contempt, either by words or act, upon any such flag, standard, color or ensign, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding fifty dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days. Any person violating this section shall also forfeit a penalty of fifty dollars for each offense, to be recovered with costs in a civil action or suit in any court having jurisdiction. Such action or suit may be brought by and in the name of any citizen of this state, and such penalty, when collected, less the costs and expenses of the action or suit, shall be paid one-half to the person suing and one-half to the school fund of the county in which suit was brought; and two or more penalties may be sued for and recovered in the same action or suit.

The words, flag, standard, color or ensign, as used in this section, shall include any flag, standard, color, ensign, or any picture or representation of any of them, made of any substance or represented on any substance, and of any size, evidently purporting to be a flag, standard, color or ensign of the United States of America, or a picture or a representation of any of them, upon which shall be shown the colors, the stars and the stripes, in any number of either thereof, or by which the person seeing the same, without deliberation, may believe it to represent the flag, colors, standard or ensign of the United States of America.

The possession by any person other than a public officer, as such, of a flag, standard, color, ensign, article, substance, or thing, on which there is anything made unlawful by this section, shall be presumptive evidence that the same is in violation of this section. (1917, c. 271; C. S. 4500.)

§ 14-382. Pollution of water or lands used for dairy purposes.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation owning lands adjoining the lands of any person, firm, or corporation which are or may be used for dairy purposes or for grazing milk cows, to dispose of or permit disposal of any animal, mineral, chemical, or vegetable refuse, sewage or other deleterious matter in such way as to pollute the water on the lands so used or which may be used for dairy purposes or for grazing milk cows, or to render unfit or unsafe for use the milk produced from cows feeding upon the grasses and herbage growing on such lands. This section shall not apply to incorporated towns maintaining a sewer system. Anyone violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than fifty dollars or imprisoned for not more than thirty days, or both, and each day that such pollution is committed or exists shall constitute a separate offense. (1919, c. 222; C. S. 4501.)

Cross References.—As to pollution of waters for the purpose of killing or catching fish, see §§ 113-245 and 113-170. As to discharge of deleterious matter into waters, see § 113-172.

§ 14-383. Cutting timber on town watershed without disposing of boughs and debris; misdemeanor.—Any person, firm or corporation owning lands or the standing timber on lands within four hundred feet of any watershed held or owned by any city or town, for the purpose of furnishing a city or town water supply, upon cutting or removing the timber or permitting the same cut or removed from lands so within four hundred feet of said watershed, or any part thereof, shall, within three months after cutting, or earlier upon written notice by said city or town, remove or cause to be burned under proper supervision all tree-tops, boughs, laps and other portions of timber not desired to be taken for commercial or other purposes, within four hundred feet of the boundary line of such part of such watershed as is held or owned by such town or city, so as to leave such space of four hundred feet immediately adjoining the boundary line of such watershed, so held or owned, free and clear of all such tree-tops, laps, boughs and other inflammable material caused by or left from cutting such standing timber, so as to prevent the spread of fire from such cutover area and the consequent damage to such watershed. Any such person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1913, c. 56; C. S. 4502.)

In General.—The section constitutes a valid exercise of the police power and is constitutional. State v. Perley, 173 N. C. 783, 92 S. E. 504.

The motive is immaterial and where the intent to violate the section is shown the defendant is punishable. Id.

§ 14-384. Injuring notices and advertisements.—If any person shall wantonly or maliciously mutilate, deface, pull or tear down, destroy or otherwise damage any notice, sign or advertisement, unless immoral or obscene, whether put up by an officer of the law in performance of the duties of his office or by some other person for a lawful purpose, before the object for which such notice, sign or advertisement was posted shall have been accomplished, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not exceeding twenty-five dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days at the discretion of the court. Nothing herein contained shall apply to any person mutilating, defacing, pulling or tearing down, destroying or otherwise damaging notices, signs or advertisements put upon his own land or lands of which he may have charge or control, unless consent of such person to put up such notice, sign or advertisement shall have first been obtained, except those put up by an officer of the law in the performance of the duties of his office. (Rev., s. 3709; 1885, c. 302; C. S. 4503.)

Cross Reference.—As to the unlawful posting of advertisements, see § 14-145.

§ 14-385. Defacing or destroying public notices and advertisements.—If any person shall willfully and unlawfully deface, tear down, remove or destroy any legal notice or advertisement authorized by law to be posted by any officer or other person, the same being actually posted at the time of such defacement, tearing down, removal or destruction, during the time for which such legal notice or advertisement shall be authorized by law to be posted, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days. (Rev., s. 3710; Code, s. 981; 1876-7, c. 215; C. S. 4504.)

§ 14-386. Erecting signals and notices in imitation of those of railroads.—No person, firm or corporation other than a railroad or street railway company shall, for advertisement or other purposes, erect and maintain on or near any highway any cross-arm post or other post or standard containing the words "Stop! Look! Listen!" or other such words or combinations of words in imitation of railroad signals or notices. Any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by fine or imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 230; C. S. 4505.)

§ 14-387. Operating automobile while intoxicated.—Any person who shall, while intoxicated or under the influence of intoxicating liquors or biters, morphine or other opiates, operate a motor vehicle upon any public highway or cartway or other road, over which the public has a right to travel, of any county or the streets of any city or town in this State, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than fifty dollars or imprisoned not less than thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court, and the judge shall upon conviction, deny said person or persons the right to drive a motor vehicle on any of the roads defined in this section for a period of not more than twelve months nor less than ninety days. (1919, c. 234; 1925, c. 283; 1927, c. 230, s. 1; C. S. 4506.)

Local Modification.—Gates: Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 41; Bertie: Pub. Loc. 1925, c. 27.

Cross Reference.—As to the revocation of driver's license for driving while intoxicated, see § 20-17.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws 1925, ch. 283 and cartways and other roads used by the public included herein. At the same time the provision, giving the judge the right to revoke for twelve months the right to drive an automobile, of any one found guilty of violating this section, was added. The section was again amended in 1927 when the revocation of license was made mandatory upon the judge.

Operation of Vehicle Imports Motion.—In a prosecution under this section defendant testified that he was not driving the truck, but that the driver got out to examine the motor when the truck stalled, and that defendant placed his foot on the brake to keep the truck from rolling backward. The court charged the jury to the effect that holding his foot on the brake to keep the truck from rolling backward was an operation of the truck within the meaning of the statute. Held: The operation of a motor vehicle within the meaning of the statute imports motion of the vehicle, and does not include the acts of defendant as testified to by him. State v. Hatcher, 210 N. C. 55, 185 S. E. 435.

Jurisdiction of Municipal Court.—Where a statute creating a municipal court does not give it criminal jurisdiction over the offense described by this section, this jurisdiction is acquired by this section to the extent only of binding the defendant over to the superior court upon conviction. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 543, 106 S. E. 827.

Policeman May Arrest without Warrant.—A policeman may arrest without a warrant a person in his presence violating this section. State v. Loftin, 186 N. C. 205, 119 S. E. 209.

Instruction.—In a prosecution for drunken driving, an instruction that defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquor if he had drunk enough to make him act or think differently than he would have acted or thought if he had not drunk any, regardless of the amount he drank, is held without error. State v. Harris, 213 N. C. 648, 197 S. E. 142.

Sentence Not Reviewable on Appeal.—Where a statute leaves a punishment for its violation within the sound discretion of the trial court, the sentence imposed therein will not be reviewed by the Supreme Court on appeal where its exercise has not been grossly and palpably abused. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 543, 106 S. E. 827.

Sentence Not Excessive.—A sentence to the county jail for a term of six months, and to be assigned to work on the public roads, upon defendant's plea of nolo contendere to a warrant charging him with the operation of an automobile upon the public highways while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, is not excessive. State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. (2d) 475.

Manslaughter.—In a prosecution for manslaughter it was held that the violation of this section was not the proximate result of the fatal accident. State v. Miller, 220 N. C. 660, 18 S. E. (2d) 143.

Cited in State v. McKnight, 210 N. C. 57, 185 S. E. 437.

§ 14-388: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 14-389. Sale of Jamaica ginger.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to sell the compound known as Jamaica ginger except upon the prescription of a duly licensed and regularly practicing physician; the person, firm, or corporation selling Jamaica ginger upon prescription shall keep a list of said prescriptions, and shall allow said list to be examined by any officer of the law, and no prescription shall ever be filled but once; it shall be unlawful for any physician to give a prescription for Jamaica ginger except to a person directly under his care, and then only in good faith for medicinal purposes only. (1919, c. 288; Pub. Loc. 1913, c. 761; C. S. 4507.)

§ 14-390. Furnishing intoxicants, poisons or fire-arms to inmates of charitable and penal institutions.—If any person shall sell or give to any inmate of any charitable or penal institution any intoxicating drink or any narcotic, poison or poisonous substance, except upon the prescription of a physician, or shall give or sell to any such inmate any deadly weapon, or any cartridge or ammunition for firearms of any kind, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined or imprisoned at the discretion of the court; and if he be an officer or employee of any institution of the state, he shall be dismissed from his office. (Rev., s. 3517; 1899, c. 1, s. 52; C. S. 4508.)

Cross Reference.—As to conveying messages, weapons, or instruments with which to effect an escape to prisoners, see § 14-258.

§ 14-391. Usurious loans on household and kitchen furniture or assignments of wages.—Any person, firm or corporation who shall lend money in any manner whatsoever by note, chattel mortgage, conditional sale or otherwise, upon any article of household or kitchen furniture or upon any assignment or sale of wages, earned or to be earned, and shall take, receive, reserve or charge a greater rate of interest than six per cent, either before or after the interest may accrue, or who shall refuse to give receipts for payments on interest or principal of such loan, or who shall fail and refuse to surrender the note and security when the same is paid off or a new note and mortgage is given in renewal, unless such new mortgage shall state the amount still due by the old note or mortgage and that the new one is given as additional security, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and in addition thereto shall forfeit double the interest which has been theretofore paid. (1907, c. 110; 1927, c. 72; C. S. 4509.)

Cross Reference.—As to interest in general, see § 24-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section was broadened by the Public Laws of 1927, ch. 72, by the addition of the portion relating to the assignment of wages.

This section is constitutional. State v. Davis, 157 N. C. 648, 73 S. E. 130.

Interest Need Not Be Received.—The charge of the usurious interest constitutes the offense without the necessity of having received it. State v. Davis, 157 N. C. 648, 73 S. E. 130.

§ 14-392. Digging ginseng on another's land during certain months.—All persons shall be allowed to dig ginseng at any time of the year for the purpose of replanting the same. If any person dig ginseng, except on his own premises, or for the purpose of replanting the same, between the first day of April and the first day of September, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars for each day's or part of a day's digging, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3502, 3714; Code, s. 1053; 1866-7, c. 30; 1905, c. 211; C. S. 4510.)

Cross Reference.—As to the larceny of ginseng, see § 14-79.

§ 14-393. Purchase of ginseng; register to be kept; details.—Every person, firm or corporation buying ginseng in any quantity shall keep a register, and shall keep therein a true and accurate record of each purchase, showing the amount of the ginseng, the name and residence of the person from whom purchased, the source from which obtained, and amount paid for the same and the date of the purchase. A failure to comply with the above requirements, or the making of a false entry in regard to the purchasing of such ginseng, shall be a misdemeanor, punishable in the discretion of the court. (1923, c. 199; C. S. 4510(a).)

Editor's Note.—This section supplements section 14-392, relative to digging ginseng and section 14-79 relative to the larceny thereof, by requiring the accurate record.

§ 14-394. Anonymous or threatening letters, mailing or transmitting.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, or any association of persons in this state, under whatever name styled, to write and transmit any letter, note, or writing, whether written, printed, or drawn, without signing his, her, their, or its true name thereto, threatening any person or persons, firm or corporation, or officers thereof with any personal injury or violence or destruction of property of such individuals, firms, or corporations, or using therein any language or threats of any kind or nature calculated to intimidate or place in fear any such person, firms or corporations, or officers thereof, as to their personal safety or the safety of their property, or using vulgar or obscene language, or using such language which if published would bring such persons into public contempt and disgrace, and any person, firm, or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 112; C. S. 4511(a).)

§ 14-395. Commercialization of American Legion emblem; wearing by non-members.—It shall be unlawful for any one not a member of the American Legion, an organization consisting of ex-members of the army, navy and marine corps, who served as members of such organizations in the recent world war, to wear upon his or her person the recognized emblem of the American Legion, or to use the said emblem for advertising purposes, or to commercialize the same in any way whatsoever; or to use the said emblem in display upon his or her property or place of business, or at any place whatsoever. Any one violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1923, c. 89; C. S. 4511(b).)

§ 14-396. Dogs on "Capitol Square" worrying squirrels.—It shall be unlawful for any owner or keeper of a dog to permit the same to run at large on the Capitol grounds known as "Capitol Square" or to be thereon unless on leash or otherwise in the immediate physical control of said owner or keeper, or to pursue, worry or harass any squirrel or other wild animal kept on said grounds. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by fine not exceeding fifty dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days. (1925, c. 289.)

§ 14-397. Use of name of denominational college in connection with dance hall.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, corporation, club or society, by whatsoever name called, to use in connection with any dance, or dance hall, by advertisement, announcement, or otherwise, the name of any college, or any class or organization of any college operated and conducted by a religious denomination, unless the written permission of the Dean of such college is given, permitting and allowing the use of the name of such denominational college, or a class or organization of the same in connection with such dance, or dance hall. Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100) or imprisonment for not less than sixty days. (1927, c. 6.)

§ 14-398. Theft or destruction of property of public libraries, museums, etc.—Any person who shall steal or unlawfully take or detain, or wilfully or maliciously or wantonly write upon, cut, tear, deface, disfigure, soil, obliterate, break or destroy, or who shall sell or buy or receive, knowing the same to have been stolen, any book, document, newspaper, periodical, map, chart, picture, portrait, engraving, statue, coin, medal, apparatus, specimen, or other work of literature or object of art or curiosity deposited in a public library, gallery, museum, collection, fair or exhibition, or in any department or office of state or local government, or in a library, gallery, museum, collection, or exhibition, belonging to any incorporated college or university, or any incorporated institution devoted to educational, scientific, literary, artistic, historical or charitable purposes, shall, if the value of the property stolen, detained, sold, bought or received knowing same to have been stolen, or if the damage done by writing upon, cutting, tearing, defacing, disfiguring, soiling, obliterating, breaking or destroying any such property, shall not exceed fifty dollars ($50.00), be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. If the value of the property stolen, detained, sold or received knowing same to have been stolen, or the amount of damage done in any of the ways or manners hereinabove set out, shall exceed the sum of fifty dollars ($50.00), the person committing same shall be guilty of a felony, and shall upon conviction be punished in accordance with the laws applicable thereto. (1935, c. 300; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment increased the amounts mentioned in this section from twenty to fifty dollars.

§ 14-399. Placing trash, refuse, et cetera, within one hundred and fifty yards of hard-surfaced highway.—It is unlawful for any person, firm, organization or private corporation, or for the governing body, agents or employees of any municipal corporation, to place or leave or cause to be placed or left, temporarily or permanently, any trash, refuse, garbage, scrapped automobile, truck or part thereof within one hundred and fifty yards of a hard-surfaced highway where the highway is outside of an incorporated town, unless the trash, refuse, garbage, scrapped automobile, truck or part thereof, is concealed from the view of persons on the highway.

This section does not apply to domestic trash or garbage placed for removal, nor to junk yards which are the property of bona fide junk dealers and which are properly screened or fenced from the view of persons on the highway.

The placing or leaving of the articles or matter forbidden by this section shall, for each day or portion thereof that the act is done, constitute a separate offense.

A violation of this section is punishable by a fine of not less than ten dollars ($10.00) and not more than fifty dollars ($50.00) for each offense.

This section shall not apply to the Counties of Alleghany, Ashe, Avery, Bertie, Brunswick, Buncombe, Cabarrus, Caswell, Columbus, Davidson, Duplin, Forsyth, Franklin, Gates, Granville, Guilford, Halifax, Hyde, Jackson, Lenoir, Lincoln, Macon, Madison, Martin, Mitchell, Montgomery, Moore, Person, Richmond, Rockingham, Rowan, Scotland, Stanly, Stokes, Surry, Swain, Transylvania, Vance, Warren, Watauga, Wilson, and Yancey. (1935, c. 457; 1937, c. 446; 1943, c. 543.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out "Anson" from the list of excepted counties. The 1943 amendment rewrote the section.

§ 14-400. Tattooing prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to tattoo the arm, limb, or any part of the body of any other person under twenty-one years of age. Any one violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 112, ss. 1, 2.)

§ 14-401. Putting poisonous foodstuffs, etc., in certain public places, prohibited.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to put or place any strychnine, other poisonous compounds or ground glass on any beef or other foodstuffs of any kind in any public square, street, lane, alley or on any lot in any village, town or city or on any public road, open field or yard in the country. Any person, firm or corporation who violates the provisions of this section shall be liable in damages to the person injured thereby and also shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. This section shall not apply to the poisoning of insects or worms for the purpose of protecting crops or gardens by spraying plants, crops or trees, nor to poisons used in rat extermination. (1941, c. 181.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 479.

§ 14-401.1. Misdemeanor to tamper with examination questions.—Any person who purloins, steals, buys, receives, or sells, gives or offers to buy, give, or sell any examination questions or copies thereof of any examination provided and prepared by law before the date of the examination for which they shall have been prepared, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1917, c. 146, s. 10; C. S. 5658.)

§ 14-401.2. Misdemeanor for detective to collect claims, accounts, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, who or which is engaged in business as a detective, detective agency, or what is ordinarily known as "secret service work," or conducts such business, to engage in the business of collecting claims, accounts, bills, notes, or other money obligations for others, or to engage in the business known as a collection agency. Violation of the provisions hereof shall be a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1943, c. 383.)

Art. 53. Sale of Weapons.

§ 14-402. Sale of certain weapons without permit forbidden.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation in this state to sell, give away, or dispose of, or to purchase or receive, at any place within the state from any other place within or without the state, unless a license or permit therefor shall have first been obtained by such purchaser or receiver from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such purchase, sale, or transfer is intended to be made, any pistol, so-called pump-gun, bowie knife, dirk, dagger or metallic knucks.

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to receive from any postmaster, postal clerk, employee in the parcel post department, rural mail carrier, express agent or employee, railroad agent or employee, within the state of North Carolina any pistol, so-called pump-gun, bowie knife, dirk, dagger or metallic knucks without having in his or their possession and without exhibiting at the time of the delivery of the same and to the person delivering the same, the permit from the clerk of the superior court as provided in section 14-403. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1919, c. 197, s. 1; 1923, c. 106; C. S. 5106.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended and strengthened by Public Laws 1923, ch. 106, the second paragraph being a new provision added by that act.

"The amendment makes it a misdemeanor, not only to sell such deadly weapons without a license, but also to receive them, when sent by mail, express or freight, without exhibiting a permit or license." 1 N. C. Law Rev. 285.

§ 14-403. Permit issued by clerk of court; form of permit.—The clerks of the superior courts of any and all counties of this state are hereby authorized and directed to issue to any person, firm, or corporation in any such county a license or permit to purchase or receive any weapon mentioned in this article from any person, firm, or corporation offering to sell or dispose of the same, which said license or permit shall be in the following form, to wit:

North Carolina,
.....County.
I,....., clerk of the Superior Court of said county, do hereby certify that..... whose place of residence is..... Street, in (or) in Township.....County, North Carolina having this day satisfied me as to his, her (or) their good moral character, and that the possession of one of the weapons described is necessary for self-defense or the protection of the home, a license or permit is therefore hereby given said to purchase one pistol. (or if any other weapon is named strike out the word pistol).....from any person, firm or corporation authorized to dispose of the same.

This.....day of....., 19....
.....
Clerk Superior Court.
(1919, c. 197, s. 2; C. S. 5107.)

§ 14-404. Applicant must be of good moral character; weapon for defense of home; clerk's fee.—Before the clerk of the superior court shall issue any such license or permit he shall fully satisfy himself by affidavits, oral evidence, or otherwise, as to the good moral character of the applicant therefor, and that such person, firm, or corporation requires the possession of the weapon mentioned for protection of the home. If said clerk shall not be so fully satisfied, he shall refuse to issue said license or permit: Provided, that nothing in this article shall apply to officers authorized by law to carry firearms. The clerk shall charge for his services upon issuing such license or permit a fee of fifty cents. (1919, c. 197, s. 3; C. S. 5108.)

§ 14-405. Record of permits kept by clerk.—The clerk of the superior court shall keep a book, to be provided by the board of commissioners of each county, in which he shall keep a record of all licenses or permits issued under this article, including the name, date, place of residence, age, former place of residence, etc., of each such person, firm, or corporation to whom or which a license or permit is issued. (1919, c. 197, s. 4; C. S. 5109.)

§ 14-406. Dealer to keep record of sales.—Every dealer in pistols, pistol cartridges and other weapons mentioned in this article shall keep an accurate record of all sales thereof, including the name, place of residence, date of sale, etc., of each person, firm, or corporation to whom or which such sales are made, which record shall be open to the inspection of any duly constituted state, county or police officer, within this state. (1919, c. 197, s. 5; C. S. 5110.)

§ 14-407. Weapons to be listed for taxes.—During the period of listing taxes in each year the owner or person in possession or having the custody or care of any weapon mentioned in this article is required to list the same specifically, as is now required for listing personal property for taxes. Any person listing any such weapon for taxes shall be required to designate his place of residence, including local street address. (1919, c. 197, s. 6; C. S. 5111.)

§ 14-408. Violation of sections 14-406 or 14-407 a misdemeanor.—Any person, firm, or corporation violating any of the provisions of §§ 14-406 or 14-407 shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1919, c. 197, s. 7; C. S. 5112.)

§ 14-409. Machine guns and other like weapons.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to manufacture, sell, give away, dispose of, use or possess machine guns, sub-machine guns, or other like weapons: Provided, however, that this section shall not apply to the following:

Banks, merchants, and recognized business establishments for use in their respective places of business, who shall first apply to and receive from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said business is located, a permit to possess the said weapons for the purpose of defending the said business; officers and soldiers of the United States army, when in discharge of their official duties, officers and soldiers of the militia and the state guard when called into actual service, officers of the state, or of any county, city or town, charged with the execution of the laws of the state, when acting in the discharge of their official duties: Provided, further, that automatic shot-guns and pistols or other automatic weapons that shoot less than sixteen shots shall not be construed to be or mean a machine gun or sub-machine gun under this act; and that any bona fide resident of this state who now owns a machine gun used in former wars, as a relic or souvenir, may retain and keep same as his or her property without violating the provisions of this section upon his reporting said ownership to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said person lives.

Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, or imprisoned for not less than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1933, c. 261, s. 1.)

- 15-193. Notice of reprieve or new trial.
- 15-194. Judgment sustained on appeal, reprieve, time for execution.
- 15-195. New trial granted, prisoner taken to place of trial.
- 15-196. Disposition of body.

Art. 20. Suspension of Sentence and Probation.

- 15-197. Suspension of sentence and probation.
- 15-198. Investigation by probation officer.
- 15-199. Conditions of probation.
- 15-200. Termination of probation, arrest, subsequent disposition.
- 15-201. Establishment and organization of a state probation commission.
- 15-202. Duties and powers of the commission; meetings; appointment of director of probation; qualifications.
- 15-203. Duties of the director of probation; appointment of probation officers; reports.
- 15-204. Assignment and compensation and oath of probation officers.
- 15-205. Duties and powers of the probation officers.
- 15-206. Co-operation with commissioner of parole and officials of local units.
- 15-207. Records treated as privileged information.
- 15-208. Payment of salaries and expenses.
- 15-209. Accommodations for probation officers.

years prior thereto although the indictment marks the beginning of the prosecution. State v. Williams, 151 N. C. 660, 65 S. E. 908. The statute does not begin to run from an entry of nol. pros. "with leave." Id.

Meaning of Malicious Misdemeanors.—When, in the former wording of this section, the Legislature used the words "other malicious misdemeanors," which immediately followed the words "malicious mischief," it evidently intended to describe offenses of which malice was a necessary ingredient to constitute the criminal act, as in the case of malicious mischief, and it was not the purpose to include within the exception from the operation of that section such offenses as would be misdemeanors, even in the absence of malice, and when malice, if present, would be only a circumstance of aggravation, which the Court might consider in imposing the punishment. State v. Frisbee, 142 N. C. 671, 675, 55 S. E. 722.

Meaning of "Secret Manner."—For construction of former provision, see State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1057, 21 S. E. 502. See for example State v. Watts, 32 N. C. 369.

"Deceit" as Used in Former Section.—There has never been such an indictable offense as "deceit" but the meaning of this section has always been that misdemeanors, the gist of which was a malice or deceit, were within the exception of the section as formerly appearing. In State v. Christianbury, 44 N. C. 46, it was held that there being no such offense as "deceit" it would apply to "cheating by false token" of which deceit was the gist but would not include "conspiracy to cheat" the gist of which offense is the conspiracy and the cheating but an aggravation. That decision did not restrict deceit to "cheating by false token" but instanced that as an offence coming within the general description of misdemeanors by deceit. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 1056, 21 S. E. 502.

What Offences Barred.—Slandering an innocent woman is not barred within two years. State v. Claywell, 98 N. C. 731, 3 S. E. 920. No length of possession can bar an action to abate a public nuisance. State v. Holman, 104 N. C. 861, 10 S. E. 758. Seduction is not barred. State v. Crowell, 116 N. C. 1052, 21 S. E. 502.

A malicious assault cannot be the basis of an action two years after commission. State v. Frisbee, 142 N. C. 671, 55 S. E. 722.

The section has no application to conspiracy which is a felony. State v. Mallett, 125 N. C. 718, 34 S. E. 651. Bastardy proceedings are not governed by this section. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1043, 30 S. E. 139.

What Constitutes a Presentment.—See State v. Morris, 104 N. C. 837, 10 S. E. 454.

Trial on Second Bill after Two Years Barred.—Even an indictment within the time will not uphold a trial and conviction on a second bill found after the statutory period. State v. Tomlinson, 25 N. C. 32; State v. Hedden, 187 N. C. 803, 805, 123 S. E. 65.

Where a warrant charging a misdemeanor is amended to charge a felony, defendant's plea of the statute of limitations on the misdemeanor count becomes immaterial. State v. Sanderson, 213 N. C. 381, 196 S. E. 324.

Preliminary Warrants Not Included.—There is no saving clause in this section as to the effect of preliminary warrants before a justice of the peace or other committing magistrate, and the law must be construed and applied as written. There must be a presentment or indictment within two years from the time of the offense committed and not afterwards. State v. Hedden, 187 N. C. 803, 805, 123 S. E. 65.

Necessity for Pleading Statute.—For a person charged with the commission of a criminal offense to avail himself of the alleged running of the statute of limitations, he must either specifically plead it or in apt time bring it to the attention of the court. State v. Brinkley, 193 N. C. 747, 138 S. E. 138.

Whether or not the court below will allow the statute of limitations as a defense to the action, where the same has not been pleaded or mentioned until the argument before the jury, is a matter of discretion. Privett v. Callo-way, 75 N. C. 23.

Upon a trial on indictment for the sale of intoxicants where there was evidence of sales at undisclosed times, it would not be presumed that such sales occurred more than two years next preceding the prosecution when defendant has not pleaded this section, or in apt time called it to the court's attention or offered evidence as to the dates of sale. State v. Colson, 222 N. C. 28, 21 S. E. (2d) 808.

Wrong Name in Bill of Indictment.—A bill of indictment against a person by a wrong name, which is pleaded to in abatement, and the plea found, is, nevertheless, the same cause of action, and the elapse of two years is no bar to prosecution. State v. Hailey, 51 N. C. 42.

§ 15-2. Issue and return of criminal process.—All process, warrants and precepts, issued by any judge or justice of the peace, or clerk of any court, on any criminal prosecution, may issue at any time, and be made returnable to any day of the term of the court, to which such warrant, process, or precept is returnable. (Rev., s. 3148; Code, s. 1178; R. C., c. 35, s. 9; 1777, c. 115, s. 15; C. S. 4513.)

§ 15-3. Date of receipt and service indorsed on process.—Every sheriff or other officer shall indorse on all process and subpoenas issuing in criminal cases, whether for the state or defendant, the day when such process and subpoenas came to hand, and also the day of their execution; and on failure of any sheriff or other officer to perform either of said duties he shall forfeit and pay the sum of ten dollars for every case of neglect, to be recovered for the use of the state, in the same manner as forfeitures are recovered against sheriffs by parties in civil suits for failure to make due return of process delivered to them. (Rev., s.

3149; Code, s. 1179; R. C., c. 35, s. 10; 1850-1, c. 57; C. S. 4514.)

Cross References.—As to forfeitures in civil actions, see §§ 162-14 and 2-41. As to criminal liability for failure to return process, see § 14-242.

§ 15-4. Accused entitled to counsel.—Every person, accused of any crime whatsoever, shall be entitled to counsel in all matters which may be necessary for his defense. (Rev., s. 3150; Code, s. 1182; R. C., c. 35, s. 13; 1777, c. 115, s. 85; C. S. 4515.)

Cross References.—As to court's power to limit argument, see § 34-14. As to constitutional provisions for counsel, see the N. C. Constitution, Art. I, § 11, and the sixth amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

A Constitutional Right.—In all criminal prosecution every man has the right * * * to have counsel for his defence. Const. Art. I, sec. 11. State v. Sykes, 79 N. C. 618, 619; see also State v. Hardy, 189 N. C. 799, 128 S. E. 152.

Stated in Powell v. Alabama, 287 U. S. 45, 63, 53 S. Ct. 55, 77 L. Ed. 158, 84 A. L. R. 527.

§ 15-5. Fees allowed counsel assigned to defend in capital case.—Whenever an attorney is appointed by the judge to defend a person charged with a capital crime, he shall receive such fee for performing this service as the judge may allow; but the judge shall not allow any fee until he is satisfied that the defendant charged with the capital crime is not able to employ counsel. The fees so allowed by the judge shall be paid by the county in which the indictment was found. (1917, c. 247; 1937, c. 226; C. S. 4516.)

Local Modification.—Buncombe: 1941, c. 206; Franklin: 1941, c. 211; Wayne: 1941, c. 33.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment the fee allowed was not to exceed twenty-five dollars.

§ 15-6. Imprisonment to be in county jail.—No person shall be imprisoned by any judge, court, justice of the peace, or other peace officer except in the common jail of the county, unless otherwise provided by law: Provided, that whenever the sheriff of any county shall be imprisoned, he may be imprisoned in the jail of any adjoining county. (Rev., s. 3151; Code, s. 1174; R. C., c. 35, s. 6; 1797, c. 474, s. 3; 1879, c. 12; C. S. 4517.)

§ 15-7. Post-mortem examinations directed.—In all cases of homicide, any officer prosecuting for the state may, at any time, direct a post-mortem examination of the deceased to be made by one or more physicians to be summoned for the purpose; and the physicians shall be paid a reasonable compensation for such examination, the amount to be determined by the court and taxed in the costs, and if not collected out of the defendant the same shall be paid by the county. (Rev., s. 3152; Code, s. 1214; R. C., c. 35, s. 49; C. S. 4518.)

Cross Reference.—See also, §§ 90-217 and 152-7, paragraph 6.

Section Valid.—This section is a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Withers v. Board, 163 N. C. 341, 79 S. E. 615.

Left to Discretion of Trial Judge.—The board of commissioners of the county are not parties to a proceeding under this section, nor are they entitled to any notice before such orders are made. The matter is left to the sound discretion of the trial judge, and unless such discretion is grossly abused, the Supreme Court will not interfere. Withers v. Board, 163 N. C. 341, 345, 79 S. E. 615.

Coroner and physicians performing autopsy may be held liable by father of deceased for wrongful mutilation when the autopsy is ordered by the coroner on his own initiative solely to ascertain the cause of death without suspicion of foul play, since in such case the coroner is without authority to order the autopsy, and his direction therefor can confer no immunity upon the physicians. Gurganious v. Simpson, 213 N. C. 613, 197 S. E. 163.

§ 15-8. Stolen property returned to owner.—Upon the conviction of any person for robbing or stealing any money, goods, chattels, or other estate of any description whatever, the person from whom such goods, money, chattels or other estate were robbed or stolen shall be entitled to restitution thereof; and the court may award restitution of the articles so robbed or stolen, and make all such orders and issue such writs of restitution or otherwise as may be necessary for that purpose. (Rev., s. 3153; Code, s. 1201; R. C., c. 35, s. 34; 21 Hen. VIII, c. 11; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 4519.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted in the first line the word "person" for the word "felon."

§ 15-9. Magistrate may associate another with him.—Any magistrate, to whom any complaint may be made, or before whom any prisoner may be brought, as by law provided, may associate with himself any other magistrate of the same county; and the powers and duties herein mentioned may be executed by the two magistrates so associated. (Rev., s. 3154; Code, s. 1159; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 28; C. S. 4520.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is in harmony with the provision of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 12, conferring power upon the General Assembly to allot and distribute judicial powers. State v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 841, 13 S. E. 718.

§ 15-10. Speedy trial or discharge on commitment for felony.—When any person who has been committed for treason or felony, plainly and specially expressed in the warrant of commitment, upon his prayer in open court to be brought to his trial, shall not be indicted some time in the next term of the superior or criminal court ensuing such commitment, the judge of the court, upon notice in open court on the last day of the term, shall set at liberty such prisoner upon bail, unless it appear upon oath that the witnesses for the state could not be produced at the same term; and if such prisoner, upon his prayer as aforesaid, shall not be indicted and tried at the second term of the court, he shall be discharged from his imprisonment: Provided, the judge presiding may, in his discretion, refuse to discharge such person if the time between the first and second terms of the court be less than four months. (Rev., s. 3155; Code, s. 1658; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 33; 1913, c. 2; C. S. 4521.)

Requirements Peremptory.—This section is peremptory in its requirements; and where one so committed has formally complied with the provisions of the statute, it is the duty of the court to discharge the prisoner. State v. Webb, 155 N. C. 426, 70 S. E. 1064.

Remedy Is by Certiorari.—A certiorari is the proper procedure to review the order of the lower court in refusing to discharge a prisoner from custody under the provisions of this section. State v. Webb, 155 N. C. 426, 427, 70 S. E. 1064.

Art. 2. Record and Disposition of Seized, etc., Articles.

§ 15-11. Sheriffs, etc., to maintain register of personal property confiscated, seized or found.—Each sheriff, police department and constable in this state is hereby required to keep and maintain a book or register, and it shall be the duty of each sheriff, police department and constable to keep a record therein of all articles of personal property which may be seized or confiscated by him or it, or of which he or it may have become possessed in any way in the discharge of his duty. Said sheriffs, police departments and constables shall cause to be kept in said registers a description of such property, the name of the person from whom it was seized, if such name be known, the date and place of its seizure, and, where the article was not taken from the person of a suspect or prisoner, a brief recital of the place and circumstances concerning the possession thereof by such sheriff, police department, or constable. Such sheriff, police department and constable shall also keep in said register appropriate entries showing the manner, date, and to whom said articles are disposed of or delivered, and, if sold as hereinafter provided, a record showing the disposition of the proceeds arising from such sale. (1939, c. 195, s. 1.)

§ 15-12. Publication of notice of unclaimed property.—Unless otherwise provided herein, whenever such articles in the possession of any sheriff, police department or constable have remained unclaimed by the person who may be entitled thereto for a period of one hundred eighty (180) days after such seizure, confiscation, or receipt thereof in any other manner, by such sheriff, police department or constable, the said sheriff, police department or constable in whose possession said articles are may cause to be published one time in some newspaper published in said county a notice to the effect that such articles are in the custody of such officer or department, and requiring all persons who may have or claim any interest therein to make and establish such claim or interest not later than thirty (30) days from the date of the publication of such notice or in default thereof, such articles will be sold and disposed of. Such notice shall contain a brief description of the said articles and such other information as the said officer or department may consider necessary or advisable to reasonably inform the public as to the kind and nature of the article about which the notice relates. (1939, c. 195, s. 2.)

§ 15-13. Public sale thirty days after publication of notice.—If said articles shall remain unclaimed or satisfactory evidence of ownership thereof not be presented to the sheriff, police department or constable, as the case may be, for a period of thirty (30) days after the publication of the notice provided for in § 15-12, then the said sheriff, police department, or constable in whose custody such articles may be, is hereby authorized and empowered to sell the same at public auction for cash to the highest bidder, either at the courthouse door of the county, or at the police headquarters of the municipality in which the said articles of property are located, and at such sale to deliver the same to the purchaser or purchasers thereof. (1939, c. 195, s. 3.)

§ 15-14. Notice of sale.—Before any sale of said property is made under the provisions of this article, however, the said sheriff, police department, or constable making the same shall first advertise the sale by publishing a notice thereof in some newspaper published in the said county at least one time not less than ten days prior to the date of sale, and by posting a notice of the sale at the courthouse door and at three other public places in the said county. Said notice shall specify the time and place of sale, and contain a sufficient description of the articles of property to be sold. It shall not be required that the sale lay open for increase bids or objections, but it may be deemed closed when the purchaser at the sale pays the amount of the accepted bid. (1939, c. 195, s. 4.)

§ 15-15. Disbursement of proceeds of sale.—From the proceeds realized from the sale of said property, the sheriff, police department, constable or other officer making the same shall first pay the costs and expenses of the sale, and all other necessary expenses incident to a compliance with this article, and any balance then remaining from the proceeds of said sale shall be paid within thirty days after the sale to the treasurer of the county board of education of the county in which such sale is made, for the benefit of the fund for maintaining the free public schools of such county. (1939, c. 195, s. 5.)

§ 15-16. Non-liability of officers.—No sheriff, police department, constable, or other officer, shall be liable for any damages or claims on account of any such sale or disposition of such property, as provided in this article. (1939, c. 195, s. 6.)

§ 15-17. Construction of article.—This article shall not be construed to apply to the seizure and disposition of whiskey distilleries, game birds, and other property or articles which have been or may be seized, where the existing law now provides the method, manner, and extent of the disposition of such articles or of the proceeds derived from the sale thereof. (1939, c. 195, s. 7.)

Cross References.—As to the disposition of liquor seized, see § 18-13. As to disposition of seized distilleries, see § 18-22.

Art. 3. Warrants.

§ 15-18. Who may issue warrant.—The following persons respectively have power to issue process for the apprehension of persons charged with any offense, and to execute the powers and duties conferred in this chapter, namely: The chief justice and the associate justices of the supreme court, the judges of the superior court, judges of criminal courts, presiding officers of inferior courts, justices of the peace, mayors of cities, or other chief officers of incorporated towns. (Rev., s. 3156; Code, s. 1132; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 1; C. S. 4522.)

Cross References.—As to coroner's power to issue warrants, see § 15-7 paragraph 4. As to warrant of arrest in cases of extradition, see § 15-61. As to power of hotel inspector to swear out warrants, see § 72-29. As to power of quarantine officer, see § 130-248.

Mayor Pro Tem. May Issue.—The power conferred upon a mayor pro tem. "to exercise the duties" of mayor during his absence includes that of issuing warrants in criminal actions. State v. Thomas, 141 N. C. 791, 53 S. E. 522.

§ 15-19. Complainant examined on oath.—Whenever complaint is made to any such magistrate that a criminal offense has been committed within this state, or without this state and within the United States, and that a person charged therewith is in this state, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to examine on oath the complainant and any witnesses who may be produced by him. (Rev., s. 3187; Code, s. 1133; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 2; C. S. 4523.)

Oath Essential.—This section requires the Justice, before issuing a warrant to examine the complainant on oath. Merrimon v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 369, 371, 11 S. E. 267.

Examination Must Show Commission of Offense.—It must appear by this examination that an offense has been committed before any warrant is issued. State v. Moore, 136 N. C. 581, 48 S. E. 573.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—It is the duty of a magistrate, before issuing a warrant on a criminal charge, except in cases super visum, to require evidence on oath amounting to a direct charge or creating a strong suspicion of guilt. Welch v. Scott, 27 N. C. 72.

Complaint Need Not Be Written.—In State v. Bryson, 84 N. C. 780, Ashe, J., in construing the provisions of the act which is now embodied in this and the next section says that no written affidavit or complaint is required. State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 879, 12 S. E. 74.

Same—No Special Form Required.—It is not expected nor required, in the absence of special provision to the contrary, that an affidavit or complaint should be in any particular form, or should charge the crime with the fullness or particularity necessary in an information or indictment, 12 Cyc., 294. State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 262, 80 S. E. 989.

Appellate Court Cannot Look Behind Warrant.—The appellate court "can only look at the warrant, which is the complaint," and "cannot look behind the warrant for objections lying in the defects or irregularities of the preliminary evidence." State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 879, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Bryson, 84 N. C. 780.

§ 15-20. Warrant issued; contents.—If it shall appear from such examination that any criminal offense has been committed, the magistrate shall issue a proper warrant under his hand, with or without seal, reciting the accusation, and commanding the officer to whom it is directed forthwith to take the person accused of having committed the offense, and bring him before a magistrate, to be dealt with according to law. A justice of the peace or a chief officer of a city or town shall direct his warrant to the sheriff or other lawful officer of his county. (Rev., s. 3158; Code, s. 1134; 1901, c. 668; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 3; C. S. 4524.)

Editor's Note.—For article discussing requisites of warrant, see 15 N. C. L. Rev. 101.

General Consideration.—It is not necessary that a warrant for assault should charge that it was issued upon a sworn complaint. State v. Price, 111 N. C. 703, 16 S. E. 414. The facts constituting the offense must be set out with certainty. State v. Jones, 88 N. C. 671. But the warrant may refer to the affidavit, State v. Yellowday, 152 N. C. 793, 67 S. E. 480, as they will be construed together. State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 80 S. E. 989.

Appearance waives a defect in a warrant. State v. Cole, 150 N. C. 805, 63 S. E. 958. A warrant need not negative an exception in a statute. State v. Moore, 166 N. C. 284, 81 S. E. 294.

Amendment of Warrant.—On appeal to the superior court from a conviction before a justice of the peace, the court can allow an amendment of the warrant. State v. Koonce, 108 N. C. 752, 12 S. E. 1032; State v. Carble, 70 N. C. 62. It is discretionary with the court whether it will exercise the power. State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532; State v. Crook, 91 N. C. 536. But a warrant can not be amended so as to charge a different offense. State v. Taylor, 118 N. C. 1262, 24 S. E. 526; State v. Vaughan, 91 N. C. 532, 535; State v. Cook, 61 N. C. 535.

An order directing an amendment to a warrant by the insertion therein of certain words is self-executing, and the words need not be actually inserted in the complaint or warrant. State v. Yellowday, 152 N. C. 793, 67 S. E. 480; See also, State v. Winslow, 95 N. C. 649; State v. Davis, 111 N. C. 729, 16 S. E. 540; State v. Sharp, 125 N. C. 628, 634, 34 S. E. 264; State v. Yoder, 132 N. C. 1111, 1113, 44 S. E. 689.

Officer Protected when Warrant Defective.—See State v. Gupton, 166 N. C. 257, 262, 80 S. E. 989; State v. Jones, 88 N. C. 671.

§ 15-21. Where warrant may be executed.—Warrants issued by any justice of the supreme court, or by any judge of the superior court, or of a criminal court, may be executed in any part of this state; warrants issued by a justice of the peace, or by the chief officer of any city or incorporated town, may be executed in any part of the county of such justice, or in which such city or town is situated, and on any river, bay or sound forming the boundary between that and some other county, and not elsewhere, unless indorsed as prescribed in § 15-22. (Rev., s. 3159; Code, s. 1135; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 4; C. S. 4525.)

§ 15-22. Warrant indorsed and served in another county.—If the person against whom any warrant is issued by a justice of the peace or chief officer of a city or town shall escape, or be in any other county out of the jurisdiction of such justice or chief officer, it shall be the duty of any justice of the peace, or any other magistrate within the county where such offender shall be, or shall be suspected to be, upon proof of the handwriting of the magistrate or chief officer issuing the warrant, to indorse his name on the same, and thereupon the person, or officer to whom the warrant was directed, may arrest the offender in that county: Provided, that an officer to whom a warrant charging the commission of a felony is directed, who is in the actual pursuit of a person known to him to be the one charged with the felony, may continue the pursuit without such indorsement. The justice of the peace or a chief officer of a city or town shall direct his warrant to the sheriff or other lawful officer of his county, and such warrant when so indorsed as herein prescribed shall authorize and compel the sheriff or other officer of any county in the state, in which such indorsement is made, to execute the same. (Rev., s. 3160; Code, s. 1136; 1917, c. 30; 1901, c. 668; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 5; C. S. 4526.)

Restricted to Criminal Cases.—The provision of this section is restricted to criminal cases. Fisher v. Bullard, 109 N. C. 574, 13 S. E. 799.

Justice in County of Service Must Endorse.—A warrant issued in one county to be served in another is not given extraterritorial efficacy unless it has the endorsement of a justice of the peace or other authorized officer in the latter county. Stancill v. Underwood, 188 N. C. 475, 476, 124 S. E. 845.

§ 15-23. Magistrate not liable for indorsing warrant.—No magistrate shall be liable to any indictment, action for trespass or other action for having indorsed any warrant pursuant to the provisions of § 15-22, although it should afterwards appear that such warrant was illegally or improperly issued. (Rev., s. 3161; Code, s. 1137; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 6; C. S. 4527.)

Endorsing Officer Fully Protected.—If a warrant issues from competent authority and the extraterritorial efficacy provided by section 15-22 is imparted to it in the county wherein the accused party was arrested, the justification is full to the officer and all who co-operated with him, and no inquiry is admissible into the circumstances under which it was issued. State v. James, 80 N. C. 370, 372.

§ 15-24. Before what magistrate a warrant returned.—Persons arrested under any warrant issued for any offense, where no provision is otherwise made, shall be brought before the magistrate who issued the warrant; or, if he be absent, or from any cause unable to try the case, before the nearest magistrate in the same county; and the warrant by virtue of which the arrest shall have been made, with a proper return indorsed thereon and signed by the officer or person making the arrest, shall be delivered to such magistrate. (Rev., s. 3162;

Code, s. 1143; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 12; C. S. 4528.)

Mayor Pro Tem.—A warrant may be returnable before a mayor pro tem. State v. Thomas, 141 N. C. 791, 53 S. E. 522.

Authority of Magistrate Issuing Warrant.—The magistrate who issues the warrant has the authority to make the warrant returnable before himself or before some officer having like jurisdiction, such a recorder to conduct the preliminary hearing. State v. Lord, 145 N. C. 479, 59 S. E. 656. Cited in State v. James, 78 N. C. 455, 457.

Art. 4. Search Warrants.

§ 15-25. In what cases issued, and where executed.—If any credible witness shall prove, upon oath, before any justice of the peace, or mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any incorporated town, that there is a reasonable cause to suspect that any person has in his possession, or on his premises, any property stolen, or any and all personal property and all tickets, books, papers and documents used in connection with and operation of lotteries or any gaming or gambling, or any false or counterfeit coin resembling, or apparently intended to resemble, or pass for, any current coin of the United States, or of any other state, province or country, or any instrument, tool or engine whatsoever, adapted or intended for the counterfeiting of any such coin; or any false and counterfeit notes, bills or bonds of the United States, or of the state of North Carolina, or of any other state or country, or of any county, city or incorporated town; or any instrument, tool or engine whatsoever, adapted or intended for the counterfeiting of such note, bill or bond, it shall be lawful for such justice, mayor or chief magistrate of any incorporated town to grant a warrant, to be executed within the limits of his county or of the county in which such city or incorporated town is situated, to any proper officer, authorizing him to search for such property, and to seize the same, and to arrest the person having in possession or on whose premises may be found such stolen property, or any and all personal property and all tickets, books, papers and documents used in connection with and operation of lotteries or any gaming or gambling, counterfeit coin, counterfeit notes, bills or bonds, or the instruments, tools or engines for making the same, and to bring them before any magistrate of competent jurisdiction, to be dealt with according to law. (Rev., s. 3163; Code, s. 1171; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 38; 1941, c. 53; C. S. 4529.)

Cross Reference.—As to warrant authorizing search for liquor, see § 18-13.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment inserted the provisions relating to lotteries, etc.

At Common Law.—Warrants to search for stolen goods are authorized by the principles of the common law. State v. McDonald, 14 N. C. 468, 470.

§ 15-26. Nature of warrant and procedure thereon.—Such search warrant shall describe the article to be searched for with reasonable certainty, and by whom the complaint is made, and in whose possession the article to be searched for is supposed to be; it shall be made returnable as other criminal process is by law required to be, and the proceedings thereupon shall be as required in other cases of criminal complaint. (Rev., s. 3164; Code, s. 1172; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 39; C. S. 4530.)

Cross References.—As to search warrants for deserting seamen, see § 14-351. As to constitutional prohibition against general warrants, see N. C. Constitution, Art. I, § 15.

§ 15-27. Warrant issued without affidavit and examination of complainant or other person; evidence discovered thereunder incompetent.—Any officer who shall sign and issue or cause to be signed and issued a search warrant without first requiring the complainant or other person to sign an affidavit under oath and examining said person or complainant in regard thereto shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; and no facts discovered by reason of the issuance of such illegal search warrant shall be competent as evidence in the trial of any action. (1937, c. 339, s. 1½.)

Editor's Note.—This section makes one important change in criminal procedure. Unlike the federal and the majority of state jurisdictions, North Carolina has always admitted evidence obtained by an illegal search. The new law provides that evidence obtained by a search made pursuant to an illegally issued search warrant cannot be admitted in evidence. This leaves open the question whether evidence obtained by an illegal search made without any search warrant would be admissible. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 343.

This section does not apply to evidence obtained by search without a warrant, the language of the statute being insufficient to require this conclusion, and the statute being in derogation of the common law rule. State v. McGee, 214 N. C. 184, 198 S. E. 616.

An affidavit for a search warrant signed by the chief of police is sufficient compliance with this section, since if the chief of police is not the informant he is "some other person," and the statute does not require that the informant should make the affidavit, or that the person signing the affidavit should state therein who his informant is, and evidence obtained on a search warrant issued on such affidavit is competent. State v. Cradle, 213 N. C. 217, 195 S. E. 392.

Officer Need Not Make the Affidavit.—It is not required that the officer using a search warrant make the affidavit. State v. Shermer, 216 N. C. 719, 6 S. E. (2d) 529.

Affidavit Based on Information.—Where the search warrant in question was issued upon the sworn affidavit of a police officer which stated that the basis of the oath was "information," the affidavit does not negative the assumption that the police officer was examined as to the particulars of his information, and it is not required that the affidavit give in detail the source and extent of the information, and evidence procured in a search under the warrant is competent. State v. Elder, 217 N. C. 111, 6 S. E. (2d) 840.

Art. 5. Peace Warrants.

§ 15-28. Officers authorized to issue peace warrants.—The following magistrates have power to cause to be kept all the laws made for the preservation of the public peace, and in execution of that power to require persons to give security to keep the peace, in the manner provided in this chapter, namely: The chief justice and associate justices of the supreme court, the judges of the superior courts, and of any special courts which may hereafter be created, the justices of the peace, the mayors or other chief officers of all cities and towns. (Rev., s. 3165; Code, s. 1216; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 1; C. S. 4531.)

A Criminal Action.—A peace warrant is a criminal action prosecuted by the state, at the instance of an individual, to prevent an apprehended crime against his person or property, and is within the exclusive jurisdiction of a justice of the peace. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668; State v. Locust, 53 N. C. 574.

§ 15-29. Complaint and examination.—Whenever complaint is made in writing, and upon oath, to any such magistrate that any person has threatened to commit any offense against the person or property of another, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to examine such complainant and any witnesses who may be produced on oath, to reduce such examination to writing, and to cause the same to be subscribed by the parties so examined. (Rev., s. 3166; Code, s. 1217; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 2; C. S. 4532.)

Applicant Should Not Be Bound Over.—It is error for a justice of the peace to bind to the superior court an applicant for a peace warrant against whom no charge is made. State v. Bass, 75 N. C. 139.

§ 15-30. Warrant issued.—If it shall appear from such examination that there is just reason to fear the commission of any such offense by the person complained of, it shall be the duty of the magistrate to issue a warrant under his hand, with or without a seal, reciting the complaint, and commanding the officer to whom it is directed forthwith to apprehend the person so complained of, and bring him before such magistrate or some other magistrate authorized to issue such warrant. (Rev., s. 3167; Code, s. 1218; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 3; C. S. 4533.)

Warrant Should Contain Allegations.—A peace warrant in which is alleged no threat, fact or circumstance from which the court can determine whether the fear of the prosecutor is well founded, should be quashed. State v. Gorum, 83 N. C. 664; State v. Cooley, 78 N. C. 538.

§ 15-31. To whom warrant directed.—The warrant shall be directed to the sheriff, coroner or any constable, each of whom shall have power to execute the same within his county; and if no sheriff, coroner or constable can conveniently be found, the warrant may be directed to any person whatever, who shall have power to execute the same within the county in which it is issued. No justice of the peace, or mayor, or other chief officer of any city or town shall direct his warrant to any officer outside the county of said justice or chief officer. (Rev., s. 3169; Code, s. 1219; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 4; C. S. 4534.)

Right of Private Person to Make Arrest.—A private person has no authority to make an arrest for a riot, rout, affray, or other breach of the peace, without warrant, except when such offenses are being committed in his presence; nor can a justice of the peace confer such authority by a mere verbal order or command. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 12 S. E. 441.

Section Confers Extraordinary Power.—The power conferred by this section is the only extraordinary case in which a justice of the peace is authorized to depute one, who is not an officer, to execute process. Marsh v. Williams, 63 N. C. 371; State v. Jones, 48 N. C. 404; McKee v. Angel, 90 N. C. 60, 61, 62.

§ 15-32. Defendant recognized to keep the peace.—Whenever any person complained of on a peace warrant is brought before a justice of the peace, such person may be required to enter into a recognizance, payable to the state of North Carolina, in such sum, not exceeding one thousand dollars, as such justice shall direct, with one or more sufficient sureties, to appear before some justice of the peace within a period not exceeding six months, and not depart the court without leave, and in the meanwhile to keep the peace and be of good behavior towards all the people of the state, and particularly towards the person requiring such security. (Rev., s. 3170; Code, ss. 894, 1220; 1879, c. 92, s. 9; C. S. 4535.)

Jurisdiction Given to Justices.—This section gives to justices of the peace exclusive original jurisdiction of peace warrants and proceedings thereunder. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668, 670.

§ 15-33. Defendant discharged, or new recognizance required.—If the complainant does not appear, the party recognized shall be discharged, unless good cause be shown to the contrary. If the respective parties appear, the court shall hear their allegations and proofs, and may either discharge the recognizance taken or they may require a new recognizance, as the circumstances of the case may require, for such time as may appear necessary, not exceeding one year. (Rev., s. 3171; Code, s. 1226; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 12; C. S. 4536.)

§ 15-34. Defendant imprisoned for want of security.—If such recognizance is given, the party complained of shall be discharged; if such person fails to find such security, it shall be the duty of the magistrate to commit him to prison until he shall find the same, specifying in the mittimus the cause of commitment and the sum in which such security was required. (Rev., s. 3172; Code, s. 1221; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 6; C. S. 4537.)

Prisoner Worked on Roads.—One committed under this section may be worked upon the roads. State v. Yandle, 119 N. C. 874, 25 S. E. 796.

§ 15-35. How discharged from imprisonment.—Any person committed for not finding sureties of the peace as above provided, may be discharged by any magistrate upon giving such security as was originally required of such person, or by a justice of the supreme court, or judge of the superior or criminal court, by giving such other security as may seem sufficient. (Rev., s. 3174; Code, 1222; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 7; C. S. 4538.)

§ 15-36. Defendant may appeal.—In all proceedings on peace warrants the defendant may appeal from the decision of the justice of the peace to the superior court by giving the bond required by the justice of the peace to keep the peace, in addition to the appeal bond, when the case shall be heard by the judge holding the court in the county. (Rev., s. 3173; 1901, c. 66; C. S. 4539.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to the passage of this section it was several times held that there was no appeal in peace warrant proceedings from the justice of the peace to the superior court. See State v. Gregory, 118 N. C. 1199, 24 S. E. 712, citing State v. Walker, 94 N. C. 857 and State v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 575. This section makes these decisions obsolete.

§ 15-37. Breach of peace in presence of court.—Every person who in the presence of any magistrate specified in the first section of this article, or in the presence of any court of record, shall make any affray, or threaten to kill or beat another, or to commit any offense against his person or property; and all persons who, in the presence of such magistrate or court, shall contend with hot and angry words, may be ordered by such magistrate or court, without any other proof, to give such security as above specified, and in case of failure so to do, may be committed as above provided. (Rev., s. 3168; Code, s. 1224; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 9; C. S. 4540.)

§ 15-38. Recognizance returned to superior court.—Every recognizance taken pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be transmitted by the magistrate taking the same to the next term of the superior court for the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3175; Code, s. 1223; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 8; C. S. 4541.)

Art. 6. Arrest.

§ 15-39. Persons present may arrest for breach of peace.—Every person present at any riot, rout, affray or other breach of the peace, shall endeavor to suppress and prevent the same, and, if necessary for that purpose, shall arrest the offenders.

(Rev., s. 3176; Code, s. 1124; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 1; C. S. 4542.)

Cross References.—As to arrest in civil cases, see § 1-409 et seq. As to arrest of tramps by persons who are not officers, see § 14-341.

Editor's Note.—For an article on the law of arrest in North Carolina, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 101.

Authority Strictly Limited.—The authority given by this section to private persons to make arrests without warrant only extends to the offenses therein mentioned and committed under the conditions therein prescribed. State v. Campbell, 197 N. C. 948, 12 S. E. 441.

Same—Breach of Town Ordinance.—The violation of a town ordinance, even in the presence of a policeman, does not necessarily give him a right to arrest the offender. State v. Belk, 76 N. C. 10.

Same—After Offense Committed.—After the offenses—misdemeanors—mentioned above have been committed, and the offenders have dispersed, a private person has no authority of himself to arrest the offenders without warrant nor can he go out to make such arrest by the mere order of justice of the peace or any officer. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441.

Liability When Authority Exceeded.—If a private person, of his own purpose, without warrant, undertakes to make arrest of a party guilty of only a misdemeanor otherwise than in the cases and in the way pointed out by the section he at once becomes a trespasser, and the party whom he so undertakes to deprive of his liberty may resist him by such force as may be necessary to defend himself successfully. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 954, 12 S. E. 441.

§ 15-40. Arrest for felony, without warrant.—Every person in whose presence a felony has been committed may arrest the person whom he knows or has reasonable ground to believe to be guilty of such offense, and it shall be the duty of every sheriff, coroner, constable or officer of the police, upon information, to assist in such arrest. (Rev., s. 3177; Code, s. 1129; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 6; C. S. 4543.)

Right of Private Person to Arrest.—A private person may arrest the felon without a warrant, and it is his duty to do so if he is present at the time the felony is committed. Martin v. Houck, 141 N. C. 317, 321, 54 S. E. 291. In such case, he may and ought to arrest and, as soon as practicable, take him before a proper officer, to the end that he may be duly held to answer for the offense. In such case, the private person would not be justified unless a felony had actually been committed. It is better and safer to obtain a warrant when this may be promptly done. State v. Roane, 13 N. C. 58; Brockway v. Crawford, 48 N. C. 433; State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327; State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605; Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 287; State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 953, 12 S. E. 441; Martin v. Houck, 141 N. C. 317, 322, 54 S. E. 291.

In State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 609, 38 S. E. 926, 928, the court says: "A private citizen has the right to arrest a felon, whether he is present when the felony is committed or not. When he is not present, it devolves on him to show that the felony, for which he arrested, had been committed." 15 N. C. Law Rev., 103.

As to what constitutes reasonable ground for believing that accused has committed a felony in the presence of the person making the arrest, see State v. Blackwelder, 182 N. C. 899, 109 S. E. 644.

Party Arresting Must State His Purpose.—A private citizen, attempting to arrest a felon without warrant, must make his purpose known, and for what offense he is attempting arrest. And unless he does so, the party attempted to be arrested has the right to resist the arrest. Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 287, 289; State v. Garrett, 60 N. C. 144; State v. Belk, 76 N. C. 10; State v. McNinch, 90 N. C. 695; State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 610, 38 S. E. 926. And unless he notifies the felon of his purpose, he will be guilty of a trespass. State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327.

Force Permissible in Arrest.—Where a private person undertakes to arrest a felon or an escaped felon, and has made his purpose and reason for the arrest known, he must then proceed in a peaceable manner to make the arrest, and if he is resisted he may use such force as is necessary to overcome the resistance, if used for that purpose alone. 2 Am. and Eng. Enc., 906, note 2. But this is put upon the ground that the party attempting to make the arrest becomes personally involved, and he has the right to defend himself. State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 610, 38 S. E. 926.

No Right to Shoot Escaping Subject.—Where the attempted arrest is for a petty larceny, and the party runs off, the party attempting the arrest has no right to shoot and kill him. State v. Bryant, 65 N. C. 327; State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 610, 38 S. E. 926.

A Federal prohibition officer, acting under the National Prohibition Act, can derive no further authority to arrest an offender without a warrant than the federal statute itself provides; and no further power can be acquired by him by virtue of this section, permitting such to be done by a private person, in case of a felony, such as murder, rape, and the like, when the unlawful act has been committed in his presence. State v. Burnett, 183 N. C. 703, 110 S. E. 588.

§ 15-41. When officer may arrest without warrant.—Every sheriff, coroner, constable, officer of police, or other officer, entrusted with the care and preservation of the public peace, who shall know or have reasonable ground to believe that any felony has been committed, or that any dangerous wound has been given, and shall have reasonable ground to believe that any particular person is guilty, and shall apprehend that such person may escape if not immediately arrested, shall arrest him without warrant, and may summon all bystanders to aid in such arrest. (Rev., s. 3178; Code, s. 1126; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 3; C. S. 4544.)

Cross References.—As to power of bank examiner to arrest, see § 53-121. As to state forest wardens, see § 113-49. As to arrest of persons escaped from penal and correctional institutions, see § 153-184. As to arrest for violations of the fishery laws, see § 113-141. As to arrest by appointees of superintendents of the state hospitals for the insane, see § 122-33. As to arrest of persons violating the laws regulating intoxicating liquors, see §§ 18-6 and 18-23. As to arrest by the commanding officer of militia, see § 127-106. As to arrest of parolee from the state prison whose parole has been revoked, see § 148-63. As to arrest of parolee or escapee from a reformatory, see § 134-31. As to arrest of a probationer, see §§ 15-200 and 15-205. As to arrest for violation of the weights and measures laws, see § 81-12.

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of arrest without warrant, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 101.

Common Law Provisions.—At common law there is this distinction between a private individual and a constable; in order to justify the former in causing the imprisonment of a person, he must not only make out a reasonable ground of suspicion, but he must prove that an actual felony has been committed. Whereas, a constable having reasonable ground to suspect that a felony has been committed, is authorized to detain the party suspected until an inquiry shall be made by the proper authorities. Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 287, 290.

An Emergency Measure—The arrest of a person by an officer without a warrant is allowed upon emergency. Hobbs v. Washington, 168 N. C. 293, 84 S. E. 391.

Powers of Police Officer.—A police officer was not known to the common law, and therefore he can exercise powers only within the town limits. Martin v. Houck, 141 N. C. 317, 321, 54 S. E. 291. And is guilty of assault when he arrests without a warrant outside such limits. Sossamon v. Cruse, 133 N. C. 470, 45 S. E. 757. Nor can a police officer recover under the Workmen's Compensation Act for injuries sustained in pursuing misdemeanor if the accident occurs outside town limits. Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

The superintendent of a convict gang is not such an officer as contemplated by this section. State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 38 S. E. 926.

Rearrest of Escaped Convict.—An escaped convict may be rearrested in any county of the State without new process, by the officer in charge of him, to compel him to complete the service of the sentence imposed by the court. State v. Finch, 177 N. C. 599, 99 S. E. 409.

Reasonable Ground for Belief Excuses Officer.—In making an arrest upon personal observation and without a warrant an officer will be excused, though no offense was perpetrated, if the circumstances are such as to reasonably warrant the belief that it had been. State v. Campbell, 182 N. C. 911, 914, 110 S. E. 86; State v. McNinch, 90 N. C. 695, 699. As to what constitutes reasonable ground see State v. Blackwelder, 182 N. C. 899, 109 S. E. 644.

Same—What Must Be Shown.—A peace officer may justify an arrest without a warrant, when he shows satisfactory reasons for his belief of the fact and the guilt of the suspected party, and that delay in procuring a warrant might enable the party to escape. In such case, proof of actual commission of the crime is not necessary. Neal v. Joyner, 89 N. C. 287.

Arrest of Participants in Indecent Show.—See Brewer v. Wynne, 163 N. C. 319, 322, 79 S. E. 629.

Officer Cannot Shoot at Fleeing Misdemeanant.—Where a person is fleeing from arrest, charged with a misdemeanor, and is out of the control of the officer, such officer is guilty of an assault if he shoots at the said person. Sossamon v. Cruse, 133 N. C. 470, 45 S. E. 757. And indeed the use of a pistol in attempting to arrest for a misdemeanor is excessive force. Id.

This section applies only to peace officers of the State and in the enforcement of the State law, and does not affect the conduct or powers of Federal officers unless the principles therein are extended to such officers by a Federal statute, when in the enforcement of a valid Federal law. State v. Burnett, 183 N. C. 703, 110 S. E. 588.

Admissible Evidence in Action for Unlawful Arrest.—An officer may make an arrest without a warrant when he acts in good faith and has reasonable grounds to believe that a felony has been committed, and that a particular person is guilty thereof and might escape unless arrested, and in an action against an officer for malicious and unlawful arrest, evidence that a robbery had been committed is held competent upon the issue, and defendant's evidence tending to show good faith and that he was acting within the provisions of the statute in arresting plaintiffs was properly submitted to the jury. Hicks v. Nivens, 210 N. C. 44, 185 S. E. 469.

Jailer as other officer, see Gowens v. Alamance County, 216 N. C. 107, 3 S. E. (2d) 339 (dissenting opinion).

§ 15-42. Sheriffs and deputies granted power to arrest felons anywhere in state.—When a felony is committed in any county in this State, and upon the commission of the felony, the person or persons charged therewith flees or flee the county, the sheriff of the county in which the crime was committed, and/or his bonded deputy or deputies, either with or without process, is hereby given authority to pursue the person or persons so charged, whether in sight or not, and apprehend and arrest him or them anywhere in the State. (1935, c. 204.)

Stated in Wilson v. Mooresville, 222 N. C. 283, 22 S. E. (2d) 907.

§ 15-43. House broken open to prevent felony.—All persons are authorized to break open and enter a house to prevent a felony about to be committed therein. (Rev., s. 3179; Code, s. 1127; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 4; C. S. 4545.)

§ 15-44. When officer may break and enter houses.—If a felony or other infamous crime has been committed, or a dangerous wound has been given and there is reasonable ground to believe that the guilty person is concealed in a house, it shall be lawful for any sheriff, coroner, constable, or police officer, admittance having been demanded and denied, to break open the door and enter the house and arrest the person against whom there shall be such ground of belief. (Rev., s. 3180; Code, s. 1128; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 5; C. S. 4546.)

Where an officer comes armed with process founded on a breach of the peace, he may, after demand of admittance for the purpose of making the arrest, and refusal of the occupant to open the doors of a house, lawfully break them in order to effect an entrance and if he act in good faith in doing so, both he and his posse comitatus will be protected. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 125, citing State v. Mooring, 115 N. C. 709, 20 S. E. 182.

§ 15-45. Persons summoned to assist in arrest.—Every person summoned by a judge, justice, mayor, intendant, chief officer of any incorporated town, sheriff, coroner or constable, to aid in suppressing any riot, rout, unlawful assembly, affray or other breach of the peace, or to arrest the persons engaged in the commission of such offenses, or to prevent the commission of any felony or larceny which may be threatened or begun, shall do so. (Rev., s. 3181; Code, s. 1125; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 2; C. S. 4547.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for failure to aid police officers, see § 14-224.

Protection of Persons Assisting.—This section makes it imperative on the person so summoned to aid, whether he be present at the perpetration of the offense when summoned, or not. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 953, 12 S. E. 441. The protection extends to persons aiding. State v. McMahan, 103 N. C. 379, 382, 9 S. E. 48.

Limits Imposed by Section.—The power conferred upon officers by this section is limited to the cases mentioned in the section, and while they are actually being perpetrated, or are imminent. It does not go to the extent of authorizing the persons thus summoned to make arrests, without warrant, where the offense has been accomplished and the offenders have dispersed. State v. Campbell, 107 N. C. 948, 12 S. E. 441.

Policeman Given Same Authority as Sheriff within Town Limits.—A policeman has the authority under general statute to depute a citizen to aid him in serving a warrant for breach of the peace, a policeman being given the same authority, within the town limits, in making arrests as a sheriff. Tomlinson v. Norwood, 208 N. C. 716, 182 S. E. 659.

§ 15-46. Procedure on arrest without warrant.—Every person arrested without warrant shall be either immediately taken before some magistrate having jurisdiction to issue a warrant in the case, or else committed to the county prison, and, as soon as may be, taken before such magistrate, who, on proper proof, shall issue a warrant and thereon proceed to act as may be required by law. (Rev., s. 3182; Code, s. 1130; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 7; C. S. 4548.)

Proper Compliance Protects Justice.—If the justice shall comply with this section by carefully examining the complainant, on oath, before issuing his warrant, few cases would arise in which he would not have judgment for his fees. Merrimon v. Commissioners, 106 N. C. 369, 371, 11 S. E. 267.

Liability of Officer for Wrongful Delay.—A warrant must be procured as soon after the arrest as possible and, where it appears that this was not done, the officer responsible for the arrest is personally answerable in damages. Hobbs v. Washington, 168 N. C. 293, 84 S. E. 391.

Custody of Prisoner.—If offender is arrested at a time and under such circumstances as he cannot be carried immediately before a justice, the officer may keep him in custody, commit him to jail or the lock-up, or even tie him, according to the nature of the offence and the necessity of the case. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 127, citing State v. Freeman, 86 N. C. 683.

§ 15-47. Arresting officer to inform offender of charge, allow bail except in capital cases, and permit communication with counsel or friends.—Upon the arrest, detention, or deprivation of the liberties of any person by an officer in this state, with or without warrant, it shall be the duty of the officer making the arrest to immediately inform the person arrested of the charge against him, and it shall further be the duty of the officer making said arrest, except in capital cases, to have bail fixed in a reasonable sum, and the person so arrested shall be permitted to give bail bond; and it shall be the duty of the officer making the arrest to permit the person so arrested to communicate with counsel and friends immediately, and the right of such persons to communicate with counsel and friends shall not be denied.

Any officer who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 257, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to bail generally, see § 15-102 et seq.

The violation of this section, in regard to bail and the manner of detention of defendant under arrest, would not render defendant's voluntary confession incompetent. State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

When the defendant, upon his arrest, is informed of the charge against him, and "there is no evidence in the record tending to show that after his arrest and while he was in the custody of the sheriff the defendant demanded of the sheriff that he be permitted to communicate with friends or with counsel", the provisions of this section are not applicable. State v. Exum, 213 N. C. 16, 195 S. E. 7.

Art. 7. Fugitives from Justice.

§ 15-48. Outlawry for felony.—In all cases where any two justices of the peace, or any judge of the supreme, superior, or criminal courts shall, on written affidavit, filed and retained by such justice or judge, receive information that a felony has been committed by any person, and that such person flees from justice, conceals himself and evades arrest and service of the usual process of the law, the judge, or the two justices, being justices of the county wherein such person is supposed to lurk or conceal himself, are hereby empowered and required to issue proclamation against him reciting his name, if known, and thereby requiring him forthwith to surrender himself; and also, when issued by any judge, empowering and requiring the sheriff of any county in the state in which such fugitive shall be, and when issued by two justices, empowering and requiring the sheriff of the county of the justices, to take such power with him as he shall think fit and necessary for the going in search and pursuit of, and effectually apprehending, such fugitive from justice, which proclamation shall be published at the door of the courthouse of any county in which such fugitive is supposed to lurk or conceal himself, and at such other places as the judge or justices shall direct; and if any person against whom proclamation has been thus issued, continue to stay out, lurk and conceal himself, and do not immediately surrender himself, any citizen of the state may capture, arrest and bring him to justice, and in case of flight or resistance by him, after being called on and warned to surrender, may slay him without accusation or impeachment of any crime. (Rev., s. 3183; Code, s. 1131; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 1, s. 8; 1866, c. 62; C. S. 4549.)

Cross Reference.—As to extradition, see § 15-55 et seq. and Appendix VI.

Fugitive from Justice.—A fugitive from justice is one who, having committed a crime in one jurisdiction, flees therefrom in order to evade the law and escape punishment. State v. Hall, 115 N. C. 811, 20 S. E. 729.

Outlaws Must Be Warned.—“So careful is the law to protect those who have not been tried and convicted, that the ‘outlaws’ are entitled to be ‘called upon and warned to surrender’ before they are allowed to be slain.” State v. Stancill, 128 N. C. 606, 611, 38 S. E. 926, in dissenting opinion by Cook, J.

§ 15-49. Fugitives from another state arrested.—Any justice of the supreme court, or any judge of the superior court or of any criminal court, or any justice of the peace, or mayor of any city, or chief magistrate of any incorporated town, on satisfactory information laid before him that any fugitive or other person in the state has committed, out of the state and within the United States, any offense which, by law of the state in which the offense was committed, is punishable either capitally or by imprisonment for one year or upwards in any state prison, has full power and authority, and is hereby required, to issue a warrant for such fugitive or other person and commit him to any jail within the state for the space of six months, unless sooner demanded by the public authorities of the state wherein the offense may have been committed, pursuant to the act of congress in that case made and provided. If no demand be made within that time the fugitive or other person shall be liberated, unless sufficient cause be shown to the contrary. (Rev., s. 3184; Code, s. 1165; 1895, c. 103; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 34; C. S. 4550.)

Editor's Note.—See Editor's Note under § 15-132. The same defendants, who were freed in the case discussed in that note were rearrested and held under the provisions of this section which then provided for the arrest of "any fugitive in the state" etc. Upon a petition by the defendants for habeas corpus it was decided in State v. Hall, 115 N. C. 811, 20 S. E. 729, that they were not fugitives and hence could not be held for extradition. This section has since been amended by adding after the words "any fugitive" the words "or other person" which seem to make the statute broad enough to cover a case like that above.

For a discussion of this and pertinent sections in connection with the law of arrest in this state, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 101.

In General.—This section prescribes the manner in which criminals escaping from other States may be restored to that having jurisdiction of the offense, and its directions can not be disregarded. It provides fully a method by which the crime may be punished, and at the same time guards and preserves the personal security of the citizen from lawless invasion. State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605, 608.

Process Necessary.—No one has authority, without process legally issued in this State, to arrest a person charged with crime in another state and fleeing here for refuge. Such an arrest makes the parties engaged in it guilty of an assault and battery. State v. Shelton, 79 N. C. 605.

Departure after Crime Is Flight from Justice.—Departure from a jurisdiction after the commission of the act, in furtherance of the crime subsequently consummated, is a flight from justice, within the meaning of the law. In re Sultan, 115 N. C. 57, 20 S. E. 375.

§ 15-50. Record kept, and copy sent to governor.—Every magistrate committing any person under section 15-49, shall keep a record of the whole proceedings before him, and immediately transmit a copy thereof to the governor for such action as he may deem fit therein under the law. (Rev., s. 3185; Code, s. 1166; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 35; C. S. 4551.)

§ 15-51. Duty of governor.—The governor shall immediately inform the governor of the state or territory in which the crime is alleged to have been committed, or the president of the United States, if it be alleged to have been committed within the District of Columbia, of the proceedings had in such case. (Rev., s. 3186; Code, s. 1167; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 36; C. S. 4552.)

§ 15-52. Person surrendered on order of governor.—Every sheriff or jailer in whose custody any person so committed shall be, upon the order of the governor, shall surrender him to the person named in such order. (Rev., s. 3187; Code, s. 1168; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 37; C. S. 4553.)

§ 15-53. Governor may employ agents, and offer rewards.—The governor, on information made to him of any person, whether the name of such person be known or unknown, having committed a felony or other infamous crime within the state, and of having fled out of the jurisdiction thereof, or who conceals himself within the state to avoid arrest, or who, having been convicted, has escaped and cannot otherwise be apprehended, may either employ a special agent, with a sufficient escort, to pursue and apprehend such fugitive, or issue his proclamation, and therein offer a reward, not exceeding four hundred dollars, according to the nature of the case, as in his opinion may be sufficient for the purpose, to be paid to him who shall apprehend and deliver the fugitive to such person and at such place as in the proclamation shall be directed. (Rev., s. 3188; Code, s. 1169; 1891, c. 421; R. C., c. 35, s. 4; 1800, c. 561; 1866, c. 28; 1868-9, c. 52; 1870-1, c. 15; 1871-2, c. 29; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 4554.)

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained at the end a clause authorizing the governor to issue warrants on the state treasurer for sufficient money to carry out the provisions of the section. This clause made the section an exception to section 147-68 which provides that "no monies shall be paid out of the treasury except on the warrant of the auditor."

By sec. 6, ch. 275, Public Laws 1925 the provision authorizing warrants by the governor was stricken out. By the same act C. S. § 4556, which contained a similar provision was repealed. See Burton v. Furman, 115 N. C. 166, 171, 20 S. E. 443.

§ 15-54. Officer entitled to reward.—Any sheriff or other officer who shall make an arrest of any person charged with crime for whose apprehension a reward has been offered, is entitled to such reward, and may sue for and recover the same in any court in this state having jurisdiction: Provided, that no reward shall be paid to any sheriff or other officer for any arrest made for a crime committed within the county of such sheriff or officer making such arrest. (1913, c. 132; 1917, c. 8; C. S. 4555.)

Local Modification.—Wake: C. S. 4555.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 15, as to whom an offer may be made.

Law Giving Reward to Sheriff Valid.—In view of this and the preceding section, Public Local Laws of 1925, ch. 312, s. 2, providing that the board of commissioners should pay a reward to the sheriff or other police officers for arresting violators of the prohibition law, is a valid exercise of the police power of the State and not contrary to public policy. Hutchins v. Commissioners, 193 N. C. 659, 137 S. E. 711.

Art. 8. Extradition.

§ 15-55. Definitions.—Where appearing in this article the term "governor" includes any person performing the functions of governor by authority of the law of this state. The term "executive authority" includes the governor, and any person performing the functions of governor in a state other than this state. The term "state," referring to a state other than this state, includes any other state or territory, organized or unorganized, of the United States of America. (1937, c. 273, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to rules of practice of the executive department of North Carolina in making requisitions, see Appendix VI.

Editor's Note.—The former extradition law, Public Laws 1931, c. 124, was repealed by Public Laws 1937, c. 273, s. 29, a part of the present extradition statute. The repealed law seemed to provide for extradition proceedings only when the crime with which the accused was charged was punishable—in the state where committed—by death or imprisonment for more than one year in the state's prison, or where the crime consisted of abandonment of wife or children. However, the supreme court indicated in the case of In re Hubbard, 201 N. C. 472, 160 S. E. 569, 81 A. L. R. 547, that a person could be extradited for any crime. The new extradition law is in accord with In re Hubbard, specifically providing for the extradition of a person accused of any crime, whether felony or misdemeanor. Furthermore, provision is made for return to a demanding state of a person who intentionally commits an act outside of the demanding state resulting in a crime in the demanding state. At last the extradition laws cover a situation such as existed in State v. Hall, 115 N. C. 811, 20 S. E. 729, 44 Am. St. Rep. 501, 28 L. R. A. 289, where a man standing in North Carolina shot and killed a man in Tennessee, and North Carolina refused to return the murderer because he had never been in Tennessee. In other respects the new extradition law is substantially the same as the 1931 law. 15 N. C. Law Rev., 343, 344.

§ 15-56. Duty of governor as to fugitives from justice of other states.—Subject to the provisions of this article, the provisions of the constitution of the United States controlling, and any and all acts of congress enacted in pursuance thereof, it is the duty of the governor of this state to have arrested and delivered up to the executive authority of any other state of the United States any person charged in that state with treason, felony or other crime, who has fled from justice and is found in this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—See also, U. S. Constitution, Art. IV, § 2, cl. 1.

§ 15-57. Form of demand for extradition.—No demand for the extradition of a person charged with crime in another state shall be recognized by the governor unless in writing alleging, except in cases arising under section 15-60, that the accused was present in the demanding state at the time of the commission of the alleged crime, and that thereafter he fled from the state, and accompanied by a copy of an indictment found or by information supported by affidavit in the state having jurisdiction of the crime, or by a copy of an affidavit made before a magistrate there, together with a copy of any warrant which was issued thereupon; or by a copy of a judgment of conviction or of a sentence imposed in execution thereof, together with a statement by the executive authority of the demanding state that the person claimed has escaped from confinement or has broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole. The indictment, information, or affidavit made before the magistrate must substantially charge the person demanded with having committed a crime under the law of that state; and the copy of indictment, information, affidavit, judgment of conviction or sentence must be authenticated by the executive authority making the demand. (1937, c. 273, s. 3.)

§ 15-58. Governor may cause investigation to be made.—When a demand shall be made upon the governor of this state by the executive authority of another state for the surrender of a person so charged with crime, the governor may call upon the attorney general or any prosecuting officer in this state to investigate or assist in investigating the demand, and to report to him the situation and circumstances of the person so demanded, and whether he ought to be surrendered. (1937, c. 273, s. 4.)

§ 15-59. Extradition of persons imprisoned or awaiting trial in another state or who have left the demanding state under compulsion.—When it is desired to have returned to this state a person charged in this state with a crime, and such person is imprisoned or is held under criminal proceedings then pending against him in another state, the governor of this state may agree with the executive authority of such other state for the extradition of such person before the conclusion of such proceedings or his term of sentence in such other state, upon condition that such person be returned to such other state at the expense of this state as soon as the prosecution in this state is terminated.

The governor of this state may also surrender on demand of the executive authority of any other state any person in this state who is charged in the manner provided in section 15-77 with having violated the laws of the state whose executive authority is making the demand, even though such person left the demanding state involuntarily. (1937, c. 273, s. 5.)

§ 15-60. Extradition of persons not present in demanding state at time of commission of crime.—The governor of this state may also surrender, on demand of the executive authority of any other state, any person in this state charged in such other state in the manner provided in section 15-57 with committing an act in this state, or in a third state, intentionally resulting in a crime in the state whose executive authority is making the demand, and the provisions of this article not otherwise inconsistent, shall apply to such cases, even though the accused was not in that state at the time of the commission of the crime, and has not fled therefrom. (1937, c. 273, s. 6.)

Cross Reference.—As to criminal liability in this state for act injuring one in another, see § 15-132.

§ 15-61. Issue of governor's warrant of arrest; its recitals.—If the governor decides that the demand should be complied with, he shall sign a warrant of arrest, which shall be sealed with the state seal, and be directed to any peace officer or other person whom he may think fit to entrust with the execution thereof. The warrant must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance. (1937, c. 273, s. 7.)

§ 15-62. Manner and place of execution of warrant.—Such warrant shall authorize the peace officer or other person to whom directed to arrest the accused at any time and any place where he may be found within the state, and to command the aid of all peace officers or other persons in the execution of the warrant, and to deliver the accused, subject to the provisions of this article to the duly authorized agent of the demanding state. (1937, c. 273, s. 8.)

§ 15-63. Authority of arresting officer.—Every such peace officer or other person empowered to make the arrest shall have the same authority, in arresting the accused, to command assistance therein as peace officers have by law in the execution of any criminal process directed to them, with like penalties against those who refuse their assistance. (1937, c. 273, s. 9.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for refusing to assist, see § 14-224.

§ 15-64. Rights of accused person; application for writ of habeas corpus.—No person arrested upon such warrant shall be delivered over to the agent whom the executive authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court of record in this state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his surrender and of the crime with which he is charged, and that he has the right to demand and procure legal counsel; and if the prisoner or his counsel shall state that he or they desire to test the legality of his arrest, the judge of such court of record shall fix a reasonable time to be allowed him within which to apply for a writ of habeas corpus. When such writ is applied for, notice thereof, and of the time and place of hearing thereon, shall be given to the prosecuting officer of the county in which the arrest is made and in which the accused is in custody, and to the said agent of the demanding state. (1937, c. 273, s. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to application for writ of habeas corpus, see § 17-3 et seq.

§ 15-65. Penalty for non-compliance with preceding section.—Any officer who shall deliver to the agent for extradition of the demanding state a person in his custody under the governor's warrant, in wilful disobedience to § 15-64, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, on conviction, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) or be imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (1937, c. 273, s. 11.)

§ 15-66. Confinement in jail when necessary.—The officer or person executing the governor's warrant of arrest, or the agent of the demanding state to whom the prisoner may have been delivered, may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in the jail of any county or city through which he may pass; and the keeper of such jail must receive and safely keep the prisoner until the officer or person having charge of him is ready to proceed on his route, such officer or person being chargeable with the expense of keeping.

The officer or agent of a demanding state to whom a prisoner may have been delivered following extradition proceedings in another state, or to whom a prisoner may have been delivered after waiving extradition in such other state, and who is passing through this state with such a prisoner for the purpose of immediately returning such prisoner to the demanding state may, when necessary, confine the prisoner in the jail of any county or city through which he may pass; and the keeper of such jail must receive and safely keep the prisoner until the officer or agent having charge of him is ready to proceed on his route, such officer or agent, however, being chargeable with the expense of keeping: Provided, however, that such officer or agent shall produce and show to the keeper of such jail satisfactory written evidence of the fact that he is actually transporting such prisoner to the demanding state after a requisition by the executive authority of such demanding state. Such prisoner shall not be entitled to demand a new requisition while in this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 12.)

§ 15-67. Arrest prior to requisition.—Whenever any person within this state shall be charged on the oath of any credible person before any judge or magistrate of this state with the commission of any crime in any other state and, except in cases arising under section 15-60, with having fled from justice, or with having been convicted of a crime in that state and having escaped from confinement, or having broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, or whenever complaint shall have been made before any judge or magistrate in this state, setting forth on the affidavit of any credible person in another state that a crime has been committed in such other state, and that the accused has been charged in such state with the commission of the crime, and, except in cases arising under § 15-60, has fled from justice, or with having been convicted of a crime in that state and having escaped from confinement, or having broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, and is believed to be in this state, the judge or magistrate shall issue a warrant directed to any peace officer commanding him to apprehend the person named therein, wherever he may be found in this state, and to bring him before the same or any other judge, magistrate or court who or which may be available in or convenient of access to the place where the arrest may be made, to answer the charge or complaint and affidavit, and a certified copy of the sworn charge or complaint and affidavit upon which the warrant is issued shall be attached to the warrant. (1937, c. 273, s. 13.)

Where a justice of the peace of this State issues a warrant for the arrest of a person based upon an affidavit that such person was a fugitive from justice from another state, and the warrant is regular and valid, as provided by this section, in habeas corpus proceedings instituted prior to a hearing upon the warrant before the justice of the peace, an order remanding the petitioner to the custody of the sheriff who had arrested petitioner is not error, but petitioner is entitled to a hearing before the justice of the peace before he is committed to await the issuance of an extradition warrant. In re Mitchell, 205 N. C. 788, 172 S. E. 350.

A person arrested upon a warrant of a justice of the peace of this state, issued upon an affidavit that such person was a fugitive from justice from another state, as provided by this section, may not be lawfully delivered to the authorities of such other state until the Governor of this State has honored a requisition for such person from the Governor of such other state. Id.

§ 15-68. Arrest without a warrant.—The arrest of a person may be lawfully made also by any peace officer or a private person, without a warrant, upon reasonable information that the accused stands charged in the courts of a state with a crime punishable by death or imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, but when so arrested the accused must be taken before a judge or magistrate with all practicable speed, and complaint must be made against him under oath setting forth the ground for the arrest as in § 15-67; and thereafter his answer shall be heard as if he had been arrested on a warrant. (1937, c. 273, s. 14.)

§ 15-69. Commitment to await requisition; bail.—If from the examination before the judge or magistrate it appears that the person held is the person charged with having committed the crime alleged and, except in cases arising under § 15-60, that he has fled from justice, the judge or magistrate must, by a warrant reciting the accusation, commit him to the county jail for such a time not exceeding thirty days and specified in the warrant, as will enable the arrest of the accused to be made under a warrant of the governor on a requisition of the executive authority of the state having jurisdiction of the offense, unless the accused give bail as provided in § 15-70, or until he shall be legally discharged. (1937, c. 273, s. 15.)

§ 15-70. Bail in certain cases; conditions of bond.—Unless the offense with which the prisoner is charged is shown to be an offense punishable by death or life imprisonment under the laws of the state in which it was committed, a judge or magistrate in this state may admit the person arrested to bail by bond, with sufficient sureties, and in such sum as he deems proper, conditioned for his appearance before him at a time specified in such bond, and for his surrender, to be arrested upon the warrant of the governor of this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 16.)

§ 15-71. Extension of time of commitment; adjournment.—If the accused is not arrested under warrant of the governor by the expiration of the time specified in the warrant or bond, a judge or magistrate may discharge him or may recommit him for a further period not to exceed sixty days, or a judge or magistrate may again take bail for his appearance and surrender, as provided in § 15-70, but within a period not to exceed sixty days after the date of such new bond. (1937, c. 273, s. 17.)

§ 15-72. Forfeiture of bail.—If the prisoner is admitted to bail and fails to appear and surrender himself according to the conditions of his bond, the judge, or magistrate by proper order, shall declare the bond forfeited and order his immediate arrest without warrant if he be within this state. Recovery may be had on such bond in the name of the state as in the case of other bonds given by the accused in criminal proceedings within this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 18.)

§ 15-73. Persons under criminal prosecution in this state at time of requisition.—If a criminal prosecution has been instituted against such person under the laws of this state and is still pending, the governor, in his discretion, either may surrender him on demand of the executive authority of another state or hold him until he has been tried and discharged or convicted and punished in this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 19.)

§ 15-74. Guilt or innocence of accused, when inquired into.—The guilt or innocence of the accused as to the crime of which he is charged may not be inquired into by the governor or in any proceeding after the demand for extradition accompanied by a charge of crime in legal form as above provided shall have been presented to the governor, except as it may be involved in identifying the person held as the person charged with the crime. (1937, c. 273, s. 20.)

§ 15-75. Governor may recall warrant or issue alias.—The governor may recall his warrant of arrest or may issue another warrant whenever he deems proper. (1937, c. 273, s. 21.)

§ 15-76. Fugitives from this state; duty of governors.—Whenever the governor of this state shall demand a person charged with crime or with escaping from confinement or breaking the terms of his bail, probation or parole in this state from the executive authority of any other state, or from the chief justice or an associate justice of the supreme court of the District of Columbia authorized to receive such demand under the laws of the United States, he shall issue a warrant under the seal of this state, to some agent, commanding him to receive the person so charged if delivered to him and convey him to the proper officer of the county in this state in which the offense was committed. (1937, c. 273, s. 22.)

§ 15-77. Application for issuance of requisition; by whom made; contents.—I. When the return to this state of a person charged with crime in this state is required, the prosecuting attorney shall present to the governor his written application for a requisition for the return of the person charged, in which application shall be stated the name of the person so charged, the crime charged against him, the approximate time, place and circumstances of its commission, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the accused therein, at the time the application is made and certifying that, in the opinion of the said prosecuting attorney, the ends of justice require the arrest and return of the accused to this state for trial and that the proceeding is not instituted to enforce a private claim.

II. When the return to this state is required of a person who has been convicted of a crime in this state and has escaped from confinement or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the prosecuting attorney of the county in which the offense was committed, the parole board, or the warden of the institution or sheriff of the county, from which escape was made, shall present to the governor a written application for a requisition for the return of such person, in which application shall be stated the name of the person, the crime of which he was convicted, the circumstances of his escape from confinement or of the breach of the terms of his bail, probation or parole, the state in which he is believed to be, including the location of the person therein at the time application is made.

III. The application shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the indictment returned, or information and affidavit filed, or of the complaint made to the judge or magistrate, stating the offense with which the accused is charged, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence. The prosecuting officer, parole board, warden or sheriff may also attach such further affidavits and other documents in duplicate as he shall deem proper to be submitted with such application. One copy of the application, with the action of the governor indicated by endorsement thereon, and one of the certified copies of the indictment, complaint, information and affidavits, or of the judgment of conviction or of the sentence shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state to remain of record in that office. The other copies of all papers shall be forwarded with the governor's requisition. (1937, c. 273, s. 23.)

§ 15-78. Costs and expenses.—When the crime shall be a felony, the expenses shall be paid out of the state treasury, on the certificate of the governor and warrant of the auditor; and in all other cases they shall be paid out of the county treasury in the county wherein the crime is alleged to have been committed. The expenses shall be the actual traveling and subsistence costs of the agent of the demanding state, together with such legal fees as were paid to the officers of the state on whose governor the requisition is made. In every case the officer entitled to these expenses shall itemize the same and verify them by his oath for presentation, either to the governor of the state, in proper cases, or to the board of county commissioners, in cases in which the county pays such expenses. (1937, c. 273, s. 24.)

§ 15-79. Immunity from service of process in certain civil actions.—A person brought into this state by, or after waiver of, extradition based on a criminal charge shall not be subject to service of personal process in civil actions arising out of the same facts as the criminal proceedings to answer which he is being or has been returned until he has been convicted in the criminal proceeding or, if acquitted until he has had reasonable opportunity to return to the state from which he was extradited. (1937, c. 273, s. 25.)

§ 15-80. Written waiver of extradition proceedings.—Any person arrested in this state charged with having committed any crime in another state or alleged to have escaped from confinement, or broken the terms of his bail, probation or parole may waive the issuance and service of the warrant provided for in §§ 15-61 and 15-62 and all other procedure incidental to extradition proceedings, by executing or subscribing in the presence of a judge of any court of record within this state a writing which states that he consents to return to the demanding state: Provided, however, that before such waiver shall be executed or subscribed by such person it shall be the duty of such judge to inform such person of his rights to the issuance and service of a warrant of extradition and to obtain a writ of habeas corpus as provided for in § 15-64.

If and when such consent has been duly executed it shall forthwith be forwarded to the office of the governor of this state and filed therein. The judge shall direct the officer having such person in custody to deliver forthwith such person to the duly accredited agent or agents of the demanding state, and shall deliver or cause to be delivered to such agent or agents a copy of such consent: Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall be deemed to limit the rights of the accused person to return voluntarily and without formality to the demanding state, nor shall this waiver procedure be deemed to be an exclusive procedure or to limit the powers, rights or duties of the officers of the demanding state or of this state. (1937, c. 273, s. 25a.)

§ 15-81. Non-waiver by this state.—Nothing in this article contained shall be deemed to constitute a waiver by this state of its right, power or privilege to try such demanded person for crime committed within this state, or of its right, power or privilege to regain custody of such person by extradition proceedings or otherwise for the purpose of trial, sentence or punishment for any crime committed within this state, nor shall any proceedings had under this article which result in, or fail to result in, extradition be deemed a waiver by this state of any of its rights, privileges or jurisdiction in any way whatsoever. (1937, c. 273, s. 25b.)

§ 15-82. No right of asylum; no immunity from other criminal prosecution while in this state.—After a person has been brought back to this state by, or after waiver of extradition proceedings, he may be tried in this state for other crimes which he may be charged with having committed here as well as that specified in the requisition for his extradition. (1937, c. 273, s. 26.)

§ 15-83. Interpretation.—The provisions of this article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purposes to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1937, c. 273, s. 27.)

§ 15-84. Short title.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Criminal Extradition Act. (1937, c. 273, s. 30.)

Art. 9. Preliminary Examination.

§ 15-85. Waiver of examination.—If any person arrested desires to waive examination and give bail, it is the duty of the officer making the arrest to take him before any magistrate of the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed, or before any judge of the supreme or superior court. (Rev., s. 2190; Code, ss. 1138, 1139; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 4557.)

Cross References.—As to bail in criminal proceedings, see § 15-102 et seq. As to hearing by the coroner in lieu of other preliminary hearings, see § 152-10.

§ 15-86. Procedure, when justice has not final jurisdiction.—In all cases where a justice of the peace has not final jurisdiction of the offense, he shall desist from any final determination of the action or complaint, and proceed as hereinafter provided. (Rev., s. 3191; Code, s. 896; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 7; 1879, c. 302, s. 2; C. S. 4558.)

Cross Reference.—As to jurisdiction of a justice in criminal actions, see § 7-129 and notes.

When Jurisdiction of Justice Ends.—The justice has no jurisdiction of a case after he has bound the defendant to court and taken his recognizance. State v. Lucas, 139 N. C. 567, 51 S. E. 1021.

§ 15-87. Duty of examining magistrate.—The magistrate before whom any such person shall be brought shall proceed, as soon as may be, to examine the complainant and the witnesses produced in support of the prosecution on oath, in the presence of the prisoner, in regard to the offense charged, and in regard to any other matters connected with such charge which such magistrate may deem pertinent. The defendant shall be allowed a reasonable time before the hearing begins in which to send for and advise with counsel. (Rev., s. 3192; Code, ss. 1144, 1145; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 13; C. S. 4559.)

Person Charged Must Be Present.—There can be no examination in the absence of the person charged. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

Rights of Accused.—The present wise and beneficent policy of the law allows a prisoner under arrest time for deliberation and an opportunity to obtain correct legal advice, so that the statements which he may make on an examination are made of his own free will and with full knowledge of the nature and consequences of his confessions. State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, 111.

§ 15-88. Testimony reduced to writing; right to counsel.—The evidence given by the several witnesses examined shall be reduced to writing by the magistrate, or under his direction, and shall be signed by the witnesses respectively. If desired by the person arrested, his counsel shall be present during the examination of the complainant and the witnesses on the part of the prosecution, and during the examination of the prisoner; and the prisoner or his counsel shall be allowed to cross-examine the complainant and the witnesses for the prosecution. (Rev., s. 3193; Code, ss. 1146, 1150; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 14, 19; C. S. 4560.)

Cross Reference.—As to the testimony being used as evidence, see § 15-100 and notes.

Exact Words Not Required to Be Written.—The magistrate is not required to write down the very words of the witness as they are uttered. It is sufficient if he puts down fully and accurately the testimony of the witness as he intends it upon the subject matter of inquiry. State v. Bridgers, 87 N. C. 562, 564.

Notes Not Conclusive.—The notes of evidence made by a committing magistrate upon the hearing are not conclusive as to the testimony of witnesses examined. State v. Hooper, 151 N. C. 646, 65 S. E. 613.

Magistrate Can Give Parol Testimony.—It is competent for a magistrate to state what a witness swore before him in regard to a homicide, although he afterwards committed the statement to writing. State v. Adair, 66 N. C. 298.

Use of Written Statement on Trial.—The written statement can only be referred to, to refresh his memory, and is properly treated as a memorandum, State v. Adair, 66 N. C. 298, unless the witness is dead, or too ill to be present, or insane, or has removed from the State at the instigation or connivance of the defendant or prosecutor. State v. King, 96 N. C. 603, 605.

§ 15-89. Prisoner examined; advised of rights.—The magistrate shall then proceed to examine the prisoner in relation to the offense charged. Such examination shall not be on oath; and before it is commenced, the prisoner shall be informed by the magistrate of the charge made against him, and that he is at liberty to refuse to answer any question that may be put to him, and that his refusal to answer shall not be used to his prejudice in any stage of the proceedings. (Rev., s. 3194; Code, ss. 1145, 1146; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 14, 15; C. S. 4561.)

Cross Reference.—As to the right of a prisoner to testify as a witness, see § 8-54.

Purpose of Section.—It was intended by this section to safeguard the rights of the prisoner as guaranteed by the law, and to afford him every protection against imposition, oppression, or undue influence, so that what he may say in any investigation in regard to the accusation against him may be entirely voluntary. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 1017, 43 S. E. 830. For the accused, without the caution, might, before the magistrate, feel compelled to answer questions put to him, and such answers as he might make, might not be voluntary. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 670.

Prisoner Must Not Be Sworn.—It was the purpose and intent that the person under examination, who is accused of crime, should feel free to admit or deny his guilt, and the oath which is forbidden by statute deprives him of this perfect freedom. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 1018, 43 S. E. 830.

Section Extends to Coroner's Inquest.—The reason of the section extends to an inquisition by a coroner. In this respect he is an examining magistrate. State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106.

Caution to Prisoner Is Essential.—This caution is not a mere matter of form: it is a substantial right, necessary for the protection of prisoners who are too poor to employ counsel and too ignorant to conduct their own defense. State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150.

And in the opinion of the Court in State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, "this caution is an essential part of the proceedings, and must be given to the prisoner under arrest to make his examination admissible in evidence." State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150. Thus where a confession is made before the cautions required by the section were given it is inadmissible as evidence. State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, 113.

Caution Applies to Whole Examination.—The purpose of the section is, that the prisoner shall be advised by the magistrate of his right to refuse to answer all questions that may be put to him as to the charge made against him, without prejudice, during the whole examination, and not simply so much of it as applies to him personally. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 670.

When Caution to Be Given.—The commencement of the examination is properly, when, after the warrant of arrest is returned executed, the accused is present before the magistrate, and the latter having called and noticed the matter of the charge, proceeds to read the warrant or state the substance of the charge orally. It is then the caution to the accused is due, and ought to be given, because, then, the magistrate has taken official notice of the charge and the accused, and what he does and says, and then the latter must take notice of the magistrate and be under his jurisdiction and control; then he is before the court and his examination is begun. State v. Conrad, 95 N. C. 666, 669.

It is not necessary to competency of an extra judicial confession to a police officer that defendant be warned he is not compelled to answer. State v. Grier, 203 N. C. 586, 166 S. E. 595.

Exact Words of Section Not Required.—It is not necessary that a committing magistrate at the commencement of the examination of a prisoner shall use the precise words of the section in giving the caution therein prescribed, but it is sufficient if there be a substantial compliance with the requirement of the section. State v. Rogers, 112 N. C. 874, 17 S. E. 297; State v. DeGraff, 113 N. C. 688, 18 S. E. 507; State v. King, 162 N. C. 580, 581, 77 S. E. 301.

Same—What Is Sufficient.—Both the letter and spirit of the statute require that the defendant should be advised of his rights by the justice, to the effect that he is not required to testify; that he is at liberty to refuse to answer any question put to him, and that his refusal to answer shall not be used to his prejudice. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 43 S. E. 830; State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567; State v. Vaughan, 156 N. C. 615, 71 S. E. 1089.

Same—Insufficient Compliance.—Where the prisoner was brought before the magistrate and he was told by that official that "he was charged with selling stolen corn, and that if he wanted to tell anything he could do so; but it was just as he chose." This was not sufficient compliance. State v. Rorie, 74 N. C. 148, 150.

Trial Judge Must Find Proper Caution.—Where the record of a committing magistrate merely states that the prisoner was cautioned and the trial court holds such admission competent, with no other evidence before him except this statement, it is error, as the trial judge should have found as a fact whether the proper caution was given to the prisoner. State v. Parker, 132 N. C. 1014, 43 S. E. 830.

Where Prisoner Examined as Witness at Own Request.—Testimony given by a defendant when examined as a witness at his own request is admissible against him on another hearing or trial for the same or any other offense, for such admissions and declarations do not come within either the language or the reason of this section. State v. Ellis, 97 N. C. 447, 2 S. E. 525; State v. Simpson, 133 N. C. 676, 45 S. E. 567, 568; State v. Hawkins, 115 N. C. 712, 20 S. E. 623.

Cited in State v. Dixon, 215 N. C. 438, 2 S. E. (2d) 371.

§ 15-90. Exclusion of witnesses at examination.—The witnesses produced on the part either of the prisoner or of the prosecution shall not be present at the examination of the prisoner; and while any witness is under examination the magistrate may exclude from the place in which such examination is had all witnesses who have not been examined, and may cause the witnesses to be kept separate and prevented from conversing with each other until they shall have been examined. (Rev., s. 3195; Code, s. 1149; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 18; C. S. 4562.)

Cross Reference.—As to exclusion of bystanders in trials for rape, see § 15-166.

Judge Has Discretion to Exclude.—Exclusion is a matter of which the presiding judge must judge, and except in cases of abuse of his discretion, such order is not reviewable. Lee v. Thornton, 174 N. C. 288, 289, 93 S. E. 788; State v. Hodge, 142 N. C. 676, 682, 55 S. E. 791; State v. Lowry, 170 N. C. 730, 734, 87 S. E. 62; State v. Davis, 175 N. C. 723, 95 S. E. 48.

§ 15-91. Answers in writing, read to prisoner, signed by magistrate.—The answer of the prisoner to the several interrogatories shall be reduced to writing by the magistrate, or under his direction. They shall be read to the prisoner, who may correct or add to them; and when made conformable to what he declares is the truth, shall be certified and signed by the magistrate. (Rev., s. 3196; Code, s. 1147; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 16; C. S. 4563.)

Seal Not Necessary.—This section does not require the examination of a committing magistrate to be certified under seal. State v. Pressley, 90 N. C. 730.

§ 15-92. Witnesses for defendant examined.—After the examination of the prisoner is complete, his witnesses, if he have any, shall be sworn and examined, and he may have the assistance of counsel in such examination. (Rev., s. 3197; Code, s. 1148; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 17; C. S. 4564.)

§ 15-93. Examination of prisoner not required in misdemeanors.—Nothing contained in the preceding sections shall be construed to require any magistrate, before whom a prisoner charged with a misdemeanor shall be brought, to take the examination of such prisoner, except where such magistrate shall deem it material so to do, or where such examination shall be required by the prisoner. (Rev., s. 3198; Code, s. 1153; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 22; C. S. 4565.)

Cross Reference.—As to the right of the prisoner to be examined as a witness, see § 8-54.

§ 15-94. When prisoner discharged.—If, upon examination of the whole matter, it shall appear to the magistrate either that no offense has been committed by any person or that there is no probable cause for charging the prisoner therewith, he shall discharge such prisoner. (Rev., s. 3199; Code, s. 1151; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 20; C. S. 4566.)

§ 15-95. When prisoner held to answer charge.—If it shall appear that an offense has been committed, and that there is probable cause to believe the prisoner to be guilty thereof, if the offense be bailable, and the prisoner offers sufficient bail, such bail shall be taken and the prisoner discharged; if no bail be offered, or the offense be not bailable, the prisoner shall be committed to prison. (Rev., s. 3202; Code, ss. 1152, 1156; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, ss. 21, 25; C. S. 4567.)

Cross References.—As to bail generally, see § 15-102 et seq. As to commitment, see § 15-125 et seq.

When Jurisdiction of Justice Ends.—Where a justice of the peace heard a warrant charging the defendant with an assault, with serious damage, and adjudged that the accused give bond for his appearance, and his bond was executed and accepted by the justice, the latter's power and jurisdiction ceased and his attempt to reverse his decision the next day and fine the defendant was a nullity. State v. Lucas, 139 N. C. 567, 51 S. E. 1021.

It was intended most surely that when the justice had fully performed the duties required of him, his jurisdiction as to the case should be at an end. If he makes a mistake, it must be corrected elsewhere—not in his court. State v. Lucas, 139 N. C. 567, 569, 51 S. E. 1021.

§ 15-96. Witnesses against prisoner recognized.—The magistrate shall bind by recognizances the prosecutor and all the material witnesses against such prisoner to appear and testify at the next term of the court having jurisdiction for the county in which the offense is alleged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3203; Code, s. 1152; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 21; C. S. 4568.)

§ 15-97. Witnesses required to give security for appearance.—Whenever the magistrate is satisfied by the proof that there is good reason to believe that any such witness will not fulfill the conditions of the recognizance unless security be required, he may order the witness to enter into a recognizance with such sureties as he shall deem meet for his appearance at such court. (Rev., s. 3204; Code, s. 1154; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 23; C. S. 4569.)

Bond for Appearance before Justice Not Permitted.—There is no statute which authorizes a Justice of the Peace or magistrate to require of a witness to give bond for his appearance before such Justice or magistrate. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 434, 40 S. E. 191.

And a Justice of the Peace, together with those advising him, who orders a witness to give a bond to appear before a Justice, thereby are guilty of falsely imprisoning the witness. Lovick v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 129 N. C. 427, 40 S. E. 191.

§ 15-98. Investigation in case of lynching.—Whenever the solicitor of any judicial district ascertains that the crime of lynching has been committed in any county in his judicial district, it is his duty to go to such county at the earliest possible moment, and at once institute proceedings for the investigation of the crime before the coroner of the county, some judge of the superior court, or justice of the peace, and for the apprehension of the offender. In the performance of this duty he shall cause to be issued subpoenas or other process to compel the attendance of witnesses and examine such witnesses on oath as to their knowledge or information touching the crime being investigated. In all cases where, upon preliminary investigation, it appears probable that any person is guilty of the crime charged, it shall be the duty of the coroner, judge or justice before whom the case is heard to bind such person, with good security, for his appearance at the next ensuing term of the superior or criminal court of some county adjoining the county in which the crime was committed for trial, and in default of bail to commit him to the jail of such adjoining county for safekeeping, and all necessary witnesses shall be recognized to appear at such term as witnesses for the state. (Rev., s. 3200; 1893, c. 461, s. 2; C. S. 4570.)

Cross References.—As to venue in case of lynching, see § 15-128. As to cost of investigating lynchings, see § 6-43.

Editor's Note.—Venue in case of lynching is discussed in State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600. See also section 15-128.

§ 15-99. Witnesses in lynching not privileged.—In all investigations before a justice of the peace, coroner, judge, grand jury, or courts and jury, on the trial of the cause, as authorized by § 15-98 or under existing law, no person shall be excused from testifying touching his knowledge or information in regard to the offense being investigated, upon the ground that his answer might tend to subject him to prosecution, pains or penalties, or that his evidence might tend to criminate himself; but no discovery made by such witness upon any such examination shall be used against him in any court or in any penal or criminal prosecution, and he shall, when so examined as a witness for the state, be altogether pardoned of any and all participation in any crime arising under the provisions of § 15-98, or under existing law, concerning which he is required to testify. (Rev., ss. 1638, 3201; 1893, c. 461, s. 5; C. S. 4571.)

Editor's Note.—Section 8-55 provides for compelling witnesses to testify in certain criminal investigations and extends immunity to those thus testifying. As those provisions are analogous to the provisions of this section many of the notes thereunder will be useful in considering this section.

For a general discussion of the limits to self-incrimination, see 15 N. C. Law Rev., 229.

Witness Pardoned Though Testimony Does Not Incriminate.

note.—Legislation in “abolition or oblivion of the offense” specified, applicable to all in a given class, is valid and therefore, when under this section, the defendant was summoned, sworn, and examined by and for the State touching an alleged lynching under investigation by the court, he shall be altogether pardoned of any and all participation therein under the statute or existing law, whether the evidence elicited from him tends to incriminate him or not. State v. Bowman, 145 N. C. 452, 59 S. E. 74.

Plea of Pardon as Motion to Quash.—It seems that for the purpose of an appeal, the plea of pardon may be considered and treated as a motion to quash, and so be brought within the direct provisions of section 15-179. State v. Bowman, 145 N. C. 452, 455, 59 S. E. 74.

§ 15-100. Proceedings certified to court; used as evidence.—All examinations and recognizances taken pursuant to the provisions of this chapter shall be certified by the magistrate taking the same to the court at which the witnesses are bound to appear, within twenty days after the taking of such examinations and recognizances: Provided, that any criminal case tried within twenty days before the sitting of criminal court shall be returned on Saturdays before the court convenes. The examinations taken and subscribed as herein prescribed may be used as evidence before the grand jury, and on the trial of the accused, provided he was present at the taking thereof and had an opportunity to hear the same and to cross-examine the disposing witness, if such witness be dead or so ill as not to be able to travel, or by procurement or connivance of the defendant has removed from the state, or is of unsound mind. (Rev., s. 3205; Code, s. 1157; 1913, c. 24; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 26; C. S. 4572.)

In General.—Our various statutes relating to the introduction of testimony at the second trial of evidence introduced in the preliminary hearing of a criminal action do not affect the common-law rule, but they are extensions of its principle, making it only necessary when the statutory provisions as to the making of the written record, its correction, signature by the witness, etc., have been complied with, to sufficiently identify the record for its admission as evidence upon the second trial. State v. Maynard, 184 N. C. 653, 113 S. E. 682.

Examinations Must Accord with Preceding Sections.—Where the examinations are offered as substantive evidence bearing upon the criminal charge, they are only admissible under this section, when taken according to the requirements of the preceding sections. State v. Pierce, 91 N. C. 606, 610; State v. Jordan, 110 N. C. 491, 495, 14 S. E. 752.

Reason for Witness' Absence Must Appear.—In order to use the examination as substantive evidence it must be shown that witness is absent because of one of reasons given in this section. State v. Pierce, 91 N. C. 606, 610.

No foundation has been laid for the introduction of the evidence of a witness who merely does not respond to the obligations of the subpoena, and is simply proved to have “run away,” and not that any effort has been made to secure his presence. State v. King, 86 N. C. 603, 605.

When Parol Evidence Admissible.—On the trial in the superior court it is competent for purposes of contradiction, to offer parol evidence as to what a witness testified to upon such preliminary examination. State v. Hooper, 151 N. C. 646, 65 S. E. 613; State v. Wright, 75 N. C. 439; State v. Roberts, 81 N. C. 605; State v. Lyon, 81 N. C. 600.

To authorize the introduction of parol evidence as to the confession of a prisoner before an examining magistrate, it must appear affirmatively that there was no examination recorded as required by law. State v. Parish, 44 N. C. 239; State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106, 110.

§ 15-101. Penalty for failing to return.—If any magistrate shall refuse or neglect to return to the proper court any such examination or recognizance by him taken, he may be compelled by rule of court forthwith to return the same, and in case of disobedience of such rule, may be proceeded against by attachment as for contempt of court as provided by law. (Rev., s. 3206; Code, s. 1158; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 27; C. S. 4573.)

Art. 10. Bail.

§ 15-102. Officers authorized to take bail, before imprisonment.—Officers before whom persons charged with crime, but who have not been committed to prison by an authorized magistrate, may be brought, have power to take bail as follows:

1. Any justice of the supreme court, or a judge of a superior court, in all cases.

2. Any justice of the peace or chief magistrate of any incorporated city or town, in all cases of misdemeanor, and in all cases of felony not capital. (Rev., s. 3209; Code, s. 1160; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 29; 1871-2, c. 37; C. S. 4574.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions against excessive bail, see N. C. Const., Art. I, § 14 and U. S. Const., Amend. VIII. As to authority of the arresting officer to allow bail, see § 15-47. As to arrest and bail in civil cases, see § 1-409 et seq. As to bail after habeas corpus proceeding, see §§ 17-35 and 17-36.

Editor's Note.—In State v. Herndon, 107 N. C. 934, 12 S. E. 268, the meaning and effect of this and the following section are discussed at pages 939-944 by Merrimon, C. J., in a dissenting opinion.

§ 15-103. Officers authorized to take bail, after imprisonment.—Any justice of the supreme court or any judge of a superior court has power to bail persons committed to prison charged with crime in all cases; any justice of the peace or chief magistrate of any incorporated city or town has the same power in all cases where the punishment is not capital. (Rev., s. 3210; Code, s. 1161; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 30; C. S. 4575.)

§ 15-104. Recognizance filed with the clerk.—Whenver a prisoner is bailed by any officer under § 15-103, such officer shall immediately cause the recognizance taken by him to be filed with the clerk of the superior court of the county to which the prisoner is recognized. (Rev., s. 3211; Code, s. 1162; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 31; C. S. 4576.)

§ 15-105. Bail allowed on preliminary examination.—If the offense charged in the warrant be not punishable with death, the magistrate may take from the person so arrested a recognizance with sufficient sureties for his appearance at the next term of the court having jurisdiction, to be held in the county where the offense is alleged to have been committed. (Rev., s. 3207; Code, s. 1139; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 8; 1871-2, c. 37, s. 1; C. S. 4577.)

Cross References.—As to bail for persons arrested for extradition, see § 15-76. As to bail upon appeal from a superior to the supreme court, see §§ 15-182 and 15-183.

Recognizance Explained.—The taking of a recognizance consists in making and attesting a memorandum of the acknowledgment of a debt due the State, and of the conditions on which it is to be defeated. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. 463; State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 549, 550.

A recognizance is a debt of record acknowledged before a court of competent jurisdiction, with condition to do some particular act. State v. Smith, 66 N. C. 620; State v. White, 164 N. C. 408, 410, 79 S. E. 297.

Same—A Matter of Record.—A recognizance is a matter of record, and can only be discharged by a record or something of equal solemnity. State v. Moody, 69 N. C. 529.

Same—Need Not Be Executed by Parties.—A recognizance need not be executed by the parties, but is simply acknowledged by them, and a minute of the acknowledgment is entered by the court. State v. Edney, 60 N. C. 463, 471; State v. White, 164 N. C. 408, 410, 79 S. E. 297.

Effect of a Recognizance.—A recognizance binds the sureties for the continued appearance of their principal, from day to day, during the term and at all stages of the proceeding, until he is finally discharged by the court, either for term or without day. He must answer its calls at all times and submit to its judgment. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 560, 565, 49 S. E. 917.

Bond with Conditions Is Satisfactory.—A bond with conditions, signed and sealed by the parties, is good as a recognizance. State v. Jones, 100 N. C. 438, 6 S. E. 655.

§ 15-106. Duty of magistrate granting bail.—Any magistrate taking bail shall certify on the warrant the fact of his having let the defendant to bail, and shall deliver the same, together with the recognizance taken by him, to the officer or other person having charge of the prisoner, who shall deliver the same without unnecessary delay to the clerk of the court in which the prisoner has been recognized to appear. (Rev., s. 3212; Code, s. 1140; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 9; C. S. 4578.)

§ 15-107. Sheriff or deputy may take bail.—When any sheriff or his deputy arrests the body of any person, in consequence of the writ of capias issued to him by the clerk of a court of record on an indictment found, the sheriff or deputy, if the crime is bailable, shall recognize the offender, and take sufficient bail in the nature of a recognizance for his appearing at the next succeeding court of the county where he ought to answer, which recognizance shall be returned with the capias; and the sheriff shall in no case become bail himself.

No sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, jailer or assistant jailer or the wife of any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, jailer or assistant jailer shall in any case become bail for any prisoner for money or property; nor shall any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable, jailer or assistant jailer, or their wives become bail as agents for any bonding company or professional bondsmen. Any violation of this paragraph shall constitute a misdemeanor punishable by a fine or by imprisonment in the discretion of the court, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided that the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to Caswell, Currituck, Dare, Granville, Greene, Hertford, Hyde, Lenoir, Martin, Moore, Nash, Pamlico, Perquimans, Person, Pitt, Rockingham, Stokes, Transylvania and Warren counties. (Rev., s. 3208; Code, s. 1180; R. C., c. 35, s. 11; 1797, c. 474, s. 4; 1939, c. 47; C. S. 4579.)

Cross Reference.—As to attorney becoming bail, see Appx. VIII, Part II, § 2.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the second paragraph.

§ 15-108. Sheriff may take bail of prisoner in custody.—If any person for want of bail shall be lawfully committed to jail at any time before final judgment, the sheriff, or other officer having him in custody, may take sufficient justified bail and discharge him; and the bail bond shall be regarded, in every respect, as other bail bonds, and shall be returned and sued on in like manner; and the officer taking it shall make special return thereof, with the bond, at the first court which is held after it is taken. (Rev., s. 3228; Code, s. 1232; R. C., c. 11, s. 8; C. S. 4580.)

§ 15-109. Bail on continuance before a justice.—Upon the continuance of any criminal action returned before any justice of the peace for trial, in which the justice is authorized to take bail on a finding of probable cause or in which he has final jurisdiction, it is the duty of the justice of the peace to take bond for his appearance, payable to the state, on the same being tendered by the accused, with such surety as in his opinion will be sufficient to insure the appearance of the accused for trial at a time and place mentioned in the bond. (Rev., s. 3213; 1889, c. 133; C. S. 4581.)

Cross Reference.—As to mortgage in lieu of security for appearance, see § 109-25.

Section Gives a New Remedy.—Before this section was passed a justice of the peace had no power to allow a party accused of an offense of which he had not final jurisdiction to give bail during the postponement of the examination. If any delay in the examination was necessary, the accused was to be kept in the custody of the sheriff or other officer of the law until the examination was resumed. State v. Jones, 100 N. C. 438, 6 S. E. 655; State v. Jenkins, 121 N. C. 637, 641, 28 S. E. 413.

Art. 11. Forfeiture of Bail.

§ 15-110. In recognizance to keep the peace.—Every person who shall have entered into a recognizance to keep the peace shall appear according to the obligation thereof; and if he fail to appear the court shall forfeit his recognizance and order it to be prosecuted, in the manner provided by law, unless reasonable excuse for his default be given. (Rev., s. 3214; Code, s. 1225; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 10; C. S. 4582.)

Cross Reference.—As to recognizance, see also notes under § 15-105.

Recognizance Binds to Three Things.—It is said by the highest authority that a recognizance (or bail bond) in general binds to three things: (1) to appear and answer either to a specified charge or to such matters as may be objected; (2) to stand and abide the judgment of the court; and (3) not to depart without leave of the court; and that each of these particulars are distinct and independent. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 560, 562, 49 S. E. 917; State v. Eure, 172 N. C. 874, 875, 89 S. E. 788.

When Time and Place Specified.—If the recognizance specify time and place the defendant cannot be held to be in default for not appearing at some other time or place. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 174, 176.

Thus a recognizance, conditioned that the defendant appear at the court-house in C, on the eighth Monday after the fourth Monday in March, is not forfeited by the defendant's failure to appear on 22 February. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 174.

Same—Effect of Subsequent Law.—A recognizance conditioned for the appearance of a party at one day, is not forfeited by his failure to appear at another day, to which the holding of the Court was changed by a law passed after the taking of the recognizance, the law containing no provision that recognizances should be returned and parties appear on that day. State v. Melton, 44 N. C. 426.

When Appearance at Next Term Specified.—A recognizance for the appearance of the defendant at the next term of the Court to be held for a given county is valid and binds the defendant to appear at the next term and at the court-house, although neither time nor place be specifically named; because every one knows, or is presumed to know, the time and place of holding the court. State v. Houston, 74 N. C. 176.

Same—If Term Not Held.—A defendant bound over to answer a criminal charge at a regular term of the Superior Court, which term is not held in consequence of the absence of the Judge, is required to attend at an intervening special term subsequently appointed and held. State v. Horton, 123 N. C. 695, 31 S. E. 218.

Continuance Does Not Release.—The continuance of a criminal case does not release the recognizance given for the appearance of the defendant. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Proceedings When Recognizance Broken.—Where the condition of a recognizance is broken it is competent for the justice to declare the same to be forfeited and order it to be prosecuted in the court having jurisdiction of the penal sum. State v. Oates, 88 N. C. 668.

Defendant Must Appear Until Discharged.—An appearance bond by its terms, and under the uniform ruling of the Court, requires that the defendant appear term after term until he is discharged on a verdict of acquittal or by order of the court. An appearance bond is in lieu of custody in jail, in which case the defendant could not be released until discharged by order of the court. State v. Eure, 172 N. C. 874, 89 S. E. 788.

Agreement by Solicitor Will Not Relieve.—An agreement by a solicitor for the state to discharge a defendant if he would become a state's witness against codefendant, will not relieve such defendant from a forfeited recognizance. State v. Moody, 69 N. C. 529.

Failure to Sign Warrant.—It is immaterial to the validity of an appearance bond given by defendant before the court and in custodia legis that the warrant for his arrest, in due form, was, inadvertently, not signed by the recorder. State v. Mitchell, 151 N. C. 716, 66 S. E. 202.

§ 15-111. When recognizance deemed broken.—No recognizance taken under this chapter shall be deemed to be broken except in the failure of the principal in such recognizance to appear and answer according to the obligation thereof, unless such principal be convicted of some offense amounting in judgment of law to a breach of such recognizance. (Rev., s. 3215; Code, s. 1227; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 12; C. S. 4583.)

Surety Not Relieved.—The liability of a surety upon an appearance bond is a continuing one until discharged by renewal of bond or production and surrender of principal. (See sections 15-122, 15-123.) He is not released by the principal being drunk and under arrest when his case was called in court and continued, and by the principal having since become a fugitive from justice under charge of a different offense. State v. Holt, 145 N. C. 450, 59 S. E. 64.

§ 15-112. Recognizance prosecuted.—Whenever evidence of such conviction shall be produced in the court in which the recognizance is filed, it shall be the duty of such court to order the recognizance to be prosecuted, and the solicitor shall cause the proper proceedings to be thereupon taken. (Rev., s. 3216; Code, s. 1228; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 13; C. S. 4584.)

Independent Proceeding Unnecessary.—The judgment that the recognizance has been forfeited must be entered in the court, and in the cause, in which said recognizance was filed and it is not required that the prosecution for the forfeiture of such recognizance shall be taken by an independent proceeding. State v. Sanders, 153 N. C. 624, 627, 69 S. E. 272.

Proceedings When Forfeiture Is Moved for.—When the forfeiture of a recognizance is moved for, if all the matters are of record, the judge decides without the intervention of a jury. But when the answer raises an issue of fact, the defendant is entitled to have the matter passed upon by a jury. State v. Sanders, 153 N. C. 624, 626, 69 S. E. 272, and cases cited.

Entry of Forfeiture Not Traversed by Answer to Scire Facias.—The entry of the forfeiture of a recognizance in a criminal case cannot be contradicted or traversed by an answer or a plea to a scire facias issued to enforce the forfeiture. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Effect of Answer to Scire Facias.—Where the recognizance in a criminal case is entered on the records of the court as forfeited, and scire facias is issued to enforce the forfeiture, an answer denying the truth of the record, though informal, is equivalent to a motion to set aside the entry, when that appears to have been the intention of the defendants. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

§ 15-113. Notice of judgment nisi before execution.—No execution shall issue upon a forfeited recognizance, or to collect a fine imposed nisi, until a notice has issued against the person who has forfeited his recognizance or upon whom the fine has been imposed, and his sureties. (Rev., s. 3217; Code, s. 1208; R. C., c. 35, s. 43; 1777, c. 115, s. 48; C. S. 4585.)

Local Modification.—Forsyth: 1935, c. 83.

Notice Must Be Given.—This section has made it imperative, that before suing out execution on a forfeited recognizance, a scire facias shall issue, and judgment be had thereon. State v. Mills, 19 N. C. 552, 554.

Object of Notice.—The object of a scire facias is to notify the cognizor to show cause, if any he have, wherefore the cognizee should not have execution of the same thereby acknowledged. State v. Mills, 19 N. C. 552, 554.

Judgment against Surety on Appearance Bond.—An appearance bond is a debt of record conditioned to be void upon the appearance of defendant, and while judgment absolute may not be entered upon a forfeited recognizance except upon a sci. fa., the object of the sci. fa. is merely to give notice of an opportunity to show cause why the cognizee should not have execution acknowledged, and the surety being a party to the recognizance and his liability being primary, direct and equal with that of the principal, judgment absolute may be had against the surety on the sci. fa. before service of the sci. fa. upon the principal. Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 368, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

§ 15-114. What notice must contain.—When any recognizance, acknowledged by a principal and sureties, shall be forfeited by two or more of the recognizors, the notice issued thereon shall be jointly against them all, designating which of them are principals and which sureties, and when they are bound in different sums, stating the amount forfeited by each one, and the clerk shall have no greater fee on such notice than is due when it is issued against one defendant. (Rev., s. 3218; Code, s. 1209; R. C., c. 35, s. 44; 1812, c. 836, s. 1; C. S. 4586.)

§ 15-115. Service of notice.—All notices issuing upon forfeited recognizances shall be executed by leaving a copy with each of the defendants, or at his present place of abode. And in case he cannot be found, and has no known place of abode, and the matter be returned, then a notice shall issue, and on the like return the same shall be deemed duly served. (Rev., s. 3219; Code, s. 1210; R. C., c. 35, s. 45; 1812, c. 836, s. 2; C. S. 4587.)

Cited in Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291.

§ 15-116. Judges may remit forfeited recognizances.—The judges of the superior courts may hear and determine the petition of all persons who shall conceive they merit relief on their recognizances forfeited; and may lessen, or absolutely remit, the same, and do all and anything therein as they shall deem just and right and consistent with the welfare of the state and the persons praying such relief, as well before as after final judgment entered and execution awarded. (Rev., s. 3220; Code, s. 1205; R. C., c. 35, s. 38; 1788, c. 292, s. 1; C. S. 4588.)

Trial Judge Has Discretion.—The power given by this section is a matter of judicial discretion in the judges below, which cannot be reviewed except for some error in a matter of law or legal inference. State v. Moody, 74 N. C. 73, 75; State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Whether a judgment nisi will be made absolute, or whether it will be stricken out, either upon condition or otherwise, rests in the discretion of the judge of the superior court. State v. Clarke, 222 N. C. 744, 24 S. E. (2d) 619.

Court May Remit Penalty without Setting Aside Forfeiture.—Where a motion is made to set aside the entry of forfeiture of a recognizance, its refusal does not prevent the court from reducing or remitting the penalty. State v. Morgan, 136 N. C. 593, 48 S. E. 604.

Petition after Final Judgment.—A surety on a bail bond may, under this section, present a petition for relief to the judge of the superior court, notwithstanding that a final judgment has been rendered. State v. Bradsher, 189 N. C. 401, 127 S. E. 349.

The Superior Courts have authority, under this section, to lessen or remit forfeited recognizances, upon the petition of the party aggrieved, either before or after final judgment. State v. Moody, 74 N. C. 73.

Solicitor Has No Vested Right to Fee.—Under this section the solicitor has no vested right to his fee under an absolute judgment upon a forfeited recognizance which was subsequently set aside by the court in the exercise of his discretionary power. State v. King, 143 N. C. 677, 57 S. E. 516.

Injunction to Restrain Enforcement of Execution.—A motion by the surety asking that the forfeiture theretofore entered upon the appearance bond be stricken out for that defendant had been subsequently arrested under a capias is addressed to the sound discretion of the court in the exercise of its power to remit the forfeiture, and does not serve to stay execution on the judgment entered against the surety upon the sci. fa., and therefore the court, while the motion is pending, may hear and determine the surety's application for injunction to restrain enforcement of the execution issued on the judgment. The remedy for a reduction or remission of the forfeiture is by application under this section. Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 368, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

Arrest Does Not Discharge Forfeiture of Appearance Bond.—The arrest of defendant in a criminal proceeding upon a capias and his trial and conviction does not discharge the original forfeiture of his appearance bond, and judgment absolute against the surety may be entered upon the sci. fa. after defendant has been arrested under the capias. Section 15-122 has no application, since in such case the defendant is not arrested and surrendered by the surety, and further, even if the statute were applicable, it provides that surrender by the bail after recognizance is forfeited does not discharge the bail, but is merely addressed to the discretionary power of the court to reduce or remit the forfeiture. Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 368, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

§ 15-117. Money refunded by clerk.—The clerk of the superior court, on the remission of any forfeited recognizance which has been paid into his office, shall refund the same, or so much thereof as shall be remitted. (Rev., s. 3221; Code, s. 1206; R. C., c. 35, s. 39; 1795, c. 442, s. 1; C. S. 4589.)

§ 15-118. Money refunded by treasurer.—If the money has been paid to the county treasurer, he shall refund it to the person entitled, on his producing an attested copy of the record from the clerk of the court, certifying that such recognizance has been remitted or lessened, signed with his own proper name, with the seal of the court affixed thereto. (Rev., s. 3222; Code, s. 1207; R. C., c. 35, s. 40; 1795, c. 442, s. 2; C. S. 4590.)

§ 15-119. Forfeiture of bond before justice.—On the failure of the accused to appear at the time and place mentioned in any bond taken by any justice of the peace for a continuance of any cause pending before him, and answer the charge, or, having appeared, on his departing the court without leave thereof first had and obtained, it shall be the duty of the justice of the peace then presiding to enter judgment nisi against the principal and his sureties in the bond for the amount mentioned therein, if the sum does not exceed the sum of two hundred dollars; and immediately issue notice to the principal and the sureties in the bond, giving ten days time, specifying time and place, to appear and show cause, if any they have, why the judgment nisi shall not be made final. (Rev., s. 3223; 1889, c. 133, s. 2; C. S. 4591.)

§ 15-120. Judgment final, rendered and enforced.—If the defendant shall fail to appear and show satisfactory reasons for not complying with the provisions of the bond, it shall then be the duty of the justice of the peace to render a final judgment thereon for the amount of the same, and immediately make and transmit to the clerk of the superior court a transcript thereof, which shall be entered upon the judgment docket of the court, and the clerk shall issue execution on the final judgment against the principal and his sureties for the collection of the amount thereof as in other judgments in behalf of the state. (Rev., s. 3224; 1889, c. 133, s. 3; C. S. 4592.)

§ 15-121. Forfeiture over two hundred dollars before justice.—If the bond shall exceed the sum of two hundred dollars, and the accused shall fail to appear as therein provided to answer the charge, or, having appeared, shall depart the court without leave first had and obtained, it shall be the duty of the justice to have the accused called, and enter upon the bond that the defendant was called and failed to answer, and immediately return the original papers in the case, together with the bond, to the clerk of the court having jurisdiction to try such action, who shall immediately enter the case upon the criminal docket of his court and enter judgment nisi for the amount of the bond, and issue notice to the accused and his sureties to appear at the next term to show cause why the judgment should not be made final and proceeded in as other cases of forfeited bonds in behalf of the state in such court. The entry on the bond by the justice of the peace shall be prima facie evidence that the principal therein had been called and failed to answer. Nothing in this section shall be so construed as to prevent justices of the peace from remitting the penalty of the bond or the right of appeal from the justice of the peace to the superior court by the defendant or his surety. (Rev., s. 3225; 1889, c. 133, s. 4; C. S. 4593.)

§ 15-122. Right of bail to surrender principal.—The bail shall have liberty, at any time before execution awarded against him, to surrender to the court from which the process issued, or to the sheriff having such process to return, during the session, or in the recess of such court, the principal, in discharge of himself; and such bail shall, at any time before such execution awarded, have full power and authority to arrest the body of his principal, and secure him until he shall have an opportunity to surrender him to the sheriff or court as aforesaid; and the sheriff is hereby required to receive such surrender, and hold the body of the defendant in custody as if bail had never been given: Provided, that in criminal proceedings the surrender by the bail, after the recognizance has been forfeited, shall not have the effect to discharge the bail, but the forfeiture may be remitted in the manner provided for. (Rev., s. 3226; Code, s. 1230; R. C., c. 11, s. 5; 1777, c. 115, s. 20; 1848, c. 7; C. S. 4594.)

In General.—The conviction does not, by virtue of its own force, put the defendant in the custody of the court or of the sheriff. This is done, in our practice at least, by an order from the court, given of its own motion or on application of the solicitor, and the court, when it passes judgment upon a defendant and he appeals, can direct that he be not taken into custody immediately, but be permitted to find security for the costs of his appeal and for his appearance at the next term, and if he fails afterwards to appear, when called during the term, and perfect his appeal and give the necessary security for his appearance, or in default thereof to surrender himself in execution of the judgment, he may be called and his forfeiture entered. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 560, 564, 49 S. E. 917.

Compliance with Section Protects Surety.—Where a defendant surrenders his principal in open court in discharge of himself as bail, he is acting in the clear exercise of an undoubted legal right. Under this section the entry of the fact made upon the records of the Court was therefore proper, and the court could not by their subsequent action, deprive the defendant of the benefit of it. Underwood v. McLaurin, 49 N. C. 17, 18.

When Condition of Bond Performed.—The condition of a bail bond is not performed by the appearance, conviction, and sentence of the defendant. The conviction does not, by virtue of its own force, put the defendant in the custody of the court or of the sheriff, but to exonerate the surety the defendant must submit to such punishment as shall be adjudged. State v. Schenck, 138 N. C. 560, 49 S. E. 917.

Discharge of Bail.—The arrest of defendant in a criminal proceeding upon a capias and his trial and conviction does not discharge the original forfeiture of his appearance bond, and judgment absolute against the surety may be entered upon the sci. fa. after defendant has been arrested under the capias. This section has no application, since in such case the defendant is not arrested and surrendered by the surety, and further, even if the statute were applicable, it provides that surrender by the bail after recognizance is forfeited does not discharge the bail, but is merely addressed to the discretionary power of the court to reduce or remit the forfeiture. Tar Heel Bond Co. v. Krider, 218 N. C. 361, 11 S. E. (2d) 291, followed in State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 368, 11 S. E. (2d) 294.

Bail Not Exonerated During Defendant's Detention in Prison on Other Charges.—Upon the failure of defendant to appear when his case was called, judgment nisi was entered and sci. fa. and capias issued. Upon the hearing of the sci. fa., the surety showed that at the time of the call of the case defendant was incarcerated in another county of this state on other charges, that upon the subsequent trial in such other county defendant was sentenced to imprisonment, and that the surety had secured capias and filed same with the officials of the state's prison so that defendant would be surrendered to the court to stand trial upon the expiration of his sentence. Held: Notwithstanding that § 1-433 relates only to bonds executed in arrest and bail proceedings, the bail will not be exonerated during defendant's detention, since only the state and not the surety can produce the body of defendant, and judgment absolute against the surety should be stricken out and hearing on the sci. fa. continued until the surety has had opportunity to produce defendant after his release from prison. State v. Elmer, 218 N. C. 365, 11 S. E. (2d) 295.

§ 15-123. New bail given upon surrender; liability of sheriff.—Any person surrendered in the manner specified in § 15-122, shall have liberty, at any time before final judgment against him, to give bail; and in case of such surrender, the sheriff shall take the bail bond or recognizance to the succeeding court; and in case the sheriff shall release such person without bail, or the bail returned be held insufficient, on exception taken, the same term to which such bail bond shall be returned, and allowed by the court, the sheriff, having due notice thereof in criminal cases, shall forfeit to the state the sum of one hundred dollars, to be recovered on motion in like manner as forfeitures for not returning process, and be subject to be indicted for misdemeanor in office; and it shall be the duty of the prosecuting officer to collect the forfeiture; and, in case of a release, the sheriff shall be liable for an escape, and may be prosecuted and punished as provided for in the chapter entitled Criminal Law. (Rev., s. 3227; Code, s. 1231; R. C., c. 11, s. 6; 1827, c. 40; C. S. 4595.)

Cross References.—As to criminal liability for an escape, see § 14-239. As to recovery of the penalty, see § 162-14 and annotation thereto.

§ 15-124. Defenses open to bail.—Every matter which would entitle the principal to be discharged from arrest may be pleaded by the bail in exoneration of his liability. (Rev., s. 3229; Code, s. 1233; R. C., c. 11, s. 9; C. S. 4596.)

Art. 12. Commitment to Prison.

§ 15-125. Order of commitment.—Every commitment to prison of a person charged with crime shall state:

1. The name of the person charged.
2. The character of the offense with which he is charged.
3. The name and office of the magistrate committing him.
4. The manner in which he may be discharged; if upon giving recognizance or bail, the amount of the recognizance, the condition on the performance of which it shall be discharged, and the persons or magistrate before whom the bail may justify.

5. The court before which the prisoner shall be sent for trial. (Rev., s. 3230; Code, s. 1163; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 32; C. S. 4597.)

Cross Reference.—As to order of commitment after judgment by a justice, see § 15-159.

Verbal Order Invalid.—A verbal order of a justice of the peace sending a prisoner to jail, whether made before or after the examination on the warrant, is not a sufficient authority for the officer to whom the order is given. State v. James, 78 N. C. 455.

§ 15-126. Commitment to county jail.—All persons committed to prison before conviction shall be committed to the jail of the county in which the examination is had, or to that of the county in which the offense is charged to have been committed: Provided, if the jails of these counties are unsafe, or injurious to the health of prisoners, the committing magistrate may commit to the jail of any other convenient county. And every sheriff or jailer to whose jail any person shall be committed by any court or magistrate of competent jurisdiction shall receive such prisoner and give a receipt for him, and be bound for his safe-keeping as prescribed by law. (Rev., s. 3231; Code, s. 1164; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 2, s. 33; C. S. 4598.)

§ 15-127. Commitment of witnesses.—If any witness required to enter into a recognizance, either with or without sureties, shall refuse to comply with such order, it shall be the duty of such magistrate to commit him to prison until he shall comply with such order, or be otherwise discharged according to law. (Rev., s. 3232; Code, s. 1155; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 3, s. 24; C. S. 4599.)

Cross Reference.—As to when witnesses are required to give security for appearance, see § 15-97.

Art. 13. Venue.

§ 15-128. In case of lynching.—The superior court of any county which adjoins the county in which the crime of lynching shall be committed shall have full and complete jurisdiction over the crime and the offender to the same extent as if the crime had been committed in the bounds of such adjoining county; and whenever the solicitor of the district has information of the commission of such a crime, it shall be his duty to furnish such information to the grand juries of all adjoining counties to the one in which the crime was committed from time to time until the offenders are brought to justice. (Rev., s. 3233; 1893, c. 461, s. 4; C. S. 4600.)

Cross References.—As to venue in civil cases, see § 1-76 et seq. As to removal for fair trial, see § 1-84 et seq.

Section Constitutional.—This section is a constitutional exercise of legislative power. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600; State v. Rumble, 178 N. C. 717, 100 S. E. 622.

Purpose of Section.—Owing to the prejudice or sympathy which in cases of lynching usually and naturally pervades the county where that offense is committed, the General Assembly, upon grounds of public policy, deemed it wise to transfer the investigation of the charge to the grand jury of an adjoining county. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600.

Bill Need Not Be Found In County Where Offense Committed.—In an indictment for lynching it was error to quash the bill on the ground that it appeared on the face of the bill that the offense charged was not committed in the county in which the bill was found, but in an adjoining county. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 55 S. E. 600.

§ 15-129. In offenses on waters dividing counties.—When any offense is committed on any water, or water-course, whether at high or low water, which water or water-course, or the sides or shores thereof, divides counties, such offense may be dealt with, inquired of, tried and determined, and punished at the discretion of the court, in either of the two counties which may be nearest to the place where the offense was committed. (Rev., s. 3234; Code, s. 1193; R. C., c. 35, s. 24; C. S. 4601.)

Cross Reference.—As to venue of civil offenses committed on waters, see § 1-77.

§ 15-130. Assault in one county, death in another.—In all cases of felonious homicide when the assault has been made in one county within the state, and the person assaulted dies in any other county thereof, the offender shall be indicted and punished for the crime in the county wherein the assault was made. (Rev., s. 3235; Code, s. 1196; R. C., c. 35, s. 27; 1831, c. 22, s. 1; C. S. 4602.)

No New Offense Created by Section.—This section received a judicial construction in S. v. Dunkley, 25 N. C. 116, and it was held that it did not create any new offense, but merely removed a difficulty which existed as to the place of the trial. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 19 S. E. 602.

This section and the following were part of chapter 22 of the Public Laws 1831 and hence this construction applies equally to the following section.—Ed. Note.

For meaning of "assault," see note under following section.

§ 15-131. Assault in this state, death in another.—In all cases of felonious homicide, when the assault has been made within this state, and the person assaulted dies without the limits thereof, the offender shall be indicted and punished for the crime in the county where the assault was made, in the same manner, to all intents and purposes, as if the person assaulted had died within the limits of this state. (Rev., s. 3236; Code, s. 1197; R. C., c. 35, s. 28; 1831, c. 22, s. 2; C. S. 4603.)

Section Is Valid.—The validity of sections similar to this seems to be undisputed, and indeed it has been held in many jurisdictions that such legislation is but in affirmance of the common law. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 19 S. E. 602.

No new offense created by section, see note to preceding section.

Meaning of "Assault."—The assault mentioned in this section and the preceding section evidently means not a mere attempt, but such an injury inflicted in this State as results in death in another State. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 19 S. E. 602.

Acts Causing Death Must Take Place in State.—This section plainly contemplates that every part of the offense, except the death, must have occurred in this State. State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 909, 19 S. E. 602.

Shooting Person in Adjoining State.—See section 15-132 and note thereto.

§ 15-132. Person in this state injuring one in another.—If any person, being in this state, unlawfully and willfully puts in motion a force from the effect of which any person is injured while in another state, the person so setting such force in motion shall be guilty of the same offense in this state as he would be if the effect had taken place within this state. (Rev., s. 3237; 1895, c. 169; C. S. 4604.)

Editor's Note.—This section was passed in 1895 as a result of the decision in State v. Hall, 114 N. C. 809, 19 S. E. 602. In that case, decided in 1894, the defendants while in North Carolina shot across the State line and killed a person in Tennessee and being indicted for murder in North Carolina it was held that they were not guilty of the crime charged in the absence of a statute like the present. Section 15-131 was discussed and held not applicable since the stroke producing death was given not in North Carolina but in Tennessee.

§ 15-133. In county where death occurs.—If a mortal wound is given or other violence or injury inflicted or poison is administered on the high seas or land, either within or without the limits of this state, by means whereof death ensues in any county thereof, the offense may be prosecuted and punished in the county where the death happens. (Rev., s. 3238; 1891, c. 68; C. S. 4605.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and applies to foreigners as well as to citizens of this State who have inflicted mortal wounds elsewhere. State v. Caldwell, 115 N. C. 794, 20 S. E. 523.

§ 15-134. Improper venue met by plea in abatement; procedure.—Because the boundaries of many counties are either undetermined or unknown, by reason whereof high offenses go unpunished; therefore, for the more effectual prosecution of offenses committed on land near the boundaries of counties, in the prosecution of all offenses it shall be deemed and taken as true that the offense was committed in the county in which by the indictment it is alleged to have taken place, unless the defendant shall deny the same by plea in abatement, the truth whereof shall be duly verified on oath or otherwise both as to substance and fact, wherein shall be set forth the proper county in which the supposed offense, if any, was committed; whereupon the court may, on motion of the state, commit the defendant, who may enter into recognizance, as in other cases, to answer the offense in the county averred by his plea to be the proper county; and, on his prosecution in that county, it shall be deemed, conclusively, to be the proper county. But if the state, upon the plea aforesaid, will join issue, and the matter be found for the defendant, he shall be required to enter into recognizance as in other cases to answer the offense in the county averred by his plea to be the proper county, provided the offense be bailable; and, if not bailable, he shall be committed for trial in the county; and, if it be found for the state, the court in all offenses or misdemeanors shall proceed to pronounce judgment against the defendant, as upon conviction; and, in all cases of felony, the defendant shall be at liberty to plead to the indictment, and be tried on his plea of not guilty. (Rev., s. 3239; Code, s. 1194; R. C., c. 35, s. 25; C. S. 4606.)

Cross References.—As to venue in indictment for stealing rides on trains, see § 60-104. As to venue in indictment for receiving stolen goods, see § 14-71. As to venue in case of discrimination against the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, see § 60-8. As to venue in case of bribery of baseball players, see § 14-378. As to venue in trial of an accessory, see §§ 14-5 and 14-7. As to venue in cases of bigamy, see § 14-183. As to sale and delivery of intoxicating liquors, see § 18-9. As to offenses by officers of state institutions, see § 143-116. As to venue in cases of bastardy, see § 49-5.

Purpose of Section.—This section was evidently intended to provide relief in difficulties originating in doubt entertained in good faith as to the county in which the offense was committed, and should not be construed to modify the common law beyond the reasonable scope of its manifest purpose. State v. Mitchell, 202 N. C. 439, 445, 163 S. E. 581.

Power of Legislature.—Venue is under the control of the Legislature. State v. Woodward, 123 N. C. 710, 31 S. E. 219. Broad Terms.—This section is very broad in its terms. State v. Outerbridge, 82 N. C. 618, 622.

Old Rule Reversed.—It reverses the rule which seems to have obtained on the trial of criminal cases before its enactment. State v. Lytle, 117 N. C. 799, 801, 23 S. E. 476.

Applies to All Crimes.—In felonies, as in misdemeanors, the objection can only be taken by plea in abatement. State v. Outerbridge, 82 N. C. 618, 622.

Same—Committed Within State.—The offenses referred to in this section are those committed within the borders of the State, in violation of the laws of the State, for our courts cannot take cognizance of the violation of the criminal laws of other States; and would have no right to recognize offenders to appear before their judicial tribunals. State v. Mitchell, 83 N. C. 674, 676.

Laws Regulating Jurisdiction Not a Part of Offense.—Laws conferring, withdrawing or limiting jurisdiction over pre-existing common law offenses do not become a constituent part of the offenses to which they apply. State v. Lewis, 142 N. C. 626, 630, 55 S. E. 600; State v. Williamson, 81 N. C. 540.

Crime Where Alleged.—Under this section, a criminal offense is deemed to have taken place in the county in which the indictment charges it had occurred, unless the defendant deny the same by the plea in abatement. State v. Oliver, 186 N. C. 329, 119 S. E. 370; State v. Allen, 107 N. C. 805, 11 S. E. 1016.

Averment of Venue in Indictment.—In an indictment for murder, the offence must be charged in the body of the bill, to have been committed within the district, over which the court has jurisdiction; it is not sufficient that the caption names the district. State v. Adams, 1 N. C. 56.

But the want of an averment of a proper and perfect venue is not fatal to a bill of indictment. State v. Williamson, 81 N. C. 540, 541.

The crime of offering a bribe to a juror is committed in the county where the offer is communicated to the juror, and the proper venue is the county in which the juror was serving and in which the defendant's offer was communicated to him by his wife, although defendant communicated with the juror's kinsmen and wife in the county of their residence. State v. Noland, 204 N. C. 329, 168 S. E. 412.

Objection to Venue Waived.—Objection to venue is waived unless objection is taken in apt time by plea in abatement. State v. Lytle, 117 N. C. 799, 23 S. E. 476; State v. Woodward, 123 N. C. 710, 31 S. E. 219; State v. Holder, 133 N. C. 709, 711, 45 S. E. 862.

Thus where a prisoner is charged with killing the deceased in the county in which the indictment is found, the State need not prove that the offense was committed in that county. Such allegation is to be taken as true unless the prisoner denies the same by plea in abatement. State v. Outerbridge, 82 N. C. 618.

Demurrer to Evidence Improper Remedy.—Under this section, an objection to venue must be taken by plea in abatement, and a demurrer to the evidence on this ground was properly overruled. State v. Burton, 138 N. C. 575, 576, 50 S. E. 214.

Plea in Abatement.—An indictment charging that defendant did feloniously embezzle certain certificates of deposit in the county in which the prosecution is instituted, held not subject to defendant's plea in abatement on the ground that the certificates of deposit were issued by a bank in another county and that such other county was the proper venue of the prosecution, since the indictment charges the embezzlement of the certificates of deposit and not the proceeds of the certificates. State v. Shore, 206 N. C. 743, 175 S. E. 116.

What Must Be Stated in Plea in Abatement.—In pleas in abatement the facts upon which the plea rests must be stated, and present matters which will defeat the further prosecution of the present action, if proven or admitted. Emry v. Chappell, 148 N. C. 327, 62 S. E. 411.

Jurisdiction of Person Acquired by Consent.—While the court's jurisdiction of the subject-matter of a criminal offense may not be acquired with the defendant's consent, it is otherwise as to the jurisdiction of his person; and where he asks and obtains a continuance of the action against him, he waives the court's want of jurisdiction of his person, and thereafter a plea in abatement comes too late. State v. Oliver, 186 N. C. 329, 119 S. E. 370.

Where Motion to Quash Indictment Was Correctly Denied.—Defendant moved to quash the indictment for receiving stolen goods on the ground that the evidence showed that the property, if stolen, was stolen in another county, and, if received by defendant, was received by him in a third county. It was held that the motion to quash was correctly denied since, under this section, the crime is presumed to have been committed in the county laid in the bill of indictment unless defendant aptly enters a plea in abatement. State v. Ray, 209 N. C. 772, 184 S. E. 836.

Cited in State v. Ritter, 199 N. C. 116, 117, 154 S. E. 62.

§ 15-135. Removal of indictment with consent of defendant; pleas.—Whenever an indictment, charging the commission of a capital or other felony, is returned a true bill, the judge holding the court in which such indictment is found shall have the power, with the written consent of the defendant or defendants charged in said bill, to remove such indictment for trial to some adjacent county prior to the arraignment or plea of the defendant or defendants in such indictment, without the presence in person of the defendant or defendants, and upon such removal the pleas of the defendant or defendants may be entered in such adjacent county. (1921, c. 12, s. 1; C. S. 4606(a).)

§ 15-136. Jurisdiction of grand jury.—Upon the removal of any indictment under section 15-135, if it shall be found that there is any defect in such indictment, the grand jury of the county to which the same is removed for trial shall have as full and ample jurisdiction and power to find another indictment for the same offense as would the grand jury of the county from which the indictment was removed. (1921, c. 12, s. 2; C. S. 4606(b).)

Art. 14. Presentment.

§ 15-137. No arrest nor trial on presentment.—No person shall be arrested on a presentment of the grand jury, or put on trial before any court, but on indictment found by the grand jury, unless otherwise provided by law. (Rev., s. 3240; Code, s. 1175; R. C., c. 35, s. 6; 1797, c. 474, s. 3; 1879, c. 12; C. S. 4607.)

Cross References.—As to exception to grand jurors, see § 9-26 and notes. As to the indictment, see § 15-140 et seq. As to constitutional provisions, see N. C. Const., Art. I, § 12 and U. S. Const., Amend. V.

Original and Derivative Jurisdiction Distinguished.—On appeal from the superior court of Craven county, from conviction of the unlawful possession of intoxicants, where the record showed that defendant was bound over to the county court of Craven county with no record of his having been tried in that court or that there was any appeal therefrom, the superior court was without jurisdiction, and upon motion of the attorney-general, the appeal was properly dismissed. State v. Patterson, 222 N. C. 179, 22 S. E. (2d) 267.

Objections to Grand Jury.—In State v. Sharp, 110 N. C. 604, 14 S. E. 504, where there is a full discussion of objections to the competency of a grand jury, it is held that the fact that a son of the prosecutor was a member of the grand jury did not vitiate the indictment, though he had actively participated in finding the bill. State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 269, 80 S. E. 1060.

Where Foreman Interested in Prosecution.—A motion to quash a bill of indictment on the ground that the foreman of the grand jury was interested in the prosecution will be denied when it appears that the foreman took no part in passing upon the indictment and signed the bill under the direction of the grand jury and returned it in open court. State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 80 S. E. 1060.

Remedy When Grand Jury Defective.—If there be a defect in the accusing body, it is the right of the party indicted, by plea of abatement or by motion to quash, to avail himself of such defect; but it is required to be exercised at the earliest opportunity after bill found, which must be upon the arraignment when the party is first called upon to answer. State v. Griffice, 74 N. C. 316; State v. Haywood, 73 N. C. 437; State v. Baldwin, 80 N. C. 390, 391.

§ 15-138. Names of witnesses indorsed on presentment.—When a presentment shall be made of any offense by a grand jury, upon the knowledge of any of their body, or upon the testimony of witnesses, the names of such grand jurors and witnesses shall be indorsed thereon. (Rev., s. 3241; Code, s. 1176; R. C., c. 35, s. 7; 1797, c. 474, s. 2; C. S. 4608.)

Failure to Mark Names of Witnesses on Bill.—Section 9-27 providing that the foreman of the grand jury shall mark on the indictment the names of the witnesses sworn and examined before the jury is directory merely, and the omission of the foreman to comply therewith is no ground for quashing the bill, where the proof is that the witnesses were sworn. State v. Hines, 84 N. C. 810.

§ 15-139. Subpœna for witnesses on presentment.—In issuing subpoenas for witnesses whose names are indorsed on presentments made by the grand jury, the clerk of the court shall name therein the first Tuesday of the term of court as the time for such witnesses to appear and give evidence. And no clerk shall issue a subpœna for any such witness to appear on Monday, except upon written order of the solicitor of the district. (1913, c. 168; C. S. 4609.)

Art. 15. Indictment.

§ 15-140. Waiver of bill of indictment.—No waiver of the finding and return into court of a bill of indictment in any criminal action shall be allowed in the superior courts of this state except in cases wherein the offense charged is a misdemeanor which does not include or contain the element of fraud, deceit or malice; nor shall such waiver be made in any such action except upon a plea of guilty, or a submission, or a plea of nolo contendere by the defendant in the same. No such waiver of a bill of indictment shall be allowed by the court unless by the consent of the defendant's counsel in such action, who shall be one either employed by the defendant to defend him in the action or one appointed by the court to examine into the defendant's case and report as to the same to the court; which service by an attorney so appointed by the court shall be rendered without fee or reward. (1907, c. 71; C. S. 4610.)

Section Constitutional.—This section, authorizing the waiver of an indictment in the Superior Court by the defendant bound over from an inferior court, is constitutional and valid. Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 13. State v. Jones, 181 N. C. 543, 106 S. E. 827.

Cited in State v. Finch, 218 N. C. 511, 11 S. E. (2d) 547.

§ 15-141. Bills returned by foreman except in capital cases.—Grand juries shall return all bills of indictment in open court through their acting foreman, except in capital felonies, when it shall be necessary for the entire grand jury, or a majority of them, to return their bills of indictment in open court in a body. (Rev., s. 3242; 1889, c. 29; C. S. 4611.)

Indictment to Be Returned in Open Court.—It is the returning of the bill or indictment, publicly, in open court and its being there recorded, that makes it effectual. State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440.

Indictment Need Not Be Signed.—It has been often held that an indictment need not necessarily be signed by any one. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668; State v. Pitt, 166 N. C. 268, 269, 80 S. E. 1060; State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440, 446.

No endorsement by the foreman or otherwise is essential to the validity of an indictment, which has been duly returned into court by the grand jury under this section, and entered upon its records. State v. Avant, 202 N. C. 680, 683, 163 S. E. 806.

§ 15-142. Substance of judicial proceedings set forth.—In every indictment, information, or impeachment in which, by the common law, it may be necessary to set forth at length the judicial proceedings had in any case then or formerly pending in any court, civil or military, or before any justice of the peace, it is sufficient to set forth the substance only of the proceedings, or the substance of such part thereof as makes, or helps to make, the offense prosecuted. (Rev., s. 3243; Code, s. 1184; R. C., c. 35, s. 15; C. S. 4612.)

Power of Legislature.—The legislature has the undoubted right to modify old forms of bills of indictment, or establish new ones, provided the form established is sufficient to apprise the defendant with reasonable certainty of the nature of the crime of which he stands charged. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 458, 59 S. E. 115.

Purpose of Section.—The purpose of this section and section 15-153 is to render unnecessary merely useless refinements and technicalities in pleading that once prevailed. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Object of an Indictment.—The office of an indictment is to inform the defendant with sufficient certainty of the charge against him to enable him to prepare his defense. State v. Gates, 107 N. C. 832, 834, 12 S. E. 319.

Refinements Abolished.—The technical and useless refinements of the common law, formerly required in drawing bills of indictment in criminal cases, have been all abolished by statute. State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888. See also State v. Morrison, 202 N. C. 60, 161 S. E. 725.

Statement Required.—In every indictment, the facts and circumstances must be stated with such certainty that the defendant may judge whether they constitute an indictable offense or not. State v. Lewis, 93 N. C. 581. And thus where an indictment sets forth the substance of the offense charged "in a plain, intelligible and explicit manner," with such fullness as that the court could see that it was charged, and it gave the defendant such information as was necessary to enable him to make defence on the trial and in case of a subsequent prosecution, it is sufficient under this section and section 15-153. State v. Murphy, 101 N. C. 697, 701, 8 S. E. 142.

Omission of Caption Does Not Vitiates.—While every indictment properly should have a caption, it is no part of the indictment, and its omission is no ground for arresting judgment. State v. Wasden, 4 N. C. 596; State v. Brickell, 8 N. C. 354; State v. Lane, 26 N. C. 113; State v. Dula, 61 N. C. 437; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

Mistake in Caption.—A misrecital of the county in the caption is not ground for arrest of judgment. State v. Sprinkle, 65 N. C. 463; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

Signature of Solicitor Not Requisite.—It is regular and orderly for the bill to be signed by the solicitor, but such signing is not essential to its validity. State v. Mace, 86 N. C. 668; State v. Cox, 28 N. C. 440; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

§ 15-143. Bill of particulars.—In all indictments when further information not required to be set out therein is desirable for the better defense of the accused, the court, upon motion, may, in its discretion, require the solicitor to furnish a bill of particulars of such matters. (Rev., s. 3244; C. S. 4613.)

In General.—This provision as to a bill of particulars had prevailed previously as to civil proceedings, section 1-150, and was by this section made expressly applicable to criminal cases, to which the court had applied it in State v. Brady, 107 N. C. 822, 12 S. E. 325. State v. Stephens, 170 N. C. 745, 748, 87 S. E. 131.

Purpose of Section.—This section intended to make all indictments alike in regard to dispensing with the insertion of the means and methods by which any offense was committed. State v. Stephens, 170 N. C. 745, 748, 87 S. E. 131.

Object of Bill of Particulars.—The whole object of a bill of particulars is to enable the defendant to properly prepare his defense in cases where the bill of indictment, though correct in form and sufficient to apprise the defendant, in general terms, of the "accusation" against him, is yet so indefinite in its statements, as to the particular charge or occurrence referred to, that it does not afford defendant a fair opportunity to procure his witnesses or prepare his defense. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 149 N. C. 508, 511, 62 S. E. 1088.

State Confined to Particulars Stated.—The granting of a bill of particulars on an indictment for a criminal offense is primarily to inform the accused of the charges against him, and secondarily to inform the court, and while this is not strictly a part of the indictment, its effect is to confine the State in its evidence to the particulars stated, and it is reversible error to the prejudice of the defendant's rights for the court to admit, over his objection, evidence as to other criminal offenses not included in the bill to show the scienter or quo animo in relation to the particulars enumerated and coming within the scope of those generally charged in the indictment. State v. Wadford, 194 N. C. 336, 139 S. E. 608.

Former Details Not Now Charged in Indictment.—It is no longer charged whether a murder was committed with a knife or a pistol, nor the length and breadth and depth of a wound, and the same is true as to all other offenses. In lieu of this, we have adopted this section which provides for a bill of particulars. State v. Stephens, 170 N. C. 745, 747, 87 S. E. 131.

What Bill Will Not Supply.—A bill of particulars will not supply any matter required to be charged in the indictment, as an ingredient of the offense. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 676, 57 S. E. 349. See also, State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 782, 18 S. E. (2d) 358 (dis. op.).

The provisions of this section cannot supply a deficiency in an indictment when the language of the indictment fails to adequately charge the essential concomitants of the offense. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594. See also, State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

Granting Order Is within Court's Discretion.—The granting of an order for a bill of particulars is in the discretion of the court, and the question of sufficient compliance is likewise in the sound legal discretion of the trial judge. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 149 N. C. 508, 62 S. E. 1088.

Same—Amendment of Bill.—A bill of particulars, being no part of the indictment, is not subject to demurrer, and may be amended at any time, with permission of the court, on such terms or under such conditions as are just. Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461; State v. Wadford, 194 N. C. 336, 338, 139 S. E. 608.

A bill of particulars filed by order of court in a criminal action is not regarded as a part of the indictment, and with the court's permission may be amended at any time, and is not subject to demurrer, the office of such bill being to advise the court and the accused of specific occurrences for investigation. State v. Beal, 199 N. C. 278, 279, 154 S. E. 604.

Meaning of "Discretion."—The term "discretion," as used and contemplated in the statute, should be construed to mean the sound legal discretion of the trial court; it is well understood that the action of the lower court will not be reviewed or disturbed on appeal, unless there has been manifest abuse in the respect to defendant's prejudice. State v. Dewey, 139 N. C. 556, 51 S. E. 937; State v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 149 N. C. 508, 511, 62 S. E. 1088.

When Applied for.—Where the defendant thinks that an indictment, otherwise objectionable in form, fails to impart information sufficiently specific as to the nature of the charge, he may before trial move the court to order that a bill of particulars be filed, and the court will not arrest the judgment after verdict where he attempts to reserve his fire until he takes first the chance of acquittal. State v. Corbin, 157 N. C. 619, 621, 72 S. E. 1071; State v. Shade, 115 N. C. 757, 20 S. E. 537.

Indictment for Perjury.—Where the defendant in an action for perjury is in ignorance of the particulars of the offense charged, his remedy is by application to the court for a bill of particulars under this section if the indictment is in the form prescribed by section 15-145. State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888.

Indictment for Malfeasance of Bank Officer.—It is within the sound discretion of the trial judge to try, separately or collectively, the defendant, indicted under the provisions of section 14-254, for some or all offenses committed by a series of checks on the bank, whereby he had unlawfully "abstracted" the funds of the bank; and where the indictment is sufficient for conviction, the defendant's remedy is by requesting a bill of particulars when he reasonably so desires. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

What Constitutes Waiver of Right.—Where a bank employee is charged with the indictable offense of making false entries upon the books of the bank in fraud or deceit of "other persons to the jurors unknown," the defendant should make his motion to the discretion of the trial judge for a bill of particulars requiring the name of these unknown persons, and his failure to do so will be deemed a waiver of his right. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

Motion to Quash Not Proper Remedy.—Where the criminal indictment sufficiently charges all the elements of the offense but is not as definite as the defendant may desire the defendant's remedy is by a motion for a bill of particulars, and not by a motion to quash. State v. Everhardt, 203 N. C. 610, 166 S. E. 738.

Where Motion in Arrest of Judgment Properly Denied.—An indictment charging defendant disjunctively with murder committed with malice, premeditation, and deliberation and with murder committed in the perpetration of a robbery, is not void for uncertainty, since either charge constitutes murder in the first degree, and defendant's remedy, if he desires more specific information is by motion for a bill of particulars under this section, but a motion in arrest of judgment after a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree, is properly denied. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 183.

§ 15-144. Essentials of bill for homicide.—In indictments for murder and manslaughter, it is not necessary to allege matter not required to be proved on the trial; but in the body of the indictment, after naming the person accused, and the county of his residence, the date of the offense, the averment "with force and arms," and the county of the alleged commission of the offense, as is now usual, it is sufficient in describing murder to allege that the accused person feloniously, willfully, and of his malice aforethought, did kill and murder (naming the person killed), and concluding as is now required by law; and it is sufficient in describing manslaughter to allege that the accused feloniously and willfully did kill and slay (naming the person killed), and concluding as aforesaid; and any bill of indictment containing the averments and allegations herein named shall be good and sufficient in law as an indictment for murder or manslaughter, as the case may be. (Rev., s. 3245; 1887, c. 58; C. S. 4614.)

Cross Reference.—As to homicide generally, see §§ 14-17, 14-18 and notes thereto.

Section Constitutional.—The power of the Legislature to prescribe the form of indictment for murder is upheld in State v. Moore, 104 N. C. 743, 10 S. E. 183; State v. Brown, 106 N. C. 645, 10 S. E. 870; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990.

This section is an abbreviated form for a bill of indictment for murder. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 73, 189 S. E. 183.

Willfully Not Necessary in Indictment for Murder.—The word "willfully" is not essential to the validity of an indictment for murder, neither at common law nor under this section. State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 11 S. E. 990; State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 812; State v. Harris, 106 N. C. 682, 11 S. E. 377, cited and approved.

What Is Sufficient under Section.—This section declares an indictment containing certain words "sufficient," but it does not make those words essential, nor by any reasonable construction can it be held to make technical and "sacramental" words which were not theretofore necessary in indictments for murder. State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 863, 11 S. E. 990.

Same—Form of Indictment Set Out.—The following is full and sufficient in the body of an indictment for murder: "The jurors for the State on their oaths present that A. B., in the county of E., did feloniously, and of malice aforethought, kill and murder C. D." And it is sufficient in an indictment for manslaughter to follow the same form, omitting the words "and with malice aforethought" and substituting "slay" in the stead of the word "murder." These forms contain, in the words of the statute, "every averment necessary to be proved." State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 863, 11 S. E. 990. This form also approved in State v. Sou. Ry. Co., 125 N. C. 666, 671, 34 S. E. 527.

An indictment charging the essential facts of murder as required by this section, is sufficient to sustain the court's charge based upon the evidence in the case relative to murder committed in the perpetration of robbery or other felony. State v. Fogleman, 204 N. C. 401, 168 S. E. 536.

Statements Not Necessary.—An indictment is not defective for failure to allege whether the person killed was a man or woman, or whether the mortal wound was inflicted by stabbing, shooting or killing. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 659, 28 S. E. 354.

It is not necessary that an indictment for murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate larceny should contain a specific allegation of the attempted larceny, such allegation not having been necessary in indictments prior to the adoption of the section. State v. Covington, 117 N. C. 834, 23 S. E. 337.

The omission of the word "wound" in an indictment for murder was held not fatal, long before the adoption of the present short form of indictment for murder under this section. State v. Rinehart, 75 N. C. 58; State v. Ratliff, 170 N. C. 707, 709, 86 S. E. 997.

Variance in Time Not Fatal.—Where an indictment for murder charged the killing to have taken place December fifth and the evidence showed that, while the deceased was wounded on that day, he died three days thereafter, and before the bill of indictment was found. Held, that the variance was not fatal. State v. Pate, 121 N. C. 659, 28 S. E. 354.

Indictment under Section Held to Give Full Information of Crime.—Where an indictment was drawn according to this section the defendant was given full information of the crime on which he was being tried. There was nothing indefinite or uncertain about the bill of indictment. It was in the alternative, but this was merely two counts in one bill of indictment. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 73, 189 S. E. 183.

Applied in State v. Kirkman, 208 N. C. 719, 182 S. E. 498; State v. Dills, 210 N. C. 178, 185 S. E. 677; State v. Hudson, 218 N. C. 219, 10 S. E. (2d) 730.

Cited, in State v. Thornton, 211 N. C. 413, 190 S. E. 758; State v. Godwin, 211 N. C. 419, 190 S. E. 761; State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 278, 20 S. E. (2d) 313.

§ 15-145. Form of bill for perjury.—In every indictment for willful and corrupt perjury it is sufficient to set forth the substance of the offense charged upon the defendant, and by what court, or before whom, the oath was taken (averring such court or person to have competent authority to administer the same), together with the proper averments to falsify the matter wherein the perjury is assigned, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration, or any part of any record or proceedings, either in law or equity, other than aforesaid, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed. In indictments for perjury the following form shall be sufficient, to wit:

The jurors for the state, on their oath, present, that A. B., ofCounty, did unlawfully commit perjury upon the trial of an action incourt, inCounty, whereinwas plaintiff and.....was defendant, by falsely asserting, on oath (or solemn affirmation) (here set out the statement or statements alleged to be false), knowing the said statement, or statements, to be false, or being ignorant whether or not said statement was true. (Rev., ss. 3246, 3247; Code, s. 1185; R. C., c. 35, s. 16; 1842, c. 49, s. 1; 1889, c. 83; C. S. 4615.)

Cross Reference.—As to perjury generally, see § 14-209 et seq.

In General.—A person charged with perjury must be indicted by the grand jury as the offense is a felony. A trial without an indictment is contrary to the Constitution, Art. 1, sec. 12. State v. Hyman, 164 N. C. 411, 79 S. E. 284.

But a defendant certainly can derive no just benefit from the insertion in the charge of the minutiae of what would constitute perjury. The use of such phraseology was indeed always illogical, and the experience of ages has been that it served not so much to enlighten the defendant as to the charge he was to meet, as to present a network of technicalities which hindered the trial of the cause upon its merits and very often caused a miscarriage of justice. State v. Gates, 107 N. C. 832, 834, 12 S. E. 319.

And thus the purpose of this section is to render unnecessary useless details and niceties, in charging the offense of perjury, that one time prevailed to the prejudice of the administration of criminal justice. State v. Robertson, 98 N. C. 751, 752, 4 S. E. 511.

This section dispenses with the necessity of setting forth the record of the indictment, on the trial of which the false oath is alleged to have been taken, and only requires that the substance would be set forth, but it did not dispense with the necessity of making all the averments in an indictment for perjury which were all necessary to be proved, and it is necessary to prove in what court, or before whom, the oath was taken. State v. Lewis, 93 N. C. 581, 583.

Section Constitutional.—The form of indictment for perjury prescribed by this section is sufficient and legal. State

v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888 overruling State v. Cline, 150 N. C. 854, 64 S. E. 591; State v. Gates, 107 N. C. 832, 12 S. E. 319.

Word "Feliciously" Not Necessary.—In the cases of State v. Bunting, 118 N. C. 1200, 24 S. E. 118 and State v. Shaw, 117 N. C. 764, 23 S. E. 246, which were indictments for perjury, it was expressly held that the term "feliciously" was required to make a good bill of indictment for this offense. Both of them, too, were on indictments instituted after the adoption of this section which established the form for indictment for perjury. The court, however, in rendering these decisions, was evidently not advertent to the statute above referred to, for the reason probably that it does not appear in the general Code of 1883, and was, therefore, not called to its attention; the statute having been enacted at a subsequent session and being chapter 83, Laws of 1889. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 458, 59 S. E. 115.

But this section does not make the word "feliciously" a part of the bill, and it does not appear in the form set out, and the same is, therefore, no longer required. State v. Harris, 145 N. C. 456, 457, 59 S. E. 115; State v. Holder, 153 N. C. 606, 609, 69 S. E. 66.

Sufficient Averment of Jurisdiction.—The jurisdiction of the justice of the peace of the complaint upon the examination whereof the alleged perjury was committed is sufficiently averred where it is averred, that the justice had power to administer the oath. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 495.

Style of the Court.—The style of the court before which the perjury is alleged to have been committed must be legally set forth. State v. Street, 5 N. C. 156, 3 Am. Dec. 682.

Proceedings Not Set Out.—Where an indictment for perjury alleges that the false oath was taken before a justice of the peace upon the trial of a warrant, etc., it is not necessary to set forth the proceedings in which the false oath was alleged to have been made. State v. Roberson, 98 N. C. 751, 4 S. E. 511.

Indictment Need Not Charge Materiality of False Testimony.—Prior to the adoption of this section it was settled that in indictments for perjury the indictment must charge that the alleged false testimony was material to the issue. See State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 495; State v. Mumford, 12 N. C. 519. Since this section was passed however it has been repeatedly held that this need not appear in the indictment. See State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 435, 119 S. E. 888 and cases cited. The case of State v. Cline, 150 N. C. 854, 64 S. E. 591, though decided in 1909 evidently overlooked the provisions of this section as well as the cases previously construing it and held in accordance with the former view that the materiality of the false testimony must be charged in the indictment. This case was expressly overruled by the court in State v. Hawley, supra.

But the averment in a bill that defendant committed perjury includes the necessity for proving that the false testimony was material to the issue. State v. Cline, 146 N. C. 640, 61 S. E. 522.

Variance Held Fatal.—Where an indictment for perjury charged that the false oath was taken at one term of a court in a trial between A and B and the records of that court showed that at that term there was no trial between these parties, but the record showed that at a term other than the one alleged in the indictment there was such a trial, and the judge allowed this record to be introduced: Held, error, and that the variance was fatal. State v. Lewis, 93 N. C. 581.

Not Quashed for Omissions.—Although an indictment for perjury, which fails to allege that the defendant "knew the said statement to be false," or that "he was ignorant whether or not said statement was false," is defective, the court should not quash it, but the defendant should be held until a proper indictment is had. State v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 841, 13 S. E. 718.

Surplusage.—Where perjury was alleged to have been committed in the trial of a "suit, controversy, or investigation," without a definite statement of the nature of the proceeding, the words, "suit, controversy, or investigation," under this section, may be regarded as surplusage in a bill of indictment charging perjury, and a motion to quash upon the ground that there was indefiniteness of statement of the nature of the proceeding will not be sustained. State v. Hawley, 186 N. C. 433, 119 S. E. 888.

An indictment for perjury, alleged to have been committed upon a trial in the court of a justice of the peace, is not defective because it sets out the name of the Justice before whom the case was tried. State v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 841, 13 S. E. 718.

No Change In Proof Required.—This section has merely simplified the form of the indictment for perjury, and the constituent elements of the offense remain unchanged and require the same proof to establish the commission of the crime. State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Cline, 146 N. C. 640, 642, 61 S. E. 522.

Applied in State v. Rhinehart, 209 N. C. 150, 183 S. E. 388.

§ 15-146. Bill for subornation of perjury.—In every indictment for subornation of perjury, or for corrupt bargaining or contracting with others to commit willful and corrupt perjury, it is sufficient to set forth the substance of the offense charged upon the defendant, without setting forth the bill, answer, information, indictment, declaration or any part of any record or proceedings, and without setting forth the commission or authority of the court or person before whom the perjury was committed or was agreed or promised to be committed. (Rev., s. 3248; Code, s. 1186; R. C., c. 35, s. 17; 1842, c. 49; s. 2; C. S. 4616.)

§ 15-147. Former conviction alleged in bill for second offense.—In any indictment for an offense which, on the second conviction thereof, is punished with other or greater punishment than on the first conviction, it is sufficient to state that the offender was, at a certain time and place, convicted thereof, without otherwise describing the previous offense; and a transcript of the record of the first conviction, duly certified, shall, upon proof of the identity of the person of the offender, be sufficient evidence of the first conviction. (Rev., s. 3249; Code, s. 1187; R. C., c. 35, s. 18; C. S. 4617.)

In General.—When a second conviction is punished with other or greater punishment than for a first conviction, the first conviction shall be charged as required by this section. State v. Davidson, 124 N. C. 839, 32 S. E. 957.

No Presumption of Second Conviction.—The first conviction of manufacturing or aiding and abetting in the manufacture of spirituous, etc., liquors is a misdemeanor, and the second is a felony; and where the indictment does not charge a previous conviction it will be presumed that the defendant has not heretofore been convicted of the offense charged. State v. Clark, 183 N. C. 733, 110 S. E. 641.

§ 15-148. Manner of alleging joint ownership of property.—In any indictment wherein it is necessary to state the ownership of any property whatsoever, whether real or personal, which belongs to, or is in the possession of, more than one person, whether such persons be partners in trade, joint tenants or tenants in common, it is sufficient to name one of such persons, and to state such property to belong to the person so named, and another or others as the case may be; and whenever, in any such indictment, it is necessary to mention, for any purpose whatsoever, any partners, joint tenants or tenants in common, it is sufficient to describe them in the manner aforesaid; and this provision shall extend to all joint-stock companies and trustees. (Rev., s. 3250; Code, s. 1188; R. C., c. 35, s. 19; C. S. 4618.)

Apparent Variance Cured.—Where property is charged in an indictment for larceny as belonging to A and another, and it is proved on the trial to be the property of A and B, a firm well known in the community, the apparent variance is cured by this section. State v. Capps, 71 N. C. 93.

Where A makes a crop of cotton on the plantation of B, under a verbal agreement that B is to have half of it, it was held, that in an indictment for larceny the cotton was properly charged to be the property of A and another. State v. Patterson, 68 N. C. 292.

Variance Not Cured.—Upon the trial of an indictment for injury to livestock, it was held, to be a variance where the property was laid in "L. S. and others," and the proof was that L. S. was the exclusive owner. State v. Hill, 79 N. C. 657.

Words "And Another or Others" Invalidates.—An indictment for larceny, which charges the thing taken to be the property of J. R. D. "and another or others" is fatally defective under this section. State v. Harper, 64 N. C. 129.

§ 15-149. Description in bill for larceny of money.—In every indictment in which it is necessary to make any averment as to the larceny of any money, or United States treasury note, or any note of any bank whatsoever, it is sufficient to describe such money, or treasury note, or bank note, simply as money, without specifying any particular coin, or treasury note, or bank note; and such allegation, so far as regards the description of the property, shall be sustained by proof of any amount of coin, or treasury note, or bank note, although the particular species of coin, of which such amount was composed, or the particular nature of the treasury note, or bank note, shall not be proven. (Rev., s. 3251; Code, s. 1190; 1876-7, c. 68; C. S. 4619.)

Purpose of Section.—An indictment, before 1877, for stealing "money" without further description could not have been sustained, and the Legislature, to remedy the difficulty of describing and identifying bank bills, treasury notes, etc., which may be stolen, passed this section. State v. Reese, 83 N. C. 637, 639.

Amount Should Be Charged.—The term "money," without anything added to make it more definite, is too loose in indictments, and it should be described at least by the amount, as to how many dollars and cents. State v. Reese, 83 N. C. 637, 640.

Charge Sufficient.—The charge of the theft of "$5 in money of the value of $5" is good under this section and is sustained by the proof of the theft of any kind of coin or treasury or bank notes without proof of the particular kind of coin or treasury or bank note. State v. Carter, 113 N. C. 639, 18 S. E. 517.

Inasmuch as money is the measure of values a charge in an indictment of taking "ten dollars in money" is an allegation of taking "the value of ten dollars." State v. Brown, 113 N. C. 645, 18 S. E. 51.

Variance Allowed.—Where an indictment charged the larceny of "thirty dollars in money," and the proof was that defendant stole "three ten dollar bills" it was held, no variance. State v. Freeman, 89 N. C. 469.

§ 15-150. Description in bill for embezzlement.—In indictments for embezzlement, except when the offense relates to a chattel, it is sufficient to allege the embezzlement to be of money, without specifying any particular coin or valuable security; and such allegation, so far as regards the description of the property, shall be sustained if the offender shall be proved to have embezzled any amount, although the particular species of coin or valuable security of which such amount was composed shall not be proved. (Rev., s. 3252; Code, s. 1020; 1871-2, c. 145, s. 2; C. S. 4620.)

Cross Reference.—As to embezzlement in general, see § 14-90 et seq.

Sufficient Description of Property.—The description of the property embezzled, as "one note for five dollars in money of the value of five dollars," is sufficiently specific. State v. Fain, 106 N. C. 760, 11 S. E. 593.

Surplusage Which Does Not Vitiate.—An allegation in an indictment for embezzlement that the defendant "did steal, take, carry away" the property alleged to have been embezzled, is surplusage, and will not vitiate an indictment otherwise sufficient. State v. Fain, 106 N. C. 760, 11 S. E. 593.

Variance.—In a prosecution for embezzlement the failure of proof of embezzlement of the whole sum charged in the bill of indictment does not constitute a fatal variance between allegation and proof where there is proof of embezzlement of a sum less than that charged in the indictment. State v. Dula, 206 N. C. 745, 175 S. E. 80.

§ 15-151. Intent to defraud; larceny and receiving.—In any case where an intent to defraud is required to constitute the offense of forgery, or any other offense whatever, it is sufficient to allege in the indictment an intent to defraud, without naming therein the particular person or body corporate intended to be defrauded; and on the trial of such indictment, it shall be sufficient, and shall not be deemed a variance, if there appear to be an intent to defraud the United States, or any state, county, city, town, or parish, or body corporate, or any public officer in his official capacity, or any copartnership or member thereof, or any particular person. The defendant may be charged in the same indictment in several counts with the separate offenses of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen, and larceny. (Rev., s. 3253; Code, s. 1191; R. C., c. 35, ss. 21, 23; 1852, c. 87, s. 2; 1874-5, c. 62; C. S. 4621.)

Cross Reference.—As to larceny and receiving stolen goods generally, see § 14-70 et seq., and § 53-129.

In General.—An indictment charging the employee with the indictable offense of making a false entry on the books of a bank in which he was employed need not necessarily specify all those whom he has thereby intended to defraud; and where it has named the officers of the bank and a depositor, "and other persons to the jurors unknown," it is sufficient to show that the false entry was entered to deceive the bank examiners in concealing his defalcation, who were present making an examination of his books, both under the common law and the statute. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

Solicitor Need Not Elect Count.—On trial of an indictment for larceny and receiving, etc., the two counts relating to the same transaction and varied to meet the probable proofs, the court will not order the Solicitor to elect upon which count he will proceed. State v. Morrison, 85 N. C. 561.

General Verdict Correct.—A general verdict of guilty upon an indictment of two counts—one for stealing and the other for receiving stolen goods of a value less than five dollars—is correct and if one count is defective the verdict will be taken upon the good count, and there may be judgment. State v. Bailey, 73 N. C. 70; State v. Leak, 80 N. C. 403.

§ 15-152. Separate counts; consolidation.—When there are several charges against any person for the same act or transaction or for two or more acts or transactions connected together, or for two or more transactions of the same class of crimes or offenses, which may be properly joined, instead of several indictments, the whole may be joined in one indictment in separate counts; and if two or more indictments are found in such cases, the court will order them to be consolidated: Provided, that in such consolidating cases the defendant shall be taxed the solicitor's full fee for the first count, and a half fee for only one subsequent count upon which conviction is had or plea of guilty entered: Provided, this section shall not be construed to reduce the punishment or penalty for such offense or offenses. (1917, c. 168; 1921, c. 100; C. S. 4622.)

Cross References.—As to the amount of solicitors' fees, see § 6-12. As to writing separate counts in violation of laws regulating intoxicating liquors, see § 18-10.

Editor's Note.—By ch. 100, Public Laws of 1921 the first proviso to this section, regarding the fees of the solicitor, was amended. The former wording provided that the defendant should be taxed half fees for each subsequent count upon which conviction was had. The amendment in addition to allowing the half fee on but one subsequent count added at the end of the proviso the words "or plea of guilty entered."

General Verdict Covers Several Counts.—Where there are several counts in a criminal complaint (called indictment in this case), and each is for a distinct offense, a general verdict of guilty will apply to each, and a judgment rendered as to each count will be sustained for the separate offenses. State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 106 S. E. 677.

Offenses of Same Class.—An indictment charging the defendant with "receiving stolen goods," etc., with evidence tending to show the receiving on several occasions, does not require the solicitor to select the count on which he would proceed, on defendant's motion, each offense being of the same class of crime. State v. Charles, 195 N. C. 868, 142 S. E. 486.

Entering Judgment on Each Offense upon General Verdict of Guilty.—Where the trial of two separate criminal indictments are consolidated by the judge and tried together as authorized by this section and a general verdict of guilty is returned by the jury, the verdict will apply to each indictment, and judgment pronounced on one of them, but execution suspended on terms agreed upon, and judgment and sentence entered as to the other, is not objectionable on the ground that only one judgment should have been entered, and held further, the sentences being concurrent, the defendant was not prejudiced. State v. Harvell, 199 N. C. 599, 600, 155 S. E. 257.

Obstructing Highway and Injury to Property.—It is not only proper but it is the duty of the court to consolidate cases where defendant is charged with obstructing a highway and with wanton injury to personal property by placing nails in the highway. State v. Malpass, 189 N. C. 349, 127 S. E. 248.

Delivering Liquor and Keeping for Sale.—Under this section consolidation of charges of delivering and keeping for sale under the Turlington Act is proper. State v. Jarrett, 189 N. C. 516, 127 S. E. 590.

Arson and House Burning.—Where the grand jury has found two separate indictments, one charging arson and the other the less offense of house burning, both arising from the same transaction, the two may be consolidated and a conviction of the less offense will be sustained on appeal. State v. Brown, 182 N. C. 761, 108 S. E. 349.

Housebreaking and Larceny.—When not subject to legal objection, a motion by the solicitor to consolidate two criminal actions for trial is addressed to the discretion of the trial judge, and where prosecutions for housebreaking and larceny on two occasions during the same night against two defendants are consolidated without objection, and the charges are so connected in time and place that evidence of guilt in one action is competent in the other, the order of the trial judge consolidating the actions will not be held for error on appeal. State v. Combs, 200 N. C. 671, 158 S. E. 252.

Murder of One Person and Assault upon Another.—Upon the trial under an indictment charging the prisoner with murder of M., it is reversible error to the defendant's prejudice for the trial court upon his own motion, after a substantial part of the evidence had been introduced to consolidate the action with another action under a separate indictment charging the prisoner with an assault with a deadly weapon upon D., the prisoner being afforded no opportunity to pass upon the impartiality of the jury upon the assault charge or an opportunity to plead to the charge. State v. Rice, 202 N. C. 411, 163 S. E. 112.

Separate Acts of Rape.—Where the evidence tended to show that defendant, a negro, was walking through woods with a negro girl and forced her to have sexual intercourse with him against her will, that on the same night, while defendant was still in company with the colored girl, he met a white girl in the company of two white boys, and that after an altercation with the white boys, they and the colored girl left the white girl with defendant and that he forced her to have sexual intercourse with him against her will, the consolidation of the prosecutions for the purpose of trial was not error. State v. Chapman, 221 N. C. 157, 19 S. E. (2d) 250.

Rape and Carnal Knowledge of Female.—A charge of rape and that of carnally knowing a female person between the ages of twelve and sixteen years, under § 14-26, were properly joined in separate counts in one indictment under this section, since they are related in character and grow out of the same transaction. State v. Hall, 214 N. C. 639, 200 S. E. 375.

Burglary and Rape.—A motion, made before the introduction of any evidence, to require the State to elect between two separate counts in the bill of indictment, one charging burglary in the first degree and the other rape, is properly denied, the two offenses being of the same class, which under this section may be joined in one indictment in separate counts, and it being within the sound discretion of the trial court as to whether he should compel an election between the counts and, if so, at what stage of the trial. State v. Smith, 201 N. C. 494, 160 S. E. 577.

Offenses Related to Operation of Automobile.—A charge of reckless driving, of operating an automobile on the highway while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and of assault with an automobile may be properly joined in one indictment as separate counts charging distinct offenses of the same class growing out of the same transaction, and separate judgments may be entered upon the jury's verdict of guilty of reckless driving and assault. State v. Fields, 221 N. C. 182, 19 S. E. (2d) 486.

Reckless Driving and Passing Standing School Bus.—Indictments charging defendant with reckless driving and with passing a standing school bus on the highway may be consolidated for trial as provided in this section. State v. Webb, 210 N. C. 350, 186 S. E. 241.

It is permissible to join counts charging conspiracy and successive steps thereafter taken by the respective conspirators in executing the common design. State v. Anderson, 208 N. C. 771, 182 S. E. 643.

It is not error, under this section, for the trial court to refuse a separate trial on each two counts in an indictment charging defendants with conspiracy to rob and with murder committed in the attempt to perpetrate the robbery. State v. Green, 207 N. C. 369, 177 S. E. 120.

Consolidation Is within Discretionary Power of Trial Court.—Defendant was tried separately in municipal court on two warrants, each charging assault with a deadly weapon, but upon different persons on separate occasions about fifteen days apart. On appeal to the Superior Court, the court, upon motion of the solicitor, consolidated the cases for trial. Under the provisions of this section, the order of consolidation was within the discretionary power of the trial court. State v. Waters, 208 N. C. 769, 182 S. E. 483. See also, State v. McLean, 209 N. C. 38, 182 S. E. 700, wherein indictments charging embezzlement were consolidated.

The court is authorized by this section to order the consolidation for trial of two or more indictments, in which the defendant or defendants are charged with crimes of the same class, which are so connected in time or place that evidence at the trial of one of the indictments will be competent and admissible at the trial of the others. State v. Norton, 222 N. C. 418, 23 S. E. (2d) 301.

Applied in State v. Lancaster, 210 N. C. 584, 187 S. E. 802.

§ 15-153. Bill or warrant not quashed for informality.—Every criminal proceeding by warrant, indictment, information, or impeachment is sufficient in form for all intents and purposes if it express the charge against the defendant in a plain, intelligible, and explicit manner; and the same shall not be quashed, nor the judgment thereon stayed, by reason of any informality or refinement, if in the bill or proceeding, sufficient matter appears to enable the court to proceed to judgment. (Rev., s. 3254; Code, s. 1183; R. C., c. 35, s. 14; 37 Hen. VIII, c. 8; 1784, c. 210, s. 2; 1811, c. 809; C. S. 4623.)

I. NATURE AND PURPOSE.

Purpose of Section.—As far back as State v. Moses, 13 N. C. 452, (at p. 464), Ruffin, C. J., speaking of this section says: "This law was certainly designed to uphold the execution of public justice, by freeing the courts from those fetters of form, technicality, and refinement, which do not concern the substance of the charge, and the proof to support it. Many of the sages of the law had before called nice objections of this sort a disease of the law, and a reproach to the bench, and lamented that they were bound down to strict and precise precedents. . . . We think the legislature meant to disallow the whole of them, and only require the substance, that is a direct averment of those facts and circumstances which constitute the crime, to be set forth. It is to be remarked that the act directs the Court to proceed to judgment, without regard to two things—one the form, the other refinement." State v. Hester, 122 N. C. 1047, 1048, 29 S. E. 380. See State v. Barnes, 122 N. C. 1031, 29 S. E. 381, which uses the same language. See also, State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 720, 117 S. E. 47; State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 96, 121 S. E. 43; Ryals v.

Carolina Contracting Co., 219 N. C. 479, 496, 14 S. E. (2d) 531 (dis. op.).

This section and section 15-155 were passed to forbid refinements and technicalities which, without being any aid to the innocent, brought the administration of justice into disrepute. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 65, 658, 61 S. E. 585.

The whole purpose of the law is to administer justice and that law and order and orderly government may at all times be maintained. State v. Walls, 211 N. C. 487, 498, 191 S. E. 232.

Quashing Indictments Not Favored.—Quashing indictments is not favored. It releases recognizances and sets the defendant at large where, it may be, he ought to be held to answer upon a better indictment, though allowable, where it will put an end to the prosecution altogether, and advisable where it appears that the court has no jurisdiction, or where the matter charged is not indictable in any form. * * * It is, therefore, a general rule that no indictment which charges the higher offenses, as treason or felony or those crimes which immediately affect the public at large, as perjury, forgery, etc., will be thus summarily dealt with. * * * The example is a bad one, and the effect upon the public injurious, to allow the defendant to escape upon matters of form. State v. Flowers, 109 N. C. 841, 844, 13 S. E. 718. See State v. Colbert, 75 N. C. 368.

Approved Forms Should Be Followed.—This section was enacted to prevent miscarriage of justice, but not to encourage prosecuting officers to try experiments with new forms, or to excuse them from the duty of ascertaining and following those which have been approved by long use or by statute. The object of the statute in disregarding refinements and informalities is to secure trials upon the merits, and solicitors will best serve that end by observing approved forms so as not to raise unnecessary questions as to what are refinements and informalities and what are indispensable allegations. State v. Barnes, 122 N. C. 1031, 1038, 29 S. E. 381; State v. Marsh, 132 N. C. 1000, 1003, 43 S. E. 828.

II. GENERAL EFFECT.

Liberal Construction.—This section has received a very liberal construction, and its efficacy has reached and healed numerous defects in the substance as well as in form of indictment. State v. Carpenter, 173 N. C. 767, 770, 92 S. E. 373; State v. Smith, 63 N. C. 234, 236.

Under this section bills and warrants are no longer subject to quashal "by reason of any informality or refinement." State v. Anderson, 208 N. C. 771, 782, 182 S. E. 643; State v. Dale, 218 N. C. 625, 12 S. E. (2d) 556.

Plain, Intelligible and Explicit Charge Sufficient.—The current is all one way, sweeping away by degrees "informalities and refinements," until a plain, intelligible and explicit charge is all that is now required in any criminal proceeding. State v. Caylor, 178 N. C. 807, 809, 101 S. E. 627; State v. Smith, 63 N. C. 234. See also State v. Everhardt, 203 N. C. 610, 166 S. E. 738; State v. Howley, 220 N. C. 113, 16 S. E. (2d) 705.

A joint indictment of two defendants for murder charged that defendants "of his malice aforethought" committed the act. Held: The use of the word "his" instead of "their" is insufficient ground for arresting the judgment, informalities and refinements being disregarded if the indictment is sufficient to inform defendants of the charge against them and to enable them to prepare their defense, and to protect them from another prosecution. State v. Linney, 212 N. C. 739, 194 S. E. 470.

A charge of the receipt by defendant of official ballots, knowing that he had no legal right to them, amounts to a charge of interference with the duty of the county board of elections to safely keep the ballots until time for delivery to the registrars, within the provisions of this section, and the bill of indictment should not have been quashed because it failed to charge the manner in which the election officials were interfered with. State v. Abernethy, 220 N. C. 226, 229, 17 S. E. (2d) 25.

Same—Describing Property.—The description in an indictment must be in the common and ordinary acceptance of property and with certainty sufficient to enable the jury to say that the article proved to be stolen is the same, and to enable the court to see that it is the subject of larceny and also to protect the defendant in any subsequent prosecution for the same offense. State v. Campbell, 76 N. C. 261; State v. Nipper, 95 N. C. 653; State v. Martin, 82 N. C. 672; State v. Caylor, 178 N. C. 807, 808, 101 S. E. 627.

Following Words of Statute.—Where an indictment follows the words of a statute it is sufficient under this section. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 658, 61 S. E. 585; State v. Harrison, 145 N. C. 408, 417, 59 S. E. 867. See also State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 47, 164 S. E. 732.

Rule Also Applied in Defendant's Favor.—Although the rule prohibiting reliance upon technicalities applies only against defendants, it is in accordance with the spirit of the section that it should be invoked in their favor also, for example as to the form of defendant's objection to the indictment. State v. Wood, 175 N. C. 809, 820, 95 S. E. 1050.

Motion in Arrest of Judgment.—A motion in arrest of judgment after conviction, on the ground that the bill of indictment is defective, will not be granted unless it appears that the bill is so defective that judgment cannot be pronounced upon it. State v. Francis, 157 N. C. 612, 72 S. E. 1041; State v. Ratliff, 170 N. C. 707, 709, 86 S. E. 997; State v. Sauls, 190 N. C. 810, 130 S. E. 848.

And where sufficient matter appears on the face of a bill of indictment to enable the court to proceed to judgment, an arrest of judgment is forbidden by this section. State v. Darden, 117 N. C. 697, 23 S. E. 106.

Indictment under Private Law.—Upon an indictment under a private statute, it is sufficient if the same is set forth by chapter and date and its material provisions incorporated in the indictment. State v. Heaton, 77 N. C. 505.

Does Not Supply Essential Averments.—By the many adjudications construing this section it has been definitely settled that the section neither supplies nor remedies the omission of any distinct averment of any fact or circumstance which is an essential constituent of the offense charged. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 598, 163 S. E. 594. See State v. Tarlton, 208 N. C. 734, 182 S. E. 481; State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 781, 18 S. E. (2d) 358 (dis. op.).

Where the indictment contains sufficient matter to enable the court to proceed to judgment a motion to quash for duplicity or indefiniteness is properly refused, and a motion to quash for redundancy or inartificiality is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 14, 164 S. E. 737.

Prisoner Is Held Although Indictment Is Defective.—Where the indictment should have been quashed because it was defective in form, the prisoner could still be held for a proper bill under this section. State v. Callett, 211 N. C. 563, 191 S. E. 27.

Quoted in State v. Wilson, 218 N. C. 769, 12 S. E. (2d) 654.

Cited in State v. Beal, 199 N. C. 278, 294, 154 S. E. 604; State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 183.

III. DEFECTS CURED.

A. In General.

Superfluous Words Disregarded.—The use of superfluous words in a bill of indictment will be disregarded. State v. Guest, 100 N. C. 410, 411, 6 S. E. 253; State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 11 S. E. 990; State v. Darden, 117 N. C. 697, 23 S. E. 106; State v. Piner, 141 N. C. 760, 53 S. E. 305; State v. Wynne, 151 N. C. 644, 645, 65 S. E. 452.

Variance Must Be Material to Vitiolate.—A variance now, since this section was passed, to be fatal must be substantial and material. State v. Ridge, 125 N. C. 655, 34 S. E. 439.

Immaterial Words May Be Omitted.—The inadvertent omission of words not affecting the substances of the charge or prejudicing the defendant is not fatal. State v. Burke, 108 N. C. 750, 12 S. E. 1000, and cases there cited. State v. Ratliff, 170 N. C. 707, 86 S. E. 997.

Endorsement by Grand Jury Unnecessary.—No endorsement on a bill of indictment by the grand jury is necessary. The record that it was presented by the grand jury is sufficient in the absence of evidence to impeach it. State v. McBroom, 127 N. C. 528, 37 S. E. 193, overruled. State v. Sultan, 142 N. C. 569, 54 S. E. 841; State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 57 S. E. 349.

B. Omissions and Mistakes.

In the Complaint.—The omission of the name of the party in the complaint, against whom a criminal offense is charged, will not of itself invalidate the indictment, when the warrant of arrest thereto attached and referred to contains his name and clearly indicates him as the person charged, the complaint and warrant being read together, and in this way they are sufficient in form to proceed to judgment upon conviction. State v. Poythress, 174 N. C. 809, 93 S. E. 919.

In Describing a Lease.—In describing a lease the omission of the word "year" after the word "one", is one of the informalities cured by this section. State v. Walker, 87 N. C. 541, 543.

Incorrect Spelling.—Charging that one committed a crime in the "count aforesaid" instead of county aforesaid is an informality which is cured by this section. State v. Smith, 63 N. C. 234; State v. Evans, 69 N. C. 40, 42.

Wrong County in Caption.—A misrecital of the proper county in the caption of an indictment furnishes no ground for arrest of judgment, and it seems that such an indictment would have been sufficient even before this section was adopted. State v. Sprinkle, 65 N. C. 463.

Name of Court Incorrect.—Describing the court in which the false oath is alleged to have been taken as "before Joseph Z. Pratt, a justice of the peace, in and for said county," instead of as "a court of a justice of the peace for township A, of Chowan County," is not a substantial variance from the true description, and is cured by this section. State v. Davis, 69 N. C. 495.

Failure to Repeat Names in Charging Scientist.—Where defendants contended that a count in the indictment charging receiving stolen goods was fatally defective in that the names of defendants were not repeated in charging scienter, it was held that the defect was merely an informality or refinement not sufficient to support a quashal of the indictment, the charge being plain, explicit and sufficient to enable the court to proceed to judgment. State v. Whitley, 208 N. C. 661, 182 S. E. 338.

Ownership of Property in Arson.—In a prosecution under §§ 14-5, 14-65, an indictment stating that the defendant procured another to burn a certain house owned by the defendant and another as tenants in common is sufficient, and the fact that the same parties owned other houses in like capacity is not ground for demurrer or quashal. State v. McKeithan, 203 N. C. 494, 166 S. E. 336.

C. Allegations Differing from Proof.

Names of Parties.—Where the indictment charged an assault, etc., upon "Lila" Hatcher, and the evidence tended to show that it was made upon "Liza" Hatcher, the variance is immaterial. State v. Drakeford, 162 N. C. 667, 78 S. E. 308.

Where indictment alleged that Thomas R. Robertson was defendant, and the proof was that "Thomas Robertson" was the defendant in said action and there was evidence of the identity of Thomas Robertson and Thomas R. Robertson, this is an informality cured by the section. State v. Hester, 122 N. C. 1047, 29 S. E. 380.

In an indictment for murder, the assault is charged to have been made on one "N. S. Jarrett," and in subsequent parts of the indictment he is described as "Nimrod S. Jarrett," Held, to be no variance. State v. Henderson, 68 N. C. 348.

Name of Article Stolen.—In an indictment for larceny, when the article stolen is described as a "calf" skin and is proven on the trial to be a "kip" skin: Held, no variance between the allegation and the proof. State v. Campbell, 76 N. C. 261.

Object Used in Commission of Assault.—Evidence that defendant committed the assault with a "brick or a rock or what" was not fatal variance with a warrant charging that the assault was committed with a brick, the evidence being sufficient to justify the jury in inferring that the assault was committed with a brick as charged, and there being no element of surprise in the evidence, especially since defendant's defense was that of an alibi. State v. Hobbs, 216 N. C. 14, 3 S. E. (2d) 431.

§ 15-154. No quashal for grand juror's failure to pay taxes or being party to suit.—No indictment shall be quashed nor shall judgment thereon be arrested by reason of the fact that any member of the grand jury finding such bills of indictment had not paid his taxes for the preceding year, or was a party to any suit pending and at issue. (1907, c. 36; C. S. 4624.)

Cross Reference.—As to when exceptions for disqualification of grand jurors should be made, see § 9-26.

§ 15-155. Defects which do not vitiate.—No judgment upon any indictment for felony or misdemeanor, whether after verdict, or by confession, or otherwise, shall be stayed or reversed for the want of the averment of any matter unnecessary to be proved, nor for omission of the words "as appears by the record," or of the words "with force and arms," nor for the insertion of the words "against the form of the statutes" instead of the words "against the form of the statute," or vice versa; nor for omission of the words "against the form of the statute" or "against the form of the statutes," nor for omitting to state the time at which the offense was committed in any case where time is not of the essence of the offense, nor for stating the time imperfectly, nor for stating the offense to have been committed on a day subsequent to the finding of the indictment, or on an impossible day, or on a day that never happened; nor for want of a proper and perfect venue, when the court shall appear by the indictment to have had jurisdiction of the offense. (Rev., s. 3255; Code, s. 1189; R. C., c. 35, s. 20; 7 Hen. VIII, c. 8; C. S. 1625.)

Cross Reference.—As to other defects which do not vitiate an indictment, see the notes under § 15-153 and under the various sections dealing with the particular crimes.

In General.—The refined technicalities of the procedure at common law, in both civil and criminal cases, have almost entirely, if not quite, been abolished by our statute. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

The modern tendency is against technical objections which do not affect the merits of the case. Hence judgments are not to be stayed or reversed for nonessential or minor defects. State v. Anderson, 208 N. C. 771, 782, 182 S. E. 643.

Section Cures Formal Defects.—This section is intended to cure only formal defects in the indictment after judgment, and not omissions of averments necessary to enable the court to give judgment intelligently. State v. Wise, 66 N. C. 120.

Locality May Be Omitted.—Formerly failure to allege and prove the locality, appropriate to the forum, was fatal, because essential to the jurisdiction, both in civil and criminal actions, but this has been wisely reversed by this section. State v. Long, 143 N. C. 670, 671, 675, 57 S. E. 349.

Other Expressions Omitted.—Omitting the statement, that the "prisoner, not having the fear of God before his eyes, but being moved and seduced by the instigations of the devil," and the further omission of an averment that the "deceased was in the peace of God and the State," are not fatal defects. State v. Howard, 92 N. C. 772, 778.

When Time Need Not Be Charged.—Where time is not of the essence of a crime, "the omission to charge any date" is immaterial by this section, though the allegation of time can do no harm. State v. Arnold, 107 N. C. 861, 864, 11 S. E. 990; State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 883, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Taylor, 83 N. C. 602, 603; State v. Williams, 117 N. C. 753, 23 S. E. 250.

Thus time is not of the essence of carrying a concealed weapon, and it may be shown at a previous time to that alleged in the bill. State v. Spencer, 185 N. C. 765, 117 S. E. 803.

Failure to specify a particular day in an indictment for abandonment is not fatal especially in view of an instruction that the jury should consider only such evidence as tends to show that the defendant violated the statute after a particular date. State v. Jones, 201 N. C. 424, 160 S. E. 468.

Time of Birth in Bastardy Proceeding.—Indictment, in a bastardy proceeding, which states that the child was born on August 13, 1941, whereas the evidence was that the birth occurred on November 13, 1940, is not fatally defective. State v. Moore, 222 N. C. 356, 23 S. E. (2d) 31.

Conclusion Simplified.—The formal conclusion, "against the peace and dignity of the State," and "against the form of the statute," etc., are not necessary in an indictment for any offense whatever, but are mere surplusage. State v. Kirkman, 104 N. C. 911, 10 S. E. 312, overruling State v. Joyner, 81 N. C. 534; State v. Peters, 107 N. C. 876, 12 S. E. 74; State v. Sykes, 104 N. C. 694, 10 S. E. 191; State v. Dudley, 182 N. C. 822, 109 S. E. 63.

That an indictment concludes against the form of the statute instead of statute, is no ground for an arrest of judgment. State v. Smith, 63 N. C. 234.

An indictment concluding against the "force" instead of the "form" of the statute is sufficient under this section. State v. Davis, 80 N. C. 385.

Variance.—In a prosecution of defendant for being an accessory before the fact of murder, variance of a few days between the indictment and proof as to the day the murder was committed is not fatal under this section. State v. Gore, 207 N. C. 618, 178 S. E. 209.

It is to the girl's first act of intercourse with a man, when she is under sixteen years of age, that the law attaches criminality on the part of the man, and a variance between allegation and proof as to time is not material where no statute of limitations is involved. State v. Trippe, 222 N. C. 600, 24 S. E. (2d) 340.

Jurisdiction.—Where the jurisdiction of the court is not ousted on the face of the indictment the position that the court does not have jurisdiction is not available on a plea in abatement. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 14, 164 S. E. 737.

A charge in a murder prosecution in the alternative was not a vitiating defect, and the motion in arrest after verdict was properly denied, such motion being available only for vitiating defects upon the record proper. State v. Puckett, 211 N. C. 66, 189 S. E. 183.

Art. 16. Trial before Justice.

§ 15-156. In cases of final jurisdiction.—When the justice is satisfied that he has jurisdiction, if no jury is asked for, he shall proceed to determine the case, and shall either acquit the accused or find him guilty, and sentence him to such punishment as the case may require, not to exceed in any case a fine of fifty dollars or imprisonment in the county jail for thirty days. (Rev., s. 3256; Code, s. 897; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 8; C. S. 4626.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of justice in criminal actions, see § 7-129 and notes. As to divesting inferior courts of exclusive original jurisdiction in certain criminal actions, see § 7-64.

An Adversary Proceeding Intended.—It was contemplated there should be an adversary proceeding in all trials of criminal cases before a justice of the peace, especially when the justice assumes final jurisdiction. It was never intended that the accused should be also the accuser and the sole witness against himself. Such a proceeding would not conduce to the discovery of truth, and the detection and punishment of crime, which is the real object to be obtained, and would oftener than otherwise defeat the very ends of justice. State v. Moore, 136 N. C. 581, 582, 48 S. E. 573.

§ 15-157. Trial by jury, if demanded.—If either the complainant or the accused shall ask for it, the justice shall allow a trial by jury, as is provided in civil actions before justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 3257; Code, s. 898; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 9; C. S. 4627.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions, see N. C. Constitution, Art. I, § 13, and U. S. Constitution, Art. III, § 2, cl. 3. As to trial by jury before a justice, see § 7-150 et seq. See annotations under § 15-177.

§ 15-158. What submitted to jury.—In case a trial by jury is had, the justice shall submit to the jury in each case simply the question of the guilt or innocence of the accused of the offense charged, and shall enter the verdict on his docket, and adjudge accordingly. (Rev., s. 3258; Code, s. 899; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 10; C. S. 4628.)

§ 15-159. Commitment after judgment. — The commitment to the county prison shall set forth—

1. The name of the guilty person.
2. The nature of the offense of which he is convicted and the date of the trial.
3. The period of his imprisonment.
4. It shall be directed to the sheriff of the county, or to the keeper of the county jail, and shall direct him to keep the prisoner for the time stated, or until discharged by law.
5. The name of the constable or other officer required to execute it.
6. It shall be signed by the justice and be dated. (Rev. s. 3259; Code, s. 1238; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 17; C. S. 4629.)

Cross Reference.—As to commitment of person charged with a crime, see § 15-125.

Legality of Custody.—When a prisoner, legally sentenced, is placed in charge of a special officer to convey to jail, the legality of his custody by the officer depends upon the validity of the special deputation of the officer, and not upon the sufficiency of the mittimus, which is to terminate his duties. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 10 S. E. 872.

Same—Where Prisoner Taken from Officer.—It is a criminal offense to take, by force, from the custody of an officer a prisoner legally committed to his charge to convey to jail, and it is no defense that the mittimus does not comply, in all respects, with the requirements of this section. State v. Armistead, 106 N. C. 639, 10 S. E. 872.

§ 15-160. Parties entitled to copy of papers; bar to indictment.—The justice shall give to either party on request, and on payment of his lawful fee, a copy of the complaint and of his finding and sentence. Such finding and sentence may be pleaded in bar of any indictment subsequently found for the same offense. (Rev., s. 3260; Code, ss. 902, 903; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, ss. 13, 14; C. S. 4630.)

Collusive Conviction Not a Bar.—The conviction of a person before a justice of the peace which is collusive and not adversary is not sufficient to sustain a plea of former conviction. State v. Moore, 136 N. C. 581, 48 S. E. 573.

§ 15-161. Justice to make return of cases to superior court.—It is the duty of each justice of the peace on or before Monday of every term of the superior court of his county, to furnish the clerk of the court with a list of the names and offenses of all parties tried and finally disposed of by such justice of the peace, together with the papers in each case, in all criminal actions, since the last term of the superior court. The clerk of the court shall hand a copy of such list to the solicitor and to the grand jury at each term of court; and no indictment shall be found against any party whose case has been so finally disposed of by any justice of the peace: Provided, that this section shall not be deemed to extend or enlarge or otherwise affect the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, except as provided by law. (Rev., s. 3261; Code, s. 906; 1869-70, c. 110; C. S. 4631.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for failure to make return of cases to superior court, see § 14-231.

When Report Unnecessary.—A justice of the peace is not guilty of a violation of this section by failing to make report to the clerk of the superior court when there have been no criminal cases disposed of by him within the time therein prescribed. State v. Latham, 110 N. C. 490, 14 S. E. 390.

Art. 17. Trial in Superior Court.

§ 15-162. Prisoner standing mute, plea "not guilty" entered.—If any person, being arraigned upon or charged in any indictment for any crime, shall stand mute of malice or will not answer directly to the indictment, the court shall order the plea of "not guilty" to be entered on behalf of such person; and the plea so entered shall have the same force and effect as if such person had pleaded the same. (Rev., s. 3262; Code, s. 1198; R. C., c. 35, s. 29; R. S., c. 35, s. 16; C. S. 4632.)

Deaf Mutes.—Where, upon the arraignment of one for murder, it was suggested that the accused was a deaf mute, and was incapable of understanding the nature of a trial, and its incidents and his rights under it, it was held proper for a jury to be empanelled to try the truth of these suggestions, for the court to decline putting the prisoner on his trial. State v. Harris, 53 N. C. 136.

In State v. Early, 211 N. C. 189, 189 S. E. 668, the court, upon finding that defendant was a deaf mute, subpoenaed an interpreter, who after being duly sworn and after the reading of the indictment, interpreted and explained the indictment to defendant. After defendant had indicated to the interpreter that he understood the indictment, the interpreter translated the solicitor's question of whether defendant was guilty or not guilty, and upon a negative reply given through the interpreter, a plea of not guilty was entered. It was held that there was no error on the arraignment of defendant or in the acceptance of his negative answer as a plea of not guilty.

Changing Plea.—Whether a prisoner may retract a plea of guilty and enter a plea of not guilty, or vice versa, is a matter for the sound legal discretion of the trial court. State v. Branner, 149 N. C. 559, 63 S. E. 169.

Entry after Verdict.—It is no error in the court below, on a trial of a defendant for larceny, "as upon a plea of not guilty," and after a verdict of guilty, to amend the record by inserting the plea of "not guilty." State v. McMillan, 68 N. C. 440.

§ 15-163. Peremptory challenges of jurors by defendant.—Every person on joint or several trial for his life may make a peremptory challenge of fourteen jurors and no more; and in all joint or several trials for crimes and misdemeanors, other than capital, every person on trial shall have the right of challenging peremptorily, and without showing cause, six jurors and no more. And to enable defendants to exercise this right, the clerk in all such trials shall read over the names of the jurors on the panel, in the presence and hearing of the defendants and their counsel, before the jury shall be impaneled to try the issue; and the judge or other presiding officer of the court shall decide all questions as to the competency of jurors. (Rev., s. 3263; Code, s. 1199; 1913, c. 31, s. 3; 1887, c. 53; R. C., c. 35, s. 32; 1871-2, c. 39; R. S., c. 35, ss. 19, 21; 1777, c. 115, s. 85; 1812, c. 833; 1801, c. 592, s. 1; 1826, c. 9; 22 Hen. VIII, c. 11, s. 6; 1935, c. 475, s. 2; C. S. 4633.)

Cross References.—As to challenge for cause, see § 9-14 and notes, et seq. As to peremptory challenges in civil cases, see § 9-22.

Editor's Note.—The number of jurors that may be challenged was increased from twelve and four to fourteen and six, respectively, by the Public Laws of 1935.

In General.—Every criminal, charged with a crime affecting his life, has a right to challenge a certain number of jurors, without assigning any cause, and as many more as he can assign a good cause for. State v. Patrick, 48 N. C. 443, 446.

A Right to Exclude.—The right of peremptory challenge is not a right to select but to exclude. State v. Smith, 24 N. C. 402; State v. Banner, 149 N. C. 519, 63 S. E. 84.

Purpose.—The legislative intent in the enactment of this section is to secure a reasonable and impartial verdict. State v. Ashburn, 187 N. C. 717, 122 S. E. 833. See note of this case under section 15-164.

When Challenge Should Be Made.—"The time for a prisoner to make his challenge, is when the juror is tendered, and before the juror is sworn, or the oath is commenced." Joy on Jurors, 219. State v. Patrick, 48 N. C. 443, 447.

Peremptory Challenges Limited to Four.—A defendant, in an indictment for an offense other than capital, having only four peremptory challenges to jurors, cannot challenge a fifth juror peremptorily although he had first challenged one of the four for cause, which was properly disallowed. State v. Hargrave, 100 N. C. 484, 6 S. E. 185. This case was decided prior to the 1935 amendment. A defendant is now allowed six peremptory challenges.—Ed. Note.

Same—When Verdict of Manslaughter Asked.—Where, upon the trial of an indictment for murder, the solicitor states that he should ask only for a verdict of manslaughter, no special venire was necessary, and the defendant is not entitled to more than four peremptory challenges. State v. Hunt, 128 N. C. 584, 38 S. E. 473; State v. Caldwell, 129 N. C. 682, 40 S. E. 85. See Ed. Note in preceding paragraph.

Judge Determines Competency.—Triers are now dispensed with, and the judge determines the facts as well as the legal sufficiency of the challenge based upon them. State v. Kilgore, 93 N. C. 533, 534.

Waiver of Objection by Not Using Challenges.—If a juror is rejected upon an improper ground of challenge, made by the State, the prisoner cannot assign it for error, if a jury is obtained before he has exhausted his peremptory challenges. State v. Potts, 100 N. C. 457, 458, 6 S. E. 657; State v. Sultan, 142 N. C. 569, 54 S. E. 841.

Where several defendants are tried together for a crime other than a capital felony each is entitled to four (now six) peremptory challenges to the jury, and where the court has ruled that the defense was a joint defense and has allowed but four (now six) peremptory challenges for all the defendants, a new trial will be granted upon appeal. State v. Burleson, 203 N. C. 779, 166 S. E. 905.

Challenges Where Bills of Indictment Are Consolidated.—Where several bills of indictment against a defendant are consolidated for trial, the defendant is entitled to but four (now six) peremptory challenges to the jury as provided by this section and not to four (now six) peremptory challenges for each bill, the consolidated bills being treated as separate counts of the same bill. State v. Alridge, 206 N. C. 850, 175 S. E. 19.

§ 15-164. Peremptory challenges by the state.—

In all capital cases the prosecuting officer on behalf of the state shall have the right to challenge peremptorily six jurors for each defendant, but shall not have the right to stand any jurors at the foot of the panel. The challenge must be made before the juror is tendered to the prisoner, and if he will challenge more than six jurors he shall assign for his challenge a cause certain; and in all other cases of a criminal nature a challenge of four jurors shall be allowed in behalf of the state for each defendant, and challenge also for a cause certain, and in all cases of challenge for cause certain the same shall be inquired of according to the custom of the court. (Rev., s. 3264; Code, s. 1200; 1913, c. 31, s. 4; 1907, c. 415; 1887, c. 53; R. C., c. 35, s. 33; 1827, c. 10; 33 Edw. I, c. 4; 1935, c. 475, s. 3; C. S. 4634.)

Cross Reference.—See notes under § 15-164.

Editor's Note.—The number of challenges was increased in capital cases from four to six, and in other cases from two to four by the Public Laws of 1935.

Construed with Section 9-15.—The effect of section 9-15, to permit a party to a criminal action to make inquiry as to the fitness and competency of a juror before the adverse party would be permitted to admit the cause and have him stood aside therefor, and this course cannot now be pursued, except where the challenging party, after making such inquiry, states that the juror is challenged for cause; and this section, abolishing the established practice permitting the solicitor to place jurors, upon the trial of capital felony, at the foot of the panel, does not affect the application of section 9-15, to the trial of such felonies. State v. Ashburn, 187 N. C. 717, 122 S. E. 833.

Judge Cannot Extend Time.—The discretionary power of the trial Judge in respect to challenges is confined to challenges for cause, and he has no more authority to extend the time for making peremptory challenges beyond the limit fixed by this section than he has to allow more than four (now six) of such challenges. State v. Fuller, 114 N. C. 885, 19 S. E. 797.

§ 15-165. Challenge to special venire same as to tales jurors.—In the trial of all criminal cases, where a special venire shall be ordered, the same causes of challenge to the jurors summoned on the special venire shall be allowed as exist to tales jurors. (Rev., s. 3265; 1887, c. 53; C. S. 4635.)

Cross References.—As to grounds for challenging tales jurors, see § 9-11. As to special venire in general, see § 9-29 et seq.

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 219.

§ 15-166. Exclusion of bystanders in trials for rape.—In the trial of cases for rape and of assault with the intent to commit rape, the trial judge may, during the taking of the testimony of the prosecutrix, exclude from the court-room all persons except the officers of the court, the defendant and those engaged in the trial of the case; and upon the preliminary hearing before a justice of the peace of the offenses above named, that officer may adopt a like course. (1907, c. 21; C. S. 4636.)

§ 15-167. Term expiring during trial extended.—In case the term of a court shall expire while a trial for felony shall be in progress, and before judgment shall be given therein, the judge shall continue the term as long as in his opinion it shall be necessary for the purposes of the case; and he may in his discretion exercise the same power in the trial of any other cause under the same circumstances, except civil actions begun after Thursday of the last week. (Rev., s. 3266; Code, s. 1229; 1893, c. 226; C. C. P., s. 397; R. C., c. 31, s. 16; 1830, c. 22; C. S. 4637.)

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional. State v. Monroe, 80 N. C. 373; State v. Jefferson, 66 N. C. 309; State v. Taylor, 76 N. C. 64; State v. Adair, 66 N. C. 298. See also Natl. Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 700, 22 S. E. 2.

Expiration of Term No Ground for Discharging Jury.—The expiration of a term of court is no ground for discharging a jury before verdict, for the term may be continued for the purposes of the trial. State v. McGimsey, 80 N. C. 377.

Special Term Extended.—Where a trial began on Wednesday of the last week of a special term and the jury had not agreed upon a verdict on Saturday night, it was not improper for the trial judge to open and conduct the regular term on Monday following and to continue the special term into that week for the purpose of receiving the verdict of the jury, since the rights of the parties were not prejudiced thereby. National Bank v. Gilmer, 116 N. C. 684, 22 S. E. 2.

Daily entries on the journal during the trial of a felony, stating the name of the case and that the court takes a recess "until 9:30 a. m. tomorrow," and the entry next day "court convened at 9:30 a. m. pursuant to recess," etc., in regular form, constitutes a sufficient compliance with this section. State v. Harris, 181 N. C. 600, 107 S. E. 466.

§ 15-168. Justification as defense to libel.—Every defendant who is charged by indictment with the publication of a libel may prove on the trial for the same the truth of the facts alleged in the indictment; and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the jury that the facts are true, the defendant shall be acquitted of the charge. (Rev., s. 3267; Code, s. 1195; R. C., c. 35, s. 26; C. S. 4638.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of publication in good faith and retraction by a newspaper, see § 99-2.

Truth of Entire Charge Must Be Proved.—Where the matter set out in the indictment is libellous, in order for the defendant to justify he must show that the entire charge imputed to the prosecutor is true. State v. Lyon, 89 N. C. 568.

General Report Insufficient.—In an indictment for a libel, it is not competent for the defendant to justify by proving that there was, and long had been, a general report in the neighborhood, of the truth of his charge. State v. White, 29 N. C. 180.

Proof of Specific Charge Necessary.—Proof of the general bad character of an officer in other matters of which he had taken cognizance, will not be received to establish the truth of libellous charge in reference to a particular matter. State v. Lyon, 89 N. C. 568.

§ 15-169. Conviction of assault, when included in charge.—On the trial of any person for rape, or any felony whatsoever, when the crime charged includes an assault against the person, it is lawful for the jury to acquit of the felony and to find a verdict of guilty of assault against the person indicted, if the evidence warrants such finding; and when such verdict is found the court shall have power to imprison the person so found guilty of an assault, for any term now allowed by law in cases of conviction when the indictment was originally for the assault of a like character. (Rev., s. 3268; 1885, c. 68; C. S. 4639.)

Section Refers to Assault Generally.—This section does not describe the kind of assault, but refers to an assault generally and without regard to its degree of punishment under the law. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 584, 72 S. E. 853.

When Section Applicable.—This section and § 15-170 are applicable only where there is evidence tending to show that defendant is guilty of a crime of lesser degree than that charged in the indictment. State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 325, 154 S. E. 402.

What Indictment Includes.—An indictment for any offense against the criminal law includes all lesser degrees of the same crime, known to the law; and conviction may be had of the lesser offense when the charge is inclusive of both. State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 116 S. E. 736.

Same—Murder.—Under an indictment for murder, the defendant may be convicted either of murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, or manslaughter, and even of assault with a deadly weapon, or simple assault, "if the evidence shall warrant such finding" when he is not acquitted entirely. State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 688, 116 S. E. 736.

Same—Assault with Intent to Rape.—Under a bill of indictment charging an assault with an intent to commit rape, the lesser offense of assault and battery may be found to have been committed, and in such instance a special issue may be submitted to the jury, if necessary, so that, in accordance with the jury's finding, the court may determine the grade of the punishment. State v. Smith, 157 N. C. 578, 72 S. E. 853.

Upon an indictment charging an assault with intent to commit rape, defendant may be convicted of an assault upon a female as though separately charged, and motion to dismiss under § 15-173 was properly refused where there was sufficient evidence to convict of an assault. State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 21 S. E. (2d) 812.

Duty of Judge.—Upon the trial under an indictment for murder it is the duty of the trial judge, under supporting evidence, to declare and explain the law upon the less offense of manslaughter, with the burden of proof on defendant, and a statement of the contentions of the parties, etc., with a mere announcement of the principle is insufficient. State v. Hardee, 192 N. C. 533, 135 S. E. 345.

Same—Failure to Charge Upon Lesser Degree.—The error of the judge in failing to charge on the supporting evidence, upon the lesser degree of the crime of rape, under a charge thereof in the indictment, is not cured by the verdict finding that the defendant was guilty of the greater degree of the crime charged in the indictment. State v. Williams, 185 N. C. 685, 116 S. E. 736.

Where the indictment is sufficient and the evidence is conflicting as to whether the defendant committed highway robbery or an assault with a deadly weapon, the jury may find for the lesser offense, and it is the duty of the trial judge to so instruct the jury, though a special request therefor has not been aptly tendered in writing. State v. Holt, 192 N. C. 490, 135 S. E. 324.

Effect of Simple Verdict of Guilty.—While this section permits a verdict for an assault when it is embraced in the charge of a greater offense, as rape or other felony, a verdict simply of "guilty," and not specifying a lower offense, is a verdict of guilty of the offense charged in the indictment. State v. Barnes, 122 N. C. 1031, 29 S. E. 381; State v. Lee, 192 N. C. 225, 227, 134 S. E. 458.

Cited in State v. Hairston, 222 N. C. 455, 23 S. E. (2d) 885.

§ 15-170. Conviction for a less degree or an attempt.—Upon the trial of any indictment the prisoner may be convicted of the crime charged therein or of a less degree of the same crime, or of an attempt to commit the crime so charged, or of an attempt to commit a less degree of the same crime. (Rev., s. 3269; 1891, c. 205, s. 2; C. S. 4640.)

Application of Section.—Where there are several counts in a bill, if the jury find the defendant guilty on one count and say nothing in their verdict concerning the other counts, it will be equivalent to a verdict of not guilty as to them. This principle should not be confused with the practice, authorized by this section, which permits the conviction of a "lesser degree of the same crime" when included in a single count. State v. Hampton, 210 N. C. 283, 284, 186 S. E. 251.

The state's evidence tended to show that defendant broke and entered the dwelling house in question at night while same was occupied as a sleeping apartment, stole some money and ran when the female occupant discovered him and screamed. Defendant contended, upon supporting evidence, that at the time he was too drunk to know where he was or what he was doing. The court instructed the jury that defendant might be convicted of burglary in the first degree, or of burglary in the second degree, if they found that the room was unoccupied, but if they found defendant was too drunk to form felonious intent they should return a verdict of not guilty. Held: The instruction required the jury to find the defendant guilty of burglary in the first degree or not guilty, since there was no evidence that the room was unoccupied, and defendant is entitled to a new trial for error of the court in failing to instruct that defendant might be found guilty of breaking and entering otherwise than burglariously, or of an attempt to commit the offense. State v. Feyd, 213 N. C. 617, 197 S. E. 171.

Crime of Accessory Included.—The crime of accessory before the fact is included in the charge of the principal crime within the meaning of this section. State v. Simons, 179 N. C. 700, 703, 103 S. E. 5; State v. Bryson, 173 N. C. 803, 806, 92 S. E. 698, discussing and, it seems, overruling State v. Green, 119 N. C. 899, 26 S. E. 112.

Joinder Mere Surplusage.—Since this section was adopted the joinder in an indictment of a count for a lesser offense, or for an attempt to commit the same, is mere surplusage. State v. Brown, 113 N. C. 645, 18 S. E. 51.

Indictment for Attempt or Complete Offense.—An attempt to commit a crime is an indictable offense, and on proper evidence, a conviction may be sustained on a bill of indictment making a specific and sufficient charge thereof, or one which charges a complete offense. State v. Addor, 183 N. C. 678, 110 S. E. 650.

Intent Alone Not Sufficient.—The intent, though connected with preparations to commit a criminal offense, is not alone sufficient for a conviction of the attempt, unless connected with some overt act or acts toward the end in view that will, in the judgment of the one charged, and as matters appeared to him, result in the consummation of the contemplated purpose. State v. Addor, 183 N. C. 687, 110 S. E. 650.

Defendant Entitled to Complete Charge.—Under the provisions of this section when the bill of indictment is sufficient with the supporting evidence upon the trial, the defendant may be convicted of the criminal offense charged or of a lesser degree thereof, and he is entitled to a charge from the court on all degrees of the crime thus encompassed by the indictment; and an error in failing to charge upon the lesser degrees of the crime is not cured by a verdict of conviction upon one of a greater degree. State v. Robinson, 188 N. C. 784, 125 S. E. 617. See also State v. Keaton, 206 N. C. 682, 175 S. E. 296.

When there is evidence tending to support a milder verdict than the one charged in the bill of indictment the defendant is entitled to have the different views presented to the jury under a proper charge, and an error in this respect is not cured by a verdict convicting him of the crime as charged in the bill of indictment, for in such case it cannot be known whether the jury would have convicted of a less degree if the different views, arising on the evidence, had been correctly presented by the trial court. State v. Burnette, 213 N. C. 153, 155, 195 S. E. 356. See also, State v. Chambers, 218 N. C. 442, 11 S. E. (2d) 280.

Evidence Must Justify Conviction in Lesser Degree.—The principle upon which a defendant may be convicted upon a less degree of the same crime charged in the bill of indictment applies only where there is evidence of guilt of the less degree, and where burglary in the first and second degree is charged in the indictment, and the question as to guilt on the first count is withdrawn, and the evidence does not support the charge of second degree burglary, the defendant cannot be convicted of the lesser offense. State v. Spain, 201 N. C. 571, 160 S. E. 825.

The provisions of this section in regard to conviction of a less degree of the crime charged in a bill of indictment applies only where there is some evidence that a less degree of the crime had been committed, and where the State's uncontradicted evidence is to the effect that the crime of rape had been committed and the defendant relies solely upon an alibi, the refusal of the court to charge upon the lesser degrees of the crime or of an attempt is not error. State v. Smith, 201 N. C. 494, 160 S. E. 577.

Where all the evidence at the trial of a criminal action, if believed by the jury, tends to show that the crime charged in the indictment was committed as alleged therein, and there is no evidence tending to show the commission of a crime of less degree, it is not error for the court to fail to instruct the jury that they may acquit the defendant of the crime charged in the indictment and convict him of a crime of less degree. State v. Cox, 201 N. C. 357, 361, 160 S. E. 358; State v. Manning, 221 N. C. 70, 18 S. E. (2d) 821.

Instruction Limiting Verdict to Less Degree.—Where, in an indictment charging an assault with intent to commit rape, the evidence shows an assault but fails to show an intent to commit rape, at all events and notwithstanding any resistance on the part of the intended victim, the court would err in refusing to give an instruction to limit the verdict to a less degree of the same crime. State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 21 S. E. (2d) 812.

Charge as to Assault Unnecessary Where Homicide Admitted.—While under the provisions of this section the trial judge is required to charge upon evidence on the less degrees of the same crime concerning which the prisoner was being tried, it is not required that he charge upon the principles of an assault with a deadly weapon, where the prisoner is charged with murder, and the killing of the deceased by him has been admitted, and the judge has correctly charged upon the crime of manslaughter, the lowest degree of an unlawful killing of human being. State v. Luterloh, 188 N. C. 412, 124 S. E. 752.

Instructions as to Second Degree Murder Where Evidence Shows First Degree.—Where upon the trial for murder all the evidence tends to show that if the defendant is guilty, he is guilty of the crime of murder in the first degree, the failure of the trial court to charge upon the law of murder in the second degree or manslaughter is not error under this section. State v. Ferrell, 205 N. C. 640, 172 S. E. 186.

Same—Assault.—Where the evidence tended to show a simple assault by defendant on prosecuting witness and a later encounter between the parties in which defendant was armed with a deadly weapon, it was error, under this section, for the court to charge the jury that they could convict defendant of assault with the intent to kill, or assault with a deadly weapon or not guilty, and refuse to charge the jury that they might convict defendant of simple assault. State v. Lee, 206 N. C. 472, 174 S. E. 288.

In prosecution for assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, the court's instruction that the jury might find defendant guilty of a less degree of the crime, including assault with a deadly weapon, if they so found beyond a reasonable doubt, is held without error. State v. Elmore, 212 N. C. 531, 193 S. E. 713.

Rape and carnally knowing a female between the age of twelve and sixteen years are of such a nature as to come within the provisions of this section, permitting the jury to find the defendants guilty of the lesser crime, if they do not deem the evidence sufficient to warrant a conviction on the first. State v. Hall, 214 N. C. 639, 643, 200 S. E. 375.

An attempt to commit barratry is an offense in this state and a defendant may be convicted of an attempt to commit the offense upon an indictment charging the common-law offense of barratry. State v. Batson, 220 N. C. 411, 17 S. E. (2d) 511, 139 A. L. R. 614.

New Trial Must Be on Full Charge.—Upon an appeal from a conviction for a lesser offense than that charged in the indictment, a new trial, if granted, must be upon the full charge in the bill. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 342.

§ 15-171. Burglary in the first degree charged, verdict for second degree.—When the crime charged in the bill of indictment is burglary in the first degree the jury, upon the finding of facts sufficient to constitute burglary in the first degree as defined by statute, may elect to render a verdict of guilty of burglary in the second degree if they deem it proper so to do. The judge in his charge shall so instruct the jury. (Rev., s. 3270; 1889, c. 434, s. 3; 1941, c. 7, s. 1; C. S. 4641.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on the 1941 amendment to this section, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 476.

All of the following cases were decided prior to the 1941 amendment.

Conviction in Second Degree Unauthorized.—Where, in the trial of an indictment for burglary, the evidence showed that the house in which the crime was committed was actually occupied at the time, a conviction of burglary in the second degree is not authorized by this section, since a felonious entry under such circumstances is by section 14-51 made burglary in the first degree. State v. Johnston, 119 N. C. 883, 26 S. E. 163. See also, State v. Morris, 215 N. C. 552, 2 S. E. (2d) 554; State v. Fain, 216 N. C. 157, 4 S. E. (2d) 319; State v. Johnson, 218 N. C. 604, 12 S. E. (2d) 278.

§ 15-172. Verdict for murder in first or second degree.—Nothing contained in the statute law dividing murder into degrees shall be construed to require any alteration or modification of the existing form of indictment for murder, but the jury before whom the offender is tried shall determine in their verdict whether the crime is murder in the first or second degree. (Rev., s. 3271; 1893, c. 85, s. 3; C. S. 4642.)

Object of Section.—The object of this section is, of course, to place it beyond doubt in what degree of murder the prisoner was convicted. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 813, 817, 89 S. E. 58.

Applies to All Indictments for Murder.—This section applies to all indictments for murder, whether perpetrated by means of poisoning, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, torture, or otherwise. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 342.

Jury Must Determine Degree.—For a conviction of murder in the first degree under this section and section 14-17, the jury must find specially under the evidence that this degree of crime has been committed by the defendant, and the verdict must be received in open court in the presence of the presiding judge under Constitutional Mandate, Const., Art. I, sections 13, 17, which right may not be waived. State v. Bazemore, 193 N. C. 336, 137 N. C. 172.

By this section it is made the duty of the jury alone to determine in their verdict whether the crime is murder in the first or second degree. State v. Gadberry, 117 N. C. 811, 23 S. E. 477; State v. Bagley, 158 N. C. 608, 73 S. E. 995; State v. Murphy, 157 N. C. 614, 72 S. E. 1075. And the record must show that they have so done, in order that there may be a proper judgment. State v. Lucas, 124 N. C. 825, 827, 32 S. E. 962; State v. Truesdale, 125 N. C. 696, 34 S. E. 646.

Failure To Determine Degree.—Where the degree of murder is not expressed in the verdict, the judge should tell the jury to reconsider their finding, for the purpose of specifying the crime, and upon response being made by them of murder in the first degree, the verdict is properly recorded accordingly. State v. Bagley, 158 N. C. 608, 73 S. E. 995.

Judge May Exclude Second Degree in Charge.—When the entire evidence shows, and no other reasonable inference can be fairly drawn therefrom, that the murder was committed either by lying in wait or in an attempt to perpetrate a felony, and the controverted question is the identity of prisoner as the murderer, the trial judge does not commit error in charging the jury to render a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree or not guilty. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 813, 817, 89 S. E. 58; State v. Spevey, 151 N. C. 676, 65 S. E. 995.

In prosecution for murder, defendant's premeditation and deliberation are questions of fact, to be determined by jury under this section and section 14-17, and not questions of law for judge, and must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 187.

Verdict Construed According to Charge.—The verdict must be construed according to the charge and the evidence and when these make it certain beyond question, the law has been complied with. State v. Gilchrist, 113 N. C. 673, 18 S. E. 319. State v. Wiggins, 171 N. C. 813, 817, 89 S. E. 58.

Mere Killing Presumes Second Degree Murder.—Since the Act of 1893, the killing being proved, and nothing else appearing, the law presumes malice, but not premeditation and deliberation, and the killing is murder in the second degree. State v. Hicks, 125 N. C. 636, 639, 43 S. E. 247.

"In all indictments for homicide, when the intentional killing is established or admitted, the law presumes malice from the use of a deadly weapon, and the defendant is guilty of murder (now in the second degree) unless he can satisfy the jury of the truth of facts which justify or excuse his act, or mitigate it to less than manslaughter." State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 339, 81 S. E. 620.

But a conviction of murder in the first degree may be had upon sufficient circumstantial evidence. State v. Bazemore, 193 N. C. 336, 137 S. E. 172; State v. Melton, 187 N. C. 481, 122 S. E. 17; State v. Matthews, 66 N. C. 106.

When First Degree Presumed.—A homicide committed in the perpetration of, or in an attempt to perpetrate, a robbery will be deemed murder in the first degree, the jury being governed by the evidence under proper instructions in finding that or a less offense. State v. Lane, 166 N. C. 333, 334, 81 S. E. 620.

In an indictment for murder, when the homicide is shown or admitted to have been intentionally committed by lying in wait, poisoning, starvation, imprisonment, or torture, the law raises the presumption of murder in the first degree, but none the less if the jury convict of a less offense, it is within their power so to do under the statute, and the prisoner has no cause to complain that he was not convicted of the higher offense. State v. Matthews, 142 N. C. 621, 55 S. E. 342.

A defendant will not be permitted to plead guilty to murder in the first degree under this section, and this rule applies to all indictments for murder, including murder perpetrated by means of poison, lying in wait, imprisonment, starving, torture or otherwise. State v. Blue, 219 N. C. 612, 14 S. E. (2d) 635.

Evidence.—Where all the evidence at a trial for murder tends to show murder in the first degree in that the murder was committed by poisoning, starvation, lying in wait, imprisonment, torture, or in the perpetration or attempt to perpetrate a felony, the trial court may instruct the jury that they may render only one of two verdicts, murder in the first degree, or not guilty. But where the evidence tends to show that the killing was with a deadly weapon, and the State in one phase of its case relies on premeditation and deliberation, the presumption is that the murder was in the second degree, with the burden of proving premeditation beyond a reasonable doubt on the State, in order to constitute it murder in the first degree, and under these circumstances it is error for the trial court to fail to charge the jury that they might find the prisoner guilty of murder in the second degree. State v. Newsome, 195 N. C. 552, 143 S. E. 187.

§ 15-173. Demurrer to the evidence.—When on the trial of any criminal action in the superior court, or in any criminal court, the state has produced its evidence and rested its case, the defendant may move to dismiss the action or for judgment of nonsuit. If the motion is allowed, judgment shall be entered accordingly; and such judgment shall have the force and effect of a verdict of “not guilty” as to such defendant. If the motion is refused, the defendant may except; and if the defendant introduces no evidence, the case shall be submitted to the jury as in other cases, and the defendant shall have the benefit of his exception on appeal to the supreme court.

Nothing in this section shall prevent the defendant from introducing evidence after his motion for nonsuit has been overruled; and he may again move for judgment of nonsuit after all of the evidence in the case is concluded. If the motion is then refused, upon consideration of all of the evidence, the defendant may except; and, after the jury has rendered its verdict, he shall have the benefit of such latter exception on appeal to the supreme court. If defendant's motion for judgment of nonsuit be granted, or be sustained on appeal to the supreme court, it shall in all cases have the force and effect of a verdict of “not guilty.” (1913, c. 73; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 32; C. S. 4643.)

Cross References.—As to demurrer to the evidence in civil cases, see § 1-183. As to motions in civil actions heard at criminal term, see § 7-72.

Compared with Section 1-183.—This section serves, and was intended to serve, the same purpose in criminal prosecutions as is accomplished by section 1-183, in civil actions. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 665, 113 S. E. 769; State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 687, 130 S. E. 854; State v. Ormond, 211 N. C. 437, 191 S. E. 22; State v. Norris, 206 N. C. 191, 173 S. E. 14.

On motion to nonsuit, the court is required merely to ascertain whether there is any competent evidence to sustain the allegations of the indictment. State v. Landin, 209 N. C. 20, 182 S. E. 689. See also, State v. Lefevers, 216 N. C. 494, 5 S. E. (2d) 552.

A motion for judgment as of nonsuit should be denied if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact in issue, or which reasonably conduces the conclusion of guilt as a fairly logical and legitimate deduction, but evidence which merely raises a suspicion or conjecture of the fact of guilt is insufficient to be submitted to the jury. State v. Stephenson, 218 N. C. 258, 10 S. E. (2d) 819.

Sufficiency of Evidence May Be Challenged if Motion Timely Made.—If the defendant, on trial for murder, wishes to challenge the sufficiency of the evidence to show premeditation and deliberation beyond a reasonable doubt, motion to nonsuit under this section, on the capital charge, should be lodged at the close of the State's case, exception noted, if overruled, and the motion renewed at the close of all the evidence, and exception again noted, if overruled. State v. Bittings, 206 N. C. 798, 802, 175 S. E. 299.

A motion for judgment of nonsuit, under this section, must be made at the close of the state's evidence in order for a motion thereunder made at the close of all the evidence to be considered. State v. Ormond, 211 N. C. 437, 439, 191 S. E. 22.

Motion Must Be Renewed.—A motion as of nonsuit upon the evidence will not be considered when it is not renewed after the conclusion of all the evidence as this section requires. State v. Helms, 181 N. C. 566, 107 S. E. 228. See also, State v. Kiziah, 217 N. C. 399, 8 S. E. (2d) 474.

Same—Waiver.—Where the defendant in a criminal action moves for the dismissal or for judgment as of nonsuit after the close of the State's evidence, and thereafter elects to introduce his own evidence, his failure to renew his motion after the whole evidence has been introduced is a waiver of his right to insist upon his first exception, and it is not subject to review in the Supreme Court on appeal. State v. Hayes, 187 N. C. 490, 122 S. E. 13.

See also, State v. Hargett, 156 N. C. 692, 146 S. E. 801; State v. Chapman, 221 N. C. 157, 19 S. E. (2d) 250.

Only incriminating evidence need be considered upon defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section, and contradictions in the inculpatory testimony and equivocations of some of the State's witnesses, which affects the weight or credibility of the evidence but not its competency, need not be taken into account in determining whether there is any competent evidence to sustain the allegations of the indictment. State v. Satterfield, 207 N. C. 118, 176 S. E. 466. See also, State v. Moses, 207 N. C. 139, 176 S. E. 267.

When Motion Denied.—A motion to dismiss or as of nonsuit upon the evidence in a criminal case, will be denied if the evidence is sufficient, considered in the light most favorable to the State, to prove guilt of the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

Where evidence is conflicting in a criminal case and where, considering the evidence in the light most favorable to the State, the jury might find the defendant guilty, a motion as of nonsuit is properly denied. State v. Carr, 196 N. C. 129, 130, 144 S. E. 698.

Excepting to Entire Evidence.—Where a defendant in a criminal action desires to except to the sufficiency to the evidence to convict him, his excepting, under this section, at the close of the State's evidence, and upon the overruling of his motion to nonsuit, excepting at the close of all the evidence, brings his exception to the Supreme Court on appeal upon the sufficiency of the entire evidence to convict, and is the proper procedure for that purpose. State v. Kelly, 186 N. C. 365, 119 S. E. 755.

Consideration of Entire Evidence on Appeal.—In State v. Pasour, 183 N. C. 793, 794, 111 S. E. 779, the court said: “Both before and after he had introduced evidence, the defendant moved to dismiss the prosecution as in case of nonsuit, and duly excepted to the court's denial of his motion. The exceptions, therefore, require a consideration of the entire evidence.”

An exception to a motion to dismiss in a criminal action taken after the close of the State's evidence, and renewed by defendant after the introduction of his own evidence, does not confine the appeal to the State's evidence alone, and a conviction will be sustained under the second exception if there is any sufficient evidence on the whole record of the defendant's guilt. State v. Brinkley, 183 N. C. 720, 110 S. E. 783.

Upon appeal from the denial of a motion as of nonsuit in a criminal action, review of the evidence is not confined to the State's evidence alone, but all the evidence in the State's favor, taken in the light most favorable to the State and giving it every reasonable intendment therefrom, will be considered, and where there is sufficient evidence of the defendant's guilt upon the whole record, the action of the trial judge in denying the motion of nonsuit will be upheld. State v. Lawrence, 195 N. C. 552, 146 S. E. 395.

A motion as of nonsuit in a criminal case at the close of the State's evidence, renewed after all the evidence has been introduced, does not confine its sufficiency to the time of the first motion, and will be denied if there is sufficient evidence in the State's behalf viewing all the evidence in its entirety. State v. Earp, 196 N. C. 164, 145 S. E. 23.

When upon the trial of a criminal action, the state produces its evidence and rests, and the defendant preserves his exception to the refusal of his motion for judgment as of nonsuit, and, after offering evidence and the case closed, defendant renews his motion for judgment as of nonsuit, the court must act, not only in the light of the evidence of the state, but of all the evidence; and, in such case, the defendant is entitled to the benefit only of his exception to the refusal of the latter motion. State v. Norton, 222 N. C. 418, 23 S. E. (2d) 301.

Same—Supreme Court Not to Weigh Evidence.—This section provides that if on the motion the judgment of nonsuit is allowed on appeal, "It shall, in all cases, have the force and effect of a verdict of not guilty." This is not, therefore, the case of a new trial for some error of the judge, but is a verdict by the court of not guilty, which theretofore was without precedent. But the statute certainly did not intend that the Supreme Court should weigh the evidence and render a verdict. State v. Cooke, 176 N. C. 731, 735, 97 S. E. 171.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Upon a motion for judgment as of nonsuit, the evidence must be considered in the light most favorable to the State and the court will not pass upon its weight or the credibility of the witnesses. State v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669; State v. Atlantic Ice, etc., Co., 210 N. C. 742, 188 S. E. 412. See State v. Eubanks, 209 N. C. 758, 763, 184 S. E. 839. See also, State v. Mann, 219 N. C. 212, 13 S. E. (2d) 247.

A demurrer to the evidence presents only the question of the sufficiency of the evidence to carry the case to the jury, the weight and credibility of the evidence being for the jury and not the court. State v. Smith, 221 N. C. 400, 20 S. E. (2d) 360; State v. Johnson, 220 N. C. 773, 18 S. E. (2d) 358.

The requirement that the evidence must be sufficient to convict beyond a reasonable doubt in criminal actions, is for the benefit of the defendant; and it requires the State to satisfy a jury to a moral certainty of the truth of the charge. State v. Sigmon, 190 N. C. 684, 130 S. E. 854.

On a motion for nonsuit in a criminal action, the evidence is to be taken in the light most favorable to the State, and it is entitled to the benefit of every reasonable intendment upon the evidence, and every reasonable inference to be drawn therefrom. State v. Fleming, 194 N. C. 42, 138 S. E. 342. See also State v. Lawrence, 196 N. C. 562, 146 S. E. 395; State v. Durham, 201 N. C. 724, 161 S. E. 398; State v. Smoak, 213 N. C. 79, 195 S. E. 72; State v. Adams, 213 N. C. 243, 195 S. E. 822; State v. Hammonds, 216 N. C. 67, 3 S. E. (2d) 439; State v. Brown, 218 N. C. 415, 11 S. E. (2d) 321.

"In considering a motion to dismiss the action under the statute, we are merely to ascertain whether there is any evidence to sustain the indictment; and in deciding the question we must not forget that the State is entitled to the most favorable interpretation of the circumstances and all inferences that may fairly be drawn from them. S. v. Carlson, 171 N. C., 818, 89 S. E. 30; S. v. Rountree, 181 N. C. 535, 106 S. E. 669;" State v. Carr, 195 N. C. 129, 133, 144 S. E. 698.

Upon motion to dismiss under this section, it is required that the court ascertain merely whether there is any sufficient evidence to sustain the allegations of the indictment and not whether it be true nor whether the jury should believe it. State v. McLeod, 196 N. C. 542, 146 S. E. 409.

Where the evidence for the state where the defendants are charged with fornication and adultery, shows no more than that the defendants had opportunities to commit the crime, on motion of the defendants, the action should be dismissed, and a verdict of not guilty, entered under this section. State v. Woodell, 211 N. C. 635, 636, 191 S. E. 334.

Evidence that the defendants had assisted a prisoner to escape is held insufficient in State v. Pace, 192 N. C. 780, 136 S. E. 11 and the motion for judgment of nonsuit as provided in this section should have been granted.

The court said in State v. Woodell, 211 N. C. 635, 636, 191 S. E. 334, citing State v. Prince, 182 N. C. 788, 108 S. E. 330, that when it is said that there is no evidence to go to the jury, it does not mean that there is literally and absolutely none, for as to this there could be no room for any controversy, but there is none which ought reasonably to satisfy the jury that the fact sought to be proved is established.

On a trial for the destruction of certain pages of a book in the office of the register of deeds, wherein the defendant's interest in so doing has been shown, it is required of the State to show that the offense was committed on the day the defendant had an opportunity to commit the offense, and a margin of several weeks, in which the offense might have been committed, during which time the books were open to the public generally, is insufficient evidence to be submitted to the jury, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit should have been allowed. State v. Swinson, 196 N. C. 100, 144 S. E. 555.

Upon a motion as of nonsuit in a criminal action, made at the close of the State's evidence and renewed at the close of all of the evidence, all the evidence, whether offered by the State or elicited from defendant's witnesses, will be considered in the light most favorable to the State, and it is entitled to every reasonable intendment thereon and every reasonable inference therefrom, and only evidence favorable to the State will be considered, the weight and credibility of the evidence being for the jury. State v. Ammons, 204 N. C. 753, 169 S. E. 631; State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 657; State v. Mann, 219 N. C. 212, 13 S. E. (2d) 247, 132 A. L. R. 1309.

Upon motion as of nonsuit in a criminal action, under this section, the evidence is to be considered in the light most favorable to the State, and if there is any evidence tending to prove the fact of guilt or which reasonably conduces to its conclusion as a fairly logical and legitimate deduction, and not such as merely raises a suspicion or conjecture of guilt, it is for the jury to say whether they are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the fact of guilt. State v. Marion, 200 N. C. 715, 158 S. E. 406.

Same—Accident Rather than Homicide.—Evidence tending only to show, upon a trial for wife murder, that the prisoner unintentionally in his sleep, as a result of a bad dream, inflicted upon his wife a wound too slight to have caused her death, except that from its neglect of treatment it may have been possible for blood poisoning to have set in therefrom that caused her death, is insufficient in law to sustain a conviction of manslaughter, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit, should have been sustained, under this section. State v. Everett, 194 N. C. 442, 140 S. E. 22. See also, State v. Tankersley, 172 N. C. 955, 90 S. E. 781.

Same—Rape.—Evidence tending to show that the deceased was ravished by a person suffering from gonorrhea, and that she died from the assault and choking, with further evidence that the defendant had the disease and that his shoes fitted the tracks made at the time of the crime around the house of the deceased and at the place of the crime, is sufficient, taken with other evidence of guilt, to be submitted to the jury and to sustain their verdict thereon of murder in the first degree. State v. McLeod, 196 N. C. 542, 146 S. E. 409.

Same—Tending Only to Exculpate.—Where the State's evidence and that of the defendant are substantially to the same effect, in an action for an assault, and tend only to exculpate the defendant, his motion as of non-suit after all the evidence has been introduced, considering it as a whole, should be sustained. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 113 S. E. 769.

Same—Father Shielding Child.—The father may shield his child from assault of another to the extent necessary for the purpose without himself being guilty of an assault; and where he has done so, without the use of excessive force, as appears from all the evidence in the case, his motion as of nonsuit at the close of his evidence should be granted. State v. Fulcher, 184 N. C. 663, 11 S. E. 769.

Same—Personal Presence of Defendant.—In a criminal prosecution for felonious breaking and entering, larceny and receiving against several defendants, resulting in conviction of one of them of larceny only, a motion for nonsuit under this section, was properly denied, where the state's evidence tended to show that this defendant and one of the other defendants planned the theft and this defendant advised, aided and abetted his codefendant therein, though not personally present when the theft occurred. State v. King, 222 N. C. 239, 22 S. E. (2d) 445.

Same—Recent Possession of Stolen Goods.—Evidence that a cotton mill had been broken into and that goods taken therefrom had been found in defendant's possession within an hour or two thereafter, with further evidence of his unlawful possession, is sufficient for conviction, under the provisions of section 14-54, and defendant's demurrer to the State's evidence or motion for dismissal thereon, is properly overruled. State v. Williams, 187 N. C. 492, 122 S. E. 13.

Evidence from which the jury might infer that stolen goods were thereafter in the constructive possession of defendant will not justify an inference that at such time defendant knew the goods to have been stolen, and where the evidence is sufficient to support only the first inference the defendant's motion as of nonsuit should be allowed under this section. State v. Anthony, 206 N. C. 120, 173 S. E. 47.

Same—Evidence Raising Suspicion Only.—Evidence that does no more than raise a suspicion, somewhat strong perhaps, of a homicide and the defendant's guilt, is not enough on a prosecution for murder and demurrer to the evidence will be sustained. State v. Carter, 204 N. C. 304, 305, 168 S. E. 204.

Same—Malicious Castration.—The direct evidence of the guilt of one of the defendants in a prosecution for malicious castration, and the circumstantial evidence as to the other's participation and guilt is held sufficient to overrule their motions as of nonsuit. State v. Ammons, 204 N. C. 753, 169 S. E. 631.

Same—Identity.—In a prosecution for homicide the evidence of the defendant's identity as the perpetrator of the crime is sufficient to be submitted to the jury, the weight and credibility of the wife's identification of the defendant being for their determination, and defendant's motion as of nonsuit on the ground that her testimony was based upon imagination and auto-suggestion was properly refused. State v. Fogleman, 204 N. C. 401, 168 S. E. 536.

Same—Conspiracy.—Where the direct circumstantial evidence in this case tends to show that defendant had quarreled with deceased and had entered into a conspiracy to kill him, that deceased was murdered and that all the conspirators, including the appealing defendant, were present, aiding and abetting in the commission of the crime, the evidence is sufficient to be submitted to the jury and motion for non-suit was properly overruled. State v. Brown, 204 N. C. 392, 168 S. E. 532.

Same—Assault with Intent to Kill.—In a prosecution, for a secret assault and battery with a deadly weapon with malice and intent to kill, evidence that there had been ill-feeling between the prosecuting witness and the defendant, that the prosecuting witness had seen and recognized the defendant standing outside a window in the witness's home, that the defendant appeared there suddenly at night and shot the prosecuting witness before he could do anything, and seriously wounded him, is sufficient to overrule defendant's motion as of nonsuit, and to show that the assault was done in a secret manner. State v. McLamb, 203 N. C. 442, 166 S. E. 507.

Same—Assault with Intent to Rape.—Upon an indictment charging an assault with intent to commit rape, defendant may be convicted of an assault upon a female as though separately charged, and motion to dismiss under this section was properly refused where there was sufficient evidence to convict of an assault. State v. Jones, 222 N. C. 37, 21 S. E. (2d) 812.

Same—Operation of Prohibited Mechanical Device.—Evidence tending to show that defendant was the owner of an automobile, and had been seen in same prior to its capture, and that when the automobile was subsequently captured it was being driven by others and had attached thereto a mechanical device for the emission of excessive smoke or gas, is insufficient to resist defendant's motion as of nonsuit under this section, in a prosecution under § 4506(b). State v. Yates, 203 N. C. 194, 179 S. E. 756. [Section 4506(b) has been superseded by section 2621(285), now G. S. § 20-136].

Conflicting Evidence.—Where the prosecutor's goods have been stolen two days before and they are found in the defendant's possession, with conflicting evidence upon the question of his having stolen them, the cases can only be determined by the jury, and the defendant's motion under this section to dismiss must be denied. State v. Jenkins, 182 N. C. 818, 108 S. E. 767.

When the defendant is on trial under a criminal indictment for recklessly driving his car and colliding with another car in which deceased was riding, on a public highway, causing her death, and there is both direct and circumstantial evidence that the defendant was driving the car at the time, which his own testimony and evidence of his witnesses contradicts, his motion for judgment as in case of nonsuit, made at the close of the State's evidence and renewed after all the evidence, is properly denied. State v. Leonard, 195 N. C. 242, 141 S. E. 736.

Variance.—The defendant in a criminal action may raise the question of a variance between the indictment and the proof by a motion to dismiss the prosecution as in case of nonsuit. This is clearly set forth in S. v. Gibson, 170 N. C. 697, 86 S. E. 774; S. v. Harbert, 185 N. C. 760, 118 S. E. 6; S. v. Harris, 195 N. C. 306, 141 S. E. 883; State v. Grace, 196 N. C. 280, 281, 145 S. E. 399.

Where there is a fatal variance between the indictment and the proof, it is proper to sustain the demurrer to the evidence, or to dismiss the action as in case of nonsuit. State v. Franklin, 204 N. C. 157, 158, 167 S. E. 569. See also, State v. Martin, 199 N. C. 636, 155 S. E. 447.

Effect of Reversal of Judgment of Guilty.—Under the provisions of this section the reversal of a "judgment of guilty" has the force and effect of a verdict of "not guilty." State v. Corey, 199 N. C. 209, 153 S. E. 923.

Motion will not lie for failure of the state to offer evidence of a nonessential averment in the indictment, when each essential element of the offense is supported by competent evidence. State v. Atkinson, 210 N. C. 661, 188 S. E. 73.

Demurrer to the Evidence Properly Sustained.—See State v. Sims, 208 N. C. 459, 460, 181 S. E. 269, wherein defendant's identity was not established; State v. White, 208 N. C. 537, 181 S. E. 558, wherein defendant's identity was not established; State v. Landin, 209 N. C. 20, 22, 182 S. E. 689, wherein defendant's negligence was held harmless; State v. Creech, 210 N. C. 700, 188 S. E. 316, wherein owner of car did not know driver was intoxicated.

Demurrer to the Evidence Properly Denied.—See State v. Webber, 210 N. C. 137, 185 S. E. 659, wherein evidence showed defendant was driving at fifty miles an hour before collision; State v. Smith, 211 N. C. 93, 189 S. E. 175, wherein evidence showed felonious intent to commit rape; State v. Vincent, 222 N. C. 543, 23 S. E. (2d) 832, evidence showing identity in rape; State v. Reynolds, 222 N. C. 40, 21 S. E. (2d) 813, evidence showing felonious breaking and entry and showing identity.

§ 15-174. New trial to defendant.—The courts may grant new trials in criminal cases when the defendant is found guilty, under the same rules and regulations as in civil cases. (Rev., s. 3272; Code, s. 1202; R. C., c. 35, s. 35; 1815, c. 895; C. S. 4644.)

Cross Reference.—As to new trial in civil cases, see § 1-207 and notes thereto.

Rule Similar at Common Law.—Independent of this section, the rule of the common law was the same and in Wharton's Criminal Law, sec. 3391, it is laid down that "at common law the court trying the case, is the sole tribunal by whom a new trial can be granted, and its refusal so to do being matter of discretion is no ground for a writ of error." State v. Bennett, 93 N. C. 503, 506.

New Trial Not Granted After Acquittal.—After a verdict of acquittal on a State prosecution, a new trial is not allowed by this section. State v. Taylor, 8 N. C. 462.

Newly Discovered Evidence.—A motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence will not be granted even in a civil case, where the evidence is merely cumulative or where it was withheld by the party moving. State v. Lilliston, 141 N. C. 857, 54 S. E. 427.

Motions for new trials for newly discovered evidence cannot be entertained in the Supreme Court in criminal cases. State v. Lilliston, 141 N. C. 857, 54 S. E. 427.

Disqualification of Jurors and Newly Discovered Evidence.—Where a judgment of the Supreme Court in a criminal case has been certified to the Clerk of the Superior Court, the case is in the latter court for execution of the sentence, and a motion for a new trial may be there entertained for disqualification of jurors and for newly discovered evidence. State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 620, 161 S. E. 81.

When Judgment Set Aside.—A judgment regularly entered at one term of the court, cannot be set aside at a subsequent term, except in cases of surprise, mistake or excusable neglect. State v. Bennett, 93 N. C. 503.

§ 15-175. Nol. pros. after two terms; when capias and subpoenas to issue.—A nolle prosequi "with leave" shall be entered in all criminal actions in which the indictment has been pending for two terms of court and the defendant has not been apprehended and in which a nolle prosequi has not been entered, unless the judge for good cause shown shall order otherwise. The clerk of the superior court shall issue a capias for the arrest of any defendant named in any criminal action in which a nolle prosequi has been entered when he has reasonable ground for believing that such defendant may be arrested or upon the application of the solicitor of the district. When any defendant shall be arrested it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue a subpoena for the witnesses for the state indorsed on the indictment. (Rev., s. 3273; 1905, c. 360, ss. 1, 3, 4; C. S. 4645.)

Cross Reference.—As to clerk's record of nolle prosequi with leave cases, see § 2-42, paragraph 34.

In General.—A nolle prosequi is merely a declaration on the part of the solicitor that he will not then prosecute the suit further, and is not an acquittal, although its effect is to discharge the defendant without delay. Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, 159 N. C. 265, 74 S. E. 740.

Effect of Nol. Pros.—A nol. pros. in criminal proceedings does not amount to an acquittal, and the defendant may be arrested again upon the same bill and put to trial. State v. Thornton, 35 N. C. 256; State v. Faggart, 170 N. C. 737, 744, 87 S. E. 31; State v. Smith, 129 N. C. 546, 40 S. E. 1.

Discretion of Attorney General.—The attorney general has a discretionary power to enter a nolle prosequi, and the court will not interfere, unless the power be oppressively used. State v. Thompson, 10 N. C. 613; State v. Buchanan, 23 N. C. 59.

Permission of Court for New Capias.—Where a nolle prosequi has been entered in a criminal case, a capias will not issue as a matter of course upon the will of the prosecuting officer, but only upon permission of the court first obtained. State v. Thornton, 35 N. C. 256.

Same—When Unnecessary.—Where a "nolle prosequi with leave," is entered, it authorizes the clerk, at the request of the solicitor, to issue another capias. State v. Smith, 129 N. C. 546, 40 S. E. 1.

§ 15-176. Prisoner not to be tried in prison uniform.—It shall be unlawful for any sheriff, jailer or other officer to require any person imprisoned in jail to appear in any court for trial dressed in the uniform or dress of a prisoner or convict, or in any uniform or apparel other than ordinary civilian's dress, or with shaven or clipped head. And no person charged with a criminal offense shall be tried in any court while dressed in the uniform or dress of a prisoner or convict, or in any uniform or apparel other than ordinary civilian's dress, or with head shaven or clipped by or under the direction and requirement of any sheriff, jailer or other officer, unless the head was shaven or clipped while such person was serving a term of imprisonment for the commission of a crime.

Any sheriff, jailer or other officer who violates the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (1915, c. 124; C. S. 4646.)

Art. 18. Appeal.

§ 15-177. Appeal from justice, trial de novo.—The accused may appeal from the sentence of the justice to the superior court of the county. On such appeal being prayed, the justice shall recognize both the prosecutor and the accused, and all the material witnesses, to appear at the next term of the court, in such sums as he shall think proper; and he may require the accused to give sureties for his appearance as aforesaid. In all cases of appeal, the trial shall be anew, without prejudice from the former proceedings. (Rev., s. 3274; Code, s. 900; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 11; 1879, c. 92, s. 10; C. S. 4647.)

Cross References.—As to appeal in civil cases, see § 1-299 and notes thereto. As to appeal by state, see § 15-179. As to recordari as substitute for appeal, see § 1-269.

In General.—These provisions have reference to criminal cases wherein the magistrate gives judgment against a party charged with a criminal offense, and imposes on him a punishment by fine or imprisonment. This is apparent from the nature of the matter, and as well from the language employed. They refer to the conviction and sentence of defendants. State v. Lyon, 93 N. C. 575, 577.

Right of Appeal Has Been Modified.—The right of appeal to the Superior Court from conviction in a justice's court of a misdemeanor within the justice's jurisdiction, as provided by this section, has been modified by the statutes establishing and expanding the uniform system of recorders' courts, and under the general provisions of § 7-243, an appeal from a conviction of simple assault in a justice's court must first be taken to the recorder's court and not the Superior Court in the counties affected by the act. State v. Baldwin, 205 N. C. 174, 170 S. E. 645.

Judgment Must Be Final in Nature.—The appeal must be from a final judgment. State v. Seaboard Air Line R. R., 169 N. C. 295, 84 S. E. 283; State v. Bailey, 65 N. C. 426; State v. Pollard, 83 N. C. 598.

Appeal as Matter of Right.—Under this section, a defendant found guilty of an offense of which the justice of the peace has final jurisdiction and an order is made without defendant's consent that judgment be suspended upon payment of costs, need not resort to the circuitous remedy of a recordari but is entitled to an appeal to the superior court as a matter of right. State v. Griffin, 117 N. C. 709, 23 S. E. 164.

Right of Appeal Personal to Accused.—The right of appeal provided for by this section is for the benefit only of the person accused, State v. Powell, 86 N. C. 640; but so much of the judgment as is personal to the prosecutor and taxes him with the costs, may be appealed from.

Appeal under Section Presents Trial de novo.—Where the defendant after trial and conviction before a justice of the peace, moved in arrest of judgment, which motion was refused, and he appealed to the superior court, it was held, that the appeal brought up the whole case, and the defendant under this section was entitled to a trial de novo. State v. Koonce, 108 N. C. 752, 12 S. E. 1032. But where the defendant restricts himself by a plea of guilty then there can be no acts left open for consideration by a jury and the case on appeal does not concern the whole case. State v. Warren, 113 N. C. 683, 684, 686, 18 S. E. 498.

After an appeal from a recorder's court to a Superior Court has been effected and appeal bond given, the recorder's court has no further jurisdiction over the case, the procedure being the same as under this section, and defendant appellant may not thereafter withdraw the appeal by notice given in the recorder's court. State v. Goff, 205 N. C. 545, 172 S. E. 407.

Bill of Indictment Unnecessary.—Upon an appeal from an inferior court to the superior court from a conviction of a petty misdemeanor, the necessity of a bill of indictment in the latter court is dispensed with, State v. Jones, 181 N.

C. 543, 106 S. E. 827; State v. Quick, 72 N. C. 241, 242; but where the case is beyond the jurisdiction of the inferior court then an indictment is necessary. State v. McAden, 162 N. C. 575, 77 S. E. 298.

Amendment to Complaint.—Where the defendant has been separately tried before a justice of the peace for several indictable offenses, it is permissible for the superior court, on appeal, to allow an amendment to the complaint or warrant so as to make one complaint include the several offenses under different counts. State v. Mills, 181 N. C. 530, 106 S. E. 677.

Excessive Punishment by Public Justice.—A defendant is not entitled to a new trial because the punishment imposed by a police justice was excessive; the case should be remanded for resentencing in conformity to law. State v. Black, 150 N. C. 866, 64 S. E. 778.

Due Process Where Justice Paid by Fee upon Conviction.—Since a defendant in a criminal prosecution before a justice of the peace has a right to demand a jury trial as provided in § 15-157, and the right to appeal to the superior court and have the whole matter heard therein de novo, under this section, the fact that a justice's compensation is fixed upon a fee basis, which he will receive only in the event of conviction, does not result in depriving the defendant of trial under due process of law. In re Steele, 220 N. C. 685, 18 S. E. (2d) 132.

§ 15-178. Justice to return papers and findings to superior court.—In every case in which an appeal shall be prayed the justice shall forthwith transmit to the clerk of the superior court of the county all papers in the case, together with a copy of the verdict, if any, of his determination of the facts if there shall have been no trial by jury, and of the sentence, in which shall be set forth all the facts found by him, as well as his finding of those which were alleged in the complaint and which were found by him not to be proved. (Rev., s. 3275; Code, s. 901; 1868-9, c. 178, subc. 4, s. 12; C. S. 4648.)

§ 15-179. When state may appeal.—An appeal to the supreme court may be taken by the state in the following cases, and no other. Where judgment has been given for the defendant—

1. Upon a special verdict.
2. Upon a demurrer.
3. Upon a motion to quash.
4. Upon arrest of judgment. (Rev., s. 3276; Code, s. 1237; C. S. 4649.)

Cross Reference.—As to distinction between general and special verdicts, see § 1-201 et seq.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev., 321, for note on "Special Verdicts."

Judgments Rendered in Superior Court.—The right of the state to appeal upon a special verdict, a demurrer, a motion to quash, or a motion in arrest of judgment, as provided by this section, applies only to judgments rendered in the superior court. State v. Nichols, 215 N. C. 80, 200 S. E. 926.

Right Is Statutory.—The right of the state to appeal is statutory, which right may not be enlarged by the superior court, and when the superior court remands a cause to the county court with provision that the state may appeal from any judgment thereafter rendered by the county court, the provision giving the state the right to appeal is void. State v. Cox, 216 N. C. 424, 5 S. E. (2d) 125.

Bond Not Essential.—A bond, in the case of an appeal on the part of the state, is not necessary, a recognizance being sufficient. State v. McLellan, 1 N. C. 632; as to necessity of bond on appeal by defendant see State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217.

The word "demurrer" is used in this section in its usual and ordinary significance, as understood and defined in criminal pleading, and is not used in the sense of embracing "demurrer to evidence." State v. Moody, 150 N. C. 847, 64 S. E. 431.

Upon a demurrer to an indictment the state is allowed to appeal because it has the effect, in criminal cases, of opening the whole record to the court and, under it, the jurisdiction of the court may be challenged, as well as the sufficiency of the subject-matter of the indictment itself. State v. Moody, 150 N. C. 847, 64 S. E. 431; State v. McDowell, 84 N. C. 799, 802.

No Right of Appeal from Procedural Error.—The state has no right of appeal from the action of the trial judge in striking out a plea of guilty and entering erroneously a plea of not guilty and discharging the prisoner, upon a trial for an indictable offense. State v. Branner, 149 N. C. 559, 63 S. E. 169.

Overruling Motion to Amend Record.—No appeal lies by the state from an order overruling a motion to amend the record. State v. Swenson, 82 N. C. 541.

Taxing Prosecutor with Costs.—An appeal lies from the judgment of a justice of the peace taxing the prosecutor with costs, such taxing being in the nature of a civil judgment. State v. Morgan, 120 N. C. 564, 26 S. E. 634. See also note of State v. Powell, 86 N. C. 640, under section 15-177.

The refusal of the court to mark one as prosecutor of record is not one of the cases enumerated in this section in which the state may appeal. State v. Moore, 84 N. C. 724.

General Verdict of Not Guilty.—In a criminal prosecution where there is a plea and general verdict of not guilty, the state has no right of appeal; such verdict ends the case. State v. Savery, 126 N. C. 1083, 36 S. E. 22 and cases cited; but under this section the state may appeal from a judgment for defendant on a special verdict. State v. Monger, 107 N. C. 771, 12 S. E. 250; State v. Lane, 78 N. C. 547; State v. Winston, 194 N. C. 243, 139 S. E. 240.

Judgment Non Obstante Verdicto.—Where there is a verdict convicting a defendant of a misdemeanor under the provisions of a statute prohibiting the drawing of a worthless check on a bank under certain conditions, and a judgment has been rendered in favor of the defendant non obstante verdicto, the State may appeal under the provisions of this section. State v. Yarbboro, 194 N. C. 498, 140 S. E. 216.

Acquittal in Consequence of Erroneous Charge.—When a defendant has once been tried and acquitted upon an indictment good in form, no appeal lies even though the acquittal is in consequence of the erroneous charge of the presiding judge. State v. West, 71 N. C. 263.

Arrest of Judgment.—In a prosecution for manslaughter, judgment was entered providing that prayer for judgment and sentence be continued and that the defendant be placed on probation for a period of five years, with further order that as a special condition of probation the defendant should pay a designated sum weekly into the office of the clerk for a period of five years for the use of the mother of the deceased. Upon defendant's petition filed after the death of the mother within the five-year period, the court adjudged that the requirement for the payment of the sum had terminated and abated on her death. Held: The state may not appeal from the order, as the ruling is not equivalent to the allowance of a motion in arrest of judgment. State v. McCollum, 216 N. C. 737, 6 S. E. (2d) 503.

Arrest of Judgment as to One of Two Defendants.—Where in a prosecution for murder two defendants were convicted of manslaughter, the state under sub-division 4 of this section, has a right to appeal from an arrest of judgment as to one of them. State v. Hall, 183 N. C. 806, 112 S. E. 431.

Remanding Case for Lighter Sentence.—This section does not include a ruling of the superior court remanding a case for the imposition of a lesser sentence. State v. Davidson, 124 N. C. 839, 32 S. E. 957.

If a warrant charges simple assault, the State has no right of appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace acquitting the defendant, the justice having, in such cases, exclusive original jurisdiction. State v. Myrick, 202 N. C. 688, 163 S. E. 803.

The State may appeal from acquittal of defendant upon a special verdict, although the verdict is fatally defective in that it fails to find facts essential to an adjudication of defendant's guilt or innocence. State v. Guledge, 207 N. C. 374, 177 S. E. 128.

Applied to an order quashing a bill of indictment in State v. Lancaster, 169 N. C. 284, 84 S. E. 529. See State v. Parker, 209 N. C. 32, 182 S. E. 723.

Stated in State v. Hinson, 123 N. C. 765, 31 S. E. 854; State v. Davidson, 124 N. C. 839, 32 S. E. 957; State v. Bowman, 145 N. C. 452, 59 S. E. 74; State v. Morris, 208 N. C. 44, 179 S. E. 19.

§ 15-180. Appeal by defendant to supreme court.—In all cases of conviction in the superior court for any criminal offense, the defendant shall have the right to appeal, on giving adequate security to abide the sentence, judgment or decree of the supreme court; and the appeal shall be perfected and the case for the supreme court settled, as provided in civil actions. (Rev., s. 3277; Code, s. 1234; R. C., c. 4, s. 21; 1818, c. 962, s. 4; C. S. 4650.)

Cross References.—As to perfection of appeal, see § 1-282 and notes. As to essentials of transcript, see § 1-284 and notes. As to undertaking on appeal in civil cases, see § 1-285 and notes.

Editor's Note.—The manner of perfecting appeals in criminal cases is precisely the same as that in civil cases.

Appeals in criminal cases are controlled by this section, and a defendant is entitled to appeal only from conviction in the Superior Court or some final judgment thereof, and an appeal from an order of the Superior Court remanding the case to the recorder's court will be dismissed. State v. Rooks, 207 N. C. 275, 176 S. E. 752.

Appeal or Substitute for Writ of Error.—At common law there was no appeal from the decision of any of the courts, high or low, and these decisions could only be reviewed by writ of error or writ of false judgment. In North Carolina appeals are used as a substitute for those writs. State v. Bailey, 65 N. C. 426, 428; State v. Webb, 155 N. C. 426, 70 S. E. 1064.

Bond Necessary.—An appeal by the defendant to the supreme Court will be dismissed where no appeal bond is filed, if there is no order allowing the appeal without such bond. State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217; State v. Spurtin, 30 N. C. 362. See section 15-181.

Where the defendant appealed in three cases without giving appeal bond, and it appeared that he had obtained leave to appeal without bond in one case only, it was held that the other cases would be dismissed. State v. Hamby, 126 N. C. 1066, 35 S. E. 614.

Appeal "By Consent."—Where an appeal without bond or affidavit was allowed by consent it was held not to be in compliance with the section. State v. Kerns, 90 N. C. 650.

Appeal Lies Only from Final Judgment.—The right to appeal is wholly statutory, and a defendant may appeal only from a conviction or from some judgment that is final in its nature. Thus an appeal from the denial of defendant's plea in abatement will be dismissed as being an appeal from an interlocutory judgment. State v. Blades, 209 N. C. 56, 182 S. E. 714.

Defendant was not convicted, but was acquitted. There was no judgment on conviction, or judgment prejudicial to the defendant in its nature final. The defendant therefore had no right to appeal to the supreme court and it is without jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, or to decide the questions presented by defendant's assignment of error. State v. Hiatt, 211 N. C. 116, 117, 189 S. E. 124.

Exercise of Right Should Not Prejudice Defendant.—While the trial judge has the discretionary power to change the sentence during the term, where it appears of record that after prayer for judgment was continued, with defendant's consent, upon specified terms, the court, upon learning of defendant's intention to appeal, struck that judgment out and imposed a jail sentence, the cause will be remanded for resentencing, since defendant's exercise of his right to appeal under this section should not prejudice him in any manner. State v. Patton, 221 N. C. 117, 19 S. E. (2d) 142.

Where defendant could not meet the conditions upon which execution of the judgment was suspended if he exercised his right to appeal, under this section, the judgment on this count is erroneous, and the cause remanded for proper judgment thereon. State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

Cited in Current v. Church, 207 N. C. 658, 178 S. E. 82.

§ 15-181. Defendant may appeal without security for costs.—In all cases of conviction in the superior courts, the defendant shall have the right to appeal without giving security for costs, upon filing an affidavit that he is wholly unable to give security for the costs, and is advised by counsel that he has reasonable cause for the appeal prayed, and that the application is in good faith.

And where it shall appear to the presiding judge that a defendant who has been convicted of a capital felony, or having been tried upon a bill of indictment charging a capital felony, has been convicted of a less offense, and who has prayed an appeal to the supreme court from the sentence of death or other sentence pronounced against him upon such conviction, is unable to defray the cost of perfecting his appeal on account of his poverty, it shall be the duty of the county in which the alleged capital felony was committed, upon the order of such judge, to pay the necessary cost of obtaining a transcript of the proceedings had and the evidence offered on the trial from the court reporter for the use of the defendant and the necessary cost of preparing the requisite copies of the record and briefs which the defendant is required to file in the supreme court under the rules of said court.

The judge may fix the reasonable value of the services rendered in furnishing such transcript and preparing such copies of the record and briefs, and said copies of the record and briefs shall be prepared in the manner prescribed by the rules of the supreme court in pauper appeals. Provided, that this paragraph shall apply only to those cases in which counsel has been assigned by the court. (Rev., s. 3278; Code, s. 1235; 1869-70, c. 196, s. 1; 1933, c. 197; 1937, c. 330; C. S. 4651.)

Cross Reference.—As to appeals in forma pauperis in civil cases, see § 1-288 and notes thereunder.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 197, added the last two paragraphs of this section relating to appeals in capital felony cases to the Supreme Court.

The 1937 amendment extends the 1933 law to include defendants who have been tried on an indictment for a capital felony and convicted of a lesser offense. Again the statute would apply only in cases where counsel had been assigned by the court. See 15 N. C. Law Rev., 347.

The requirements of this section are mandatory and jurisdictional, "and unless the statute is complied with, the appeal is not in this Court, and we can take no cognizance of the case, except to dismiss it from our docket." State v. Holland, 211 N. C. 284, 285, 189 S. E. 761, citing Honeycutt v. Watkins, 151 N. C. 652, 65 S. E. 762. See State v. Robinson, 214 N. C. 365, 366, 199 S. E. 270. And are not subject to indulgences or waiver. State v. Holland, 211 N. C. 284, 286, 189 S. E. 761.

The requirements of the statute are mandatory, not directory, and unless complied with the appeal will be dismissed, not as a matter of discretion, but for want of jurisdiction. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 462, 20 S. E. (2d) 292.

There is no authority for granting an appeal in forma pauperis without a proper supporting affidavit. State v. Holland, 211 N. C. 284, 285, 189 S. E. 761.

Essentials of Affidavit Cannot Be Waived.—The court has no authority to dispense with, or the prosecutor to waive the requirements of this section in respect to the affidavit which the defendant must file. State v. Moore, 93 N. C. 500.

In State v. Duncan, 107 N. C. 818, 819, 12 S. E. 382, it is said: "It is not a matter of discretion with the court, but it is the right of the state to have an appeal dismissed where there is a failure to comply with either of the three essential requirements" of this section; as to dismissal of appeal where no bond given or order allowing appeal without security, see State v. Patrick, 72 N. C. 217.

The affidavit is jurisdictional and may not be waived by the solicitor. State v. Stafford, 203 N. C. 601, 166 S. E. 734.

In order that the Supreme Court may have jurisdiction of an appeal in forma pauperis in a criminal action it is required that the application for leave to appeal be supported by an affidavit of the appellant showing that he is wholly unable to give the security required; that he is advised by counsel that he has reasonable cause for appeal, and that the application is made in good faith; and where any of these three statutory requirements have not been complied with the appeal will be dismissed. State v. Marion, 200 N. C. 715, 158 S. E. 406.

Compared with Security in Civil Actions.—The requirements of this section for prosecuting an appeal without making deposit or giving security for costs in a criminal prosecution, are different from those in a civil action, but the requirements of both statutes, are jurisdictional, and unless complied with in all respects, the appeal is not properly in this Court. Powell v. Moore, 204 N. C. 654, 655, 169 S. E. 281.

Time of Perfecting Appeal.—Appeals under this section can be allowed only during term of court and by the judge. State v. Gatewood, 125 N. C. 694, 695, 34 S. E. 543, and if not perfected at this time the appeal is a nullity. State v. Dixon, 71 N. C. 204.

The affidavit is to be filed during the trial term or within ten days from the adjournment thereof. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292. See § 15-182.

Proper Form Presumed.—If an order is made allowing a defendant to appeal as a pauper, and the affidavit and certificate of counsel are not in the record sent to the Supreme Court, it will be presumed that they were in due form. State v. Low, 103 N. C. 350, 351, 9 S. E. 411.

Signature of Judge Essential.—Where the order allowing an appeal in forma pauperis in criminal cases is not signed by the judge but by the clerk, the defect is jurisdictional, without power of the appellate court to allow amendment, and the appeal will be dismissed. State v. Parish, 151 N. C. 659, 65 S. E. 762.

Name of Advising Counsel Need Not Appear.—It is not necessary that an affidavit, filed under this section, should state the name of the counsel by whom the applicant is advised that he has reasonable grounds for appeal. State v. Perkins, 117 N. C. 697, 699, 23 S. E. 274. But it has been suggested that it would be proper to state the name of such counsel. State v. Divine, 69 N. C. 390.

Motion to Reinstate Appeal.—Where one of the essential elements has been omitted from the affidavit, a motion to reinstate the appeal by offering to file a bond or make a deposit should be made when the motion to dismiss was before the court, and after the case has been regularly dismissed, it is too late. State v. Martin, 172 N. C. 977, 90 S. E. 502.

Failure to Prosecute According to Rules of Court.—See State v. Holland, 211 N. C. 284, 189 S. E. 761, where it was held that the affidavit not containing the assertion that "the application is in good faith," prevented the court having jurisdiction. See also, State v. Bynum, 199 N. C. 376, 154 S. E. 918.

Applied in State v. Starnes, 94 N. C. 973; State v. Wyld, 110 N. C. 500, 15 S. E. 5; State v. Atkinson, 141 N. C. 734, 53 S. E. 228.

§ 15-182. Appeal granted; bail for appearance.

—The affidavit required in the preceding section may be filed at any time during the term or within ten days from the adjournment of the term either with the Judge or the clerk, and it shall be the duty of the Judge or the Clerk on filing the affidavit to grant the appeal without security for costs, and for any bailable offense the judge shall require the defendant to enter into recognizance in a reasonable sum to make his appearance at the first term of the Superior Court to be held in the county and to further answer the charge preferred. (Rev., s. 3279; Code, s. 1236; 1869-70, c. 196, s. 2; 1929, c. 236, s. 1; C. S. 4652.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1929 added the first provision of this section; namely, "the affidavit required in the preceding section may be filed at any time during the term or within ten days from the adjournment of the term either with the Judge or the Clerk."

Correction of Errors Allowed by Section 1-288 Applies to Civil Cases Only.—The amendment to section 1-288 permitting correction of errors or omissions in the affidavit or certificate of counsel in pauper appeals at any time prior to the hearing of the argument of the case, applies only to appeals in civil actions and not to appeals in criminal prosecutions under this and the preceding section. State v. Mitchell, 221 N. C. 460, 20 S. E. (2d) 292.

§ 15-183. Bail pending appeal.—When any person convicted of a misdemeanor and sentenced by the court, shall appeal, the court shall allow such person to give bail pending appeal. (Rev., s. 3280; Code, s. 1181; R. C., c. 35, s. 12; 1850-1, c. 2; C. S. 4653.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of bail to surrender principal, see § 15-122.

In General.—But for this section an accused would have no right to bail pending an appeal. State v. Bradsher, 189 N. C. 401, 127 S. E. 349.

Amount of Bail.—The question of the amount to be fixed for bond pending appeal is largely in the discretion of the court below. State v. Parker, 220 N. C. 416, 17 S. E. (2d) 475.

§ 15-184. Appeal not to vacate judgment; stay of execution.—In criminal cases an appeal to the supreme court shall not have the effect of vacating the judgment appealed from, but upon perfecting the appeal as now required by law, either by giving bond or in forma pauperis, there shall be a stay of execution during the pendency of the appeal. The clerk of the superior court shall, as soon as may be after execution is stayed, as provided in this section, notify the attorney-general thereof. Said notice shall give the name of defendant, the crime of which he was convicted, and, if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal has been extended by agreement, the time of such extension. If for any reason the defendant should wish to withdraw his appeal before the same is docketed in the supreme court, he may go, or be taken, before the clerk of the superior court in which he was convicted, and said clerk shall enter such withdrawal upon the record of the case, and notify the sheriff, who shall proceed forthwith to execute the sentence. (Rev., s. 3281; 1887, c. 191, s. 1; 1887, c. 192, s. 4; 1919, c. 5; C. S. 4654.)

The effect of an appeal is to stay all proceedings in the lower court pending the disposition of the appeal, and where, after appeal bond has been given, the defendant makes motions before the Superior Court judge for a mistrial for prejudice of jurors and for a new trial for newly discovered evidence, the motions are coram non judge. State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 185, 187, 159 S. E. 337.

Clerk to Notify Attorney General of Appeal.—Where an appeal is taken in a criminal case and the execution of the judgment stayed under this section, the clerk of the Superior Court is required to notify the Attorney General of the appeal, and, if the statutory time for perfecting the appeal is extended, he should notify him of such extension. State v. Watson, 208 N. C. 70, 179 S. E. 455; State v. Etheridge, 207 N. C. 801, 178 S. E. 556.

Effect of Failure to Serve Statement of Case within Time Fixed.—Where defendants fail to make out and serve their statement of case on appeal within the time fixed, they lose their right to prosecute the appeal, and the motion of the attorney-general to docket and dismiss will be allowed, but where defendants have been convicted of a capital felony, this will be done only after an inspection of the record for errors appearing upon its face. State v. Allen, 208 N. C. 672, 182 S. E. 140. See also, State v. McLeod, 209 N. C. 54, 182 S. E. 713.

Conditions on Suspension of Execution.—Suspension of execution of judgment must not be so conditioned as to interfere with right of appeal. State v. Calcutt, 219 N. C. 545, 15 S. E. (2d) 9.

Applied in State v. Casey, 201 N. C. 620, 161 S. E. 81; Current v. Church, 207 N. C. 658, 178 S. E. 82.

§ 15-185. Judgment for fines docketed; lien and execution.—When the sentence in whole or in part directs the payment of a fine, the judgment shall be docketed by the clerk and be a lien on the real estate of the defendant in the same manner as judgments in civil actions, and executions thereon shall only be stayed, upon an appeal taken, by security being given in like manner as is required in civil cases. Should the judgment be affirmed upon appeal to the supreme court, the clerk of the superior court, on receipt of the certificate from the supreme court, shall issue execution on such judgment. (Rev., s. 3282; 1887, c. 191, s. 3; C. S. 4655.)

Cross Reference.—As to stay of execution upon appeal in civil cases, see § 1-289 et seq.

Time Lien Attaches.—A judgment for a fine, duly docketed, constitutes a lien on the real estate of defendant, under this section, which lien attaches immediately upon the docketing of the judgment. Osborne v. Board of Education, 207 N. C. 503, 177 S. E. 642.

Cited in Current v. Church, 207 N. C. 658, 178 S. E. 82.

§ 15-186. Procedure upon receipt of certificate of supreme court.—The clerk of the superior court, in all cases where the judgment has been affirmed (except where the conviction is a capital felony), shall forthwith on receipt of the certificate of the opinion of the supreme court notify the sheriff, who shall proceed to execute the sentence which was appealed from. In criminal cases where the judgment is not affirmed the cases shall be placed upon the docket for trial at the first ensuing term of the court after the receipt of such certificate. (Rev., s. 3283; 1887, c. 192, s. 3; C. S. 4656.)

Art. 19. Execution.

§ 15-187. Death by administration of lethal gas.—Death by electrocution under sentence of law is hereby abolished and death by the administration of lethal gas substituted therefor. (1909, c. 443, s. 1; 1935, c. 294, s. 1; C. S. 4657.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for capital crimes committed before July 1, 1935, see § 15-191.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935, this section provided for electrocution.

This section applies only to crimes committed after the effective date of the statute, 1 July, 1935, and it will not support a sentence of death by lethal gas imposed for a capital crime committed prior to the effective date of the statute although defendant was tried and convicted after the effective date thereof. State v. Hester, 209 N. C. 99, 182 S. E. 738. See also, State v. Dingle, 209 N. C. 293, 183 S. E. 376; State v. McNeill, 211 N. C. 286, 287, 189 S. E. 872. Cited in State v. Jackson, 199 N. C. 321, 323, 154 S. E. 402; State v. Baxter, 208 N. C. 90, 93, 179 S. E. 450; State v. Ferrell, 205 N. C. 640, 641, 172 S. E. 186; State v. Wall, 205 N. C. 657, 658, 172 S. E. 216; State v. Horne, 209 N. C. 725, 184 S. E. 470; State v. Brice, 214 N. C. 34, 197 S. E. 690.

§ 15-188. Manner and place of execution.—The mode of executing a death sentence must in every case be by causing the convict or felon to inhale lethal gas of sufficient quantity to cause death, and the administration of such lethal gas must be continued until such convict or felon is dead; and when any person, convict or felon shall be sentenced by any court of the state having competent jurisdiction to be so executed, such punishment shall only be inflicted within a permanent death chamber which the superintendent of the state penitentiary is hereby authorized and directed to provide within the walls of the North Carolina penitentiary at Raleigh, North Carolina. The superintendent of the state penitentiary shall also cause to be provided, in conformity with this article and approved by the governor and council of state, the necessary appliances for the infliction of the punishment of death in accordance with the requirements of this article. 1909, c. 443, s. 2; 1935, c. 294, s. 2; C. S. 4658.)
